THE KLEMME TIMES

Twenty-seventh Year—Number 17. Klemme, Iowa, Thursday Afternoon, January 4, 1923 $1.50 In Advance—$2.00 Outside of County

NEARBY NEWS FROM AROUND THE STATE

FOREST CITY BOY ACCIDENTLY KILLED WHILE HUNTING

Shotgun Goes Off When Butt Is Used to Kill Rabbit.

Gisle Hanna, 21 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Hanna of Forest City, was killed Saturday forenoon when a shot gun went off in his hands.

He was using the butt of the gun to kill a rabbit which he had wounded. He bled to death before other hunters in the party could obtain medical aid. The accident occured near the home of his sister, Mrs. Magnus Bartleson.

FERTILE MAN HAS OLD APPLE

Is Twenty-five Years Old And Well Preserved

FERTILE, Jan. 4.—Are Iowa-grown apples superior in keeping quality to those grown in other states? C. S. Sheimo, a merchant of this place, says they are; and in proof of his assertion he exhibited this morning a northwestern greening that he plucked from an Iowa tree 25 years ago the second day of last October. The apple is sound as a dollar, without a flaw, spot or blemish of any kind, and would doubtless make good eating providing one was blessed with strong, sound teeth.

The apple, so Mr. Sheimo claims, was preserved all these years by simplp sticking its surace full of cloves. The common clove, he says, retards decay in vegetable matter by absorbing the moisture, thus permitting the solid matter to cure and harden before decay sets in. In the winter time he keeps his apple in the basement; but in summer time his wife keeps it in the kitchen cupboard, the spicy aroma of the cloves preventing ants and insects from making raids on her store of sugar and sweets.

So far as is known, the apple exhibited this morning by the Fertile merchant is the oldest in existence. It was plucked from the treen on October 2, 1897; and unless some mishap befalls it, the owner believes it will be good for another quarter of a century.

FRANCE SATISFIED GERMANY DOESN'T WANT TO PAY HER

(Associated Press)—France has made an intensive study of the reparations question for the last four years and is convinced that Germany does not want to restore her financial stability if such a step means payment in full of a reasonable war indemnity. Such is the authorative though unofficial comment on the speech of the American secretary of state at New Haven recently.

STORMY REGIME OF SHERIFF ROBB ENDS

New Polk-Co. Sheriff to Abolish Jail Methods Inaugurated by Preacher-Official

DES MOINES, Jan. 2.—Riding on the crest of a wave of notoriety of even larger proportions than the one on which he rode into office, Winfred E. Robb, Polk county's preacher-sheriff, went out of office today after a tumultuous two year administration.

The sheriff turned over his keps and badge o office to Dr. Park A. Findley, sheriff-elect, at 11 o'clock this morning. Robb, a democrat and a minister, entered the sheriff's office two years ago yith a 12,000 majority. He left it today under arrest on two charges preferred against him Saturday by his own jailer, Wm. McMurray, and charged with the task of accounting for $30,000 worth of bonded whiskey carted away from the doors of the county jail itself last Wednesday night.

Robb has declared his intention of remaining in Des Moines for the next few weeks, awaiting the hearing of his own case and that of Clyde and Everett McMurray, sons of the jailer, the latter held in connection with the theft of 47 cases of liquor from the county jail. The chaplain-sheriff will fill several lecture engagements in the state during that time.

Robb treats the charges filed against him humorously and declares them to be "a giganic frame-up."

Sheriff-elect Findley has announced a policy for his office almost diametrically apposed to that enforced by Sheriff Robb. Findley, a veteran of the Spanish-American and World wars, will institute a military regime Robb's "trusty" system will be scrapped and all prisoners confined to their cells at all times.

MILK CHECK $200 FOR SINGLE MONTH FOR FIFTEEN COWS

Cedar Falls, Ia., Jan 4 — Special)—John Petersen a young farmer of Cedar Falls township has found diarying to be a valuable activ ity on his farm. During the month of December he milked fifteen cows, from which he derived 342 pounds of butter fat. His milk check for the month amounted to $200. In addition to this he fed several young calves milk milk and used an abundance for domestic purposes.

FRISBEE NEW POSTMASTER AT GARNER

There has been a lot of guessing as to who would kept the office of Postmaster at Garner, as there six or seven in the race for the job.

Word comes to us that Charles A. Frisbee has received the recommendation for appointment to the office.

The Garner post office is the largest in the county and is ranked as a second class postoffice, which position it reached in 1920.

H. A. Sweigard, the retiring postmaster has been in the office nine years.

The postoffice was recently moved into new quarters and is now located the first door north of the First National Bank there. It is modernly equipped in every way.

PAPER ROBBERS SEE FINISH

The discovery that wood pulp is no longer necessary in the manufacture of paper carries a ray of sunshine into every home.

The prices that merchants have been compelled to pay for wrapping paper haye reached a proportion that has actually affected prices in some commodities.

not been solely a newspapeer prob-

The paper robbery has lem, though hundreds of publishers have been driven into bankruptcy by the unconscionable gourging of paper manufacture.

Prices have been tilted under every pretext under the sun. Not more than a month ago publishers were warned of still furthur advances.

Relief, however, is in sight. Florida saw grass is being used in newsprint paper manufacture. A great mill at Leesburg is turning out substantial quantities of a paper up to the highest standard. The importance of the discovery lies in the fact that paper can now be made from an annual crop. It takes fifty years to grow pulp wood.

Up-to-date newspaper publishers have regarded the paper situation with dread. They knew they were in the grip of the manufacturers and experience has shown that they might expect no mercy. Their only hope was govermental interference with furthur exploitation and with Attorney General Daugherty in the saddle they had little hope of any relief from that quarter.

However the reaper now is beginning to take the place of the lumber jack and old dame nature puts an end to furthur public robbery which to date the government has failed to stop.

TWO COUNTIES JOIN IN MAINTAINING ROAD

The board of conservation has authorized preliminary road plans submitted to them, and preparations are now being made to carry out the road program. Grading will soon commence, with the promise to have same completed by early spring.

Hancock county has signified her willingness, the same as Winnebago, to join hands with the state in keeping up the county line road, to care for and keep it in good condition.

BILLY SUNDAY THINKS CHRISTMAS STAR SHOWS SPEEDY 2ND ADVENT

Associates Appearance With Bible Prophecy.

Los Angeles, Dec. 29.— Rev. Billy Sunday has come to the suport of the "Star of Bethlehem," reputed to have been seen here early Christmas morning.

Astronomers refused to get excited over the new satellite, claiming that it was merely Jupiter in an especially brilliant mood.

Rev. Mr. Sunday today declared that he believed the star was the real biblical star, despite a statement to the contrary of Prof. Lucien Yarken, noted astronomer.

"When science and religion conflict, science is always wrong," declared Rev. Mr. Sunday.

"The presence of the star indicates that the forecasts of Revelations are coming true. The sixth seal of eternity, as set forth in revelations, refers to the second coming of Christ. Especially in view of the prophesies fulfilled by the World War, I do believe the time is quickly approaching. As predicted by Revelations, nation is against nation, there are strange signs in the heavens, and the spirit of anti-Christ is at every turn.

COUNTY WORKERS AT GARNER HAVE BANQUET; PECK PLAYS SANTA

The court house folks all enjoyed a big jolly time last Wednesday night. All included the county officers, deputies, clerks, abstractors surveyors and janitor. A substantial and delicious dinner was served in the basement in the office of Engineer Lilly, who stored away for the day his maps and other paraphernalia. Joe Knadler was on the committee, but the real work was done by the Misses Josephine Baumgartner, Emma Hyek, Ruth Schipull, Fern Zeiger and Gladys Schipull.

The room was attractively decorated withk Christmas colors, a fireplace, candles and favors. Peck Hanson served as both Santa Claus and toastmaster in his usual happy way. The affair was delightful in every detail and served as their annual party and also as a sort of farewell to Mrs. Hattie Aldridge, retiring recorder, and Chris Jacobs, who returns to private lie after serving as county auditor the past two terms.

NORTH AVERY PROGRESSIVE CLUB HAS MEETING

As Usual. They Enjop A Fine Time

The members and guests of the North Avery Progressive were enteretained at a 7 o'clock dinner on Thursday evening, December 28th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Nelson. The dinning room was tasteully decorated in green and red —suggestive of the Holiday Season.

After a most bountiful feast a Christmas program was given. Each member responding to the roll call with an appropriate reading or a greeting. Several recitations were given by the children and a Xmas Carol was sung by all. Mr. and Mrs. Cook sang "A Gift from the Father." Miss Ridder played a piano solo, and P. M. Griesemer gave a most remarkable talk on "Citizenship." We regret that Mr. Griesemer's remarks could not have been broadcasted to every voter in the state.

J. N. Day responded with remarks of appreciation to the Club Members, not forgetting to display his ever jovial disposition.

The January meeting will be held at the home of W. L. Sherwood, on January 26th.

A number from this vicinity are invited to the 50th Wedding Anniversary celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Nels Nelson at Clear Lake Monday, January 15th. Nels Nelson is a brother-in-law of Tom Nelson, Sr. of this place.

SHOE SALESMAN NO JOB FOR BALD HEADED MAN

A funny story has been going the rounds of the newspapers the past few weeks which we think is funny enough to reproduce again. If there are any bald headed shoe salesmen in Klemme they shoull read this seriously and realize the dangers of their profession. Following is the item:

"Is a bald head an advantage or a disadvantage? There are rdent champions for both sides of the question, but one man in Centerville is convinced that there are times at least when a bald head is a decided disadvantage. The man is a clerk in a prominent shoe store in that city and he belongs to the super-bald. A few days ago he was fitting a pair of shoes on a rather near-sighted woman from Lancaster, who was not paying any particular attention to the operation but was looking about here and there over the store. Happening to glance in the direction of the clerk, she mistook his bald head for her bare knee and suddenly grabbing her skirt she promptly covered what she supposed was the exposed part of her anatomy. Timely assistance on the part of fellow clerks saved the bald one from death by suffocation."— Advertiser. (Fayette, Mo.)

GOODELL NEWS ITEMS

Mrs. Larner is enjoying a visit from her daughter, Mrs. Gosnel, of Fort Dodge.

The dance here Wednesday night was well attended.

Mrs. Fred Chase and son, Clifford, were Klemme callers Thursday.

Martin Kearney visited relatives at Williams, last week.

Ethel Hughes, of Garner, spent several days last week visiting with Goodell friends.

Mrs. Jim Trumbell and daughter, Florence, of Mason City, are visiting at the Trumbell home east of town.

The ladies of the Farm Bureau met at the home of Mrs. Jay Griggs Tuesday afternoon, where they spent the time in making dress orms.

The Coe College students from Goodell returned to Cedar Rapids to resume their school work, after enjoying two weeks vacation at home.

Arthur Lowenberg returned to Ames Tuesday, where he attends the Iowa State College.

Jay Griggs and family ate New Year's dinner at the Strasburg home in Meservey.

W. L. Sherwood and family ate New Year's dinner in Goodell.

Mrs. Chase and son, Dale, were callers at the Chas. Griffin home last Sunday.

The party at Lloyd Brugman's was well attended and all had a good time..

The Radio fans have been busy these evenings listening to some very fine programs.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bier now can ride in style, having purchased a Ford coupe.

The best tailor in the world can't make a suit of clothes to beat the khaki uniform Uncle Sam is putting out.

Every woman has a sneaking suspicion that her husband has a source of income that she doesn't know anything about.

We can remember the time when the chocolate icing on a cake used to be sneered at if it wasn't at least a quarter of an inch thick.

Men do many things in the heat of passion but few of those hot-tempered fellows ever seem to get mad enough at the kaiser to go and enlist.

POPULAR SCIENCE

Full sunlight is estimated to be 600,000 times brighter than full moonlight.

The pearl is the only gem that does not require the lapidary's art to bring out its beauty.

ACTIVITIES OF THE HANCOCK COUNTY FARM BUREAU

The Project Committee, consisting of A.O. Christenson, President of the Farm Bureau, Mrs. E. J. Schneider, County Chairman of Women's Work and T. R. Reihm, has outlined the 1923 Farm Bureau Program as follows:

1. Regular monthly meetings to be held in each township with a definite date so that no two townships would hold meetings the same night.

II. The following committees be appointed:

(A) Executive Committee, which shall consist of a President, Vice-President and Secretary-Treasurer, whose duty it shall be to oversee all Farm Bureau work in the township, appoint the co-operators, and other committees, and see that they are properly informed as to their duties.

(B) Program Committee which may be a standing committee for the year or appointed at each meeting to serve for the next meeting, whose duty it will be to prepare programs, and the chairman of the committee to act as Chairman of the meeting where the program is being given.

(C) Social or Refreshment Committee, which shall be appointed each time to act for the next meeting wherever it is desired to serve refreshments.

(D) Membership Committee which shall be a standing committee appointed the first of the year, whose duty it shall be to have charge of membership work in the township.

III. Women's work be developed in each township, and that a woman be elected Vice President. When co-operators, as well as men, to be appointed in each school district. Whenever a woman Vice President is not elected, that a Chairman of Women's Work be elected, who will serve on the executive committee as well as the officers.

IV. The following plan of program is suggested for each meeting:

(A) Call to order.
(B) Business.
(C) Music.
(D) Discussion of Farm Questions.
(E) Musical Selection.
(F) Recitation.
(G) Discussion of Home Questions.
(H) Recitation or Reading.
(I) Debate, demonstration or a special feature, such as moving pictures.
(J) Music.
(K) Adjournment.
(L) Social hour or refreshment.

V. Whenever possible, townships enter a team in the state wide debate on the Producers Contract.

VI. Membership work and collections in charge of the treasurer, and each township director trough their committees and co-operators responsible for the work in their township.

VII. To assist and co-operate with County Wool Growers Association, Breeders Association, Fair Association, Institutes, Poultry Shows, and Short Courses.

VIII. Publish each month a free exchange.

IX. Labor Bureau.

X. Give assistance to local co-operative associations, such as elevators creameries and shipping associations.

XI. Conduct vacination chools whenever demand warrants.

XII. Organize Cow Testing Association.

XIII. Conduct Dairy Feeding and Management Schools.

XIV. Conduct livestock feeding and management schools.

XV. Conduct farm meat demonstrations.

XVI. Establish Poultry Record Farms.

XVII. Conduct poultry culling demonstrations wherever requested, providing an attendance of ten is assured.

XVIII. Club Work.
(A) Dairy Calf Club.
(B) Pure Bred Sow and Litter Club.

XIX. Cream Scoring Contest.

XX. Conduct Orchard Work, such as pruning and spraying demonstrations, spray rings, county demonstrational orchard and pruning schools.

XXI. Corn Variety Test Demonstrations.

XXII. Oat Variety Test Demonstrations.

XXIII. Eradication of Canadian Thistle.

XXIV. Control of Potato Diseases.

XXV. Conduct experiments as to the value of certified Northern grown seed potatoes.

XXVI. Five months clothing course in each township, and other home projects of interest to women.

XXVII. Farm Accounting and farm Organization schools.

XXVIII. Conduct inormation bureau, distribute bulletins, secure information from reliable sources at all times when requested.

XXIX. Supply farm news to local and daily papers.

XXX. Develop good working membership in every township with at least 200 more new members in the county.

NEW COUNTY OFFICERS TAKE UP DUTIES

There are two new faces at the Court House since January 1st. Mr. John Madison is the jolly looking man now seated at the Auditor's desk. He is digging right into the work and "getting onto the ropes fast," and will no doubt soon be quite familiar with the work of this important office. After you have seen Mr. Madison a few times you will call him "Jack" as that is the way his friends address him.

In the recorder's office we find Mrs. Clarissa Abel, who by this time is well acquainted with the voters of the county. She has been assisting in the office for a few weeks, getting onto the hang of the work. She is a capable lady and will faithfully perform the various duties of her new office.

The rest of the "crowd" at the court house are the same. Taken as a whole, they are sure a nice congregation of officers.

SCOUT NEWS

The Boy Scouts held their meeting Monday night under the First National Bank. Allen Klotzback was examined for the Tenderfoot requirements after which he took the Oath. Allen is now a Scout in good standing and we believe he will do his best to be worthy of the name of a Scout.

A motion was made and carried that all Scouts come prepared the next meeting to give all the Scout Laws in order. This is one of the requirements to become a Tenderfoot, but a great many of the Scouts are at the present time unable to do this. After various other business the meeting was adjourned.

The boys appointed to look after the sweeping of the Scout Room were Allen Klotzback and Kermit Koerner.

Frank Gibbs and Kermit Koerner passed their fourteen mile hike test Monday when they walkel to Miller. The boys came back by way of the Rock Island. This is another test passed for the boys and it will not be long before they become First Class Scouts.

As it snowed Monday night it made it fine for the Scouts to do a little trailing Tuesday. On Tuesday morning four lifferent trails were laid. In the afternoon Frank Gibbs Kermit Koerner, Allen Klotzback and Donald Turgeson passed their trailing tests. Frank made the record time of the troop; his time being 11½ minutes. Allen came next to Frank with a record of 12 minutes. The required time is 25 min. for a half mile trail.

SENTENCE FOR BLACKMAILING

ALLISON, Jan. 2.—Arthur Springer and wife of Dumont were sentenced Wednesday by Judge M. F. Edwards for two years each to Ft. Madison and Rockwell City, respectively, after pleading guilty to extortion, commonly known as blackmail. A few weeks ago the above parties sent letters to a few of Butler county's prominent citizens demanding $3,000 each for alleged familiarities with Mrs. Springer. Mrs. Springer had her choice of a parole or serving her time at Rockwell City in the industrial school; however, she chose the latter, stating she was equally guilty with her husband.

its face value.

A smile is often worth more than

DESERT GOLD by Zane Grey

Author of Riders of the Purple Sage, Wildfire, Etc.

Copyright by Harper & Brothers.

GALE RUSHES ROJAS, THE BANDIT

Wheeling, Gale rushed at Rojas. It was his old line-breaking plunge. Neither Rojas nor his men had time to move. The black-skinned bandit's face turned a dirty white; his jaw dropped; he would have shrieked if Gale had not hit him. The blow swept him backward against his men. Then Gale's heavy body, swiftly following with the momentum of that rush, struck the little group of rebels. They went down with the table and chairs in a sliding crash.

Gale, carried by his plunge, went with them. Like a cat he landed on top. As he rose his powerful hands fastened on Rojas. He jerked the little bandit off the tangled pile of struggling, yelling men, and, swinging him with terrific force, let go his hold. Rojas slid along the floor, knocking over tables and chairs. Gale bounded back, dragged Rojas up, handling him as if he were a limp sack.

A shot rang out above the yells, Gale heard the jingle of breaking glass. The room darkened perceptibly. He flashed a glance backward. The two cowboys were between him and the crowd of frantic rebels. With a cry Gale slung the bleeding Rojas from him. The bandit struck a table, toppled over it, fell, and lay prone.

Another figure closed in on Gale. This one was dark, swift. A blade glinted—described a circle aloft. Simultaneously with a close, red flash the knife wavered; the man wielding it stumbled backward. The din became a roar. Gale heard shots that sounded like dull spats in the distance. The big lamp behind the bar seemingly split, then sputtered and went out, leaving the room in darkness.

That's how Dick Gale, American, rushes Rojas, the Mexican bandit, in "No Man's Land," just over the border. He is doing it to give Lieut. George Thorne, American cavalryman, a chance to get his Spanish sweetheart, Mercedes Castaneda, out of the bandit's clutches. It's a pretty tale, this romance of George and Mercedes. And still more romantic is the love story of Dick and Nell Burton. For Dick, to save Mercedes for Thorne, casts his lot with the two American cowboys who shot out the lights and goes into a new world of adventure in which he finds hardship, romance, desperate endeavor, fighting, love and gold.

The author? Why, no less a writer than Zane Grey, author of "The Heritage of the Desert," "Riders of the Purple Sage" and more than a dozen other first-class tales of the West. Of pioneer stock, with a college education and wide athletic and outdoor experience, his literary work since 1904 has made him probably the most widely-read author of western stories of adventure.

PROLOGUE

—1—

A face haunted Cameron—a woman's face. It was there in the white heart of the dying campfire; it hung in the shadows that hovered over the flickering light; it drifted in the darkness beyond.

This hour, when the day had closed and the lonely desert night set in with its dead silence, was one in which Cameron's mind was thronged with memories of a time long past—of a home back in Peoria, of a woman he had wronged and lost, and loved too late. He was a prospector for gold, a hunter of solitude, a lover of the dread, rock-ribbed infinitude, because he wanted to be alone to remember.

Then a sharp clink of metal on stone and soft pads of hoofs in sand prompted Cameron to reach for his gun, and to move out of the light of the waning campfire.

Figures darker than the gloom approached and took shape, and in the light turned out to be those of a white man and a heavily packed burro.

"Hello there," the man called, as he came to a halt and gazed about him. "I saw your fire. May I make camp here?"

Cameron came forth out of the shadow and greeted his visitor, whom he took for a prospector like himself. Cameron resented the breaking of his lonely campfire vigil, but he respected the law of the desert.

The stranger thanked him, and then slipped the pack from his burro. Then he rolled out his pack and began preparations for a meal. The campfire burst into a bright blaze, and by its light Cameron saw a man whose gray hair somehow did not seem to make him old, and whose stooped shoulders did not detract from an impression of rugged strength.

Another of those strange desert prospectors in whom there was some relentless driving power besides the lust for gold! Cameron felt that between this man and himself there was a subtle affinity, vague and undefined, perhaps born of the divination that here was a desert wanderer like himself, perhaps born of a deeper, an unintelligible relation having its roots back in the past. A long-forgotten sensation stirred in Cameron's breast, one so long forgotten that he could not recognize it. But it was akin to pain.

II

When he awakened he found, to his surprise, that his companion had departed. A trail in the sand led off to the north. There was no water in that direction. Cameron shrugged his shoulders; it was not his affair; he had his own problems. And straightway he forgot his strange visitor.

Cameron began his day, grateful for the solitude that was now unbroken, for the canon-furrowed, cactus-spired scene that now showed no sign of life. While it was yet light, and he was digging in a moist white-bordered wash for water, he was brought sharply up by hearing the crack of hard hoofs on stone. There down the canon came a man on a burro. Cameron recognized them.

"Hello, friend," called the man, halting. "Our trails crossed again—that's good."

"Hello," replied Cameron slowly. "Any mineral sign today?"

"No."

They made camp together, ate their frugal meal, smoked a pipe, and rolled in their blankets without exchanging many words. In the morning the same reticence, the same aloofness characterized the manner of both. But Cameron's companion, when he had packed his burro and was ready to start, faced about and said: "We might stay together, if it's all right with you."

"I never take a partner," replied Cameron.

"You're alone; I'm alone," said the other mildly. "It's a big place. If we find gold there'll be enough for two."

"I don't go down into the desert for gold alone," rejoined Cameron.

His companion's deep-set, luminous eyes emitted a singular flash. It moved Cameron to say that in the years of his wandering he had met no man who could endure equally with him the blasting heat, the blinding dust storms, the wilderness of sand and rock and lava and cactus, the terrible silence and desolation of the desert. "I may strike through the Sonora desert. I may head for Pinacate or north for the Colorado basin. You are an old man."

"Hello, Friend," Called the Man, Halting. "Our Trails Crossed Again—That's Good."

"I don't know the country, but to me one place is the same as another," replied his companion. Then with gentle slaps he drove his burro in behind Cameron. "Yes, I'm old. I'm lonely, too. It's come to me just lately. But, friend, I can still travel, and for a few days my company won't hurt you."

"Have it your way," said Cameron.

They began a slow march down into the desert. At sunset they camped under the lee of a low mesa. Cameron was glad his comrade had the Indian habit of silence. Another day's travel found the prospectors deep in the wilderness. Then there came a breaking of reserve, noticeable in the elder man, almost imperceptibly gradual in Cameron. And so, as Cameron began to respond to the influence of a desert less lonely than habitual, he began to take keener note of his comrade, and found him different from any other he had ever encountered in the wilderness. This man never grumbled at the heat, the glare, the driving sand, the sour water, the scant fare. He was tireless, patient, brooding.

Cameron's awakened interest brought home to him the realization that for years he had shunned companionship. In those years only three men had wandered into the desert with him, and these had left their bones to bleach in the shifting sands. Cameron had not cared to know their secrets. But the more he studied this latest comrade the more he began to suspect that he might have missed something in the others. In his own driving passion to take his secret into the limitless abode of silence and desolation, where he could be alone with it, he had forgotten that life dealt shocks to other men. Somehow this silent comrade reminded him.

One afternoon late, after they had toiled up a white, winding wash of sand and gravel, they came upon a dry waterhole. Cameron dug deep into the sand, but without avail. He was turning to retrace weary steps back to the last water when his comrade asked him to wait. Cameron watched him search in his pack and bring forth what appeared to be a small, forked branch of a peach tree. He grasped the prongs of the fork and held them before him with the end standing straight out, and then he began to walk along the stream bed. Cameron, at first amused, then amazed, then pitying, and at last curious, kept pace with the prospector. He saw a strong tension of his comrade's wrists, as if he was holding hard against a considerable force. The end of the peach branch began to quiver and turn, kept turning, and at length pointed to the ground.

"Dig here," said the prospector.

"What!" ejaculated Cameron. Had the man lost his mind?

Then Cameron stood by while his comrade dug in the sand. Three feet he dug—four—five, and the sand grew dark, then moist. At six feet water began to seep through.

"Get the little basket in my pack," he said.

Cameron complied, and saw his comrade drop the basket into the deep hole, where it kept the sides from caving in and allowed the water to seep through. While Cameron watched, the basket filled. Of all the strange incidents of his desert career this was the strangest. Curiously he picked up the peach branch and held it as he had seen it held. The thing, however, was dead in his hands.

"I see you haven't got it," remarked his comrade. "Few men have. Back in Illinois an old German used to do that to locate wells. He showed me I had the same power. I can't explain. The old German I spoke of made money traveling round with his peach fork."

"What a gift for a man in the desert!"

Cameron's comrade smiled—the second time in all those days.

They entered a region where mineral abounded, and their march became slower. Generally they took the course of a wash, one on each side, and let the burros travel leisurely along nipping at the bleached blades of scant grass, or at sage or cactus, while they searched in the canons and under the ledges for signs of gold.

Each succeeding day and night Cameron felt himself more and more drawn to this strange man. He found that after hours of burning toil he had insensibly grown nearer to his comrade. He reflected that after a few weeks in the desert he had always become a different man. In civilization, in the rough mining camps, he had been a prey to unrest and gloom. But once down on the great billowing sweep of this lonely world, he could look into his unquiet soul without bitterness. So now he did not marvel at a slow stir stealing warmer along his veins, and at the premonition that perhaps he and this man, alone on the desert, driven there by life's mysterious and remorseless motive, were to see each other through God's eyes.

One night they were encamped at the head of a canon. The day had been exceedingly hot, and long after sundown the radiations of heat from the rocks persisted. Cameron watched his comrade, and yielded to interest he had not heretofore voiced.

"Pardner, what drives you into the desert? Do you come to forget?"

"Yes."

"Ah!" softly exclaimed Cameron. Always he seemed to have known that. He said no more, but grew acutely conscious of the pang in his own breast, of the fire in his heart, the strife and torment of his passion-driven soul. He had come into the desert to remember a woman. She appeared to him then as she had looked when first she entered his life—a golden-haired girl, blue-eyed, white-skinned, red-lipped, tall and slender and beautiful. He had never forgotten, and an old, sickening remorse knocked at his heart. He rose and climbed out of the canon and to the top of the mesa, where he paced to and fro and looked down into the weird and mystic shadows, like the darkness of his passion, and farther on down the moon track and the glittering stretches that vanished in the cold blue horizon. In that endless, silent hall of desert there was a spirit; and Cameron felt hovering near him what he imagined to be phantoms of peace.

He returned to camp and sought his comrade.

"I reckon we're two of a kind," he said. "It was a woman who drove me into the desert. But I come to remember. The desert's the only place I can do that."

"Was she your wife?" asked the elder man.

"No."

A long silence ensued. The campfire wore down to a ruddy ashen heap.

"I had a daughter," said Cameron's comrade. "She lost her mother at birth. And I—I didn't know how to bring up a girl. She was pretty and gay. It was the—the old story."

His words were peculiarly significant to Cameron. They distressed him. He had been wrapped up in his remorse. If ever in the past he had thought of anyone connected with the girl he had wronged, he had long forgotten. But the consequences of such wrong were far-reaching. They struck at the roots of a home.

"Well, tell me more?" asked Cameron earnestly.

"It was the old, old story. My girl was pretty and free. The young bucks ran after her. I guess she did not run away from them. And I was away a good deal—working in another town. She was in love with a wild fellow. I knew nothing of it till too late. He was engaged to marry her. But he didn't come back. And when the disgrace became plain to all, my girl left home. She went west. After a while I heard from her. She was well—working—living for her baby. A long time passed. I had no ties. I drifted west. Her lover had also gone west. In those days everybody went west. I trailed him, intending to kill him. But I lost his trail. Neither could I find any trace of her. She moved on, driven, no doubt, by the hound of her past. Since that I have taken to the wilds, hunting gold on the desert."

"Yes, it's the old, old story, only sadder, I think," said Cameron; and his voice was strained and unnatural. "Pardner, what Illinois town was it you hailed from?"

"Peoria."

"And your—your name?" went on Cameron, huskily.

"Warren—Jonas Warren."

That name might as well have been a bullet. Cameron stood erect, motionless, as men sometimes stand momentarily when shot straight through the heart. In an instant, when thoughts resurged like blinding flashes of lightning through his mind, he was a swaying, quivering, terror-stricken man. He mumbled something hoarsely and backed into the shadow. But he need not have feared discovery, however surely his agitation might have betrayed him. Warren sat brooding over the campfire, oblivious of his comrade, absorbed in the past.

Cameron swiftly walked away in the gloom, with the blood thrumming thick in his ears, whispering over and over:

"Merciful G—d! Nell was his daughter!"

III

As thought and feeling multiplied, Cameron was overwhelmed. Beyond belief, indeed, was it that out of the millions of men in the world two who had never seen each other could have been driven into the desert by memory of the same woman. It brought the past so close. It showed Cameron how inevitably all his spiritual life was governed by what had happened long ago. That which made life significant to him was a wandering in silent places where no eye could see him with his secret. Some fateful chance had thrown him with the father of the girl he had wrecked. It was incomprehensible; it was terrible. It was the one thing of all possible happenings in the world of chance that both father and lover would have found unendurable.

Something within him cried out to him to reveal his identity. Warren would kill him; but it was not fear of death that put Cameron on the rack. He had faced death too often to be afraid. It was the thought of adding torture to this long-suffering man. All at once Cameron swore that he would not augment Warren's trouble, or let him stain his hands with blood. He would tell the truth of Nell's sad story and his own, and make what amends he could.

Then Cameron's thought shifted from father to daughter. She was somewhere beyond the dim horizon line. In those past lonely hours by the campfire his fancy had tortured him with pictures of Nell. But his remorseful and cruel fancy had lied to him. Nell had struggled upward out of menacing depths. She had reconstructed a broken life. And now she was fighting for the name and happiness of her child. Little Nell! Cameron experienced a shuddering ripple in all his being—the physical rack of an emotion born of a new and strange consciousness. He felt that it had been given him to help Warren with his burden.

He returned to camp trying to evolve a plan. All night he lay awake thinking.

In the morning, when Warren brought the burros to camp and began preparations for the usual packing, Cameron broke silence.

"Pardner, your story last night made me think. I want to tell you something about myself. In my younger days—it seems long now, yet it's not so many years—I was wild. I wronged the sweetest and loveliest girl I ever knew. I went away not dreaming that any disgrace might come to her. Along about that time I fell into terrible moods—I changed—I learned I really loved her. Then came a letter I should have gotten months before. It told of her trouble—importuned me to hurry to save her. Half frantic with shame and fear, I got a marriage certificate and rushed back to her town.

"Warren—Hold On! Give Me—a Minute—I Married Nell—Didn't You Know That?"

She was gone—had been gone for weeks, and her disgrace was known. Friends warned me to keep out of reach of her father. I trailed her—found her. I married her. But too late! . . . She would not live with me. She left me—I followed her west, but never found her."

Warren leaned forward a little and looked into Cameron's eyes, as if searching there for the repentance that might make him less deserving of a man's scorn.

Cameron met the gaze unflinchingly, and again began to speak:

"You know, of course, how men out here sometimes lose old names, old identities. It won't surprise you much to learn my name isn't really Cameron, as I once told you."

Warren stiffened upright. It seemed that there might have been a blank, a suspension, between his grave interest and some strange mood to come.

Cameron felt his heart bulge and contract in his breast; all his body grew cold; and it took tremendous effort for him to make his lips form words.

"Warren, I'm the man you're hunting. I'm Burton. I was Nell's lover!"

The old man rose and towered over Cameron, and then plunged down upon him, and clutched his throat with terrible, stifling hands. The harsh contact, the pain awakened Cameron to his peril before it was too late. Desperate fighting saved him from being hurled to the ground and stamped and crushed. Warren seemed a maddened giant. There was a reeling, swaying, wrestling struggle before the elder man began to weaken. Then Cameron, buffeted, bloody, half-stunned, panted for speech.

"Warren—hold on! Give me—a minute. I married Nell. Didn't you know that? . . . I saved the child!"

Cameron felt the shock that vibrated through Warren. He repeated the words again and again. As if compelled by some resistless power, Warren released Cameron, and, staggering back, stood with uplifted, shaking hands. In his face was a horrible darkness.

"Warren! Wait—listen!" panted Cameron. "I've got that marriage certificate—I've had it by me all these years. I kept it—to prove to myself I did right."

The old man uttered a broken cry.

"And when I saw her—I went stark, staring, raving mad over her."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

IOWA NEWS BRIEFS

Ed Escherich of Hanlontown bagged two red foxes recently.

Mrs. Belle McWilliams burned to death in her home in Mount Ayr recently.

Iowa's drive for Near East relief will be launched the second week in January.

A tag day sale at Spencer easily finished the Salvation Army quota of $500 for Clay county.

Santa Claus threw down his gifts from the clouds when he went up with Pilot C. V. Pedley over Mason City.

Twelve splendid hogs have been stolen from the Issac Fleener and Frank Bechly farms near Oskaloosa recently.

Miss Anna Christians of Alvard submitted to a skin-grafting operatiin in which thirteen friends contributed skin.

The corn crop around Kent is one of the best, both as to quality and yield ever raised in Union county. Husking is about over.

More than 800 baskets of chicken dinners were distributed by the Salvation Army at its headquarters in Des Moines Christmas.

Governor Kendall has purchased the property of Senator A. B. Cummins in Des Moines and will occupy same within a short time.

An improvement in conditions in government hospitals for the care of disabled soldiers is reported by state commander of the American Legion at Cedar Rapids.

County Clerks of Sioux City and Sibley have been sued for $13,800 because they accepted a bond of that amount which afterwards turned out to be worthless.

The men near Chariton who lost twenty-eight head of cattle when a train ran into the herd at a crossing are preparing to proceed to recover the value of the animals.

The State veterinarian, says that farmers who hold permits for the use of anti-hog cholera serum and virus must have their permits renewed before the year is up.

All the inmates of the state institutions had some sort of Christmas, even the prisoners at the penal institutions according to J. H. Strief, chairman of the board of control.

The frozen body of Dudley Garst, 60 years old, of Waterloo, expert machinist and inventor, who worked at the same bench with Henry Ford when a boy, was found in a field recently.

Mrs. Amanda Bernhardt, 65, for seven years the blind Santa Claus of the Iowa Home for Sightless Women in Des Moines was not on the job this year. Mrs. Bernhardt is seriously ill.

The government has nine veterinarians, the state has nine men under their employment and there are two men paid by the counties working in the state of Iowa on T. B. eradication.

With the year 1923 on the horizon, the American Legion in Iowa and the United States plan to carry on an active campaign to Americanize America along with other activities that are in mind.

At the state meeting of the grange at Newton, resolutions were adopted favoring the prohibitory law, the truth in fabrics law, uniformity of text books and election of county superintendents by the voters.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Earhart of Des Moines celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary recently. They have resided at the present address for the past seventeen years and formerly lived at Audubon, Iowa.

Revision of the Iowa paving laws whereby tax assessments for paving will be partially borne by communities at large will be urged upon the coming session of the state legislature by the city council of Muscatine.

The Iowa bonus board has moved its headquarters from the State House to the old C. C. C. C. building at 10th and Walnut streets, Des Moines where all future transactions in paying the bonus will be handled.

The Hampton-Kelley Canning Company of Hampton recently shipped a car of canned corn to San Diego, Calif., by rail to St. Louis and thence by water through the Panama canal and saved a considerable sum in freight.

P. E. McClenahan, superintendent of public instruction, will not give up his office to the newly elected superintendent, Miss May Francis, until the question of his right to a four-year term is settled by the courts, he announced.

Ten thousand dollars has been placed at the disposal of Prof. William F. Russell, dean of the college of education, and Prof. Raleigh W. Stone, of the college of commerce, at the University of Iowa by the educational finance inquiry, New York City, with which to make a survey in Iowa of the cost of school expenditures in relation to other state expenditures.

Farmers' elevator companies in Iowa are threatened with embarrassment and in some cases with ruin as result of a reassessment made by the federal government on the basis of 1917 tax returns, it is asserted by officials of farm organizations. Wrong calculation of incomes in the original returns is given as the basis of the new demands. In some cases the levies exceed $25,000. After their losses in the last few years the farmers' elevators are not in a position to meet such levies, according to their attorneys.

Last Friday Mrs. J. W. Brooks reached the ripe old age of 76 years, and in honor of the event her grand daughters, the Misses Smith made a fine decorated cake. as also did Mrs. Joe Starnes. A big birthday supper was then enjoyed. She was also remembered on her birthday by Harry Brooks' boys who presented her with a set of silverware.

Radios! Radios! Radios! Radios! Radios!

WESTINHOUSE— FEDERAL—

GREBE— CLAP EASTMAN—

MONROE— and —KENNEDY

—And the WESTINGHOUSE Type R. F. AERIOLA Sr. Come in and see it before buying.

—Also see the $20.00 Amplifier for the Aeriola Sr—it cannot be beat.

W. F. Pavey

"The Practical Blacksmith"

Klemme Iowa

Arthur Wellemeyer has just returned rom an extended buying trip in the east. He is pleased with the better quality of furniture which he factories are now turning out. Most of his purchases were made in Chicago, Ill., and Burlington, Iowa. The shipment coming from the diferent factories of Burlington will be more than a car load. Watch for our add we will have "Big Doing" when all this good furniture arrives.

LADIES AID SOCIETY

The Ladies Aid Society of the M. E. Church will meet in the basement of the First National Bank for their meeting this year. The first meeting will be held next Thursday, Jan. 11 at 2:30 p. m. All the members please be there and have your families come at five o'clock on. until all are served supper. The usual 10c fee will be colected from each one served. Menu follows:— Hot Beef Sandwich, Baked Beans. Pickles, Coffee and Doughnuts. All are invited.

Golden Guineas Hatched.

Grace's father keeps a flock of fine guineas on his Bartholomew county farm, but Grace, a pupil in Columbus high school, was ready to turn over all the blue ribbons for guinea raising to Silas Marner. She made the acquaintance of "The Weaver of Raveloe" in her English class and she read with wonder the story of his golden guineas, for all of her father's guineas were of a dull gray color. Then test time came and Grace, describing the miser's joy with his gold pieces, wrote bravely: "That morning Silas was happy for he had hatched a new brood of golden guineas to add to his flock."—Indianapolis News.

She Is Considered Talkative.

A Northeast matron is considered talkative. Her chatter usually is bright and entertaining and her good friends only laugh at her loquaciousness. Others, not such good friends, sometimes complain they can't "get a word in edgewise." when she is the company. Two friends called Sunday. They were met at the door by Elmer, nine years old. He admitted them then went to the stairs and called:

"Mother, come down. There's someone here wants to hear you talk."—Kansas City Star.

DISASTER OF 1917

Inside Secret of the Great World War Now Revealed.

Crushing Defeat of the French Armies Under General Nivelle Due to That Leader's Overconfidence.

The Revue de Paris is printing, month by month, the fullest account yet given of the greatest disaster sustained by the allies on the western front during the war. This was the defeat of the French armies under General Nivelle between Reims and Soissons on April 16, 1917. The account is given by M. Painleve, who was the French war minister at that time, though he only came into office when the plans for the battle were complete and their execution almost inevitable. M. Painleve often has been attacked for his own action before and after the smash, so he speaks as a party to a case. Still, more of what he says is only new in the sense that it has not been fully published before, though it was substantially known to the French and British general staffs within a few weeks of the calamity. The French attack, commonly known at the time as the Chemin des Dames attack, was to be the main blow of the Franco-British offensive for the year. Sir Douglas Haig, placed provisionally and with some qualification under the supreme command of Nivelle, was to attack on April 9 from near Arras in the north to our right flank near St. Quentin in the south.

Our part of the work was to draw off the German strength from the critical point, to kill and be killed and keep Ludendorff busy rather than to penetrate far. The whole scheme was Nivelle's. Nivelle had been made commander in chief in succession to Joffre the Christmas before, to the exclusion of Foch and Petain. Nivelle was at the moment the latest fashion in generals. French political feeling that winter was in a state of reaction against the "Somme school"—the school of Foch and Haig, the "limited objective" school, the school which restricted the depth of infantry advances to ground on which artillery had quite ruined the enemy's defense. Nivelle represented a new "Verdun school" of swifter, deeper advance. He had succeeded at Vaux and Douaumont a few months before, by making his men advance in a way that the "Somme school" would have thought reckless—because they or their predecessors had tried it in 1915 and found it disastrous, but this was forgotten; fashion had changed; it had gone back to the more slashing fashions of 1914 and 1915; Foch and Haig were back numbers, Nivelle was the man, and wisdom would die with him. So he was given the whole Franco-British offensive in 1917 to mold at his will.

His mind was completely made up by New Year's day, 1917. He had not a shadow of doubt, from then on, that he would be able to drive straight northward from Reims towards Brussels, behind the German front, cutting off the German northern armies. To anyone, soldier or statesman, who suggested a doubt or an extra precaution he said, in effect, "Leave it to me. I pledge you my word we shall win." To infect the troops with his own optimism he circulated freely among regimental officers full written details of the plan of attack, the date, the attacking strength, everything. This was done in January. Within a fortnight the enemy knew it all. Ludendorff in his book of memoirs tells us how a German raiding party captured, in the pocket of a dead French captain of the second division, the French plan of battle. The Germans had now two months in which to fit up as an abattoir the ground which Nivelle meant to capture first. They drew back their whole line between Arras and the British right, futilizing the great part of the intended British division. Then they sent down to the Reims-Soissons front the troops thus economized. Then they rigged up on the high flats of Vauclerc and Craonne, where the chief hopes of Nivelle's coming attack centered, such an aggression of machine guns and quick-firing guns, hooded with concrete and metal, as no troops ever had to face, before or after.—Manchester (Eng.) Guardian.

A Welsh Poet Miner.

Huw Menai Williams is Wales poet-miner, who bids fair to bring Welsh literature to the attention of the Anglo-Saxon world. Born in Carnarvonshire, Williams has been a coal miner at Glamorgan since he was sixteen. His work has therefore been entirely inspired among the sordid surroundings of a mining town. Intellectually, he is a self-made man. The remarkable thing about William's verse is that it is written in English—an acquired language for him and one that he has no extraordinary command of. His book, "Through the Upcast Shaft," is causing a furore in England.—From Argonaut.

Iceland Ponies.

Iceland ponies run well in company. Out of fifteen or twenty, one or two will soon be recognized as the leaders, and the rest will follow these; but no amount of whipping will persuade them to go even a short distance separately—a fact which the traveler soon finds to be very inconvenient if his pony does not happen to be a leader, and he is yet anxious to deviate occasionally to examine objects of interest off the track. This inability to run except in company has gained the Icelandic ponies a character for stupidity in this country, where they are seldom used except in the coal mines.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH
Arthur B. Gedye, Pastor

Morning worship at 10:00 o'clock.
Sunday school at 11:00 A. M.
Evening worship at 7:30 o'clock.
Cottage prayer meetings Tuesdays and Fridays at 7:30 P. M.

TYPEWRITER RIBBONS
All Makes

Typewriter Ribbons for sale at the Times Office. all of the Standard makes. Ribbons 75 cents each.

THE CITY DRAY LINE
—Is prepared to do your hauling carefully and promptly
We solicit your patronage
Charges reasonable.
Coal Hauling Done
Louie Knoke

DENTIST
J. L. Hesselhuus, D. D. S.
Office Hours 8-12 1-5:30
Office Opposite State Savings Bank; In Schaffer Bldg.
Evening Work By Appointment Only
Klemme, Ia. Phone 81

W. F. PAVEY
The Practical Blacksmith
OXY-ACETYLENE WELDER
Wagon, Buggy and Machine Repairing
Horse Shoeing and Plow Work A Specialty

KLEMME DRAY LINE
Phone 2105
A share of your patronage is solicited. All work attended to promptly and carefully. We haul coal quick.
LLOYD LAU, PROP.

PUBLIC AUCTION

Having rented my farm, and will quit farming, I will sell at Public Auction on my farm 3 1-2 miles west and 1 mile south of Klemme; 10 miles south-west of Garner; 10 miles north-east of Kanawha; and 12 miles south-east of Britt, on——

Wednesday, January 10

As this is a large sale selling will begin promptly at 11:00 o'clock A. M. FREE LUNCH AT NOON.

100 HEAD OF LIVE STOCK 100

40 Head of Shorthorn Cattle 40

14 Milch cows, 9 fresh, others springing., T. B. Tested.
3 Heifers, 1 year old.
5 Calves, 7 months old.
5 Heifers, 2 years old, roan and whites, springing.
4 Steers, one year old.
8 Fall and Winter Calves.
One Roan Shorthorn Bull, 2 years old, pure Scotch.
This is a well bred herd of Shorthorn Cattle.

5 Head of Horses 5

1 Bay Mare, weight 1250.
Black Mare, 8 years old, weight 1500.
Black Gelding, 13 years old, weight 1500.
One Bay Gelding, 5 years old, weight 1550.
Black Gelding, 8 years old, weight 1500.

57 HEAD OF DUROC JERSEY HOGS 57

Entire offering has been vaccinated with Serum and Virus and we consider them CHOLERA IMMUNE.

4 yearling sows. 18 Spring Gilts, bred for April farrow. 35 head of Fall Pigs.

Farm Machinery, Etc.

John Deere Spreader
Gale Corn Planter, 130 rds. of wire.
Acme Binder, 8 ft.
Deering Mower, 5 ft.
Dain Side Rake
Dain Hay Loader
Dump rake, 10 ft.
Sattley Gang Plow, 13 in.
Fuller & Johnson 16" sulky
2 Fuller & Johnson 6-shovel Cultivators.
Tower Surface Cultivator
24 ft. flexible Harrow.
Harrow Cart
Rock Island Disc, 8 ft.
John Deere Elevator, 34-ft. with dump and speed jack.
One High-wheel Wagon with triple box.
Two 3-in. tire Wagons.
One Surrey.
One Single Buggy.
One Bob Sled.
Underslung Fodder Rack
One Set Concord Harness
Two sets Work Harness
One Single Harness
Two Hay Slings
Woven Wire Stretcher
2 Small Self Feeders
Hard Coal Heater
Some Household Goods
Some Grain Sacks
One Feed Rack
Bull Tractor 6-12 H. P.
Associated Gas Engine 2 1-2 H. P.
One Hay Rack
One Hog Rack
Harrowing Attachment for gang plow
One Endgate Seeder and a Cart
One 11-ft. Seeder
No. 11 Letz Feed Grinder and Crusher.
Monarch Hog Self-Feeder 50 bushel capacity Power Emery Wheel Grinder
De Laval Cream Separator
Babcock Milk and Cream Tester
One Grindstone
One Corn Grader
One Corn Sheller
Some Hog Troughs
One Hog Oiler

100— Rhode Island Red Hens —100 Also many other useful articles and tools too numerous to mention

TERMS OF SALE——All sums of ten dollars and under, cash. Over ten dollars a credit of ten month's time will be given on approved security at 8 per cent interest from date of sale. No property is to be removed until settled for. All property at buyer's risk after sold.

A. G. LAU, Prop.

REEMSTMA & YOUNG, Auctioneers. FIRST NATIONAL BANK, KLEMME, CLERKS.

COAL

Have in Transit a car of New Ohio egg At NEW PRICE of $9

SECOND CAR HARD COAL
Due January 10th

W. F. LAU

Cold Weather Comforts

You'll need warmer clothing from now on.
This is the time to buy your

HEAVY UNDERWEAR
HOSIERY
GLOVES and MITTENS
LEATHER VESTS
SWEATER COATS, Etc.

I have a good assortment in the best grades.
Let me fit you out in your furnishings and measure you for your next Suit.

Suits to Measure

The Men's Fashion Shop

"Where Good Clothes Are Made."
A. W. JOHNSON
GARNER IOWA

Pantorium in connection

Beef Quarters

Choice Quarters From Corn-fed Beef

Front Quarters Per Pound - - - 8½c

Hind Quarters Per Pound - - - 11c

J. P. Larsen & Sons

The Klemme Meat Market

To Holders of War Savings Stamps

The War Savings Stamps which you bought five years ago matured on January 1st and your money will be returned to you, plus interest, according to Uncle Sam's promise.

Consider carefully what you will do with this money. Iof you wish it to continue to work for you, place it in an account at the First National Bank, buy our Certificates of Deposit, or ask us to recommend investments which will give security of principal and a regular interest return.

First National Bank

"The Bank for Everybody'.'

Start 1923 Right

The man with a growing bank account is a man with definite standing in his community. A bank connection is a valuable reference, an indication of stability, and offers unusual advantages in case of an emergency.

If you've never had a bank account, don't do without it any longer. Start the New Year by dropping into this strong state supervised bank and opening an account. You'll find every one of our departments eager to serve you.

State Savings Bank

Klemme Iowa

MADONNA WITH SILVER HALO

Remarkable Picture Among Other Fine Specimens in Historic Greek Church at Sitka, Alaska.

Way up in Sitka, Alaska, that delightful old place of Russian memories where the thermometer seldom goes below zero in winter, there is an old Greek church which is famous all along the Pacific coast. Dating from the days of Baranoff, it has stood through many storms and vicissitudes, and was for years the chief see in the Russian-Greek church of western America.

There are several unique paintings in this church which were brought over from Russia in the early years, and everyone who is fortunate enough to go to Alaska comes away from this dingy, faded, green-colored church with enthusiasm over the examples of fine art that decorate the chancel and altar. Chief among these paintings is one of the so-called Sitka Madonna.

The peculiar feature about these paintings, which is said to be employed nowhere else in the world, is the use of beaten silver for halos and accessories. The metal is laid on such a manner that it is almost impossible to separate it from the rest of the painting, and it produces a rich effect that pigments cannot attain. The picture of the Madonna and Child has voluminous drapery of this beaten silver, and the fame of its beauty is well understood along the Pacific coast.

The Ascension, over the bronze doors to the holy of holy screen, is a gem of Byzantine art, and the jeweled helmets and halos in the paintings of the saints show the wonderful versatility of the old-time Russian artists. Massive candlesticks, jeweled crowns, and robes of cloth of gold are in this historic church—a reminder of historic Alaska and the time when stern Baranoff and his iron-hearted followers held full sway.

Mining Methods.

In the construction of the Tieton dam of the Yakima project in Washington the United States reclamation service will have added another noteworthy achievement to its already long list. The dam itself will be one of the largest earth dams in the United States, having a visible height of 230 feet and a length along the crest of 900 feet, with a top width of twenty-five feet.

A heavy concrete corewall will extend through the full length of the dam and from its crest into the bedrock. The excavation for and placing of the corewall is one of the features of the work. The following method is being used: Three shafts are being sunk from the surface of the ground into the bedrock. Drifts six feet high and five feet wide are then driven in both directions along the line of the corewall. After the lower drive is completed, a second drift is driven immediately above it. The material from this second drift is broken down into mine cars placed in the lower drift, and from there is taken to the shaft and hoisted to the surface. After the two drifts are completed the lower drift is filled with concrete from cars running in the second drift. A third drift immediately above the second drift is then driven, and the process is repeated until the surface is reached.

Gifts Doubly Useful.

"The most useful gift is the hockable one," philosophized "uncle" as he dusted off the pledges. "For the past month or more we have been getting in the presents from the holiday season, the ones for which there was no use first. Now, as hard times begin to pinch, we are getting in more."

Watches head the list, according to the pawnbrokers. The little ivory clock sent to the boy living in the hallroom of the boarding house is of use in tiding over tight week ends. Girls bring in their wrist watches and trinkets and explain in detail just what the circumstances are that force this last resort. That many new customers are being created was evidenced by the manner in which they approached the shops. They enter cautiously and should there be another customer inside, try to whisper their wants and are reluctant to show the article carried.

Costs Money to Run Hotel.

Twenty-two thousand dollars' worth is a lot of pants pressing, but that's what the annual statement of a leading Chicago hotel put before the board of directors, showed as one operating item. There were soft drinks and other beverages listed at $30,516.70; barber and boots, $16,714.50; laundry, $19,613.16, and telephone calls $87,452.96. Those were just the few little things. The hotel itself took in $1,157,834.56, and the restaurants $1,115,831.91. The grand total, under the earnings title amounts up to $2,400,421.20. Against the gross income the balance sheet shows expenses of $2,424,634.91, a superficial loss of $24,213.71.

Remarkable Carving.

San Franciscans are paying homage to one of the most remarkable wooden statues ever received, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. It is the work of Hananuma Masakichi, greatest Japanese artist in wood or ivory, who posed for himself by the aid of adjustable mirrors and carved his own life-sized image from wood. The hair on the figure is the artist's own. He used the clippings from his head and beard, boring tiny holes for the hairs and setting them in place one by one. The figure is in every particular, even the most minute, an exact counterpart of the artist. The carving required three years, even to so adroit and masterly a workman as Masakichi.

Ford

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

INTERESTING FACTS

106,327 Ford Cars and Trucks Retailed in November

Approximately the same number scheduled for delivery this month

What Does This Mean?

This volume of deliveries to actual owners is entirely unprecedented for this time of the year——

It has taxed the manufacturing ability of the Ford plants working at full capacity——

It indicates a volume of business during the rapidly approaching months of "heavy demand" which will be far beyond the maximum production schedule which the Ford Motor Company has set——

And that means a Ford shortage even more acute than the one which existed last Spring and Summer.

Dealers' stocks all over the country are low——there are no reserves to draw upon to meet the demands for delivey——

Thee is no way in which dealer reserves can be built up, as deliveries have been made to customers as fast as Cars could be manufactured since last April.

The only way you can protect your desire to obtain prompt delivery of a Ford even at this time is to place your order immediately.

This emphasizes more strongly than anything we could possibly say the necessity of your making prompt arrangements with a Ford Dealer for the listing of your order, particularly if you are contemplating the purchase of a Ford Car or Truck for use this Spring or Summer.

We believe you are entitled to know these facts as they actually exist.

FORD MOTOR COMPANY

Detroit, Michigan

Greimann Company Co.

Authorized Ford Dealer — Klemme, Iowa

A Small Deposit and Easy Payment if Desired.

DAIRY

TO INCREASE DAIRY PROFITS

Wideawake Dairy Farmers Have Seen Larger Demand and Are Acting Accordingly.

Campaigns by large dairy companies urging the public to drink more milk increase trade channels from the farm to the city immeasurably. With this increased demand, however, has come an increased vigilance by health societies to safeguard the consumer.

Accordingly, wideawake dairy farmers have foreseen this condition and have provided for marketing their milk in a sanitary manner. Milk is probably more readily susceptible to contamination than any other food product

In order that milk may be delivered in a sweet, clean sanitary condition, it is essential that it be isolated in a cool, modernly equipped building in its progression from the cow to the market.

A good milk house is an invaluable aid in the production of high-quality milk. Concrete construction, either monolithic or block, is ideal because it is permanent, vermin-proof and highly sanitary. Such a structure should be located with regard to convenience, but it is better that it be separated from the stables to prevent the milk from being tainted by stable odors.

Milk House of Lisle Coleman, Located Near Wayne, Ill.

A very serviceable milk house is a type that can be constructed with the use of circular monolithic silo forms, similiar to the one shown in the illustration. A foundation which extends two or three feet into the ground or to the limit of frost is the first step. The silo forms are used just as in making a silo, except that boards must be set in the forms to cut out portions of the wall which are to form doorways or windows. Heavy reinforcement is not necessary, ⅜-inch rods 20 inches on the center extending in both directions being amply sufficient. A conical roof can also be constructed similar to the type that is employed in silo construction. A small ventilator in the peak of the roof with a damper that can be opened or closed, is a desirable aid in getting a good circulation of fresh air.

Every milk house should be provided with a concrete cooling tank, the depth of which is governed by the height of the cans; it is desirable to have the cans stand submerged as much as possible. Circulating water through the tank and around the cans will keep the milk cool. To lighten the labor of lifting and moving cans in and out of the tank, part of its depth should be below floor level, and for the same reason, the width of the tank should be limited to convenient arm's reach, which is about that of the diameter of two cans. The remainder of the floor should be covered with concrete made in a single layer four inches thick and troweled to a smooth surface that will not harbor dirt.

The concrete used throughout should be of a mixture of one part of cement to two parts of well-graded sand to four parts of pebbles or broken stone, with the exception of the cooling tank which has a 1:1½:3 mixture to insure its being watertight.

For Better Dairying.

1. Use purebred sires.
2. Test all of the cows and eliminate the poor ones.
3. Keep only the heifers from the best cows.
4. Feed well so as to secure economical results.
5. Test for tuberculosis.
6. Produce a clean product.
7. Curry, don't curse.
8. Talk consumption of dairy products.
9. Be up to date.
10. Work.—Harold R. Lascelles Fieldman, Colorado State Dairy Commission.

Plans to Eliminate Slackers.

The policy being adopted by many to eliminate slackers and then feed the better cows a ration that will enable them to produce greater profits.

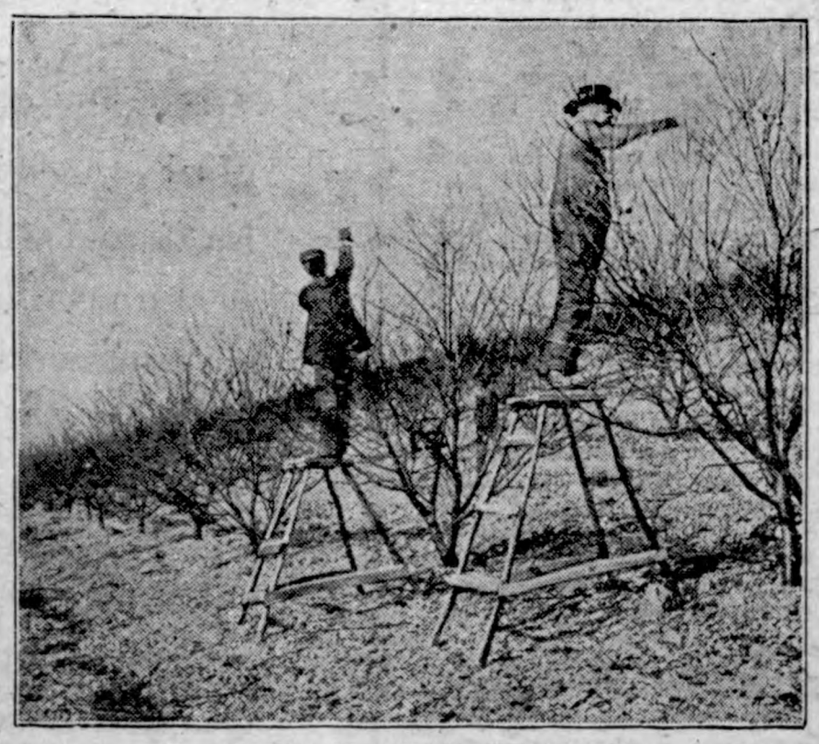
Cow's Life Is Arduous.

People in general regard the dairy cow's life as one of ease, whereas it is a fact that she works harder than her domestic animals.

Best Milk Producers.

Cows that freshen in the fall are the best milk producers.

MAKE UNPROFITABLE ORCHARDS PAY



Pruning Peach Trees During Dormant Season.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Measured by the abundance and regularity of the crops of high-grade fruit produced, there are many apple orchards of bearing age that are not successful. Because a large number of these unprofitable orchards can be made to yield good crops of high-quality fruit by special treatment, the United States Department of Agriculture has prepared Farmers' Bulletin 1284, Apple-Orchard Renovation, by H. P. Gould, which discusses the principal practices found useful in bringing neglected trees back into profit-producing condition.

Orchards in need of renovating are found only in sections where the home orchard or fruit garden is the prevailing type of fruit growing, and in regions where orchards of considerable size occur only occasionally, but also in the recognized commerical apple-growing districts. Some orchards are not worth the time and expense necessary to renovate them. In deciding what is to be done the following factors need to be considered: The orchard must be on a good site with no rock ledges or hardpan near the surface, well drained and without unusual danger from frosts; the trees must have good vitality, without decayed trunks, cankers that girdle the limbs, or weakness that would make good growth impossible; and, finally, the varieties must be good unless it is practicable to top-graft the trees.

A Well-Cared for Cherry Orchard in Bloom.

A neglected orchard is always a menace to other orchards in the neighborhood and in sections where there are many commerical plantings much damage may be done by insect pests and diseases that have their source in badly infected trees. In some states a neglected orchard is practically declared by law to be a public nuisance and is treated accordingly. If the owner will not clean it up, public officials do it and the expense becomes a lien on the property until paid.

As a rule, says the author of the bulletin, a much-neglected orchard does not justify its existence. If an orchard is worth keeping it is worth giving good attention; otherwise, the trees merely encumber the ground and interfere with its use for other purposes. If an apple tree is not of value for fruit production it may be worth converting into tool handles, plane blocks, and other useful things.

Persons interested in renovating orchards or those who wish to decide whether or not a certain orchard is worth the attempt should get the bulletin, which may be obtained without cost from the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

In working over neglected apple orchards, the trees will be of such varying types that it will be impossible to work toward any particular form of top, but it is well for the orchard owner to have in mind a certain desirable form; inexperienced persons will find it worth while to study some well-formed trees or pictures of them such as are used to illustrate the bulletin. The right sort of top has a large bearing surface, is low-headed, and has a fairly open top that allows light to enter to the interior of the tree.

Big Things Needed.

Soil renovation, pruning, and spraying are some of the principal things needed in practically any orchard that is being brought back into producing condition. Just what is to be done depends on the age and vigor of the trees, the condition of the soil and other local factors. Various conditions and the necessary treatment are discussed in the bulletin, and the tools and other equipment are described.

When trees are otherwise good, but the varieties are not desirable, it sometimes pays to top-graft the trees. This work is not difficult, but must be done carefully. As a rule the cleft method of grafting is best suited to old apple orchards. Details of this method are to be found in Farmers' Bulletin 157, The Propagation of Plants. The time to do the work is in the spring just before growth starts or just as it is starting. The scions, however, must be perfectly dormant.

BUYER KNOWS LITTLE ABOUT COST OF FEED

Is the Second Largest Item of Expense to Farmer.

Most Important Factors Controlling Local Prices Are Availability of Substitutes, Potential Supplies and Surplus.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Are you paying too much for your feed stuffs? To determine this requires a knowledge of how feeds are sold by mills, market conditions, quality of the product and methods of purchasing, says G. C. Wheeler, investigator in marketing feed, United States Department of Agriculture. Although feed stuffs constitute the second largest item of expense to American farmers, wheat feeds alone in 1920 representing a value of approximately $200,000,000, little is known by the average buyer about the marketing of this commodity, says Mr. Wheeler.

The availability of feed stuffs locally produced which may be used as substitutes, and potential supplies and production in surplus producing sections are said to be the most important factors controlling local feed prices. Wide variations in prices in heavy consuming and producing centers, and in sections where only moderate supplies are handled are attributed to the prices paid by individual dealers, unsold feed in transit which is frequently disposed of at a sacrifice on arrival, grade, quality, whether the feed is bought for cash or credit, and whether the purchase is for immediate or future delivery. Mr. Wheeler advises buyers to ascertain carefully all these facts in connection with prices quoted before placing orders.

Mr. Wheeler has made a careful study of the marketing of mill feeds and his findings are contained in United States Department of Agriculture Bulletin 1124, entitled "The Marketing of Mill Feeds." The bulletin tells how feeds are sold by mills, handled by co-operative societies, how to study market conditions, what to ascertain about prices quoted, and present needs of the trade. Trade rules, grades and feed stuffs laws are also discussed. Copies of Bulletin 1124 can be obtained free upon request to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

DESTROY GARDEN BUG PESTS

After Crops Have Been Harvested Rake Up All the Old Stalks and Burn Them.

After the garden crops are harvested it often pays to rake up the old stalks and burn them. This may destroy insect pests and fungous spores which would cause losses next year. If any weeds have developed seeds they can also be burned.

The term "wireworm" is applied to numerous forms of elongated wire-like creatures, the larvae of snapping or click beetles and the name was given to them on account of their firm texture, which is much different from that of most insect larvae.

It is a well-known fact that the lady-bird beetles are very beneficial, and this is proven in many ways. One scientist records where these insects have eaten 50 to 60 aphis in a single day and there are several records where they have eaten a hundred in the same length of time.

A Soldier of Christ

By REV. LEW W. GOSNELL
Assistant Dean, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—Yet I supposed it necessary to send to you Epaphroditus, my brother, and companion in labour, and fellow-soldier, but your messenger, and he that ministered to my wants.—Phil. 2:25.

Epaphroditus means "lovely," or "charming," and he who bears the name in Holy Writ was worthy of it. All we know of him is set forth in a few verses in the book of Philippians. He had come to Rome from the colony of Philippi, bearing a gift of money from the church at that place to Paul, who was a prisoner in the Eternal City. He was about to return home, and Paul places in his hands the letter to the Philippians which has come down to us across the centuries. Our text is a part of Paul's commendation of this man of lovely character.

First, the apostle refers to him as "my brother." We have become accustomed to the expression, but how wonderful to hear a Jew thus refer to a Greek! Only the power of the gospel of Christ could thus break down racial barriers. We are reminded how this power was manifested in the early days of Christianity in Philippi, when Lydia, the Asiatic seller of purple, and the Greek slave girl, who had the spirit of divination, and the rude Roman jailer, all found in Christ a center of unity. "There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female, for ye are all one in Christ Jesus." How this unifying power is needed in the world today!

Fellowship With Apostles.

Then Paul speaks of Epaphroditus as his "companion in labor," or fellow-worker. Some men are willing to be known as brethren in the Lord, but they fail as workers for Christ. Yet how thrilling the thought that we may link our activities to those of apostles and martyrs! It has been well said that the man who laid the foundation of Cologne cathedral and the man who placed the capstone a thousand years later were fellow-workers. So, too, we may share the labors of Paul as truly as did Epaphroditus.

The apostle next speaks of this man as his "fellow-soldier." Some willing to work for Christ shrink from suffering for Him. Yet, as the Church has sung for many years:

Sure, I must fight if I would reign—
Increase my courage, Lord;
I'll bear the toil, endure the pain,
Supported by Thy Word.

In relation to the Philippians, Epaphroditus is described as "your messenger." The original word is the same as "apostle." Hence, it is suggested that the love of the Philippians had consecrated their messenger, and that the carrying of money to the servant of Christ in prison had become a sacred thing! Paul had been a missionary to the Philippians, but now their representative has become, as it were, a missionary to him.

Finally, Epaphroditus is "he that ministered to my wants"; or as the Revised Version puts it, "minister to my need." The word for minister is one with sacred associations, being applied to priests in the New Testament. And how did this man minister to the apostle? Possibly he wrote his letters and went on errands for the prisoner of Christ. Possibly he would ease his chain and chafe his wrists. But all became sacred since it was done for Christ and for one of His servants. Indeed, Paul speaks of money which had been brought by Epaphroditus as "an odor of a sweet smell, a sacrifice acceptable, well-pleasing to God" (Phil. 4:18).

Gambling With One's Life.

Altogether, the ministry of this man is described as "the work of Christ" (Phil. 2:30)), for, in addition to ministering to Paul, he preached the gospel in Rome and stood as a good soldier against his foes. He did not stint his service, for he made himself sick by his labors. As Paul says (R. V.), he hazarded his life, risked in the work of the Lord.

Philippi was a famous colony, but it is a heap of ruins today. Yet the name of this obscure citizen has come to us, preserved in the Word of God as in precious ointment. As we think upon it, two texts of Scripture come to mind. The first is, "For all flesh is as grass, and all the glory of man as the flavor of grass. The grass withereth, and the flower thereof falleth away; but the Word of the Lord endureth forever" (I Peter 1:24, 25). The other is, "The world passeth away, and the lust thereof; but he that doeth the will of God abideth forever" (I John 2:17).

Cometh as a Thief in the Night.

But the day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night; in the which the heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with a fervent heat, the earth also and the works that are therein shall be burned up. Seeing then that all these things shall be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be?—II Peter 3:10, 11.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COPYRIGHT BY WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION

BILLIE BROWNIE'S TRIP

"Well," said Billie Brownie, as he came back to Brownieland, "I certainly had an interesting trip, and saw so many wonderful sights.

"He Was Very Proud."

Billie Brownie threw his long brown cap beside him, and sitting in his favorite seat in the hollow of an old woodland tree, he began to tell the other Brownies all he had seen.

"I saw a rooster strutting and crowing in a barnyard. He was very proud because it seems that in a poultry show they had used his picture or the picture of a rooster in announcing and telling about the show.

"'Yes,' he said, 'there were ducks, and geese, and pigeons, and hens, and guinea pigs at the show, but the rooster's picture was the one they had on the tickets and outside the door and in the papers.'

"He was very proud of that.

"'Of course,' he added, as he crowed some more, 'that is just as it should be.'

"Then I stopped in at a circus for a few moments, and there I saw an act where many of the performers were dressed to look like butterflies, and had wings of some sort which kept them up.

"I thought it would be nice if sometime we gave a surprise fancy dress party, and went to visit the fairies dressed up as butterflies of all kinds."

"It would be a fine idea," said all the other Brownies.

So they decided they would go in a very short time—just as soon as they could get their costumes ready.

"It was a very pretty act," said Billie Brownie, "with the lovely wings of different colors.

"And I saw a lot of children having a party on the back porch of a house.

"They had dressed up peanuts to look like bugs, and they had a peanut hunt for these things.

"Instead of having regular peanuts to hunt for, they hunted for these dressed-up peanuts. It was more fun when one of these were found than when an ordinary peanut would be found, for there were not so many of these, and they had been hidden in very difficult places.

"I must tell you how they were made, for I thought we could have a peanut hunt with some of these fixed-up peanuts to hunt for as well as the other kind.

"The peanuts were painted. Then legs were attached, and the legs were made of pipe cleaners. There were little bits of old feathers for the tail, and the pipe cleaners were painted where they were turned up to look like feet—and the toes were marked in paint.

"They had painted eyes, of course. They were very funny in appearance, and I think we could fix up some of these creatures for our next party. The more ideas we get the better it is."

"The better it is," agreed the other Brownies.

"I saw a red-headed woodpecker eating suet on a lilac tree, and there were a few little signs of buds on the lilac tree which made me know that Mistress Springtime had sent word that she'd be visiting us before long.

"And I visited some bees in a cellar. They were eating their honey and having a fine time.

"Some one was going to make a business of honey and was starting in with these bees in the cellar during the winter time, and as soon as there were enough boxes the work would begin.

"The bees said their honey was quite delicious!

"And then I saw some figs in a fruit store.

"They were very angry, for it seems that some one had been in the store, and when this person was talking she had said: "'I don't care a fig for walking,' and her lip had curled as she said it.

They Were Very Angry."

"The figs said they didn't like their name to be used like that—especially the way people had of saying they wouldn't give a fig for this, or they didn't care a fig for that.

"The figs said the people sounded as though they thought the fig was about as unimportant as could be, and the figs thought it was very rude of them.

"So, you see, I saw lots of things and had a most interesting trip. Yes, whene all is quiet and no one is noticing Billie Brownie he likes to take a trip and see the sights!"

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR JANUARY 7

JESUS HEALING ON THE SABBATH

LESSON TEXT—Luke 13:10-17.
GOLDEN TEXT—It is lawful to do well on the Sabbath day.—Matt. 12:12.
REFERENCE MATERIAL—Ex. 20:8-11; Isa. 35; 56:11-8; Mark 2:23:3-5.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Doing Good.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Healing a Helpless Woman.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Right Use of the Lord's Day.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Right Use of the Lord's Day.

What Jesus did on the Sabbath frequently brought him into serious conflict with the Pharisees. Through the petty rules and regulations they had made this holy day, which God designed as a day of rest and the doing of deeds of mercy, a day of burden and hardship. Jesus did not disregard the Sabbath, but broke away from their traditions and showed that the Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath. Religious rites and ceremonies should not be hardened into fetters to bind the worshiper.

I. Jesus Teaching on the Sabbath Day (v. 10).

It was the Lord's custom to go to the place of worship on the Sabbath day. His disciples will imitate Him in this. At the place of worship there is opportunity to be nearest to God, to worship Him, and to show mercy and kindness to our fellow-man.

II. Jesus Healing on the Sabbath (vv. 11-13).

1. A Woman in Need (v. 11). This poor woman's back was bowed down with eighteen years of great suffering. Though thus afflicted she found her way to the place of worship. Men and women are in great need today. Their bodies may not be bowed down with physical suffering, but there are many bowed down with the burden of sin and sorrow.

2. Called to Jesus (v. 12). He is always quick to discern those who are burdened. He spoke a word of healing to her. How welcome must have been His words. He is calling today to the many who are weighed down with guilty consciences to come to Him.

3. Laid His Hands Upon Her (v. 13). At His touch she was made straight and glorified God. It was not enough to teach. He showed His sympathy by coming into touch with the suffering woman. Christ's followers are to imitate Him in teaching, and also in coming into direct touch with the needy, sinful, and burdened world.

III. The Indignation of the Ruler of the Synagogue (v. 14).

Under the pious pretense of loyalty to God he showed that ritual is of more importance than mercy and love. It was not primarily concern for ritual, but hatred for Jesus that moved him to indignation. He was too cowardly to attack the Lord directly, so turned to the people and hit at Him over their backs. He pretended great concern for the healing of the people but advised that they come in the six days, and not thus have the Sabbath profaned by such a sacrilegious act as the healing of this poor woman. This man is the type of the many hypocrites among us today.

IV. The Lord's Reply to the Ruler (vv. 15, 16).

Jesus removes the mask of hypocrisy from the ruler as He points out their own custom as a condemnation of their pious pretense. He argues from the lesser to the greater. If it was right to take animals which had only been tied for a few hours, to water on the Sabbath day, certainly it was right to bring relief to this woman who had been bowed for eighteen years. Human beings are of more value than animals. This woman was a daughter of Abraham and not a sinner of low-down character. The principle which Jesus set forth restored the Sabbath to its true purpose.

V. Shamed Adversaries and Rejoicing People (v. 17).

The tide was now turned. Their exposure was so great that their consciences smote them. The arguments against morals and the church are of the same type today.

The Family Altar.

With the home resting on the family altar, a new religious life will come to the world; wholesome, unwavering. The world will learn by experience to rely on prayer. We shall believe that there is more good in the world than evil; more truth than falsehood; more love, mercy and forgiveness in God, than condemnation and punishment. We shall realize that prayer is the only weapon with which the world can overcome evil.

Defense.

For wisdom is a defense and money is a defense; but the excellency of knowledge is, that wisdom giveth life to them that have it.—Ecclesiastes 7:12.

The Saint.

A saint is one who brings the sense of God's nearness to others.—Washburn.

To Ascend Upward.

We must retire inward if we would ascend upward.—St. Bernard.

News of Klemme and Vicinity

Mis Esther Yante was a Garner visitor over Sunday.

Wellemeyer sold a radio set to Albert Luick last week.

Come and hear the Aeriola Sr. Radio set, at Pavey's. adv

Radios, Radios, Radios, at Pavey's. adv.

Mr. A. D. White was over from Goodell last Thursday.

Mrs. Chris Gram was a Garner visitor last Thursday.

Mrs. Henry Grifen of Goodell, was visiting in Klemme Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Jacobs enjoyed New Years dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Knute Olsen at Clear Lake, aunt and uncle of Mrs Jacobs.

Miss Margaret Dickinson of Crystal Lake is visiting at the home of Mrs. A. Kirkwood for several days.

Put Radiolite in your storage battery and be sure of your battery. At Pavey's. adv

Mrs. Hake and daughter, Maurine have been visiting at Belmond since Monday until yesterday.

Frank Pringnitz and family enjoyed company from Iowa Falls the fore part of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Ross, of Garner, spent Friday visiting at the Wm Bell home, near town

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Day, and son Dorance, and Mrs. Wm. Smith were at Mason City last Friday

Mrs. Gee was up from Goodell for an over Sunday visit with her daughter, Mrs. C. M. Gram.

An oyster supper was enjoyed by the congregation out at Liberty church last Friday evening.

The W. F. M S of the the First Church are meeting with Mrs. Turgeson this afternoon.

Missionary meeting was held at the home of Mrs. A. D. Gimer last Thursday.

Rev. Bushnell, district superintendent, of Algona. was a business visitor in Klemme Tuesday.

Martin Jensen has purchased the Mrs. Leo. Wilkins house and will move to Klemme soon.

EAGLE MIKADO" Pencil No. 174

For Sale at your Dealer — Made in five grades

ASK FOR THE YELLOW PENCIL WITH THE RED BAND

EAGLE MIKADO

EAGLE PENCIL COMPANY, NEW YORK

GEORGE ZINN, M. D.

Physician and Surgeon

Office opposite from Hotel Klemme

Phone No. 19

Eyes Examined — Glasses Fitted

California through Carriso Gorge

Newest of Scenic Marvels

This most fascinating panorama of colorful crags and awe-inspiring vistas is reached by

Rock Island Lines
Golden State Limited

Shortest—quickest route to San Diego.

Carriso Gorge is only one of the many points of interest on the short, interesting route to California—the Golden State Limited way. The Imperial Valley, Lower California (Mexico), the mysterious desert, the mountains, the plains—these are yours to behold; a scenic journey of infinite variety.

On this train, famous for twenty years, you travel direct to either Los Angeles, Santa Barbara or San Diego, over the route of low altitudes. Every mile a mile away from winter.

Newest all-steel Pullmans—observation, compartment drawing-room sleeping cars. Dining car meals "the best on wheels."

Through standard sleeper daily from Minneapolis and Des Moines, via Kansas City and the Golden State Limited, arriving Los Angeles 1:10 p. m., San Diego 7:15 p. m. third day.

Tourist sleeper every Tuesday, from Minneapolis and Des Moines, via the Golden State Route, arriving Los Angeles 1:10 p. m. following Friday, only three nights en route.

Travel information, sleeper reservations and tickets upon application to

M. O. BARR, Agent.

C. C. Gardner, G. A. P. D., Rock Island Lines
800 United Bank Building, Des Moines, Iowa

"Seventy Years of Service"

Rock Island

Golden State Limited

386

Mrs. Alvin Stokesbary and son went to Buffalo Center Friday to spend New Years.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wellemeyer of Charles City came yesterdo yfor a visit at the Arhtur Wellemeyer residence for a few days.

Miss Hartzell. who spent the holiday vacation visiting with Klemme relatives, returned to Ruthven, Iowa, Friday, where she teaches school.

Albert Luick, of Clear Lake, was here visiting Mr. and Mrs. LuVerne Smith over Sunday. He is a brother of Mrs. Smith.

Mr. H. R. Fouts, of Riceville came Saturday for a few days visit at the A. D. Gimer home. He is a brother of Mrs Gimer

Mr. and Mrs Ralph Blank and the children came from Estherville last Saturday evening for a visit with home folks over New Years

Mr. and Mrs. Clint Stokesbary are the proud parents of a fine baby girl born to them Saturday before Christmas.

A miscellaneous shower was held at the Elko Buss home Friday evening in honor of the newly-weds, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Buss.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Farmer, of Clarion, were visiting at the LuVern Smith home Tuesday. The ladies are sisters.

Charlie Gibbs and Howard Terhufen went to Grundy Center Saturday for an over Sunday visit with "Stub" Lewis. who is working at hat place.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Nihoof of Belmond were visiting their daughter, Mrs. Fred Stockwell here last Friday. Mr. Stockwell is the man who is working at the Pavey shop.

Miss Norma Barz, of Garner, was visiting at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Lena Schroeder, several days the past week. She returned to her home Friday.

Mr. Clyde Robbins, of Seattle, Washington. was a visitor at the A. D. White home Friday. He also visited other relatives and friends in this locality.

Word was received in Klemme of a baby girl born to Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Wilson, at Lansing, Iowa. Mr. Wilson was superintendent of thhe schools here last year.

The dance at the Idle Hour Monday night was well attended, in spite of the bad weather. The music by Hunter's Orchestra was especially fine and all enjoyed a good time.

Tom Nelson went to Forest City Christmas morning for a visit with his son, Nels Nelson and family. He returned to Klemme again Friday night looking well and happy and considerably 'fed-up".

Mrs. Behringer and daughter Florence accompanied by Mavis Fuller, who had been visiting them since before New Years, went to Clear Lake Wednesday morning for a visit at the Elmer Fuller home.

Levi Klotchback and family have moved out of the Mrs. Wilkins house into the Emil Kraus house in the northwest part of town. Emil has moved into his other place north of town.

Chris Jacobs was in town Tuesday afternoon helping his son, Ed, at the store. We suppose we will see Chris here quite often now that he has finished his two terms as county auditor.

A light snow has falln hr and the temperature is a little lower than it was lost week—but still we are having a fine winter.

Ray Nelson, of Garner, was in this city Wednesday evenin.

Chris Gram began work at Greimann's Ford Garage January first, as Fod salesman and mechanic. Chris is right at home in the auto business and will make Greimann an excellent assistant.

Many of the Klemme business houses were busy invoicing the past week. J. N. Day's and the Kluckhohn stores invoiced the fore part of the week. Wellemeyr says he always invoices the first of February.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Katter had a lot of company for New Years dinner when they entertained the following people: R. W. Elder and family, Elmer Fuller and family. Albert Fuller and family, Albert Yahnke and Alvin Stokesbary.

and family, Sam Larsen and family,

The court house at Garner has been a busy place last week. Many ex-service men were there having thir bonus applications mad out and the Treasurer was busy as a cranberry merchant, making out auto license numbers.

Mrs. Lena Schroeder and daughter were hostesses to a New Years dinner served Sunday, at which were present Mr. and Mrs. Marlin Croner and baby daughter, Grandma Schoeder, of this city and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Barz and daughter. Norma, of Garner.

Mr. and Mrs. Mm. Keraus accompanied by T. F. Mitchell and wife of Swea City drove to Mason City Sunday, where Mitchells took the train for Minneapolis. Tom has a leave of absence as agent at Swea City. He is taking an optical course at the Twin Cities and may follow that profesion if he likes the work.

A surprise party was given on Clarence Kluckhohn and Henry Lewis New Years night at the Kluckhohn home to celebrate their birthdays which ocured Decmbr 31st. The evening was spent in playing bunco, aftr which a fine lunch was served by Mesdames Lewis and Kluckhohn.

The Klemme young people who attend Morningside College at Sioux City returned to that place Tuesday morning after spending their holiday vacation in Klemme. They are Earl Josten, Lena Bergmann ond Mildred Johnson. The latter is just beginning, as she is going to take a course in music there.

THEY DO NOT RETURN THE MELOTTE SEPARATOR

Jacobs & Son Have Sold Melottes to 30 Satisfied Customers

You, the housewie, are the one who will keep the separator clean. And perhaps, at times, you will run it. So you should have a say as to what separator your husband buys. If you could only get every make of separator on your farm; if you could line up the machines side by side; if you could skim with them one after another; if you could take them apart and wash them all—Weknow which one you would select. There would be no question. You would choose the Melotte.

We cannot send you all separators. But we will gladly delivery you a Melotte. Just tell us you would like a Melotte on trial, and we will bring you one. We would like to have you compare it with—and test it against—all other separators. Use it for 30 days. Then, if you do not find it the easiest turning, the easiest cleaning, the closest skimming. and best separator in every way—if for any reason whatever you do not want it—return it to us. The trial will not cost you a single penny.

Talk this over with your husband today. It is something that interests both o you. You can lose nothing by using a Melotte on 30 day's free trial. You do not oblige yourself in any way. Yet you have every thing to gain. By all means TRL a Melotte FREE before you buy any separator. Learn why the Melotte leads in thrifty Belgium—learn why we have sold the Melotte to thirty satisfied users here. Come in today and see it at Jacobs & Son. adv

A Royal Tribute---

Those upon whom fall the duty of selecting a suitable Memorial will appreciate fully the need for such perfection as workmanship and Material.

There are three important things to be considered in purchasing a memorial---Quality, Service and price, of which all will be found with us.

An iron-clad guarantee goes with every stone.

Erwin Monument Works

Britt, Iowa

Pay Yourself a Salary

The only real PAY a man gets is the sums he SAVES after paying his expenses.

Many people are beginning to realize that Real Wages are not what they are paid for their services each week or month, but the amount they are "Laying Aside."

A GOOD WAY to save money is by making MONTHLY PAYMENTS on an—

Iowa Falls Electric Company

Common Share Certificates

Your payments will draw 7% interest and after the Certificate is issued you will receive a Regular Income every 3 MONTHS.

These Certificates make the best kind of Savings Accounts.

Let us give you all the particular.

SECURITIES DEPARTMENT

Iowa Falls Electric Co.

IOWA FALLS, IOWA. — IOWA FALLS, IOWA

STILLE'S IMPLEMENT NEWS

VOLUME 1. — Thursday, January 4, 1923. — NUMBER

Well we're started in 1923. The year of 1922 wasn't the most prosperous year for everybody in this locality, as far as that is concerned and a lot of us wanted to get out of it the worst way—and now we are. It reminds us of the man that got into a small town and he said he wanted to get out the worst way. so he took the C. R. I. & P.—that was the worst way he could think of.

With two ears and only one mouth, some people suffer terribly; simply because they hear twice as much as they can tellk.

If you are interested in a 1½ H. P. battery equipped engine, that is built nearly "fool-proof" and at a price that can't be beat, come in and look the one over that we have on the floor.

John Miller is using a new Nisco Spreader which he bought from us.

Geo. Albers got one of those McCormick Deering feed grinders. He got a 10 inch grinder and pulls it with a 12-25 Waterloo Boy Tractor. Mr. Albers says he can grind a triple box load o ear corn in less than 30 minutes.

Fred Schmidt purchased a 10 in. McCormick-Deering feed grinder of us. Fred pulls it with a Tractor.

Elmer Schlei took advantage of the narrow track sleigh proposition by purchasing a narow tack fom us befoe the first of January, and the way it looks now he will have a good chance to use it too.

The Ideal Three-Plow Tractor

The McCormick Deering 15-30 tractor is powerful, fast-moving, economical—an ideal three-plaw tractor. With a plowing speed of three miles an hour and abundant power the McCormick-Deering owner can plow a satisfactory acreage every day and at a depth to his liking. Fast deep plowing requires plenty of power. That is the reason this tractor meets the requirements of the practical farmer. It is ever-ready on the belt with its smooth, steady running engine. Comes fully equipped. Let us give you more information on this efficient farm power unit. And did you know that the 10-20 McCormick-Deering is built just like the 15-30? It's a tractor built for two plows. All necessary equipment included. The governor is built in as a part of the tractor, and not an attachment at an extra cost. The belt pulley is up in a very convenient position, the belt doesn't drag. And in the draw-bar it will pull two plows anywhere you want to plow.

Smile! Even tho you have a double chin, it has its advantages you can rest one while using the other.

Smile! Even if you have nothing to wear but clothes—nothing to quench but thirst!

The man worth while is the man who can smile, right ofter he's lost his front teeth.

Miles of smiles follow the use of En-ar-co Motor Oil.

No man ever made a mistake by being prepared. The time to prepare your farm machines for spring and summer use is in the winter time. Look over your machines now—find out the won parts; give them a thorough inspection for the purpose of determining whether they will last another season. You will save money by having all your machines ready for instant use when they are wanted. And by all means see that all your McCormick-Deering machines are equipped with genuine IHC repairs. Your John Deere machines with genuine John Deere repairs. Why not make an inspection—find out what you need—and order your repairs from us NOW.

THE KLEMME TIMES

Twentyseventh Year—Number 18. Klemme, Iowa, Thursday Afternoon, January 11, 1923 $1.50 In Advance—$2.00 Outside of County

SCHOOL BOARD HAS PROBLEM TO SOLVE IN KLEMME

SCHOOL BOARD HAS SERIOUS PROBLEM TO SOLVE

A Taxpayers' Meeting Will Be Held Friday Evening, Jan. 19

For some time the Klemme school board has been considerably "up against it" facing a serious problem. There are a number of points in which they seek an answer and with this thought before them an informal meeting was called Tuesday night at the high school room to which the business men of Klemme were invited to go over the plans with the board to see how the various problems could be solved. However, it is a problem that they at once decided should be put plainly before ALL the TAXPAYERS of Klemme and so another meeting will be called for Friday evening, at 7:30 to which all taxpayers in Klemme are most urgently requested to attend.

To many it is a well known fact that Klemme has out-grown her present school equipment; that every available nook and corner in the building is utilized in an endeavor to meet the requirements of the increasing attendance each year. But, the breaking point has come and a change must absolutely be made in the near future.

The lack of room is, however, not the most serious problem the board and the people of Klemme are at this time face to face. There is grave danger of losing the approval of the state department, because of the condition which now exists in our school. In order that everyone may fully understand the school situation thoroughly, it was at once decided that a meeting of all taxpayers would be the most proper step in the matter. There are a number of hings of vital importance to be explained at this meeting and everyone should be present and have a voice in the matter and help work out plans.

Remember the date, Friday evening, January 19th, at 7:30 o'clock. Tell your friends.

PREHN AND WILLER TO TANGLE HERE SOON

This Looks Like a Real Match And Should Draw Big Crowd

At last the wish has come true—that Hans Willer and Young Prehn would again tangle horns in a fast match.

You will remember Young Prehn and Willer wrestled one hour and fifteen minutes to a draw here on the evening of July 4th, last. It was a real match from start to finish and both men showed great science and strength on the mat. But the wrestling fans were not satisfied—they wan to know who is he best man and with the coming match they will know. It will be a finish match.

Hans Willer holds the Middleweight Championship of the state of Iowa; there is no question about it for he has defeated all comers who desired the title. Now comes Young Prehn. fast Mason City mat artist who has a hankering to wear the belt and has challenged Willer for a match. The match will be held at the Idle Hour on the evening of Friday, January 26th.

A Fine Country Home

H. H. Thieman is just adding the finishing touches to his fine new home in the country. Joe Miller is finishing the interior decorations.

The house is built on the square type and has eight large rooms. The house is 24x34 feet in size.

The house is modern in every respect—electric lights, running water both hot and cold, Bath, furnace, a laundry in the basement, vestibule. cloak rooms, men's room for putting overshoes, overalls, etc., and an extra wash room. Mr. Thieman says he was going to have it complete while he was about it and tried not to overlook any conveniences.

"BOBBY" MAKES A HIT WITH A FAIR DAMSEL

"Swift" in For Dancing Lessons is Latest News By Steihl

3815 East Anaheim St.,
Long Beach, Calif.
Jan. 1, 1923.

Friend Jorgenson:

As the people of Klemme like to hear from us, I will drop you a few lines. We are fine and dandy, and hope the same of the folks at home.

We had a long trip! where there are more cars there is more time lost, but when a man is not in a hurry it don't make any difference. The roads were not as good this trip as they were last spring, because it had rained all over the country. We had 180 miles of bad roads and the rest was fair. We got here at Long Beach on December 21, about 3:00 o'clock and we are stopping on the Camp Grounds, because Chas. and Bobby are both working and I will work soon too. Lots of work out here as Long Beach is building 1000 houses every month. Last year they built about 7,500, and now about 12,500, so you see it is growing fast. There are lots more people here this time than there was last winter. I am sure having a good time, just the kind I like 5 and 6 nights a week. Bobby is coming fine; he has made a hit on a Canadian lady. Boy! she is sure a fine lady. I would like to have her in our company. Chas. Lewis is not doing so very good, but he is going to take dancing lessons so he will make a hit. He is a little backward but he is smiling pretty good now and he has a few addresses already. So you see that Chas. will be in the swim by the time you get this letter.

There are lots of people here that I got acquainted with last winter and lots of new ones. The ladies that Kuck got acquainted with asked about him every night. Why we did not bring him along.

Last Tuesday night at the Silver Spray there were 3,629 people that night. Mr. Crain sure is a fine man and when he seen me the first night he came to me and was sure glad that we was there. He says, "where is Kuck?" But I brought him two other customers.

I will close for this time. Send the Times as we have not got it yet.

Yours respectfully,
Chas. W. Stiehl. Charley and Bob.

Mrs. Stiehl Also Writes

Long Beach. Calif.,
Dec. 31, 22.

Mr. Jergie.

Dear Sir: I will drop you a few lines to let you all know that we are all well and happy. We are on a camp ground in East Anaheim. There are about 50 tents on the ground now, and a new camp that

We are having beautiful weather just started a month ago, since we were here; just as warm as in July in Klemme. Chas. Lewis and Bobbie are both working and getting good wages. Charles Lewis went to work the next morning after we got here. They never got time to go fishing yet.

We bought a tent and will live in a tent for awhile.

We have up to this time not received any Klemme Times, I don't know what is the reason, but expect to be stationed here for a while.

Chas. Lewis is going out with a big buss to the oil fields today, and Bobbie is working today. They are awful crowded with work.

Will close this time, and hope to find you all fine and dandy.

Very sincerely yours,
Mrs. Chas. W. Stiehl.

Wishing you all a Merry Xmas and a Happy New Year.

Our address will be:
3815 East Anaheim,
Long Beach, California.

(Editor's note: With this issue of the Times we are sending you all of the papers since you left Klemme. We could not send them sooner as we had no address, except a couple of towns to which we sent papers to Gen. Del., but you evidently did not call for mail at those places.)

Men with short memories should not make long promises.

HENRY F. W. LEMKE, SR. DIED AT GARNER TUESDAY

In the early morning of January 9, 1923, occured the death of Mr. Henry Lemke of Garner. Mr. Lemke had been failing in health for some time, but it was only recently that his condition became alarming, and since then his life ebbed away very quickly.

As usual he was at his post of duty as janitor of Grace Methodist church up to Christmas, when he found that his strength would not longer permit him to fulfill his duties, and he laid down his burden. No more faithful janitor ever served than did he. While performing his duties as such he felt that he was serving His Master. and he served Him well!

Henry Frederick William Lemke was born in Pommerania, Germany. on April 14, 1852, being the oldest of a numerous family. He remained home until he was fourteen years of age when he left home to learn a trade—that of a cheese and buttermaker, remaining at this work until he was obliged to enter military training—then required of every young man of hi csountry.

On Nov. 5, 1874, Mr. Lemke was married to Miss Albertina Schlawin. Their married life was an exceptionally happy one.n They believed i the simple home life. And contentment was a predominant note in their home.

Eleven children were born to this union. Of these three died in early childhood. Five sons and three daughters along with his companion survive him. These are: Mrs. Wm. Beier, of Goodell, Ia.; Reinold, Otto, Henry, William and John of Klemme and Liberty township; Mrs. Eric Clark of Garner; and Mrs. Jas. Lilly of Britt.

Mr. Lemke and family came to this country in 1883, and settled on a farm in Liberty township. where they lived for seven years. After this they removed to Hayfield where they had purchased a farm and lived for six years. Thereupon they came to Garner, where they have resided ever since.

Soon after his arrival in this country the deceased became acquainted with the Methodist Episcopal church and made it the church of his choice. He served his church in various ways as an official—for it helped him, as he often testified to an experimental knowledge of Jesus Christ, and His Saving Power. He loved the church of his choice, and his earnest endeavor was to be trlue to it.

Peacefully he went to sleep shortly after the beginning of a new year. thus entering upon the greater life—the eternal life in all its fullness and all its glory!

CAMP FIRE GIRLS

The Camp Fire Girls met Thursday evening of last week at the home of the Guardian, Mrs. Wiles.

After the business of the meeting was transacted, the girls were initiated as wood gatherers.

Several songs were practiced before the meeting adjourned.

The next meeting will be held in the First National Bank basement, on Thursday evening, January 18th.

This meeting will be the first Ceremonial meeting.

FIRST CHURCH—

Services for next Sunday as follows:—

Morning worship at 10:00 o'clock.

A representative of the Anti-Saloon League of Iowa. will be the speaker. All should come out to hear him. He will also speak at the Liberty church at 11:30 o'clock.

Sunday school at 11:00 A. M.

Epworth League at 7:30 P. M., followed by a sermon at 8:15.

On Monday evening the Sunday school board will hold its first meeting in the new year at the parsonage at 7:30 o'clock. Every member is expected to be present. May every member and friend of the church, and lovr of the Kingdom of our Lord make a reasonable effort to attend some religious service, and take some active part in the same on every Lord's Day throughout the New Year.

W. C. Bergmann, Pastor.

Maternity Deaths in U. S. Increase.

Infant mortality has decreased but the maternity death rate has increased according to the annual report of Miss Grace Abbott, chief of the children's bureau of the department of labor, which was recently made public. Maternity deaths, she said, were more numerous per unit of population in the United States birth registration area in 19p0 than in any foreign country for which figures were available.

Forty-two states, Miss Abbott reported, have accepted the terms of he maternity and infancy act.

FORD TO OPEN LARGE PLANT IN ST. PAUL

ST. PAUL, Jan. 10.—Plans to establish a large plant in St. Paul for the manufacture of automobiles and tractors were announced here today by representatives of the Ford Motor Company. The Ford company today completed purchase of 167½ acres of land on the Mississippi river immediately adjacent to the government high dam at a cost of $315,000 as the site for the plant.

Boy 22, Living At Fertile Now His Own Grandfather

Some Srambled Relations Brought About By Marriages

FERTILE, Jan. 9.—The birth of a son this week to Peter E. Linsky and wife gains for a local man the unique distinction of being his own grandfather at the youthful age of 22.

About eighteen months ago. Linsky married a young widow who had a grown step-daughter. His father, who at that time was a widower, shortly after married his son's wife's stepdaughter; and thus the younger Linsky's wife became the mother-in-law of her father-in-law, which some what complicated the family tree by making the younger Linsky's stepdaughter his step-mother. and his father his step-son.

It's a Tangled Skein

Then a few months ago, the younger Linsky's step-mother, that is the step-daughter of his wife, presented her husband, young Linsky's father, with a son. This boy, of course, was the younger Linsky's brother because he was the elder Linsky's son; but he was also the son of the younger Linsky's wife's step-daughter, and therefore her grandson, thus making the younger Linsky the grand-father of his own sgtep-son.

And now he has a son of his own. a lusty 10 pound boy, according to the attending physician.

The happy event, however, unfortunately makes the Linsk family tree a veritable jungle. since the child's father's mother-in-law, the step-sister of his son, is now the child's grandmother, because he is her stepson's son, while the senior Linsky becomes the brother-in-law of his own son's son, who is also the child of the younger Linsky's step-grand-mother, which makes Peter E. Linsky, the child's father, his mother's brother-in-law, while his wife, the mother of the child, is her own child's aunt; and the eleder Linsky, father of Peter E., is his son's child's uncle, and the child is his grandfather's nephew, which makes Peter E. Linsky—there is no getting around the fact—his own grand-father at the age of 22.

Beats Chicago Case

A case of mixed relationship similar in many of its details to the above, was reported rom Chicago several years ago, with this difference, however, that the person involved was a woman, who, through a maze of mixed marriages. had become her own great-grand-mother at the advanced age of 70. Here was a ripe old age; but it is the extreme youthfulness of the Fertile man that makes his case so unique and out of the ordinary.—Globe-Gazette.

ACTIVITIES OF THE HANCOCK COUNTY FARM BUREAU

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE HANCOCK COUNTY FARM BUREAU

The Annual Meeting Was Well Attended Last Friday

The annual meeting of the Hancock County Farm Bureau was held Friday, January 5th. with a large attendance representing every part of the county. This was one of the bst meetings hld in the history of the organization. It was the first meeting hat he women have taken part in, and from the interest shown by them, proved that the women were as much interested in the work as the men.

The forenoon was given over to general reports. A. O. Christenson, President, gave a short talk on the value of the organization. Mrs. E. J. Schneider, County Chairman of Womens' Work, gave an excellent report of the women's activities and discussed the benefits obtained by different projects. The Secretary, Anthony Baker, gave a report which showed that the Board meetings had been held each month during the year and the average attendance was much higher than it has been in previous years. The meetings were held in the different parts of the county so that the members of the Board, as well as other members, could attend. The directors meetings have been held last year in practically every township in the county.

The report of the Treasurer, Ren Smith. showed that the finances have been well cared for. That all bills have been paid under strict supervision of the officers, every bill having been passed on by the Board and vouchers signed by the President and Secretary. It also showed that the budget which had been made out the first of the year was very closely adhered to.

The report of the County Agent was given, covering the work of the past year and showing many lines of activities of the organization and many beneficial results obtained with the co-operation of the Board of Directors and other members. The program of work for 1923 was also read and discussed.

An excellent dinner was served by the Congregational Ladies Aid of Britt.

The meeting was called to order again at one o'clock and Prof. J. E. Brindley of Ames was introduced. Mr. Brindley gave an excellent address on the subject of taxation. He is one of the best posted men in the country along this line and his address showd that he has made a thorough study of taxation from all angles.

Mrs. Robert Englehardt of Spencer gave an excellent address along the line of women's Farm Bureau work. She showed that the women were as much interested in Farm Bureau work as the men, and that with their help, the organization will be more sucesful.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: A. O. Christenson. Crystal Lake, President; W. L. Lawhorn, Garner, Vice President; Anthony Baker, Britt, Secretary; Ren Smith, Britt, Treasurer; Mrs. W. J. Elling. Garner. County Chairman of Womens' Work.

The directors of the diferent townships are as follows: Bingham, John Dawson, Woden; Crystal, Wilbur Sparks, Crystal Lake; Madison, F. P. Oleson. Forest City; Ellington, F. L. Meinecke, Ventura; Garfield, T. R. Riehm, Garner; Concord, Gust Boenke, Garner; Britt, E. A. Fisher. Britt; Orthel, C. A. Stith, Britt; Boone, B. F. Higdon, Britt; Erin, Walter Mau, Britt; Liberty, W. L. Haberkamp, Garner; Ell, W. J. Schlawien, Ventura; Avery, A. C. Carpenter, Goodell; Twin Lake, Earl Ruka, Goodell; Amsterdam, S. A. Barber, Kanawha; Magor, Fred Oxley, Corwith.

The newly elected board of directors and officers held a meeting directly after the adjournment of the annual meeting, at which Mr. T. R. Riehm, of Garner, was elected state delegate to the Iowa Farm Bureau Fderation convention, and Mrs. W. J. Elling of Garner was authorized to attend as woman delegate.

The Executive Committee was appointed as follows: A. O. Christenson, Ren Smith, Anthony Baker, W. L. Lawhorn, T. R. Riehm, E. A. Fisher, F P. Oleson.

The same office force was retained. It was also planned that as many o the directors as possible should attend the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation convention at Des Moines, January 11 and 12. A number signified their intentions of going.

ALL SET FOR FARMERS' WEEK

Strong Program Aided by Fare Reduction to Bring Hundreds to Ames January 29

With one of the strongest programs offered in recent years ready and a reduction in railroad fares from all points of Iowa to Ames granted, indications point to a record attendance at the annual Farmers' Week. which is scheduled to open at Ames January 29. Classes will continue until February 3.

Whether you are lookingfi for a way to exterminate the Hessian fly or the latest rations for a growing lot of pigs, you are sure to find the information in some of the classes. Every department of the college is co-operating to offer the best it has. Each class hour from Monday to Saturday will be chuck-full of timely and useful instruction.

Aside from the regular clas work the visitor of the short course will gain much from the addresses that will be given during the week. Such meetings as those of the Iowa Ayrshire Breeders' association. the Iowa Guernsey Cattle Club, the Iowa Holstein-Friesian Bredders' asociation, he Iowa Jersey Cattle Club will provide a place for many. In addition to these the State Corn and Small Grain Growers' association wil hold a meeting, as will the Iowa State Dairy asociation and the Iowa Cow Test Supervisors' association.

As usual, the courses are absolutely froee and the only expenses to be paid by the visitor is his fare and maintannce while in town. A committee on housing is hard at work and no difficulties will be had in taking care of the hundreds that will be on hand for the week.

TO CALIFORNIA BY OLD ROUTE

Fort Dodge Man and Family Hike to California Like Old Days

Early last fall James Russell, a merchant at Fort Dodge and prior to hat a leading business man at Audubon, decided to do something out of he ordinary, so he fitted out a covered wagon, a pattern of the old 'praire schooner" of pioneer days, with a complete camping outfit, secured a good team of horses and with his wife and son started overland for California. They stopped at Audubon for a visit with old friends for a few days and then started on the long journey. Near the close of the second day from Audubon Russell discovered that he had left at his stopping place in that town an overcoat, so he telephoned his Audubon host and asked him to send the coat by express to a town further up the line where he would get it. In place of obeying orders, Harry Arnold, of Audubon, to whom Mr. Russell had telephoned, put the coat in his car and in just one hour had covered the distance Mr. Russell and his prairie schooner had traversed in about two days' journey, and that is a fair idea of the difference in traveling now in comparison with the days of long ago.

And now comes the news that women are too weak for housework. Well. men are not strong for it either.

A good excuse is seldom accepted, but almost anybody can get by with a bad one.

LEGISLATIVE NEWS

Organization, Inaugural and Governors Message Features Work of the Week

THE GOVERNOR RECOMMENDS

Code Revision, Budget System, Aid to the Schools, Eradicating Illiteracy, and Highway Legislation.

Preliminary organization including swearing in of new members, naming of officers and clerks for the senate and house, the inauguration of the governor and the lieutenant governor, Governor Kendall's message to both houses of the assembly in joint session, his inaugural address and the inaugural ball this week sent tthe fortieth general assembly off on what is expected to prove the most worth while meeting of recent years.

With the largest proportion of farmer membership in history great things in the way of benefit to agriculture are expected to come out of the deliberations of the present legislature. In the house of representatives there are 65 members of 103 who are farmers. In the senate the proportion is not so large but a great many members who are not actual farmers have extensive farming interests.

On Tuesday Governor Kendall read his message to the joint session of the house and senate. He painted Iowa as a commonwealth completely and splendidly solvent and holding a comfortable unencumbered balance in its treasury, but with a need for the introduction of best business practices in the management of state government so that expenses, already burdensomely heavy, may be substantially reduced.

On the subject of highways legislation, the governor pointed to the rapid progress being made in road improvement, and stressed the importance of not losing sight of the secondary roads, but of improving them along with the primary system. He advocated an occupational tax upon motor trucks and busses used as transporters of freight and passengers to reimburse the state for their impairment of the highways.

He announced that he had accepted on behalf of the state the provisions of the Shappard-Towner act for the promotion of the welfare and hygiene of maternity and that he was submitting it to the legislature for action.

"I venture to say that in my judgment," he concluded his part of the message on that subject, "the state should fully cooperate with the federal government in the great and humanitarian enterprise fostered by the act."

He repeated his request for the enactment of the real budget law at the session of the general assembly just commenced stating that in his opinion "one of the most imperative obligations imposed on us at this time is the establishment of a comprehensive and thoroughgoing budget system which shall include an intelligent and disinterested survey of what is being done with the cost of doing it, and what it is proposed to do with so that the average taxpayer may understand readily and exactly the disbursement "of every dollar collected from him as taxes."

In connection with the enactment of a budget law with teeth in it, he assailed the loophole which permits boards of supervisors, city councils and school boards to issue bonds to take up warrants issued without funds in the treasury. He repeated his plea made two years ago for the consolidation of many independent and overlappping state boards into a limited number of departments with fixed and definite responsibility.

Accompanying both these projected changes he said should go the inauguration of the most searching methods of inspection and audit.

"My experience of two years in office," he asserted, "has convinced me that the legislation I have outlined would lift the public service to a higher level than it now occupies. Appropriate measures to effectuate these reforms will be before you, and I very earnestly invite your early and serious consideration of them."

On code revision the governor asked clarification of the existing statutes as speedily as possible and declared that the code bills prepared by the commission could be considered and disposed of concurrently with new legislation in the present regular session. He pointed out that he had refused to call a special session after the thirty-ninth assembly for the purpose of code revision because of the cost of the session and made it clear that he had no intention of calling a special session on code revision this year.

"The way to revise the code," he said, "between this January 9 and next April 9 is to revise it; not by predicting in advance that it cannot be done and deferring it, but by resolving at once that it shall be done and doing it."

Increased appropriation for eradication of bovine tuberculosis was also recommended. The thirty-eighth general assembly appropriated $100,000 for this purpose; the thirty-ninth increased it to $250,000 and this sum has now become inadequate the governor told the assembly.

Governor Kendall recommended an adequate appropriation to continue the railroad valuation work now being prosecuted by the state railroad commission. The commission has completed the major part of the work on property valuation of railroads running through Iowa and the governor stressed the importance of completing the work as the data will be of immense value to the executive council in the assessment of railway property for state taxation.

Schools, the governor saved to the last of his address because he said they overshadowed other interests of the state in importance and value.

"Prouder are we than of any other consideration," he asserted, "that from rural desk to classic cloister the facilities provided for the education of our boys and girls is unequalled anywhere in the world. The intellectual training and the moral discipline of the young are, and ought to be, the paramount concern of our people.

"There is complaint of the burdens of government, and the complaint is legitimate, but no good citizen regrets his contribution to the public schools of the commonwealth. Of every dollar realized from revenues of every character, practically one-half is now devoted to this great and fundamental purpose.

"It is well.

"We may properly enforce a prudence which approaches parsimony in the other activities of the state, but our educational institutions, great and small, must be supported with a liberality that shall guarantee them their pre-eminence.

"The federal census of 1920 shocked the proud sensibilities of the state when it revealed the unwelcome truth that there are in the commonwealth 20,680 people over ten years of age who cannot read or write in any language. Although our per cent of illiteracy in proportion to inhabitants is lower than that of any other state, the fact that in enlightened Iowa so considerable a population is thus deficient in the most rudimentary elements of learning, is a reproach that deeply humiliates.

"The unhappy condition must be removed at once and completely.

"Acting upon my own initiative I have appointed a commission of forward-looking men and women who, without any compensation whatsoever, have enlisted to organize an intensive campaign to eradicate the stigma from our escutcheon. This commission is now functioning vigorously and efficiently.

"To enable the department of education to cooperate with it in the splendid enterprise in which it is engaged the superintendent of public instruction will ask a nominal appropriation for clerical expense, and I earnestly hope that his request may have your approval."

The legislature is now off on a long session which will last not less than three and possibly four or five months in which a great deal of important legislation will be considered, some of it passed, a great deal of it defeated.

The human body generates enough heat during the day to melt 44 pounds of ice and raise the liquid to boiling point.

"John", said the young bride, "you were muttering in your sleep last night and you kept saying: 'Come, 7-11.' What on earth did you mean?" "A-h, hm! Oh, yes, that's the number of the firm of Black & White, with whom I often do business. And you know how hard it is to get a number," replied John from behind his newspaper.

Americans are more fond of taking off their hats to the past than they are of taking off their coats to the future. The greatness of any institution or movement lies not so much in what it has done as in what it may do in the future.

How many people know that the legal length of the meter in the United States is different from its legal length in England? Such, however, is the case. In America it is 39.37 inches; in England, 39.3700113. Of course, the difference is not large in itself, but still when computing great distances it might become considerable. In this day of accurate research, a thousandth, ten-thousanth, or millionth of an inch is ordinarily considered by no means negligible.

When illuminating gas was first installed in New York city in 1825, the price was $10 a thousand cubic feet. In addition, the consumer had to pay rental for the meter and for the fixtures, which were owned by the gas company.

We get just what we give. People treat us with the same medicine which we administer to them. The weakling cannot be regarded as a hero. The bully is a coward. The one without initiative cannot be intrusted with any significant enterprise. The spendthrift is not a financier; nor is the miser.

The great rural interests are human interest, and good crops are of little value to the farmer unless they open the door to a good kind of life on the farm.

The origin of "windfall," in the sense of "good luck", dates from the time of William the Conqueror. It was then a criminal offense to cut timber in the forests. Only such could be gathered as the wind had blown down. Hence, a heavy windstorm was hailed by the peasants as so much good luck, and from this comes its modern application.

GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE

OUTLINES PARAMOUNT ISSUES IN DEFINITE LANGUAGE

Heartily in Favor of Departmental Reforms, Strict Economy And Auditing

To the Fortieth General Assembly of Iowa:

By section 12 of Article 4 of the constitution it is rendered encumbent upon the Chief Executive to communicate to the General Assembly at the opening of each regular session the condition af the state. The duty thus devolved upon the Governor is a particularly agreeable one at the present juncture, for the comonwealth is completely and splendidly solvent. The chief executive is also required to submit to the legislature what is denominated a "budget" containing general information with reference to appropriations granted to each department for the past biennial period, its expenditures during such period, and its askings, for the ensuing period. A previous legislature embarked feebly upon budgestary experiment, but it remains for you to carry to full completion the imperfect program it inaugurated. Under its operation a budget board would be created, wholly disconnected from the legislature or any department, to which each department would report the amount appropriated for its support by the last preceding general assembly.

The amount appropriated by the general assembly for state purposes for the year 1920 was $7,900,000 to be raised by a levy on a taxable valuation of $1,103,349,996. In 1922 the amount had advanced to $10,-072,000 while the taxable valuation had declined to $1,083,448,689. I am informed that in one of the superior counties of the state there are at this time outstanding more than a million dollars of securities, not a single penny of which ever was sanctioned by the electors of the county who must finally discharge them. Such a gross abuse of the public interest will be corrected by requiring a budget and forbidding any expenditure beyond it.

I am convinced that we can abolish some of our present instrumentalities of government. There has developed boards, bureaus and commissions more numerous than is warranted by prudent administration. Under the system in vogue it is possible for a state agent to visit your town each day in the week except Sunday, to perform inspections of hotels, oil stations, scales, water supply, etc. I enjoin a thorough reform of the departmental organization now existing, to the end that more improved methods may be introduced into the management of our affairs. You can render a permanent service by answering the demand for a systematization of the business of the state, for a reduction of the personnel of those supervising its functions, and for a curtailment of the expense involved in its operation.

There should be invoked to accompany the changes desired the most searching methods of inspection and audit. The law now provides for an examination by the auditor of state of the books and accounts of all county, city, town and school officials. A notable illustration of the efficiency of this provision is presented in the fiscal affairs of the city of Des Moines. The state checkers exposed fraud in one department involving the misappropriation of about $75,000 of the tax payers' money, and successful criminal prosecutions have ensued. My experience of two years in the executive office has convinced me that the legislation I have outlined will lift the public service to a higher level than it now occupies, and I very earnestly invite your serious consideration of them.

A subject of prime importance which should engage your earliest attention is the revision of the code. I am not unaware that there is a diversity of opinion as to the most expeditious course to be pursued. I have been importuned to convene a special session to deal with it, but I declined to do so, as I felt that the taxpayers of the state could illy afford the expenditure of $250,000 that would be thereby incurred. I do not need to restate the argument for early revision. The opportunity is before you for constructive achievement and I trust it may be zealously embraced.

The eradication of bovine tuberculosis from the state is of the most vital importance because of the danger of its communication to the human family. Requests for treatment come not only from livestock owners, but also from health officials asking that dairy cows supplying milk for human consumption be subjected to a satisfactory tuberculin test. I recommend a most liberal appropriation for the great and necessary work.

The 39th general assembly revamped the laws governing the state's printing and binding and created a board with jurisdiction over the subject, resulting in an economy of fully $75,000.00 per annum.

It is exceedingly gratifying to report that the national guard is in excellent condition with an efficiency unsurpassed by any similar body in the United States. Thorughout the troublous year which has just expired Iowa was one of the very few states which did not have to resort to military force for the maintenance of order.

FRANCE REBUKED BY SEC'Y HUGHES

U. S. Official Tells Jusserand French Are Blocking Any Possible Aid.

AMERICA HAS REACHED LIMIT

Paris Government's Attitude on German Reparations Has Killed All Chances for Assistance, Is White House Intimation.

Washington, Jan. 6 — Secretary Hughes informed Jules Jusserand, French ambassador, the uncompromising attitude of France was blocking any possibility that the United States might aid Europe in reaching a solution of the reparations question.

The information was given the French diplomat during a long conference at the State department.

Simultaneously, it was learned at the White House that President Harding regards the reparations question as having passed beyond the realm of the reparations commission provided in the treaty of Versailles.

This view contradicts the French position that the question must be considered in accordance with the strict provisions of the treaty.

The United States holds the opinion that reparations must be discussed from the standpoint of what Germany is able to pay without reference to drastic provisions of a treaty which the American congress refused to ratify.

The conference between the Secretary and M. Jusserand followed a series of meetings between the President, Mr. Hughes and Col. George Harvey, ambassador to Great Britain.

RACE WAR IN FLORIDA TOWN

Three White Men, Three Negroes Killed and Many Others Injured Near Sumner.

Gainesville, Fla., Jan. 5.—Three white and three colored men are dead and numerous whites and blacks injured as a result of an outbreak at Rosewood, three miles from Sumner, Levy county, according to reports received here by telephone from Cedar Key. The reports added that many armed men from Cedar Key were planning to go to Rosewood.

FUNDING EASY, SAYS BALDWIN

British Chancellor Expects the Commission to Complete Labors in Two Weeks.

Washington, Jan. 6.—Sir Stanley Baldwin, British chancellor of the exchequer, who heads the British funding mission to the United States, expressed complete confidence that the problem of putting on a paying basis the debt to this country is comparatively easy. The British financier declared that he hoped the mission from Great Britain would complete its labors within two weeks.

PILOT DROPS 10,000 FEET

Aerial Mail Service Man Only Slightly Hurt in Great Fall in Utah.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Jan. 6.—Pilot Henry G. Boonstra of the western division of the United States aerial mail service fell about 10,000 feet with his airplane near Wanship, Utah, and escaped with only slight injuries, according to announcement by air mail officials here. Boonstra's home is at Lafayette, Ind.

TAX EXEMPTION IS SCORED

Mellon Urges House to Speed the Constitutional Amendment Against Securities.

Washington, Jan. 6.—Representative Green (Ia.), ranking Republican on the ways and means committee, submited to the house a letter from Secretary Mellon in support of his proposed amendment to the Constitution to restrict the further issuance of tax-exempt securities.

FRENCH PLANES SCOUT RUHR

Airplanes Cross Over Unoccupied German Territory, Says a Dispatch From Berlin.

London, Jan. 6.—French airplanes have crossed over unoccupied German territory, hovering over Mannheim, according to a dispatch to the Central News from Berlin. The maneuver is apparently preparatory to the march of the French army into the Ruhr valley.

Ask West Indies Parley.

Washington, Jan. 6. — Resolutions proposing negotiations with Great Britain and France for cession to the United States of their island possessions in the West Indies were reintroduced by Senator Reed.

New Boll Weevil Fight Planned.

Washington, Jan. 6.—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace announced a cotton conference will be held at Memphis early next month to consider use of calcium arsenate and other methods to end the boll weevil evil.

B. H. MEYER

B. H. Meyer, one of the oldest members of the interstate commerce commission, becomes chairman of the commission for 1923. According to the custom of the commission, Chairman Charles C. McChord, having served one year, retires from the post. Mr. Meyer, after having served on the first state railroad commission in Wisconsin, was appointed to the interstate commerce commission by President Taft and reappointed by President Wilson.

VETOES PENSION BILL

President Harding Returns Bursum's Measure Unsigned.

Declares He Recognizes No Public Obligation to Women Who Marry Veterans.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Civil war and Mexican war veterans are not to enjoy the pension increases provided by the Bursum bil, recently enacted. This result is due to the veto of the measure by President Harding.

The President, in a brief message vetoing the pension increase act, charged that the act "makes no pretense of new considerations for the needy or dependent, no new generosity for the veteran wards of the nation; it is an outright bestowal upon the government's pension rolls, with a heedlessness for the government's financial problems, which is a discouragement to every effort to reduce expenditures and thereby relieve the federal burdens of taxation.

"The more particular objection to the act, however, lies in its loose provision for pensioning widows. The existing law makes the widow of a Civil war veteran eligible if she married him prior to July 27, 1905. The act required herewith extends the marriage period to June 27, 1915, and provides a pension of $50 a month for the widow for the rest of her life.

"Frankly, I do not recognize any public obligation to pension women, who now, nearly sixty years after the Civil war, become the wives of veterans of that war."

DEBT FUNDING BODY ARRIVES

English Chancellor With Colleagues Comes to U. S. to Settle Obligations.

New York, Jan. 5.—Bringing to the American people the assurance that "we English always pay our debts and always will," the British debt refunding mission, headed by Stanley Baldwin, chancellor of the exchequer, arrived in this country aboard the White Star liner Majestic. The party was taken off the ship at quarantine and rushed to the Pennsylvania station in order to catch the first possible train for Washington.

W. P. G. HARDING OUT OF JOB

No Longer Being Considered for Reappointment as Head of Federal Reserve Board.

Washington, Jan. 5. — W. P. G. Harding is no longer being considered by the President for reappointment as governor of the federal reserve board. It was stated officially at the Treasury department that the name of Mr. Harding has been eliminated from the list.

U. S. WILL PAY NORWAY

Award of $14,000,000 for Ships Taken Over to Be Settled at Once.

Washington, Jan. 3.—The $14,000,-000 award to Norway by The Hague tribunal for Norwegian ships, taken over by the United States in American ports during the war, will be paid in full without further protest by this government, it was announced at the White House.

Mexican Situation Worries Britain.

London, Jan. 6.—The recent killing of a British subject has served to intensify official concern over the status of foreigners and foreign property in Mexico. It is hinted the British government may take drastic action.

Dynamite Found in Shoe Factory.

Haverhill, Mass., Jan. 6.—A suitcase containing a battery, a fuse and 72 sticks of dynamite was found in the Knipe Bros., Inc., shoe factory here. The company has been involved in labor disputes.

ENTENTE DEBT PARLEY FAIL

London and Paris Split O Collection of Reparations.

BONAR LAW LOOKS TO U.

British Delegates Quit Conference Paris and Leave for London— France Takes Measures for Occupation of Ruhr.

Paris, Jan. 5.—The allied premi conference ended in complete agreement. Failure of the ent that won the war to agree on a method of collecting the spoils f Germany brought the latest Euro economic parley to failure. Br and France were unalterably opp as to how the reparations paym shoud be collected.

The conference came to an end the following manner:

Poincare asked for a flat "yes" "no" on acceptance of the French p for "protective guaranties," which characterized as the minimum which France would agree.

The conference adjourned for hour to give the British a chance consider this point. Emerging f the British meeting, Bonar Law s calmly to the correspondents:

"You may say the conference over."

The end was forecast when British announced the refusal to cept the French plan and the Fre rejected that of Great Britain.

A final effort to bring the two gether was made by Italy, wh spokesman offered the Italian plan a compromise.

But the conference was unable agree, and the British left for Lond possibly to consult with the Uni States regarding international act such as was proposed by Secret Hughes, while the French began pr arations to act alone.

Measures, such as are usual in time of crisis, were taken by French military authorities at M ence as soon as news of the bre down in the premiers' conference Paris became known, says a dispat to the Journal from Mayence. T dispatch adds that headquarters s orders to all of the troops to rem in barracks ready for all eventuali and that the men on leave of abse were recalled.

WAR DEBT GUARANTY GO

French Gold Deposited in Engl Banks Spent in United States for Munitions.

Paris, Jan. 4.—The most import and astonishing statement of the p miers' conference was the declarat of Premier Bonar Law that t French gold deposits placed in En land as security for war debts d from France has been exported e tirely to the United States during t war in payment for munitions for t French, and "thus this guaranty reality no longer exists."

The current month's statement the Bank of France carries this h lion of gold francs, together wi 860,000,000 in Spain and elsewhere, among assets of the bank "abroad."

STANDARD OIL EARNINGS BI

Net Profits Since Dissolution Trust in 1912 $253,817,-559.30.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Profits averaging from 1 cent to 1½ cents realized by the Standard Oil compa of New York upon every gallon of g oline produced in its refineries, cording to testimony submitted by t corporation in the senate oil investig tion. The net earnings for the fi six months of 1922, a normal ye were $11,104,165.80. Net earnin since the dissolution of the Standard Oil trust in 1912 had reache a total of $253,817,559.30 up to Ju 30, 1922.

MASKED MEN HANG NEGR

Take Alleged Murderer From Tra in Mississippi and String Him Up on Bridge.

Hattiesburg, Miss., Jan. 4.—Be Webster, negro, was taken from train on the Alabama & Vicksbur railroad at Lawrence at night by masked men. His body was foun next morning hanging from a bridg about two miles from Waynesbor Wayne county. The negro wa charged with the murder of a roa contractor, Alford of Hazelhurst Miss., last November.

Daugherty Case Action Postponed.

Washington, Jan. 5.—After a two hour session the house judiciary com mittee adjourned until next Tuesda without making a final decision o the impeachment charges against A torney General Daugherty.

Liner Damaged in Gale.

New York, Jan. 5.—The Red Sta liner Samland reached here with starboard lifeboat smashed, severa broken portholes and damaged deck as a result of fighting the Atlanti gale. The Majestic arrived intact.

STATEMENT OF CONDITION OF STATE SAVINGS BANK organized under the laws of Iowa, located at Klemme, in the County of Hancock, at the close of business on the 29th day of December, A. D. 1922.

RESOURCES

Loans and discounts. Bonds and Securities		481.458.96
Overdrafts		1,658.87
Stock Agricultural Organizations		500.00
Banking House	200.00
Furniture and Fixtures	750.00	950.00
Other real estate owned		13,115.54
Due from banks and bankers, cash and cash items		68,331.87
Total Resources		566,015.24

LIABILITIES

Capital Stock	30,000.00
Surplus fund	10,000.00	40,000.00
Undivided profits (after deducting expenses	3,576.07	3,576.07
Individual Deposits subject to check	89,643.32
Time certificates of deposit	308,718.85	398,362.17
Bills Payable other than with Federal Reserve Bank	40,000.00
Rediscounts	84,077.00	124,077.00
Total Liabilities		566,015.24

STATE OF IOWA
Hancock County—ss.

We, P. M. Griesemer. President, and F. J. Wenck, Cashier of the bank above named, do solemly swear that the foregoing statement is full, true and correct, to the best of our knowledge and belief, that the assets therein set forth are bona fide property of said bank in its corporate capacity, and that no part of the same has been loaned or advanced to said bank for the purpose of being exhibited as a portion of its assets.

P. M. Griesemer, President
F. J. Wenck. Cashier

(SEAL)

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence by P. M. Griesemer and F. J. Wenck this 9th day of January, 1923.

CATHERINE A. WENCK
Notary in and for Hancock County
(SEAL)

ATTESTED BY—
D. D. ROSS
JOE E. JOHNSON
Directors

COUNCIL MEETING

The Town Council of the town of Klemme, Iowa, met in regular session in Mayor F. J. Wenck's office October 9, 1922.

Meeting called to order by Mayor F. J. Wenck.

Members present: Mayor F. J. Wenck; Clerk J. N. Day; Councilmen A. D. Gimer, Wm. Smith, Wm. Bachman, C W Wiles. Absent, Joe E. Johnson, councilman.

Motion was made and seconded that the following bills be allowed:

Geo. B. Bechtel, Interest on bond	$180.00
Farmers Lumber Company, cement	16.90
Henry Lau & Sons, Mdse., and repair on engine	11.41
Fred Henschen. salary for August and September	150.00
Phil Bock, work on crossing	4.05
Henry Ludeke, for gravel	18.50
Lloyd Lau, hauling gravel	46.50
Wm. Stille, for gravel	1.00
Klemme Times, printing, council proceedings	2.85
Standard Oil Company, gas	18.79
Henry Swartz, hauling gravel	24.00
Iowa Falls Electric co., electricity	201.60

Moved to adjourn.

J. N. Day, Clerk.
F. J. Wenck, Mayor

COUNCIL MEETING

The Town Council of the town of Klemme, Iowa, met in regular session in Mayor F J. Wenck's office October 23. 1922.

Meeting called to order by Mayor F. J. Wenck.

Members present: Mayor F. J. Wenck; Clerk J. N. Day; Councilmen A. D. Gimer, Wm. Smith, Joe Johnson, C. W. Wiles and Wm. Bachman. Absent: None.

Motion made and seconded that the following bills be allowed:

Henry Ludeke, for gravel	7.00
Bloom & Johnson, for gravel	28.50
Henry Swartz, dragging the streets	6.50
Standard Oil Co., gas	19.09
Dr. Griswold, expenses to and from Iowa City	16.93

Moved to adjourn.

J. N. Day, Clerk.
F. J. Wenck, Mayor.

GEORGE ZINN, M. D.

Physician and Surgeon

Office opposite from Hotel Klemme

Phone No. 19

Eyes Examined — Glasses Fitted

GOODELL NEWS ITEMS

Mrs. Bier was a Garner passenger on the train Friday night.

Raymond Finn returned to Avoca Saturday morning, after enjoying a two week's vacation with his parents.

The dance here Friday night was well attended and all present report a good time.

Arthur Lowenberg went to Fort Dodge where he will take a business course.

Miss Hill and Miss McCormick, teachers in the High School, spent Wednesday evening at the Jay Griggs home, listening to the radio. Jay says that the greatest distances he has received messages from is Cuba and Canada.

Mrs. Christenson and Mrs. Miller entertained the ladies ail at the former's home, Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Sherwood and Maude Griggs were Belmond callers Thursday.

Clement Houghton, who works at Garner, is spenling a few days at home this week.

Presley Griggs is attending Business College in Mason City.

Goodell High School Notes

Friday night Goodell's Basket Ball boys and girls went to Crystal Lake. Both teams were defeated, but. never-the-less, we received a lot of good practice. Crystal Lake has a strong team this year, due to the many games they have played this season and also the practice which they have four times a week. A return game will be played Feb. 2nd.

Tommy Quigley was absent from school Tuesday.

Seems as though everyone is now cramming and preparing for the 1st semester exams, which will be held Thursday and Friday of this week.

Francis McNulty was a welcome visitor last Thursday afternoon.

Lucille Miller returned to school after a week's absence.

AVERY TOWNSHIP NEWS

Mrs. Robert Roth started to teaching school in the E. J. Arnold school Monday. She will finish the year.

Mrs. Tommy Nelson left last week Thursday for a few days visit at the Rev. Howdeshell home.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bell and sons, Russell and Kenneth, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. E. C Henschen and Mr and Mrs. Fred Bell who live near Garner.

Anna Carlson and Verner Nelson returned home from Crown Point, Indiana, Saturday, where they had been spending their holidays.

William Bell received word Friday that his mother, who lives in Illinois, was taken seriously sick and rushed to the hospital at once.

Quite a number from this vicinity attended the miscellaneous shower given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elko Buss last Monday night. in honor of the newly-weds, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Buss.

50 GOOD CIGARETTES 10¢

GENUINE "BULL" DURHAM TOBACCO

TYPEWRITER RIBBONS
All Makes

Typewriter Ribbons for sale at the Times Office. all of the Standard makes. Ribbons 75 cents each.

THE CITY DRAY LINE
—Is prepared to do your hauling carefully and promptly
We solicit your patronage
Charges reasonable.
Coal Hauling Done
Louie Knoke

DENTIST
J. L. Hesselhuus, D. D. S.
Office Hours 8-12 1-5:30
Office Opposite State Savings Bank; In Schaffer Bldg.
Evening Work By Appointment Only
Klemme, Ia. Phone 81

W. F. PAVEY
The Practical Blacksmith
OXY-ACETYLENF WELDER
Wagon, Buggy and Machine Repairing
Horse Shoeing and Plow Work A Specialty

KLEMME DRAY LINE
Phone 2105
A share of your patronage is solicited All work attended to promptly and carefully. We haul coal quick.
LLOYD LAU, PROP.

Chicago Daily Tribune

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

Announces

A BIG REDUCTION IN SUBSCRIPTION RATES

For the Benefit of Readers Receiving The Tribune By Mail

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, realizing that its phenomenal success is due in a large measure to the fact that for seventy-five years it has numbered among its readers a large proportion of the residents of farms and small cities who receive The Tribune by mail, announces for their benefit a big reduction in subscription rates effective January 15th, 1923.

The reduction ranges from 1/3 to 1/2 below former rates

In 1917, as a war measure, Congress passed a bill providing for four annual raises in Postal Rates for newspaper subscriptions. As The Tribune had, for many years before, sold its paper to out-of-town readers at less than cost, it felt compelled to add a portion of these postage increases to its subscription rates.

For the past three years The Chicago Tribune has been leading the fight to obtain a reduction in second-class postage rates so that it could reduce to pre-war prices its subscription rates to residents of farms and small cities.

Although every one of the other ten taxes established by the war revenue act of 1917 has been reduced, Congress has not seen fit as yet to reduce the tax on second-class postage.

At the present Postal Rates it costs The Tribune from $3.20 to $6.79 a year for Postage alone to send the paper to each subscriber in the States of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin. In many instances this is more than The Tribune's entire subscription price—without considering the cost of the product.

Many of our farmer friends have stated that it required from 10 to 12 bushels of corn to pay for a year's subscription to The Chicago Daily Tribune. The Tribune is anxious to remedy that fact.

Therefore, without waiting further for Congress to act, The Tribune announces a reduction in subscription rates ranging from 1/3 to 1/2. This cut in rates will cost The Tribune approximately $200,000.00 each year, but The Tribune will pay the bill in the interest of its many country readers.

New subscriptions to The Chicago Daily Tribune, starting on and after January 15th, 1923, will be accepted at the following rates:

THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE
[By Mail, Six Days a Week]

These Rates Apply Only to Subscriptions in States of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin. [Cities, Towns and Rural Routes included.]

Period	Old Rate	New Rate
1 Month	$1.00	$ .50
3 Months	2.50	1.25
6 Months	3.75	2.50
12 Months	7.50	5.00

The Chicago Daily Tribune today enjoys the largest circulation in its history and the largest morning circulation in America—averaging over 530,000 copies daily. It will readily be seen, therefore, that the reduction is not made primarily to secure more circulation.

If you wish to receive The Chicago Daily Tribune—with its many wonderful features—regularly, take advantage of these new, low rates now. Mail subscription coupon below. Note that $2.50 will now bring you The Chicago Daily Tribune by mail for six months, or $5.00 for a whole year.

For the benefit of its country readers The Tribune will continue its fight for fairer postage rates.

TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THIS OFFER TEAR OUT COUPON and

MAIL AT ONCE!

If you prefer to do so, you may turn subscription coupon below over to your postmaster, publisher, or newsdealer who will forward it to us.

SUBSCRIPTION COUPON

The Tribune Company,
Chicago, Illinois,

Date.....

I want to take advantage of your reduced subscription rates. Enclosed find $..... for which send The Chicago Daily Tribune [by Mail, Six Days a Week] as follows:

☐ 1 MONTH [50c] ☐ 6 MONTHS [$2.50]
☐ 3 MONTHS [$1.25] ☐ 12 MONTHS [$5.00]

Check the Subscription wanted

Name.....

Street Address or R.F.D.....

Post Office..... State.....

No 8659 Report of the Condition of

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK

At Klemme, in the state of Iowa
At the close of business on December 29, 1922.

RESOURCES

Loans and discounts	295,237.29
Overdrafts, unsecured	2,021.42
U. S. Government securities owned, deposited to secure circulation	25,000.00
Other bonds, stocks, securities, etc.	7,665.61
Banking house, furniture and fixtures	10.700.00
Lawful reserve with Federal Reserve Bank	17,200.17
Cash in vault and amount due from national banks	59.140.13
Checks on other banks in the same city as reporting bank	4,141.99
Checks on banks located outside of city or town of reporting bank and Miscellaneous cash items	17.04
Redemption fund with U. S. Treasurer and due from U. S. Treasurer	1,250.00
Other assets, if any	17.78
TOTAL	422,391.43

LIABILITIES

Capital stock paid in		$ 25,000.00
Surplus fund		15,000.00
Undivided profits	13,411.99
Less crurent expenses, etc	8,184.17	5,227.82
Circulating notes outstanding		24,095.00
Amount due to State Banks, bankers, and trust companies in the United States and foreign countries		110.00
Demand deposits subject to Reserve.
Individual deposits subject to check		71,517.77
Certificates of deposit due in less than 30 days		61,900.00
Time Deposits subject to Reserve.
Certificates of Deposit		219.540.84
TOTAL		422,391.43

State of Iowa
County of Hancock, ss.

I, F. A. Arnold, Cashier of the above named bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

F. A. ARNOLD, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 8 day of Jan., 1923.

J. F. W. VRBA, Notary Public.
(SEAL)

Correct—Attest:
FRED GREIMAN
PETER JOSTEN
AUGUST LAU, Director.

Cold Weather Comforts

You'll need warmer clothing from now on.
This is the time to buy your

HEAVY UNDERWEAR
HOSIERY
GLOVES and MITTENS
LEATHER VESTS
SWEATER COATS, Etc.

I have a good assortment in the best grades.
Let me fit you out in your furnishings and measure you for your next Suit.

Suits to Measure

The Men's Fashion Shop

"Where Good Clothes Are Made."
A. W. JOHNSON
GARNER IOWA

Pantorium in connection

W. F. Pavey took Mrs. Laverne Smith and Mrs. Millie Smith over to [illegible] last Friday where the [illegible] consulted a specialist. Mrs. [illegible] been well of late and [illegible] up her position at the meyer store until her health [illegible] improves.

The A. G. Lau, Jr., sale held yesterday at his farm southwest of this city attracted quite a crowd. The sale was an especially large one and considerable machinery, a high grade of catle and hogs, and some horses brought many bidders. The stuff sold at a good price.

Radios! Radios! Radios!

WESTINHOUSE— FEDERAL—
GREBE— CLAP EASTMAN—
MONROE— and —KENNEDY

—And the WESTINGHOUSE Type R. F. AERIOLA Sr. Come in and see it before buying.

—Also see the $20.00 Amplifier for the Aeriola Sr—it cannot be beat.

W. F. Pavey

"The Practical Blacksmith"

Klemme — Iowa

To Holders of War Savings Stamps

The War Savings Stamps which you bought five years ago matured on January 1st and your money will be returned to you, plus interest, according to Uncle Sam's promise.

Consider carefully what you will do with this money. Iof you wish it to continue to work for you, place it in an account at the First National Bank, buy our Certificates of Deposit, or ask us to recommend investments which will give security of principal and a regular interest return.

First National Bank

"The Bank for Everybody'.'

Start 1923 Right

The man with a growing bank account is a man with definite standing in his community. A bank connection is a valuable reference, an indication of stability, and offers unusual advantages in case of an emergency.

If you've never had a bank account, don't do without it any longer. Start the New Year by dropping into this strong state supervised bank and opening an account. You'll find every one of our departments eager to serve you.

State Savings Bank

Klemme Iowa

Periwinkle House

By Opie Read

Illustrated by
R. H. Livingstone

Copyright, The Bell Syndicate, Inc.

"No, no, you must not think like that. You take my father by the wrist and he hate you. . . . And I do so wrong to see you. I am the sinner, but I believe that the Blessed One, she ask for my forgiveness. . . . no, Virgil, we can only play together and then . . . It will live in the mind, our childhood here. . . . My father is not well all the time now, and I must be good to him. . . . Only I must see you, sometimes. That is the only wrong I do him.

"For I—I love you. . . . I did not want to tell you, but I cannot keep it all the time down in my heart. . . . I dream of you all of the night, and I kneel down and pray that you always love me. . . . There, I have told you so much. And I kiss you, too. . . . Now—you may stay for a little time, and then you must go."

Boy and girl they played, not from the book but from love's ever-varying text. In his canoe they paddled afar off where the lily-pads paved the surface of the pond. They landed on a knoll where was spread over persimmon saplings an arbor of muscadine; here an adventurous catbird had her nest of young. She cried and fluttered about in great alarm, but when she saw that they were not her enemies, that they caught grasshoppers to feed her brood, she sat high among the vines, calling her mate, the musician, and here he came, scared at first, but when she had explained to him he sang his medley, ending with the catcall whence comes his unpoetic name.

The sun had been speeding, and went behind a cloud. Fear seized Nadine, and taking Virgil's hand, she urged him toward the boat.

"My dear one, we must go now. The sun was jealous that we so happy and will go into the dark to pout. . . . I will show you the near way for you to come again, the way I came when there was the fire. You can leave the canoe in the rushes and you will need it only to cross over to the cane. But we must hurry now."

In the rushes opposite the island he hid his canoe, and then she conducted him along a narrow and sometimes treacherous trail. Coming to the footlog, she halted.

"I must leave you here. But I stand for two minutes. The sun he will wink a few more times. . . . I am so glad now to know that I will be your wife. And I am strong and can work."

"Lord bless you, but you won't have to work."

His arms were about her, her cheek against his, and with happiness the world was glowing.

"Till Thursday!" he cried as he dipped his paddle.

"Till Thursday!" she echoed as she watched him go.

"Till Thursday!" muttered the sinister voice of old Stepho, who had approached softly through the undergrowth at the sound of voices, and had overheard their parting. But when he came to Periwinkle house, he gave no sign to Nadine that he had overheard—only talked of Monsieur Boyce and the fine dresses he would buy for her when she was his wife.

It was long past noon when Drace reached the river.

The General had gone over into another parish to attend a stock sale. Tycie said; and when she had looked at Drace more closely, at his torn clothes, his muddy shoes, she sighed and sat down beside him where on the rustic bench he had dropped to rest before going to his room.

"Virgil," she said, "there is something troubling you. Now, you needn't tell me that it is business. I know what business is. I know all of its tricks; but I also know love and all of its tricks. Virgil, you are in love. Let me hope that it is not that Nina Spence. She isn't worthy of you; and besides, she doesn't belong to us. She is not of our world. Virgil, I am so sorry."

She put her hand on his arm, and he took it and affectionately kissed it.

"Aunt Tycie, I never saw the girl you speak of. I am in the—the throes, you might say, and have been—was before I got here, but not with her."

"But is it with anyone I know?"

"You have seen her, I have heard."

"Oh, you must tell me. It shall be sacred with me. If you only knew how people tell me their affairs of the heart. Even old Colonel Josh has told me. Now, why won't you?"

"I shall tell you, but I must put you on your honor. I said that you have seen her. You have; you spoke of her. Nadine—"

"Oh, Virgil! But her father!"

"Yes, I know. But let me tell you my story.

He told of his love, not of his father's death—told her nothing of his oath; she listened enraptured; and when he had finished, she mothered him with her arms about his neck.

. . . . . .

About ten o'clock next day, while the family sat in the shade, up to the gate drew a resplendent carriage, drawn by two black horses and driven by a negro in livery. Out stepped a man as tall as Lincoln and wearing a hat as high as his. His raiment flashed like the varnish of his equipage. Drace recognized him as he came through the gate, taking off his gloves, and the General cried out:

"Tycie, I wish I may die dead if it isn't Liberty Shottle!"

"Colonel Shottle, at your service," replied Liberty, bowing and gesturing with his gloves in his hand.

"Well, Liberty!" cried his aunt, giving him a hug of welcome.

The General and Drace grasped him, stroked his velvety raiment, urging him to a seat.

"Why all this, Colonel Shottle?"—from the General. "You don't mean to tell me that you have sold your jute-stock?"

"Uncle Howard, sir, first issue orders to have my carriage stored, my horses stabled and my driver quartered, please."

The order was issued, and they sat waiting for Shottle to explain his transformation.

"A simple story," he began, stretching out his legs. "But do not forestall me. Poker, dice, roulette, faro, hazard—all of them failed."

"And this comes of legitimate investment!" Tycie cried. "I knew it would. Oh, I knew it just had to come. Now tell us about it.

"It was an investment, Aunt Tycie. But let me not forestall myself. I left here on a boat, got broke. Finally I reached Tampa, Florida."

"Away down there, Liberty?"—from Tycie.

"Patience, my dear aunt. Tampa, and broke! After a day of hope with its throat cut from ear to ear, I got on a boat bound for Havana. The Spanish captain gave me passage for service. He was studying English, and I agreed to explain to him certain niceties of our mother tongue, you understand; and I am sure that, reaching port, he knew more about gambling terms than he could have picked up in a year of close study in one of our ordinary schools. He was appreciative, gererous, and gave me a bonus of five dollars. I went to a hotel, not of the first class, and it was there that I made my investment. The weather was warm and—"

"For gracious sake, Liberty, tell us!" his aunt urged him.

"That is my aim, but let us not be impetuous. . . . I was eating a Spanish stew out on the sidewalk, the weather being warm, when along came an agent—not a man in distress, but a regular agent—and I invested with him. I bought a ticket in the Havana lottery. . . . Wait, now. Nothing ever happens until it does, you know. The drawing came off two days later, and my number, 356,792, won the first prize, twenty thousand in gold."

Tycie hugged him; Drace shook his hand; and the General exclaimed his astonishment.

"Well, that beats anything I ever heard in my life. It doesn't seem possible, sir."

"No, and I was somewhat taken by surprise, Uncle Howard. But there is often success in a change of occupation, and I had tried everything else. It took me a few moments to adjust myself; then I got a draft, and in Mobile received premium enough on my gold certificate to pay my debts. And now it gives me great pleasure to perform that duty. I owe you, Uncle Howard, twelve hundred and thirty dollars, all told. Aunt Tycie, I owe you five hundred. Virgil, I owe you—but we'll get at that later. Worthy and patient creditors, here we are!"

He took out a roll of bank notes, counted the amount of his indebtedness to his aunt and showered her lap with greenbacks. Then he turned to the General.

"No, Liberty, I don't want the money," protested Bethpage. "If you pay me, it will be the first time you ever returned borrowed money to me, and I don't care to have you establish a precedent that might bring disappointment in the future."

After the family bedtime, Shottle came into Drace's room and requested him to report as to what progress he had made; and Drace told him all that had occurred.

"And now let me tell you a notion of mine," said Shottle then. "If you are waiting for that old sharkbone to decay, you'll perhaps wait twenty years. Attention: I'm going on a little trip tomorrow. In two days, when I come back, I'll drive down to a convenient point; you fetch the girl, into the carriage you jump, and away we go, drive over to some place where we can catch a train, and Cincinnati before old Stepho knows which way we've gone. What do you say?"

"But—what becomes of my oath? Oh, don't think that because I daily I have forgotten it or that in one jot I shall fail to keep it. If I should, in all after-life I'd have a contempt for myself."

CHAPTER XI

"Till Thursday!" Drace had cried. Nadine had echoed it, and another voice, hidden in the cane, had muttered the words with how different a meaning! Now Thursday was come again; and Virgil Drace infirm of purpose, again made his way down the river and through the swamp to his tryst with Nadine.

But Death sought to make a third at that tryst. From afar the sentineled Tony had seen Drace coming.

And Hardly Had the Northerner's Canoe Touched the Bank When From Out the Canoe Tony and Stepho Leaped Upon Him.

And hardly had the Northerner's canoe touched the bank when from out the cane Tony and Stepho leaped upon him and bore him to the ground, dazed by a blow from an oar.

"Ha! My fine carpethagger! You seize my wrist and keep my knife from the old General! You steal here to make love to my daughter! Ha! Who will now keep my knife from you? In a little while, now, you will be deep in the marsh, and the green mold will be on your bones. And the old fool at the big house, he die too, for my men will cut his throat. And then—"

A piercing cry from the house, and Nadine ran to them, a knife that mated Stepho's dirk clutched in her hand.

"No—no!" she cried. "You shall not."

Stepho looked up. "Take the girl away, Tony," he commanded.

But Nadine threatened him off with her knife. Then she turned the blade in another direction and spoke again. "If you do not let Virgil go," she said, "I will kill myself—now."

Stepho knew Nadine—the wild heart of her. "You promise never to see this man again, and to marry Monsieur Boyce, like I wish?"

"I promise nothing—except that I will kill myself if you do not let him go."

Stepho hesitated a moment, craft fighting with anger. Then craft won; he or Tony would stroll up to the Bethpage plantation and make an end of the General and Drace that night.

"All right," he snarled. "He can go. But let him never come back here or—" He drew the back of his dirk across his own throat in a significant gesture. Then with Tony he lifted Drace into his canoe; and the young man, still dazed from the blow, feebly made his way out of the swamp.

When he had passed from sight, Nadine dropped her knife and sank to the ground sobbing. Old Stepho turned savagely upon her.

"You liar! You she-wolf! I would kill you, but I promise you to the man Boyce. An' now there come something that I tell you. In you there is not the blood of Stepho la Vitte. But you never shall know your name. You she-wolf!"

He thrust himself toward her, his fangs gleaming in his merciless mouth, but without flinching she now laughed in his face.

"Oh, you make me so thankful that I am not your child. You hang his father and would murder him! But he will be gone; and if you kill me, it makes no matter. And you think I will stay here and let the man come to marry me! I will—"

He seized her, and Tony ran in to help. She fought with the dirk, but they wrenched it from her hand, held her helpless, dragged her into her room; and she lay for a time on the floor while she heard them fastening her in her prison. It was now dark. She got up, went to the window and found that heavy bars had been nailed across it. She lighted her lamp and with a pencil began to write a note to Drace, praying in her heart that she might find some way to send it to him. Little she slept and in the dawn she was at the window, the vines all of them gone. She heard footsteps near, and she tried to look out to discover who it might be, but she could gaze neither to the right nor the left, so closely was she mewed. She spoke, softly, louder and then there drew the darkened form of a man, Batoche, an old frog-hunter whom once before she had employed.

"I am here to borrow the mushkrat-spear for the one day; for mine he was broke; but they are still asleep."

"Come closer, good Batoche, and listen to me. Take this note to Monsieur Drace, at General Bethpage's house—quick, with no one to see you, and I will give you a diamond when you come back."

"Give me the note, an' I be there soon."

She gave him the note, and he hastened away. She stood at the door, wondering why she had not heard her father stirring about. Once she thought she heard him call Tony. After a long time Tony came, and she heard them together as they went out. Then all was silent.

Sick in mind and body, Drace ma[illegible] his way back to Bethpage. He ma[illegible] himself as presentable as possible b[illegible] fore he entered the house; fortunate[illegible] too, the attention of Tycie and th[illegible] General was at that moment centere[illegible] on Colonel Josh, who had stopped o[illegible] to pay them a call—and who showe[illegible] astonishment when asked to walk o[illegible] to dinner, though he yielded with a[illegible] tonishing alacrity to the pressure [illegible] the General's hand upon his arm. H[illegible] was busy with a helping of late ma[illegible] tard greens and hog's jowl, when Tyc[illegible] inquired:

"And how is dear Lucy?"

"Madam," said Josh, "I am grieve[illegible] to impart to you a distressful piece o[illegible] news. She is soon to be married to [illegible] man named Spivan."

"Oh, I'm so sorry, Colonel Josh."

"Madam, it is a calamity. Luh[illegible] Spivan!"

"What's the matter with him?" th[illegible] General inquired. "Isn't broke, is he[illegible]

"General, the man has money. B[illegible] do you know what his calling is? [illegible] shall enlighten you, sir. This fellow [illegible] a dealer in oysters, the—the excre[illegible] cence of the sea, you might say. A[illegible] not only that, but he deals in crawfi[illegible] as well, back-crawling crawfish, s[illegible] I offered her my heart and my hom[illegible] I told her that I would devote my li[illegible] to her, and from week to week sh[illegible] put me off. But when this fello[illegible] Spivan asked her, I understand she a[illegible] cepted him at a jump, sir. And no[illegible] I advise him to keep out of my way[illegible]

"Oysters and crawfish, eh?" said th[illegible] General, winking at Drace.

"Those were my words, General[illegible] not only oysters but crawfish. I wou[illegible] not have believed it if she had not a[illegible] sured me with her own lips, lips tha[illegible] will please pardon my nearness t[illegible] profanity."

Tycie's sympathy went out to o[illegible] Josh, haloed him; and with her eye[illegible] she begged the General to drop th[illegible] subject, but it was sweeter to hi[illegible] than any sugar ever grained in h[illegible] mill.

After dinner they were in the pa[illegible] lor when they saw a vagabond equip[illegible] age stop at the gate, an old carry-a[illegible] drawn by a staggering horse, drive[illegible] by a ragged negro. There was on[illegible] passenger in the habiliments of [illegible] scarecrow, topped off with a yello[illegible] cotton hat—enough to disguise an[illegible] man on earth save one, and this ma[illegible] was the exception.

"Tycie, what did I tell you!" crie[illegible] the General. "I knew it as well as [illegible] knew my name. Now look at him!"

They looked at him, went out int[illegible] the hall to meet him, Tycie in co[illegible] venient tears. The visitor kissed h[illegible] and shook hands with the men.

"It is not necessary for me to a[illegible] sert that I hold no commission, civ[illegible] or military," said the vagrant.

"Sit down, sir," commanded the Ge[illegible] eral. And then, surveying him slowl[illegible] from head to foot: "Will you pleas[illegible] state as to whether or not you regar[illegible] yourself a human being?"

"General," said Tycie, "please don[illegible] scold him, for I'm sure he must b[illegible] hungry."

"My dear, I shall not scold him; bu[illegible] I don't see anything about him tha[illegible] calls for congratulations."

"Liberty," said Virgil, "tomorro[illegible] we'll go over and have the parish sur[illegible] veyor run you off a suit of clothes."

"My dear relatives, I thank you for [illegible] these little attentions; and as to your [illegible] question, Uncle Howard, let me say, [illegible] sir, that my claims as to being a hu[illegible] man are somewhat vague. One of the [illegible] first things I discovered about myself [illegible] was my unreality. When do we eat?"

Tycie ran out and returned with a [illegible] piece of frosted cake that looked like [illegible] a corner broken off a marble mantle[illegible] piece. The General was laughing.

"Well, Liberty, we are always glad [illegible] to see you, anyway. It is the unreal[illegible] ity, if I may so speak, that spices our [illegible] lives; and when you come with your [illegible] gilded worries, you enliven us. Where [illegible] have you been, anyhow?"

"I've been wherever there is," said [illegible] Shottle, gesturing with his cake. [illegible] "First I went to Memphis, to the [illegible] races, and gave old Skinny Hughes [illegible] two hundred for a sure card on the [illegible] entries. Lost ten thousand. Then I [illegible] followed the horses to Lexington, with [illegible] my bank account leaking like a sprin[illegible] kling cart. But why linger when noth[illegible] ing can be swifter than the approach [illegible] of poverty? Finally I sold my clothes [illegible] to a negro preacher and invested my [illegible] all in lottery tickets. It seemed that [illegible] I possessed myself of all the figures of [illegible] the multiplication table, didn't see how [illegible] I could possibly miss, but I did. It [illegible] wasn't laid out for me to win again. [illegible] He gets to a certain pinnacle of for[illegible] tune, slips off, and spends the rest of [illegible] his life struggling to get back. When [illegible] do we eat?"

. . . . . .

Long after bedtime Shottle came to Virgil's room.

"Virgil, you know I've got to hit on something of a permanent nature. So the question is, now that I've quit gambling, what am I going to do? If you'll not go to sleep, I'll tell you of a plan. Mark me: I have observed, along with thousands of others, that nothing digs deeper after rainy-day money than a circus and menagerie. It is known that the poor man of the South, and especially the negro, will sell his cookstove to buy a circus ticket. Now comes my plan, and mind you, I strive to keep it from being too sudden. Attention! You buy a circus and I'll go along as ring-master. That is the one thing I am really fitted for. You never saw me crack a whip, did you?"

"Don't believe I ever did."

"All right, you've got something to look forward to. . . . Yes, I'll be the ring-master, and—"

DESERT GOLD by Zane Grey

Author of Riders of the Purple Sage, Wildfire, Etc.

Copyright by Harper & Brothers.

GALE RUSHES ROJAS, THE BANDIT

Wheeling, Gale rushed at Rojas. It was his old line-breaking plunge. Neither Rojas nor his men had time to move. The black-skinned bandit's face turned a dirty white; his jaw dropped; he would have shrieked if Gale had not hit him. The blow swept him backward against his men. Then Gale's heavy body, swiftly following with the momentum of that rush, struck the little group of rebels. They went down with the table and chairs in a sliding crash.

Gale, carried by his plunge, went with them. Like a cat he landed on top. As he rose his powerful hands fastened on Rojas. He jerked the little bandit off the tangled pile of struggling, yelling men, and, swinging him with terrific force, let go his hold. Rojas slid along the floor, knocking over tables and chairs. Gale bounded back, dragged Rojas up, handling him as if he were a limp sack.

A shot rang out above the yells, Gale heard the jingle of breaking glass. The room darkened perceptibly. He flashed a glance backward. The two cowboys were between him and the crowd of frantic rebels. With a cry Gale slung the bleeding Rojas from him. The bandit struck a table, toppled over it, fell, and lay prone.

Another figure closed in on Gale. This one was dark, swift. A blade glinted—described a circle aloft. Simultaneously with a close, red flash the knife wavered; the man wielding it stumbled backward. The din became a roar. Gale heard shots that sounded like dull spats in the distance. The big lamp behind the bar seemingly split, then sputtered and went out, leaving the room in darkness.

That's how Dick Gale, American, rushes Rojas, the Mexican bandit, in "No Man's Land," just over the border. He is doing it to give Lieut. George Thorne, American cavalryman, a chance to get his Spanish sweetheart, Mercedes Castaneda, out of the bandit's clutches. It's a pretty tale, this romance of George and Mercedes. And still more romantic is the love story of Dick and Nell Burton. For Dick, to save Mercedes for Thorne, casts his lot with the two American cowboys who shot out the lights and goes into a new world of adventure in which he finds hardship, romance, desperate endeavor, fighting, love and gold.

The author? Why, no less a writer than Zane Grey, author of "The Heritage of the Desert," "Riders of the Purple Sage" and more than a dozen other first-class tales of the West. Of pioneer stock, with a college education and wide athletic and outdoor experience, his literary work since 1904 has made him probably the most widely-read author of western stories of adventure.

PROLOGUE

—1—

A face haunted Cameron—a woman's face. It was there in the white heart of the dying campfire; it hung in the shadows that hovered over the flickering light; it drifted in the darkness beyond.

This hour, when the day had closed and the lonely desert night set in with its dead silence, was one in which Cameron's mind was thronged with memories of a time long past—of a home back in Peoria, of a woman he had wronged and lost, and loved too late. He was a prospector for gold, a hunter of solitude, a lover of the dread, rock-ribbed infinitude, because he wanted to be alone to remember.

Then a sharp clink of metal on stone and soft pads of hoofs in sand prompted Cameron to reach for his gun, and to move out of the light of the waning campfire.

Figures darker than the gloom approached and took shape, and in the light turned out to be those of a white man and a heavily packed burro.

"Hello there," the man called, as he came to a halt and gazed about him. "I saw your fire. May I make camp here?"

Cameron came forth out of the shadow and greeted his visitor, whom he took for a prospector like himself. Cameron resented the breaking of his lonely campfire vigil, but he respected the law of the desert.

The stranger thanked him, and then slipped the pack from his burro. Then he rolled out his pack and began preparations for a meal. The campfire burst into a bright blaze, and by its light Cameron saw a man whose gray hair somehow did not seem to make him old, and whose stooped shoulders did not detract from an impression of rugged strength.

Another of those strange desert prospectors in whom there was some relentless driving power besides the lust for gold! Cameron felt that between this man and himself there was a subtle affinity, vague and undefined, perhaps born of the divination that here was a desert wanderer like himself, perhaps born of a deeper, an unintelligible relation having its roots back in the past. A long-forgotten sensation stirred in Cameron's breast, one so long forgotten that he could not recognize it. But it was akin to pain.

II

When he awakened he found, to his surprise, that his companion had departed. A trail in the sand led off to the north. There was no water in that direction. Cameron shrugged his shoulders; it was not his affair; he had his own problems. And straightway he forgot his strange visitor.

Cameron began his day, grateful for the solitude that was now unbroken, for the canon-furrowed, cactus-spired scene that now showed no sign of life. While it was yet light, and he was digging in a moist white-bordered wash for water, he was brought sharply up by hearing the crack of hard hoofs on stone. There down the canon came a man on a burro. Cameron recognized them.

"Hello, friend," called the man, halting. "Our trails crossed again—that's good."

"Hello," replied Cameron slowly. "Any mineral sign today?"

"No."

They made camp together, ate their frugal meal, smoked a pipe, and rolled in their blankets without exchanging many words. In the morning the same reticence, the same aloofness characterized the manner of both. But Cameron's companion, when he had packed his burro and was ready to start, faced about and said: "We might stay together, if it's all right with you."

"I never take a partner," replied Cameron.

"You're alone; I'm alone," said the other mildly. "It's a big place. If we find gold there'll be enough for two."

"I don't go down into the desert for gold alone," rejoined Cameron.

His companion's deep-set, luminous eyes emitted a singular flash. It moved Cameron to say that in the years of his wandering he had met no man who could endure equally with him the blasting heat, the blinding dust storms, the wilderness of sand and rock and lava and cactus, the terrible silence and desolation of the desert. "I may strike through the Sonora desert. I may head for Pinacate or north for the Colorado basin. You are an old man."

"Hello, Friend," Called the Man, Halting. "Our Trails Crossed Again—That's Good."

"I don't know the country, but to me one place is the same as another," replied his companion. Then with gentle slaps he drove his burro in behind Cameron. "Yes, I'm old. I'm lonely, too. It's come to me just lately. But, friend, I can still travel, and for a few days my company won't hurt you."

"Have it your way," said Cameron.

They began a slow march down into the desert. At sunset they camped under the lee of a low mesa. Cameron was glad his comrade had the Indian habit of silence. Another day's travel found the prospectors deep in the wilderness. Then there came a breaking of reserve, noticeable in the elder man, almost imperceptibly gradual in Cameron. And so, as Cameron began to respond to the influence of a desert less lonely than habitual, he began to take keener note of his comrade, and found him different from any other he had ever encountered in the wilderness. This man never grumbled at the heat, the glare, the driving sand, the sour water, the scant fare. He was tireless, patient, brooding.

Cameron's awakened interest brought home to him the realization that for years he had shunned companionship. In those years only three men had wandered into the desert with him, and these had left their bones to bleach in the shifting sands. Cameron had not cared to know their secrets. But the more he studied this latest comrade the more he began to suspect that he might have missed something in the others. In his own driving passion to take his secret into the limitless abode of silence and desolation, where he could be alone with it, he had forgotten that life dealt shocks to other men. Somehow this silent comrade reminded him.

One afternoon late, after they had toiled up a white, winding wash of sand and gravel, they came upon a dry waterhole. Cameron dug deep into the sand, but without avail. He was turning to retrace weary steps back to the last water when his comrade asked him to wait. Cameron watched him search in his pack and bring forth what appeared to be a small, forked branch of a peach tree. He grasped the prongs of the fork and held them before him with the end standing straight out, and then he began to walk along the stream bed. Cameron, at first amused, then amazed, then pitying, and at last curious, kept pace with the prospector. He saw a strong tension of his comrade's wrists, as if he was holding hard against a considerable force. The end of the peach branch began to quiver and turn, kept turning, and at length pointed to the ground.

"Dig here," said the prospector.

"What!" ejaculated Cameron. Had the man lost his mind?

Then Cameron stood by while his comrade dug in the sand. Three feet he dug—four—five, and the sand grew dark, then moist. At six feet water began to seep through.

"Get the little basket in my pack," he said.

Cameron complied, and saw his comrade drop the basket into the deep hole, where it kept the sides from caving in and allowed the water to seep through. While Cameron watched, the basket filled. Of all the strange incidents of his desert career this was the strangest. Curiously he picked up the peach branch and held it as he had seen it held. The thing, however, was dead in his hands.

"I see you haven't got it," remarked his comrade. "Few men have. Back in Illinois an old German used to do that to locate wells. He showed me I had the same power. I can't explain. The old German I spoke of made money traveling round with his peach fork."

"What a gift for a man in the desert!"

Cameron's comrade smiled—the second time in all those days.

They entered a region where mineral abounded, and their march became slower. Generally they took the course of a wash, one on each side, and let the burros travel leisurely along nipping at the bleached blades of scant grass, or at sage or cactus, while they searched in the canons and under the ledges for signs of gold.

Each succeeding day and night Cameron felt himself more and more drawn to this strange man. He found that after hours of burning toil he had insensibly grown nearer to his comrade. He reflected that after a few weeks in the desert he had always become a different man. In civilization, in the rough mining camps, he had been a prey to unrest and gloom. But once down on the great billowing sweep of this lonely world, he could look into his unquiet soul without bitterness. So now he did not marvel at a slow stir stealing warmer along his veins, and at the premonition that perhaps he and this man, alone on the desert, driven there by life's mysterious and remorseless motive, were to see each other through God's eyes.

One night they were encamped at the head of a canon. The day had been exceedingly hot, and long after sundown the radiations of heat from the rocks persisted. Cameron watched his comrade, and yielded to interest he had not heretofore voiced.

"Pardner, what drives you into the desert? Do you come to forget?"

"Yes."

"Ah!" softly exclaimed Cameron. Always he seemed to have known that. He said no more, but grew acutely conscious of the pang in his own breast, of the fire in his heart, the strife and torment of his passion-driven soul. He had come into the desert to remember a woman. She appeared to him then as she had looked when first she entered his life—a golden-haired girl, blue-eyed, white-skinned, red-lipped, tall and slender and beautiful. He had never forgotten, and an old, sickening remorse knocked at his heart. He rose and climbed out of the canon and to the top of the mesa, where he paced to and fro and looked down into the weird and mystic shadows, like the darkness of his passion, and farther on down the moon track and the glittering stretches that vanished in the cold blue horizon. In that endless, silent hall of desert there was a spirit; and Cameron felt hovering near him what he imagined to be phantoms of peace.

He returned to camp and sought his comrade.

"I reckon we're two of a kind," he said. "It was a woman who drove me into the desert. But I come to remember. The desert's the only place I can do that."

"Was she your wife?" asked the elder man.

"No."

A long silence ensued. The campfire wore down to a ruddy ashen heap.

"I had a daughter," said Cameron's comrade. "She lost her mother at birth. And I—I didn't know how to bring up a girl. She was pretty and gay. It was the—the old story."

His words were peculiarly significant to Cameron. They distressed him. He had been wrapped up in his remorse. If ever in the past he had thought of anyone connected with the girl he had wronged, he had long forgotten. But the consequences of such wrong were far-reaching. They struck at the roots of a home.

"Well, tell me more?" asked Cameron earnestly.

"It was the old, old story. My girl was pretty and free. The young bucks ran after her. I guess she did not run away from them. And I was away a good deal—working in another town. She was in love with a wild fellow. I knew nothing of it till too late. He was engaged to marry her. But he didn't come back. And when the disgrace became plain to all, my girl left home. She went west. After a while I heard from her. She was well—working—living for her baby. A long time passed. I had no ties. I drifted west. Her lover had also gone west. In those days everybody went west. I trailed him, intending to kill him. But I lost his trail. Neither could I find any trace of her. She moved on, driven, no doubt, by the hound of her past. Since that I have taken to the wilds, hunting gold on the desert."

"Yes, it's the old, old story, only sadder, I think," said Cameron; and his voice was strained and unnatural. "Pardner, what Illinois town was it you hailed from?"

"Peoria."

"And your—your name?" went on Cameron, huskily.

"Warren—Jonas Warren."

That name might as well have been a bullet. Cameron stood erect, motionless, as men sometimes stand momentarily when shot straight through the heart. In an instant, when thoughts resurged like blinding flashes of lightning through his mind, he was a swaying, quivering, terror-stricken man. He mumbled something hoarsely and backed into the shadow. But he need not have feared discovery, however surely his agitation might have betrayed him. Warren sat brooding over the campfire, oblivious of his comrade, absorbed in the past.

Cameron swiftly walked away in the gloom, with the blood thrumming thick in his ears, whispering over and over:

"Merciful G—d! Nell was his daughter!"

III

As thought and feeling multiplied, Cameron was overwhelmed. Beyond belief, indeed, was it that out of the millions of men in the world two who had never seen each other could have been driven into the desert by memory of the same woman. It brought the past so close. It showed Cameron how inevitably all his spiritual life was governed by what had happened long ago. That which made life significant to him was a wandering in silent places where no eye could see him with his secret. Some fateful chance had thrown him with the father of the girl he had wrecked. It was incomprehensible; it was terrible. It was the one thing of all possible happenings in the world of chance that both father and lover would have found unendurable.

Something within him cried out to him to reveal his identity. Warren would kill him; but it was not fear of death that put Cameron on the rack. He had faced death too often to be afraid. It was the thought of adding torture to this long-suffering man. All at once Cameron swore that he would not augment Warren's trouble, or let him stain his hands with blood. He would tell the truth of Nell's sad story and his own, and make what amends he could.

Then Cameron's thought shifted from father to daughter. She was somewhere beyond the dim horizon line. In those past lonely hours by the campfire his fancy had tortured him with pictures of Nell. But his remorseful and cruel fancy had lied to him. Nell had struggled upward out of menacing depths. She had reconstructed a broken life. And now she was fighting for the name and happiness of her child. Little Nell! Cameron experienced a shuddering ripple in all his being—the physical rack of an emotion born of a new and strange consciousness. He felt that it had been given him to help Warren with his burden.

He returned to camp trying to evolve a plan. All night he lay awake thinking.

In the morning, when Warren brought the burros to camp and began preparations for the usual packing, Cameron broke silence.

"Pardner, your story last night made me think. I want to tell you something about myself. In my younger days—it seems long now, yet it's not so many years—I was wild. I wronged the sweetest and loveliest girl I ever knew. I went away not dreaming that any disgrace might come to her. Along about that time I fell into terrible moods—I changed—I learned I really loved her. Then came a letter I should have gotten months before. It told of her trouble—importuned me to hurry to save her. Half frantic with shame and fear, I got a marriage certificate and rushed back to her town.

"Warren — Hold On! Give Me — a Minute—I Married Nell—Didn't You Know That?"

She was gone—had been gone for weeks, and her disgrace was known. Friends warned me to keep out of reach of her father. I trailed her—found her. I married her. But too late! . . . She would not live with me. She left me—I followed her west, but never found her."

Warren leaned forward a little and looked into Cameron's eyes, as if searching there for the repentance that might make him less deserving of a man's scorn.

Cameron met the gaze unflinchingly, and again began to speak:

"You know, of course, how men out here sometimes lose old names, old identities. It won't surprise you much to learn my name isn't really Cameron, as I once told you."

Warren stiffened upright. It seemed that there might have been a blank, a suspension, between his grave interest and some strange mood to come.

Cameron felt his heart bulge and contract in his breast; all his body grew cold; and it took tremendous effort for him to make his lips form words.

"Warren, I'm the man you're hunting. I'm Burton. I was Nell's lover!"

The old man rose and towered over Cameron, and then plunged down upon him, and clutched his throat with terrible, stifling hands. The harsh contact, the pain awakened Cameron to his peril before it was too late. Desperate fighting saved him from being hurled to the ground and stamped and crushed. Warren seemed a maddened giant. There was a reeling, swaying, wrestling struggle before the elder man began to weaken. Then Cameron, buffeted, bloody, half-stunned, panted for speech.

"Warren—hold on! Give me—a minute. I married Nell. Didn't you know that? . . . I saved the child!"

Cameron felt the shock that vibrated through Warren. He repeated the words again and again. As if compelled by some resistless power, Warren released Cameron, and, staggering back, stood with uplifted, shaking hands. In his face was a horrible darkness.

"Warren! Wait—listen!" panted Cameron. "I've got that marriage certificate—I've had it by me all these years. I kept it—to prove to myself I did right."

The old man uttered a broken cry.

"And when I saw her—I went stark, staring, raving mad over her."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

TO CARE FOR MENTAL CASES

Government Is Seeking Young Physicians to Undergo Special Training for Veterans' Bureau Service.

Dr. Frank F. Hutchins, clinical director of the United States Veterans' bureau, in Washington, D. C., recently visited national headquarters of the American Legion upon request to explain the new step taken by the Veterans' bureau to provide better trained doctors and nurses in the care of neuro-psychiatric World war veterans.

Dr. Frank F. Hutchins.

The government is looking for 50 young doctors of medicine to compose an initial class for special training in the treatment of mental cases, Doctor Hutchins said.

"Neuro-psychiatry is perhaps the most difficult of all the veterans' ailments," he said. "Almost anyone knows that tuberculosis is caused by a definite germ. Almost everyone knows what kind of treatment and care should be given a tubercular patient. This mental disease, however, may be the combination of many other physical ailments. Hardly two of them are exactly alike. It is a difficult problem, and doctors handling these cases need special training. They must have all the patience in the world."

Doctor Hutchins said it is impossible to obtain the required number of specialists in nervous and mental diseases, and that it has become necessary for the government to instruct a staff of its own for this line of work.

"The policy of the bureau is to provide medical attention for the disabled veterans so that everything possible may be done to restore them to health and proper status in civilian life," he said.

A systematic and comprehensive course in neuro-psychiatry has been outlined. It consists of 176 lectures and demonstrations and some 440 hours of clinical and laboratory work.

Three courses are to be given. The first, which will last four months, is the academic. The next is a post graduate course of six weeks and the third consists of one or two conferences a year lasting three or four days, where ideas and experiences are exchanged.

The accepted candidates will receive $166 a month during the school work, and after graduation will be passed assistant surgeons in the reserve corps of the United States public health service, or eligible for employment as class "B" physicians under the United States civil service commission and assigned to duty with United States Veterans' bureau. These salaries range from $3,000 a year upward.

The first class started work January 4, and at the same time schools for graduate nurses, social service, occupational-therapeutist and physiotherapeutist work began.

BONDY GETS RED CROSS CALL

Member of Peers-Williams Post of St Louis Is Appointed Director of War Service.

Robert E. Bondy, a member of Peers-Williams post of the American Legion at St Louis, has recently been appointed to the important office of director of war service of the American Red Cross.

Robert E. Bondy.

Mr. Bondy has had a wide range of experience with the Red Cross since April, 1919, when he came to the organization from the social service bureau of the chamber of commerce of Columbus, O., where he organized one of the first large war chests of the early war days, raising $3,250,000 in that city in one drive.

He served as secretary-treasurer of the public welfare section of the Ohio conference of public welfare in 1917 and during the war was an enlisted man.

Mr. Bondy is a native of Minnesota, and received his education at Chicago university. For a time he was a reporter on the Chicago Tribune. His many duties have thrown him in contact with the work for ex-service men. This, combined with his camp experience and his training as a social service executive, peculiarly fits him for his new duties.

Representing the Red Cross, Mr. Bondy spoke at the recent national gathering of Legion state adjutants held in Indianapolis.

Chance to Profit.

Rafferty of the Old Sod, and MacPherson, a Scot, were miners together. One day Rafferty accidentally emptied his pipe on a keg of powder and when he came down it was on the installment plan. Mac's grief was genuine, but finally he dried his tears and went off to notify Mrs. Rafferty.

"Is this the Widow Rafferty?" he asked when a woman appeared at the door.

"'Tis Mrs. Rafferty I am, but no Widow Rafferty," she snapped.

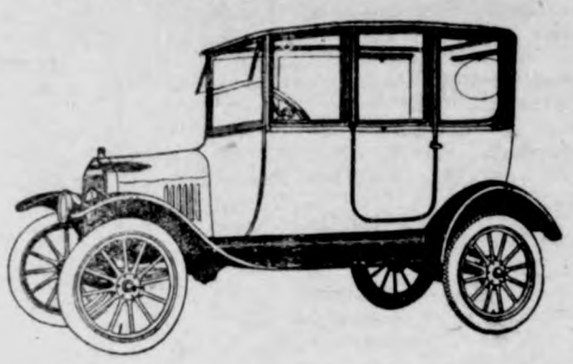
A businesslike gleam came into MacPherson's eye.

"An' how much will ye bet?" he demanded.—American Legion Weekly.

News of Klemme and Vicinity

Ford

THE UNIVERSAL CAR



SEDAN

NEW PRICE

$595

F. O. B. Detroit

At the new low price the Ford Sedan represents a greater value than has ever been offered.

It provides closed car comforts in a dependable, quality product at a minimum cost.

Your order placed now will insure reasonably prompt delivery. Terms if desired.

Greimann Motor Co.

The Ford Garage

Gildner's

Every 4th dollar

For 9 Cents

Sale

Sale Starts January 11

Thousands of dollars worth of Mens and Boys Clothing.. and Furnishings will be offered on this money saving plan. Save 91c as many times as you like.

Sale Includes--

FOR MEN—
All fall suits
All Overcoats
All sheep coats
All Mackinaws
All Sweaters
All leather Gloves
All leather Mitts
All underwear
All shirts
All hosiery
All traveling bags
All headwear
All neckwear.

FOR BOYS—
All Suits
All Overcoats
All Mackinaws
All Sweaters
All leather Mitts
All Underwear
All Shirts & Blouses
All Hosiery
All Athletic Goods
All Headwear.

FOR WOMEN—
All Hosiery.

And dozens of other items. Come Early.

Get To Know Gildner Bros.

IOWA'S LARGEST CLOTHIERS

MASON CITY, IOWA

Verl Stearns returned rom a visit at Belmond Friday.

R. A. Jorgenson and family were Garner visitors Sunday.

The Times Print Shop is the best place to get your sale bills printed.

Mrs. Tom Nelson, Sr., was visiting with Rev. and Mrs. Howdeshell at Vincent, Iowa, this week.

Mrs. C. W. Wiles entertained the Camp Fire Girls last Thursday evening

Mrs. John Gruetzmacher and Mrs. P. M. Griesemer were Garner visitors Tuesday between trains.

Mrs. Grell, of Garner, was here this week helping her daughter, Mrs Emil Krause with moving.

New Ginghams just arived. See our window. G. W. Kluckhohn & Sons. adv

Miss Faye Hilts, of Ventura, was in Klemme last Thursday visitin, with Mrs. Clarence Bachman.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Metzgar were visiting at the Wm. Greimann, Jr. home several days.

Mr. Chris Jacobs of Garner, was here between trains Saturday on business.

The young married peoples club enjoyed another social dance at the Idle Hour last Thursday evening.

Mr. A. Olsen and family, of Clear Lake were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Jacobs.

Miss Adna Church spent Saturday at Garner visiting her folks. She is teaching at Avery School No. 1.

Just a little reminder—have you paid your subscription to the Times this year?

There will be several farm sales in this locality during January and February.

The Misses Ethel Wellemeyer and Mable Schaeffer went to Garner last Thursday whre they visited the schools.

Miss Jarvis, nurse from Mason City, came Tuesday evening to care for Mrs. Mille Smith. who is quite ill.

Ray Nelson drove over from Garner last night to pay his Klemme friends a visit. He also called at the Times Office for a visit.

The sale date for Emil Lau's 3rd annual pure bred hog sale is January 30th. Watch for further sale announcements later.

A regular old fashioned January thaw began here Monday, so this kneck of the woods is again enjoying fine weather.

Mrs. Goodell and niece, Bonnie Beeler. of Mason City, came last Thursday noon for a visit at the home of her sister, Mrs. Geo. Gruetzmacher.

Mr. Alfred Meyer of Cleveland. Ohio, was a visitor at the home of John Gruetzmacher and P. M. Greisemer last week. The gentleman is a cousin of Mr. Griesemer.

The ladies aid society of the M. E. Church are having their meeting this afternoon in the basement of the First National Bank. They will serve supper from 5:00 o'clock until all are served.

Miss Annabelle Carlson and Verner Nelson returned from Crown Point, Indiana, Saturday morning. They had been there during the holidays visiting with Miss Carlson's sister.

Louie Sampson's brother died at Lincoln, Nebr., recently and was buried on New Year's Day. Now Mr. Sampson of this city is the only one remaining of the family of eight children.

Miss Beatrice Busch entertained her Sunday school class, of which Miss Mable Smith is teacher, at her home last Friday evening. A social good time was had and a delicious lunch was served to the visitors. All had a fine time.

Mrs. Hake and daughter, Maurine, left Wednesday evening for Minneapolis. Mrs. Hake goes there to attend the milinery school for two weeks, but Maurine will return to Klemme Monday to resume her duties at school.

The Womens Foreign Missionary Society of the First Church met at the G. W. Kluckhohn home on last Thursday; Mrs. Sarah Turgeson being hostess. An excellent program was given and a delicious luncheon was served. All report a fine meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Newberger and family, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fritzell nd Mr. Wert Loger attended the watch party at the Garland Hoffman home Sunday evening, last week. At the beginning of the New Year an oyster stew was served.

Toile du Nords, French. and Silver Tisue Ginghams just arrived at G. W. Kluckhohn & Sons Store. adv

Come in and see the new ginghams which have just arived, many beautifull patterns to select from. G. W. Kluckhohn & Sons. adv

GINGHAMS, Ginghams, ginghams, at G. W. Kluckhohn & Sons. adv

Quite a number of Klemme's Odd Fellows, Rebeccas and their families went over to Mason City Monday night to take in the Oriental doings. This is an order of the Odd Fellows lodge. A program, banquet and a dance furnished entertainment for the visitors. All enjoyed a good time. There were about fifteen or more from here who went over.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Jorgenson were at Garner on business Saturday morning. As we were about to leave town we heard a wild commotion back of us and looking around saw someone wildly waving their arms like a dutch windmill. It was Abe Lauritzen and Howard Wiles. They had missed the train and happened to spy us so we lugged them home in our Universal.

Hunters Notice!

In view of the fact that protected game is being unlawfully shot, notice is hereby given that any or all persons hereafter tresspassing on any of the land owned, rented or farmed by the undersigned will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

Oscar Carlson,
H. J. Stille,
Wes Heifner. (J10-17-24)

Good Excuse

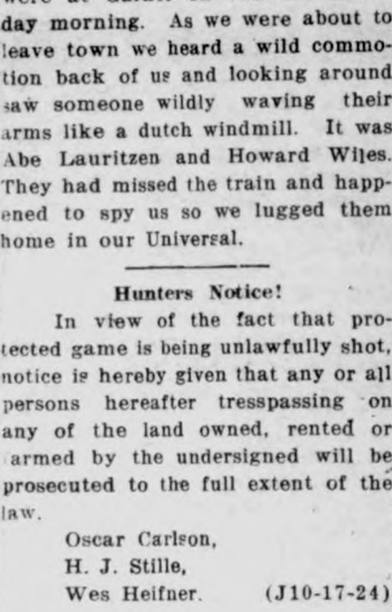
Jack and Mary had just been to the grown-ups' church for the first time. A day or two afterward they were found in the nursery whispering audibly to each other.

"What are you children doing?" their nurse asked.

"We're playing church" replied Jack.

"But you shouldn't whisper in church," admonished nurse.

"Oh, we're the choir," said Mary.



A Royal Tribute---

Those upon whom fall the duty of selecting a suitable Memorial will appreciate fully the need for such perfection as workmanship and Material.

There are three important things to be considered in purchasing a memorial--- Quality, Service and price, of which all will be found with us.

An iron-clad guarantee goes with every stone.

Erwin Monument Works

Britt, Iowa

January Investment--

At this time of the year MANY INVESTORS are considering HOW BEST to invest their money.

There is no Better or Safer place for the Investment of money than right here at home.

Iowa Falls Electric Company Common Shares

is an investment in the Needs of your own Community.

Your money is invested in Property that serves you and your Neighbors.

27 Dividends Have Been Paid

The SHARES are $100.00 each and may be purchased on the Partial Payment Plan by Monthly Payments of $5.00 Each.

We would like to tell you more about this SAFE INVESTMENT with the DEPENDABLE INCOME, and will be glad to send you a descriptive circular.

SECURITIES DEPARTMENT

Iowa Falls Electric Co.

IOWA FALLS, IOWA. IOWA FALLS, IOWA.

STILLE'S IMPLEMENT NEWS

VOLUME 1. Thursday, January 10, 1923. NUMBER 1

Next Spring may be just like last Spring—heavy rains— discouraging weather— that never-get-anywhere feeling that crept over you when you saw how hopeless it looked. When bad weather makes the plowing, tilling, seeding and planting seasons overlap, there's only one insurance against loss in getting your crops in too late—more power. A McCormick-Deering Tractor will supply that power with a limitless fund of reserve energy packed under the hood. You can work it all day and all night if necessary. Its four powerful cylinders never get tired, and when all your work seems to come at one time, the McCormick-Deering 10-20 or 15-30 will lighten the task, help get your crops in on schedule. and insure you a profit at harvest time. Better find out more about the new McCormick-Deering the next time you're in town.

We haven't been preaching raise of price on machinery, but will just say that if you need some new machinery for next summer and are sure you want it, you can put in your order now. It will help you this much: if the price goes up later you need not pay the [illegible] the price goes down you get the drop. You don't need to pay a cent down; just drop in and tell us what you need, we'll do the rest. It is a favor to the dealer because he can make a better estimation of how much stuff to order for the next season. And say, just by the way we have information in hand now, just a little inside "dope" that the orders will have to be in this week by the 12th. Better get protected on the price.

We sold several of those McCormick-Deering feed grinders this week again. After a man sees them work he wouldn't use anything else because the best isn't too good for the man who wants to make good.

We sell everything the hired man uses on the farm for raising crops, except profanity, and if he uses our machines he won't need that.

When you buy a corn sheller buy a good one. Just because it doesn't cost as much as a tractor, a motor truck or an engine, is no reason for not selecting it with just as great care. Look at the woodwork; is it badly cut—does it show signs of ill-seasoning and warping? Look at the shafts and pinions; are they roughly cast with no finish on the bearings? Look everything over carefully before deciding. McCormick-Deering Corn Shellers will stand the closest inspection; the wood is seasoned; the bearings are finished. They are all of large capacity and will deliver clean corn and clean cobs. McCormick-Deerings come in all sizes—hand, hand and power and cylinder shellers. Let us give you prices and other information.

Here's a tip. When you start thinking of getting a McCormick-Deering Feed Grinder, start thinking at the same time of getting an International Kerosene Engine to run with it. Practically everyone knows why the Mc-D. Feed Grinder is best, why it has such large capacity and why it lasts longer and does better work. The International Engine is made by the same company and is made to deliver that steady, dependable power required to run the McCormick - Deering grinder. They're partners. When they work together you get a higher grade of efficiency all around. You don't have to worry about a poor engine to run a good grinder, or a good engine to run a poor grinder—they're both good. When you buy one, buy the other. We sell 'em both.

THE KLEMME TIMES

Twenty-seventh Year—Number 19. Klemme, Iowa, Thursday Afternoon, January 18, 1923. $1.50 In Advance—$2.00 Outside of County

TAXPAYERS WILL HOLD MEETING FRIDAY NIGHT

SOME IMPORTANT QUESTIONS WILL BE BROUGHT UP

It Is Your Duty To Be Present At This Meeting

As announced in this paper last week, and which we again want to call your attention to, is the meeting of the taxpayers of the Independent School District of Klemme to be held in the high school room tomorrow night, Friday, January 19th.

As stated last week the people of Klemme are confronted with a most serious problem—the answer to be sought at this meeting tomorrow night. As all are now well acquaint ed with a few of the facts regarding this meeting, it wil not be necesary for us to go into details of why the meeting is called. It is onlp necessary to remind you of the date and as a taxpayer your presence is most urgently requested. Be there and have a voice in the meeting.

HANCOCK COUNTY TEACHERS' MEETING

To Hancock County Teachers:—

A county teachers' study center meeting will be held in the high school building at Britt, Saturday, January 20, 1923. Supt. F. T. Vasey, of the Mason City Public Schools and Prof. Fred Cram of the Iowa State Teachers' College, will be on the program for this meeting. Hancock County teachers are to be congratulated on having the opportunity to hear in their home county two men who are out-standing leaders in educational work.

A very successful study center meeting was held at Garner in October, more than one hundred teachers being present. I believe we have never had two more capable interesting instructors for a study center meeting than those that will be at Britt January the 20th. They will have mesages of value for both the grade and rural teachers. Let us show our professional spirit by being present at this meeting.

Convenient conveyance may be had for the teachers of the eastern part of the county by taking the morning bus to Britt and returning in the evening from Britt about 4:30 o'clock.

Program

9:30 a. m. Grade Teachers, Tests, Fred D. Cram.
Rural Teachers, Language & Grammar. F T. Vasey.

10:30 a. m. Grade Teachers, Language and Grammar, F. T. Vasey.
Rural Teachers. Tests, Fred D. Cram.

Noon

1:30 p. m. Grade Teachers, Tests, Fred D. Cram.
Rural Teachers, Language & Grammar, F. T. Vasey.

2:30 p. m. Grade Teachers, Language and Grammar, F. T Vasey.
Rural Teachers, Tests, Fred D. Cram.

J. R. BAGGS,
County Superintendent.

Did you get up at five a. m. last Saturday to see the eclipse? We did but it was too cloudy and so we went back to bed. It was to be a great event and happens only once in forty years; the moon eclipsed the bright star Venus beginning at 8 minutes to five and lasting about an hour. Keep the date in mind and forty years from now there will be another eclipse of a like nature.

For Sale—Large, healthy Rhode Island Red roosters, either comb. $1 25 to $2.50. Also some Mammoth B. turkey hens at $6.00 each. Mrs. Roscoe Wiles, Goodell Rt. 1. Phone 807. adv-pd

Hunters Notice!

In view of the fact that protected game is being unlawfully shot, notice is hereby given that any or all persons hereafter tresspassing on any of the land owned, rented or farmed by the undersigned will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

Oscar Carlson,
H. J. Stille,
Wes Heifner. (J10-17-24)

SOCIAL EVENTS

A number of friends of Miss Neota Ridder had a surprise party on her last Thursday evening at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ridder. The occasion being her fifteenth birthday anniversary. The evening was spent in playing games after which a delicious lunch was served to the happy crowd. All in attendance report a fine time.

The Royal Neighbors held their regular meeting last Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. Kirkwood. The ladies report a fine meeting and a good time. Refreshments were served.

The Ladies Aid Society of the M. E. Church held their regular meeting last Thursday afternoon in the basement rooms of the Fist National Bank building. A feature of this meeting was that the ladies served a delightful lunch to all the members of the society, as well as to the families. In all about one hundred persons were served by the ladies. Their next regular meeting will also be hld at the bank rooms on Feb 8. At that time a like lunch will also be served by the following committee of five ladies: Mrs. Gedye, Mrs. Joe Johnson, Mrs. John Johnson, and Mrs. Gram.

The Rebeccahs held their regular meeting in their lodge rooms Tuesday evening.

The W. F. M. S. of the First M. E. Church announce that on Tuesday evening, January 23rd, they will give a program anl supper to all the regular members and their families in the basement of the First Nationa' Bank The program will begin at 7:30 o'clock. An admision of 10 and 20 cents will be charged.

A basket social will be held at the Liberty No. 9 School, 5½ miles west of Klemme on January 26th. Miss Evelyn Carothers, the teacher of the school also announces that a prize will be given for the best basket.

MRS. HUNTING DIED AT DENVER

Was A Daughter of Rev. W. J. Suckow of Forest City

(Contributed)

The sad message reached Klemme relatives saying that Mrs. Ed. Hunting passed away Jan. 11.

Mrs. Hunting is the daughter of Rev. W. J. Suckow, of Forest City.

In her girlhood days Emma. with her parents and sister, often came to Klemme and vicinity to spend their vacation with relatives.

On account of failing health she with her family made their home at Denver, Colorado for a number of years. She leaves to mourn her loss her kind husband and little daughter Judith Ann, age 4 years; her father sister Ruth and many other relatives. A little son Robert preceded in death about 2 years ago.

"Like the dove of the Ark,
Thou has flown to thy rest,
From the wild sea of strife
To the home of the blest."

CLEAR LAKE PLANS TO CLOSE LINK IN NORTH IOWA PAVING

This spring will see the completion of the North Iowa Pike whose stretch of hard paving is unbroken save for the half mile of road just inside the west limits of Clear Lake. At the request of the Clear Lake council for an appriation of $3,500 to be taken from the primary road fund an agreement was signed by the county commissioners granting the petition.

The construction will begin this spring and will complete the last patch of paving needed to connect the hard surfaced road extending from Algona to Charles City.

The short stretch remaining near Wesley will be completed in the early spring as soon as weather permits.

A girl often says she could "just die dancing." One in Pennsylvania did after she had danced 22 miles.

FIELD WORK STARTS FOR 1923 SUGAR BEET SEASON

WILL WRITE LARGER ACREAGE

Agricultural Supt. Sauke And His Helpers Meet With Encouragement

Preliminary work for the writing of acreage contracts for producing sugar beets for the Belmond mill during the season of 1923 are now well under way.

Agricultural Superintendent W. A. Sauke and his field men have mad a small survey of territory close in and find a large majority of Farmers who have heretofore raised beets are very favorable to making contracts for the coming year. This week or within the next few days a full force of field men will be at work in the different territories tributary to the Belmond facoy closing conracts with farmers for the Iowa Valley Operating Company for this year. It is thought probable that the acreage conracted for his year will be about double that of last year. The contract which seems to meet with the most favor both among the growers and with the company is he "fify-fifty" contract, so called, which was tried out here last year. This form of contract it is claimed originated in Colorado and has there and in other of the western beet fields worked so satisfactorily that it receives the endorsement o representatives of growers wherever they are gathered. The Gering, Nebraska. Courier recently said of this form of contract and the favor it has met with:

"At the meeting of the Mountain States beet growers association held in Denver last Monday, the fifty-fifty plan was adoped for the coming season.

A number of North Platte Valley citizens were present in the role of interested and sympathetic obeservers, but they took no part in he decision as o the price and plan, preferring to bring back to Colorado proposal for action at home, as it was not exactly in accord with the apparent preponderant ideas of this valley, although a very fair proposal on its face for both growed and manufacturer. Those who attended the meeting and listened to the discussions during he entire day at the Albany hotel were: Harry Johnson and C. N. Wright of Scottsbluff; Phil Sheldon, county agent; L. R. Leonard, vice president of the farm bureau; Frank Thomas of Mitchell; A. B. Wood and Albert Johnson of Gering; and Fred Beltner of Bayard.

Opinions among the Colorado growers representing the variou factory districts of that state were as varied as the number of individuals, almost. The fifty-fity plan has been the avored idea of Fred Cummings, president of the growers organization, who was reelected to that position. It has been in effect this year at the Sugar City factory, operated by the National sugar company. The variance of opinions here was rather unexpected, in view of the fact that in Colorado a much less tonnage was yielded than in Nebraska. Nebraska men who were present were agreeably surprised at the general disposition toward fairness to the company. but at the same time there was an apparently determined belief that the company should come up materially in its contracts for the coming year because of the tariff conditions.

It can be seen from the above reprint that nowhere has the beet sugar companies been more ready to present a contract absolutely fai and square to grower and manufacturer alike than has the Belmond Company and although the "fifty-fifty" plan is claimed as a Colorado idea it was not as generally used there the past year as in Iowa. (adv)

GROWERS' OFFICIAL PRAISES BEET CROP

Brighton, Colo., December 9.—W. F. Hiller, leader in the local beet growers' association, appealing for a greater degree of cooperation between the sugar company and the farmrs in the formulation of a new beet contract, pays his respects to the beet crop in the following terms:

"This crop supports more men, women and children than any other crop. Think of the large population of growers, the raft of beet tenders and the families, the multitude of factory workers, and the various classes of business men who cater to the wants of all these people.

"It is the surest crop that can be raised. The hail of last summer completely wiped out such crops as tomatoes and pickles, for instance. All it did to beets—it cut down the yield a few tons to the acre. All pests which prey on beets are controllable and the careful and prompt grower will suffer no loss on that account. There is the by-product of beet tops one of the best milk feeds in existence. The late working of the soil puts the ground in good condition for the next crop. All things considered the growing of beets has advantages above those offered by any other crop."—Germa (Nebraska) Courier. (adv)

SCHOOL NOTES

Quite a number of the High School students attended the Aug. Lau sale last Wednesday.

The Political Economy Class has finished its work in the text book and is now reviewing for the semester examinations by the aid of some state teachers' examination questions.

Professor Neese announcd Friday morning that the moon would eclipse Venus on Saturday morning at eight minutes after five and the eclipse would last until nine minutes after six. He urged every high school student to get up early enough to see this wonderful sight. It occurs once in forty years. The writer of this item knows of one person who did not rise at that early hour and he imagines he can name a few others who valued a couple of hours sleep more than gazing at the heavens at 5 a. m.

Pearl Johnson. Howard Wiles and Adolph Lauritzen were welcome visitors Monday afternoon. They are attending the Garner High School his year, but we understand they were among the lucky ones to be excused from the semester examinations up there.

Last Thursday Miss McKahan gave the American History Class a list of questions given in one of the recent normal training examinations. She wanted to see if the pupils here could answer questions of this nature. The class had no preparation for the examination whatever, but they did make a fine showing—the grades averaging from 85 to 97%. This is certainly a fine average and goes to show that the students have received some real good from their work.

Practicing for the Declamatory Contest begins in earnest next week. Up to this time the contestants have been too busy with other matters to work much on their selections.

The High School was honored by a visit from George Bergmann on Tuesday morning. George is another of those who was declined the fun of taking some of the examinations at Garner. He visited in the lower room too.

This is a busy week at the Klemme High School. If you don't believe it just ask some of the Freshmen or Sophomores and even Juniors. This is the "winding-up" of the first half of the school year and of course with it comes "cramming," reviewing, and trying to get all in one nights study that pou should of gotten in four and a half months, and finally examinations. I some of you have a little higher light bill this month it will probably be because some member in your family has been doing a little studying all of a sudden. The examinations are to be held Thursday and Friday of this week. As a whole the work outlined for the first semester has been finished. The class in General Science is a little behind and the Algebra Class lacks a few days of being half through the years work It will be remembered that in the earlier part of the year the diphtheria epidemic greatly retarded the work in the first three months. The classes have made remarkable progress. The teachers feel that the first part of the pear has been made a very successful one.

Every student who has an average in a study above 90 per cent will be excusel from taking an examination in that study. The names of these pupils appeared on the bulletin board yesterday.

KLEMME CREAMERY HONORED AGAIN BY BUTTER SCORE

GIMER WINS ANOTHER MEDAL AT THE JANUARY STATE SCORING

Contest Was Held at Decorah, Iowa

Again Gimer's butter brings home the bacon with another prize medal.

At the January state scoring held at Decorah. Iowa, A. D. Gimer won the Silver Medal with his tub of butter with a score of 94. Here is the score of the winners:

Gold Medal

Otto Weger, StrawberryPoint 94 1-4

Silver Medal

A. D. Gimer, Klemme 94

Bronze Medal

W. A. Griese, Readlyn 93 3-4

The good cream from which this prize winning tub of butter was made was produced on the farms adjacent to Klemme, and from a bunch of loyal patrons of the Creamery.

The next scoring will be held in connection with the annual Short Course at Ames, beginning February 7th. For this contest Gimer is planning on obtaining some of the very best quality cream ever put into the churn in theh Klemme creamery, and naturally he looks forward to a high scoring tub of butter in return for the effort put forth.

The Creamery Board of directors has voted to buy two late model pasteurizers of larger size than they now have which will greatly assist in making a higher quality of finished product in the future.

MRS. MILLE SMITH DIED TUESDAY EVENING

Funeral Services Tomorrow After-Noon; Burial at Goodell

After a lingering illness of several months, Mrs. Mille Smith passed away at her home in Klemme Tuesday evening at seven o'clock. She had not been well for the past few months but was not confined to her bed until last week when her condition became worse and she gradually became weaker each day until death finally relieved her pains.

Funeral services will be held at the home tomorrow afternoon (Friday) at one o'clock and at the M. E. Church at 1:30. Burial will be made at the Goodell cemetery where her husband is also buried.

The obituary will be published in the Times next week.

The bereaved chillren, the aged mother and other relatives have the sympathy of the community in their sorrow.

County Treasurer John Suurballe has issued practically all of the auto license numbers for this year. The fore part of the week he had gotten up close to 2600. There are still a few stragglers now and then to keep him busy. John has been at the job since the first of December and has been busy all the time and part of the time extra help was needed.

RADIO FANS TO GET LECTURES

Demand Caused Authorities to Make Plans for Course

A series of afternoon lectures to persons interested in radios has been arranged bp the department of engineering, as part of the program to Iowans attending the short course to be given at Iowa State College from Jan. 29 to Feb. 3.

Interest in radio is known to be especially strong on the farm and for this reason these lectures have been included in the program. Four different talks will be given during the week. One will take up the general discussion of radio receiving sets, another will be given on home radio sets and others will take up specific problems of installation and operation confronting the radio owner.

THAT WILLER-PREHN MATCH

This Match Should Be Real Exciting Say Mat Fans Here

There is some excitement concerning the coming Willer-Prehn wrestling match to be held here Friday. January 26th. It looks like mat fans are going to have a real thrill when Willer of this city steps onto the mat to face Young Prehn, the fast young artist from Mason City in a finish affair.

As to the outcome of the match—well we have our own opinion and you are having the same priviledge. You will remember these men gave us a real show last July 4th when they wrestled to a draw; time being one hour and fifteen minutes—that was some scrap. We even look for a better thrill this time. Willer, the state middleweight champion is doing some heavy training for match, and Young Prehn is not asleep on the job either.

Another thing. the men are quite evenly matched; Willer weighs in at about 155 pounds, Prehn is about three pounds heavier—and he has a hankering for the title.

Notice Of Meeting

All members of the Klemme Shipping Association are requested to meet at the Idle Hour Tuesday, Jan. 23, 1923, at 2:00 P. M. This is

The man whose time is valueless never can understand how anybody else's time isn't worth the same amount.

OUR SENATOR HEADS SOME IMPORTANT COMMITTEES

Wichman On Ten Committees

Hancock County and this senatorial district has been honored by appointments given their representative in the Iowa legislature. In addition to heading the committee on elections, Senator J. E. Wichman, of Garner, holds membership on nine other committees as follows: Judiciary, Appropriations, Highways, Rail oads, Cities and Towns, Drainage, Suppression of Intemporance, Telegraph and Telephone, and Code Revision.

GOODELL NEWS ITEMS

A large crowd attended the dance at the Fred Wilkins home Friday night. All present thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

Chas. Gibbs, of Big Lake, Minnesota, was a Sunday afternoon caller at the Jay Griggs home.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Griggs were Mason City callers Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harm Vierkaut are the parents of a fine baby boy.

Miss Hill spent the week end with her parents in Clarion.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Chase were Belmond callers Wednesday.

Mrs. Tom Hamilton enjoyed a visit from her brother. Alfred Meyer, of Cleveland, Ohio, last week.

There will be a Masquerade dance here January 19th, after the basket ball game. Don't forget the date, Jan. 19th.

High School Notes

The first semester examinations are over with and everyone seems to be smiling, so guess no one flunked. Those who were exempt from all but one or two are: Freshmen: Nettie Chase, Mamie Dieger, Ethel Church; Sophomores: Thomas Quigley; Juniors: Wava Bachman, Norva Wilson, Sophronia Fuller, and Harold Savage. The only one to be exempt from all. Seniors: Dale Chase, Mae Griggs, Margaret Kearney and Carl Sandberg.

Last Thursday the Domestic Science girls served a chicken dinner to the country children. Needless to say, it was greatly appreciated.

Esther Harberts entered school Monday. She is a sophomore.

The new Civics books arrived on Monday and look very interesting.

Don't forget to see the Basket Ball Game Friday night, between Meservey and Goodell, on our home floor.

The barber is the greatest optimist. He never admits that any customer will have to wait more than five minutes.

HARDING STOPS SALE OF ARMS

America Will Refuse to Sell Arms to the European Nations.

ENDS SALE OF SURPLUS STOCK

Decision of President Is Based on Belief That American Feeling Is That Day for Armed Conflict Is Passed.

Washington, Jan. 13.—The United States government has adopted a policy of refusing to sell arms either to government or to individuals when it seems likely the weapons will be used in conflict, it was announced at the White House.

Coincidentally with this announcement, it was stated officially that this government had received information from "a diplomat of a business mind" that a certain European government was in the market for half a million rifles if the United States had a surplus stock it cared to dispose of. President Harding, it was stated, informed the State department that the proposal was not to be considered and that it should not even be brought to the attention of the War department.

The White House spokesman declined to identify the nation wishing to purchase arms beyond stating that it was none of the powers now engaged in the controversy over reparations in Europe.

The decision of President Harding, it was stated, was based on the belief that American feeling generally is that the day for armed conflict is passed. The White House spokesman recalled that more than a year ago when troops were sent into West Virginia it was discovered that many of the arms being used by the combatants there had been purchased from the government. Upon learning of this fact, it was stated the President immediately ordered the sale of surplus arms by the War department to be stopped.

While this is the attitude of the government toward the sale of arms, it was made clear that there is no law in the United States prohibiting the sale of arms by private firms.

Though the name of the country referred to by the White House spokesman was not disclosed, it is know that some weeks ago official representatives of France took up with the War department reports that half a million rifles were about to be shipped from New York destined for soviet Russia. The report stated the rifles were to be trans-shipped by Russia into Turkey, which was believed at that time to be receiving considerable quantities of supplies from the soviet government.

RAIL HEAD LAUDS UNIONISM

President Markham of the Illinois Central Addresses Meeting of 3,000 Employees at Chicago.

Chicago, Jan. 13.—Capital and labor were discussed by President C. H. Markham of the Illinois Central railroad at a meeting of 3,000 employees of the Burnside shops. Because the terms, as he expressed it, "have been so greatly abused by misuse," he did not call them "capital and labor." He talked of "Money and Men—Partners in the Transportation Business."

In his address, which was made at the invitation of the shopmen, President Markham said that he was in favor of organized labor. It was a good thing for both the partners, he said.

ALLIED SHIPS GO TO MEMEL

Great Britain and France Send War Vessels to East Prussia to Preserve Order.

London, Jan. 13.—As a result of a clash between Lithuanian raiders of the free port of Memel, East Prussia, the German police, who were aided by French League of Nations soldiers, Great Britain sent a cruiser to Memel to help preserve order. France also is to send at least one warship. Britain, France and Poland joined in a protest against the invasion.

FRENCH TO PAY THEIR WAY

Army Officers at Essen Announce France Will Make Good All Requisition Payments.

Essen, Jan. 13.—The French have reversed their policy that hotelkeepers and others whose property the engineers are requisitioning must look to the German government for payment. They announced France will make good on the payments. The French seized the raw iron industry records intact.

Six Ship Deserters Interned.

Havana, Jan. 13.—Internment orders, pending deportation to Germany, were ordered for six deserters from the crew of the German liner Holsatia and for two passengers, who tried to enter the United States secretly.

St. Mihiel to Bring Troops Home.

New York, Jan. 13.—The army transport St. Mihiel, with Capt. Woodbridge T. Oliver in command, sailed from Hoboken to bring home the last troops of the army of occupation on the Rhine.

F. R. WADLEIGH

F. R. Wadleigh, who recently succeeded Conrad E. Spens as federal fuel administrator. He will continue the duties of the office until President Harding declares the fuel emergency terminated.

GERMANY IN PROTEST

Note Given to U. S. Government at Washington.

Also Presented to French Ambassador and Belgian Charge d'Affaires at Berlin.

Washington, Jan. 12.—The German government has made formal protest against the French occupation of the Ruhr valley to the United States government. The note was made public here. It has been presented to the French ambassador and the Belgian charge d'affaires in Berlin.

"The German government," the note declared, "herewith enters a protest against the oppression applied toward Germany in contradiction with the Versailles treaty and international law. The German government does not intend to meet violence with violence nor to reply to the breach of the treaty with a withdrawal from the treaty.

"However, as long as the state of affairs contrary to the treaty exists, Germany is not in a position to make actual reparations to those powers who have brought about this state of affairs."

That a default in wood and coal deliveries for 1922 exists is not denied in the note, "but entirely apart from that," the note continues, "the Franco-Belgian action represents a breach of the treaty of Versailles in a three-fold manner:

"1. Germany's defaults in her deliveries of coal and wood would, according to the note of the reparations commission of March 21, 1922, always only justify demands for subsequent payment.

"2. The treaty of Versailles does not admit any territorial sanction. [Penalty.]

"3. The measures allowed by the treaty of Versailles against Germany can only be applied by the allied powers as a whole and not by single powers of their own accord."

U. S. RECALLS RHINE TROOPS

President Harding Orders the American Army of Occupation Home From Coblenz.

Washington, Jan. 11. — American troops on the Rhine were ordered home by President Harding.

Announcement of the action was made by Secretary of State Hughes in a brief interview with the correspondents, in which he said:

"The time has come to complete the withdrawal of the army of occupation. The President has issued orders to this effect to the secretary of war."

Approximately 1,080 men and 170 officers under command of Maj. Gen. Henry T. Allen, are affected by the order. No transports are available in France at this time.

CRISSINGER NAMED GOVERNOR

Marion (Ohio) Man to Head Federal Reserve Board—James G. McNary, Currency Comptroller.

Washington, Jan. 13.—President Harding sent to the senate the nomination of D. R. Crissinger of Marion, O., now comptroller of the currency, for governor of the federal reserve board. At the same time he nominated James G. McNary of Las Vegas, N. M., to succeed Mr. Crissinger in the comptroller's office, and Milo R. Campbell of Coldwater, Mich., as the "dirt farmer" member of the federal reserve board.

No Reply to Protest.

Washington, Jan. 13.—The United States government will make no reply to the "protest" of the German government against the occupation of the Ruhr by the French, it was stated at the White House.

Italy Calls Recruits.

Rome Jan. 13.—The minister of war has called to the colors the recruits of the second class of 1902 residing in all the countries of Europe and along the Mediterranean, excepting Russia.

FAILS TO HALT FRENCH MOVE

Washington Feels Paris Deliberately Ignored America's Good Offices.

HIGH U. S. OFFICIAL TALKS

Action in Withdrawing Yanks From Rhine Is in Nature of Protest Against the Seizure of the Ruhr, It Is Said.

Washington, Jan. 12.—It was made clear by a high official of the government that the action of the French government in seizing the Ruhr was taken not only over the protest, but against the earnest advice of the United States, which exhausted every effort to induce the French to adopt some other means of obtaining reparations.

It was strongly indicated that the French deliberately ignored the offers of the United States, spurned the advice given and determined even in advance at the Paris conference to go ahead with the seizure of the Ruhr. The American action in withdrawing the troops from the Rhine, therefore, is distinctly in the nature of an emphatic protest by the United States against the French action and cannot be construed in any other way.

While the spokesman for the administration regarded as "water once over the dam," the efforts which were made by the United States to cause some other policy to be adopted than of the Ruhr seizure, it was made plain that the United States government went almost to the uttermost limits permitted by diplomatic usage to mediate in the situation and in effect said to the French:

"We are willing to do anything we can. If you do not adopt our suggestion, tell us how we can be of use."

First efforts of the United States to bring about an agreement on reparations were met, it was learned, by the French statement that they expected an agreement to be reached at the meeting of the premiers in Paris. But the United States government was not deceived by the prospects of an agreement there, and suggested that, if the premiers did not agree, there ought to be some other way out of the dilemma than seizure of the Ruhr.

PREACHER TAKES OWN LIFE

Assistant Rector of Fashionable New York Church Found Dead in Bath Tub.

New York, Jan. 12.—Dr. Percy Gordon, assistant rector of St. Bartholomew's, one of the most fashionable churches, was found with a bullet wound in his right temple in a bath tub in his rooms at the Hotel Wolcott. The clergyman had committed suicide, Chief Medical Examiner Morris decided.

The shooting was as mysterious as the manner in which the report of Dr. Gordon's death became public.

EAST EUROPE WAR LOOMS

Lithuanian Troops, Wearing Civilian Clothing, Occupy Practically the Entire Memal District.

Riga, Jan. 12.—Lithuanian troops, wearing civilian clothing with green arm bands, occupied practically the entire Memel district, which is under League of Nations control. About 8,000 men, including many machine-gun detachments, are facing 200 French soldiers, who are reinforced by 100 members of the Memel police department.

BOYDEN TO STAY IN FRANCE

Washington Government to Use Good Offices to Aid Reparations Settlement.

Washington, Jan. 12.—Roland W. Boyden, American unofficial observer on the reparations commission, will not be called home, it is authoritatively announced here, despite agitation in congress urging his recall and withdrawal of American participation, no matter how slight, in reparations conferences.

DEPUTIES SUPPORT POINCARE

French Chamber Backs the Premier in His Attitude on Reparations Collections.

Paris, Jan. 12.—The French government's policy of seizing Essen was supported by the chamber of deputies. Premier Poincare, after his explanation of the course, received an overwhelming vote of confidence, 478 to 2.

Holland Employs German Officers.

Amsterdam, Jan. 13.—Revelations that former German and Austrian army and naval officers have been employed on technical work by the navy department have caused vehement objections to their retention.

Russian Crown Gems Called Safe.

Moscow, Jan. 13.—Russian authorities deny the story that some of the Russian crown jewels were smuggled into the United States and are now hidden in a soldier's grave. They say all the gems are safe here.

COL. J. G. STEESE

Col. James Gordon Steese, U. S. A., president of the Alaska road commission, who is now in Washington where he testified before the congressional appropriations committees concerning estimates for public works in Alaska.

U. S. MARKET REPORT

Weekly Marketgram by Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Washington.—For the week ending January 11—HAY—No. 1 timothy, $18.00 Cincinnati, $23.00 Chicago, $16.00 Minneapolis, $21.50 St. Louis; No. 1 prairie, $15.50 Minneapolis.

FEED—Bran, $24.75; middlings, $24.50; flour middlings, $27.00; rye middlings, $23.00 Minneapolis; gluten feed, $42.35 Chicago; 34 per cent linseed meal, $53.00 Minneapolis; white hominy feed, $30.00 St. Louis, $31.00 Chicago.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES—Northern Danish type cabbage, $20.00@30.00 per ton bulk in leading markets, $17.00@18.00 f. o. b. shipping points. Sacked round white potatoes, $1.25@1.45 per 100 lbs. in consuming markets, 95c@$1.00 f. o. b. shipping points; northern stock, 80c@$1.25 in leading markets, 60@70c f. o. b. Middlewestern yellow onions, $2.75@3.50 per 100-lb. sack. Baldwin apples, $4.50@5.25 per bbl. in city markets, $4.25@4.50 f. o. b.; northwestern extra fancy boxed Jonathans, $2.25@2.50; delicious, $2.00@3.00 in leading markets.

GRAIN—Chicago cash market: No. 2 red winter wheat, $1.32; No. 2 hard winter wheat, $1.22; No. 2 mixed corn, 73c; No. 2 yellow corn, 73c; No. 3 white oats, 45c. Average farm prices: No. 2 mixed corn in central Iowa, 60c; No. 2 hard winter wheat in central Kansas, $1.00.

DAIRY PRODUCTS—Butter, 92 score, 52c Chicago. Cheese prices on Wisconsin primary markets: Twins, 26¼c; daisies, 27c; double daisies, 26¾c; longhorns, 27c; square prints, 27½c.

LIVE STOCK—Chicago prices: Hogs, top, $8.80; bulk of sales, $8.30@8.65; medium and good beef steers, $8.00@11.50; butcher cows and heifers, $4.00@10.75; feeder steers, $6.25@8.00; light and medium weight veal calves, $9.00@11.25; fat lambs, $13.00@15.00; feeding lambs, $12.75@14.85; yearlings, $9.25@13.00; fat ewes, $5.00@8.60.

SORRY TO SEE YANKS GO

Burgomaster of Coblenz Gives Departing American Troops Godspeed—Can't Do Without Them.

Coblenz, Jan. 12.—Real sadness was evinced in a message sent to Maj. Gen. Henry T. Allen by the head burgomaster in the name of the people of Coblenz. The message read:

"We are sorry to see you leave; we do not know how we can do without you, nor what will happen to us soon. We are sorry to see the Americans go, leaving us so excited and at such a dreadful time. However, we trust matters will right themselves, and we wish all the best things to General Allen and his troops."

BRITAIN'S CARDS ON TABLE

English Financial Mission Meets the American Debt Commission in Executive Session.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Great Britain's financial mission laid its cards on the table before the American debt commission at an executive session at the treasury. Details were withheld, but there were renewed expressions of hope that out of the negotiations would come at least a tentative agreement for the refunding of the British debt of more than $4,000,000,000, perhaps within a week.

TURKEY ACCEDES TO DEMAND

Greek Patriarch Will Be Permitted to Continue His Residence in Constantinople.

Lausanne, Jan. 11.—Turkey bowed to the allies' demands. Ismet Pasha told the conference the Turkish government would consent to the Greek patriarch continuing to reside in Constantinople. This consent he predicated upon the patriarch being deprived of administrative and civil functions.

Occupation Was Swift.

Cologne, Jan. 12.—The Franco-Belgian occupation of the Ruhr basin is accomplished. It was carried out with a swiftness and efficiency which left the citizens of Essen gasping with surprise.

$2,430,000 British Gold Arrives.

New York, Jan. 12.—The steamship Homeric brought 75 boxes of gold valued at $2,430,000, consigned to J. P. Morgan & Co., bankers, who act as fiscal agents for the British government.

LEGISLATIVE NEWS

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY IS SWINGING INTO ITS WORK WITH A VIM

Code Revision is the First of Many Important Measures Taken Up For Consideration.

This week will see a decision reached by both houses of the fortieth general assembly on the question of whether to take up code revision in the regular session, as was recommended in Governor Kendall's biennial message to the joint convention of the assembly last week.

The governor's stern demand that the code be revised without any thought of a special session to be called, set the legislators talking about code revision to the practical exclusion of every other subject of legislation—and these subjects are by no means few.

Anticipating some such declarations on code revision as the governor made, a joint resolution providing for the appointment of a committee of eight senators and eight representatives to report back to the houses whether they deemed it advisable to to take up code revision in the regular session, and if so, how best to proceed, was introduced and passed on the opening day of the general assembly.

This committee went into executive session with Lieutenant Governor Hammill and Speaker Anderson immediately after the message of Governor Kendall had been delivered. They listened to Code Commissioner U. G. Whitney outline the work already done by the code commission in the past four years. The report of this committee was prevented from return until after the governor had delivered his inaugural address last week, so it is probable that it will be discussed and a conclusion reached during this week.

If code revision is taken up, several plans of procedure are worthy of consideration, assemblymen say. One of these is the governor's plan of considering concurrently the code bills and new bills, making the new bills which touch upon subjects in code bills amendments to the code bills. Both these bills would be referred to the same committees. Assemblymen estimate that about 30 per cent of the new measures will deal with subjects covered in code bills.

Another suggestion made in the legislative halls is to take up the appropriation measures first, get them out of the way for good and proceed either with code revision alone or with code revision and new legislation concurrently. The advocates of this plan steadfastly maintain that the governor should call a special session to complete the work of revising the code. They point out that approximately $100,000 has been spent in revising and compiling the code bills now, that more will have to be spent each year until a compiled code is formulated, and believe that it is economy in the end to get code revision done efficiently and finally, even if it requires a special session.

This week will also see the introduction of a great number of bills. A joint resolution to permit women to sit in the assembly was one of the first features of the assembly. Another joint resolution provided for the holding up of action on all appropriation measures until it could be ascertained just what the needs of each board, bureau and institution will be. The intent of the motion, introduced in the house by Representative E. P. Harrison of Pottawattamie, and in the senate by Senator J. J. Ethell of Davis, is to get as near as possible to the budget system before awaiting action of the assembly on the budget recommendation.

The first bills of the session were introduced by Senator McIntosh of Decatur. Two deal with intoxicating liquors and one would give every precinct in the state a double election board. All bills must be referred to committees which will be named this week. Speaker Anderson's innovation of asking each member of the house to indicate to him in writing the twelve committees on which he would like to serve is said to have revealed that nearly all of the 108 members want to serve on the rules, ways and means and appropriations committees. These are the three most important committees and the chairmanship of them is one of the most responsible and influential positions in the assembly.

An indication that new legislation is being deferred for consideration until after the report of the joint code revision committee of both houses was the introduction in the senate and house of a joint resolution to hold up all new bills and refrain from giving them numbers until after the report of the committee.

The members of this committee for the senate are Senators Holdoegel of Rockwell City, Cessna of Grinnell, Mantz of Audubon, Ethell of Bloomfield, Reed of Cresco, Scott of Marshalltown, Tuck of Croning and Johnston of Chariton.

Governor Kendall's inaugural message, followed by the inaugural reception and ball brought the first week's session to a close. Both houses adopted a concurrent resolution to adjourn from Thursday afternoon until Tuesday afternoon of this week.

.. Hawkeye .. State News

Interesting Items Gathered From all Parts of Iowa

Ottumwa has $20,000 cash to apply on its water works bonds but cannot locate the holders.

Sale of the Muscatine, Burlington and Southern railroad has been ordered following a foreclosure suit of $518,000 started by a Chicago bank.

A. E. Jones of Newton, a shoemaker who owns 25 chickens, claims the champion egg layers of Iowa and last year his hens produced 35[illegible] eggs.

Prof. Ernest A. Leo of Cedar Rapids has completed fifty years as a music teacher which is a record that it is believed is equalled by few, if any, in this state.

The city council of Boone has sold to a Des Moines firm $95,000 of funding bonds at a premium of $[illegible]580. The bidding for the bonds was quite spirited.

The speaker of the house in the next assembly is J. T. Anderson, 38 years old, a farmer and a legislator with four session of experience to guide him in his new duties.

Suit for $20,000 has been filed in District court against Ralph Fetter, wealthy Washington cattle feeder whose car it is alleged struck William Dyche and killed him recently.

What promises to be one of the best record of the month was secured to County Agent Flint by Fred Klosey, of Renwick. Mr. Klosey has 50 White Leghorn hens. During the month they laid 5,368 eggs, or 30 dozen.

Edwin H. Draper, 46 years old, Marshalltown traffic manager of the Western Grocer company since 1[illegible] and widely known in sectional and national traffic organizations through his rate negotiations for Mississippi valley points, is dead.

Katherine Moden, 50 years old, alleged to be Davenport's latest woman bootlegger to be caught in the clutches of the law. She is charged with not only making the illicit liquor, but also with selling it to 17-year-old boys.

Sixty physicians and surgeons from various parts of the state were in attendance at the annual birth clinic of Dr. W. A. Rohlf of Waverly recently. This is an annual event and has been held every year on the birthday of the host.

I. N. Snook of West Point has many distinctions. He is 74 years old and is the oldest member of the general assembly. He is one of the three democratic senators. For fourteen years he has been president of the Threshers' association of Iowa.

L. W. Drennan, W. D. Jamieson and J. J. Doty well known Iowa democrats, have filed suit in Federal District court at Council Bluffs for $2[illegible]700 damages, alleging breach of contract, against Ed A. Wickham, Council Bluffs contractor, who built the balloon school at Omaha and the Memphies aviation field for the government.

Mrs. Catherine Tallman of Cascade, 108 years old, died at the home of her nephew. She was the oldest person within the three counties adjacent to Cascade. She was born in the parish of Killfinnen, County Limerick, Ireland, in 181[illegible]. Up to a few years ago no social event among the older people was complete without her happy presence.

When the hour advertised for the sale of Iowa's $22,000,000 bonus bonds arrived, there were plenty of bidders on hand at the state treasurer's office but no bids were received. The situation was thoroughly discussed and the buyers all declared the intention of awaiting a final ruling by the supreme court upon the issue before making bids.

The whole body of the Iowa law has not been collected in one volume since 1897. New laws have been placed in supplements. To find out what laws are now on the statute one must go through the code and then all supplements. A commission has revised the laws in the original code to conform to the last supplement. The legislature must now check over the revised code, word for word, coma for coma, period for period.

Life insurance companies have more than $300,000,000 invested in Iowa farm mortgages, according to E. L. Johnson president of a Waterloo bank and a director in the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago. The bank official declares insurance companies hold Iowa land in high esteem in their money loaning activities. He also declares the private purchase of farm mortgages is fast disappearing and life insurance companies take his place.

Cigaret smokers of Iowa contributed approximately one million dollars to the coffers of the state through the cigaret tax law during the first year and a half, according to the figures compiled by the cigaret revenue department of the treasurer's office.

Another Denison man has climbed high in his profession. Dr. A. C. Rosberg, who was a physician and surgeon in Denison until about eight years ago, has laid plans to erect a large surgical hospital in San Francisco where he will be assisted by a number of associates.

SHERIFF'S SALE

L. D. RUSS

vs.

Chester J. Dutton, Emma L. Dutton, American State Bank, of Omaha, Nebr., County Savings Bank, Algona, Iowa, and State Savings Bank, VeVntura, Ia.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That by virtue of a Special Execution issued out of the office of the Clerk of the District Court, in Hancock County, on a judgement rendered December 8th, 1922, Term of said Court, A. D. 1922 for the sum of Five Thousand Seven Hundred Thirty & 42-100 Dollars debt, and One Hundred Seventeen & 25-100 Dollars costs, in favor of L. D. Russ and against Chester J. Dutton, and Emma L. Dutton, and to the Sheriff of Hancock County directed, I have levied upon the following described property, to-wit:

The Southeast Quarter, and the South Half of the Northeast Quarter of Section Thirteen (13), Township Ninety-Five (95), North Range Twenty-Three (23), West of the 5th P. M. Hancock County, Iowa.

NOW, THEREFORE, Public Notice is hereby given that I shall, on the Fifth day of February, 1923, at 10 o'clock A. M., at the front door of the Court House, in Garner, in Hancock County, offer and sell at public outcry, to the highest bidder for cash, all the right, title and interest that the above named Chester J. Dutton, and Emma L. Dutton, had on the 8th day of December A. D. 1922, or now have in and to the above described property, or so much thereof as is necessary to satisfy said execution, together with costs and all accruing costs, unless the same shall be sooner satisfied.

Dated at the Sheriff's office in Garner, this 6th day of January A. D. 1923.

E. P. HANSON,

Sheriff of Hancock County, Iowa.

(Publish Jan. 18, 25. 1923.)

GEORGE ZINN, M. D.

Physician and Surgeon

Office opposite from Hotel Klemme

Phone No. 19

Eyes Examined — Glasses Fitted

AVERY TOWNSHIP NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Roth were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Roths.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Reed and son, Johnny, were Sunday evening visitors at the Wm. Bell home.

Sylvan Johnson and family were visitors at the Ben Reemstma home Sunday evening.

D. D. Ross and daughter, Bernice, of Garner, were visiting down at his farm east of town Monday.

Mrs. Fred Bachman, of this vicinity received word Sunday evening that a relative near Britt had died. Mrs. Bachman left Tuesday to attend the funeral, which was held at 1.00 o'clock Tuesday.

Hamo Beek shelled corn Tuesday of this week, and still a number of others are waiting to shell their corn.

Jusserand Lively Humorist.

Ambassador Jean Jusserand, for the last 20 years the representative of France in the United States, has a rare sense of humor that is a constant delight to Washington.

What is probably his prize quip was made some years ago when the public was engaged in laughing a ridiculous statue out of the capitol grounds. This statue was of George Washington. It represented the Father of His Country sitting entirely nude amid the snows and wintry blasts of Capitol hill, one finger raised solemnly above his head.

"I know just what he is saying," Mr. Jusserand opined. "He is saying, 'My soul is in heaven and my clothes are in the National museum.'"—New York Sun.

PUBLIC AUCTION

Having decided to quit farming, I will sell at Public Auction on the Henry Church place 2 1-2 miles south of Klemme; 3 miles north and 1 mile east of Goodell; 10 miles south of Garner, on——

Thursday, January 25

As this is a large sale selling will begin promptly at 11:00 o'clock A. M. — FREE LUNCH AT NOON.

125 HEAD OF LIVE STOCK 125

9 Head of Horses 9

1 Team Brown Geldings, 8 years old, wt. 3000.
1 Bay Mare, 11 years old, weight 1600.
1 Roan Mare, 7 years old, weight 1500.
1 Spotted Pony.
1 Roan Gelding, 6 years old, weight 1400.
1 Gray Gelding, 9 years old, weight 1200.
1 Bay Mare, 7 years old, weight 1450.
1 Black Mare, 12 years old, weight 1400.

45 Head of Cattle 45

24 milch cows, some are fresh, and the others will be fresh soon.
2 Two-year old Heifers.
10 Calves, 7 months old.
4 Two-year old steers.
1 yearling Steer.
2 Yearling Heifers.
1 Pure Bred Red Poll Durham Bull.

64 HEAD OF DUROC JERSEY HOGS 64

These hogs are all well bred but are not registered, but they are mighty good hogs.

16 Bred Sows, to farrow in April and in May. 10 are tried sows, 6 are gilts.
15 Feeding Shoats.
32 Fall Pigs.
1 Pure Bred Duroc Jersey Boar.

FARM MACHINERY, ETC.

Herschel Endgate Seeder
Robinson Manure Spreader
Bob Sleigh
6-ft. Rock Island Disc
8-ft. Disc
8-ft McCormick Binder
McCormick Corn Binder
New McCormick Mower
New Oliver tractor plow
Fordson Tractor in good condition.
2 Single-row Fuller & Johnson Cultivators.
Single-row John Deere cultivator.
Tank Heater
Tank Cover
J. I. Case Corn Planter and 120 rods of wire.
24-ft. flexible Harrow
2-Section Iron Harrow
3-inch Tire Wagon with a triple box.
4-inch Steel Wheel Truck Wagon
Hay Rack
Hay Rake
Buck Rake
Kenwood Hay Stacker
Case Riding Plow
Surrey
Pump Jack
About 100 Rhole Island Hens
2 1-2 h. p. Association Engine.
Single Buggy
Sattley Cream Separator, 750 lb. capacity.
Set Breeching Harness
1 1-2-inch Harness
Set 1 1-4-inch Harness
Set Single Harness
Set light Driving Harness
9 good Horse Collars
Hog Chute
Some Hog Troughs
60-gal. Kerosene Drum.
2 Oil Drums
Some Tame Hay in barn
240-egg Cyphers Incubator
15-ft. Wagon Box
B. B. Scoop Board
25 bu. good early picked Seed Corn, some Yellow, and some White.
Seed Corn Racks
About 15 bu. Early Red River Ohio Seed Potatoes
About 15 bu. Rural Russet Seed Potatoes, late
Letz 10-in. Feed Grinder
About 100 ft Hay Rope
Grind Stone
Hand Corn Sheller
Success Brooder
Kitchen Cabinet

TERMS OF SALE——All sums of ten dollars and under, cash. Over ten dollars a credit of ten month's time will be given on approved security at 8 per cent interest from date of sale. No property is to be removed until settled for.

G. R. Stokesbary, Prop.

Col H. H. Brummond & Col. B. A. Reemstma, AUCTIONEERS—

FIRST NATIONAL BANK, KLEMME, CLERKS.

Kite Balloons for Commercial Use.

Although there are undoubtedly important uses to which kite balloons can be put, some very impractical suggestions have recently been made by enthusiasts for this particular craft regarding its commercial use. The value of the kite balloon in connection with meteorological observations is undisputed, and, under certain conditions, as landmarks on air routes kite balloons may be of the greatest assistance, but the suggestion that they should be towed from trawlers to "spot" shoals of fish is not quite so acceptable, we are reminded by Aeronautics. The small airship probably has greater possibilities in this direction than the towed captive balloon, but the present cost of an airship makes its use impracticable, nor is the speed of a small airship sufficient to insure more than occasional use. Another suggestion which has been put forward is that firms should use kite balloons for displaying advertisements.—Scientific American.

Scientific Drug Expedition.

An expedition led by Doctor Rusby of Columbia will visit unexplored areas of Venezuela, Bolivia, Ecuador and eastern Colombia. The enterprise, which is strictly scientific, is being financed by a Philadelphia chemical company and will consume eighteen months. The explorers will attempt to study and bring back for further examination here specimens of birds, insects, flora, reptiles, fish and other creatures that abound in those regions. They also will seek new light on tropical diseases, their origin and their cure. The results of the expedition will be given to the world. — Scientific American.

Arts of Expression.

"That last speech of yours was what I call commonplace," remarked the cold-hearted constituent.

"I was only endeavoring to speak the simple truth in plain terms," replied Senator Sorghum. "You wait till I try to put something across when nobody's looking and I'll show you some phraseological ingenuities that'll sound perfectly brilliant."

Both Ways.

"No doubt appearance has a lot to do with one's success."

"But not so much as success has to do with one's appearances."—Buffalo Enquirer.

An Unbeliever.

First Stenographer—I don't believe half I see in print.

Second Ditto—Judging from your spelling that must include what you see in the dictionary.

FIGHT OYSTER-SHELL SCALE

Agricultural College Tells of Effective Measures to Take Against Destructive Pest.

Recently considerable attention has been attracted by the presence of a scale on lilac bushes. This pest is what is known as the oyster-shell scale. It is a cosmopolitan insect and is doubtless the commonest and most widespread scale insect known. It infests all kinds of fruit trees and ornamental shrubs.

This scale is readily distinguished from other scale insects by its shape and color, according to C. R. Jones of the Colorado Agricultural college. It resembles a mipute elongated, curved shell, about one-eighth of an inch in length, and is of a dark brownish color. The eggs of this pest are laid beneath the scale in the fall and thus protected, they pass the winter.

In early June, depending upon the temperature, the eggs hatch, and the tiny, pale, yellowish, young insects crawl from beneath the scale and wander about the twigs and branches, finally settling down on the bark, and insert their long, threadlike beaks into the substance which protects them while they develop, the females never move from that spot. They continue to grow and finally secrete the brown scales which attract attention. Sometimes these insects become so numerous that entire branches are covered with scales.

Effective control work can be accomplished against this pest by a thorough application of lime sulphur which tends to loosen the scales and allows natural enemies to work upon them, or they may be sprayed with a solution of Black Leaf 40, one part to 800 parts of water, to which is added about six pounds of soap. This spray should be applied from June 1 to June 15, before the young scales have secreted sufficient scale to protect themselves.

Dehydrated Vegetables.

Dehydrated vegetable products as a substitute for fresh vegetables are gaining in interest and favor through the efforts of the United States Department of Agriculture. The work has included sending quarter-pound packages of dehydrated vegetable soup mixture to 3,000 hotels for trial, and the reports declare that the soup is not only cheaper than that from fresh vegetables but equal to it in many respects. Many leading chefs, though naturally expected to be prejudiced against the innovation, have given their approval to the new material, suggesting some slight changes in the mixture. One pound of the preparation is said to make 125 portions, but one hotel manager found that if made into only 48 portions the cost would be but little greater than that of fresh vegetables. The new products are being brought to the notice of hospitals and other institutions and the individual housewife.

A Sane GGolfer.

"Well, I've at least reached the point where I think I shall be able to get a little comfort out of golf."

"That so? Mastered the swing, have you?"

"Not at all. I've just brought myself, after years of disappointment, to the conclusion that I am never going to be amateur champion. From now on I shall try to enjoy breaking one hundred now and then."

In Demand.

"Don't you know it's against the law to sell books like this?" asked the man who was browsing in a second-hand book store.

"What is it?" asked the proprietor.

"A bartender's guide."

"Gosh! I wonder where that book came from? I didn't know I had it in stock. Why, I can get more for that little work than I can for a rare first edition."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Gentle Hint.

"I say, Nell, I was reading that there are 60 different ways of cooking potatoes."

"I've heard so, but boiled—"

"Well, don't you think it would be exciting to try one of the other 59 ways once, just as an experiment?"

50 GOOD CIGARETTES 10¢

GENUINE "BULL" DURHAM TOBACCO

TYPEWRITER RIBBONS
All Makes

Typewriter Ribbons for sale at the Times Office, all of the Standard makes. Ribbons 75 cents each.

THE CITY DRAY LINE
—Is prepared to do your hauling carefully and promptly
We solicit your patronage
Charges reasonable.
Coal Hauling Done
Louie Knoke

DENTIST
J. L. Hesselhuus, D. D. S.
Office Hours 8-12 1-5:30
Office Opposite State Savings Bank; In Schaffer Bldg.
Evening Work By Appointment Only
Klemme, Ia. Phone 81

KLEMME DRAY LINE
Phone 2105
A share of your patronage is solicited. All work attended to promptly and carefully. We haul coal quick.
LLOYD LAU, PROP.

Cold Weather Comforts

You'll need warmer clothing from now on.
This is the time to buy your

HEAVY UNDERWEAR
HOSIERY
GLOVES and MITTENS
LEATHER VESTS
SWEATER COATS, Etc.

I have a good assortment in the best grades.
Let me fit you out in your furnishings and measure you for your next Suit.

Suits to Measure

The Men's Fashion Shop

"Where Good Clothes Are Made."
A. W. JOHNSON
GARNER IOWA

Pantorium in connection

Advantage of Age.

Two lads had been to see a picture show, in which the star was a freckle-faced boy. After seeing this picture, for once in their young lives they were both very proud for the world to see their freckles as they were on their way home.

But after a while an argument was started over who had the most freckles. At the point where there was nothing else to do but fight it out, the younger boy, who did not have much chance of winning, said: "Well, Red, you should have more freckles than me, 'cause you are almost two years older."

More Than Most of Us Do.

The usual small-boy discussion was going on among the boys from the flat as to whose father was the smartest.

"Well," said one, "my father has a lot of people working for him, and he tells them to do things and they do 'em."

"My father goes around on the train and only comes home on Saturday nights," said another, as though traveling was a gauge of smartness.

"My father is smart," said the third. "He says he always makes out his own income tax."

A Poison Test.

"You are safe in accepting the invitation to a 'moonshine' party at Bibbler's house."

"Why so?"

"He keeps a supply of guinea pigs on the premises. When a new consignment of 'moonshine' is received a spoonful is given to a guinea pig. If the patient shows signs of merriment and then lies down for a nap the festivities are started. If he drops dead the party's off."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Roger Bacon's Cipher Manuscripts.

A discovery of cipher manuscripts of Roger Bacon show that he was familiar with the use of high-powered microscopes and telescopes. A key to the code was discovered by Doctor Newbold of the University of Pennsylvania. Many of the results of modern science are said to have been anticipated. Fuller particulars will be given to the world shortly.—Scientific American.

Sounds Like It.

"I wonder if Columbus had a press agent?"

"I doubt if there were any of them in his time."

"Perhaps not. Still, that story of Queen Isabella pawning her jewels to finance his expedition has all the earmarks."

We Welcome Women's Accounts

The service maintained by this bank includes every courtesy and consideration of our women patrons.

We are proud of the increasing number of women's accounts in our various departments.

Is your among them? Household checking as well as savings accounts are cordially invited.

First National Bank

"The Bank for Everybody'."

Plan Ahead---

Don't Drift

Your chance of making 1923 a year entirely to your liking will be much better if you plan now for what you want to accomplish, than as if you let things take their own course and take them as they come.

In planning your year, the sound financial advice the officers of the State Savings Bank of Klemme are prepared to give you will be of marked importance.

Come in now and let us plan with you for a prosperous and satisfactory year.

State Savings Bank

Klemme Iowa

Periwinkle House

By Opie Read

Illustrated by

R. H. Livingstone

Copyright, The Bell Syndicate, Inc.

"And bet an elephant on the turn of a card," said Virgil.

"Ah, one of my own, perhaps, but not one entrusted to me. I am not an embezzler of elephants. I wouldn't bet a garter-snake on a sure thing. Besides, I told you I'd quit gambling—that is, I'm quitting. It isn't wise to expose my constitution to the shock of a sudden change. . . . Well, good night."

CHAPTER XII

Drace was far too disturbed in mind to sleep, and before the sun was high he walked out alone in the garden, to muse upon his situation. Slowly he paced his way along the path. Someone spoke, and he turned to face the man Batoche.

"Monsieur, a note."

Drace took the paper and hastened into the summer house.

The note was brief, but full in the expression of what had befallen Nadine, something to throb with the telling of it: "As soon as you can, my love' one, you must come to me to take me from the man I thought my father, but who is the awful brute. Yesterday he called me a she-wolf and told me I am not his daughter; and when he told me, my heart was light, for then I have not within me the murderer's blood. Come not alone, Virgil, for Tony will be here, and both of them watch. I am locked a prisoner in my room, and tomorrow they take me to Memphis to make me marry Monsieur Boyce. But I fear not so long as I know you come."

Quickly Drace slipped up to his room, buckled on his pistol, found a rope, looped it with a hangman's noose and tucked it beneath his coat. Nadine was not Stepho's daughter; now he was free to act! Swift was he to answer the appeal, but he was set against her caution, the advice to bring someone with him. It was his fight alone, the execution of his oath, which was not dead like the autumn leaf, but fresh like the new leaf in the spring. He would shoot Tony, the dog, and then string up his master.

No one saw him, not even the watchful Tycle, and he hastened toward Willow Head, not having found a boat at the landing. Never had the river seemed so broad, the current so swift. At last his canoe touched in among the cane roots at the island's edge. He leaped ashore, but was cautious in the cane, an Indian in stealth as he approached the house. He heard not a sound, saw no smoke issue from the chimney. Perhaps the wolves were in wait for him, to snap him, but he was now in full view, and he ran at the top of his speed. But near the house he halted, peering about, looked in at the door of the main room, found it deserted, then walked softly around to the barred window. Nadine spoke before he recognized her, standing in the twilight of her prison.

"My heart was loud to tell me you would come, Virgil. And you brought no one with you. But of that there was no need now."

He stood in silence looking at her, his strength exerted against a bar at the window, to tear it loose, but the wrought-iron nails were too long, and he could not budge them.

"The ax, Virgil! Is it lying there?"

Acting upon her suggestion, and with no caution now against making a noise, he cut the bars away and helped her through the window.

"Nadine, he said, "my oath must now be kept."

His arms about her, he stood pressing her close, and never had he felt so strong, and surely never so determined. Her eyes half closed, her head on his arm, she did not speak. She looked as if she were at rest, and dreaming. He kissed her, and her eyes flashed wide.

"I have come to hang the monster that called you a she-wolf."

"When I have told you, yes. And now you will listen. Early I thought I heard Tony and my—I mean Stepho la Vitte, go out. But Stepho was not walking with Tony, the strong man, but was dragged out in the rocking-chair; for some time in the night come the strange stroke, and Stepho was paralyzed."

"Nadine! What are you saying?"

"I am saying that you must listen. Tony came to the window and told me what was happen'. I ask him to let me out, but he would not, for he wants to please Stepho till the last, on account of the money that may be somewhere hid. He went for the doctor, and he came but has gone away again, for I hear him say he can do no good. The old man was out in his chair where he so often sit; and we will go see him, for it will not be for long. Let us forget all and be kind when death was come, Virgil."

"Yes, but where is Tony now?"

"I think he is looking for the money. Let us go now to the poor old man."

"You forgive easily, Nadine."

She looked at him in wonderment.

"How can we not forgive when the heart say we must, Virgil? He use me for the trap, which I will explain all to you, but he give me the chance to be with you, and for that I thank him—and for not being my sure-enough father. . . . Come with me."

. . . . . .

Old Stepho sat in his chair asleep, but as they approached him, he opened his eyes, looked at Nadine, then at Drace.

"Monsieur was ver' strong. An' I kill you if I be not struck down like the beef. An' Tony kill you if he here, but I send him off for something. Ah, the leetle gel, she hate me now?"

"Monsieur," she said, "I cannot find it in my heart to hate. It is the poison. Many times you were kind, and I remember them."

He bowed his head, and through his tangled lashes looked up at Drace, fire gleaming through brushwood. But he spoke to Nadine, turning upon her a less malignant glance.

"The paralyze, it begin down here an' creep up. When it touch the heart, I was go. I say just now that Tony, he would kill the strong monsieur. He would not. He be scared when I was done. . . .

"Your name, leetle gel," pursued Stepho, "was Walton—the daughter of a northern man who live in the same town with Mr. Drace's father near Cincinnati. You an' your mother were carried off by my men; but your mother, she fall from the horse just as we come to our camp and she die. About her neck was a purse with money and papers—one that tell where more money is buried. After the war I go back and dig up this money, but I keep it for you, for your dowry. It is here—buried under the hearthstone. . . . Now—now I beg you to go for Father Tahan. You know where he live. Quick, for it creep up."

"Yes, I will go. Virgil will stay to keep you company."

"Let me go with you," Drace pleaded, fearful that some harm might befall her.

"No, my love' one," she gently opposed him. "You must stay here for no harm can come to me now. Stay here and be kind to him, for kindness is the will of the One above. You will, yes?"

She kissed him fondly, and the old wolf-eyes closed, that they might not see. Now she was ready to go. Virgil steadied the canoe for her and gently shoved it off. She threw him a kiss, and rounding a green cape, raised her paddle into the sunlight and flashed him adieu.

. . . . . .

Drace returned to Stepho's chair, the old man shagging his brows at him.

Then thinking of the rope still buttoned tightly beneath his coat, he tore it out and threw it away. Nature, he reflected, had usurped his task, and he could safely turn over to her his claims. A slight noise behind him; he looked quickly about, and there a few feet behind him at the edge of the cane stood Tony. Upon him the vision of Drace's countenance came. It seemed, with a startling flash. Instantly he fell back, through the cane fringe, into the bayou. Loudly he cried for help.

"Oh, monsieur," implored the old man, "please he'p heem queek. He can no swim. An' he die befo' hees sins they was forgive. He'p the po' wretch, monsieur. Queek, monsieur."

Virgil threw off his coat and his pistol-belt, and leaped into the water. A moment before, he would have shot the beast; now he would save him.

Tony was not in sight. But soon he arose, swimming, and Drace saw a knife in his hand. In the water Tony was as much at home as a beaver! He dived, and Virgil knew now that it was his aim to dart beneath him and with the knife to rip him as a skillful swimmer rips a crocodile. But in the water the strong man, young Drace, was at home, too, and turning about with a quick swirl, he waited. Tony came up; and now they came toward each other, like rival otters—grappled and struggled, treading water, shoulders up. Virgil caught Tony's left wrist, wrenched his arm limp and helpless, seized him by the throat, his left hand steel-gripped about the murderous right wrist, the knife hand.

No mercy now! Fire and water, their game! Down, gasping, down!

The head beneath the surface, the hand still out, striving to stab. Slowly the hand opened; the knife dropped; the hand closed—half opened, was limp. Drace turned loose his grip. The body sank.

Virgil swam ashore and came dripout of the cane. The old man spoke:

"Tony! Whar he?"

"I have drowned him."

"Monsieur was ver' strong!"

"If I had brought him to the shore, he would have sneaked a chance to murder me."

"He was the bad man, yes. He ought be dead, yes. I was to keel heem bimeby. He keel the man here not long 'go. Twice he go keel you, an' once he snap the pistol. I set the trap for you to be stabbed in the water. Then there be no blood to tell the tale. Now I am so sor'. Will monsieur pull me into the house?"

"No. You would reach for a pistol to shoot me. Stay where you are."

"Monsieur have still suspicion. We wait."

"No Mercy Now!"

Virgil put on his coat, his belt, and sat down on the grass. The old man was silent, his eyes closed. He might be dead, but no matter. More than an hour dragged by, the breeze moaning in the cane. Virgil arose and stood near the chair. Stepho opened his eyes, but was silent. Virgil sat down again and waited, the wind tangling the tops of the cane.

He heard the canoe coming.

Father Tahan was kindly and soft of voice. For many a despairing wretch he had held the Cross. At sight of him old Stepho's eyes were still hard. Time wears granite away, but does not mellow it. Not yet had he granted mercy, and for no pity could he hope.

"Father, this is the man I would keel. I hate heem, the carpetbaggaire."

"It is not true," said Virgil, standing near. "I fought against the carpetbaggers in June, in New Orleans, when they were hanging a man. I cut him down."

How great can be an instant change! The old wolf-eyes dewed soft.

"Oh, monsieur, I was that man? They hang me. I hear of the brave man, but I not know it was you. Please forgive me. . . . Tek the leetle gel, an' I know you be kind to her. She love you. For you she would die. Monsieur, I beg you not to think so hard of me. . . . No, my leetle gel, you must not cry."

"I did not know you," said Drace. "A cloth was about your features. Think not of it now. Listen to the one who has come with a message of peace and forgiveness."

The priest devoted himself to his sacred offices. The wind moaned softly in the cane. . . .

The priest spoke presently to Virgil. "She must not stay here. Take her away, and I will see that everything shall be done."

Nadine stood with Virgil's coat pulled close about her face. And into his heart she spoke:

"The sun is low, Virgil. But you leave me now no more."

[THE END.]

SAVED FEATHERED FRIEND

Cat's Remarkable Devotion to Canary Makes a Story Quite Out of the Ordinary.

The cat saved the life of the canary. That, writes a correspondent, is the gist of an extraordinary story that a friend told me. My friend is fond of pets. Several years ago a neighbor of hers complained that her cat, which had just given birth to three kittens, refused to have anything to do with one of them. My friend told her neighbor that she would take the kitten and bring it up by hand. She fed the little thing from a spoon, and while it was small kept it on the bed for fear someone would step on it.

At that time she also had a canary, which she let out of its cage for a while each day. The bird would often fly to the bed and, perching on the kitten's back, sit there to preen its feathers, and would even tuck its head under its wing for a short nap in the kitten's warm fur. The kitten never showed the least inclination to harm it. Even after the kitten grew older the bird continued to sit on its back, and teased it sometimes by reaching over and pecking at its nose and eyes.

One day, when the kitten had become a full-grown cat, the bird escaped through a door that had been accidentally left open. After three days had passed without anyone's seeing it my friend gave it up as dead. The cat was forlorn without its playmate; frequently it looked up at the empty cage and mewed or wandered round outdoors, mewing dolefully.

On the third day the lady heard the cat at the screen door; she called to it once or twice, and it answered; but she noticed that its voice sounded muffled and strange. She went to the door, and there stood puss with the lost canary in its mouth. The bird was unharmed, but nearly dead from hunger and exposure. First aid in the shape of warm milk and pepper, however, soon restored it to its normal health. The lady never knew whether the bird had been attracted by the cat's calls, or whether the cat had found it on the ground near the house. At any rate, the cat saved the bird's life.—Youth's Companion.

HAILED SUN AS THEIR G

Incas Welcomed Return of Life-Gi Rays With Great Festival and Much Ceremony.

At this time of the year, in the d of the golden Inca empire, "Ray the great festival of the sun, was ebrated. Then the lord of the who had gone so far from Peru, traced his steps and came back give the land life again, and, to come him with splendor, the Incas all their lands around went up to co, the city of the sun. There the emperor, surrounded with magnificence, and for this one sion he became chief priest. The monies began at dawn, when the peror came forth from his palace lowed by the Incas, according to rank, and then by the Curacas, who held their lands far off from court. These latter were stran and superbly dressed in trappings gold and silver. The whole brill procession moved toward the plaz Cuzco, where, with feet bared and fixed upon the east, all awaited coming of the sun. The moment appeared the multitude prostr themselves, and in a frenzy of ad tion reached toward him supplica hands, crying to him that he was th god and father. Then the empe taking a glass of wine in his r hand invited the god to drink. offering accepted, he and other of the royal Inca blood drank the wine prepared by virgins consecra to the service of the sun.

Proceeding to the sun's own s tuary, then, a chosen few worshi with secret rites his golden im with its rays of gold and si studded with gems. There follo sacrifices by auguries and a g feast. The fire, kept burning all year by the virgins of the sun, replenished.

The Wants of a Pioneer.

Writing to the editor of the Pali sest, John P. Irish recounts some the hardships of Iowa pioneer and tells the story of one of th pioneer women and her granddau ter, who asked:

"Grandma, you were here in early days?"

"Yes, I was a pioneer."

"Well, were you poor?"

"Yes, we were all poor."

"Couldn't you have what wanted?"

"No, I could not."

"Did you have no meat?"

"No, nothing but venison, wild keys, prairie chickens and quails."

"Did you have no sugar?"

"Nothing but maple sugar."

"What did you want that couldn't get?"

"It was New Orleans molasses salt mackerel."

How Times Change!

Something in the movies or on stage is disturbing to the ideas those who see it. Forthwith they gue it should be suppressed.

This is in cheerful disregard of fact that what seems shocking in period becomes commonplace in next.

There was John Evelyn, Englis writer and diarist, founder of Royal academy, who died in 1706.

What shocked him was women ing on the stage at all. His idea that a play isn't nice unless the wo an characters are played by men.

Many agreed with him, in his riod. But what would be said abou a proposal that no women permited on the stage or in the mov in 1921?

New Windmill Idea.

A new French windmill, on the pri ciple of the water turbine, is encas with a vertical cylinder bladed like Venetian blind. The cylinder is s tionary, but the blades or slats gui the wind from any direction to turbine wheel. After acting on wheel, the wind escapes from the b tom of the cylinder. The verti shaft transmits the power through succession of gears adapted to li or strong wind, and a centrifugal re ulator controls the speed. The app ratus is designed especially for dr ing an electric generator.

The Cheap Kind.

The telephone bell tinkled and big sister rushed over and grabb the receiver.

"Goody, goody! Alice is going so place tonight!" shouted Mary, mu younger.

But after warming the receiv against her ear for 45 minutes t elder sister sat down and resum her reading.

"'Nother one of those telepho beaus!" exclaimed the pest—"ta but never go any place."

Why Not?

"You know, on the other side the earth it's a day later than it here."

"I don't believe it."

"Well, I'll prove it to you. If y were in Australia and I was here a you were to be shot today I'd kn it yesterday."

"Well, if you were a friend of mi you'd send me a telegram today te ing me I'm shot."

A Resolution.

"See here," said Adam to Eve, "d you realize that the high cost of liv is crimping me badly? You simp must be less extravagant in the ma ter of clothes."

"All right, dear," answered Ev obligingly. "I'll help you to economiz by turning over an old leaf."—Amer can Legion Weekly.

DESERT GOLD

By ZANE GREY

Author of

The Riders of the Purple Sage, Wildfire, Etc.

Copyright by Harper & Brothers.

"GOLD!"

SYNOPSIS.—Seeking gold in the esert, "Cameron," solitary pros-ector, forms a partnership with n unknown man whom he later earns is Jonas Warren, father of girl whom Cameron wronged, ut later married, back in Illinois. ameron's explanations appease Warren, and the two proceed to-ether. After many hardships hey are reduced to the limit of hysical endurance. In a dying ondition they seek refuge in a ave, once occupied by a prehis-oric people of the Southwest.

III—Continued.

—2—

ameron stole off among the rocks. long he absented himself or t he did he had no idea. When eturned Warren was sitting before campfire, and once more he ap-ed composed. He spoke, and his e had a deeper note; but other-e he seemed as usual.

hey packed the burros and faced north together.

ameron experienced a singular ex-tion. He had lightened his com-'s burden. Wonderfully it came im that he had also lightened his From that hour it was not tor-t to think of Nell.

IV

here came a morning when the shone angry and red through a smoky haze.

We're in for sandstorms," said eron.

hey had scarcely covered a mile n a desert-wide, moaning, yellow l of flying sand swooped down n them. Seeking shelter in the lee a rock, they covered their heads patiently waited. The long hours gged, and the storm increased in y. Cameron and Warren wet fs with water from their canteens, bound them round their faces, then covered their heads. The dy, hollow bellow of flying sand it on. It flew so thickly that enough ed down under the shelving rock to ght the blankets and almost bury men. They were frequently com-led to shake off the sand to keep m being borne to the ground. And was necessary to keep digging out packs. They lost the count of time. ey dared not sleep, for that would e meant being buried alive.

The storm finally blew itself out. It t the prospectors heavy and stupid want of sleep. Their burros had ndered away, or had been buried the sand. Far as eye could reach desert had marvelously changed; was now a rippling sea of sand nes. Away to the north rose the ak that was their only guiding ark. They headed toward it, carry-g a shovel and part of their packs. At noon the peak vanished in the immering glare of the desert. The ospectors pushed on, guided by the n. In every wash they tried for ter. With the forked peach branch his hands Warren always succeed-in locating water. They dug, but lay too deep. At length, spent and re, they fell and slept through that ght and part of the next day. Then ey succeeded in getting water, and enched their thirst, and filled the nteens, and cooked a meal.

The burning day found them in an terminably wide plain, where there as no shelter from the fierce sun. ountain peaks loomed on all sides, me near, others distant; and one, blue spur, splitting the glaring sky r to the north, Cameron thought he ecognized as a landmark. The ascent ward it was heartbreaking, not in eepness, but in its league-and-league-ng monotonous rise. Cameron knew here was only one hope—to make the ater hold out and never stop to rest. Warren began to weaken. Often he ad to halt.

Cameron measured the water in his anteen by its weight. Evaporation y heat consumed as much as he rank. During one of the rests, when e had wetted his parched mouth and hroat, he found opportunity to pour little water from his canteen into Warren's.

At first Cameron had curbed his estless activity to accommodate the ace of his elder comrade. But now e felt that he was losing something f his instinctive and passionate zeal o get out of the desert. The thought f water came to occupy his mind. He egan to imagine that his last little tore of water did not appreciably di-inish. He knew he was not quite ight in his mind regarding water; evertheless, he felt this to be more f fact than fancy, and he began to onder.

When next they rested he pretended to be in a kind of stupor; but he cov-rtly watched Warren. The man ap-eared far gone, yet he had cunning. He cautiously took up Cameron's can-teen and poured water into it from his own.

This troubled Cameron. He reflect-ed, and concluded that he had been unwise not to expect this very thing. Then, as his comrade dropped into weary rest, he lifted both canteens. If there were any water in Warren's, it was only very little. Both men had been enduring the terrible desert thirst, concealing it, each giving his water to the other, and the sacrifice had been useless.

Instead of ministering to the parched throats of one or both, the water had evaporated. When Cam-eron made sure of this, he took one more drink, the last, and poured the little water left into Warren's can-teen. He threw his own away.

Soon afterward Warren discovered the loss.

"Where's your canteen?" he asked.

"The heat was getting my water, so I drank what was left."

"My son!" said Warren.

The day opened for them in a red and green hell of rock and cactus. Like a flame the sun scorched and peeled their faces. Warren went blind from the glare, and Cameron had to lead him. At last Warren plunged down, exhausted, in the shade of a ledge.

Cameron rested and waited, hope-less, with not, weary eyes gazing down from their height where he sat. Movement on the part of Warren at-tracted his attention. Evidently the old prospector had recovered his sight and some of his strength. For he had arisen, and now began to walk along the arroyo bed with his forked peach branch held before him. He had clung to that precious bit of wood. Warren, however, stepped in a deep pit, and, cutting his canteen in half, began to use one side of it as a scoop. He scooped out a wide hollow, so wide that Cameron was certain he had gone crazy. Cameron gently urged him to stop, and then forcibly tried to make him. But these efforts were futile. Warren worked with slow, ceaseless, methodical movement. He toiled for what seemed hours. Cameron, seeing the darkening, dampening sand, real-ized a wonderful possibility of water, and he plunged into the pit with the other half of the canteen. Then both men toiled, round and round the wide hole, down deeper and deeper. The sand grew moist, then wet. At the bottom of the deep pit the sand coars-ened, gave place to gravel. Finally water welled in, a stronger volume than Cameron ever remembered find-ing on the desert.

The finding of water revived Cam-eron's flagging hopes. But they were short-lived. Warren had spent him-self utterly.

"I'm done. Don't linger," he whis-pered. "My son, go—go!"

Then he fell. Cameron dragged him out of the sand pit to a sheltered place under the ledge. While sitting beside the failing man Cameron dis-covered painted images on the wall. Often in the desert he had found these evidences of a prehistoric people. Then, from long habit, he picked up a piece of rock and examined it. Its weight made him closely scrutinize it. The color was a peculiar black. He scraped through the black rust, to find a piece of gold. Around him lay scatte.ed heaps of black pebbles and bits of black, weathered rock and pieces of broken ledge, and they showed gold.

"Warren! Look! See it! Feel it! Gold!"

"Warren! Look! See it! Feel it! Gold!"

But Warren was too blind to see.

"Go—go!" he whispered.

Cameron gazed down the gray reaches of that forlorn valley, and something within him that was nei-ther intelligence nor emotion—some-thing inscrutably strange—impelled him to promise.

Then Cameron built up stone manu-ments to mark his gold strike. That done, he tarried beside the uncon-scious Warren. Moments passed—grew into hours. Cameron still had strength left to make an effort to get out of the desert. But that same in-scrutable something which had or-dered his strange, involuntary promise to Warren held him beside his fallen comrade. As the long hours wore on he felt creep over him the comfort-ing sense that he need not forever fight sleep. Absolute silence claimed the desert. It was mute. Then that inscrutable something breathed to him, telling him when he was alone. He need not have looked at the dark, still face beside him.

Another face haunted Cameron's—a woman's face. It was there in the white moonlit shadows; it drifted in the darkness beyond; it softened, changed to that of a young girl, sweet, with the same dark, haunting eyes of her mother. Cameron prayed to that nameless thing within him, the spirit of something deep and mystical as life. He prayed for mercy to a wom-an—for happiness to her child. Both mother and daughter were close to him then. Time and distance were annihilated. He had faith—he saw into the future. The fateful threads of the past, so inextricably woven with his error, wound out their tragic length here in this forlorn desert.

Cameron then took a little tin box from his pocket, and, opening it, re-moved a folded certificate. He had kept a pen, and now he wrote some-thing upon the paper, and in lieu of ink he wrote with blood. The moon afforded him enough light to see; and having replaced the paper, he laid the little box upon a shelf of rock. It would remain there unaffected by dust, moisture, heat, time. How long had those painted images been there clear and sharp on the dry stone walls? Years would pass. Cameron seemed to see them, too; and likewise destiny leading a child down into this forlorn waste, where she would find love and fortune, and the grave of her father.

Cameron covered the dark, still face of his comrade from the light of the waning moon.

That action was the severing of his hold on realities. They fell away from him in final separation. Vaguely, dreamily he seemed to behold his soul. Night merged into gray day; and night came again, weird and dark. Then up out of the vast void of the desert, from the silence and illim-itableness, trooped his phantoms of peace. Majestically they formed around him, marshaling and muster-ing in ceremonious state, and moved to lay upon him their passionless serenity.

CHAPTER I

Old Friends.

Richard Gale reflected that his so-journ in the West had been what his disgusted father had predicted—idling here and dreaming there, with no objective point or purpose.

It was reflection such as this, only more serious and perhaps somewhat desperate, that had brought Gale down to the border. For some time the newspapers had been printing news of the Mexican revolution, guerrilla warfare, United States cavalry pa-trolling the international line, Ameri-can cowboys fighting with the rebels, and wild stories of bold raiders and bandits. Regarding these rumors Gale was skeptical. But as opportunity, and adventure, too, had apparently given him a wide berth in Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, he had struck southwest for the Arizona border, where he hoped to see some stirring life.

It was after dark one evening in early October when Richard arrived in Casita. There was a jostling, jab-bering, sombreroed crowd of Mexicans around the railroad station. He felt as if he were in a foreign country. After a while he saw several men of his nationality, one of whom he en-gaged to carry his luggage to a hotel. Of the many people encountered by Gale most were Mexicans. His guide explained that the smaller half of Casita lay in Arizona, the other half in Mexico, and of several thousand inhabitants the majority belonged on the southern side of the street, which was the boundary line. He also said that rebels had entered the town that day, causing a good deal of ex-citement.

Gale was almost at the end of his financial resources, which fact occa-sioned him to turn away from a pre-tentious hotel and ask his guide for a cheaper lodging house. When this was found, a sight of the loungers in the office, and also a desire for com-fort, persuaded Gale to change his traveling clothes for rough outing garb and boots.

"Well, I'm almost broke," he solilo-quized, thoughtfully. "The governor said I wouldn't make any money. He's right—so far. And he said I'd be coming home beaten. There he's wrong. I've got a hunch that some-thing 'll happen to me in this Greaser town."

He went out into the wide, white-washed, high-ceiled corridor, and from that into an immense room which, but for pool tables, bar and benches, would have been like a courtyard. Bare-legged, sandal-footed Mexicans in white rubbed shoulders with Mexicans mantled in black and red. There were black-bearded, coarse-visaged Americans, some gam-bling round the little tables, others drinking. There were khaki-clad cav-alrymen strutting in and out.

At one end of the room, somewhat apart from the general melee, was a group of six men round a little table, four of whom were seated, the other two standing. These last two drew a second glance from Gale. The sharp-featured bronzed faces and piercing eyes, the tall, slender, loosely jointed bodies, the quiet, easy, reck-less air that seemed to be a part of the men—these things would plainly have stamped them as cowboys with-out the buckled sombreros, the col-ored scarfs the high-topped, high-heeled boots with great silver-roweled spurs.

He satisfied his hunger in a restau-rant adjoining, and as he stepped back into the saloon a man wearing a military cape jostled him. Apolo-gies from both were instant. Gale was moving on when the other stopped short as if startled, and, leaning for-ward, exclaimed:

"Dick Gale? If this isn't great! Don't you know me?"

"I've heard your voice somewhere," replied Gale. "Maybe I'll recognize you if you came out from under that bonnet."

For answer the man, suddenly mani-festing thought of himself, hurriedly drew Gale into the restaurant, where he thrust back his hat to disclose a handsome, sunburned face.

"George Thorne! So help me—"

"'S-s-ssh. You needn't yell," inter-rupted the other, as he met Gale's outstretched hand. There was a close, hard, straining grip. "I must not be recognized here. There are reasons. I'll explain in a minute. Say, but it's fine to see you! Five years, Dick, five years since I saw you run down Uni-versity field and spread-eagle the whole Wisconsin football team."

"Don't recollect that," replied Dick, laughing. "George, I'll bet you I'm gladder to see you than you are to see me. It seems so long. You went into the army, didn't you?"

"I did. I'm here now with the Ninth cavalry. But—never mind me. What're you doing way down here?"

"On the square, George, I don't know any more why I'm here than—than you know."

"Well, that beats me!" ejaculated Thorne, sitting back in his chair, amaze and concern in his expression. "What the devil's wrong? Your old man's got too much money for you ever to be up against it. Dick, you couldn't have gone to the bad?"

A tide of emotion surged over Gale. How good it was to meet a friend—someone to whom to talk! He had never appreciated his loneliness until that moment.

"George, how I ever drifted down here I don't know. I didn't exactly quarrel with the governor. But—d—n it, Dad hurt me—shamed me, and I dug out for the West. It was this way. After leaving college I tried to please him by tackling one thing after another that he set me to do. On the square, I had no head for business. I made a mess of every-thing. The governor got sore. When I quit—when I told him straight out that I was going west to fare for my-self, why, it wouldn't have been so tough if he hadn't laughed at me. He said I couldn't earn a dollar—that I'd starve out west, and couldn't get back home unless I sent to him for money. He said he didn't believe I could fight—could really make a fight for anything under the sun. Oh—he—he shot it into me all right."

Dick dropped his head upon his hands, somewhat ashamed of the smarting dimness in his eyes.

"Fight!" cried Thorne, hotly. "What's ailing him? Didn't they call you Biff Gale in college? Dick, you were one of the best men Stagg ever developed."

"The governor didn't count foot-ball," said Dick. "He didn't mean that kind of a fight. When I left home I don't think I had an idea what was wrong of me. But, George, I think I know now. I was a rich man's son—spoiled, dependent, absolutely igno-rant of the value of money. I haven't yet discovered any earning capacity in me. I seem to be unable to do any-thing with my hands. That's the trouble. But I'm at the end of my tether now. And I'm going to punch cattle or be a miner, or do some real stunt—like joining the rebels."

"Aha! I thought you'd spring that last one on me," declared Thorne, wagging his head. "Well, you just forget it. Say, old boy, there's some-thing doing in Mexico. The United States in general doesn't realize it. But across that line there are crazy revolutionists, ill-paid soldiers, guer-rilla leaders, raiders, robbers, outlaws, bandits galore, starving peons by the thousand, girls and women in terror. Mexico is like some of her volcanoes—ready to erupt fire and hell! Don't make the awful mistake of joining the rebel forces. If you didn't starve or get shot in ambush, or die of thirst, some Greaser would knife you in the back for your belt buckle or boots. There are a good many Americans with the rebels eastward toward Agua Prieta and Juarez. Orozco is operat-ing in Chihuahua, and I guess he has some idea of warfare. But this is So-nora, a mountainous desert, the home of the slave and the Yaqui. There's unorganized revolt everywhere. We're patrolling the boundary line. We're making a grand bluff. I could tell you of a dozen instances where cavalry should have pursued raiders on the other side of the line. But we won't do it. The officers are a grouchy lot these days. You see, of course, what significance would attach to United States cavalry going into Mexican ter-ritory. There would simply be hell. My own colonel is the sorest man on the job. We're all sore. It's like sit-ting on a powder magazine. We can't keep the rebels and raiders from cross-ing the line. Yet we don't fight. My commission expires soon. I'll be dis-charged in three months. You can bet I'm glad for more reasons than I've mentioned."

Thorne was evidently laboring un-der strong, suppressed excitement. His face showed pale under the tan, and his eyes gleamed with a dark fire. He had seated himself at a table near one of the doorlike windows leading into the street, and every little while he would glance sharply out. Also he kept consulting his watch.

These details gradually grew upon Gale as Thorne talked.

"George, it strikes me that you're upset," said Dick, presently. "I seem to remember you as a cool-headed fellow whom nothing could disturb. Has the army changed you?"

Thorne laughed. It was a laugh with a strange, high note. It was reckless—it hinted of exaltation. He peered out one window, then another. His actions were rapid. Returning to the table, he put his hands upon it and leaned over to look closely into Gale's face.

"I'm away from camp without leave," he said.

"Isn't that a serious offense?" asked Dick.

"Serious? For me, if I'm discov-ered, it means ruin. There are rebels

"Serious? For Me, If I'm Discovered, It Means Ruin—"

in town. Any moment we might have trouble. I ought to be ready for duty—within call. If I'm discovered it means arrest. That means delay—the failure of my plans—ruin."

Thorne bent over closer with his dark eyes searchingly bright.

"What would you say, Dick Gale, if I told you that you're the one man I'd rather have come along than any other at this crisis of my life?"

The earnest gaze, the passionate voice with its deep tremor drew Dick upright, thrilling and eager, conscious of strange, unfamiliar impetuosity.

"Thorne, I should say I was glad to be the fellow," replied Dick.

Their hands locked for the moment, and they sat down again with heads close over the table.

"Listen," began Thorne, in low, swift whisper, "a few days, a week ago—it seems like a year!—I was of some assistance to refugees fleeing from Mexico into the States. They were all women, and one of them was dressed as a nun. Quite by accident I saw her face. It was that of a beautiful girl. I observed she kept aloof from the others. I suspected a disguise, and, when opportunity af-forded, spoke to her, offered my serv-ices. She replied to my poor efforts at Spanish in fluent English. She had fled in terror from her home, some place down in Sinaloa. Rebels are active there. Her father was cap-tured and held for ransom. When the ransom was paid the rebels killed him. The leader of these rebels was a bandit named Rojas. Rojas saw the daughter, made off with her. But she contrived to bribe her guards, and escaped almost immediately before any harm befell her. She hid among friends. Rojas nearly tore down the town in his efforts to find her. Then she disguised herself and traveled by horseback, stage and train to Casita.

"She had no friends here, no money She knew Rojas was trailing her. This talk I had with her was at the railroad station, where all was bustle and confusion. No one noticed us, so I thought. I advised her to remove the disguise of a nun before she left the waiting-room. And I got a boy to guide her. But he fetched her to this house. I had promised to come in the evening to talk over the situation with her.

"I found her, Dick, and when I saw her—I went stark, staring, raving mad over her. She is the most beautiful, wonderful girl I ever saw. Her name is Mercedes Castaneda, and she be-longs to one of the old wealthy Span-ish families. She has lived abroad and in Havana. She speaks French as well as English. She is—but I must be brief.

"Dear lady, Rojas will hound you no more tonight, nor for many nights."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

What Wives Know.

"Experience teaches a wife that the more she agrees with her husband, no matter how big a fool he is, the better she gets on," said a woman in an Eng-lish police court.

FITTS IS BACK IN HOSPITAL

Past Commander of California Depart-ment Incapacitated as Result of Recent Campaign.

In a Los Angeles hospital lies Buron R. Fitts, past commander of the Cal-ifornia department of the Amer-ican Legion, with the knee that was shattered by shrapnel in the Argonne once more in splints as a result of his strenuous activity in the campaign which obtained farm and home loans for needy veterans.

Buron R. Fitts.

In efforts to obtain support for the ex-service men's measures before the recent election, Mr. Fitts made one of the greatest speaking tours ever undertaken in any state. He made 165 speeches in 152 towns in all parts of California. The physical and mental strain under-mined the health of the Legion leader. In addition, in trying to keep all of his speaking engagements he often used an airplane. One of the planes in which he was riding crashed near Carpinteria, pinning Mr. Fitts under the wreckage and injuring his shat-tered leg. Recovering consciousness in the hospital, he began writing tele-grams to be sent over California, urg-ing the people to vote for the two issues he had fought for.

The measures the Legion hero fought for were accepted by the peo-ple of California by a 2 to 1 majority. Fitts' sacrifices will mean that Cali-fornia veterans may obtain farms or homes of their own at a low rate of interest and on easy, long-time pay-ments. Also thousands of acres of California lands—provided for by the last legislature—will be settled by vet-erans with this aid. Taxation is not increased. The provisions are in no way a bonus, but every cent is to be repaid by the veterans with interest.

Mr. Fitts is a deputy district at-torney of Los Angeles county. He ob-tained national note for his efforts in behalf of disabled ex-service men as vice commander, commander and national executive committeeman of the California department.

EX-SERVICE MEN VALUABLE

Director of Welfare Division of Large Concern Says Boys Have Lost Restlessness.

Men who fought in the World war have lost their restlessness and are becoming the most valuable employees of big business estab-lishments, accord-ing to Henry A. Reninger of Al-lentown, Pa., di-rector of the safe-ty and welfare division of a large cement company.

Henry A. Reninger.

Mr. Reninger stated that the policy of his com-pany was to give every man who went to war his old job or a better one when he returned and that ex-service men are given preference in employ-ment which has developed since the war.

"There are a number of American Legion members on our safety and welfare committee," said Mr. Renin-ger. "Their service is of the highest order and they have become the hard-est workers on our staff."

Before Mr. Reninger and his Legion assistants tackled the job of reducing accidents among the 5,000 employees of his company, 75 working days out of 100,000 were lost because of acci-dents. This year Mr. Reninger be-lieves that the number of days lost will be only 25.

Mr. Reninger is a member of the Legion post at Allentown and has taken a prominent part in the Legion's activities in Pennsylvania.

NAMED TO DEAL WITH CRIME

H. Findlay French, Representing Le-gion, Elected Secretary Baltimore Criminal Justice Commission.

A survey of the courts, prisons, par-don and parole system, social condi-tions and all other elements of the community life bearing upon the pre-vention and punishment of crime is part of the work of H. Findlay French, recently elected secretary of the Balti-more criminal justice commission.

The commission has been formed by the Baltimore American Legion, Chamber of Commerce, Board of Trade, Clearing House association, Women's Civic league and similar or-ganizations. Mr. French, who is Amer-ican Legion national executive commit-teeman from Maryland, represents the Legion on the commission.

Mr. French has stated that the com-mission has received the heartiest co-operation from the similar commission in Chicago, which has been in exist-ence for two years, and from the Cleve-land commission, which is a year old. The Baltimore commission, he said, will be guided largely by the experi-ence of these commissions.

The aim of the commission is to make recommendations for improve-ment of the means of apprehending and punishing criminals and prevent-ing the conditions that breed crime.

During the World war Mr. French served with the Eightieth division.

News of Klemme and Vicinity

Ford

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

Four Door

Sedan

$725 F. O. B. Detroit

COMPLETE SATISFACTION

Complete automobile satisfaction is the result of buying both wisely and economically rather than the desire and means to buy extravagantly.

Figure out your every automobile requirement and you will find it in a Four-door Ford Sedan—a family car of distinction and beauty—a car of comfort and convenience—a car of dependability and service—a car that will give you complete satisfaction.

You should place your order now if you wish to avoid delay in delivery.

Terms if desired.

(We have just received some Willard 4-cell, 8 volt storage batteries for radio.)

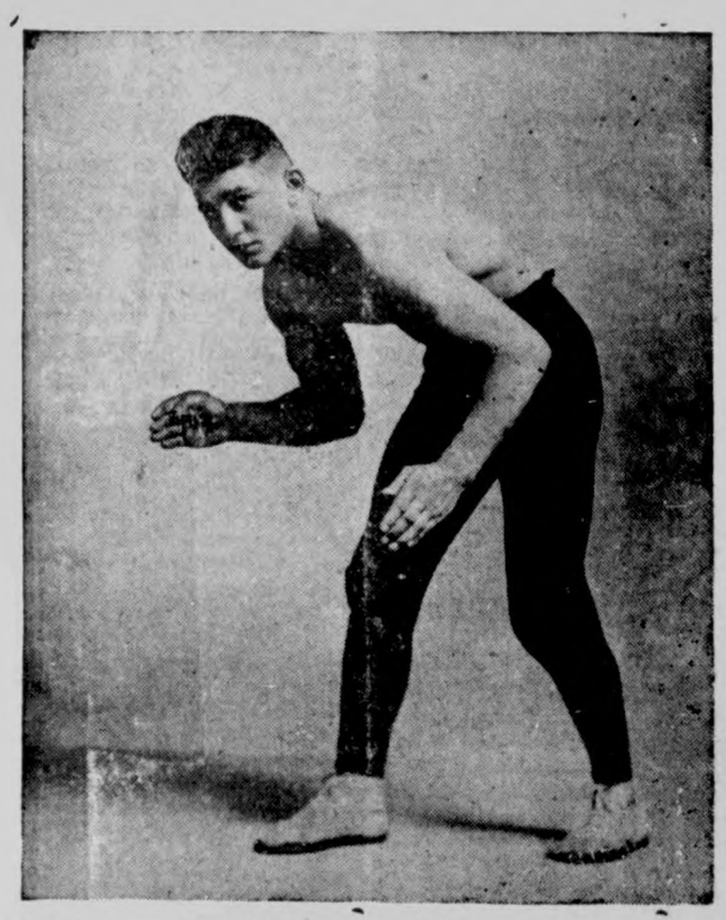
Greimann Motor Co.

The Ford Garage

WRESTLING

Idle Hour Theatre, Klemme

Friday, January 26



YOUNG PREHN, OF MASON CITY, IOWA

Finish Match

Willer vs Young Prehn

155lb. State Middleweight Champion

158lb. Fast Mason City Grappler

Don't Miss This One!

W. F. Pavey was at Mason City on business lats Friday.

Remeber Lau's 3rl Annual Duroc Jersey Sow Sale, Jan. 30. adv

Everything Cholera Immune. At Lau's Sow Sale. Jan. 30, Klemme.

First class machinery, fine stock at Stokesbary's sale, January 25th.

GINGHAMS, Ginghams, ginghams, at G. W. Kluckhohn & Sons. adv

Fresh Pastery of all kinds. Irving Cafe. adv-pd

Cinnamon Rolls, light rolls, fresh daily. Irving Restaurant. advpd

Rev. Bergmann returned Saturday from his visit at Odeboldt, Iowa.

Quite a lot of live stock was shipped out of here Saturday night.

D. D. Ross and daughter. Bernice, of Garner, were in toyn Monday.

WANTED—10 good horses and work harness. Geo. Zinn. adv

Wrestling match next Friday nite Jan. 26.

See Jacobs' 49c Safety Razors, Friday and Saturday only. adv

Sheriff E. P. Hanson was a business caller in this vicinity Monday.

Mrs. Hake returned last night rom St. Paul.

Ray Nelson, of Garner, was in his city last night.

Mrs. Wellemeyer is assisting at he store this week during the absence of some of the help.

If you haven't got a sow for the boy for the 1923 Pig Club, come to Emil Laus Sale, Jan. 30. adv

R. W. Elder has been on the sick list the past few days suffering with a severe cold.

R. A. JJorgenson drove to Garner last Frilay afternoon on business.

A. D. Gimer was at Abbott, Iowa, visiting his relatives Wednesday and Thursday.

Toile du Nords, French. and Silver Tisue Ginghams just arrived at G. W. Kluckhohn & Sons Store. adv

Mr. Dorr, of Belmond, was in this city Frilay, looking after matters of ousiness.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Day drove over o Belmond Friday on business and also to visit friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Sherman of Goodell were Klemme shoppers on Saturday.

$.) Keen Kutter Safety Razors for 49c, Friday and Saturday only. Jacobs & Son. adv

Taxpayers meeting Friday night of this week at the School House, at 7:30 o'clock.

Oscar Musfelt, of Clarion, yas in Klemme yesterday visiting with his parents.

Mrs. M. O. Barr and Mrs. Henry Lewis drove over to Mason City Tuesday afternoon.

If you need some good stock or farm machinery, then look over the G. R. Stokesbary sale bill in this paper.

Farmers! If you need some good hogs, cattle, horses or more farm machinery, then attend G. R. Stogesbary's sale January 25th.

Come in and see the new ginghams which have just arived, many beau ifull patterns to select from. G. W. Kluckhohn & Sons. adv

Walter Bredlow, Henry Wade and son "Jimmy" all went to Chicago Saturday evening with a shipment of stock.

Mrs. Darner returned to her home at Minneapolis Tuesday. after a two months visit at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. L. Hesselhuus.

Mrs. Walter Bredlow and children have been visiting at the Ulrich home this week during the absence of Mr. Bredlow, who went to Chicago Saturday.

Mr. Haggart, of Des Moines, was here to conduct services Sunday at the Klemme churches. He gave a lecture on temperance.

Charles Gibbs came down from Big Lake, Minn. last week Thursday evening. He remained in this vicinity until Monday, visiting with relatives and friends.

Quite a number from Klemme and vicinity went to Garner last Thursday to attend the funeral of Mr. Henry Lemke, Sr.

Remember that Lau's sows are all bred to Great Orion's Sensation Again, the sire of the 1, 2, 3, Junior Sow; 1, 2, 4 Junior Boar Pig; 1, 2 Produce of Dam and Get of Sire—prizes at the Hancock County 1922 Pig Club. Lau's sale Jan. 30.

The A. G. Lau sale last week yas a very successful farm sale. Mr. Lau was in the office the other day and was well pleased with the result. He paid his advertising bill and said it was certainly well spent money and that he could see that advertising had paid him well. Mr. Lau used generous space in the Times as well as posting up bills.

A number of Klemme relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Nels Nelson, of Clear Lake, drove over to that city Monday to asist Mr. and Mrs. Nelson celebrate their Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary. Mr. Nelson had rented the Opera House there for the big event. Over a hundred people attended.

Rev. M. L Metcalf, who is conducting meetings at Alexander, Iowa, and his singer, John Peterson, returned to Klemme with Herb Bailey who drove over to Alexander Sunday night Monday evening Rev. Metcalf held a service in Klemme which was greatly enjoyed by his many friends here. He finishes at Alexander on Sunday night and a week later will begin meetings at Crystal Lake.

Returning home from Garner one day last week in his car, Henry Lemke got into a little tangle-up. His car was struck by another car being driven by a priest and a companion. Henry's car came out second best in the collision. The fault seemed to be with the priests. They settled with Henry a few days later and he seems satisfid that the settlement was fair. No one was hurt.

The Griemann Motor Co. have been doing a rushing business the past week. They have sold and delivered to C. M. Bredbenner a Ford Truck; Paul Goll a Ford Touring; Laban Campbell a Ford Roadster; Lew Griffen a Ford Touring; and Alzo Blank a Ford Coupe. E. C. Buentenbach bought a Ford Tractor which was delivered the other day. They have also quite a string on the "waiting list."

And still we have that lovely California weather.

Third Annual Sale Of

Duroc Jersey Bred Sows

Tuesday, January, 3

At 11:00 on the Lau F

This offering is bred to my fam prize winning boar- - -Great Ori Sensation Again.

4 Tried Sows

1 July Yearling

36 Fall Yearlings

7 Spring Gilts

If you need some good sows, h is your chance to get the very bes

Emil W. Lau

Col. L. A. Matern, Auct. State Savings Bank, C

Klemme, Iowa

Improvements Cost Money

OUR CUSTOMERS and the PUBLIC have obse the General growth of our Company, but perhaps have had information regarding specific improvements and tensions of the Service, which we believe that you sh have, and accordingly, we will in our advertisements you facts concerning Improvements and extensions pla and being done.

We are inviting you to Invest your money in the C mon Stock and want you to know WHY this investmen offered, and HOW and WHERE the money you inves being used.

Money invested in the Common Shares, now payi % Annually in Dividends, is an Investment in the Pu Service Needs, and the future of our Own Community.

See any employee, or Mr. D. J. Thornton, Securi Representative.

Ask US for ALL the Information.

Iowa Falls Electric Co.

Iowa Falls, Iowa. H. F. Kellogg, Mana

STILLE'S IMPLEMENT NEW

VOLUME 1. Thursday, January 18. 1923 NUMB

Next Spring may be just like last spring—heavy rains— discouraging weather— that never-get-anywhere feeling that crept over you when you saw how hopeless it looked. When bad weather makes the plowing, tilling, seeding and planting seasons overlap, there's only one insurance against loss in getting your crops in too late—more power. A McCormick-Deering Tractor will supply that power with a limitless fund of reserve energy packed under the hood. You can work it all day and all night if necessary. Its four powerful cylinders never get tired, and when all your work seems to come at one time, the McCormick-Deering 10-20 or 15-30 will lighten the task, help get your crops in on schedule, and insure you a profit at harvest time. Better find out more about the new McCormick-Deering the next time you're in town.

We haven't been preaching raise of price on machinery, but will just say that if you need some new machinery for next summer and are sure you want it, you can put in your order now. It will help you this much: if the price goes up later you need not pay the price goes down you get the drop. You don't need to pay a cent down; just drop in and tell us what you need, we'll do the rest. It is a favor to the dealer because he can make a better estimation of how much stuff to order for the next season. And say, just by the way we have information in hand now, just a little inside "dope" that the orders will have to be in this week by the 12th. Better get protected on the price.

We sold several of those McCormick-Deering feed grinders this week again. After a man sees them work he wouldn't use anything else because the best isn't too good for the man who wants to make good.

We sell everything the hired man uses on the farm for raising crops, except profanity, and if he uses our machines he won't need that.

When you buy a corn sheller buy a good one. Just because it doesn't cost as much as a tractor, a motor truck or an engine, is no reason for not selecting it with just as great care. Look at the woodwork; is it badly cut—does it show signs of ill-seasoning and warping? Look at the shafts and pinions; are they roughly cast with no finish on the bearings? Look everything carefully before deciding. Mc ick-Deering Corn Shellers will the closest inspection; the wa seasoned; the bearings are fi They are all of large capaci will deliver clean corn and cobs. McCormick-Deerings ar all sizes—hand, hand and and cylinder shellers. Let us g prices and other information.

Here's a tip. When you thinking of getting a McCo Deering Feed Grinder, start ing at the same time of getti International Kerosene Engine with it. Practically everyone why the Mc-D. Feed Grinder i why it has such large capaci why it lasts longer and does work. The International Eng made by the same company made to deliver that steady, d able power required to run th Cormick - Deering grinder. T partners. When they work to you get a higher grade of effi all around. You don't have to about a poor engine to run a grinder, or a good engine to poor grinder—they're both When you buy one, buy the We sell 'em both.

THE KLEMME TIMES

Twenty-seventh Year—Number 20. Klemme, Iowa, Thursday Afternoon, January 25, 1923 $1.50 In Advance—$2.00 Outside of County

SCHOOL PROPOSITION A BIG ISSUE IN KLEMME

TWO PROPOSITIONS ARE UP FOR ELECTION

All Conversations Lead To School House Question

As was announced in the last issue of the Times a taxpayers meeting was again held at the high school Friday night to talk over the situation concerning the school problem which we are now facing.

At this meeting a petition was in circulation asking for $15,000 with which to build a proposed addition to the present building as outlined in a former plan submitted last year. This petition received quite a number of signers. However, there were some present who did not favor this petition but who would rather spend more money and put it all into a new proposed building. So a couple of days later another petition was put in circulation asking for a new building. This petition also received the names of a great many taxpayers in the district.

Now, the school board is confronted with two perfectly good requests: one for an improvement; the other for a new building.

Both of the propositions will be decided at a special election to be held in the fore part of March, as a notice of publication for each must be printed for about five weeks before election.

We predict that this special election will create more of a "rumpus" in Klemme than any other election ever held. The voters will be out in full strength. It will cause more excitement than any presidential election ever held. What the outcome will be is a matter of conjecture. It is not safe to bet either way as the situation now stands.

The people have awakened to the fact that something must be done in Klemme for the school, and they are certainly arising to the occasion.

Of course difference of opinion is the why and wherefor of an election and there is certainly a wide difference of opinion as to what should be done hee: an improvement or an entirely new building. You will decide the question.

OBITUARY

Millie Elizabeth Brooks was born at Amsterdam, Iowa, October 29th, 1875; and died January 16th, 1923. Age 47 years, 2 months and 17 days.

Miss Brooks was united in marriage to Abram C. Smith in 1893, at Belmond, and lived on his father's farm southeast of Goodell until Mr. Smith's death, July 6th, 1904, after which the deceased moved to a home 4 miles southeast of Goodell, remaining there until 7 years ago. She moved from there to a place 8 miles east of Klemme, where she taught the Lindon school for two years. Then she moved to Clear Lake for a short time, and at last to Klemme four years ago last June, from that time she was intimately connected with the business life of our town in the Wellemeyer Department Store.

The deceased leaves five children to mourn her departure—LuVerne and wife, Leoda, Lola, Edna (Doyle) and husband, and Mildred, all living in Klemme. Also an aged mother, Mrs. J. W. Brooks of Klemme, and three sisters: Laura Brooks of this city; Mrs. Joe Starnes, living 7 miles east of Klemme, and Mrs. Chas. Luck, of Clear Lake; two brothers, Ollie and Harry of Clear Lake; besides many other relatives and a host of friends.

The remains were laid to rest in the Amstedam Cemetery, Januarp 19th, 1923.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our thanks for the kindness shown during the illness and death of our beloved mother, daughter and sister. Also for the beautiful flowers.

—The Children,
—Mrs. J. W. Brooks and Family.

Basket Social and Play

Two little plays—Tom Thumb's Wedding, and Mother Goose's Gosling, will be given at the basket social at the Center School, Twin Lakes twp., on Friday evening, January 26th. Ladies bring baskets. Nora Ellefson, teacher.

KNEESKERN FOUND GUILTY

Jury Was Out Only Six Hours

CHARLES CITY, Jan. 23.—The jury in the trial of B. F. Kneeskern, accused of the murder of Irene and Charles Van Brocklin, came in with a verdict of guilty at 10:45 o'clock this forenoon.

Life imprisonment was recommended by the jury.

The verdict is the same as the one in the Castalia stock buyer's first trial at Decorah.

The defense will have ten days in which to file a motion for appeal. Judge C. H. Kelley will withhold sentence until after that time.

The jury was out about six hours. Three ballots were required to conviction but the juy balloted several times afterwards on the penalty. On the third ballot the count stood 7 to 5 for hanging.

Kneeskern, in court when the jurp filed in, showed no emotion. His wife however, broke down when the verdict was read and Mrs. Rachael Rice, mother of the slain girl, who defended Kneeskern in her testimony, cried: "He's not guilty." and swooned. She was taken from the room by officers and revived.

Kneeskern was placed under arrest by Sheriff Cutler of this county immediately after the verdict was read and placed in the Floyd county jail. The defendant has been at liberty on $40,000 bond during the course of the trial, which opened here Jan. 3, change of venue.

MASON CITY PASSES T. B. MILK ORDINANCE

Mason City has amended their milk ordinance so that from the time of the first publication it will be illegal for anyone to sell milk in Mason City that is not from a cow tested and passed by a licensed veterinarian as being free from tuberculosis.

There are quite a numbr of towns in this vicinity where such an ordinance is now in effect.

Why not pass a T. B. milk ordinance in Klemme? It will assure milk customers of getting pure milk free from the dreaded disease.

AN APPRECIATION

In the passing of Millie Smith we have lost an important spoke from our store organization.

Mrs. Smith was manager of our Dry Goods Dept., where she did the buping and helped with the selling.

She was a good judge of merchandise and the young ladies from near and far sought her advice in matters of dress.

She was accurate in figures, fair in her dealings with the Public and honest in the handling of the Store's merchandise and money.

She was cheerful and kind to everybody and her death is mourned by customers and the Store Folks alike.

—Arthur Wellemeyer.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS

The Camp Fire Girls held their first Ceremonial Meeting on Thursday evening of last week, in the 1st National Bank Basement.

Adela Schroeder, Blanche Hulse, and Ethel Wellemeyer took part in the Ceremonial program.

Nearly all of the members were present.

All the gils wishing to become Camp Fire Girls should consult with the Guardian, Mrs. C. W. Wiles, as soon as possible.

The new members are to be taken in at the next meeting, which will be held in the bank basement on Thursday evening, January 25th.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

Somebody has circulated a false and damaging story connecting my name with that of chicken thieves. I want to say that all such stories are false, and furthermore I will pay a reward of $25.00 to the person who can locate the party who started this story.

(Signed) HENRY MAITLAND.
January 19, 1923. 2w

MILK WITH MUCH CEREMONY

Dairying as a Ritual in Royal Court in District of Uganda, Central Africa.

The remarkable and elaborate ceremonies observed in Bundoro, Uganda, in Central Africa, in milking the sacred cows are described by Rev. John Roscoe in the London Illustrated News. After the sacred cows had been led to the royal abode by a herald, two milkmaids appeared, one bearing a horn of water and a brush with a short handle, the second carrying a milkpot. Each of these women was purified and decorated, having the face, chest and arms whitened with pipeclay. The milkmaid handed the brush to a milkman, who rubbed the cow's udder, and handed the brush back to the maid. He then took his place behind the cow, and held its tail so that it could not whisk dust into the milk during the milking.

The maid now turned to the other man, and poured a little water over his hands, as he squatted by the side of the cow. After washing, the man held his hands together raised, until the other milkmaid placed the milkpot between his knees, when he milked the amount the cow was expected to give. Neither of these men must look at the women, or speak to them, on pain of death. In this manner two cows were milked, and the milk was carried away into the dairy.

Another milkmaid, ceremonially cleansed and whitened, came and knelt before the king, and announced that the milk had arrived. The king then rose, and, as he did so, the guard at the door announced to the court that the king had gone to drink milk. Here upon men and women knelt down, covered their faces, and refrained from coughing or making any sound, especially from clearing the throat. Such an action was punishable by death. Owing to the stringent rules for milkmen and milkmaids, their office was held for two days only at a time.

Anything in Reason.

Some of the easterners are impressed with the tangelo, which has been in process of development for many years but is only now trickling into the markets in numbers. This is a combination of the tangerine with the grapefruit or pomelo. It has some of the good qualities of both fruits but naturally shrinks some from the massiveness of the finer specimens of the pomelo. It is a mild-mannered grapefruit that can be eaten out of hand without spraying the scenery or mussing up the face of the devotee. It has been raised in Arizona and Southern California and is also a Florida possibility. We strive to please. If deemed desirable we will turn out a lemonrange—one side of which can be used to make a lemon pie and the other an orangeade.—Los Angeles Times.

Reasonable Supposition.

"A hant, or something, is raising thunder at Gabe Hornbuggle's house," related a neighbor. "was there tuther night, and after we'd set for a spell it commenced. The table was flopped over by unseen hands, three drawers of the bureau slid out by their selves and dumped all the stuff on the floor, a flock of spoons came floating in from the kitchen, a gun in the corner fell down and shot one of the dogs, and all such as that. I never seed such goin's-on in my life!"

"Then you hain't never drunk none of Gabe's bone-dry licker before?" inquired a resident of Mount Pizgy, Ark.—Kansas City Star.

"Uncle Joe's" First Wage.

Joseph G. Cannon, former speaker of the national house of representatives, went to work in 1850 at the age of fourteen years. His first job was clerk in a grocery store, and one of his duties was to deliver parcels as well as wrap them. He worked "from sun to sun," as was the custom in those days, and in the winter he started work before sunup and worked until sundown. His wage was $1.50 a week, out of which he was expected to board and clothe himself.

Wished on Him.

It had been the custom of her family to name the first child after her family. So when Washburn was about six years old one of the neighbors remarked to him, "Washburn is a very funny name for a first name. How did they ever come to call you that?"

Washburn was very quick to reply. "That was my mother's name and when she married pa, she had no more use for it. So they just wished it on me."

Embarrassing Questions.

Now when the mortality rate of grandmothers, etc., is about to reach its peak, one firm, a large employer of boys, and evidently with some feeling for grandmothers, has inaugurated an employment application blank which calls for full and detailed information regarding the health of their relatives.—New York Evening Post.

WELLEMEYER USES QUARTER TON PRINT PAPER TO ADVERTISE SALE

Will Have Big Furniture Sale Beginning February 3rd

Without a doubt the best advertised sale ever held in this vicinity will be the Furniture Sale beginning February 3rd at the Wellemeyer Department store.

To tell the people in twelve towns and their vicinities of the big sale, Wellemeyer used up a quarter of a ton of print paper, about ten pounds of printers' ink, a hundred pounds of linotype metal and about four thousand five hundred one cent post age stamps to mail out the circulars. Besides the mailing list he is also using a double page adv in the Times this week; he is plastering the roads with signs, and also delivering bills here and there..

The Times force has been real busy the past few days getting out the big double page circulars, which required a lot of time and patience. Yesterday Wellemeyer had his entire store force, and about a dozen others, busy folding and helping to mail the circulars, as fast as the press could roll them out.

Look over the big adv in this issue, it is just like the bills and is sure crowded over with bargains in the furniture line. Wellemeyer is putting on a big furniture sale and he is putting it on in a big way and no doubt he will have a ecord breaking crowd at the sale, which will last a week.

EMIL LAU'S SALE WILL BE HELD TUESDAY, JAN. 30th

This is Lau's Third Annual Sale Of Bred Sows and Gilts

Next Tuesday Emil Lau will hold his third annual sale of Bred Sows at his farm ½ mile west and 1 mile south of Klemme on the Wilson highway. The sale starts at 1:00 P. M. He will serve a free dinner at noon.

At this sale of Duroc Jersey Bred Sows will be offered 38 head, as follows: 4 head of tried sows, 1 July yearling, 26 fall yearlings and 7 spring gilts. These are practically all bred to his wonderful herd boa, Great Orion's Sensation Again.

This boar is attracting a lot of attention among breeders for he is without a question one of the bes Duroc Jersey boars in the country.

Emil looks for a record sale this time and says he has as fine a bunch of sows to offer as ever was put in a sale ring.

Catalogs are now ready, ask for one and it will be mailed to you.

FORD SEDAN STOLEN AT GARNER FRIDAY NIGHT

A new Ford sedan belonging to George Knapp was stolen at Garner Friday night between 10 and 11 o'clock. The older son, Elmer, with his sisters, had motored in from their home, one and a half miles east of town, to attend the high school carnival and because of so many other cars being lined up at the school grounds, Elmer left his in front of the August Katter residence, which is across the intersection to the north east. At the close of the evening's entertainment the car was found to be gone, but thinking someone had played a practical joke he spent some time hunting for it about the town. Failing in this he appealed to Sheriff Peck Hanson, who at once got busy and phoned north, south, east and west, and also to the Autoist Theft Bureau at Des Moines, but as yet no results have come.

We understand that Knapps had purchased the car only a few days ago.

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT OF EXECUTOR

Notice is Hereby Given, That the undersigned has been duly appointed and qualified as Executor of the Estate of JACOB BLUMER late of Hancock County, State of Iowa, deceased. All persons indebted to the estate are requested to make immediate payment; and those having claims against the same will present them, duly authenticated, to the undersigned, for allowance.

Dated Jan. 18, 1923 A. D.
STATE SAVINGS BANK,
(Jan 25. Fb, 1-8.) Executor.

NEWS OF THE WEEK REPORTED BY THE K. H. S.

The Semi-Exams were given on Thursday and Friday mornings. The afternoons of these two days gave the students a time for rest, but the eaches received no res at all, no not any. They worked hard in the afternoons of these two days correcting papers, filling out report cards, and fixing the recod books up into good shape to start the new semi with a clean sheet.

The whole school rejoiced Monday and Tuesday, yes, it did. We had a visitor for once—Miss Dorothy Smith, sister of Miss Sara Smith, the Grammar Room teacher. "Dot" visited the High School Tuesday p. m. All the students agreed that her company certainly brightened the study and recitation periods of the afternoon. We all hope we can entertain her again, and many others during the remaining weeks and months of the school term.

During the absence of Maybelle Johnson, Adela Schroeder has taken the task o playing the march for the dismissal of thhe high school students. The cause for Maybelle's absence is unknown.

The Commercial Geography class has more students enrolled than the former number enrolled in the high school. Wha said our high school has grown within the past year? Who said we don't need a new school house? Here's hoping that they who say these things will onlp come to visit our Com. Geo. class, and see how the students are packed in the recitation room fo their work, as sardines in their can ready for market.

Thursday morning the high school students will elect their new officers for the High School Activities Association; also election of new editors will take place. Here's hoping we'll hear some news. The officers will hold their respective offices for a six week period, and then another election will take place again.

The whole Junior class—Clarence Elder, Dolores Koerner, Marie Blank, Maybelle Johnson, Bertha Johnson, and Bernice Tanner are all proud to say they were exempt from all their semester exams. We challenge the other grades to equal this record. The exemption means that each student's average was above 90 percent. Hurrah for the Juniors. Come on Sophies and Freshies, show us some.

Monday Miss McKahan stated the drilling of the Declamatory Contest pieces. It has not been settled as yet where the contest will be held. Watch for further notice as to the date and place where it will be given.

Exempt From Exams

Algebra—
Alvina Buss, Elvira Stille, Florence Behringer, Ruth Johnson, Russell Bell, Ruth Lau, Caryl Lau, Mabel Schaffer, Stella Bock.

Medieval & Modern History—
Harvey Barz, Andrew Wellemeyer, Adela Schroeder, Maurine Hake.

Advanced Civics—
Faith Ax, Andrew Wellemeper, Adela Schroeder, Harvey Barz, Dolores Koerne.

Ancient History—
Ruth Johnson, Mable Schaffer, Elvira Stille, Florence Behringer, Frk. Gibbs.

Agriculture—
Faith Ax, Adela Schroeder, Andrew Wellemeyer, Clarence Elder, Harvey Barz, Bertha Johnson, Bernice Tanner, Maie Blank, Maybelle Johnson.

American History—
Maybelle Johnson, Dolores Koerner, Marie Blank, Bernice Tanner, Bertha Johnson, Clarence Elder.

Political Economy —
Maybelle Johnson, Dolores Koerner, Marie Blank, Bernice Tanner, Bertha Johnson, Adela Schroeder, Clarence Elder.

General Science—
Cayl Lau, Blanche Hulse, Martin Barz, Florence Behringer, Alvina Buss, Elvira Stille, Frank Gibbs, Mable Schaffer.

American Literature—
Bertha Johnson, Marie Blank, Clarence Elder, Maybelle Johnson, Bernice Tanner, Adela Schroeder, Andrew Wellemeyer.

9th English—
Martin Barz, Ruth Johnson, Florence Behringer, Stella Bock, Caryl Lau, Mable Schaffer, Blanche Hulse, Alvina Buss, Ruth Lau, Frank Gibbs, Elvira Stille, Russell Bell.

GOODELL NEWS ITEMS

Mrs. Nelson eturned home from visiting her parents Saturday.

Mrs. White is reported as being very ill at this writing.

Ethel Church returned from Fort Dodge Wednesday.

Gearald Hill of Clarion was a caller here Friday.

Don't forget the dance at the Star Theatre February 1st. A Mason City orchestra will furnish the music.

Art Lowenberg, who attends the school at Fort Dodge, Iowa, spent Saturday and Sunday with his parents.

The Masquerade Dance here Friday night was well attended. Miss Knapp received the prize for the best dressed lady, and Abe Scott for the best dressed man.

Goodell High School Notes

Carl Sandberg was absent Monday.

Gearald Hill, of Clarion, was a welcome visitor Friday morning.

A 2nd-stage amplifier has been added to the radio this week.

Citizenship will be taken up twice a week this Semi on Tuesday and Thursday.

Goodell's Basket Ball teams both won from Meservey Wednesday evening. The girls winning by the large score of 12 to 0. Edith Halfpop starred for Goodell, making two baskets from long distance throws. The guards done very well, as did the centers, who pulled down every long throw that Meservey guards attempted to make. The girls must all be praised for their excellent teamwork. The team stood as follows:

Forwards—E. Halfpop, S. Fuller.
Running Center—M. Kearney.
Jumping Center—L. Miller.
Guards—M. Griggs, V. Flinn.

The Boys' game was also very good, but rather "ruff" and not as fast as the girls. But they were satisfied to carry off 11 baskets. and Meservey had none. The team was as follows:

Forwards—Meyer, Cashman.
Center—Estelle.
Guards—Chase, Sandberg.

Don't fail to see our next game when Crystal Lake plays our return game next Friday night, February 2nd.

AVERY TOWNSHIP

Mrs. John Bachman left Saturday for Waterloo, Iowa, where she will visit with her sister and mother for a few days.

Miss Elvina Buss was a visitor at Averp No. 2 school Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Marshall were Sunday afternoon visitors at the Dan Webner home.

Quite a number in this vicinity have shelled their corn, and still a number of bushels is left yet to shell.

Rank Buss and Reg. Houghton, of Goodell, helped Sylvan Johnson shell corn.

Miss Jennie Meinderts of Meservey, came Sunday for a few days visit at the home of her sister, Mrs. Edd. Bachman.

PACKAGE FROM EUROPE IN THE MAIL FOR EIGHT YEARS

IOWA CITY, Jan. 24.—After waiting eight years and six months, Prof. Bohumil Shimek has received in the mails the collection of rare botanical specimens which he had posted in Austria as the World war broke out in August, 1914. Austrian officials assured him that his collection had been taken care of, but it was evidently caught in the war tie-up, and when the unharmed package arrived in Iowa City, it bore a Stockholm, Sweden, postmark. Proffesor Shimek's rare collection which he gathered in Hungary, will be exhibited in the university botanical museum.

PRESIDENT HARDING IS WELL AGAIN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.— President Harding, who became ill with grippe a week ago, remained away from his office again today. Brig. Gen. Sawyer, his physician, said that while he had practically recovered, he had been advised to remain in seclusion in order to obtain a much needed rest.

Mr. Harding expected to transact routine business in his office, as he did yesterday, but no one had an engagement to see him. Today's cabinet session was called off.

Dr. Sawper said that the president's temperature today was normal and that his condition in every way

TALK OF CHANGING JEFFERSON HIGHWAY

Change Would Bring it Over Shorter Route, Ames to Garner

At a meeting of the officials of the Jefferson Highway at Joplin, Mo., recently, there was some talk of changing the highway to a shorter route. The highway now runs to Mason City and up to Albert Lea. The proposed change would bring the road over a new route from Ames to Garner, which is shorter and then north to Albert Lea, Minn.

The bill introduced by Senator Caldwell in the senate Jan. 16 providing for a tax of 2 cents per gallon on gasoline used in the state had some bearing on the officials. Such a fund thus obtained is to be used in harl-surfacing trunk line road systems. And one of the roads mentioned in the bill is a road from Garner to Ames.

FOR SALE—Poland China Bred Sows. and Brood Rock Cockerels. Wm. Friedow, Britt, Ia., Rt. 1. 2w

SCHOOL NOTES—

UNDER GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION

We Welcome Women's Accounts

The service maintained by this bank includes every courtesy and consideration of our women patrons.

We are proud of the increasing number of women's accounts in our various departments.

Is your among them? Household checking as well as savings accounts are cordially invited.

First National Bank

"The Bank for Everybody'."

Plan Ahead--- Don't Drift

Your chance of making 1923 a year entirely to your liking will be much better if you plan now for what you want to accomplish, than as if you let things take their own course and take them as they come.

In planning your year, the sound financial advice the officers of the State Savings Bank of Klemme are prepared to give you will be of marked importance.

Come in now and let us plan with you for a prosperous and satisfactory year.

State Savings Bank

Klemme Iowa

MIX RELIGION AND POLITICS IN NEAR EAST

Two Are Inextricably Bound Up in Way It Is Hard for Western Mind to Conceive.

CALIPH "WITHOUT PORTFOLIO"

Radical Departure That Is Little Understood Outside of the Islam World—Misconceptions About Faith Add to Confusion.

Did you know that if the Mohammedan world was a religious unit there would be no urgent Near East problem?

Washington.—Near East politics are inextricably bound up with religion in ways it is hard for us to conceive. And some prevalent misconceptions about the Mohammedan faith seem to add confusion to many discussions about Moslem problems.

"A caliph without temporal power is a more radical departure in the Islam world than the western mind at first can grasp," says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"The easiest way to dispel some of these illusions is by pointing to several striking likenesses between the world's two newest among the major religions. The term 'Mohammedan,' like the term 'Christian,' is a nickname. Both names were given, with contemptuous intent, by enemies of the religions.

Both Religions Nicknamed.

"The term 'Christian' was quickly adopted by followers of the Nazarene. The term 'Mohammedan' never has been adopted by the followers of the prophet. He sought to avoid the employment of his own name by supplying one—the name of Islam—by which he hoped Mohammedanism would be known. He further sought to make this word, meaning resignation, imply the five cardinal points of the new faith. The first of these points was the brief creed, 'There is no God but Allah, and Mohammed is his prophet.' The other four enjoined prayer, giving of alms, the fast of Ramodan and pilgrimage to Mecca.

"Another significant parallel between Christianity and Mohammedanism is that both are the religions of millions of people of races alien to that of their founders. Christ was a Jew; Mohammed was an Aram. It is the Mohammedanism modified by the Turkish temperament and nationality that has clashed with Western civilization in recent centuries.

Islam Not a Religious Unit.

"Most misleading of all the illusions about Mohammedanism, however, is the tacit assumption that the Mohammedan world is a religious unit. Seen a long way off the sects and groups fade away. In reality there are two great branches of Mohammedanism, the Sunnites and the Shiites. Among both these branches, and also outside them, there are sharply drawn cleavages.

"Recent caliphs, who have been the sultans of Turkey, have claimed spiritual supremacy over the Mohammedan world of some 300,000,000 souls. But in actual fact the sultan of Turkey had little more spiritual ascendancy over the Mohammedans outside Turkey than the king of England has over the Episcopalians in the United States. In fact there would be no urgent Near East problem at this moment had his leadership been recognized on the other side of the Bosporus in Asia Minor.

Caliphs Have Always Ruled.

"A very important difference between the Western mind and the Mohammedan viewpoint has, hitherto, precluded a spiritual ascendancy of the latter which would cut across all lines of temporal power and include even warring nations. The Mohammedan has no priests. Islam is the most pragmatic of all religions. Heretofore if a caliph did not rule he wasn't a caliph. A spiritual ruler up to now has been incomprehensible to the Moslem mind. Naturally, then, caliphs have sought to rule by the sword.

"Ideas are potent factors in geography. Not only does the Mohammedan conceive it difficult to pray 'Thy Kingdom Come' and then fight for a different kind of kingdom, but, in peace time, his religion and his law go hand in hand. Mohammed was a law giver, not only in the Mosaic but also in the Justinian sense. There are as many codes of law among Mohammedans as there are sects; and as many kinds of lawyers as there are codes. Among the Sunnites, the orthodox major division of Islam, there are four schools of law. A Hanafite would as soon engage a Malakite lawyer as a Presbyterian congregation would be likely to employ a Unitarian preacher.

"The very word 'caliph' has an allurement which dates back to childhood days when you lived among those fantastic Arabian nights at the court of Caliph Harun al Rashid. Rashid was a bona fide caliph, and in your later years a reading of the historical facts about the caliphate furnish no fewer thrills than the immortal tales.

The Early "Successors."

"When Mohammed died his counselor, Abu Bekr, the companion of his flight, or hegira, became caliph, meaning, literally, successor, Abu Bekr means 'father of the virgin.' He was Mohammed's father-in-law. The second caliph, or successor, was Omar, another father-in-law of the prophet, who started organizing armies and began spreading Islam over the map in a very literal sense. Omar was the first to hear of the title Emir al Moumenin, 'Prince of the Faithful.'

"From the first, Ali, husband of Mohammed's daughter, Fatima, considered himself the logical successor to the caliphate. Not until Abu Bekr and Omar had ruled, and another caliph, Othman, had his day and had been murdered as was Omar before him, did Ali become caliph.

"Certainly Mohammedanism can be termed emphatically a 'man's religion.' Yet, at this early date, two women were the moving spirits in splitting it into the Sunnite and Shiite divisions which have prevailed ever since. Ayesha, favorite wife of the prophet, always had been jealous of his daughter, Fatima, and the succession of Fatima's husband directed all her efforts upon an anti-Ali party. Meantime the group which, all along, had regarded Ali as the legitimate successor, gained strength during his rule but were kept busy fighting to hold the sway Omar had established.

"When Ali's son and successor, Hassan, was murdered, probably by the hand of his wife at the behest of Moawiyah, this Moawiyah assumed the caliphate, removed its seat to Damascus, and began the series of rulers known as Ommiades. Henceforth the Shiites were alienated from the Sunnites, or Orthodox Mohammedans, because of their reverence for Ali and Hassan, and their belief that the first of the Ommiades and his successors were usurpers and pretenders. Arabian and Persian Mohammedans inclined toward the Shiite faction.

An Earlier Rebellion of Irak.

"Away back in the days of the successor to Moawiyah the inhabitants of Irak rebelled—the same Irak which only last year launched out again on its national course after electing Emir Feisal as king. Feisal is the third son of the grand sheriff of Mecca.

"It was during another series of caliphates, that of the Abbasid monarchs, that Harun al Rashid ruled. And it was after his reign that the division of the caliphate among his three sons made the caliphate into a sort of commission form of government. One son was to hold sway over Arabia and Syria; another in Persia and Turkestan; and a third in Asia Minor and the Black sea region.

"At another time, toward the end of the Tenth century, Bagdad, Cairo and Cordova, Spain, all were the seats of separate ruling caliphs; though this was no amiable division. Each caliph declared the other a heretic and held himself the lone head of all Islam.

"How Abul Abbas, first of the Abbasid monarchs had every living male of the Ommiades thrown into prison, killed them all, and then gave a banquet on a great cloth thrown over their bones is but one example of the fantastic cruelty of the centuries-long struggle to be caliph.

"The story of the caliphate would fill—has filled—volumes. The assumption of the title by the sultans of Turkey is a modern and perhaps a minor chapter in the struggle to be 'The Successor' and thus to hold sway over this mighty force of Islam. Points of special interest are that force often has played a major part in assumption of the role, that there have been several caliphs both by mutual agreement and also by rivalry, and that acquiring the title of caliph by no means guarantees its recognition by the Moslem world."

MAKES RECORD ON TRICYCLE

Six-Year-Old Boy Travels Distance of 28 Miles in About 9 Hours and 34 Minutes.

Bisbee, Ariz.—John Andrews, six, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Andrews of this city, claims the world tricycle record. One morning recently the boy started for a ride. Late in the afternoon a police officer in Douglas halted him for riding his tricycle on a sidewalk. Douglas is 28 miles from Bisbee. Little John, according to his story, pedaled the 28 miles in about 9 hours, 34 minutes and 40 seconds. He returned to Bisbee in an automobile and found that his parents were greatly worried, but not at all interested in his claim to the tricycle championship.

House, 40 Years to Build, Brings $5,000

The famous old "spirit house" at San Jose, Cal., belonging to the late Mrs. Sarah Winchester, millionaire eccentric, which, after 40 years of construction work stood uncompleted at the time of her death—representing a cost of several hundred thousand dollars—was recently sold to the highest bidder for $5,000.

Mrs. Winchester, it is said, believed that when she stopped work upon her home that she would die. As a result she kept workmen constantly busy changing its construction. The house contains 104 rooms.

PRINCESS NOW FARMERETTE

How the mighty have fallen. The daughter of the former King Ferdinand of Bulgaria has turned to the soil and is now a farmerette, doing all the work on a little farm which she has secured and is working in Bavaria.

CORNCOBS TO BE VALUABLE

Iowa College Students Finding Many Uses for Present Waste Material.

Ames, Iowa.—The time is not distant when it will be just as important to haul corncobs to market as it is hogs today, according to Dr. O. R. Sweeney, head of the chemical engineering department, and other members of the Iowa State college faculty. One professor says he sees the time when every township will have a plant to take care of the corncobs.

Senior students of the chemical engineering department have been working two or three years. It is explained that Iowa has 3,000,000 tons of cobs and that except in a few isolated cases where they are used for fuel they are a total waste. The production for the entire country is about 20,000,000 tons, it is estimated.

Among the substances which have been discovered to be present in cobs are: Paper pulp, suitable for a strawboard substitute, acid tar, wood alcohol, charcoal, pitch, acetic acid, formic acid, pyroligenous acid and furfural. At present the latter substance is selling at a rate of $10 a pound.

It is even possible, chemists say that pipe stems made from an amberlike derivative of corncobs may help to supplant the famous Missouri meerschaum.

GIRL MAIL SORTER EXCELS

New York Clerk Sorts 30,215 Letters in Eight Hours, More Than a Letter a Second.

New York.—In Miss Lulu M. Cargill, clerk in the Varick street branch of the New York post office, the postal authorities here believe they have the champion letter sorter of the world. For speed and dexterity they assert that Miss Cargill holds the palm over any other postal employee either in this country or abroad. In a space of eight hours she sorted 30,215 pieces of mail, more than a letter a second.

Miss Cargill is a resident of Roseville, N. J. She has been in the postal service since 1919 and is twenty-six years old.

Aonther record to which the postal people in New York point with pride was made by Aaron Jacobson in the foreign station on West street. He sorted 22,400 foreign-addressed letters among 49 boxes in seven hours.

BOY WALKS 500 MILES TO 'MA'

Lad Separated From Her Six Years Makes Long Hike to San Francisco.

Los Angeles.—Mother-love called him and Paul Manley Warren of Glendale walked more than 500 miles to San Francisco in response to its hold on his heartstrings. He is fourteen years old. Six years had passed since he kissed his mother good-by.

Occasionally he heard from her and once he received a book. In the cover was written "San Francisco." So he started out with a small pack of clothes for the home of his mother, whose address he did not know.

Suffering from cold and hunger, he arrived in San Francisco. Now mother and son are happily rejoined.

Machine Ends Problem for Doubtful Lovers

No longer need the doubtful lover remain doubtful. An apparatus being perfected by Dr. Albert Abrams, physician, of San Francisco, Cal., will mechanically answer the question of whether love exists in an individual, and if so, how much. The machine measures love by recording the vibration felt by the "patient" when he concentrates his thoughts on the girls of his acquaintance.

TO FINGER-PRINT EVERYBODY IN U.

National System of Identification Is Being Urged for This Country by Experts.

TO TAKE ALL OVER FIVE YE

Pointed Out It Would Result in Turning to Their Families the Thousands of Unidentified Buried Yearly in Potters' Fields.

What do you think of the scheme to take the finger prints of every man, woman and child in the United States?

Washington, D. C.—A national system of identification is being urged by finger print experts. According to the proposed plan three sets of the prints of each person in this country five years of age would be taken. One set would be filed at a national bureau of identification at Washington. A second copy would go to a bureau in the capital of the state in which the individual lived. And the third copy would be filed with local officials in his city or county.

With this system, it is claimed, mysteries of identity would be reduced to a minimum. Finger prints can now be so completely classified and filed that when a pattern is presented for identification, file experts can quickly ascertain whether or not the same print is in their collection.

Thus, suppose a man suffering from aphasia were found wandering about the streets of a southern city. People are singularly careless about carrying marks of identification and it might easily happen that a Chicago shop label in a hat would be the only clue to his identity.

The man's finger prints would be taken and compared with prints of the same type in the local city file. If he were not found there, the Chicago bureau of identification would be asked to compare his prints with similar exhibits in their file. If he were not among the residents of Chicago, the national bureau would search its records. Once the man was identified his next of kin, as named on his finger print card, would be notified.

Identify the Dead.

By a similar process, the majority of unidentified dead could be returned to their families, we are told. Detectives say that every year 40,000 unidentified dead are buried in the potters' fields in this country. More than 100,000 women are reported missing each year, while kidnaped and lost children and missing men constitute a serious problem for every community.

An identification bureau, of course, will not make it much easier to locate a person who has disappeared out of his normal environment, leaving no trace. But every such person who turns up unidentified at a police headquarters or hospital or morgue can be almost surely traced through a national finger print system.

Even in cases of drowning and death caused by burns, where a body is most difficult to identify, finger prints can often be of great assistance. Persons who are overtaken by violent death are apt to clench the hands, and the skin of the finger tips is thus protected.

According to H. W. Bennett, prints expert of this city, every citizen should realize that a complete national finger printing system would be a valuable protection to him.

Unfortunately only a few classes of people—detectives, bankers, insurance men and police officials, principally—appreciate the importance of conclusive identification. It is not easy to stir up enthusiasm among the public, Mr. Bennett says, because the average citizen is not personally interested until he has a specific need for identification.

Mr. Bennett explains that the idea of a national system of finger printing is not new. France, like the United States, has been considering the plan and Argentina already has a working system, though not quite so complete as that proposed for this country.

To start the system, finger prints would have to be taken just as the census is. After that, each year's children attaining six years could be finger-printed on a fixed date.

Patterns Never Change.

Mr. Bennett says that this age limit is not set because of any change in prints due to growth. An individual's finger print patterns do not change from birth to death, except to become larger. A baby four weeks old can be finger-printed, Mr. Bennett explains, though it is difficult to keep the fingers uncurled sufficiently to make a clear print, and the ridges are so fine that they are not easy to analyze. For a permanent record, therefore, it is considered advisable to wait until the sixth year.

Each print record placed on file in national, state, and local bureaus would show the name and address and next of kin of the individual. If he changed his address or if the next of kin died or left the country, the local bureau would expect to be notified of changes to be made on the three records. The efficiency of the system would thus depend to some extent on the co-operation of the public in keeping the record correct.—Frederic J. Haskin in the Chicago Daily News.

.. Hawkeye .. State News

Interesting Items Gathered From all Parts of Iowa

Lumber is going up in price and there is no present prospect for a decline.

Allamakee county is overrun with wolves and foxes. Farmers have already filed claims for $3,000 damages by the animals.

The cost of cable messages from Des Moines to South America has been reduced by the Western Union from 85 to 59 cents per word.

About $7,000 worth of government property is said to have been carried away from the armory fire at Ames as souvenirs by curiosity seekers.

Mrs. Catherine Tallman is dead at Cascade, Iowa, at the age of 108. That's a long time to live—38 years beyond the Biblical allotment to man.

Forty-eight counties were represented at the state midyear efficiency conference for Sunday school workers at the Y. M. C. A. at Des Moines.

It costs $22.75 to have the Iowa bonus law upheld in the district court. Judgment for court costs were assessed the plaintiff by Judge Thompson.

Mrs. George W. Stone passed away at her home at Belle Plaine recently. She was over 75 years old and had been a resident of that city for almost fifty years.

Andrew Thompson Bankston, the last surviving veteran of the civil war living at Farley, is dead at the age of 86 years. Mr. Bankston was married the year before he enlisted, and his wife died while he was in the service.

J. C. Bulman, near Waukon was given a fine surprise when seven teams with full crews drove into his cornfield and husked 1,200 bushels of corn. Mr. Bulman and his hired man have been laid up for six weeks from pneumonia.

Iowa's latest contribution to the ranks of American novelists is John Towner Frederick, a native of Corning, and a graduate of the University of Iowa in 1915. His first novel, "Druida" is about to be put on sale by a New York publisher.

R. W. Bodell, of Waterloo, owns a flock of nineteen white leghorn pullets which he believes have established a record for egg production during December. The nineteen hens averaged twenty-four eggs each during the period, or a total of 463 eggs.

Polk county sheriffs, led by Deputy George Yeager, criminal division chief, are guarding the public highways north of Des Moines for six bank robbers, who looted the bank at Knierim, near Rockwell City recently. Several thousand dollars worth of jewelry, Liberty bonds and other securities were secured by the bandits.

Code revision at the regular session was lambasted right and left at a meeting at the Hotel Wellington where more than 100 legislators enthusiastically applauded denunciations of the proposal and drastic criticisms of Governor Kendall and then gave careful attention to a strong plea by Speaker Joe Anderson that the assembly make at least beginning of the work so as to insure an extra session.

The committee appointments made by Speaker Anderson have been read to the assembly. Hauge of Polk was given chairmanship of appropriations, Edson of Buena Vista, roads and highways, Rankin of Lee, railroads, McClune of Mahaska, motor vehicles, Garber of Floyd, insurance committee, Elliott of Scott, health; Carter of Hardin, schools; Donhowe of Story, banks, and Ulsted of Wright labor.

"Farmers who have been complaining about the shortage of railroad cars and the consequent inability to move their corn have yet to learn that this shortage will mean dollars to them in the next few months," was the statement yesterday of C. O. Reed, government crop statistician for Iowa. Had the farmers had the cars they probably would have shipped their crop out of the state in such quantities as to force down the price.

The American farmer is the most efficient farmer in the world, according to the president of the American Farm Bureau Federation. In his address before the fourth annual convention of the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation recently at Des Moines, Mr. Bradfute said that our farmers crop 30 acres per person of our land, while those of Russia, France, Germany and Japan crop but from one and one-half to nine acres per person. Farm efficiency is more pronounced in Iowa with it's immense farm value of from five to eight and one-half billions and with a production value in 1921 of $758,000,000.

The combination of bureaus, boards and commissions will be the chief work of the departmental affairs committee this year, Lieut. Gov. John Hammill told the senate after inaugural ceremonies.

The Order of Railway Conductors is undecided whether it will support the move for amalgamation of the sixteen railroad unions, according to a statement made by the president of the conductors, following news that Warren S. Stone, of the engineers, and W. G. Lee, of the trainmen, opposed the move.

OKLAHOMA LEGION MEN BUSY

One Post Builds City Park; Another Buys Church Building for Its Home.

The Klingensmith post, No. 126, of Bristow, Okla., with the aid of citizens, built and dedicated a city park, according to William Courtney, post adjutant. The park was named for the post. It is one of the best in the state, the pavilion alone costing $50,000. The roads cost $5,000 and a lake $10,000. The park covers five acres.

A. J. Fogaly.

Not to be outdone in the reports of Legion posts with outstanding records, the Weart Gray post, No. 116, of Drumright, Okla., bought a church building and will convert it into a post home, according to F. P. Schickram, adjutant. The building was paid for out of American Legion funds collected through post activities. The post has sent several standard magazines to the Soldiers' Tubercular sanitarium at Sulphur.

A. J. Fogaly, commander of the Drumright post, recently gave the following report of the post's activities:

"Our post was organized in 1919, and was named for one of the most popular young men that we had in this city, and who lost his life overseas. We had rough plowing for a couple of years because we had determined that we would not accept any charity from our business men, and that any sum of money we raised would have to be through the effort of the membership only. We held some home talent plays and gave dances and various entertainments during the last three years, and not until 1922 were we able to save enough whereby we could purchase a home. During the last year we had carnivals, home-talent plays, baseball team (Legion Baseball league, originated by our post, composed of six teams); we also had the Babe Ruth-Bob Meusel game, and some boxing, together with some dancing.

"An amendment to our by-laws creating a building committee was enacted and the following named as the committee: Milton Speigle, J. G. Fisher and C. W. Saunders.

"This committee immediately began negotiating for a site for the building and purchased a place 100 by 140, at that time the members of the Christian church desired another location and placed a proposition before our committee whereby we could deed the church our property and take their lots and building on an even trade plan. This gives us 55 by 120 feet with the building and all other improvements thereon, and with the cost of about $500 we will own one of the finest club rooms in this part of the state. We have our building paid for and about $700 in the bank. We have received no donations. Every penny was raised by the help of the membership of Weart Gray post, No. 116, who are the most enthusiastic and peppery bunch of ex-service men you can find anywhere."

LEGION MAN IS AN AUTHOR

Stephen C. Noland of Indianapolis, Is One of the Successful Men in Literary Work.

As the World war days pass further back into history, American Legion members who served in the conflict are gradually carving out careers for themselves in the peacetime world.

Stephen C. Noland.

One of the few successful ex-service men who has invaded the field of literature is Stephen C. Noland of Indianapolis, "another Hoosier writer," author of "Sam Blick's Diary."

Noland, who has been an editorial writer for the Indianapolis News for many years, has published a number of short stories and essays. "Sam Blick's Diary" is an amusing account of the daily life of an American business man in comfortable circumstances, who has the customary joys and sorrows of his class.

Noland, who is known as "Steve" to his fellow Legionnaires, was one of the founders of the Hilton U. Brown post of the Legion in Indianapolis and served as its first commander. He was commissioned a first lieutenant at the Second Officers' Training camp and served as an artillery officer in the Eighty-fourth division in America and in France.

The Legion writer has been of great assistance in advice to his comrades in regard to publicity for Indianapolis posts of the Legion.

She Got the Job.

Helen, in person, answered an advertisement for a typist. The prospective boss looked like he would be hard to please and Helen was rather embarrassed. After answering most of his questions concerning her work, he asked, "What machine (typewriter) do you use?" as he glanced out of the window.

Her gaze followed his and she promptly replied, "A Ford."

She got the job.

LEGISLATIVE NEWS

INTERESTING SIDELIGHTS ON THE ACTIVITIES OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Results of Work of our Law Makers Presented to our Readers Each Week Direct from the Capitol

Probably the next most important single occurrence in the assembly when it reconvened last week, following the recess taken after the inauguration of Governor Kendall and Lieutenant Governor Hammill was the announcement of committees of both senate and house by President Hammill of the senate and Speaker Anderson of the house.

These committees are essential before any of the real work of the legislature can be taken up, because all bills are referred to them for preliminary action prior to coming before the chambers for vote. The commiteees were named a week earlier this year than they were two years ago, and the house committees, especially are notable in this session from the fact that they are smaller and fewer than in many past sessions.

Among the committees at least twelve are considered of major value and five of these in the house will be headed by men who were candidates for the speakership against Representative J. H. Anderson, the winner.

Ways and means, judiciary and appropriations are particularly important committees this year. The new taxation measures to be recommended by the joint senate and house committee appointed in the thirty-ninth general assembly to revise the entire tax code of the state, will be acted upon by the ways and means committee; the judiciary committee will get a varied array of new legal bills, and the appropriations committee will have to struggle with the problem of cutting down grants to state government boards and bureaus.

Representative C. F. Clark of Linn county, heads the house judiciary committee, as he did two years ago. In the senate the same committee is divided into two committees with Senator Carl W. Reed of Howard county, chairman of one and Senator J. L. Brookhart of Washington county, chairman of the second.

Representative T. E. Moen of Ly on county, a member of the tax code revision committtee, is given recognition of his familiarity with the tax question by selection as chairman of the ways and means committee for the house. His companion chairman in the senate is Senator Ed M. Smith of Madison county, also a member of the tax revision committee.

Appropriations committees are lead in the house by Representative A. O. Hauge of Polk county, a candidate for the speakership, and in the senate by Senator B. M. Stoddard of Woodbury county. Representative E. P. Harrison, the leading candidate against Anderson for the gavel, was not returned to the appropriations committee chairmanship to which he succeeded after the death of Representative Stone in the thirty-ninth general assembly; but was made chairman of the printing committee.

Representative Edson of Buena Vista county and Senator Holdoegel of Calhoun are chairmen of roads and highways committees; Representative Rankin of Lee county, and Senator Hale of Jones county are chairmen of railroads committees; and Representative McClune of Mahaska and Senator Slosson of Worth county are chairmen of motor vehicles committees.

These chairmanships do not include all of the major positions in committee rooms. Chairmanships are not the only plums sought either for many men who are not chairmen of what are considered choice committees are made ranking members of other important committees.

The strong opposition to code revision at the regular session in both houses of the assembly and equally strong insistence that it be taken up immediately sparred for position through much of the early part of the week. Suspicion of code revision was uppermost in the minds of the new members of the house, because they feared that code revision accompanied by the mass introduction of the whole 262 code bills at one time would clog up all committees so that no new bills could be reported out.

The establishment of a farm credits bureau is also opposed because farmers believe it is a needless overhead and would cut down some of the borrowing power.

The theory is that farmers would rather make a single loan on first mortgage of $15,000 or more up to $25,000 than get two loans, if possible one from the federal land bank and the other from the state.

Road legislation expected to take a rather prominent though not first place position in matters before the legislature early came to the fore with the introduction of the first bills in the senate and house last week. Restriction on the issuance of bonds, amendments to the primary law, improvements on the anti-hog cholera vaccination regulations and taxation were subjects of some others of the fourteen bills introduced. Five of these bills went into the senate secretary's hands and nine into the house chief clerk's.

HERRIN JURORS FREE MINERS

Five Defendants Are Found Not Guilty in Massacre Case.

ELEVEN FARMERS ON JURY

Vote to Acquit After Deliberation of Twenty-six Hours—State Case Rested on Direct Testimony.

Marion, Ill., Jan. 20.—All five defendants in the Herrin massacre case were acquitted by the jury here, after twenty-six hours' deliberation. The defendants were charged with the murder of Howard Hoffman during the riot.

When the news was given out that Judge Hartwell had been summoned to receive a verdict, the courtroom filled quickly. Before calling the jury into the courtroom, Judge Hartwell cautioned the spectators against any demonstration.

The jury then entered. Foreman James Weaver handed the verdict to the judge. In a slow, level tone the judge read the contents of the paper. First he read the acquittal verdict for Leva Mann, and then he read similar verdicts for the four others: Joe Carnaghi, Peter Hiller, Bert Frace and Otis Clark.

Mindful of the court's warning, the spectators remained silent. There was no surging forward to congratulate the acquitted defendants, nor did any of the free men rush to shake the hands of the jurors.

Instead the crowd filed out of the courtroom, while the jury left through another exit, into the jury room.

It is believed that the jury decided in favor of four of the defendants on the first ballot, and that the remaining time was consumed in debating the verdict on the other defendant.

All of the defendants are miners except Peter Hiller, who is a taxi driver. Eleven of the jurors were farmers, two of these being former miners. The twelfth juror is a union miner who farms part of the time.

The state produced witnesses who made direct charges against each of the defendants, some of whom were accused of especially brutal conduct. The defense retorted by placing on the stand witness after witness who swore to alibis for the accused men.

DEBT DEMAND UNREASONABLE

London Daily Express Says U. S. Makes It Impossible to Liquidate Obligations.

London, Jan. 20.—The return from Washington of the Baldwin financial mission without having effected a settlement of the British debt is disappointing, the Daily Express says. It continues: "If America is so unreasonable as to make it impossible to liquidate our obligation without causing widespread suffering in this country, affairs must wait until Washington is more amenable."

"FETCHING" STYLE FOR MEN

Urged to Wear Derby With Red Feather Just Above the Left Ear.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Jan. 20.—A low, flat derby hat, with a small red or gray feather neatly tucked on the left side, just above the ear, is the style of headgear that will be recommended to the International Association of Clothing Designers as the correct topping off effect of a tailor-made man of 1923, it was announced here following a meeting of the style committee of the association.

BAVARIANS RESIST FRENCH

Two Hundred Thousand Rally Under Adolph Hittler, Leader of the National Socialists.

Munich, Jan. 19.—Adolph Hittler, leader of the National Socialists, the nucleuh of the Bavarian fascisti organization, announced that on Sunday he would review 200,000 Bavarian fascisti armed to resist French occupation.

BRAZILIAN STATE REVOLTS?

Censor at Rio Janeiro Clamps Lid on News—Says Reports Are Unfounded.

Buenos Aires, Jan. 20.—A revolutionary movement is reported by the border correspondents of Argentine and Uruguayan newspapers to have started in the state of Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil. Dispatches from Rio Janeiro say the reports are unfounded.

May Take Air Coal.

Paris, Jan. 20.—Germany will be deprived of Ruhr coal altogether if she persists in her policies of obstruction. The French goevrnment has so notified the German charge d'affaires here.

Dies at 125.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 20.—Eveline Booth, a colored woman of Oglethorpe county, Georgia, is dead at the age of one hundred and twenty-five years, nine months and eleven days, according to Dr. William A. Davis.

COL. JOHN A. HULL

Col. John A. Hull, acting judge advocate general of the army, who, with the announcement that Major General Crowder, judge advocate general, will soon retire to be the first American ambassador to Cuba, has been mentioned as his possible successor.

WANT INDIES CONTROL

Drys Strong for U. S. Ownership of Islands.

Vice President Coolidge Favors Acquisition, but Says Residents Must Be Consulted.

Washington, Jan. 18.—Strong sentiment has developed in both houses of congress in favor of the proposal of acquisition of the British and French West Indies in part payment of the war debts owed the United States by Great Britain and France.

Vice President Coolidge and many other leaders who favor acquisition of the islands in the interest of strengthening the natural defenses of continental United States and the Panama canal, have been joined by the drys.

"The reason for our interest in these possessions," said Vice President Coolidge, "is increased by our interest in the Panama canal. They are natural means to its approach, as well as natural barriers for its defense.

"It will be necessary to consult experts in order to make a determination of the financial value which would accrue from these possible annexations. That is only one element to consider, but a most important element. It would be highly desirable, if not absolutely necessary, to secure some expression of opinion from the people most interested, who are the people resident in these localities."

Senator McKinley (Rep., Ill.), who has traveled extensively in the West Indies, is opposed to the purchase.

Senator Willis (Rep., Ohio), one of the authors of the Campbell-Willis anti-beer bill, and Senator Sterling (Rep., S. D.) commonly regarded as the leader of the more radical drys in the senate, declared themselves strongly in favor of acquiring the West Indian islands.

3,350-YEAR-OLD BEEF FOUND

Oldest Canned Meat in the World Discovered in Egyptian Tomb at Lukor.

Lukor, Egypt, Jan. 20.—The oldest canned beef in the world, 3,350 years, has been discovered in the tomb of King Tutenkhamun, in an excellent state of preservation. The meat, embalmed, was in forty receptacles resembling Easter eggs. Other meats found were haunches of venison, trussed ducks and joints of game, in wooden boxes, shaped according to the nature of the contents. Noticeable was a giant duck. Excavators also removed four bronze candlesticks of great beauty.

HOLD GERMAN COAL BARONS

Refusal of Operators to Obey Mandate Brings Prompt Action by the French.

London, Jan. 18.—August Thyssen and three other German coal barons were arrested by the French for persistent refusal to obey General Simon's order regarding coal deliveries, according to a dispatch from Dusseldorf. The Germans apparently were not taken into custody, but were told to consider themselves under arrest.

Senate Passes Capper Farm Bill.

Washington, Jan. 20.—The senate passed the Capper bill providing for co-operative credit associations and other measures for long-time loans to farmers. This completes half of the farm credits program.

Ruhr Finances Seized.

London, Jan. 20.—All branch German banks, credit institutions and tax collector offices in the Ruhr were confiscated by the French, according to a dispatche received by the Central News from Berlin.

BRITISH MISSION LEAVES CAPITAL

Debt Parley Ends and Englishmen Return to London With Report.

INTEREST RATE CAUSES SPLI

Period of Payment Also Figures Disagreement—Mellon Optimistic—Future Negotiations to Be Carried on by Diplomats.

Washington, Jan. 19.—In comple disagreement as to the rate of inte est to be fixed, the amounts of th various payments on the principal ar the time of making such payments, th sessions between the American ar British debt funding commissio which have been endeavoring to reac a satisfactory understandng respec ing the funding of the more tha $4,000,000,000 owed by Great Brita to the United States, adjourned.

The British mission left Washingto for New York and will sail for hom Arriving in London, Stanley Baldwi chancellor of the exchequer, will im mediately lay before his colleagues the British cabinet the situation an outline to them the exact position the American government with respe to the refunding o. the British deb The British commission will not r turn to this country for further co ferences, but future negotiations w be conducted through the British am bassador at Washington, Sir Auc land Geddes, and the members of th American commission.

Secretary of the Treasury Mello chairman of the American commi sion, stated:

"The two commissions have give long and detailed consideration to th questions involved in the funding the debt. Progress has been mad toward a mutual understanding the problems involved and discussion have now reached a point at whi the British government thinks it dep sirable that the chancellor of the ex chequer should return to London f consultation. The discussions hav therefore, been adjourned and th chancellor of the exchequer will s on the 20th instant."

Secretary Mellon added that notun ing further could be accomplished u til after the British mission had la the views of the American commi sion before the Britsh cabinet for in structions.

WORK AS USUAL AT ESSE

Chimneys Smoking and All Industri Active—French Institute a Coal Blockade.

Essen, Jan. 19.—Chimneys a smoking as usual in Essen. All in dustries are active. The Germa are expected to capitulate in a fe days and to co-operate with th French in the exploitation of th Ruhr. The French have instituted coal blockade. Several hundred co cars and several score of barges we stopped en route to Germany and r routed to Strassbourg and Metz.

CAR LOADINGS SET RECOR

History Made by Total of 36,265,178—a 16 Per Cent Increase Over 1921.

Washington, Jan. 18.—The Amer can Railway association reported tha the number of cars loaded with a commodities, other than coal, durin 1922 was the greatest in history, ex ceeding by 16 per cent the total fo 1921. Total loadings, other than coa amounted to 36,265,178 cars, compare with 31,347,816 in 1921.

REID'S DRUG BATTLE END

Movie Star Dies in a California Sanitarium After a Month's Fight to Come Back.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 19.—Wallac Reid has come back to Hollywood He came back in a coffin, and wa placed in an undertaking establish ment just around the corner from th Lasky lot, where he had worked an played for years. He died Thursda in the Bansia Place sanitarium.

BERLIN TO ASK BRITISH AID

Mission on Way to London to Seek Mediation in the Ruhr Crisis.

London, Jan. 19.—The German gov ernment is sending a confidential mis sion to London to request the Britis government to mediate betwee France and Germany, says a dispatch to the Times from Essen.

Must Recant or Quit.

New York, Jan. 20.—Bishop Wil liam T. Manning of the Episcopa church directed the Rev. Percy Stick ney Grant to disavow his denial o Jesus Christ as God and Savior o to resign his ministry.

Another K. K. K. Tragedy.

Bastrop, La., Jan. 20.—Carey Cal houn of Monroe, a witness in th open hearing, on a plantation between Bastrop and Monroe, shot and fatally wounded John P. Parker, Jr., formerly sheriff of Ouachita parish.

7 Days Only!

February 3 to 10

Inclusive

Doors Open at 9 a. m.

A Festival Of Bargains!

Prices have surely reached Rock Bottom at

Wellemeyer's

GREAT SEVEN DAY SALE OF FURNITURE

A Terrific Flood Of Furniture Bargains!

At 9:00 o'clock Saturday morning February 3rd the doors of this Great Store will swing open to the Greatest and Most Remarkable Furniture Sale which this Community has ever beheld. We have now on hand twice as much Merchandise on our Furniture Floor as we usually carry. The New Goods just recieved consist principly of three large shipments: a carload from Burlington; a half car from Chicago; and a half car from Minneapolis, besides other small shipments. You will be pleased with the Quality of Merchandise offered and you will wonder at the LOW PRICES.

7 Days Only!

February 3 to 10

Inclusive

Doors Open at 9 a. m.

A Festival Of Bargains!

Prices have surely reached Rock Bottom at

Wellemeyer's

This Great Seven Day Sale is Your Golden Opportunity to Buy Furniture, Rugs, Linoleum, Pianos, Phonographs, Sewing Machines, Draperies, at lowest price you will see for many months

SEVEN BIG DAYS!

FEBRUARY 3rd to 10th

COME TO THIS FEAST OF BARGAINS---YOUR GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY---THAT'S THE TRUTH, YOU KNOW ITS the Truth

Why?

Three years ago Furniture prices were at the top. Since then we have watched them tumble and fall until a few months ago they reached the bottom and stopped.

Large Assortment

The largest Stock of Home Furnishing ever brought together in Hancock County will crowd our Store during the

Prices

When we go to Market to buy a bunch of Furniture for Spot Cash we naturally look around until we are satisfied we are getting the best goods for the money; for we belive

Mason City

We extend a special invitation to the people of Mason City and other high-priced towns. Thanks to the pavement, you can now get to Klemme, a low-price town, to do your trading. Your home dealers cannot meet our prices for their rents, taxes and overhead expense is too great. Here in Free 100 FRUIT BOWLS of Iridescent Glass—value 50c each—will be given away to the Ladies SATURDAY, FEB. 3rd. At 9:00 A. M. 50 bowls will be given out, and the balance will be given out at 2:00 P. M.—so that every lady will have a chance at these FREE BOWLS.

Free YOU MAY BE THE LUCKY ONE to be presented with a 50 piece SET OF DISHES absolutely FREE. This beautiful derwood dinnerware with the new Bluebird decoration will be given away without cost on SATURDAY, FEB. 3rd, as soon as our sales for the day total one thousand dollars. No purchase required, you merely write your name on a card and drop it in the churn, and the lucky name will be drawn out. In the afternoon of this same day, or whenever our sales have reached two thousand dollars, we will again draw a name from the churn and the name thus drawn we will present free of cost a beautiful Cut Glass Water set worth $15.00, no purchase required. You must be 16 years old. or over, to get in on these FREE GIFTS. Free

9 x 12 GOLD SEAL CONGOLEUM RUGS—Complete line 15 patterns, regular price $16.50. These are new and perfect goods. Sale Price $13.95

THE Wm. C. FREE SEWING MACHINES, best oak cabinet. Regular price $85.00, at just half price, only two are offered at this price Sale Price $42.50

OAK MUSIC ROLL CABINATE regular price $17.00 Sale Price $9.50

DINING TABLE, 6 ft., 45 in. top, 6 inch Pedestal, Golden Oak, Wax Finish, rubbed. Regular Price $26.50. Sale Price $17.50

IF YOU LIVE ANYWHERE IN IOWA IT WILL PAY YOU TO COME TO THIS GREAT FURNITURE SALE

Expert Repairman--

Mr. Geo. Jersey, an expert repairman from the New Home Sewing Machine factory will repair and adjust the head of your New Home Machine FREE of charge; bring in your head while the expert is here. This man Jersey is also a wizard in the use of attachments on Sewing Machines; if you are having trouble using attachments this is your chance to get wise.

30 percent OFF FOR CASH—While Mr. Jersey is here, we offer the entire line of New Home Machines, consisting of a dozen kinds at exactly 30% off the list for cash The cheapest New Home Machine is $12.50.

To those dozen or more parties who now have Sewing Machines in their homes on trial, of the Ruby, Ideal, or New Home make, you may take advantage of this special priec if you will call and settle at the Store during this Sale.

FREE! Each little girl may bring one doll to the Store on Saturday, Feb. 3rd. Mr. Jersey will make you a pretty Doll Bonnet—FREE!

SAVE $50.00 ON YOUR 3-Piece PARLOR SUIT—DAVENPORT, ROCKER and CHAIR.

During this sale we will show on our floor several Davenport Parlor Suits at Special Prices, and in addition to this we will have with us an expert Couch-maker, Mr. George Stoneback, who comes to us direct from the factory with his complete line of yard-wide samples of Davenport coverings. You can pick the frame you like from the Davenports on our floor; then you select your material for covering from the yard-wide samples and actually talk to the man who will see your Davenport made, and by this direct method of buying you save $25.00 on each of the Oak Bed Davenports, and you save $50.00 on each 3-piece Davenport Parlor Suit.

JUST THINK! We offer a 3-piece Mahogany, Cane, Davenport Suit covered in Gold Tapestry, Special at this sale for $98.00

OTHER BIG VALUES—A beautiful Blue Velore Overstuffed Suit $162.00

A rich, long wearing, Car-plush, Overstuffed Suit in Walnut and Mulberry at $255.00

PIANO BARGAINS--

WILSON PLAYER PIANO— Dull Mahogany Finish, slightly used, at..... $325.00

NEW WARFIEL PLAYER PIANO— Wax Oak, at $495.00

WALTHAM PLAYER PIANO— Golden Oak, Satin Finish, at..... $585.00

HOFFMAN PIANO, in polished Oak. This is surely a splendid instrument, the regular price is $300.00. Can be had in Mahogany or Walnut Finish if desired..... $216.00

Mr. J. A. Fairfield, of the Smith-Barnes Piano Company, will also be in attendance at this sale to name you Special Price on this famous line of instruments.

Buy Now BUY NOW for March 1st, or later, delivery. We will be glad to hold the goods purchased at this sale until you want them.

FreeDelivery Our Auto Truck will deliver your furniture free of charge, however, no goods will be delivered until after the big sale week is passed.

DINING TABLE
Black Walnut, satin, Queen Anne design, regular price $70.00. Sale Price $37.50

PULLMAN BED DAVENPORTS
Sale Prices ... $48 to $58

CHILDS ROCKERS
Large size, cane seat worth $2.00. Sale Price 50c

BED SPRING
The regular $5.00 fabric spring steel frame. Sale Price $3.65

OVAL BRAIDED RUGS
You know what they are.
18x36 size now $1.75
24x36 size now $2.45
25x46 size now $3.25

LINOLEUM RUGS
Size 18x27, special at this sale 19c

DRESSER
Solid oak Dresser, nicely finished and well made, base 18x36, french plate mirror 18x20, reg. price is $23.00. Sale Price $15.75

KITCHEN TABLE
Porcelain top, all white enamel, reg. value $12.00. Sale Price $7.75

RUBBER STAIR TREAD
Size 6x18 Sale Price...12c

SECIAL!
FULL SIZE IRON BED, 2 inch posts, in Ivory, Vernis Martin, or Oxidized, worth $11.00. Sale Price - - - $6.98

PHONOGRAPH SPECIAL
WE HAVE SIX NEW VOCALIONS, 1920 Model, Wax Oak, high grade Instruments, best Swiss Motor play any record, regular price $195.00 with 10 records. SALE PRICE..... $95.00

LEATHER ROCKER
Brown Spanish leather, regular price $40.00. Sale Price $25.00

ARM ROCKER
Waxed Elm, strong and neat. Sale Price ... $4.75

BUFFET
Solid Golden Oak, wax finish, large size, with mirror, a very attractive pattern. Regular price $30.00. Sale Price $21.00

USED FURNITURE
We buy and sell used furniture and always have an assortment on hand in a special dept. Just now we have on hand several beds, 2 davenports, a few parlor tables, 8-3x10-6 Velvet Rug, 2 Kit. Cabts., 2 couches, cupboard, 2 vac. cleaners, 4 phonographs; all in good repair. Very special prices thruout our Used Furniture Dept. during this sale.
We repair furniture in our Tinker Shop. Try it.

MILLINERY
Our Ladies Hat Shop has been very busy making up new hats for Spring. Ladies are invited to call and inspect these new hats Special prices during the Furniture Sale.

DRAPERIES
A large assortment of new nets draperies and curtain goods are now on display. These are also especially priced for the sale.
Phonograph Records at 25c
Player Rolls, at 59c

Important Our Complete Stock of High Grade Furniture, Rugs, Linoleum, Pianos, Phonographs, Sewing Machines and Draperies will be sold at prices that will fit your pocket-book. We have mentioned here only a few of the items, but you can save on naything you buy. If you miss this sale you are going to miss the biggest Money Saving Event of the year.. Important

A Feast of Values In Dining Room Furniture

Klemme, Iowa.

WELLEMEYER'S

Assurance of Quality And Fair Dealing---Always

Nothing Reserved Everything Cut to the Limit

Klemme, Iowa.

Furniture Dept. Closed to arrange Stock and Mark Down Goods Thursday and Friday, February 1 and 2.

..We will prepay the freight to any point in Iowa.

(Times Print Shop, Klemme, Iowa)

Desert Gold

By ZANE GREY

Author of

Riders of the Purple Sage, Wildfire, Etc.

Copyright by Harper & Brothers.

ROUGH-HOUSE!

SYNOPSIS.—Seeking gold in the desert, "Cameron," solitary prospector, forms a partnership with an unknown man whom he later learns is Jonas Warren, father of a girl whom Cameron wronged, but later married, back in Illinois. Cameron's explanations appease Warren, and the two proceed together. Taking refuge from a sandstorm in a cave, Cameron discovers gold, but too late; both men are dying. Cameron leaves evidence, in the cave, of their discovery of gold, and personal documents. Richard Gale, adventurer, in Casita, Mexican border town, meets George Thorne, lieutenant in the Ninth cavalry, old college friend. Thorne tells Gale he is there to save Mercedes Castadena, Spanish girl, his affianced wife, from Rojas, Mexican bandit.

CHAPTER I.—Continued.

—3—

Dick, think, think! With Mercedes it was love at first sight. My is to marry her and get her far- to the interior, away from the rder. It may not be easy. She's tched. So am I. Rojas must have word to his friends here; yester- his gang of cutthroat rebels ar- ed, and today he came. When I rned that, I took my chance and camp; I hunted up a priest. He mised to come here. It's time he's . But I'm afraid he'll be stopped. see, we're over the line—"

Are we in Mexican territory now?" ried Gale, sharply.

I guess yes, old boy. That's what plicates it. Rojas and his rebels e Casita in their hands. If Mer- is really watched—if her iden- is known, which I am sure is the —we couldn't get far from this se before I'd be knifed and she ed."

Good heavens! Thorne, can that of thing happen less than a e's throw from the United States ?" asked Gale, incredulously.

It can happen, and don't you forget You don't seem to realize the r these guerrilla leaders, these captains, and particularly these dits, exercise over the mass of icans. I've seen Rojas. He's a some, bold, sneering devil, vainer any peacock. He decks himself old lace and silver trappings, in he finery he can steal. He spends like he spills blood. But he is dy famous for abducting women. peon girls consider it an honor e ridden off with. Rojas has n a penchant for girls of the bet- class."

Thorne wiped the perspiration from pale face and bent a dark gaze of the window before he resumed talk.

Consider what the position of Mer- s really is. Rojas can turn all the en underground influences to his . Unless I thwart him he'll get cedes as easily as he can light a rette. But I'll kill him or some his gang or her before I let him her. . . . This is the situation, friend. I've little time to spare. ce arrest for desertion. Rojas is own. I think I was followed to hotel. The priest has betrayed or has been stopped. Mercedes is alone, waiting, absolutely de- dent upon me to save her from— . . . She's the sweetest, love- girl! . . . In a few moments— er or later there'll be hell here! , are you with me?"

Dick Gale drew a long, deep breath. oldness, a lethargy, and indiffer- that had weighed upon him for ths had passed out of his being. the instant he could not speak, his hand closed powerfully upon friend's. Thorne's face changed derfully, the distress, the fear, the al all vanishing in a smile of onate gratefulness.

Then Dick's gaze attracted by some t sound, shot over his friend's lder to see a face at the window handsome, bold, sneering face, glittering dark eyes that flashed inister intentness.

ick stiffened in his seat. Thorne, sudden clenching of hands, ed toward the window.

Rojas!" he whispered.

CHAPTER II

Mercedes Castaneda.

e dark face vanished. Dick Gale footsteps and the tinkle of . He strode to the window, and in time to see a Mexican swag- into the front door of the saloon. e were men passing in the street, several Mexicans lounging at the hitching rail at the curb. id you see him? Where did he whispered Thorne, as he joined . "Those Greasers out there with cartridge belts crossed over their ats—they are rebels. I'm afraid s has the house spotted."

we could only be sure.

sure, Dick. Let's cross the ; I want to see how it looks from other side of the house."

e followed Thorne out of the res- t into the high-ceiled corridor evidently divided the hotel, ing into the street and running to a patio. A few dim, yellow lamps flickered. Thorne entered a huge chamber which was even more poorly lighted than the hall. It contained a table littered with papers, a few high-backed chairs, a couple of couches, and was evidently a parlor.

"Mercedes has been meeting me here," said Thorne. "At this hour she comes every moment or so to the head of the stairs there, and if I am here she comes down. Mostly there are people in this room a little later. We go out into the plaza. It faces the dark side of the house, and that's the place I must slip out with her if there's any chance at all to get away."

They peered out of the open window. In a moment, however, Gale made out a slow-pacing dark form on the path. Farther down there was another. No particular keenness was required to see in these forms a sentinel-like stealthiness.

Gripping Gale's arm, Thorne pulled back from the window.

"You saw them," he whispered. "It's just as I feared. Rojas has the place surrounded. I should have taken Mercedes away. But I had no time—no chance! I'm bound! . . . There's Mercedes now! My G—d! . . . Dick, think, think—think if there's a way to get her out of this trap!"

Gale turned as his friend went down the room. In the dim light at the head of the stairs stood the slim, muffled figure of a woman. When she saw Thorne she flew noiselessly down the stairway to him. He caught her in his arms. Then she spoke softly, brokenly, in a low, swift voice. It was a mingling of incoherent Spanish and English; but to Gale it was mellow, deep, unutterably tender, a voice full of joy, fear, passion, hope and love. Upon Gale it had an unaccountable effect. He found himself thrilling, wondering.

Thorne led the girl to the center of the room, under the light where Gale stood.

"Mercedes—Dick Gale, an old friend—the best friend I ever had."

She swept the mantilla back over her head, disclosing a lovely face, strange and striking to Gale in its pride and fire, its intensity.

"Senor Gale—ah! I cannot speak my happiness. His friend!"

"Yes, Mercedes; my friend and yours," said Thorne, speaking rapidly. "We'll have need of him. Dear, there's bad news and no time to break it gently. The priest did not come. He must have been detained. And listen—be brave, dear Mercedes—Rojas is here!"

She uttered an inarticulate cry, the poignant terror of which shook Gale's nerve, and swayed as if she would faint. Thorne caught her and in husky voice importuned her to bear up.

"My darling! For God's sake don't faint—don't go to pieces! We'd be lost! We've got a chance. We'll think of something. Be strong! Fight!"

It was plain to Gale that Thorne was distracted. He scarcely knew what he was saying. Pale and shaking, he clasped Mercedes to him.

She cried out in Spanish, beseeching him; and as he shook his head, she changed to English:

"Senor, my lover, I will be strong—I will fight—I will obey. But swear

"But Swear by My Virgin, If Need Be to Save Me From Rojas—You Will Kill Me!"

by my Virgin, if need be to save me from Rojas—you will kill me!"

"Mercedes! Yes, I'll swear," he replied, hoarsely. "I know—I'd rather have you dead than— But don't give up. Rojas can't be sure of you, or he wouldn't wait. He's in there. He's got his men there—all around us. But he hesitates. A beast like Rojas doesn't stand idle for nothing. I tell you we've a chance. Dick, here, will think of something. We'll slip away. Then he'll take you somewhere. Only—speak to him—show him you won't weaken. Mercedes, this is more than love and happiness for us. It's life or death."

She became quiet, and slowly recovered control of herself. She wheeled to face Gale with proud dark eyes, tragic sweetness of appeal, an exquisite grace.

"Senor, you are an American. You cannot know the Spanish blood—the peon bandit's hate and cruelty. I wish to die before Rojas' hand touches me. If he takes me alive, then the hour, the little day that my life lasts afterward will be torture—torture of hell. If I live two days his brutal men will have me. If I live three, the dogs of his camp . . . Senor, have you a sister whom you love? Help Senor Thorne to save me. He is a soldier. He is bound. He must not betray his honor, his duty, for me. . . . Now, let me waste no more precious time. I am ready. I will be brave."

She came close to Gale, holding out her white hands, a woman all fire and soul and passion. To Gale she was wonderful. His heart leaped. As he bent over her hands and kissed them he seemed to feel himself renewed, remade.

"Senorita," he said, "I am happy to be your servant. I can conceive of no greater pleasure than giving the service you require."

"And what is that?" inquired Thorne hurriedly.

"That of incapacitating Senor Rojas for tonight, and perhaps several nights to come," replied Gale. "I'll make a row in that saloon. I'll start something. I'll rush Rojas and his crowd. I'll—"

"Lord, no; you mustn't, Dick—you'll be knifed!" cried Thorne.

"I'll take a chance. Maybe I can surprise that slow Greaser bunch and get away before they know what's happened. . . . You be ready watching at the window. When the row starts those fellows out there in the plaza will run into the saloon. Then you slip out, go straight through the plaza down the street. It's a dark street, I remember. I'll catch up with you before you get far."

Thorne gasped, but did not say a word. Mercedes leaned against him, her white hands now at her breast, her great eyes watching Gale as he went out.

In the corridor Gale stopped long enough to pull on a pair of heavy gloves, to muss his hair, and disarrange his collar. Then he stepped into the restaurant, went through, and halted in the door leading into the saloon. No one appeared to notice him. Gale's roving glance soon fixed upon the man he took to be Rojas. The Mexican's face was turned aside. He was in earnest, excited colloquy with a dozen or more comrades, most of whom were sitting round a table. They were listening, talking, drinking. The fact that they wore cartridge belts crossed over their breasts satisfied Gale that these were the rebels. He became conscious of an inward fire that threatened to overrun his coolness. Other emotions harried his self-control. It seemed as if sight of the man liberated or created a devil in Gale. And at the bottom of his feelings there seemed to be a wonder at himself, a strange satisfaction for the something that had come to him.

He stepped out of the doorway, down the couple of steps to the floor of the saloon, and he staggered a little, simulating drunkenness. He fell over the pool tables, jostled Mexicans at the bar, laughed like a maudlin fool, and, with his hat slouched down, crowded here and there. Presently his eye caught sight of the group of cowboys whom he had before noticed with such interest.

They were still in a corner somewhat isolated. With fertile mind working, Gale lurched over to them. If he were to get any help from these silent aloof rangers it must be by striking fire from them in one swift stroke. Planting himself squarely before the two tall cowboys who were standing, he looked straight into their lean, bronzed faces. He spared a full moment for that keen, cool gaze before he spoke.

"I'm not drunk. I'm throwing a bluff, and I mean to start a rough house. I'm going to rush that d—d bandit Rojas. It's to save a girl—to give her lover, who is my friend, a chance to escape with her. She's in the house. Rojas is here to get her. When I start a row my friend will try to slip out with her. Every door and window is watched. I've got to raise h—l to draw the guards in. . . . Well, you're my countrymen. We're in Mexico. A beautiful girl's honor and life are at stake. Now, gentlemen, watch me!"

One cowboy's eyes narrowed, blinking a little, and his lean jaw dropped; the other's hard face rippled with a fleeting smile.

Gale backed away, and his pulse leaped when he saw the two cowboys, as if with one purpose, slowly stride after him. Then Gale swerved, staggering along, brushed against the tables, kicked over the empty chairs. The hum of the many voices grew louder, and when Dick lurched against a table, overturning it and spilling glasses into the laps of several Mexicans, there arose a shrill cry. He had succeeded in attracting attention; almost every face turned his way. One of the insulted men, a little tawny fellow, leaped to confront Gale, and in a frenzy screamed a volley of Spanish, of which Gale distinguished "Gringo!" Dick swung his leg and with a swift side kick knocked the fellow's feet from under him, whirling him down with a thud.

The action was performed so suddenly, so adroitly, it made the Mexican such a weakling, so like a tumbled tenpin, that the shrill jabbering hushed. Gale knew this to be the significant moment.

Wheeling, he rushed at Rojas. It was his old line-breaking plunge. Neither Rojas nor his men had time to move. The black-skinned bandit's face turned a dirty white; his jaw dropped; he would have shrieked if Gale had not hit him. The blow swept him backward against his men. Then Gale's heavy body, swiftly following with the momentum of that rush, struck the little group of rebels. They went down with the table and chairs in a sliding crash.

The Black-Skinned Bandit's Face Turned a Dirty White.

Gale, carried by his plunge, went with them. Like a cat he landed on top. As he rose his powerful hands fastened on Rojas. He jerked the little bandit off the tangled pile of struggling, yelling men, and, swinging him with terrific force, let go his hold. Rojas slid along the floor, knocking over tables and chairs. Gale bounded back, dragged Rojas up, handling him as if he were a limp sack.

A shot rang out above the yells. Gale heard the jingle of breaking glass. The room darkened perceptibly. He flashed a glance backward. The two cowboys were between him and the crowd of frantic rebels. One cowboy held two guns low down, level in front of him. The other had his gun raised and aimed. On the instant it spouted red and white. With the crack came the crashing of glass, another darkening shade over the room. With a cry Gale slung the bleeding Rojas from him. The bandit struck a table, toppled over it, fell, and lay prone.

Another shot made the room full of moving shadows, with light only back of the bar. A white-clad figure rushed at Gale. He tripped the man, but had to kick hard to disengage himself from grasping hands. Another figure closed in on Gale. This one was dark, swift. A blade glinted—described a circle aloft. Simultaneously with a close, red flash the knife wavered; the man wielding it stumbled backward. Then pandemonium broke loose. The din became a roar. Gale heard shots that sounded like dull spats in the distance. The big lamp behind the bar seemingly split, then sputtered and went out, leaving the room in darkness.

Gale leaped toward the restaurant door, which was outlined faintly by the yellow light within. Right and left he pushed the groping men who jostled with him. He vaulted a pool table, sent tables and chairs flying, and gained the door, to be the first of a wedging mob to squeeze through. One sweep of his arm knocked the restaurant lamp from its stand; and he ran out, leaving darkness behind him. A few bounds took him into the parlor. It was deserted. Thorne had gotten away with Mercedes!

It was then Gale slowed up. For the space of perhaps sixty seconds he had been moving with startling velocity. He peered cautiously out into the plaza. Under a street lamp at the far end of the path he thought he saw two dark figures. He ran faster, and soon reached the street. The uproar back in the hotel began to diminish, or else he was getting out of hearing. The few people he saw close at hand were all coming his way, and only the foremost showed any excitement. Gale walked swiftly, peering ahead for two figures. Presently he saw them—one tall, wearing a cape; the other slight; mantled. Gale drew a sharp breath of relief. Thorne and Mercedes were not far ahead.

He began to overhaul them; and soon, when the last lamp had been passed and the street was dark, he ventured a whistle. Thorne heard it, for he turned, whistled a low reply, and went on. Not for some distance beyond, where the street ended in open country, did they halt to wait. Then he came up with the fugitives.

"Dick! Are you—all right?" panted Thorne, grasping Gale.

"I'm—out of breath—but—O. K.," replied Gale.

"Good! Good!" choked Thorne. "I was scared—helpless. . . . Dick, it worked splendidly. We had no trouble. What on earth did you do?"

"I made the row, all right," said Dick. "While I was rushing Rojas a couple of cowboys shot out the lamplights. A Mexican who pulled a knife on me got hurt, I guess. Then I think there was some shooting from the rebels after the room was dark."

Mercedes pressed close to him, touched his hands, looked up into his face with wonderful eyes. He thought he would not soon forget their beauty—the shadow of pain that had been, the hope dawning so fugitively.

"Dear lady," said Gale, with voice not wholly steady, "Rojas himself will hound you no more tonight, nor for many nights."

She seemed to shake, to thrill, to rise with the intelligence. She pressed his hand close over her heaving breast. Gale felt the quick throb of her heart.

"Senor! Senor Dick!" she cried. Then her voice failed. But her hands flew up; quick as a flash she raised her face—kissed him. Then she turned and with a sob fell into Thorne's arms.

There ensued a silence broken only by Mercedes' sobbing. Gale walked some paces away. If he were not stunned, he certainly was agitated. The strange, sweet fire of that girl's lips remained with him. On the spur of the moment he imagined he had a jealousy of Thorne. But presently this passed. What remained with him was the splendid glow of gladness that he had been of service to Thorne.

"Dick, Dick, come here!" called Thorne softly. "Let's pull ourselves together now. We've got a problem yet. What to do? Where to go? How to get any place? We're on good old U. S. ground this minute, but we're not out of danger."

As he paused, evidently hoping for a suggestion from Gale, the silence was broken by the clear, ringing peal of a bugle. Thorne gave a violent start.

"It's a call, Dick! It's a call!" he cried.

Gale had no answer to make. Mercedes stood as if stricken. The bugle call ended. From a distance another faintly pealed. There were other sounds too remote to recognize. Then scattering shots rattled out.

"Dick, the rebels are fighting somebody," burst out Thorne excitedly. "The little federal garrison still holds its stand. Perhaps it is attacked again. Anyway, there's something doing over the line. Maybe the crazy Greasers are firing on our camp. We've feared it—in the dark. . . . And here I am, away without leave—practically a deserter!"

"Go back! Go back, before you're too late!" cried Mercedes.

"Better make tracks, Thorne," added Gale. "It can't help our predicament for you to be arrested. I'll take care of Mercedes."

"No, no, no," replied Thorne. "I can get away—avoid arrest."

Mercedes embraced her lover, begged him to go. Thorne wavered.

"Dick, I'm up against it," he said. "You're right. If only I can run back in time. But, oh, I hate to leave her! Old fellow, you've saved her! I already owe you everlasting gratitude. Keep out of Casita, Dick. The U. S. side might be safe, but I'm afraid to trust it at night. Go out in the desert, up in the mountains, in some safe place. Then come to me in camp. We'll plan. I'll have to confide in Colonel Weede. Maybe he'll help us. Hide her from the rebels—that's all."

He wrung Dick's hand, clasped Mercedes tightly in his arms, kissed her, and murmured low over her, then released her to rush off into the darkness. He disappeared in the gloom. The sound of his dull footfalls gradually died away.

Gale realized that he was between the edge of an unknown desert and the edge of a hostile town. He had to choose the desert, because, though he had no doubt that in Casita there were many Americans who might befriend him, he could not chance the risks of seeking them at night.

He felt a slight touch on his arm, felt it move down, felt Mercedes slip a trembling cold little hand into his. Dick looked at her. If the loneliness, the silence, the desert, the unknown dangers of the night affected him, what must they be to this hunted, driven girl? Gale's heart swelled. He was alone with her. He had no weapon, no money, no food, no drink, no covering, nothing except his two hands. He did not know where to find the railroad, or any road or trail, or whether or not there were towns near or far. It was a critical, desperate situation. He thought first of the girl, and groaned in spirit, prayed that it would be given him to save her. When he remembered himself it was with the stunning consciousness that he could conceive of no situation which he would have exchanged for this one—where fortune had set him a perilous task of loyalty to a friend, to a helpless girl.

"Senor, senor!" suddenly whispered Mercedes, clinging to him. "Listen! I hear horses coming!"

"Tom Beldin', he's a gentleman, an' he could lick you in—in half a second."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Balance.

A railroad purchasing agent writes: "An oak railroad tie lasts twenty years. And it takes twenty years to grow an oak tree to a size suitable for ties. Observe how finely nature balances the thing." We lose that balance, however, when we fail to plant a tree for every one cut down. Teach your children the wisdom of conserving the forests.

LAID ON ALTARS

In All Ages Wealth Has Flowed Into Religious Temples.

Gold, Silver and Precious Gems Offered as Tribute Both to Idols and the Unseen God.

Requisition of church valuables by the soviet government, reported in dispatches from Russia, raises a question as to the wealth of the various religious institutions of the world.

"Since the dawn of history people have been lavish with their gifts for religious purposes, whether they worshiped idols or an unseen God," says a bulletin from the headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"The result is that in all ages treasure, usually in the form of gold and silver and precious stones, has flowed to temples and churches, monasteries and other religious institutions. In any period and in most parts of the world, then, except during recent decades in the West, a considerable part of the liquid wealth of the world has been in ecclesiastical hands. Only the treasuries of temporal princes surpassed those of the religious institutions, and in some instances, as in Tibet, the monasteries and temples held practically all the country's treasure.

"Archeologists find pagan temples of civilization's dead for thousands of years were ornamented with a wealth of precious metals. Indian temples of several faiths have had their rich treasuries and their ornaments of gold and silver for centuries, and they have made use, as well, of a glittering array of diamonds, rubies, sapphires and other jewels. Many an idol today, from the dim interiors of Indian temples, looks out through eyes of great lustrous, precious stones and wears other gems that might ransom an emperor.

"Christianity had to fight for its life for the first 300 years of its existence and its rites were carried on in the simplicity that secrecy made necessary. But with its official recognition came the tendencies which had marked most of the openly accepted religions which had come before; toward the making of gifts to churches by devout followers and powerful patrons and toward the use of more elaborate and costly paraphernalia in the services. Constantine, first Christian emperor of Rome, lavished gifts on St. Peter's church in Rome and on Sancta Sophia in his own capital, Constantinople. He thus had a hand in enriching the two most famous, and once the two richest, churches in Christendom.

"The marked enrichment of Christian churches began in earnest in Italy and the East in the Fifth and Sixth centuries and spread in early medieval times to France and other western countries. Not only did the churches accumulate gold chalices, patens, candelabra and other small objects, but many had large screens of gold and silver, as well as fonts and statues. To a few of the churches, altars of solid gold were presented, but later church regulations prescribed stone and wood as the only permissible materials for altars. Precious stones also came in use to ornament images of the saints, or as gifts to them. Thus the Sacred Baby of the Church of Ara Coeli in Rome has been given over a space of many years a wealth of jewels.

"The accumulation of treasure by temples and churches and monasteries has not been unbroken. Time and time again these convenient stores of precious metals and precious stones have been seized by conquerors. Pagans have looted the shrines of other pagans. Mohammedans looted Roman churches, including St. Peter's in 846, and the churches of Constantinople in 1453. Sancta Sophia, after the break between the western and eastern churches, was sacked by western Christians during the fourth crusade. Church vessels were taken or destroyed in many cases at the time of the Reformation."

American Boy Child at Seventeen.

In America a boy is still a child at seventeen. In England he is a man, with a man's air, a man's costume and a man's interests, having put away childish things, which still exist in spite of his clothes. He does not go tearing down the street in his long trousers and high hat as would an American boy if he was initiated into the same costume at the same age.

An American boy would (and let us hope he always will) destroy the whole effect and would run around the corner to the nearest pump to measure the fluid capacity of his wonderful headpiece or to fill it with luscious stolen fruit.—Exchange.

American Milk in Hungary.

American evaporated milk has scored a hit in Hungary. There is a great scarcity of fresh milk and there has always been a prejudice against the canned article which is in extensive use in the United States and other countries, but recently a quantity of evaporated milk was sent there through the American relief, and it has made its way into public favor. Preparations are being made to take large quantities of it, as it has been shown that it can be sent there at a cost much less than the dairy product can be obtained.

Appreciation.

"John, dear, did you enjoy the Welsh rabbit I made?"

"Darling! And the biscuits! Enjoy them? Why, I couldn't sleep all night for thinking about them!"—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

SHERIFF'S SALE

L. D. RUSS
vs.
Chester J. Dutton, Emma L. Dutton, American State Bank, of Omaha, Nebr., County Savings Bank, Algona, Iowa, and State Savings Bank, Ventura, Ia.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That by virtue of a Special Execution issued out of the office of the Clerk of the District Court, in Hancock County, on a judgement rendered December 8th, 1922, Term of said Court, A. D. 1922 for the sum of Five Thousand Seven Hundred Thirty & 42-100 Dollars debt, and One Hundred Seventeen & 25-100 Dollars costs, in favor of L. D. Russ and against Chester J. Dutton, and Emma L. Dutton, and to the Sheriff of Hancock County directed, I have levied upon the following described property, to-wit!

The Southeast Quarter, and the South Half of the Northeast Quarter of Section Thirteen (13), Township Ninety-Five (95). North Range Twenty-Three (23), West of the 5th P. M. Hancock County, Iowa.

NOW, THEREFORE, Public Notice is hereby given that I shall, on the Fifth day of February, 1923, at 10 o'clock A. M., at the front door of the Court House, in Garner, in Hancock County, offer and sell at public outcry, to the highest bidder for cash, all the right, title and interest that the above named Chester J. Dutton, and Emma L. Dutton, had on the 8th day of December A. D. 1922, or now have in and to the above described property, or so much thereof as is necessary to satisfy said execution, together with costs and all accruing costs, unless the same shall be sooner satisfied.

Dated at the Sheriff's office in Garner, this 6th day of January A. D. 1923.

E. P. HANSON,
Sheriff of Hancock County, Iowa.
(Publish Jan. 18, 25. 1923.)

NOTICE OF SPECIAL SCHOOL ELECTION

—T—

Public Notice is hereby given to the qualified voters of the Independent School District of Klemme, in the County of Hancock, State of Iowa, that a special election of the voters of said District will be held on the 26th day of February, 1923, at the Town Hall, corner 2nd and Hancock streets, Klemme, Iowa, from 1 o'clock P. M. until 6 o'clock P. M. at which time there will be submitted to the voters of said District the following proposition:

"Shall the Independent School District of Klemme, in the County of Hancock, State of Iowa, issue bonds in the sum of not to exceed $15,000 for the purpose of constructing and equipping an addition to the school house within said School District?"

at which time and place you are hereby notified to appear.

This notice is given by order of the Board of Directors of the Independent School District of Klemme, Hancock County, Iowa, pursuant to a sufficient petition in accordance with Sections 2820-d 1 et seq. of the Supplement to the Code of Iowa, 1913, as amended, and in accordance with a resolution of said Board, duly adopted on the 25th day of January, 1923.

Dated at Klemme, Iowa, this 25th day of January, 1923.

LEW LEWIS
Secretary, Board of Directors.
(Jan 25, Feb. 1-8-15-22)

NOTICE OF SPECIAL SCHOOL ELECTION

—T—

Public Notice is hereby given to the qualified voters of the Independent School District of Klemme, in the County of Hancock, State of Iowa, that a special election of the voters of said District will be held on the 26th day of February, 1923, at the Town Hall, corner 2nd and Hancock Streets, Klemme, Iowa, from 1 o'clock P. M. until 6 o'clock P. M., at which time there will be submitted to the voters of said district the following proposition:

"Shall the Independent School District of Klemme, in the County of Hancock, State of Iowa, issue bonds in the sum of not to exceed $45,000 for the purpose of constructing and equipping a new school house and procuring a site therefor within said School District?"

at which time and place you are hereby notified to appear.

This Notice is given by order of the Board of Directors of the Independent School District of Klemme, Hancock County, Iowa, pursuant to a sufficient petition in accordance with Sections 2820-d 1 et seq. of the Supplement to the Code of Iowa, 1913, as amended, and in accordance with the resolution of said Board duly adopted on the 25th day of January, 1923.

Dated at Klemme, Iowa, this 25th day of January, 1923.

LEW LEWIS
Secretary, Board of Directors.
(Jan 25, Feb. 1-8-15-22)

Ye Editor joined the list of radio bugs and installed a machine the fore part of the week. We have only one objection to the dern thing and that is it's awful hard to keep an ear on the dope and tickle the linotype at the same time, so we can only fool around with it at nights when the rest of the world (except radio bugs) are pounding the pillow. Another objection, suppose an airplane comes along and knocks down our aerial just as we are listening to a bunch of chorus girls in Noo Yawk—what a calamity!

Hunters Notice!

In view of the fact that protected game is being unlawfully shot, notice is hereby given that any or all persons hereafter tresspassing on any of the land owned, rented or farmed by the undersigned will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

Oscar Carlson,
H. J. Stille.
Wes Heifner. (J10-17-24)

Life like hash, is what you make it.

JUST MATTER OF DEDUCTION

As the Boy Explained It, the Finding of Horse Was Really Quite Simple Matter.

Speaking of the development of the story-telling talent in youth, Richard Bennett, the actor, is fond of relating this incident:

Some years ago a prominent citizen of a town lost a horse. It was not much of a horse. In fact, it was blind in one eye and spavined. But, perhaps as a relic, Bennett says, the prominent citizen wanted the horse. So he advertised, offering $5 reward for its return. The town half-wit, a boy of nineteen, with a harelip, came one afternoon leading the horse, with a strap about the size of a shoestring, to the prominent citizen's door. The horse's owner was pleased.

"Now," said he kindly, scenting a good narrative and perhaps an adventure, "now, my boy, here's your $5; and I'll give you another $5 if you'll tell me just how you found my horse."

"Well, all right," said the boy. "I jus' thought if I was that old horse where I would go, and I did and he was."

He got the extra five.—Kansas City Star.

TIGERS USEFUL IN SUMATRA

Lords of the Jungle Protected for Their Services as Destroyers of Wild Boars.

Tiger hunting is now prohibited in Sumatra. Lest our national pride should be touched, let it be said that this measure has nothing to do with M. Clemenceau—there is no fear of seeing the fauna of the big island destroyed by European ex-premiers on their travels.

No, the truth is more prosaic. Truth is always prosaic.

In Sumatra the tigers are protected because they devour the wild boars, which are great despoilers of the plantations. The tigers are in a way monstrous cats preying on enormous rats.

Here is a domestic and ultilitarian role of which Kipling, poet of the jungle, never dreamed.—From the Paris Figaro.

Mrs. Sam Harvey and daughter, Enid, accompanied by Mrs. Harvey's father, F. H. Ridder, expect to leave for New Jersey the latter part of the week. Fred will only go as far as Chicago where he will see Mrs. Harvey and baby Enid safely on the balance of the jounrney. Mr. Harvey has been in the east for several months and now has a good position in a factory. They will make their home there now.

Something Burning

At a summer camp, two girls shared an upstairs sleeping porch.

One, never having been very far from the comforts of home, knew very little about some of the "wonders" of nature.

Waking, one night, she became aware of a most unusual odor. Sitting up, she called out: "Mildred, Mildred, I smell something burning! I am going downstairs to see about it."

Experienced Mildred drawled: "Lie down, Betty, and go to sleep. That's nothing but a skunk."

GEORGE ZINN, M. D.
Physician and Surgeon
Office opposite from Hotel Klemme
Phone No. 19
Eyes Examined Glasses Fitted

CLOSING OUT

PUBLIC AUCTION

Having decided to quit farming and move to South Dakota I will sell my personal property at the farm 4 1-2 miles south and 2 1-2 miles east of Britt; 6 miles north and 2 miles east of Kanawha; 7 miles west and 1 mile north of Klemme, sale held on—Thursday, Feb. 1st.

Sale commences at 10 o'clock. All machinery will be sold before noon. Free hot lunch at noon.

360 HEAD OF LIVE STOCK

14 Horses

This is a good bunch of horses. If in need of a team of hores look them over. Will hitch any time before sale.

1 Span Black Geldings, 5 and 6 years old, wt. 3300.
1 team Sorrel Geldings, 4 years old, weight 3100.
1 team Roans, mare and gelding, weight 3200.
1 Brown Hores, 8 years old, weight 1650.
1 Bay Mare, 7 years old, weight 1700, with foal.
1 Roan Mare, 5 years old, weight 1650.
1 Grey mare, 7 years old, weight 1400.
1 Black Horse, 7 years old, weight 1400.
1 Yearling Mare weighing 1450, a real one.
1 Grey Saddle Horse, 6 years old.
1 Suckling Colt.

61— HEAD OF HOGS —61

40 Duroc Jersey Brood Sows, bred to farrow in April.
20 Summer Pigs.
1 Duroc Boar.

POULTRY

TURKEYS: 2 hens and 1 gobbler.
CHICKENS: 150 Rhode Island Red Pullets.
16 GEESE, 10 DUCKS.

285 Cattle

Disposing of a real herd of Pure Bred Hereford cattle, including some of the best cows I have ever owned. Fairfax and Anxiety 4th breeding.

15 cows with calf at foot.

15 cows to be fresh soon.

2 two-year-old heifers.

2 yearling Hereford Bulls.

4 bull calves, including 1 calf sired by Hayes Fairfax which shows every indication of making a show bull.

Herefords are all registered and papers will be furnished.

15 iMlch cows, some with calf at foot, others to be fresh soon.

60 head two-year-old steers, weighing from 800 to 1000 pounds.

75 yearling steers, weighing from 600 to 900 pounds.

75 head of calves.

2 Shorthorn Bull calves.

Farm Machinery, Harness and Other Articles

1 10-20 Titan Tractor, 1 International corn sheller with 32 feet of drag, rated from 300 bushels to 500 bushels per hour, used 1 year; 1 eight foot McCormick binder, nearly new; 1 McCormick corn binder; 1 P. & O. three bottom plow, nearly new; 1 John Deere gang plow; 1 16-in. John Deere sulky plow; 1 Hayes corn planter with 150 rods check wire 1 International ten foot tandem disc; 1 eight foot Case disc, 1 four section steel drag; 1 Deere harrow cart; 3 John Deere riding cultivators; 1 John Deere walking cultivator, 1 I. H. C. two row cultivator; 2 five foot McCormick mowers; 1 ten foot hay rake; 1 Dain overshot hay stacker, nearly new; 1 Hoosier seeder; 1 John Deere spreader; 1 I. H. C. ten inch grinder with wagon box elevator; 1 48-ft. Sand-wich elevator, with power; 1 Papec No. 19 Ensilage cutter, 3 wagons complete with boxes; 2 truck gears; 2 hay racks, 1 beet box; 3 bob sleds, 1 wide track sled; 1 cutter; 1 1 3-4 h. p. Empire engine; 1 1 1-2 Fairbanks Morse engine; 2 pump jacks; 1 big barrel spray; 3 portable hog houses; 1 feed rack; 10 good feed bunks; 2 moving skids, 10x12, 24 feet long; 1 road drag; 1 hand sheller; 1 power washer; 1 scale rack; 1 dehorning rack; 4 sets of breechen harness, 1 back pad harness; 1 light harness; 1 buggy harness; several collars; 1 saddle; 3 sets of fly nets; 210 feet of rope for barn, new; 1 32-ft. 6-in. 4-ply endless belt; 1 26-ft 6-in. 4-ply endless belt; 1 hog oiler; 1 gas barrel; 2 kerosene barrels; 2 eight-ft. wood tanks; 3 galvanized tanks; 1 milk tank; 1 speed jack; 1 Clipper fanning mill; 1 scraper; 2 tank heaters; 4 sheep feeders, and many other articles.

This will be one of the biggest sales of the season.

TERMS——Sums of $10 or under, cash. Over that amount a credit of ten months will be extended on bankable notes bearing 8 per cent interest. Stock and feeding cattle cash unless arrangements are made with clerk or owner before the sale. No property to be removed until settled for.

G. W. WERMERSON, Owner

H. H. Brummond, Auctioneer L. A. Matern, Auctioneer. Commercial State Bank, Clerk

50 GOOD CIGARETTES 10¢

GENUINE "BULL" DURHAM TOBACCO

TYPEWRITER RIBBONS
All Makes

Typewriter Ribbons for sale at the Times Office, all of the Standard makes. Ribbons 75 cents each.

THE CITY DRAY LINE
—Is prepared to do your hauling carefully and promptly. We solicit your patronage. Charges reasonable.
Coal Hauling Done
Louie Knoke

DENTIST
J. L. Hesselhuus, D. D. S.
Office Hours 8-12 1-5:30
Office Opposite State Savings Bank; In Schaffer Bldg.
Evening Work By Appointment Only
Klemme, Ia. Phone 81

KLEMME DRAY LINE
Phone 2105
A share of your patronage is solicited. All work attended to promptly and carefully. We haul coal quick.
LLOYD LAU, PROP.

They're Here Men

The complete line of Suitings are now ready for your inspection. Call in while lines are complete.

Suits to Measure

$22.50

—TO—

$41.50

Get them made to your special measure men—
"There's a Reason."

The Men's Fashion Shop

"Where Good Clothes Are Made."
A. W. JOHNSON
GARNER IOWA

Pantorium in connection

News of Klemme and Vicinity

Read Wellemeyer's big adv.

Remeber Lau's 3rl Annual Duroc Jersey Sow Sale, Jan. 30. adv

Mrs. Will Krause, of Garner, was a visitor in this city Saturday.

A baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Louie Knoke Sunday morning.

E. P. Hanson, of Garner, was a Klemme visitor this morning.

Mrs. C. M. Gram was at Goodell Wednesday of this week visiting.

GINGHAMS, Ginghams, ginghams, at G. W. Kluckhohn & Sons. adv

Fresh Pastery of all kinds. Irving Cafe. adv-pd

Emil Kraus was at Garner on business Monday.

Chris Jacobs drove down from from Garner on business Friday.

Ms. Gimer's sister left Tuesday evening for White, S. Dak., after a visit in Klemme.

Toile du Nords, French. and Silver Tisue Ginghams just arrived at G. W. Kluckhohn & Sons Store. adv

Mrs. Will Rhodes and Mrs. F. A. Gee, of Goodell, were shopping here Saturday.

R. A. Jorgenson and family were at Garner Friday afternoon on business.

Mrs. John Bachman and brother, Chris Hanson, went to Waterloo, Ia., Saturday noon.

Mrs. Tony Ahrenkeil and son, of Goodell were Klemme visitors the fore part of the week.

Henry Luick, accompanied by his mother, were up from Belmond Tuesday afternoon.

Tuesday a baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Quintus, who reside on a farm near Klemme.

Mr. Hunting and daughter, of Denver, Colorado, were visiting at the G. W. Kluckhoha home Monday.

Dr. Zinn was at Goldfield today for a short visit with his nephew, Dr. Edgar Zinn.

Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Barr drove to Webster City Saturday for an over-Sunday visit with friends.

Quite a number of the young folks from this vicinity went to the dance at Britt lass Friday evening.

Mrs. Frank Clark, of Goodell, is very ill at this writing. She is at he hospital at Hampton.

Mrs. Clarence Bachman returned to Klemme last Thursday after a few days visit with her father and family at Ventura.

Dr. and Mrs. R. M. Thomas are the parents of a baby girl born to hem Sunday morning. They now have three fine girls in the family.

Miss Adela Schroeder is the new clerk at Kluckhohn's store. She will help out on Wednesday nights and on Saturdays.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Leitzinger will move to the Harry Gibbs farm next week. Mr. Leitzinger will work for Harry this year.

Mr and Mrs. E. S. D. Kahrs drove to Nevada, Iowa, Sunday. for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Ludwig.

Mrs. Ervie Peterson, a sister-in-law of Mrs. Clarissa Abel, County Recorder, is the deputy in that office at the court house.

Mrs. Oscar Rice and daughter, Harriet, came from Clarion Saturday afternoon for a couple of weeks visit with Mrs. Rice's parents here, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Musfelt.

The masquerade dance at Goodell last Friday night drew quite a big crowd. Prizes were awarded to Abe Scott and Miss Maude Knapp for the best costumes.

Herman Stromer and son, Aaron, accompanied a shipment of live stock to Chicago Saturday night. We understand there were eleven cars in the shipment Saturday night.

A. M. Deyoe, former state superintendent of schools stopped off in Klemme the other day on his way to Des Moines. He had some plans of school buildings to show.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Jacobs spent the day Sunday at the Chris Jacobs home at Garner. Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Papousek, of Belmond, were also there.

Mr. Lou Davis and family of Mason City visited several days the fore part of the week at the Henry Freie home. Mrs. Davis is a daughter of Henry Freie.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Burgess, who have been staying with Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Barr for the past couple of months, left Monday for Estherville. Orville has a position there with the Rock Island Co. in the round-house.

The young married peoples' club had another enjoyable dance and a supper at the Idle Hour last Thursday evening.

Wallace Pavey went to Mount Auburn last week Wednesday. He was called to that place by the sudden death of his uncle. His uncle was found dead in his bed.

John Peterson, the evangelistic singer, came over from Alexander, Monday for a few days visit with friends here. The meetings came to a close Sunday night there. They will begin meetings at Crystal Lake Sunday.

Ed. G. Eil and daughter, Arlene, came down from Mankato, Minn. Friday evening, for a few days visit with Klemme relatives and friends. "Nick" also had some business matters to look after while here.

Always read the Iowa Falls Electric Company ads in the Times and learn something about this company which should interest you. Learn more about the company by reading there ads each week.

A baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Levi Klotzbach Monday morning. The little Miss belongs in the light-weight class. weighing 3½ pounds. Levi says what she lacks in weight she makes up in other fine qualities.

The Gifford Olson Post of the American Legion at Garner are rehearsing for a play. "The Poor Married Man," which they intend to put on January 31st. There are a number of ex-service men in Klemme and vicinity who belong to the Garner Post.

"Butch" Schrbeder, of Chicago, has been in this vicinity the past few days visiting his mother, Mrs. H. Schroeder, and other relatives and old friends. "Butch" manages to get home once or twice a year. He is connected with the Central Live Stock Commission Company at Chicago.

County Auditor John Madison has moved to Garner from Kanawa. He will live in a house south of the Court House on Main St., which is owned by the county. They are now settled in their new home, and their daughter has taken up her work in the Garner high school.

Cane Growers Notice!

We will manufacture your sorghum. either on half share or at 55 cents per gallon, for those who are planning on raising sorghum cane this year. I will furnish the seed. You can contract with me now. We will make the sorghum to suit you. Henry Ludeke, Klemme, Iowa. tfc

The Belmond Herald-Press says that an epidemic of whooping cough is sweeping their town.

Mr. Hake returned to Klemme last Friday from Tripoli. Iowa. He has been at that place for about two months taking treatments and is in much better health again. He is at present assisting at the Wellemeyer store helping them get ready for the furniture sale.

Ford
THE UNIVERSAL CAR

Four Door
Sedan

$725 F. O. B. Detroit

COMPLETE SATISFACTION

Complete automobile satisfaction is the result of buying both wisely and economically rather than the desire and means to buy extravagantly.

Figure out your every automobile requirement and you will find it in a Four-door Ford Sedan—a family car of distinction and beauty—a car of comfort and convenience—a car of dependability and service—a car that will give you complete satisfaction.

You should place your order now if you wish to avoid delay in delivery.

Terms if desired.

(We have just received some Willard 4-cell, 8 volt storage batteries for radio.)

Greimann Motor Co.
The Ford Garage

FREE MUSIC

Cut out this advertisement, and fill in the squares "yes" or "no" and the other questions and send to C. D. Welty, Britt, Iowa, right now before you forget it. In return I will send you three pieces of sheet music, or if you enclose 6c for postage I will send you six pieces of music free of charge.

Do you know a friend or anyone who is interested in a Piano or Victrola? If so, give name and address,

.....

.....

	Yes	No
Have you a piano?.....	☐	☐
Have you a player piano?.....	☐	☐
Would you be interested in one now or later?..	☐	☐
Have you a Victorola or phonograph?.....	☐	☐
Would you be interested in one now or late?..	☐	☐

This offer holds good until February 1st. Fill in your answers, your name and full address and send to C. D. WELTY. BRITT, IOWA.

My name is .....

My full address is .....

R. F. D..... Lock Box.....

Third Annual Sale Of

Duroc Jersey Bred Sows

Tuesday, January, 30

FREE DINNER AT 11:30 A. M. Sale starts at 1

This offering is bred to my famous prize winning boar- - -Great Orion Sensation Again.

4 Tried Sows
1 July Yearling
36 Fall Yearlings
7 Spring Gilts

If you need some good sows, here is your chance to get the very best.

Emil W. Lau

Col. L. A. Matern, Auct. State Savings Bank, Clerk

Klemme, Iowa

Improvements And Additions

IOWA FALLS ELECTRIC COMPANY contemplate as part of its Construction Program for 1923: Increasing the capacity of the 3 Phase Line from the Iowa Falls Plant to Dows, which may cost nearly $20000; placing a new boiler Feed Pump in the Iowa Falls Plant will cost about $2,500. These Improvements will enable the Company to increase its load and provide for better service.

The 33,000 Volt Line connecting the Cedar Rapids Plant of Iowa Railway & Light Company, with the Iowa Falls Plant is being completed, and from this line these two companies will furnish Electricity to the Iowa River Light & Power Company, serving Eldora and Eleven other towns.

It is for the purpose of financing such Income Producing Constructions as these, that our Customers are offered the opportunity of investing in Iowa Falls Electric Company.

Common Shares

These Shares are becoming more valuable every year and are a Proven Investment.

27 DIVIDENDS HAVE BEEN PAID, and the SHARES are now on a 7% Dividend Basis.

Send for descriptive circular.

Address either the SECURITIES DEPARTMENT at CEDAR RAPIDS, or our representative MR. D. J. THORNTON, at IOWA FALLS, IOWA.

Iowa Falls Electric Co.

Iowa Falls, Iowa. H. F. Kellogg, Manager

STILLE'S IMPLEMENT NEWS

VOLUME 1. Thursday. January 25, 1923 NUMBER

HAVE YOU STORED YOUR IMPLEMENTS?

If Not, Do It Now!

Since time out of memory people have always kicked about the price of commodities. Generally speaking, it is a habit. Whether the commodity be four-in-hand neckties or 40-80 tractors the buyer likes to complain about cost. Sometimes his complaint is just—more often it rests upon the cantankerous human desire to get something for as nearly nothing as possible. But with a few outstanding exceptions, the farmer in his implement price complaints seldom acts as though he means it. That is to say, though he will talk loudly about the impressive sum that he has to tie up in farm tools, he goes back home and turns not a hand to save these same "high-priced" implements from rapid deteriation. A machinery shed will all the machines on the farm in it is so rare in most communities as to be a feature. HAVE YOU STORED YOUR IMPLEMENTS? IF NOT. DO IT NOW.

Arbor Day is a great day for some famers, since the trees then planted make such fine shed[illegible] their implements.

Julius Priebe, Earnest Henschen, Ben Reemstma and Ed. Buentenbach are the last ones to get McCormick-Deering Feed Grinders. They all took the ten inch grinders because they use tractors for power. Better get yours.

Be it ever so nomely there is no face like your own.

We have a four-hole sheller coming in; if you are interested in a four-hole steel sheller, come in and look this one over.

Both the winter days and womens skirts are getting longer.

If it is worth your while to haul your manure out into the field it is sure worth your time to spread it evenly over the field so as to obtain the benefit of the manure. Come in and talk it over with us, we can supply pour spreader needs.

Etchen Bros. purchased a new wagon box at the Stille Implement Store last week.

Fred Wacker purchased two wagon boxes here last week. Farmers with good crops need good outfits to haul these crops to town with.

Many a wife without an aim hits her husband just the same.

Soil properly pulverized yields more bushels per acre, get a g disc this spring.

It has been proven that the s of the stalk of corn contains con erable feed value. What would it worth to you to have a machine t would grind that stalk about as f as ground oats? Lets talk this o and decide how we can obtain m food for the stock from the same re. "The extra bushels are the pr bushels."

A poor corn planter and a p cream separator can loose more p fit fo you in one year than the pr of the machines many times ov If your planter is poor, i it drops regular or strings the con, or pla crooked, better buy a new one; will pay for itself the first year more con per acre, and when y buy that new one see that you the right kind. We can show y some figures that have been dete mined by actual experiments, th will surprise you. Come in and ta it over.

A man always likes to have b oats bin cleaned up before puttin oats into it for his next year's see It is nice to have book accounts al cleaned up for the next years bus ness too.

THE KLEMME TIMES

Twenty-seventh Year—Number 21. Klemme, Iowa, Thursday Afternoon, February 1, 1923. $1.50 In Advance—$2.00 Outside of County

ACTIVITIES OF THE COUNTY'S FARM BUREAU

DUROC JERSEY BREEDERS' MEETING.

The Duroc Jersey Breeders' Association held a meeting at Garner, Friday, January 26th, and officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows: Ray Durant, Garner, President; L. B. Donohue, Forest City, Vice-President; Emil Lau, Klemme, Secretary-Treasurer.

The Association voted to promote a sow and litter club again this year and to give all possible help to the boys and girls in securing their gilts. They voted to offer as first prize a free trip to the International Show at Chicago to be given by the breeders, providing there were at least ten to complete the club. This is a trip well worth working for and there will no doubt be many more than ten to try out for the prize. Rules and cash prizes can be found in another part of the paper.

Any one wishing to join the club should get in touch with the Farm Bureau office or some of the Duroc Jersey breeders.

The Duroc Jersey Association was organized a year ago, and last year promoted a very sucessful sow and litter club.

POLAND CHINA BREEDERS' MEETING.

A meeting of the Poland China breeders of the county was held at Britt Saturday afternoon. An organization was perfected with Everett Sheets, Britt, President; L. A. Dexter, Britt, Vice-President; and Harry Caldwell, Kanawha, Secretary-Treasurer.

The members of the new organization voted to promote a sow and litter club of the Poland China breed, and to offer as first prize a free trip to the International Show at Chicago, providing there were at least eight members showing at the Hancock County Fair.

and cash prizes which will be offered will be found in another part of the paper.

Any boy or girl interetsed should get in touch with the Farm Bureau office or any of the Poland China breeders.

PURE BRED SOW AND LITTER CLUB.

Two pure bred sow and litter clubs will be promoted in the county this year, one by the Duroc Jersey breeders and the other by the Poland China breeders, both in co-operation with the Farm Bureau.

A meeting of the Duroc Jersey Breeders Association was held at Garner, Friday, and the Poland China breeders met at Britt Saturday and perfected an organization.

Both groups were strongly in favor of promoting a sow and litter club because they felt it was the best way to interest the younger people in raising good hogs.

The same rules will be followed in each club, which are as follows:

Rules and regulations for the club

I. Membership. Any boy or girl between the ages of ten and eighteen inclusive, shall be entitled to membership.

II. A pure bred gilt farrowed between March 1st and April 15th, 1922, and bred to a pure bred boar to farrow between March 15th and April 15th, 1923, shall be used.

III. Each gilt shall be registered or eligible to registry and should be registered in the club member's name.

IV. Members should do their own work in feeding and caring for pigs.

V. Enrollment shall be made not later than April 15th.

VI. Every member shall exhibit sow and litter at Hancock County Fair, and at least four of the pigs must be shown. It will not be necessary to show more.

VII. In case the breeders consider a sale advisable, one will be arranged for, and selection of pigs to put in sale will be made by committee appointed for that purpose.

VIII. Contest shall close with the show at the Hancock County Fair.

IX. The prizes shall be as follows: 1st, Free trip to the International Show at Chicago, to be given by the breeders of the county: 2nd, $10.00; 3rd, $8.00; 4th, $6.00; 5th, $5.00; 6th, $4.00; 7th, $3.00; 8th, $2.00; 9th, $2.00; 10th, $2.00.

X. The following basis of award will be used for the club prizes:

(A) Individuality of sow and litter to be judged from pure bred standpoint—sow, 20%; litter, 20%.

(B) Development of litter to be judged from breeder's standpoint, 20%.

(C) Percentage of pigs raised, 20%.

(D). Fitting of sow and litter for show and handling at show, 20%.

XI. There will also be classes made at the Fair for the following: Sow, Junior boar pig, Junior sow pig, produce of dam, and sow and four pigs, and good cash prizes offered. These classes will be judged on merits only.

The above classes will be given on each club.

CLOTHING WORK.

Miss Allie M. Smith of the Extension Department was in the county last week starting the clothing work in five more townships. This makes eleven townships in the county in which this work is being developed.

Meetings were held in Magor, Bingham, Boone, Liberty and Avery townships. The meetings were all well attended, and according to Miss Smith, they were very successful.

This work is being given to the people by the training school method, which is the training of twelve selected leaders from as many communities in the township, and they in turn demonstrate the work in their communities. Miss Smith stated that in all the meetings a number of follow-up meetings were arranged for with the local leader to do the demonstrating. It is felt that by this method that information can be given to all people wanting it in a very short time, and is practically the only method whereby this can be accomplished.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS

The Camp Fire Girls held their meeting in the First National Bank basement on last Thursday evening.

Beads were received and presented to the following girls who were initiatd as woodgatherers: Marie Blank, Blanche Hulse, Ethel Wellemeyer, Neota Ridder, Leona Lau, Maurine Hake, Adela Schroeder and Floence Behringer.

The new members who were taken in at the meeting were Mildred Smith, Dolores Koerner, Fern Ulrich and Anna Mekel.

Marie Blank gave an interesting talk on "Personal Experience Obeying the Law of the Camp Fire.'

Adela Schroeder, Maurine Hake and Neota Ridder gave other interesting talks.

After the business of the meeting was tansacted delicious refreshments were served.

The next meeting will be held in the bank basement, Feb. 1st.

WILLER DEFEATS PREHN

Mat fans who attended the Willer and Prehn match at the Idle Hour last Friday night were given a real treat. The match was fast and full of pep from the start. Prehn was give the first decision when he put Willer on the mat in 30 minutes and 30 seconds with a wrist lock.

Prehn came back in the second round with the intention of rushing Willer. The latter took a lot of gaff and rough stuff for a few minutes and then paid Prehn back in full when he picked Prehn up bodily and dumped him on the mat in less than thirteen minutes. The fall on the mat knocked Prehn out and he was unable to come back for the last round, giving Willer the match.

A good preliminary was on the program, being a match between Harold Leitzinger and Ben Swalve, Jr. The former won the match.

There was a good crowd present at the match.

Farm Bureau Meeting

There will be a Farm Bureau meeting at Liberty Center School on Wednesday evening, Feb. 7. A program is being arranged. Everybody come. 2wp

WOULD GRAVEL KANAWHA—BRITT MAIN HIGHWAY

Petition Circulated and Liberally Signed for Improving Road Between These Towns.

We were informed this week that petitions for gravel have been circulated among the property owners within a radius of one and a half miles each side of the road from Kanawha to Britt and that sixty signatures were secured Two of the property owners refused to sign as they were for hard surfacing, and three would not sign as they were for whatever the majority decided upon. From the above information, which is authentic, the possible result will be that if anything is done toward the improvement of this road it will be graveled.

With all respects to the petitioners, who no doubt are asking for gravel in preference to pavement on account of the expense of the latter, we still are of the opinion that they are making a mistake. Thirty to thirty-five years of graveling experience in this country should be sufficient to teach that it is false economy to build something that is but temporary, at best. Graveled roads are seldom maintained and where they are the drain on road funds is persistent and never-ending. This road in particular, is of such a soil formation that we do not believe gravel will stand the heavy traffic that road will be subjected to during the coming years.

Gravel, however, will be a revelation, in preference to hub-deep mud, even though it will not come up to expectations from an economical standpoint.—Kanawha Reporter.

FRANKLIN COUNTY SELLS BONDS AT GOOD PREMIUM

The Franklin county board of supervisors sold $45,000 worth of funding bonds last Friday to White-Phillips Company, of Davenport, at four and one-half per cent interest, and secured a premium of $126. The bonds were advertised to be sold at five per cent, but the bidding was so lively and the premium offers so high, that the board called off the meeting, and opening up with another contest selling at four and one-half per cent.

The saving to the county over the original proposition is considerable in the amount of interest it would be necessary to pay. The amount would run close to $2,300, and in this age of high taxes and high cost of living this will buy a lot of things. The bonds were to run for ten years.

The total bonded indebtedness of Franklin county is now just about $435,000 mostly all for road purposes.—Hampton Chronicle.

Will Bury Non-Partisan League.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Nortz, of Devil's Lake, North Dakota, were calling on old Corwith friends and former neighbors the latter part of last week and the first of this. They were both raised in Corwith and have a host of friends here. Mr. Nortz has been engaged in the lumber business since leaving here and he and his brothers have a line of yards in Minnesota and North Dakota. They have prospered nicely. He says that money has been and is still tight in their territory but that collections are not being forced beyond the debtor's ability to pay and as things are moving now settlements can be made without many foreclosures. Mr. Nortz thinks by the time the next election rolls around they will be able to bury the Nonpartisan league and then North Dakota will again be on the road to prosperity.—Corwith Hustler.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Larsen entertained at a family re-union or a family gathering at their home Sunday. About forty relatives were present. The occasion was also the birthday of Mrs. Albert Yahnke and a birthday cake and candles was also a feature of the dinner.

Rev. A. H. Meyer had an auto accident one day last week near Edgewood where he preaches. He lost control of his car and it turned over, pinning him unde it. He boke one of his arms and received other bad bruises but is out of danger at this writing. His car was wrecked.

CARPENTER—JOHNSON

The country home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Johnson was the scene of a quiet wedding on Wednesday evening, January 31st, when their daughter, Effie, was united in marriage to Mr. Lloyd Carpenter, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred C. Carpenter of Goodell.

The beautiful service of the Methodist Episcopal Church was read by the Rev. A. B. Gedye.

Owing to the sickness of the groom's parents they were not able to be present. Those present at the ceremony being the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Johnson; her brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Sylvan Johnson and son Ivan; her sister. Clarice; Miss Alvina Buss, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Dutheridge and son Jamie; Mrs. Gedye and daughters, Ursula and Beulah.

Miss Effie is a sweet young lady, greatly admired in the community. Mr. Carpenter is a young man of fine character and appearance.

A sumptuous wedding dinner was served at seven o'clock. The table was prettily decorated; the repast being enjoyed amid much good cheer

The comunity will extend to these two young folk their heartiest congratulations and good wishes.

The happy pair left on Thursday morning with Mr. and Mrs. Dutheridge for a two weeks trip to Morris, Illinois, and Chicago, and other points enroute. They hope to make their future home on a farm near Belmond.

TWO KILLED WHEN TRAIN HITS AUTO AT HAMPTON

M. & St. L. Passenger Strikes Car But Neither Engineer or Fireman See Accident.

E. K. McMaster, of Chester, Iowa, and Glenn Fry, of Des Moines, are dead and John Darrell McMaster, the four-year-old son of E. K. McMaster, is suffering from a roken leg as a result of the car in which they were riding being struck by the southbound M. & St. L. passenger train No. 2 at the McKinley street crossing at the north edge of Hampton last Thursday afternoon.

McMasters and Fry both died as a result of their injuries at about 11:30 o'clock that night, within just a few minutes of each other. McMasters who was the driver and owner of the car, had his right leg cut off between the ankle and the knee and his left leg severed nearly in two at the knee. He also received several serious scalp wounds and some internal injuries. Fry suffered a fractured skull and severe internal injuries.

They were driving west and when crossing the tracks the train struck the car squarely in the middle and carried it and its occupants down the track for nearly two blocks. The first intimation that Engineer Sam Swanson had that anything out of the ordinary had happened was when he heard a peculiar sound and saw a part of the car dangling from the pilot on his side of the engine. Thinking that something was wrong with his engine he gradually brought the train to a stop and went around to the front to investigate. He was taken aghast when he saw, lying across the pilot of his engine, the inert body of a curly headed little boy, clutching in his right hand a bag of peanuts. He quickly removed the boy and laid him carefully in the baggage car and then continued his examination of the wreckage of the car. Parts of the car were still hanging on the pilot and other parts were strewn on back along the left side of the train. Back to about the middle of the smoking car he found the body of the automobile and stretched on the ground beside it, between it and the train, were the horribly mangled bodies of two men.

At the time of the accident Fireman McIntosh on whose side of the engine the car approached, was passing coal and he, like Engineer Swanson, did not know of the accident until the train stopped.

In his statement to Dr. Powers, McMasters said that he saw the train just before he went onto the crossing and that he applied the brakes and tried to stop the car. He stated that when he saw that he could not get the car stopped in time he stepped on the gas in an effort to get across before the train struck the car, but he failed to make it. "If I had not tried to stop we would not have been struck by the train," McMaster said.—Hampton Chronicle.

NEWS OF THE WEEK REPORTED BY THE K. H. S.

Neota Ridder, Editor-in-Chief.
Maurine Hake, Associate Editor.

The students who ae participating in the Declamatory Contest, which is to be held in the near future, are studying their selections. As soon as they know them the exact date will be published in this colum.

The mysterious looking letters that appeared on the desks of the Sophomores and Freshmen wee invitations to a party to be held in the basement of the First National Bank, Friday evening. This was our first high school entertainment for this year and we hope the students will show their appreciation to the Juniors, by attending.

The challenge that appeaed in the last week's issue of this paper, made by the Juniors to the Sophomores and Freshmen will be taken up. Look out Junior! Get out of our way; we're coming with our exemptions from the final examinations.

Ewald Josten, one of our enterprising young Sophomores, showed his ability by arranging a new program which proved satisfactory to all students. For over a week we have been trying to arrange it so there would be no congestion or consecutive studies for the pupils without results. Now owing to Ewald Josten's mathematical reasoning we have solved the problem.

The Eighth Grade County examnations are to be held on Thursday and Friday of this week.

Some of the students of the rural districts are expected to take these examinations.

Henry Brandt, one of our popular young Freshmen, has left this school to attend the Kanawha High School.

Maybelle Johnson has been absent from school for the past week, on account of illness.

Monday morning of this week Supt. Neese gave a very interesting and instructive talk to the assembly. In this talk h related to us some of the experiences of his former pupils and endeavored to show us how we might avoid some of the errors they made; and that we should eliminate as far as possible any future misery that might perchance fall in our pathway and set at naught our happiness of the future.

Fred Albers has been absent a few days of this week.

AVERY TOWNSHIP HOLDS FARM BUREAU MEETING

The women of Avery township held their first regular monthly Farm Bureau meeting at the Wm. Johnson home on Fiday, January 26, in an all day session.

Miss Smith, Clothing Specialist of the Ames Extension Department was present and gave the first lesson in the five-lesson course being put on by the Department.

There will be four more lessons in this course, and should be of interest to every woman and girl in the township.

There were twenty-two women present and it is hoped there will be many more at the next meeting to be held on March 1st, at the home to be announced later.

Lunch was served at noon by Mrs. Johnson with the assistance of a few neighbors.

—Mrs. Pearl Wesenberg, Sec'y.

VOTERS' MEETING

All voters, men and women, in the Klemme School District are requested to meet on Tuesday evening, February 6th, at 8:00 P. M. at the Opera House. A score of voters petitioned the School Board to hold this meeting for the purpose of further discussing our School Building Problem.

NEW CASES IN DISTRICT COURT

Alyse Madison vs. M. P. Madison, Piff. asks judgment for $200.

J. F. Otis vs. Geo. Tierney et al, Piff. asks judgment for $355 for rent due on SE¼ 24-97-24.

J. F. Otis vs. Geo. Tierney, Piff. asks for judgment for $455.00 and landlord's attachment.

Syrena Dickson et al vs. Hannah Burgardt et al, Action to partition certain lands.

Commercial St Bk Britt vs. Herman A Dallman, Piff asks judgment for $9305.92 on notes.

Chris Gillstrap vs. Washington Coal Co., Piff. asks judgment for $1220.85.

J C Sheets vs. Otto Markworth, Appeal from Justice of the Peace of Britt Twp.

C. N. Anderson vs. B. S. Lewis et al, Piff. asks judgment for $277.80 and attachment.

Peter Freund vs. Chas. Engstler et al, Piff. asks judgment for $12,300 & foreclosure of mtg on SE¼ 7 & S½ NE¼ 7-96-23.

Prudential Ins. Co., vs. Roscoe W. Wiles et al, Piff. asks judgment for $4623.75 & foreclosure of mtg on W½ NW¼ 20-94-23.

Mike Semech vs. Wm. Kolar, Action to replevin a cow.

John F. Goddard et al vs. Oliver Goddard et al, Action to partition certain lands.

J. A. Treganza vs. R. L. Balm, Piff. asks judgment on note for $192.56.

National Furniture Co. vs. E. P. Hatten, Confession of judgment for $221.50 and costs.

Schraeder & Diamond vs. O K Dana, Transcript of judgment from Britt Twp. rendered 12-1-22 for $60.27 and costs.

Humboldt Gravel & Tile Co., vs. S. S. Young, et al, Transcript of judgment from Humboldt Co. rendered 10-18-22 for $528 & costs.

E. A. Couper vs. H. B. Russell, Transcript of judgment from Britt Twp, rendered 11-29-22 for $50 and costs.

Walter Boyt Co. vs. A. G. Hanson, Transcript of judgment from Britt Twp. rendered 12-9-22 for $89.02 & costs.

Schraeder & Diamond vs. Glen Miller, Transcript of judgment from Britt Twp. rendered 11-22-22 for $52.03 & costs.

Carl Hampe vs. Carl Sonerholm, Transcript of judgment from Britt Twp. rendered 11-28-22 for $113.47 & costs.

Lennox Oil & Paint Co. vs. Jens S. Jensen, Transcript of judgmnt from Britt Twp., rendered 9-12-22 for $38.65 & costs.

Madison Motor Co. vs. L. J. Nash Transcript of judgment from Britt Township rendered 12-9-22 for $23.63 & costs.

R. C. Valentine & Co., vs. Jens S. Jensen, Transcript of judgment from Britt Twp. rendered 9-11-22 for $46.40 & costs.

Onawa State Bank vs. Oswald Peterson et al, Transcript of judgment from Monona Co., rendered 5-12-22 for $15,912.70 & costs.

Ira L. Hamm vs. Oswald Peterson et al, Transcript of judgment from Monona Co., rendered 6-8-22 for $22,176.22 & costs.

J. O. Osmundson et al vs. O. L. Lien, Transcript of judgment from Kossuth Co., rendered 4-7-22 for $5,740.36 & costs.

G. B. Don Carlos vs. C. J. Dutton, Transcript of judgment from Butler Co., rendered 11-8-22 for $1050 & costs.

C. O. Gorton vs. Jake Groh, Jr., Transcript from Amsterdam Twp., rendered 1-2-23 for $104.58 & costs.

C. O. Gorton vs. Henry Groh, Sr., Transcript of judgment from Amsterdam Twp., rendered 1-2-23 for $90.48 & costs.

Vincent Hardware Co. vs. H. B. Russell et al, Mechanics lien for $182.75 on S½ 23 & NW¼ 26-97-25.

E. O. Lackore vs. H. B. Russell, Mechanics lien for $82.00 on S½ 23 & NW¼ 26-97-25.

Corwith Lbr. Co. vs. Fred Mattoon, Mechanics lien for $166.80 on E½ 28-95-26.

Farmers Lbr. Co., Corwith vs. F. A. Beers, Mechanics lien for $602.41 on SE¼ 29-95-26 & S½ SE¼ 28-95-26.

Farmers Lbr. Co., Corwith vs. Chas. Oxley, Mechanics lien for $739.36 on W½ 29-95-26.

Farmers Co-Op. Society Garner vs. Max Meyer, Mechanics lien for $1794.77 on NE¼ 2-95-23.

FRENCH SOLDIERS FIGHT RIOTERS

Mobs Are Sabered by Algerians In the Rhine City of Treves.

BOTH SIDES SUFFER LOSSES

State of Siege Is Declared by French Authorities—Burgomaster of Dusseldorf Arrested—German Debt Plea Denied.

Paris, Jan. 27.—A state of siege has been declared by the French at Treves in the Rhineland on account of the serious riots there Friday afternoon. A dozen French soldiers and civilian officials were injured by the sudden German revolt. A troop of Algerian Spahis cleared the streets with sabers, wounding a number of Germans, some seriously.

Dusseldorf, Jan. 27.—A series of decrees that amounts to martial law is being enforced by the French troops in all of the occupied territory.

The entire business of government practically has been taken over by the French, who arrested Burgomaster Schmidt of Dusseldorf and Dr. Oexle, the city's director of police, on charges of responsibilities for the riots. The two officials are in jail and will be tried by court martial.

The French also arrested President Grentzner of Rhenish Prussia. After a long conference with General Simon, however, he was released with the warning that unless he obeyed all demands of the French he would again be arrested. A score of nationalist leaders were arrested in connection with the rioting.

In the absence of the German police, order is being maintained in Dusseldorf by patrols of French infantry. More troops are arriving here en route to the Ruhr valley. Miners throughout the Ruhr are leaving their jobs gradually.

Paris, Jan. 27.—The allied reparations commissions rejected Germany's appeal for a moratorium by a vote of 3 to 1, and proclaimed Germany in general default of reparations. American Observer Boyden did not speak. Louis Barthou, French representative, withdrew France's moratorium plan and the commission decided to notify the allied governments of German defaults.

TURK WAR SPECTER AGAIN

British Split With Moslems on the Mosul Oil Question—Situation Called Menacing.

Lausanne, Jan. 24.—Unsettled as is the general European situation, it suddenly took a more menacing turn owing to critical developments in the Near Eastern conference. Turkey refused to accept the British proposal to refer the Mosul dispute to the League of Nations for settlement, and Great Britain declined to accede to Turkish counter-suggestions that the question be settled by a plebiscite in the contested district.

McNARY FAILS IN SENATE

Committee Report Opposes His Nomination as Currency Comptroller, It is Said.

Washington, Jan. 25.—Investigation by a subcommittee of the senate banking and currency committee of the fitness of James C. McNary of New Mexico, to be comptroller of the currency, the place to which he was recently nominated by the President, has resulted in the determination of the subcommittee to report unfavorably on the nomination, it was learned here.

STEEL CORDON AROUND RUHR

General Weygand Says Occupancy Will Cease When Berlin Shows Good Faith.

London, Jan. 26.—"France will not leave the Ruhr until the Germans display good will in paying reparations," General Weygand told newspaper men at Duseldorf. "We have tried every courtesy with the Germans, but they refuse to make any agreements. We find nothing but bad faith."

NEW CHICAGO POST OFFICE

Postmaster General Work and Treasurer Mellon to Submit $10,000,000 Plan to Congress.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Postmaster General Work and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon are expected to recommend soon a new $10,000,000 post office for Chicago. The report will probably be completed and submitted to congress within two or three weeks.

Sanford Nomination Considered.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Senators Nelson, Colt and Shields were appointed a subcommittee to consider President Harding's nomination of Federal Judge E. T. Sanford of Tennessee to the Supreme court.

Bill for Vice Presidential Mansion.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Senator Warren, Republican, introduced a bill authorizing acceptance by the government of the $500,000 marble home on Sixteenth street which Mrs. J. B. Henderson has offered for vice presidents.

GERTRUDE ATHERTON

Recent studio portrait of Gertrude Atherton, the famous novelist, who has expressed her opinion of the Ruhr affair in an interview. Miss Atherton declared that Germany was too impoverished to make any resistance to France and that if the Russian soviet troops should come to Berlin's assistance the Bolshevist army "would fade like autumn leaves before the great military machine of the French. If the French troops stay in Germany, there is no knowing what may happen to Germany herself. The people may be cold, they may be hungry. With misery such as this there might be a revolution—when a people are in misery they must blame something, so they blame the government."

3-STATE COAL TRUCE

May Perpetuate Joint Committee to Settle Differences.

Action Averts Danger of Strike in Soft Coal Fields in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio.

New York, Jan. 25.—Miners and operators representing the bituminous industry signed papers extending until April 1, 1924, the present contract governing wages and conditions of labor.

This action averts all danger of strike in the soft coal regions this spring. The conference also left the joint scale committee of seventeen as a standing body, with orders to reconvene a year from now and take up negotiations for renewal once more. A permanent committee to adjust differences thereby was formed.

The territory represented in the present conference includes Illinois, Indiana and northern Ohio, but its action affects the entire industry, as the agreement will form a basis for settlements in the outlying fields.

The conference had announced that it had "reaffirmed the wage scale contract now existing between the United Mine Workers of America and the coal operators, whose interests are represented in this joint conference."

"The adoption of this resolution," the announcement continued, "hereby extends the contract for a period of one year from April 1, 1923, in all of its terms, provisions and conditions."

The present contract provides a basic wage scale of $7.50 a day and a rate of $1.08 on tonnage. The $7.50 rate applies for the most part to surface workers, as the men who do the actual mining are paid according to their production.

LIVING COST STILL AWAY UP

Sixty-nine Per Cent Higher Than in 1913, Labor Bureau Statistics Show.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Final figures announced by the bureau of labor statistics show that in the country as a whole the cost of living in December, 1922, was 69.5 per cent higher than for the same month in 1913, the last year before the World war; 2.8 per cent lower than in December, 1921, and 1.9 per cent higher than in September, 1922.

964 U. S. VESSELS TIED UP

Total Fleet Is 1,379, Aggregating 9,846,611 Deadweight Tons—415 in Operation.

Washington Jan. 27.—A total of 1,379 vessels, aggregating 9,846,611 deadweight tons comprises the fleet owned by the shipping board which announced that 415 of its vessels were in operation and 964 tied up at the beginning of the new year.

Law Violation Big Problem.

Washington, Jan. 27.—President Harding will call a conference of the governors of the 48 states of the Union to meet in Washington in April or May to consider the widespread disregard of the eighteenth amendment.

Baldwin Not to Return Here, Report.

London, Jan. 27.—Chancellor of the Exchequer Stanley Baldwin, who headed the British debt mission to the United States, will not return there, it is understood. Ambassador Geddes probably will continue negotiations.

SENATE PASSES 2 SUPPLY BILLS

Upper House Makes Another Record in Action on Important Measures.

IN LINE WITH BUDGET BUREAU

Senator Lenroot Criticizes the Capper Rural Credits Bill and Offers a Substitute Extending $660,000,000 Credit.

Washington, Jan. 26.—Another record was made by the senate when it passed two supply bills, one carrying appropriations of $12,702,950 for the legislative department, and another of $24,496,000 for the District of Columbia.

Chairman Warren of the senate appropriations committee was gratified over the rapidity with which the senate has acted upon the supply bills and the fact that for the most part the appropriations commended by the budget bureau have not been altered.

Senator Jones of Washington, chairman of the commerce committee, asked unanimous consent for an agreement to impose a limited cloture on debate on the ship aid bill. Senator Brookhart of Iowa promptly objected and then Mr. Jones laid the bill aside for the immediate consideration of the Lenroot rural credits bill.

Mr. Lenroot took a fling at the Capper bill recently passed by the senate, saying it does not liberalize credits, "but simply restricts credits to the idea of making them more accessible to bankers buying live stock paper." He said his bill provides a credit facility running from six months to three years for the farmer so he can borrow money to prepare his crops which need not be paid back until he markets that crop.

"There now is no such credit for the farmer," he added. "If he borrows money to plant his crop the bank will give credit not exceeding six months. The farmers are not asking charity. They merely ask for the same credit facilities extended to other business men."

Mr. Lenroot explained that his bill provides for government aid to the extent of $60,000,000 which, used as a revolving fund, will extend $660,000,000 credit for farmers.

FRENCH TROOPS FIGHT MOBS

Invading Soldiers Clash With Angry Germans in Several Cities of the Ruhr.

Essen, Jan. 26.—French troops fought mobs in several cities of the Ruhr and the Rhineland. French dragoons fired at the crowds of angry Germans and rode them down in Dusseldorf, where General Weygand, chief aid of Marshal Foch, was busy completing final plans for the isolation of the occupied areas from the rest of Germany. The Dusseldorf mobs fought the French cavalry with stones and a French lieutenant was injured. One German was hit by a bullet.

Here in Essen the French massed machine guns to cow demonstrators, but finally withdrew them when the German mounted police dispersed the mobs.

GRAND JURY INDICTS LUNDIN

Twenty Others Included in True Bill in Connection With Chicago School Board Inquiry.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Fred Lundin, former political companion of Mayor Thompson, and twenty others were indicted by the special grand jury on a charge of conspiring to defraud the school board. Mr. Lundin and Virtus Rohm, it is understood, are charged with conspiracy in connection with school insurance contracts, given through the Rohm agency and handled by the Southern Sureties company, in which both Mr. Lundin and Mr. Rohm were stockholders.

SAYS DRY LAW BREEDS CRIME

President of Columbia University Declares Eighteenth Amendment Never Can Be Enforced.

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 27.—There is no likelihood that the eighteenth amendment ever can be enforced, "no matter at what expenditure of money or of effort," Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, declared in an address at the annual meeting of the Ohio State Bar association.

He asserted that "methods of czarist Russia, and of the Spanish inquisition" are being used to enforce this provision of law.

More Irish Executed.

Dublin, Jan. 27.—Patrick Cunningham, William Conroy and Colm Kelley, all of Tullamore, were executed at Birr, Kings county, for possessing arms and ammunition and for theft from residences.

Poland Can Stand Alone.

New York, Jan. 27.—The need for American relief in Poland has passed, and Poland is now not only able but willing to carry on without outside assistance, according to the American Relief Administration.

COL. T. J. IJAMS

Col. T. J. Ijams at his desk in the United States veterans' bureau where he has been promoted from chief of the district organizations to the post of executive officer, the place made vacant by the transfer of Dr. T. Hugh Scott to the position of commanding officer of the hospital organization at Muskogee, Okla. The change was a part of the long impending shakeup in the bureau.

U. S. MARKET REPORT

Weekly Marketgram by Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Washington.—For the week ending January 25—GRAIN—Chicago cash market: No. 2 red winter wheat, $1.30; No. 2 hard winter wheat, $1.16; No. 2 mixed corn, 71c; No. 2 yellow corn, 71c; No. 3 white oats, 44c. Average farm prices: No. 2 mixed corn in central Iowa, 59c; No. 1 dark northern wheat in central North Dakota, 98c; No. 2 hard winter wheat in central Kansas, $1.01.

HAY—No. 1 timothy, $17.00 Cincinnati, $21.00 Chicago, $16.50 Minneapolis, $20.00 St. Louis; No. 1 prairie, $15.50 Minneapolis, $16.00 Chicago, $16.00 St. Louis.

FEED—Bran, $27.00; middlings, $26.50; rye middlings, $25.00; flour middlings, $28.50 Minneapolis; 34 per cent linseed meal, $53.75 Minneapolis; white hominy feed, $30.50 St. Louis, $31.00 Chicago; gluten feed, $42.65 Chicago.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES—Danish type cabbage, $35.00 in Cincinnati, $18.00@20.00 f. o. b. western New York points. Texas Savoy spinach, $1.50@1.75 per bu. basket in leading cities. Sacked round white potatoes, $1.35@1.45 per 100 lbs. in city markets, $1.05 f. o. b. New York points; northern round whites, 95c@$1.10 in leading cities, 60@67c f. o. b. shipping points. Baldwin apples, $4.50@5.00 per bbl. in city markets, $4.25@4.50 f. o. b. shipping points; northwestern extra fancy boxed Jonathans and winesaps, $2.25@2.50 in midwestern markets. Middle-western yellow onions, $2.75@3.10 per 100-lb. sack in consuming markets.

LIVE STOCK—Chicago prices: Hogs, top, $8.25; bulk of sales, $7.75@8.15; medium and good beef steers, $7.75@11.00; butcher cows and heifers, $3.75@10.25; feeder steers, $3.25@8.15; light and medium weight veal calves, $8.50@12.00; fat lambs, $13.00@15.15; feeding lambs, $12.75@15.00; yearlings, $9.25@13.25; fat ewes, $5.00@8.35.

DAIRY PRODUCTS—Butter, 92 score, 48½c Chicago. Cheese prices at Wisconsin primary markets: Twins, 26¼c; daisies, 25c; double daisies, 26¾c; longhorns, 27½c; square prints, 28¼c.

OFFICE-HOLDING CLASS BIG

Fifteen Million Persons in United States Supported by Taxes, Says Congressman Rainey.

Urbana, Ill., Jan. 26.—In the last 65 years federal taxes have increased from 46 cents per capita to $30, approximately sixty-five times, Congressman Henry T. Rainey said in an address to farmers. "Our office-holding class probably exceeds in the number the entire office-holding class of any three European nations," said Representative Rainey. "According to estimate, there are on the federal pay rolls and on state pay rolls, including pensioners and bondholders, 3,350,000 men and women. If we include dependents, there are at least 15,000,000 people in the country supported by taxes. And there are only 30,000,000 people in the country engaged in productive labor."

ROOSEVELT ESTATE $981,171

Details of Property Owned by Former President Filed in Court by Executors.

New York, Jan. 26.—Details of the estate of Col. Theodore Roosevelt were filed in Supreme court in an accounting by his widow, Mrs. Edith K. Roosevelt, his son Theodore, and his cousin, George Emlen Roosevelt, as executors and trustees.

The executors report that upon Colonel Roosevelt's death they received a total of $801,171, which does not include $180,000 as the value of his only real estate, his Sagamore Hill estate. The remainder was in personal property.

American Troops Sail.

Antwerp, Jan. 26.—The transport St. Mihiel left here Thursday with the American troops which have been on duty at Cobienz. About sixty men were left behind on the Rhine to dispose of goods.

Daugherty Is Exonerated.

Washington, Jan. 26.—The report of the judiciary committee exonerating Attorney General Daugherty of the impeachment charges brought by Representative Keller, Republican, was adopted by the house, 204 to 77.

LEGISLATIVE NEWS

INTERESTING SIDELIGHTS ON THE ACTIVITIES OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Results of Work of our Law Makers Presented to our Readers Each Week Direct from the Capitol

Unanimous passage of the resolution favoring seating of women in the legislature by the house, the introduction of the highway question through the reading into the house journal of the legislative recommendations of the state highway commission, appearance of a disposition on the part of the senate to really revise the code, demonstration of willingness in the house to speed up code revision, the shying into the hopper of a wide variety of bills in goodly numbers, and general good feeling without the development of strict lines on any particular piece of legislation have marked the early days of the first real work period of the fortieth general assembly.

Perhaps the most dynamic thing thus far has been the reading into the record of the state highway commission's program of desired legislation. Not since the thirty-seventh general assembly when federal aid was first adopted by the state and the thirty-eighth when the primary and secondary road laws were enacted has there been the potential possibility of a spectacular highway fight now presented. All that is waiting is for some one to introduce a bill embodying the highway commission's major plank and the fireworks will be touched off.

This seems quite improbable as federal aid is not threatened to be taken away from the state until 1926 and another general assembly meets after the present one before that time. Federal aid is the chief bone of contention as it is the most touchy subject in the highway commission's recommendations that the complete control of the primary system now vested in the county boards of supervisors be turned oved to the commission. This request on the part of the commission is made because it states that the Iowa law must be made to comply with the federal law by 1926 or Iowa will lose her federal aid money.

In plainer words the commission asks that it be given authority to control the maintenance of the primary road system and direct its hard surfacing. The legislative recommendations of the commission were read into the house journal and 1,000 extra copies ordered printed for general distribution over the state.

In return for the control of the primary road system the highway commission would do away with the 25 per cent assessment against abutting property for the payment of paving and permit the purchase of right-of-way for relocations of the primary road out of the primary road fund. Each of these things must, of course be done by legislative enactment. Bills for both changes in the law have been introduced in the house.

The askings of the highway commission brought forth a protest against surrendering control of our road system to the federal government in return for a little federal aid from Representative J. P. Gallagher of Iowa county, who introduced a joint resolution memorializing congress to put an end to further federal aid projects.

He objects to having the kite swing the tail in matters of federal aid, in other words, letting the bureau of roads at Washington not only dictate but control the expenditure of all the money in the primary road fund because it returns to Iowa one fourth as many dollars in tax money as is paid into the primary road fund in motor vehicle license fees.

A board of three persons, one of whom might be a woman, at a salary of $3,000 each per year, to be named by the governor, superintendent of public instruction and chairman of the board of parole is provided in Gallagher's bill. The exhibition of motion picture films would be limited to those which receive the stamp of approval of the state board of standardization.

Representative A. V. Brady of O'Brien county, chairman of the house agricultural committee and Senator George S. Banta of Delaware county represented the legislature and the state of Iowa at an agricultural cost of production conference at Sioux City, called at the invitation of former Governor Byrne, now commissioner of agriculture of South Dakota.

A special appropriation measure to loan $20,000 to the state soldiers bonus board until it receives funds of its own from the sale of the $22,000,000 bonds was introduced by the house appropriations committee.

The adoption of the resolution by Representatives Hauge of Polk county and Graham of Wapello county, favoring seating women in the general assembly was put through the house by a vote of 92 to 0 without a word of debate. It must be passed by the senate of this legislature and by both houses of the forty-first general assembly and then receive a majority of the vote cast at a referendum election before the constitution of Iowa can be amended to strike out the word "male" in section 4 of article 3.

.. Hawkeye State News

Interesting Items Gathered From all Parts of Iowa

Eleven nations are represented in the Cosmopolitan club at Iowa

Voters will be asked to authorize $850,000 bonds for new school improvements at Sioux City.

Eleven counties, located in the southeast corner of the state, have established sheep clubs for boys and girls.

The Duroc sale held at Iowa by John Hobbs brought an average price of $105 with a top of $1[illegible] a sow.

After four years in Palestine, Albert Ghoreyeb, formerly Miss Hazel Titus of Spencer, has returned for a visit.

Earl Duncan of Muscatine has his hatchery improvements finished and is prepared to handle 500,000 [illegible] to all parts of the United States before August.

The members of the fortieth general assembly made merry as guests of the Greater Des Moines committee at a dinner at Hotel Des Moines recently.

A malady new among cattle in the development of a disease long known has not spread beyond the place of its origin in southwest Iowa, having been called "forage poisoning."

More than 3,000 acres of farm land will be reclaimed by the use of a drainage ditch costing between $75,000 and $80,000 ordered to be built north of Mitchellville by the County Board of Supervisors.

The jury in the trial of B. F. Kiskern of Castalia, accused of the murder of Irene and Charles Van Blarlin, came in with a verdict of guilty. Life imprisonment was recommended by the jury.

Expressions of enthusiastic approval were received by The Register and Tribune regarding its plan announced recently to spend $[illegible] in 1923 on a publicity campaign in behalf of Iowa in Chicago and New York newspapers and other publications.

The senate committee on taxation credits was called to meet by Chairman Shinn, and following a discussion of the problem of supplying better credit facilities for the farmer decided to send for information from the twenty-four states which have some form of credit to agriculturists.

In confirming the appointment of William R. C. Kendrick as state insurance commissioner behind closed doors and in executive session the Iowa senate established its precedent for all future votes on appointments. They will be cast in secret or written ballots and without roll calls.

A bill by Representative Blake of Fayette county would change the time of paying taxes from March and September to May and November. This bill is designed to offer relief to farmers, its author says. He says that no two months of the year could be selected which are more inconvenient in which to pay taxes by the farmer.

Sick school children alone cost the taxpayers of Iowa approximately $45,000,000 last year, according to statistics compiled by Dr. R. P. Hilgan, secretary of the state board of health. One hundred and forty-one thousand six hundred and five children were absent from school every day last year, 80 per cent of them because of preventable illness.

Iowa is to have a real forfeiture of bail law if a bill introduced recently by Senator Tuck of Corning becomes a law. This bill, aimed to break up the prosperous bond ring in the larger towns of the state, was drafted by the attorney general's office at the suggestion of Governor Kendall, following the expose of the bond ring situation in Des Moines and other cities.

Historically famous pieces of wood built into a block and gavel, were presented to the Kiwanis club at a luncheon recently in Des Moines by E. E. Strawn, who collected the material, after which the gavel and block were made by Curator Edgar R. Harlan of the state historical department. Wood from the first speaker's desk in the house of representatives of Iowa, dating back to 1847, pipestone from an Indian grave dating back to before the white man came to the Mississippi valley, a small piece of wood from the battleship Constitution, built in 1797, and walnut from President Lincoln's birthplace residence were used in making the gavel. A brass circle inlaid in the block is from a shell found on a battlefield of the world war.

The senate fight over code revision at the regular session came to an end without further oratory, a compromise between the two factions having been reached. Senator Hoegel of Calhoun, chairman of the code revision committee, moved the adoption of a new rule by which code commission bills should be given precedent over regular legislation up to Feb. 1st, and thereafter general legislation should be given precedent, except when the senate by a majority vote decided to take up code revision.

NOTICE OF SPECIAL SCHOOL ELECTION

—T—

Public Notice is hereby given to the qualified voters of the Independent School District of Klemme, in the County of Hancock, State of Iowa, that a special election of the voters of said District will be held on the 26th day of February, 1923, at the Town Hall, corner 2nd and Hancock streets, Klemme, Iowa, from 1 o'clock P. M. until 6 o'clock P. M. at which time there will be submitted to the voters of said District the following proposition:

"Shall the Independent School District of Klemme, in the County of Hancock, State of Iowa, issue bonds in the sum of not to exceed $15,000 for the purpose of constructing and equipping an addition to the school house within said School District?"

at which time and place you are hereby notified to appear.

This notice is given by order of the Board of Directors of the Independent School District of Klemme, Hancock County, Iowa, pursuant to a sufficient petition in accordance with Sections 2820-d 1 et seq. of the Supplement to the Code of Iowa, 1913, as amended. and in accordance with a resolution of said Board, duly adopted on the 25th day of January, 1923.

Dated at Klemme, Iowa, this 25th day of January, 1923.

LEW LEWIS
Secretary, Board of Directors.

(Jan 25, Feb. 1-8-15-22)

GEORGE ZINN, M. D.

Physician and Surgeon

Office opposite from Hotel Klemme

Phone No. 19

Eyes Examined Glasses Fitted

NOTICE OF SPECIAL SCHOOL ELECTION

—T—

Public Notice is hereby given to the qualified voters of the Independent School District of Klemme, in the County of Hancock, State of Iowa, that a special election of the voters of said District will be held on the 26th day of February, 1923, at the Town Hall, corner 2nd and Hancock Streets, Klemme, Iowa from 1 o'clock P. M. until 6 o'clock P. M., at which time there will be submitted to the voters of said district the following proposition:

"Shall the Independent School District of Klemme, in the County of Hancock, State of Iowa, issue bonds in the sum not to exceed $45,000 for the purpose of constructing and equipping a new school house and procuring a site therefor within said School District?"

at which time and place you are hereby notified to appear.

This Notice is given by order of the Board of Directors of the Independent School District of Klemme, Hancock County, Iowa, pursuant to a sufficient petition in accordance with Sections 2820-d 1 et seq. of the Supplement to the Code of Iowa, 1913, as amended, and in accordance with the resolution of said Board duly adopted on the 25th day of January, 1923.

Dated at Klemme, Iowa, this 25th day of January, 1923.

LEW LEWIS
Secretary, Board of Directors.

(Jan 25, Feb. 1-8-15-22)

Estrayed Notice

Estrayed from my place a red pig, bobbed tail, weight about 75lb, last week. Finder notify Peter Dolse. Klemme, Iowa. 1wp

ORIGIN OF WORDS

Entertainment and Knowledge in the Search.

In the End, It Will Be Found That Explanations Are In the Nature of a Guess.

Most people take their words (and their phrases, too) ready made; that is, they learn a small vocabulary from hearing other people talk, and afterward, finding the same words in books and dictionaries, they are emboldened to use them in their speech and writing. If they ever wonder where these words came from originally it is in a vague, listless way, rather like the way they look upon mysterious astronomy.

If one pins a comparatively small class down to their actual knowledge of the English language one can learn something more definite, but still nebulous. This small educated class really has heard of the Angles and Danes who impinged their language on the Picts and thus started the Anglo-Saxon boom. It will tell you also how Julius Caesar brought his cohorts into Britain and almost succeeded in making it a Latin-speaking island.

Coming down to the year 1066, the same cultivated persons explain by means of the Conquest the large number of French words that have been more or less Anglicized that we use every day. And when we ask why there are so many German words in our tongue it is only necessary to recall the fact of a common Teutonic origin of the sailors and beachcombers who lived either in the fens or along the shores of Europe and England. They spoke what may be called a common language.

After Shakespeare, Milton, Dryden, Ben Jonson, Sam Johnson and other notable writers had introduced more Latin, Italian and French words into the language and invented a few of their own English may be said to have been finished. Really every language, including English, is extraordinarily conservative and resents new words. All the same new words do get into them. These words are sometimes required to describe new things in the arts, sciences, etc.

When Morse invented his code a handy word had to be made and so arose telegraph and a variety of derivatives. The airplane has given us in turn several new words. Slang gives us a novel word now and then.

For instance, the word "boycott" had no trouble at all in finding its way into our tongue and into most European languages. It arose from the treatment of Capt. Boycott of Lough Mask House in the County Mayo in 1880. "Boston," a new word for a new card game, got into the language earlier. It comes from the siege of our city of Boston in 1775-76 and the moves of the game follow all the strategic moves in this military history.

Pomp, meaning a solemn procession, comes from the the Latin word pompe, which was in turn derived from the Latin verb pempein, which means to send. Meddle, to mix, is a distortion of the word middle, but it has as good a place in the language now as its forebear.

Who knows where the word haberdashery comes from? Ask any man who sells neckties, collars and other little things to adorn (perhaps) the person of man and he hasn't the least idea. Look up the word in the standard dictionaries; the search will not be rewarded.

Quite otherwise is the origin of the word humble pie. It comes from the eating by servants long years ago of pie made from the umbles, or entrails, of the deer.

There is considerable entertainment and not a little knowledge to be gained by looking up the origin of words. Why not add it to the list of popular indoor sports?—New York Herald.

Long in Public Life.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon's announced intention to retire from service in congress at the expiration of his present term, completing forty-six years in the house, has called attention to the length of service of other house members.

Burton of Cleveland and Longworth of Cincinnati are the veterans of the Ohio delegation, each now serving his ninth term. The Clevelander, however, in addition, has served one term of six years in the senate.

Fess, of Yellow Springs, is serving his fifth term; Cooper of Youngstown, and Kearns of Bavaria, their fourth; and Cole of Findlay, Foster of Athens, Moore of Cambridge, Murphy of Steubenville, Stephens, of Cincinnati, and Thompson of Defiance, their second. The others are all first-termers.

Tone Producer for Violin.

It is said that a modern violin, of any ordinary make, can be converted into the equivalent of a Stradivarius, or other violin of Italy's golden days of string-instrument making, by the attachment to it of a newly invented tone producer. The device, according to an illustrated article in the March Popular Mechanics Magazine, is applicable to any kind of string instrument, is made of specially prepared wood, and is so constructed that it conforms to the shape of the instrument to which it is attached.

Edmonton Has a Gusher.

A new gas well north of Edmonton, Alberta, is gushing at a rate of 40,000,000 cubic feet a day and the roar of the gas can be heard at a distance of fifteen miles. Men working in the vicinity have to wear masks.

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT OF EXECUTOR

Notice is Hereby Given, That the undersigned has been duly appointed and qualified as Executor of the Estate of JACOB BLUMER late of Hancock County, State of Iowa, deceased. All persons indebted to the estate are requested to make immediate payment; and those having claims against the same will present them, duly authenticated, to the undersigned, for allowance.

Dated Jan. 18, 1923 A. D.

STATE SAVINGS BANK,
Executor.

(Jan 25. Fb. 1-8.)

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

Somebody has circulated a false and damaging story connecting my name with that of chicken thieves. I want to say that all such stories are false, and furthermore I will pay a reward of $25.00 to the person who can locate the party who started this story.

(Signed) HENRY MAITLAND.
January 19, 1923. 2w

50 GOOD CIGARETTES 10¢

GENUINE "BULL" DURHAM TOBACCO

TYPEWRITER RIBBONS
All Makes

Typewriter Ribbons for sale at the Times Office. all of the Standard makes. Ribbons 75 cents each.

THE CITY DRAY LINE

—Is prepared to do your hauling carefully and promptly. We solicit your patronage. Charges reasonable.

Coal Hauling Done

Louie Knoke

DENTIST

J. L. Hesselhuus, D. D. S.

Office Hours 8-12 1-5:30

Office Opposite State Savings Bank; In Schaffer Bldg.

Evening Work By Appointment Only

Klemme, Ia. Phone 81

KLEMME DRAY LINE

Phone 2105

A share of your patronage is solicited. All work attended to promptly and carefully. We haul coal quick.

LLOYD LAU, PROP.

PUBLIC AUCTION

Having decided to quit farming, I will hold a Public Sale at my farm located 1 mile south and 4 1-2 miles east of Klemme, on——

Thursday, February 8

SALE WILL BEGIN PROMPTLY AT 1:00 P. M.

7 Head of Horses 7

1 Black Mare, 13 years old.

1 Bay Gelding, 14 years old.

1 Bay Mare, 13 years old.

1 Black Mare.

1 Gray Gelding, coming 5 years old.

1 Bay Gelding, 10 years old.

1 Black Gelding, 14 years old.

Farm Machinery

- Deering Binder, 6-ft. cut
- 3-section Flexible Harrow
- 3-section Wooden Harrow
- 3-section Boss Harrow
- Walking Plow
- Endgate Seeder
- 4-horse Evener
- 3-horse Evener
- 2-hole Corn Sheller, complete with trucks, cob carrier, and elevator.
- Iron Wheel Truck Wagon, with 26-inch Box
- Bob Sled
- 26-inch Wagon and Spring Seat
- Manure Spreader
- 2-seated Spring Buggy
- Narrow Tire Wagon, with a Triple Box
- Fanning Mill
- 6-h. p. Gas Engine
- Shoveling Board
- 16-inch Sulky Plow
- 8-foot Disc
- 11-foot Seeder, with a grass attachment
- 14-inch Gang Plow
- 6-shovel Walking Cutlivator
- 4-shovel Walking Cultivator
- J. I. Case Corn Planter
- Standard 5-foot Mower
- Hay Rake
- Iron Wheel Truck Wagon Hay Rack
- 2 sets of 1 1-2 inch Harness
- Some Hay.
- And many other articles.

This machinery listed above is in first class condition, and is practically as good as new. Machinery has always been kept in the shed, well oiled and taken care of.

TERMS OF SALE——All sums of ten dollars and under, cash. Over ten dollars a credit of ten month's time will be given on approved security at 8 per cent interest from date of sale. No property is to be removed until settled for.

Ernest Henzie, Prop.

COL. B. A. REEMSTMA, AUCTIONEER. FIRST NATIONAL BANK, KLEMME, CLERKS.

A Suit To Your Measute

Several have already been measured or their Spring Suits. See the new materials, models and medium prices.

They Cost no More than for ready mades and you'll get Style and Individuality not found in the ready-made suit—it only stands to reason—ask the real dresser.

CALL IN AND SEE WHAT I HAVE TO OFFER YOU

Also an elegant line of Men's Furnishings—new & up-to-date. Business is good thank you.

The Men's Fashion Shop

"Where Good Clothes Are Made."

A. W. JOHNSON

GARNER IOWA

Pantorium in connection

MONKEY MESSES UP HOTEL

Ring-Tailed Animal From Central America Causes Considerable Commotion During Freedom.

New York.—A little black ring-tailed monkey from Central America escaped from an animal store. He was finally captured in a room of the Hotel Chelsea by Patrolman Ernest Freeburg, but not before he had, during his two days of freedom, caused considerable commotion in the Chelsea district.

The monkey seemed to be partial to the Hotel Chelsea. He was first seen on a fire escape of the sixth floor. Several times he was cornered in rooms there, but always escaped. He got into the room of Arthur Wolte, resident manager of the house, and ate a couple of thrushes which used to sing sweetly.

Soon after this the monkey went into the room of a gentleman who had been drinking home brew, and the gentleman called the hotel clerk to witness that he had sworn off from that moment, it being his belief that the little monk was equipped with green wings and yellow hands. Simmons and the police tried to poison the monkey after that, sprinkling a deadly liquid on a bunch of bananas, but the monkey ate the good fruit and let the poisoned bananas alone. He was finally cornered in a room on the third floor of the Hotel Chelsea, and while two boys closed the windows on the fire escape the policeman went in and captured him. Then he was locked up.

SUE FOR AMERICAN'S DEATH

$100,000 Reparation Asked of Turks for Death of George Knapp, Murdered by Soldiers.

Los Angeles, Cal.—A claim of $100,000 as reparation for the death of George P. Knapp, an American, seven years ago in Armenia, is being prepared for filing against the Turkish government by officials of the State department at Washington, according to a statement made here by Knapp's brother, J. Herbert Knapp, a civil engineer.

When Knapp died, typhus was given as the cause, but his brother believed the cause was more sinister and left his home here to go to Turkey and Armenia, where he passed years in an investigation. He secured an affidavit from an Armenian banker, which declares his brother was taken by Turkish soldiers, who trampled into the dust the American flag over his door, tied him to a tree in a desolate place and shot him three times simply because they believed he knew too much about their depredations.

Women Proving More Polite.

It is not an uncommon sight now to see a young girl get up and offer her seat in the subway to an elderly woman, whose entrance has been ignored by the male passengers. Such usually brings some blushing humble man to his feet with a stammering offer of "have my seat," but the climax was reached the other evening in an uptown restaurant when a middle-aged woman took a seat at the same table with one of her own sex, a stranger to her, and on finishing dinner politely inquired:

"Do you mind if I smoke?"—New York Sun.

Wild-Life Refuge.

The Rockefeller foundation has presented to the state of Louisiana a tract of country comprising some 35,000 acres known as the Grand Chenier Wild-Life Refuge. The land was purchased by the foundation from individual holders in 1914 in order to preserve the wild life of the country, and it is a condition of the gift, which includes laboratories, publications and equipment connected with the preservation enterprise, that the tract shall remain as a perpetual wild-life preserve.—Scientific American.

Newlyweds.

My husband and I having been married just a short time, arrived in New York and went to one of the best-known hotels. My husband registered and we went up to our room. I said, "Oh, John, I hope you didn't register 'and wife.' I hate that. It sounds as if a woman were just an appendage. I meant to tell you to be sure and write 'Mr. and Mrs.'"

The expression on John's face was almost tragic, so I hastened to assure him that it wasn't that serious.

"But it is serious. What do you suppose I've done? I registered 'John Brooks and Mary Allen.'"

Just then there was a loud knock at the door. It was the house detective. Of course everything was explained all right, but it certainly was embarrassing.—Chicago Tribune.

Not So Dark Now.

"Where has he been?"

"To darkest Africa."

"My! How interesting! He must have seen lions and elephants in the jungles."

"He saw a herd of elephants from the window of a Pullman."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Not to Be Deceived.

Mr. Newrich (examining curio)—"Two thousand years old? You can't kid me! Why, it's only 1921 now!"—The Passing Show (London).

AVERY TOWNSHIP NEWS

Mrs. Robert Roth was a caller at the E. J. Arnold home Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sylvan Johnson were Sunday visitors at the home of Elko Buss and family.

Albert Fuller and family were visitors at the home of Martin Jensens one night last week.

Cornelius Wille and family were visitors at the Albert Fuller home Friday night.

Andrew Nelson's baby has been seriously sick, but is a little improved at this time.

Last week we stated that Miss Jennie Meinderts was a visitor at the Ed. Bachman home. It should have been Mrs. Leo Wilkins and children were spending a few days at the Ed. Bachman home.

Averting Suspicion.

"Some of your constituents are criticising your English."

"Encourage 'em," replied Senator Sorghum. "It'll help to convince folks that although I occasionally mingle in society I still speak as one of the plain people."

He Would Work Then.

Tired Tim knocked at the door of a cottage. It was a chilly day, and he was very hungry.

The old lady who opened the door was a good sort. She asked him into the kitchen and placed before him a nicely cooked meal, and asked him why he did not go to work.

"I would," replied Tim, "If I had the tools."

"What sort of tools do you want?" inquired the old lady.

"A knife and fork," said Tired Tim.

Indian Woman Ruler.

A strange and impressive hostess, the begum of Bhopal, deeply veiled, received the prince of Wales at Bhopal on his recent Indian tour. The begum is the only woman ruler in Asia. She has reigned over Bhopal for 20 years, and within her territories wields power of life and death. Always veiled, in accordance with the precepts of Mohammedanism, she makes an interesting appearance at the ceremonies she attends. On the arrival of the prince the begum waited in the Bhopal railway station to receive her royal guest, driving in state with him through the streets in an open carriage to her palace, where she afterwards received him with greatest ceremony.

DRAINAGE NOTICE

Hearing on Establishment of Drainage District Number 127, petitioned for by the Board of Supervisos.

State of Iowa,
Hancock County, ss.

To Thomas Cashman. Harm Rust, Frances E. Cummins, W. J. Cummins, Chicago Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, Ellen Boyle, Trustees of Twin Lake Township, P. Peterson, Lyman Nelson and E. O. Eliason; and to Ed. Olson Twin Lake Township Clerk; R. T. Burgess, T. R. Chase and Fred Wilkins, Trustees of Avery Township and to L. W. Wesenberg, Avery Township Clerk and to all other persons in any way interested in any of the following described real estate situated in said District, Hancock County, Iowa.

SW¼ NW¼; NW¼ NW¼; NW¼ SW¼; Section 30—94—23.

NE¼ NE¼; SE¼ NE¼; SW¼ NE¼; NW¼ NE¼; NE¼ NW¼; E½ SW¼ NW¼; Section 25—94—25w, all roads and highways included in the watershed of the district, and to the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway.

You and each of you are hereby notified that on July 6, 1922, there was filed in the office of the County Auditor of Hancock County, Iowa, a petition addressed to the Board of Supervisors of said County asking that certain lands above described be incorporated in a dainage district and that a system of drains be constructed for the relief of said district.

You are further notified that on July 27, 1922 C. F. Merten was appointed engineer to make a survey. plat, profile and field notes of said proposed district, and that on December 18, 1922 said engineer filed his eport recommending the establishment of said district and the construction of a system of drains for the relief of said district and that said report is now on file in the office o the County Auditor of said county and may be amended at any time before final action is taken thereon by the Board of Supervisors and that March 3rd, 1923, at 10:00 o'clock A. M. has been fixed as the time of hearing thereon. All objections and claims for damage must be filed in the office of the county auditor not less than five days before said hearing.

Witness my hand and official seal at Garner, Iowa, this 29th day of January, A. D. 1923.

J. D. MADISON,
Auditor of Hancock County, Iowa.

(SEAL). F-1-8.

PUBLIC SALE

Having decided to dissolve partnership and quit farming we will sell without reserve on what is known as the J. N. Sprole farm 1 mile southwest of Garner on the following described property:

Wednesday, February 7

Sale starts at 10:00 o'clock

Free lunch at noon

87 HEAD OF LIVE STOCK 87

10 Head of Horses 10

Span Percheron mares,Grey and Black, 5 and 7 yrs. old, wt. 3200, sound. Span 3-yr-old Percheron Geldings, Gray and Black, 2700 lbs., sound. Bay gelding, 8-yrs-old, wt. 1400. Black Gelding, wt. 1600. Gray Gelding, 4 yrs. old, sound. Two 3-yr-old Bay Geldings, wt. 1200. Gray Gelding, 5 yrs. old, wt. 1600. Family horse.

30 Head of Cattle 30

Federal tested. 10 Milch cows, some fresh, others will be soon. 10 summer calves. 9 yearling heifers, good milking prospects. 1 Roan Scotch Shorthorn bull, 2 yrs. old, wt. 1250.

HOGS

Six tried Chester White brood sows, to farrow in March. 34 head fall shoats, thrifty, around 100 lbs.

7 Shropshire brood ewes.

100 Rhode Island Red hens and pullets.

MACHINERY, ETC.

6-ft Deering Ideal grain binder with truck. Deering corn binder, 2 single row corn plows, Emerson and Case, International hay loader, International side delivery rake and tedder, 11-ft. Deere & Mansur box seeder, grass attachment, Endgate seeder, 8-ft John Deere disc and truck, 10-ft hand dump hay rake, 5-ft Deering mower, Case corn planter, 120 rds wire, Northwestern oscillating bob sleigh, Waterloo 20th Century manure spreader, 5-section Boss harrow, 3-section steel harrow, drag cart, Bradley sulky plow, 16-in., Mandt wagon, 3 in. tire, new box, and springs, height 36x40, Mandt wagon, 3 in. tire, 3 deck box, height 40x40, steele truck wagon, high wheel heavy truck wagon, 1 hay rack

COMING FARM SALE DATES

Ernest Henzie
Chas. Scmidt
Sylvan Johnson
Henry Groh
Martin Jensen
Others who plan on a sale make arrangements at this office, or with Auctioneer A. Reemstma. List your sale in this space.

THE KLEMME TIMES
Phone 12

16 ft., 1 set 3000-lb. leaf wagon box, Runabout rack, one cutter, two top buggies, surrey, splendid gear, set harness, 7 sets harness—1 Concord harness, 1 3-4 tug, hand sewed cord harness, 1½ tug, heavy 1 breeching harness 1½ tug and chains, Back pad harness, 3 sets single driving extra collars, 50-gal. gasoline gal. kerosene tank, seed drill, Empire cream separator No. 3, x14-ft log chain, 3-8x6 grind stone, 20 tons silage, ear corn, 10 bus. Silver Mine corn, 12 tons Timothy hay, 4 double set slat hay sides, seat, swill cart, forks, shovels, spring seat eveners, single ley block filled with 50 ft. tackle, some household chairs, writing desk, bookcase, fork, Texas saddle and bridle.

TERMS: All sums of $10 and under cash. On sums over that amount 10 months' time will be given on bankable notes, bearing 7 per cent interest. No property to be removed until settled for.

J. N. SPROLE—S. C. Pedersen, Young & Hanson, Aucts. Farmers' National Bank, Clerk.

Emil Lau's bred sow sale was a success, according to reports. The sale was well attended. The bidding was lively and the pigs brought good prices. Emil has a reputation of having quite a Duroc Jersey herd, becoming well known over the county for his fine hogs.

You may not know much, but you know that you know more than the one who attempts to give you advice.

December 1921
Car and Truck Sales
50,203

Ford
THE UNIVERSAL CAR

December 1922
Car and Truck Sales
105,799

Everything Points to the Greatest Spring Demand for Ford Products in Company's History

1,202,517 Ford Cars and Trucks were delivered to retail purchasers in the United States alone during 1922—

Actual deliveries for last month greatly exceeded any previous December in the history of the Ford Motor Company—

It was the ninth consecutive month in which more than 100,000 Ford Cars and Trucks were retailed—keeping the Ford Plants working at a capacity to meet dealers' requirements—

In many parts of the country dealers are already finding it necessary specify later delivery dates on certain types because there are no reserve stocks to draw from—

Commercial users, business houses and farmers, anticipating their future requirements, are placing orders and taking delivery of Ford Cars, Trucks and Fordson Tractors to insure against delay—

Everything points to the biggest shortage of Ford Products this Spring that has ever existed—

The only way you can be sure of obtaining delivery of a FORD CAR, TRUCK, or FORDSON TRACTOR is to list your order immediately—

We have given you these facts as they actually exist so that if you are planning to purchase a FORD CAR, TRUCK or TRACTOR for use this Spring or Summer, you can list your order now and take advantage of our dealers' first opportunity to make delivery.

FORD MOTOR COMPANY

Detroit, Michigan

See Greimann Motor Company, Authorized Ford Dealor A Small Deposit and Easy Payments if Desired

DESERT GOLD

by

ZANE GREY

Author of

Riders of the Purple Sage, Wildfire, Etc.

Copyright by Harper & Brothers.

FORLORN RIVER

SYNOPSIS.—Seeking gold in the desert, "Cameron," solitary prospector, forms a partnership with an unknown man whom he later learns is Jonas Warren, father of a girl whom Cameron wronged, but later married, back in Illinois. Cameron's explanations appease Warren, and the two proceed together. Taking refuge from a sandstorm in a cave, Cameron discovers gold, but too late; both men are dying. Cameron leaves evidence, in the cave, of their discovery of gold, and personal documents. Richard Gale, adventurer, in Casita, Mexican border town, meets George Thorne, lieutenant in the Ninth cavalry, old college friend. Thorne tells Gale he is there to save Mercedes Castadena, Spanish girl, his affianced wife, from Rojas, Mexican bandit. Gale "roughhouses" Rojas and his gang, with the help of two American cowboys, and he, Mercedes and Thorne escape. A bugle call from the fort orders Thorne to his regiment. He leaves Mercedes under Gale's protection.

CHAPTER III

—4—

A Flight Into the Desert.

Uneasy and startled, Gale turned s ear to the soft wind. Presently heard, or imagined he heard, low ats. In a moment he was certain e sounds were the padlike steps of ofs in yielding sand. The regular amp was not that of grazing horses. In the instant, made cautious and ealthy by alarm, Gale drew Merdes deeper into the gloom of the rubbery. The sounds of hoofbeats ew louder. Gale made out a dark oving mass against a background of ll gray. There was a line of horses. e could not discern whether or not the horses carried riders. The urmur of a voice struck his ear—en a low laugh. It made him tingle, it sounded American. Eagerly he tened.

"It shore was, Laddy, it shore was," me a voice out of the darkness. ough house! Laddy, since wire ces drove us out of Texas we ain't n the like of that. An' we never d such a call."

"Call? It was a burnin' roast," reed another voice. "I felt low down. vamoosed some sudden, an' I hope an' his friends shook the dust of sita. That's a rotten town, Jim."

Gale jumped up in joy. What luck! e speakers were none other than two cowboys whom he had accost- in the Mexican hotel.

"Hold on, fellows," he called, and ode into the road.

The horses snorted and stamped. en followed swift rustling sounds—linking of spurs, then silence. The ures loomed clearer in the gloom. e saw five or six horses, two with ers, and one other, at least, carry- a pack. When Gale got within een feet of the group the foremost seman said:

I reckon that's close enough, nger."

omething in the cowboy's hand ted darkly bright in the starlight. You'd recognize me, if it wasn't so k," replied Gale, halting. "I spoke you a little while ago—in the sa back there."

Come over an' let's see you," said cowboy, curtly.

ale advanced till he was close to horse. The cowboy leaned over saddle and peered into Gale's . Then, without a word, he thed the gun and held out his d. Gale met a grip of steel that med his blood. The other cowgot off his nervous, spirited horse threw the bridle. He, too, peered ely into Gale's face.

My name's Ladd," he said. "Reckon some glad to meet you again."

ale felt another grip as hard and ng as the other had been. He ized he had found friends who nged to a class of men whom he despaired of ever knowing.

Gale—Dick Gale is my name," he in, swiftly. "I dropped into Casita ght hardly knowing where I was. oy took me to that hotel. There I an old friend whom I had not for years. He belongs to the dry stationed here. He had beaded a Spanish girl—fallen in love her. Rojas had killed this girl's er—tried to abduct her. . . . know what took place at the ho- Gentlemen, if it's ever possible, show you how I appreciate what did for me there. I got away, d my friend with the girl. We ied out here beyond the edge of . Then Thorne had to make a k for camp. We heard bugle calls, s, and he was away without leave. left the girl with me. I don't what to do. Thorne swears Ca- is no place for Mercedes at t." he girl ain't no peon, no common aser?" interrupted Ladd.

o. Her name is Castaneda. She ngs to an old Spanish family, once and influential."

eckoned as much," replied the oy. "There's more than Rojas' in' to kidnap a pretty girl. Shore oes that every day or so. Must somethin' political or' feelin' st class. Well Casita, ain't no for your friend's girl at night sy, or any time. Shore, there's ricans who'd take her in an' fight er, if necessary. But it ain't wise k that. Lash, what do you say?"

's been gettin' hotter round this ar corral for some weeks," replied the other cowboy. "If that two-bit of a garrison surrenders, there's no tellin' what'll happen, an' bein' across the U. S. line a few inches or so don't make no h—l of a difference. My advice is, don't let Miss Castaneda ever set foot in Casita again."

"Looks like you've shore spoke sense," said Ladd. "I reckon, Gale, you an' the girl ought to come with us. We know people who'll take care of the senorita till your friend can come for her."

Dick warmly spoke his gratefulness, and, inexpressibly relieved and happy for Mercedes, he went toward the clump of cactus where he had left her. She stood erect, waiting, and, dark as it was, he could tell she had lost the terror which had so shaken her.

He led her into the road up to the cowboys, who now stood bareheaded in the starlight. They seemed shy, and Lash was silent while Ladd made embarrassed, unintelligible reply to Mercedes' thanks.

There were five horses—two saddled, two packed and the remaining one carried only a blanket. Ladd shortened the stirrips on his mount, and helped Mercedes up into the saddle. From the way she settled herself and took the few restive prances of the mettlesome horse Gale judged that she could ride. Lash urged Gale to take his horse. But this Gale refused to do.

She Stood Erect, Waiting, and, Dark as It Was, He Could Tell She Had Lost the Terror That Had So Shaken Her.

"I'll walk," he said. "I'm used to walking. I know cowboys are not."

Once started with protection assured for the girl and a real objective point in view, Gale relaxed from the tense strain he had been laboring under. How glad he would have been to acquaint Thorne with their good fortune! Later, of course, there would be some way to get word to the cavalryman. But till then what torments his friend would suffer!

It seemed to Dick that a very long time had elapsed since he stepped off the train; and one by one he went over every detail of incident which had occurred between that arrival and the present moment. His meeting with Thorne; the wonderful black eyes of a Spanish girl; her appeal to him; the hate inspired by Rojas, and the rush, the blow, the action; sight of Thorne and Mercedes hurrying safely away; the girl's hands pressing his to her heaving breast; the sweet fire of her kiss; the fact of her being alone with him, dependent upon him—all these things Gale turned over and over in his mind, only to fall of any definite conclusion as to which had affected him so remarkably, or to tell what had really happened to him.

Had he fallen in love with Thorne's sweetheart? The idea came in a flash. Was he, all in an instant, and by one of those incomprehensible reversals of character, jealous of his friend? Dick was almost afraid to look up at Mercedes. Still he forced himself to do so, and as it chanced Mercedes was looking down at him. With a quick, graceful impulsiveness she put her hand upon his shoulder. Like her appearance, the action was new, strange, striking to Gale; but it brought home suddenly to him the nature of gratitude and affection in a girl of her blood. It was sweet and sisterly. He knew then that he had not fallen in love with her. The feeling that was akin to jealousy seemed to be of the beautiful something for which Mercedes stood in Thorne's life. Gale then grasped the bewildering possibilities, the infinite wonder of what a girl could mean to a man.

The desert began to lighten. Gray openings in the border of shrubby growths changed to paler hue. In the east a white glow grew brighter and brighter, reaching up to a line of cloud, defined sharply below by a rugged notched range.

"Senor, I am cold," said Mercedes.

Dick had been carrying his coat upon his arm. He stopped the horse and raised the coat up, and helped Mercedes put it on.

"I should have thought of you," he said. "But I seemed to feel warm. . . . The coat's a little large; we might wrap it around you twice."

Mercedes smiled and lightly thanked him in Spanish. He was about to start when he observed that Ladd had halted and was peering ahead in evident caution. Mercedes' horse began to stamp impatiently, raised his ears and head, and acted as if he was about to neigh.

A warning "hist" from Ladd bade Dick put a quieting hand on the horse. Lash came noiselessly forward to join his companion. The two then listened and watched.

Presently Lash went to the rear and Ladd started ahead. The progress now, however, was considerably slower, not owing to a bad road—for that became better—but probably owing to caution exercised by the cowboy guide. At the end of a half hour this marked deliberation changed, and the horses followed Ladd's at a gait that put Gale to his best walking paces.

His steps were halted by Ladd's actions. The cowboy reined in his horse, listened a moment, then swung down out of the saddle. He raised a cautioning hand to the others, then slipped into the gloom and disappeared. Gale marked that the halt had been made in a ridged and cut-up pass between low mesas. To the right, up under the ledges some distance away, stood two square black objects, too uniform, he thought, to be rocks. While he was peering at them, uncertain what to think, the shrill whistle of a horse pealed out, to be followed by the rattling of hoofs on hard stone. Then a dog barked. At the same moment that Ladd hurriedly appeared in the road a light shone out and danced before one of the square black objects.

"Keep close an' don't make no noise," he whispered, and led his horse at right angles off the road.

Gale followed, leading Mercedes' horse. As he turned he observed that Lash also had dismounted.

To keep closely at Ladd's heels without brushing the cactus or stumbling over rocks and depressions was a task Gale found impossible. It was no easy matter to lead a spirited horse through the dark, winding lanes walled by thorns. Dick saw that the travel was fast, but by no means noiseless. The pack animals at times crashed and ripped through the narrow places. It seemed to Gale that anyone within a mile could have heard these sounds.

Presently Ladd led out into a wider lane that appeared to run straight. The cowboy mounted his horse, and this convinced Gale that they had circled back to the road. The march proceeded then once more at a good, steady, silent walk. When Dick consulted his watch he was amazed to see the hour was still early. He asked Mercedes if she was cold, and she answered that she was, speaking especially of her feet, which were growing numb. Then she asked to be helped down to walk awhile. At first she was cold and lame, and accepted the helping hand Dick proffered. After a little, however, she recovered and went on without assistance. They had reached the summit of what was evidently a high ridge sloped with much greater steepness on the far side. It was only after a few more forward steps, however, that Dick could see down the slope. Then full in view flashed a bright campfire around which clustered a group of dark figures. They were encamped in a wide arroyo, where horses could be seen grazing in black patches of grass between clusters of trees. A second look at the campers told Gale they were Mexicans. At this moment Lash came forward to join Ladd, and the two spent a long, uninterrupted moment studying the arroyo. A hoarse laugh, faint yet distinct, floated upon the cool wind.

"Well, Laddy, what 'r you makin' of that outfit?" inquired Lash, speaking softly.

"Same as any of them raider outfits," replied Ladd. "They're across the line for beef. But they'll run off any good stock. As hoss thieves these rebels have got 'em all beat. That outfit is waitin' till it's late. Nothin' to it but head south for the Rio Forlorn. It's on the border line, but it's country where these rebels ain't been yet."

"It's a hike to Beldin's ranch. An' if we get there in daylight some Greaser will see the girl before Beldin' can hide her. It'll get talked about. The news 'll travel to Casita like sage balls before the wind."

"Shore we don't ride into Rio Forlorn in the daytime. Let's slip the packs, Jim. We can hide them off in the cactus an' come back after them. With the young man ridin' we—"

The whispering was interrupted by a loud ringing neigh that whistled up from the arroyo. One of the horses had scented the travelers on the ridge top. The indifference of the Mexicans changed to attention.

Ladd and Lash turned back and led the horses into the first opening on the south side of the road. The packs were slipped, securely tied and hidden in a mesquite clump. Ladd strapped a blanket around one of the horses. His next move was to take off his chaps.

"Gale, you're wearin' boots, an' by liftin' your feet you can beat the cactus," he whispered. "But the—the—Miss Castaneda, she'll be torn all to pieces unless she puts these on. Please tell her—an' hurry."

Dick took the chaps, and, going up to Mercedes, he explained the situation. She laughed, evidently at his embarrassed earnestness, and slipped out of the saddle.

"Senor, chapparejos and I are not strangers," she said.

Deftly and promptly she equipped herself, and then Gale helped her into the saddle, called to her horse, and started off. Lash directed Gale to mount the other saddled horse and go next.

Dick had not ridden a hundred yards behind the trotting leaders before he had sundry painful encounters with reaching cactus arms. The horse missed these by a narrow margin. Dick's knees appeared to be in line, and it became necessary for him to lift them high and let his boots take the onslaught of the spikes.

Ladd pursued a zigzag course southward across the desert, trotting down the aisles, entering in wide, bare patches, walking through the clumps of cacti. Gale became chilled to the bone, and his clothes were damp and cold. His knees smarted from the wounds of the poisoned thorns, and his right hand was either swollen stiff or too numb to move. Moreover, he was tiring. Mercedes must be made of steel, he thought, to stand all that she had been subjected to and yet, when the stars were paling and dawn perhaps not far away, stay in the saddle.

So Dick Gale rode on, drowsier for each mile, and more and more giving the horse a choice of ground. Once when he, thinking to fight his weariness, raised his head, he saw that one of the horses in the lead was riderless. Ladd was carrying Mercedes.

It seemed that hours passed, though he knew only little time had elapsed, when once more he threw off the spell of weariness. He heard a dog bark. Tall trees lined the open lane down which he was riding. Presently in the gray gloom he saw low, square houses with flat roofs. Ladd rode on for perhaps a quarter of a mile, though it seemed interminably long to Dick. A grove of trees loomed dark in the gray of morning. Ladd entered it and was lost in the shade. Dick rode on among the trees. Presently he heard voices, and soon another house, low and flat like the others, but so long he could not see the farther end, stood up blacker than the trees. As he dismounted, cramped and sore, he could scarcely stand. Lash came alongside. He spoke, and someone with a big, hearty voice replied to him. Then it seemed to Dick that he was led into blackness like pitch, where, presently, he felt blankets thrown on him, and then his drowsy faculties faded.

"Senor, Chapparejos and I Are Not Strangers," She Said.

CHAPTER IV

Forlorn River.

When Dick opened his eyes a flood of golden sunshine streamed in at the open window under which he lay. His first thought was one of blank wonder as to where in the world he happened to be. The room was large, square, adobe-walled. It was littered with saddles, harness, blankets. The sight of huge dusty spurs, a gun belt with sheath and gun, and a pair of leather chaps bristling with broken cactus thorns recalled to Dick the cowboys, the ride, Mercedes, and the whole strange adventure that had brought him there.

He felt a dead weight of complete lassitude, and he did not want to move. A sudden pain in his hand caused him to hold it up. It was black and blue, swollen to almost twice its normal size, and stiff as a board. The knuckles were skinned and crusted with dry blood. Dick soliloquized that it was the worst-looking hand he had seen since football days, and that it would inconvenience him for some time.

The door at the far end of the room was open. Through it he saw poles of peeled wood upholding a porch roof, a bench, rose bushes in bloom, grass, and beyond these bright-green foliage of trees.

"He shore was sleepin' when I looked in an hour ago," said a voice that Dick recognized as Ladd's.

"Let him sleep," came the reply in deep, good-natured tones. "Mrs. B. says the girl's never moved. Must have been a tough ride for them both. Forty miles through cactus! Laddy I'm right down glad to see you boys, and I'll do all I can for the young couple. But I'm doing some worrying here; don't mistake me."

"About your stock?"

"I've got only a few head of cattle at the oasis now. I'm worrying some, mostly about my horses. The U. S. is doing some worrying, too, don't mistake me. The rebels have worked west and north as far as Casita. Of course, my job is to keep tab on Chinese and Japs trying to get into the U. S. from Magdalena bay. But I'm supposed to patrol the border line. I'm going to hire some rangers. Now, I'm not so afraid of being shot up, though out in this lonely place there's danger of it; what I'm afraid of most is losing that bunch of horses. You know what those guerrilla Mexicans will do for horses. They're crazy on horse flesh. They know fine horses. So I don't sleep nights any more."

"Reckon me an' Jim might as well tie up with you for a spell, Beldin'. We've been ridin' up an' down Arizona tryin' to keep out of sight of wire fences."

"Laddy, it's open enough around Forlorn River to satisfy even an old-time cowpuncher like you," laughed Belding. "I'd take your staying on as some favor, don't mistake me. Perhaps I can persuade the young man Gale to take a job with me."

"That's shore likely. He said he had no money, no friends. An' if a scrapper's all you're lookin' for he'll do," replied Ladd, with a dry chuckle.

"Maybe I ought to think twice before taking a stranger into my family," said Belding, seriously. "Well, I guess he's all right, Laddy, being the cavalryman's friend. No bum or lunger? He must be all right?"

"Bum? Lunger? Say, didn't I tell you I shook hands with this boy an' was plumb glad to meet him?" demanded Laddy, with considerable heat. Manifestly he had been affronted. "Tom Beldin', he's a gentleman, an' he could lick you in—in half a second. How about that, Jim?"

"Less time," replied Lash. "Tom, here's my stand. Young Gale can have my hoss, my gun, anythin' of mine."

"Aw, I didn't mean to insult you, boys, don't mistake me," said Belding. "Course he's all right."

The object of this conversation lay quiet upon his bed, thrilling and amazed at being so championed by the cowboys, delighted with Belding's idea of employing him, and much amused with the quaint seriousness of the three.

"How's the young man?" called a woman's voice. It was kind and mellow and earnest.

Gale heard footsteps on flagstones.

"He's asleep yet, wife," replied Belding. "Guess he was pretty much knocked out. . . . I'll close the door there so we won't wake him."

There were slow, soft steps, then the door softly closed. But the fact scarcely made a perceptible difference in the sound of the voices outside.

"Laddy and Jim are going to stay," went on Belding. "It'll be like the old Panhandle days a little. I'm powerful glad to have the boys, Nellie. We'll see some trouble before the revolution is ended. I think I'll make this young man Gale an offer."

"Dad, I shall fall in love with your new ranger. I will—I have—"

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

AUXILIARY DOES GREAT WORK

Department of Minnesota One of the Most Active Organizations; Membership Is Strong.

The department of Minnesota has many distinctive features which mark it as one of the leading organizations of the American Legion auxiliary in social activities, welfare work, and organization plans. The auxiliary membership of the Minnesota auxiliary is 80 per cent that of the Legion, and all present efforts are being concentrated in making that membership 100 per cent.

A unique plan for bringing the "bachelor" posts to time, has been conceived by the "married posts and auxiliaries." Their location will be broadcast by radio all over the state of Minnesota and the auxiliary will mobilize and march upon their strongholds, not with sword and gun, but with the same tender devotion bestowed upon the boys in 1917 and 1918, and will prove to the refractory posts the utter futility of longer opposing the inevitable.

The poppies sold last year by the Minnesota auxiliary members were made by the hospitalized ex-service men, under direction of the auxiliary committees appointed for the purpose, at a profit of more than seven thousand dollars to the disabled. The state hospitalization committee made the statement that the good accomplished in lifting the morale of these men by giving them this work to do could not be measured in money.

Minnesota auxiliary has a welfare fund named for the first department president of the auxiliary in the United States, Doctor Helen Hughes Heilscher of Mankato, Minnesota, who is now serving on the national hospitalization committee. This fund, amounting to $5,000 last year, was practically exhausted during the year but the committee is constantly being reimbursed for these expenditures.

Minnesota auxiliary is fostering another project, which as yet has not been considered by any other state; that of "Veteransville" where ex-service men are helped to begin life anew by being assisted in buying land on the installment plan. The auxiliary intends that this project shall be the best of its kind in the United States and will encourage, support and assist in every way whenever necessary.

Minnesota auxiliary is proud to be a part of an organization, with a national president who is internationally known, because of her ability and accomplishments, and who has given up all other interests to serve the auxiliary for one year. Theodore Roosevelt said of Doctor Kate Waller Barrett: "She is one of the most useful women in the United States."

PRAISE FOR YOUNG AMERICAN

Legion Americanism Director Warm in Compliments for Philip Mosely, Essay Winner.

Philip E. Mosely of Westfield, Mass., winner in his state of the American Legion's national essay contest on the subject "How Can the American Legion Best Serve the Nation?" has received the praise of Garland W. Powell, Legion Americanism director, for his services in Americanizing foreigners in his home town.

Philip E. Mosely.

Young Mosely speaks French and Spanish and has a reading knowledge of Italian and Russian. During his spare time while he was in high school Mosely started and conducted Americanism classes for Spaniards in Westfield. He has practiced the help which he preached in his essay for the Legion contest.

Mosely was valedictorian of his high school class and was never absent nor tardy. Out of school hours Mosely raised chickens, fired furnaces and worked in stores until he had saved about $600 besides providing all his own spending money.

Entering Harvard college last fall, Mosely obtained a scholarship which pays his tuition for the first year.

"The record of Mr. Mosely is typical of the high character of the state winners in our essay contest," Mr. Powell stated. "The American Legion is proud of its younger brothers who have done so much to carry out its ideals."

State-winning essays will be judged in the national contest by John J. Tigert, United States commissioner of education; E. E. Brown, former national commissioner of education, and S. S. McClure, the publisher. National prizes are: First, $750; second, $500; third, $250; the money to be used as scholarships. They were awarded by Hanford MacNider, past national commander of the Legion.

Easy Arithmetic.

Everybody knows that learning the tens in the multiplication table is as easy as "pie," and that the fives are not much harder. But slight as is the mental effort required in multiplying any number by five, it may be lessened still more by discarding the multiplier entirely and substituting a divisor instead.

This may sound paradoxical, but by experimenting you will find that dividing by two will bring the same results as multiplying by five, providing you add a cipher to the quotient if the dividend be an even number, or five if it be odd. For instance, if you multiply 2,734 by 5 the product is 13,070. What is still easier, divide 2734 by 2, which is done almost instantaneously. Then tack on your 0, and you have 13,670.

Secret of Diving Birds.

By expelling the air within their bodies, acquatic birds make themselves heavier than water when diving.

Get Ants Out of Ice Chest.

If ants get into ice chest, set a pail of water under each leg and move box away from the wall

Legion Will Never Die.

Yes, the big convention is over and we have a new national commander who looks to us like a real man. And the American Legion is safe for another year. For that matter the American Legion will be safe for sixty years to come or in other words as long as there is one Buddy left alive the organization will live.—Benton Review, Fowler, Ind.

Cans and Can'ts.

It is always well to remember the old saying that success comes in cans and failures in can'ts.—Mountain Breeze, Fort Bayard, New Mexico.

News of Klemme and Vicinity

GINGHAMS, Ginghams, ginghams, at G. W. Kluckhohn & Sons. adv

Wellemeyer's big furniture sale begins Saturday.

A few inches of snow fell here on Friday evening.

Miss Adna Church was at Garner Saturday visiting.

Itis reported that Grandma Ulrich is seriously ill at this writing.

Mrs. LuVerne Smith was at Belmond one day this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson of Goodell, were here Tuesday.

Mr. Church, of Forest City was in Klemme Monday tuning pianos.

Mrs. Hake was at Belmond between trains Tuesday.

Chris Jacobe came over from Garner Monday on business.

EAGLE "MIKADO" Pencil No. 174

For Sale at your Dealer Made in five grades

ASK FOR THE YELLOW PENCIL WITH THE RED BAND

EAGLE MIKADO

EAGLE PENCIL COMPANY, NEW YORK

"Where Do You Bank"

It's a question which is asked frequently. Your banking connection is an identification. When you are in good standing with a good bank you possess a distinct advantage.

A checking account with the First National Bank means more than safety and convenience in paying bills. It places our complete service at your disposal. We try to make this "a good place to bank."

UNDER GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION

First National Bank

"The Bank for Everybody'.'

The Right Place

A dollar bill in your pocket is worth more to you than ten dollars in some one eles'e pocket because it is in the RIGHT PLACE.

Much depends on the place. Even a better place for the dollar than in your pocket is to have it on deposit at our bank, because it is then safe. Ours is the right banking place for you because we are always glad to accomodate you and our facilities are of the very best. It pays to be connected with a modern bank like ours.

State Savings Bank

Klemme Iowa

H. R. Muhm, of Kanawha, was in this city on business Tuesday.

Miss Esther Jahnke visited at Garner from Saturday until Tuesday.

Mayme Costello, of Forest City. was a Klemme visitor Saturday.

Mrs. Cunningham from Goodell was a Klemme visitor Wednesday.

Joe Wenck, of Garner, was in this city yesterday on business.

NOTICE—As I will be out of town my dental office will be closed next week. Dr. J. L. Hesselhuus. 1c Banker Fred Arnold was confined to his home the past few days. Fred is wrestling with the grippe also.

Toile du Nords, French. and Silver Tissue Ginghams just arrived at G. W. Kluckhohn & Sons Store. adv

Votrs meeting Tuesday night at the opera house to discuss further the school question. Be there.

R. W. Elder was on the sick list a few days the past week but is again able to be about.

C. W. Wiles has been laid up for a few days the past week with an attack of grippe.

J. Jorgenson. of Garner, was here Sunday to spend the day with the R. A. Jorgenson family.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Watts, of Clear Lake, were shoppers here one day this week.

Mr. Ely, whose home is in Canada, was in Klemme this week visiting with his sister, Mrs. Missman.

Miss Mary Swanson, of Algona, is here this week visiting with her parents. Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Swanson.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitaker, of Belmond were here on business Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Palmby of Iowa Falls have been visiting at the Albert Yahnke home the past week.

Wm. Koerner came from St. Paul to see his mother, who has been ill. He stayed here a couple of days.

FOR SALE—Poland China Bred Sows and Brood Rock Cockerels. Wm. Friedow, Britt, Ia., Rt. 1 2w

FOR SALE—new L. C. Smith typewriter at bargain. See it at Times Office. 1wp.

FOR SALE—R. I. Red Roosters, Single and Rose Comb, $1.50 each. Mrs. Joe Starnes, Phone 5909. 2w

The W. F. M. S. of the First M. E. church met at the home of Mrs. Art Schoenwetter this afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lewis drove over to Clear Lake last Friday evening for a visit with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Luick, were up from Goodell Friday to do some shopping.

Mr. and Mrs. Schlichting of Belmond were in Klemme Friday buying furniture of Wellemeyer.

Mrs. John Bachman and children returned last Thursday from Waterloo. Iowa. where they had been for a visit with her mothor and sister.

Ted Dutheridge and family left today for Morris and other points in Illinois for a visit of a week or two with old friends and relatives.

For Sale—20 head Duroc Jersey Fall Shoats, good thrifty ones and good weight; and 2 nice red yearling heifers. Phone 4415, Ben Knoll. 2p

Paul Stille was unable to be at his place of business several days on account of grippe the fore part of the week.

John Ulrich, of Clarion, came Monday for a visit at the home of his brother, George, and other relatives and friends here.

Mrs. Wm. Smith has been having a lot of trouble with a finger which she injured some time ago and has suffered with it a lot. She is getting along better at this time.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Stille entertained at a card party at their home west of town last Thursday evening. Delicious refreshments were served. All present report o good time.

The Rebecah Circle at Garner entertained their husbands at a seven o'clock dinner last Friday evening. Some of the Klemme people of that order attended.

One nice thing about the radio—it is a good cure for protruding ears. Constant wearing of the phones is sure to flatten the most obstinate case of wind catchers.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Luick from Clear Lake are moving to Klemme this week. They will live in thhe G. I. Schaper residence across from the school.

G. R. Stokesbay's sale was well attended and stuff brought a good price. Farm sales are all going good this winter. Look for sales in the Times for the next few weeks.

Bert Mathews has given up his job in the grocery department at the Wellemeyer store and will take a rest for a few months. He has not been very well of late.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Lau, of Elkader. Iowa, came Thursday for a few days visit with Klemme relatives and friends. They are newlyweds.

Mr. and Mrs. Pete Wessel came from Buffalo Center Tuesday for a visit with Klemme friends. Mrs. Wessel was telephone operator here about five years ago. Mr. Wessel also attnded Lau's sal.

Mrs. Sam Harvey and daughter, Enid, will leave tomorrow evening for New Jesey, where they will join Mr. Harvey, who has been there for svral months and whre they have decided to make their future home.

The members of the Klemme Shipping Association and their wives are invited to a free dinner at noon and a free movie show, on Wednesday, February 7, at the Idle Hour Theatre. Business meeting after the show. 1wc.

Many here have been suffeering the past week with grippe and among the bunch of sneezers is Ye Editor. We are having some difficulty getting out the paper but we owe thanks to Frank Clark of the Garner Signal, as he is setting some linotype stuff for us this week. It is the latest style to have a cold, fall in line ye back numbers.

Cane Growers Notice!

We will manufacture your sorghum. either on half share or at 55 cents per gallon, for those who are planning on raising sorghum cane this year. I will furnish the seed. You can contract with me now. We will make the sorghum to suit you. Henry Ludeke, Klemme, Iowa. tfc

WATCH FOR BIG AD NEXT WEEK

Public Auction

As I am going to quit farming I have decided to hold a Public Auction on farm 3 1-2 miles west and 1-2 mile south of Klemme, on——

Tuesday, Feb. 1

Sale Begins at 11 a. m. Free Hot Lunch at Noon

60 Head of Live Stock

Consisting of the following—

5— HEAD OF HORSES

37— HEAD OF CATTLE

18— HEAD OF DUROC BROOD SOWS

FARM MACHINERY, ETC.

I am offering a complete line of good machinery. List for the entire list next week when full bill of sale will be printed in this paper.

The usual terms of sale at nine months time will be given.

Chas. Schmidt

Brummond & Reemstma Auctioneers

State Savings Bank Clerks

WATCH FOR BIG AD NEXT WEEK

Daylight At Night:::

Sounds funny Doesn't It?

Never-the-less it is quite true that the ELECTRIC COMPANY furnishes just this.

This is possible because the ELECTRIC COMPANY never lets its fires die out.

Boilers and Generators are always On The Job, and miles of lines have been built just so you can have DAYLIGHT at the Snap Of Your Switch.

1,600,000 Other People and Many Banks and Insurance Companies have invested MILLIONS OF DOLLARS, so that MILLIONS OF PEOPLE might have DAYLIGHT, and have found it Paid.

Invest In Iowa Falls Electric Company Common Shares which have paid 27 Dividends and have your Share in the work for the Common Good, and get an Income you can depend on.

See our Representative or any Employee for full particulars

Iowa Falls Electric Co.

Iowa Falls, Iowa. H. F. Kellogg, Manager

STILLE'S IMPLEMENT NEWS

VOLUME 1. Thursday, February 1, 1923 NUMBER

SPRING IS COMING

Just a few more weeks and everything will be ready for plowing and tilling. This is a good time to start thinking of your equippment—the plow, the disc and the harrow. When the robins begin to sing you'll want to be ready for the first opportunity to get into the fields for a flying stat. It you tools are in shape you are fortunate, but if they are not—then get ready. Come in and look over he sturdy P. & O. and John Deere gang plows with the easy foot lift. Inspect the new disc harow, and if you need a new Peg Tooth harrow, we'd advise you to place your order NOW and get price protection. Every hour will mean money to you this spring. Melting snows, heavy rains and bad weather will all be against you. But with first-class machines that won't give a moments trouble you can get your crops in on time, be happy, and know you'll make money. Come in and see us.

The Logical Place

Though the French seem to have hit Germany in the Ruhr, is can't be said that Germany wasn't looking.

Now is the time to look up some good oil for your tractor when it comes t spring work you'll want the tractor to work and not give trouble. And one of the main things is good oil. If you get poor oil for nothing it will be more expensive in the end than a good oil at a big price! En-arco is an oil that is guaranteed to give as good satisfaction as any oil that you can buy, and at a medium price. "None as good at the price, none better at any price."

The modern woman believes men and women are equal in every way, except these ways in which women are superior.

FOR MEDIUM SIZED FARMS

Have you seen the new McCormick-Deering No. 2 Corn Sheller?

It's a dandy. Smaller, of course, than the No. 1 but built along the same lines. It's a simple, strong, easy-running sheller, does good work and delivering clean grain even where the shelling is poor. The snapped ear is shelled, and with the drag feed extensions are used can be operated on full capacity from 100 to 125 bushels per hour with 8 h. p. or 10 h. p. engine. If conditions are favorable a 6 h. p. engine will run it. Any of the small tractors will operate it nicely You should get better acquainted with this little sheller and with what it will do for you.

Character is a priceless jewel which the unseen fingers of time are ever weaving.

THE KLEMME TIMES

Twenty-seventh Year—Number 22. | Klemme, Iowa, Thursday Afternoon, February 8, 1923. | $1.50 In Advance—$2.00 Outside of County

NEWS OF INTEREST FROM OVER THIS BROAD LAND

NEWS NUBBINS

"The time has come," the Walrus said, "to talk of many things—of shoes and ships and sealing wax; of cabbages and kings."

Carrying Mail By Airplane 1.727,- .5 miles on 7,887 trips, 2,433 of hich were made in rain or snow, thout a fatal accident, was the eatest achievement in aviation dur g the past year, according to the ntest committee of the National ronautic Association of the United ates, which has awarded the Colli- aeronautical trophy to the per- nnel of the air mail service. Of e trips, 94.39 per cent were made schedule time, the committee id, adding that "no other aero- utical activity in the operating ld has ever approached such a cord, either in this country or a- oad.' Mail carried totaled 1,224.- 3 pounds and included 48,988,- 0 letters.

New Orleans' Industrial Canal, or ner harbor, a waterway five and e-third miles in length, connect- g Lake Ponchartrain with the Mis- sippi river. construction of which gan June 6, 1918, reached the ge this week where dredges cut ay the levee between the canal d the river, the waters meeting. rmal ddication of the enterprise set for April 27. It is planned at ocean steamships ultimately y come to New Orleans through ssissippi sound and the lake, e- minating the slow passage of near- 100 miles against the current of e Mississippi, to the city. On de- rting they would pass down the er with the current.

Unconscious because of the severe ld. First Lieut. James D. Summers. pilot of the First pursuit group, Selfridge field, fell from an alti- de of 19,000 feet to withni 400 et of the ground at Mount Clem- s, Michigan, last Saturday after- oon, a drop of nearly four miles fore he recovered his senses, right- his plane and made a safe land- Mg. Summrs had been ordered to ake a part in maneuvers by Brig. en. William G. Mitchell. With veral other aviators he mounted to height of 19,000 feet, where the ermometers on the planes register- 20 degree below zero.

Continued Improvement in Busi- ss conditions throughout Europe, th the exception of Germany, and the Far East. is shown by a sum- ary of the general financial situ- on abroad, issued by the Depart- ent of Commerce. The economic sition of Germany was uncertain en before the Ruhr occupation, cording to the survey, with pro- action costs rising rapidly and wag- out of line with living costs. At e end of December note circula- n in Germany had exceeded a llion marks.

The Washington-Alaska Military ble is found to be wearing out and il have to be replaced by the Gov- ment at the cost of $1,500,000 if mmunication with Alaska is to be ed from serious interruption soon. ngress is askcd to appropriate 50,000 for new construction at ce and is also asked to authorize e Secretary of War to enter into ditional contracts for a sum not exceed $750,000. The project s the support of interests through- t the Northwest and Alaska.

The State of Elinois Will Contin- its prosecution of those indicted connection with the Herrin, Ill., ne riots, Attorney General Ed- rd J. Brundage, of Illinois de- ired when informed that the first e men to be tried had been ac- itted of murder charges. He said believed all five men guilty and cribed the acquittal to a "spirit of timidation that prevails in the Her n district today."

Andrew Johnson Stover, 65, grand- n of former President Andrew hnson, was buried in the national metery at Greenville, Tenn., a few ys ago. Mr. Stover was a mem- ber of the White House family dur- ing the administration of President Johnson, being the son of Mary Johnson Stover, who acted as host- ess at the White House during Mrs. Johnsons illness.

Dr. Burchardi of Vienna, whose operations for the restoration of youth have raised considerable dis- cussion, tells of his recent opera- tion on the former kaiser at Doorn. This probably explains how Bill had the courage to remarry. Dr. Bur- chardi is now in London where he plans to perform a number of simi- lar operations.

If the Pilot of a Mail Airplane mistakes a snowdrift for a cloud now he has some assurance of reach- ing a nearby town for aid, provided he is not rendered helpless by the crash. The Post Office Department has issud an order that all airplanes engaged in transporting the mail on Western routes must be equipped with snowshoes.

A Total of 1,379 Vessels, Aggre- gating 9,846,611 dead-weight tons, comprises the fleet owned by the Shipping Board. which has announc- ed that 415 of its vessels were in op- eration and 964 tied up at the be- ginning of the new year.

Production of Iron Ore in the United States during 1922 aggre- gated 46,963,000 tons, an increase of 60 percent over the preceeding year, according to estimates made by the United States Geological Sur- vey.

PURE BRED HOG IS A CORN SAV-ER.

"The same amount of feed that will make a common hog of 175 pounds will make a purebred hog of 241 pounds." This is the conclusion of the Bureau of Animal Husbandry of the United States Department of Agriculture, after making an inves- tigation and test with several thous- and head of scrub and pure bred hogs belonging to more than 300 owners. In other words, 66 pounds more pork was marketed in the pure bred hog hides with the same care and same feed as were marketed in the carcass of the common hog.

It is estimated that the average farmer feeds ten bushels of corn to produce 100 pounds of pork, and it would therefore take about seven bushels of corn to produce the extra 66 pounds which the common hog would have to put in to be equal in weight to the pure bred. Figuring this corn at 60c a bushel, it would mean that it costs $4.20 more to grow the common hog. If a farmer markets 50 head, it would mean that it has cost him $210, more to grow the common herd than if they had been pure bred hogs.

There are seven pigs in an aver- age litter, and it would therefore take seven sows to produce a herd o 50 porkers. If the farmer having seven common sows would market them, which weighing at maturity around 350 pounds, at the present market prices of about 8c, they would return him $196. This latter amount plus $210, which he loses in extra feed in feeding their progeny for market, would supply him with money enough to buy seven pure bred sows at around $58 apiece. The farmer cannot afford to waste feed and time with scrub hogs when he can buy pure breds as closely at home as farmers of this locality can secure tehm.

Some farmers in this community have been raising pure breds for a number of years. They evidently have found that it pays them to do so. as they are sticking to the pure bred hogs.

Belmond Hen Lays Bik Eggs

Dr. Stevens o Belmond is the own- er of a White Leghorn hen that re- cently laid an egg measuring 6½ inches in circumference one way and 8 718 inches the long way. The egg weighs 4½ ounces.

Farm Bureau Meeting

There will be a Farm Bureau meeting at Liberty Center School on Wednesday evening, Feb. 7. A pro- gram is being arranged. Everybody come. 2wp

THE EMANCIPATION GROUP
(Park Square, Boston)

By John Greenleaf Whittier

Amidst thy sacred effigies
Of old renown give place,
O city, Freedom-loved! to his
Whose hand unchained a race.

Take the worn frame, that rested not
Save in a martyr's grave;
The care-lined face, that none for- got,
Bent to the kneeling slave.

Let man be free; The mighty word
He spoke was not his own;
An impulse from the Highest stirr- ed
These chiseled lips alone.

The cloudy sign, the fiery guide,
Along his pathway ran,
And Nature, through his voice de- nied
The ownership of man.

We rest in peace where these sad eyes
Saw peril, strife and pain;
His was the nation's sacrifice,
And ours the priceless gain.

O symbol of God's will on earth
As it is done above!
Bear witness to the cost and worth
Of justice and of love.

Stand in thy place and testify
To coming ages long,
That truth is stronger than a lie,
And righteousness than wrong.

(Lincoln's Birthday, February 12.)

ROBINSON CRUSOE WAS A GOOD ADVERTISER

J. B. Parker in The Conway, (Ark.) News

Robinson Crusoe was both a pion- eer and successful advertiser. True, there were no newspapers at that time, but he knew the value and necessity of attracting attention to his important business, and that without the support of others his venture would be a failure. He also believed in changing his "copy" of- ten, so when his first flag (a shirt) was whipped to pieces by the wind and weather Crusoe put another garment on the pole, and kept at it until he got what he wanted, a ship, and his success. Now suppose that he had stopped with the failure of his first flag, as some merchants do with one advertisement on the plea "that advertising doesn't pay." Cru- soe would have returned to dust and it would have been scattered upon the waters and lost. The moral is: Put out your signal and keep chang- ing its style. In other words, use your local newspapers regularly and systematically. and every merchant will get what he wants and deserves. All over the United States, the grow- ing, expanding business men, are those who tell the consumers about their stores and stocks through the live, local newspapers.

Sunday School Class Elect Officers

Last Wednesday evening the Loy- al Workers Class of the First Metho- dist Church held their annual elec- tion of officers and the following were elected:

Geo. Gruetzmacher, Teacher.
E. J. Arnold, President.
Frank Gruetzmacher, Secretary.
Aug. Ridder, Treasurer.

There were also various Chair- men appointed of the other various activities of the class which is di- vided upon in the following divis- ions such as, Social, Devotional. Visiting, Membership, etc., and as the writer could not remember all these names we think you will find out who they are as you come in contact with them.

We also want to compliment the ladies upon knowing what to select for lunch as they seem to know just what satisfies the inner man.

—Contribufed.

WILLE—GOLL

Wednesday afternoon, February 7th, 1923, at 3:00 o'clock occured the marriage of Miss Edna Goll to Mr. Carl Wille, both of this place. The ceremony took place at the Re- formed Parsonage of Klemme and was performed by Rev. A. A. Depp- ing, pastor of the young couple. The only witnesses present were the Best Man and the Bride's Maid, which duty was performed by Mr. Paul Goll, brother of the bride as the Best Man, and Miss Erma Priebe as the Bride's attendant. After the cere- mony the wedding crowd retired to the G. A. Goll home.

In the evening a large crowd of young people gathered at the G. A Goll home to receive the Bride and Groom. A geenral good time was enjoyed until a late hour, at which time a delightful lunch was served to the merry makers.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. G. A. Goll. of near Klemme and is a fine young lady o pleasing person- ality and a favorite among her many friends. She is the kind of young lady who knows the best ways of good house-keeping and will be an ideal help-mate.

Carl is the youngest son of Henry Wille of this city. He is an indust- rious young man who has been fol- lowing the business of farming. He is a young man of good character and a universal favorite among the young people.

The happy couple will soon go to housekeeping on the A. D. Gimer farm southeast of Klemme.

Congratulations are extended to them and may they enjoy life.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS

The Camp Fire Girls held their regular meeting in the First Nation- al Bank basement on last Thursday evening.

Elvira Stille and Goldie Moberly became Camp Fire Girls at the meet- ing. There are now nineteen mem- bers enrolled. Boy Scouts, you'll have to go some to beat that.

The Girls have decided to give a chicken dinner to the public, in the bank basement on the evening of February 21st. The dinner will be given in honor of George Washing- ton's birthday. The Guardian and Assistant Guardian appointed com- mittees to prepare for the dinner.

SOME THINGS YOU SHOULD ALL KNOW ABOUT THE FLAG

By Lue B. Prentiss, D. A. R. Chair- man for Iowa State Flag

In order to protect the flag from misuse by the thoughtless. the Thir- ty-seventh general assembly of Iowa enacted a law eective from Jan. 1, 1918, which forbids mutilation, dese- cration, casting contempt upon or advertising with the flag, or placing it upon the ground or where it may be trodden upon.

The maximum penalty for such misuse is $100 fine and imprison- ment for 30 days. The law states that the word "flag" means "Any picture or representation of the flag, made of any substance or represent- ed on any substance, and of any size, evidently purporting to be eith- er a flag or insignia of the United States, or a picture or representa- tion of either."

It is unlawful to commercialize the flag or insignia by attaching to it any advertisement of any nature.

It is a breach of flag propriety to use any representation thereof for pillow cushions. table covers, nap- kins, handkerchiefs, neckwear. foot- wear, markers, blotters, food decora- tions, curtains or portiers. The flag should never be draped, bunched or twisted as in rosettes. Bunting may be used for such purposes.

The American Express company in Iowa was granted the special privi- ledge of continuing to use as a trade emblem, the U. S. Shield, since the United States granted this company permission to do so prier to Jan. 1, 1895, and no one state can singly withdraw this priviledge.

Customs sanction the use of the flag by the army and navy as a cov- ering of the casket and the honored dead, with the starry union placed at the head; and by the church, as a covering for the altar. Nothing may rest upon the flag except the Bible.

When the flag is flown at half staff as a sign of mourning. it should be hoisted to full staff at the end of the funeral services. In placing the flag at half staff it should first be hoisted to the top of the staff and then lowered to position.

When our flag and any other fly from the same staff the Stars and Stripes must float above the other.

When flags are displayed through the day they should be taken in at sunset. The only occasion when a flag is kept flying through the night at an army post is when a battle is in progress.

When a flag is displayed from a staff, the union or starry field should be in the upper corner next to the staff.

When the Stars and Stripes and any other flag are used in decora- tions or carried together on parade, the Stars and Stripes must be at the right.

When two of our flags hang to- gether the two unions should be plac- ed beside each other, in the center.

When the flag is shown vertically the union should be at the upper cor- ner to the right of the person facing it.

When the flag is shown horizon- tally the union should be at the up- per corner to the left of the person facing it.

When the flag is suspndd in mid- air the stripes may be either horiz- ontal or vrtical with the blue field or union always to the north or east.

We do not use the flag as the whole or a part of a costume. We never place it below a person sitting. The form of salute to the flag ex- pected from civilians when the na- tional colors are passing on parade or in review is as follows: Men stand and uncover, holding their hats over their hearts; women stand at atten- tion, placing their right hand above their hearts.

The Salute to the Flag

"I pledge allegiance to my flag and to the republic for which it stands— one nation, indivisable, with liberty and justice for all."

Every star in the American flag has its own individual state which it represents, and its placement in the starry field, or union, is definitely regulated by law. The star corres- ponding to each state is named in the order of the state's ratification of the constitution. There are six horizontal rows of eight. Iowa is in the fourth row, the twenty-ninth star of the group.

Special Days to Fly the Flag

January 1—Lincoln's Emancipa- tion Proclamation—1863.

February 12—Lincoln's birthday— 1809.

February 22—Washington's birth- day—1732.

April 19—Patriot's day—Battles of Lexington and Concord—1775.

May 30—Memorial or Decoration day. On Memorial day the flag should fly at half staff from sunrise to noon and at full staff from noon to sunset.

June 14—Flag day. Stars and Stripes adopted by Congress—1777.

July 4—Independence day. Declar- ation of Independence—1776.

October 12—Columbus discovered America—1492.

Nov. 11—Armistice day—1918.

December 21—Forefathers' day— the landing of the Pilgrims—1620.

When the "Star Spangled Banner" is played all present should rise and stand at attention until the end. Medleys are in poor taste and de- serve no recognition.

(Clip this out for future refer- ence, it is well worth keeping.)

LIST OF BUYERS AT LAU'S PURE BRED SOW SALE

Lot	Name	Address	Price
1	A. A. Schmidt,	Klemme,	$77.50
2	A. A. Schmidt,	Klemme.	75.00
3	F. Sandry,	Goodell	47.50
4	A. A. Schmidt,	Klemme.	63.00
5	A. A. Schmidt,	Klemme.	85.00
6	F. Sandry,	Goodell	80.00
7	F. Olson,	Forest City	45.00
8	F. Olson,	Forest City	39.00
9	B. H. Katter,	Garner	34.00
10	Anderson Bros.	Goodell	46.00
11	Aug. Haberkamp,	Garner.	46.00
12	A. H& Riechter,	Goldfield	39.00
13	Anderson Bros.,	Goodell.	46.00
14	A. H. Riechter,	Goldfield	59.00
15	J. H. Bosworth,	Goldfield.	42.50
16	J. McCutcheon,	Goldfield	40.00
17	M. Juhl,	Crystal Lake.	41.00
18
19	C. D. Fausch,	Lake C., Min	40.00
20	Ray Burman,	Forest City	50.00
21	O. Schraer,	Garner	41.00
22	L. R. Bergman,	Meservey	40.00
23	M. Juhl,	Crystal Lake.	39.00
24	H. C. Berger,	Meservey.	38.00
25	H. H. Riekens,	Kanawha.	48.00
26	F. Olson,	Forest City	36.00
27	Aug. Haberkamp,	Garner.	42.50
28	O. Schraer.	Garner	45.00
29	G. Schoenwetter,	Garner	60.00
30	Geo. Grosz,	Meservey.	57.00
31	Anderson Bros.,	Goodell	41.00
32	F. Olson,	Forest City	51.00
33	Aug. Haberkamp,	Garner	67.50
34	A. M. Rosedahl,	Garner	42.00
35	O. Schraer,	Garner	39.00
36	H. A. Josten,	Garner.	40.00
37	J. M. Rauch,	Forest City.	51.00
38	Geo Wolf.	Bancroft	40.00

Total amount of sale was $2,728.- 00. The sows averaged about $50 a head, and the Shorthorns which were sold brought an average of a- bout $40.00. Emil had a good sale and he says he is well satisfied the way it went.

WHERE JACK RABBITS ABOUND

Jack-rabbit campaigns, conducted in four States by the Biological Sur- vey, United States department of Agriculture, have been particularly effective during the past year. In Idaho, Washington. Oregon, and in Texas great numbers of jack rabbits were destroyed by traps and poison. These rodents were unusually de- structive to alfalfa, cotton, hay, muskmelon, lettuce, grain, and oth- er crops. In ten counties of Idaho 32,235 pounds of bait treated with 2,159 ounces of strychnine were us- ed on 312,350 acres of land. By pois- oning and by drives, 640,050 jack rabbits, according to actual count, were destroyed in that State. In 6 counties in Washington 155,500 were reported killed, and in 4 coun- ties of Oregon it is estimated that 350,000 were destroyed. In 3 coun- ties of Texas 35,060 jack rabbits were accounted for.

MANY BIBLES HAVE BEEN SOLD

Since the invention of printing, 660,000,000 Bibles have been sold, C. G. Buxton, a Chicago publisher, estimated recently, and stated the fact in an address before the con- vention of the Subscription Book Publishers' association.

WAS ONCE BED OF THE OCEAN

But Vast Tract of Land in Central Oregon Has Been Dry for Thousands of Centuries.

Scientific societies are beginning to pay a great deal of attention to central Oregon's great ocean bed, dry now for many thousands of years. During the past year fully a dozen expeditions visited the huge inland sea that extended over hundreds of square miles on the upper reaches of the Crooked river.

Just to stand in the dry bed of the sea or at points where the waves once washed the shore and where the marks of the tide are plain is a unique experience. It's an astounding country, every rock seemingly hiding fossil evidence of some nature, for at random any ordinary looking outcrop or boulder will reveal clams, oysters, boring shellfish or seaweed impressions. Your head reels as you try to think back centuries and tens of hundreds of centuries before, and see this vast expanse of sand, sagebrush and rocks as a turbulent tropical ocean, palm trees dotting the banks and weird animals roaming the dense brush or haunting the breakers as they bore food from the great ocean.

Palm frond imprints twelve and more feet in length can be found in the rocks, fossil remains of the first horse, he that had three toes; animals too strange to re-create—it's a rich country for the student, and now they are trying to prove that it is a great filling station, for oil drilling derricks begin to make their appearances on the horizon.

In any event here is country that was fecund with life even before the human race was evolved. Inside one round seaworn boulder lay a perfect oyster and inside the oyster the remains of a pearl, crushed flat by the pressure. Along the slimy shores of this sea the life must have been a short one and crowded, for the country is honeycombed with evidence, all of a low life origin—clam shells a yard across, great snails, other shells shaped like nothing we see this day, marine monsters not well organized enough to go out for themselves, but doomed to rest on a still shore until petrified and then to prove their age to discoverers thousands of years later.

Finding New Fruits.

It is curious that during the half-million or more years that man has inhabited the earth, he has learned to cultivate only about 300 species of plants out of more than 100,000 that are known to exist.

During the past 2,000 years we have not discovered and cultivated a single plant which can rival maize, rice, the potato, the date, cereals, and the banana, which was first discovered three or four thousand years ago.

Among new fruits that have been found recently is the feijoa, a South American fruit which is being grown in California. It possesses the refreshing taste of the pineapple and the sweetness of the strawberry.

The jujube is a new fruit which has been cultivated in northern China. It was first known some years ago, and is now being grown in California and Texas. It is usually eaten in candied form, and is preferred by many people to the date, which it resembles.

The sapote, a Central American fruit about the size of an orange, is being grown in Florida; while the roselle, a new acid fruit grown in southern California, is used for jellies and in the making of refreshing beverages.

Take Time to Relax.

Learn to call it a day. Don't peddle the little worries, discouragements and annoyances that crop up in the office around with you. Forget them. Shake off the inclination to sink into the slough of despond at the end of a ragged day. Everything will look different in the morning if you let go and take a fresh hold. Give a job a fair trial before you give it up. The first day, the first week, or the first month is the hardest. See to it that you do not make the same mistake twice and your blunders will put you ahead. The discouragements you meet in your work make very little difference. What really counts is how you take them.—Elizabeth Arnold in Detroit Free Press.

Japanese Rickshaw Men.

Although the motorcar is now common in Japan, many of the more conservative Japanese retain their "stables" of human horses and ornate carriages. Rickshaw men in private employment often wear handsome uniforms, on which the crest of the emperor is embroidered. They have wonderful speed and endurance. Ten miles an hour is not an uncommon pace, and two men, alternately taking the post of leader and wheeler, will keep it up for 50 or 60 miles. Still, it is a pace that kills, and it used to be said that the life of a rickshaw coolie did not exceed ten years after he took to the road.

No Small Task.

"Do you think that women have improved politics?"

"Give us time," protested Miss Cayenne. "Politics have been controlled by men for generations. It takes years for feminine influence to reform a man individually. It will take longer to reform the sex collectively."

Hardly.

"There's nothing new under the sun," said the learned professor during an argument on progress and civilization. "Solomon said that ages ago."

"But he didn't say it by radiophone," answered his friend.

RETAINED RELICS OF GALILEO

Fanatical Admirer of the Great Italian Insisted on Keeping Portions of His Body.

The report that Robert Bruce's heart has been discovered at Melrose, in Scotland, reminds an Italian paper of the fate of Galileo's remains, according to the Manchester (Eng.) Guardian.

When the body of Galileo was exhumed from its original resting place on March 12, 1737, and removed to the magnificent mausoleum in the Church of Santa Croce, Florence, Marquis Vincenzo Capponi, who was a fanatical admirer of Galileo, took possession of the right-hand thumb and forefinger.

Some of those present at the exhumation protested strongly, but the marquis had his way, declaring his intention to "cherish these fingers as sacred relics," which prompted the retort: "Instead of Galileo's fingers it would be better for you to have his brains."

This bad example proved contagious, for the left thumb and one of the ribs were annexed by two other members of the company, and these relics are now in the museum of the university. Marquis Capponi had an urn made for his portion of the body, which all newcomers were called upon to admire as the greatest treasure in the house.

At the beginning of the last century the Capponi family fell upon evil days and emigrated to France, leaving the Galileo relics to become the property of an old butler who had long been in their service. Other oddments given him by his master proved salable, but he could find no market for Galileo's finger and thumb, and these eventually passed to one of the butler's descendants, Signora Laura Joni. In 1905, when she was old and poor, some one advised Signora Joni to offer to sell the relics to the Italian government. Inquiries were instituted which proved the authenticity of the relics beyond a doubt, and they are now preserved with other mementoes of Galileo, the vendor having received a handsome price for them.

In Unexpected Places.

One of the curious features about the most modern of modern inventions, the airplane and the wireless telegraph, is that they are most in demand in lands which hitherto have let the world of progress and invention pass by unheeded. The nomad in the deserts of Arabia, who never saw a railway, today takes an airplane as a matter of course, whilst inland China, which in all other respects is much as it was 3,000 years ago, is eager for the erection of wireless stations. The latest country to be brought into the great ambit is Greenland. Greenland, during the winter months, is cut off from the rest of the world, but when the Danish government has carried out its present scheme for the erection in Greenland of a radio station capable of communicating direct with Denmark, the good people of Godhavn will be as much in the world, as far as news is concerned, as the good people of Copenhagen.—Christian Science Monitor.

Bad Control.

Producer Hal E. Roach found his star comedian, Harold Lloyd, sprawled on the dressing-room floor trying to get a million dollars' worth of laugh out of his system. Lloyd had turned a studio corner at the right moment to see what promised to be a "hot scrap" between two darky "extras." Just when it appeared that the heavy blows were on tap, one of the belligerents started on a dead run across the lot and hurdled a fence.

"I'm surprised at you, G. W.," Lloyd said when he met the runaway a half hour later, "I never thought you would show a streak of yellow like that."

"Ah wasn't runnin', Mistah Lloyd, hones' Ah wasn't," came the answer; "Ah'm 'flicted 'at way. Whenevah Ah gets in a fight, Ah jus' kain't control mah legs, 'at's all."

As Funny as Ever.

He had one of those long mustaches—one of the kind that, if you had been buying him a birthday present a few years ago, you would have thought of a mustache cup the first thing.

Everybody had been making fun of it, so one Sunday morning he shaved it off. The first person to get a look at his upper lip in 20 years was a neighbor girl about the age of four. As she came into the house she said: "Oh! Mr. Bowin, you look just as funny as ever."

French Youth Defective.

As a result of the lack of opportunity to take physical exercise half of the youths of France are said to be physically unfit for military service. Out of more than 3,000,000 eligibles, only 165,000 measured up to the ordinary physical standards in a recent examination of the class of 1921, which will join the colors soon.

Varying Love Names.

"Which do you prefer?"

"That depends on the circumstances. Sometimes I don't use either. If I happen to be sneaking up the stairs about two o'clock in the morning, and Mrs. Whoppit calls out 'Who is that?' I always say, 'It's your own Algy.'"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Pretty Smooth.

"Would you die for me?" asked the sweet young thing.

"My dear, how could I? Thanks to your beauty, mine is a charmed life."—Boston Transcript.

DRAINAGE NOTICE

Hearing on Establishment of Drainage District Number 127, petitioned for by the Board of Supervisos.

State of Iowa,
Hancock County, ss.

To Thomas Cashman, Harm Rust, Frances E. Cummins, W. J. Cummins, Chicago Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, Ellen Boyle, Trustees of Twin Lake Township, P. Peterson, Lyman Nelson and E. O. Eliason; and to Ed. Olson Twin Lake Township Clerk; R. T. Burgess, T. R. Chase and Fred Wilkins, Trustees of Avery Township and to L. W. Wesenberg, Avery Township Clerk and to all other persons in any way interested in any of the following described real estate situated in said District, Hancock County, Iowa.

SW¼ NW¼; NW¼ NW¼; NW¼ SW¼; Section 30—94—23.

NE¼ NE¼; SE¼ NE¼; SW¼ NE¼; NW¼ NE¼; NE¼ NW¼; E½ SW¼ NW¼; Section 25—94—25w, all roads and highways included in the watershed of the district, and to the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway.

You and each of you are hereby notified that on July 6, 1922, there was filed in the office of the County Auditor of Hancock County, Iowa, a petition addressed to the Board of Supervisors of said County asking that certain lands above described be incorporated in a dainage district and that a system of drains be constructed for the relief of said district.

You are further notified that on July 27, 1922 C. F. Merten was appointed engineer to make a survey, plat, profile and field notes of said proposed district, and that on December 18, 1922 said engineer filed his eport recommending the establishment of said district and the construction of a system of drains for the relief of said district and that said report is now on file in the office o the County Auditor of said county and may be amended at any time before final action is taken thereon by the Board of Supervisors and that March 3rd, 1923, at 10:00 o'clock A. M. has been fixed as the time of hearing thereon. All objections and claims for damage must be filed in the office of the county auditor not less than five days before said hearing.

Witness my hand and official seal at Garner, Iowa, this 29th day of January, A. D. 1923.

J. D. MADISON,
Auditor of Hancock County, Iowa.

(SEAL) F-1-8

Important Days This Month

There are quite a number of important calendar dates following for the balance of February:

9. Roosevelt Memorial.
Wm. H. Harrison born, 1773.
10. Russia-Polland Peace, 1920.
12. Lincoln's Birthday.
14. St. Valentine's Day.
15. Battleship Maine Sunk. 1898.
16. Holland internes Kaiser, 1920.
22. Washington's Birthday.
Battle of Verdun, 1916.
25. Our "devil's" birthday.

KANAWHA CREAMERY [illegible] A MANAGER

Albright Resigns For Better [illegible] Hull, Iowa

O. W. Albright, butter[illegible] the Kanawha Creamery, has [illegible]ed his position; resignation [illegible] come effective February 1st. [illegible] Albright has accepted a [illegible]tion as manager of the cream[illegible] ice cream factory at Hull, Iow[illegible] of the best creameries in Iow[illegible] successor has not yet been [illegible]

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT OF ADMINISTRATOR

Notice is hereby given, T[illegible] undersigned has been duly [illegible]ed and qualified as Administ[illegible] the Estate of MILLIE SMI[illegible] of Hancock County, State of [illegible] deceased. All persons indeb[illegible] the estate are requested to [illegible] immediate payment; and tho[illegible]ing claims against th same w[illegible] sent them, duly authentica[illegible] the undersigned, for allowan[illegible]

Dated February 7, A. D. 1[illegible]

LUVERNE SMITH,
(Feb. 8-15-22) Admi[illegible]

PUBLIC AUCTION

As I am going to quit farming I will hold a Public Auction on the farm known as the A. D. Gimer place located as follows: 1 mile south, 1-2 mile east and 1-4 mile south of Klemme; and 1 mile east, 4 3-4 miles north of Goodell, on—

Wednesday, Febr. 14

SALE BEGINS AT 11:00 A. M. Small articles sold before Lunch. FREE HOT LUNCH AT NOON

6 Head of Horses 6

Team of Black Geldings, 7 and 5 years old, weight 2600.

Team Bay and Roan Geldings, 5 years old, weight 2300.

Black Mare, weight 1100.

1 Colt.

43 Head Of Cattle

10 Milch cows, including 1 Holstein coming fresh soon; 2 are fresh, others soon.
1 Registered Shorthorn Bull, 3 years old, papers will be furnished.
9 head Yearlings (heifers and steers) coming 2 years old.
1 Holstein heifer coming fresh soon
4 head of Yearlings
7 head of small Calves.
These are mostly roan cattle, and they are good ones for any farmer.

20 HEAD OF FEEDING SHOATS 20

Farm Machinery

Ford Touring Car 1917, in fine mechanical shape
8-ft. McCormick Binder, in No. 1 condition
Deering Corn Binder
Wide Truck Wagon complete with triple boxes and springs.
Narrow Tire Wagon with triple box
4-section harrow
Deering mower, 5-ft. cut
Low Iron Truck Wagon, with hay rack

International pivot axle cultivator nearly new
John Deere cultivator with set of extra shovels
8-ft. Bradley cutaway disc, nearly new International corn planter, with 80 rds. wire, nearly new Robinson Manure spreader
Hay rake
2 sets breeching harness, brass trimed
Set harness, drop hames.

Set driving harness
United 2 1-2 h. p. gas eng.
8-in. Ditto Grinder
20 ft. 6-in. power belt.
Grind stone
2 Rolls Cribbing Wire
2 Shoveling Boards
Post Drill, nearly new Blacksmith Vice, 70 lbs.
Set Dies
Economy Separator
Tank Heater
Set Leather Fly Nets
8 Collars, some like new
Many other small articles

TERMS OF SALE—All sums of ten dollars and under, cash. Over ten dollars a credit of nine month's time will be given on approved security at 8 per cent interest from date of sale. No property is to be removed until settled for.

Sylvan Johnson, Prop.

COL. B. A. REEMSTMA, Auctioneer.

STATE SAVINGS BANK, KLEMME, CLERKS.

DESERT GOLD

by ZANE GREY

Author of RIDERS OF THE PURPLE SAGE, WILDFIRE, ETC.

Copyright by Harper & Brothers.

NELL BURTON

SYNOPSIS.—Seeking gold in the desert, "Cameron," solitary prospector, forms a partnership with an unknown man whom he later learns is Jonas Warren, father of a girl whom Cameron wronged, but later married, back in Illinois. Cameron's explanations appease Warren, and the two proceed together. Taking refuge from a sandstorm in a cave, Cameron discovers gold, but too late; both men are dying. Cameron leaves evidence, in the cave, of their discovery of gold, and personal documents. Richard Gale, adventurer, in Casita, Mexican border town, meets George Thorne, lieutenant in the Ninth cavalry, old college friend. Thorne tells Gale he is there to save Mercedes Castaneda, Spanish girl, his affianced wife, from Rojas, Mexican bandit. Gale "roughhouses" Rojas and his gang, with the help of two American cowboys, and he, Mercedes and Thorne escape. A bugle call from the fort orders Thorne to his regiment. He leaves Mercedes under Gale's protection. The pair, aided by the cowboys, Charlie Ladd and Jim Lash, arrive in safety at a ranch known as Forlorn River, across the border. The fugitives are at Tom Belding's home. Belding is immigration inspector. Living with him are his wife and stepdaughter, Nell Burton.

CHAPTER IV.—Continued.

—5—

"What is he? Who is he? Where did he come from? Surely you must be—"

"Laddy swears he's all right," interrupted the husband. "That's enough reference for me. Isn't it enough for you?"

"Humph! Laddy knows a lot about young men, now doesn't he, especially strangers from the East? . . . Tom, you must be careful! He'll fall in love with Nell!" protested Mrs. Belding.

"Well, wouldn't that be regular? Doesn't every man who comes along fall in love with Nell? Hasn't it always happened?"

"But, Tom, Nell might fall in love with this young man!" exclaimed the wife, in distress.

"Laddy, Jim, didn't I tell you?" cried Belding. "I knew she'd say that. . . . My dear wife, I would be simply overcome with joy if Nell did fall in love once. Real good and hard! She's wilder than any antelope out there on the desert. Nell's nearly twenty now, and so far as we know she's never cared a rap for any fellow. And she's as good and lovable as she is pretty, but I'm afraid she'll never grow into a woman while we live out in this lonely land. And you've always hated towns where there was a chance for the girl—just because you were afraid she'd fall in love. You've always been strange, even silly, about that. I've done my best for Nell—loved her as if she were my own daughter. I've changed many business plans to suit your whims. There are rough times ahead, maybe. I need men. I'll hire this chap Gale if he'll stay. Let Nell take her chance with him. She'll be all the better for it."

"What Is He? Who Is He? Where Did He Come From? Surely You Must Be—"

"I hope Laddy's not mistaken in his opinion of this newcomer," replied Mrs. Belding, with a sigh of resignation. "Well, supper is to be got. That young man and the girl will be starved. I'll go in now. If Nell happens around don't—don't flatter her, Laddy, like you did at dinner. Don't make her think of her looks."

Dick heard Mrs. Belding walk away.

"Shore she's powerful particular about that girl," observed Laddy. "Say, Tom, Nell knows she's pretty, doesn't she."

"She's liable to find it out unless you shut up, Laddy. When you visited us out here some weeks ago, you kept paying cowboy compliments to her."

"An' it's your idea that cowboy compliments are plumb bad for girls?"

"Downright bad, Laddy, so my wife says."

"I'll be darned if I believe any girl can be hurt by a little sweet talk. It pleases 'em. . . ."

"Chop it," interrupted Belding. "Here comes Nell now."

Dick's tingling ears took in the pattering of light footsteps, the rush of someone running.

"Here you are," cried a sweet, happy voice. "Dad, the senorita is perrectly lovely. I've been peeping at her. She sleeps like—like death. She's so white. Oh, I hope she won't be ill. How strange and sad, that about her! Tell me more, Laddy. You promised. I'm dying to know. Didn't you say the senorita had a sweetheart?"

"Shore I did."

"Is he the young man who came with you?"

"Nope. That fellow's the one who saved the girl from Rojas."

"Ah! Where is he, Laddy?"

"He's in there asleep."

"Is he—nice, Laddy?"

"Shore."

"What is he like?"

"Well, I'm not long acquainted, never saw him by day, but I was some tolerable took with him. An' Jim here, Jim says the young man can have his gun an' his hoss."

"Wonderful! Laddy, what on earth did this stranger do to win you cowboys in just one night?"

"I'll shore have to tell you. Me an' Jim was watchin' a game of cards in the Del Sol saloon in Casita. That's across the line. We had acquaintances—four fellows from the Cross Bar outfit, where we worked a while back. This Del Sol is a billiard hall, saloon, restaurant, an' the like. An' it was full of Greasers. Some of Campo's rebels were there drinkin' an' playin' games. Then pretty soon in come Rojas with some of his outfit. They were packin' guns an' kept to themselves off to one side.

"A little while afterward I seen a fellow standin' in the restaurant door. He was a young American dressed in corduroys an' boots, like a prospector. He looked round the saloon, an' when he spotted Rojas he sorta jerked up. Then he pulled his slouch hat lopsided an' began to stagger down, down the steps. First off I made shore he was drunk. But I remembered he didn't seem drunk before. It was some queer. So I watched that young man.

"He reeled around the room like a fellow who was drunker'n a lord. Nobody but me seemed to notice him. Then he began to stumble over poolplayers an' get his feet tangled up in chairs an' bump against tables. He got some pretty hard looks. He came round our way, an' all of a sudden he seen us cowboys. He gave another start, like the one when he first seen Rojas, then he made for us. I tipped Jim off that somethin' was doin'. Then this queer young man shot some cool, polite words at me an' Jim.

"He was only bluffin' at bein' drunk—he meant to rush Rojas, to start a rough house. The bandit was after a girl. This girl was in the hotel, an' she was the sweetheart of a soldier, the young fellow's friend. The hotel was watched by Rojas' guards, an' the plan was to make a fuss an' get the girl away in the excitement. Well, Jim an' me got a hint of our bein' Americans—that cowboys generally had a name for loyalty to women. Then this amazin' chap—you can't imagine how scornful—said for me an' Jim to watch him.

"Before I could catch my breath an' figger out what he meant by 'rush' an' 'rough house' he had knocked over a table an' crowded some Greaser half off the map. Then, quicker'n I can tell you the young man dove at Rojas. Like a mad steer on the rampage he charged Rojas an' his men. The whole outfit went down—smash! I figgered then what 'rush' meant. The young fellow came up out of the pile with Rojas, an' just like I'd sling an empty sack along the floor he sent the bandit. But swift as that went he was on top of Rojas before the chairs an' tables had stopped rollin'.

"I woke up then, an' made for the center of the room, Jim with me. I began to shoot out the lamps. Jim throwed his guns on the crazy rebels, an' I was afraid there'd be blood spilled before I could get the room dark. Bein' shore busy, I lost sight of the young fellow for a second or so, an' when I got an eye free for him I seen a Greaser about to knife him. Think I was considerate of the Greaser by only shootin' his arm off. Then I cracked the last lamp, an' it's the hullabaloo me an' Jim vamoosed.

"We made tracks for our hosses an' packs, an' was hittin' the San Felipe road when we run right plumb into the young man. Well," he said his name was Gale—Dick Gale. The girl was with him safe an' well; but her sweetheart, the soldier, bein' away without leave, had to go back sudden. There shore was some trouble, for Jim an' me heard shootin'. Gale said he had no money, no friends, was a stranger in a desert country; an' he was distracted to know how to help the girl. So me an' Jim started off with them for San Felipe, got switched, an' then we headed for the Rio Forlorn."

"Oh, I think he was perfectly splendid!" exclaimed the girl. "But, Laddy, you haven't told me what he looks like."

At this juncture Dick Gale felt it absolutely impossible to play the eavesdropper any longer. Quietly he rolled out of bed. Belding's kindly interest, Laddy's blunt and sincere cowboy eulogy, the girl's sweet eagerness and praise—these warmed Gale's heart. He had fallen among simple people, into whose lives the advent of an unknown man was welcome.

He was wild to be one of Belding's rangers. The idea of riding a horse in the open desert, with a dangerous duty to perform, seemed to strike him with an appealing force. Something within him went out to the cowboys, to this blunt and kind Belding. He was afraid to meet the girl. If every man who came along fell in love with this sweet-voiced Nell, then what hope had he to escape—now, when his whole inner awakening betokened a change of spirit, hope, a finding of real worth, real good, real power in himself?

Gale imagined he made noise enough as he clumsily pulled on his boots; yet the voices, split by a merry laugh, kept on murmuring outside the door. It was awkward for him, having only one hand available to lace up his boots. He looked out of the window. He heard bees, birds, chickens, saw the red of roses and green of grass. Then he saw, close to the wall, a tub full of water, and a bench upon which lay basin, soap, towel, comb and brush. The window was also a door, for under it there was a step.

Suddenly, Sweetly, She Blushed.

Gale hesitated a moment, then went out. He stepped naturally, hoping and expecting that the cowboys would hear him. But nobody came. Awkwardly, with left hand, he washed his face. Upon a nail in the wall hung a little mirror, by the aid of which Dick combed and brushed his hair. He imagined he looked a most haggard wretch. With that he faced forward, meaning to go round the corner of the house to greet the cowboys and these new-found friends.

Dick had taken but one step when he was halted by laughter and the patter of light feet. He saw a little foot sweep into view, a white dress, then the swiftly moving form of a girl. She was looking backward.

"Dad, I shall fall in love with your new ranger. I will—I have—"

Then she plumped squarely into Dick's arms.

Dick saw a fair face and dark-blue, audaciously flashing eyes. Swift as lightning their expression changed to surprise, fear, wonder. For an instant they were level with Dick's grave questioning. Suddenly, sweetly, she blushed.

"Oh-h!" she faltered.

Then the blush turned to a scarlet fire. She whirled past him, and like a white gleam was gone.

Dick became conscious of the quickened beating of his heart. He experienced a singular exhilaration. That moment had been the one for which he had been ripe, the event upon which strange circumstances had been rushing him.

With a couple of strides he turned the corner. Laddy and Lash were there talking to a man of burly form.

"Hello, there's the young fellow," spoke up the burly man. "Mr. Gale, I'm glad to meet you. My name's Belding."

His greeting was as warm as his handclasp was long and hard. Gale saw a heavy man of medium height. His head was large and covered with grizzled locks. He wore a short-cropped mustache and chin beard. His skin was brown, and his dark eyes beamed with a genial light.

"Young man, did you run into anything as you came out?" asked Belding, with twinkling eyes.

"Why, yes; I met something white and swift flying by," replied Dick.

"That was Nell Burton, my girl—Stepdaughter, I should say," said Belding. "She's sure some whirlwind, as Laddy calls her. Come, let's go in and meet the wife."

In Mrs. Belding, Gale found a woman of noble proportions and striking appearance. Her hair was white. She had a strong, serious, well-lined face that bore haunting evidences of past beauty. The gaze she gent upon him was almost piercing in its intensity. Her greeting, which seemed to Dick rather slow in coming, was kind though not cordial. Gale's first thought, after he had thanked these good people for their hospitality, was to inquire about Mercedes. Mrs. Belding said the girl had suffered no great hardship, other than mental, and would very soon be rested and well.

"Now, Gale," said Belding, when his wife had excused herself to get supper, "the boys, Jim and Laddy, told me about you and the mix-up at Casita. I'll be glad to take care of the girl till it's safe for your soldier friend to get her out of the country. That won't be very soon, don't mistake me. . . . I don't want to seem over-curious about you—Laddy has interested me in you—and straight out I'd like to know what you propose to do now."

"I haven't any plans," replied Dick; and, taking the moment as propitious, he decided to speak frankly concerning himself. "I just drifted down here. My home is in Chicago. When I left school some years ago—I'm twenty-five now—I went to work for my father. He's—he has business interests there. I tried all kinds of inside jobs. I couldn't please my father. To tell you frankly, Mr. Belding, I suppose I didn't much care."

"What do you want to do?"

"I want a man's job. I want to do things with my hands. I want action. I want to be outdoors."

Belding nodded his head as if he understood that, and he began to speak again, cut something short, then went on, hesitatingly:

"Gale—you could go home again—to the old man—it'd be all right?"

"Mr. Belding, there's nothing shady in my past. The governor would be glad to have me home. That's the only consolation I've got. But I'm not going. I'm broke. I won't be a tramp. And it's up to me to do something."

"How'd you like to be a border ranger?" asked Belding, laying a hand on Dick's knee. "Part of my job here is United States inspector of immigration. I've got that boundary line to patrol—to keep out Chinks and Japs. You'll not be hired by the U. S. You'll simply be my ranger, same as Laddy and Jim, who have promised to work for me. I'll pay you well, give you a room here, furnish everything down to guns, and the finest horse you ever saw in your life. Your job won't be safe and healthy, sometimes, but it'll be a man's job—don't mistake me! You can gamble on having things to do outdoors. Now, what do you say?"

"I accept, and I thank you—I can't say how much," replied Gale, earnestly.

"Good! That's settled. Let's go out and tell Laddy and Jim."

Both boys expressed satisfaction at the turn of affairs, and then with Belding they set out to take Gale around the ranch. The wide grounds were covered with luxuriant grass and flowers and different kinds of trees.

Belding explained that the luxuriance of this desert place was owing to a few springs and the dammed-up waters of the Rio Forlorn.

"I've got one never-failing spring on my place," said Belding. "Fine, sweet water! You know what that means in the desert. I like this oasis. The longer I live here the better I like it. It's beautiful and healthy. Forlorn and lonely, yes, especially for women like my wife and Nell; but I like it. . . . And between you and me, boys, I've got something up my sleeve. There's gold dust in the arroyos, and there's mineral up in the mountains. If we only had water! There are possibilities, and I want you boys to stay with me and get in on the ground floor. I wish this rebel war was over. . . . Well, here are the corrals and the fields. Gale, take a look at that bunch of horses!"

Belding's last remark was made as he led his companions out of shady gardens into the open. Gale saw an adobe shed and a huge pen formed by strangely twisted and contorted branches or trunks of mesquite, and, beyond these, wide, flat fields, green—a dark, rich green—and dotted with beautiful horses. There were whites and blacks, and bays and grays. In his admiration Gale searched his memory to see if he could remember the like of these magnificent animals, and had to admit that the only ones he could compare with them were the Arabian steeds.

"Shore I reckon I savvy why you don't sleep nights," drawled Laddy. "I see a Greaser out there—no; it's an Indian."

"That's my Papago herdsman. I keep watch over the horses now day and night. Lord, how I'd hate to have Rojas or Salazar—any of those bandit rebels—find my horses! . . . Gale, can you ride?"

Dick modestly replied that he could, according to the eastern idea of horsemanship.

The ringing of a bell, which Belding said was a call to supper, turned the men back toward the house. It was not until they reached it and were about to go in that Belding chanced to discover Gale's crippled hand.

"What an awful hand!" he exclaimed. "Where the devil did you get that?"

"I stove in my knuckles on Rojas," replied Dick.

"You did that in one punch? Say, I'm glad it wasn't me you hit! Why didn't you tell me? That's a bad hand. Those cuts are full of dirt and sand. Inflammation's setting in. It's got to be dressed. Nell!" he called.

Dick saw a glimpse of golden hair and a white dress in the door. But they were not visible longer than a second.

"Dad, what's the matter?" asked a voice that was still as sweet as formerly, but now rather small and constrained.

"Bring the antiseptics, cotton, bandages—and things out here. Hurry, now."

Belding fetched a pail of water and a basin from the kitchen. His wife followed him out, and, upon seeing Dick's hand, was all solicitude. Then Dick heard light, quick footsteps, but he did not look up.

"Nell, this is Mr. Gale—Dick Gale, who came with the boys last night," said Belding. "He's got an awful hand. Got it punching that Greaser Rojas. I want you to dress it. . . . Gale, this is my stepdaughter, Nell Burton, of whom I spoke. She's some good when there's somebody sick or hurt. Shove out your fist, my boy, and let her get at it. Supper's nearly ready."

Dick felt that same strange, quickening heart throb, yet he had never been cooler in his life. More than anything else in the world he wanted to look at Nell Burton; however, divining that the situation might be embarrassing to her, he refrained from looking up. She began to bathe his injured knuckles. He noted the softness, the deftness of her touch, and then it seemed her fingers were not quite as steady as they might have been. Still, in a moment they appeared to become surer in their work. When she sat down beside him and rested his injured hand in her lap as she cut bandages, she was so thrillingly near that he yielded to an irrepressible desire to look up. She had a sweet, fair face warmly tinted with that same healthy golden-brown sunburn. Her hair was light gold and abundant, a waving mass. Her eyes were shaded by long, downcast lashes, yet through them he caught a gleam of blue.

Despite the stir within him, Gale, seeing she was now absorbed in her task, critically studied her with a second closer gaze. She was a sweet, wholesome, joyous, pretty girl.

"Shore it musta hurt?" inquired Laddy, who sat an interested spectator.

"Yes, I confess it did," replied Dick slowly, with his eyes on Nell's face. "But I didn't mind."

The girl's lashes swept up swiftly in surprise. She had taken his words literally. But the dark-blue eyes met his for only a fleeting second. Then the warm tint in her cheeks turned as red as her lips. Hurriedly she finished tying the bandage and rose to her feet.

"I thank you," said Gale, also rising. With that Belding appeared in the doorway, and, finding the operation concluded, called them in to supper. After the meal, having a favorable opportunity when for a moment no one was at hand, Dick went out through the yard, past the gardens and fields, and climbed the first knoll.

Westward the setting sun gilded a spiked, frost-colored, limitless expanse of desert. It awed Gale. What a strange, gray, somber place! There was a lighter strip of gray winding down between darker hues. This he realized presently was the river bed, and he saw now the pools of water narrowed and diminished in size till they lost themselves in gray sand. This was the rainy season, near its end, and here a little river struggled hopelessly, forlornly to live in the desert. He received a potent impression of the nature of that blasted age-worn waste which he had divined was to give him strength and work and love.

"It was indescribably sweet and provocative of thoughts—"

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Domestic Animals Necessary.

Man couldn't get along without domesticated animals. The world now has one sheep and one head of cattle for each five people, and one head of swine for each 12 people. America, with only a sixteenth of the world's population, has a sixth of the world's cattle, a tenth of the sheep and three-sevenths of the swine. We are the greatest meat eaters on earth. Yet we are the most peaceful people. Militant Japan's diet is based on rice. It is an uncomfortable contrast for the theorists who preach that meat-eating makes people ferocious or savagely emotional.

Ancient City of Carthage.

Carthage was founded by the Phoenicians about 850 B. C.

Lincoln

Upon thy tomb I also lay a flower,
No rose, but just a spray of goldenrod
Plucked from the soil whereon thy feet have trod,
And thereof full of beauty and of power,
Untrained to decorate Occasion's hour;
Dropped from His garden by the hand of God,
To find itself and glorify the sod,
To be to men an everlasting dower.
Intrepid Soul, as golden as this bloom,
Simplicity and innate light were thine—
Oh, surely thou wert born to set man free.
I lay this flower upon thy sacred tomb,
With love and gratitude; if not divine,
A comrade thou to Christ, and died as He.

—"Laura Blackburn," in Chicago Tribune.

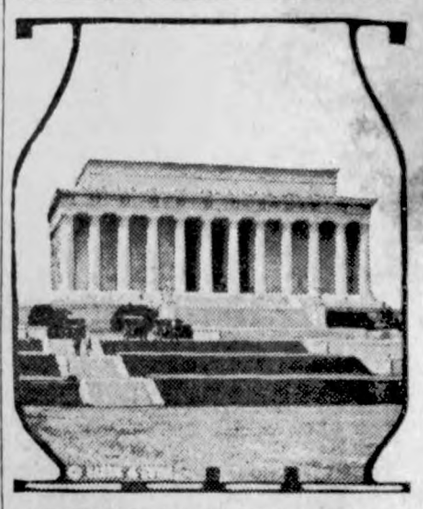
Years but Add Luster to Name and Fame of Martyred President

Each passing year adds new luster to the fame of that great American whose place in history of this land ranks with that of him who was first in the hearts of his countrymen. About his illustrious name new glories shine as time goes on and retreating distance brings him more majestically into view, like some towering mountain peak which can best be seen afar off. Into the life and character of Abraham Lincoln are being interwoven the imperishable fabrics of spirituality, romance and imagination. As he recedes, and thus receding comes more completely within the scope of human understanding, the world claims him. The uncouth mystic sprung from the loins of a primitive people, nurtured at the breast of poverty, schooled in the university of the wilderness, becomes in hardly more than a single generation a figure with a universal appeal, an inspiration everywhere on earth to mankind struggling against the odds of fate. No people has contributed a nobler figure than his to the shadowy annals of tradition.

The instincts which actuated his career of devotion to his country lie deep in the breasts of his fellow citizens. Americans in honoring him pay tribute to themselves, for they produced him, reared him, sustained him, and offered him to the service of humanity. In the hearts of a people from whom so splendid a product can come must be a nobility of character sacred and immortal. In this lies the hope of America in the years to come, in this reflection that, so long as the ideals of the splendid past are cherished and preserved, each generation will breed a man to meet an urgent need.

In keeping alive the flame which burns at the altar of Lincoln, the men and women to whom he dedicated his immortal soul maintain a beacon light to guide their faltering footsteps along the way to better and nobler things.

World-Famous Memorial



Comprehensive picture of the Lincoln memorial. This picture was taken from one side of the sunken lake which forms the main approach to the memorial.

Saw Omen in Daylight Star.

Following Mr. Lincoln's election, in November, 1861, The Rockford, Ill., Register printed the following paragraph.

"It will be remembered by many of our readers that on last election day, when Honest Old Abe was elected President, a bright star was plainly seen through the most of the day, about 60 degrees south of the sun. Like the Star in the East that rested over the place where lay the redeemer of the world, may not this have signaled the birth of a power that shall guide our country safe through its manifold difficulties of today? May not Abraham Lincoln be the representative of that power? Be it so or not, we look to him for this result, and time alone can decide the omen for weal or woe."

Just before his second inauguration some one urged upon Mr. Lincoln the adoption of some policy which he deemed essential to the public good. "Well," said Mr. Lincoln, "I doubt whether we can do that now, but wait till the 4th of March. I don't know how things will turn out, but I rather think I shall have more influence with the next administration than I have with this."—From "Anecdotes of Lincoln," by Abbott Lawrence Hardy, in the Boston Herald.

News of Goodell And Vicinity

The dance at the Pet Fuller home Tuesday night was enjoyed by a large crowd, everyone enjoying themselves.

Thomas Cashman was a Belmond caller between trains Friday.

Dorothy Lackore is on the sick list this week, due to a severe cold.

All present at the dance given at the hotel Friday night in honor of Evelyn Chelsvig's 16th birthday had a good time.

Dan Miller was a Garner caller between trains Monday.

W. L. Sherwood was a Mason City caller Thursday.

Lloyd Brugman visited at the Fred Wilkins home Sunday.

Mr. Everett, of Des Moines, was a visitor at the Jay Griggs home last week.

The community was grieved to hear of the death of Mrs. A. C. Carpenter, who passed away Monday.

Dr. Snearly was called to Indiana by the death of his sister.

Mrs. Frank Clark who is in the hospital at Hampton, is gaining slowly, which is good news to her many friends.

Goodell High School Notes

Goodell's Basket Ball Teams met another defeat Friday night when Crystal Lake played the return game. The Girls' jumping center was unable to play so Griggs jumped center and played as guard also. This was our first game played according to new rules, and the girls sometimes forgot that they could run over half the floor and not be over the lines. The girls set up a hard fight but were defeated by a score of 18-32.

The Boys' game was also very good. There was a number of fouls called for rough-house, etc. Both teams displayed a little temper before the close of the game. The final score being 2-4 in favor of the visiting team.

The Sociology class are anxiously waiting for Court to enter session, as they intend to attend; also to visit one of our county institutions. They seem o find this course, under the instruction of Miss Hill, to be very interesting.

Some very "interesting and personal" valentines were received by some of the students. We wonder who were the guilty senders.

The Physics Class performed a very interesting experiment last Thursday, on the expansion of metal upon being heated.

Dorothy Lackore was absent Friday.

We wonder why so many looked so tired and sleepy Thursday morning?

The High School received rather a "shock" or "fright?" last Monday morning when one of the Senior Girls and a Junior appeared with their hair arranged in the latest style; parted from front to back and wound around the ears—although rather a sudden and startling change we must say the style is quite becoming to them.

Thomas Quigley was absent Tuesday.

KANAWHA MAN IS BURNED IN KEROSENE BLAST

The Same Old Story—Pouring Oil On Fire From A Can

J. W. Daily, proprietor of the pool hall at Kanawha, was seriously burned last Thursday morning while starting a fire with kerosene. He was in the act of pouring the oil on the fire from a gallon oil can when it exploded, igniting his clothing.

Passersby succeeded in smothering the flames that enveloped him by wrapping him with pool table coverings. He was taken to the Judd hospital for treatment.

While seriously burned, the attending physician states that he will recover.

Slight damage was done to the building.

TEACHER OF WHISTLING

Miss Blanche Hawkins, senior student at the University of California, Berkeley, Cal., has just won the distinction of being the only teacher of whistling with full privileges to teach in the schools of California. For two years since coming to Berkeley from the southern branch of the university, Miss Hawkins has whistled her way through college.

She maintains a studio where between classes on the campus she has been giving lessons in the art chosen by her, and has been heard at public gatherings. She has just been granted a special whistling certificate, the first of its kind ever issued by the state board of education.

HEART DISEASE ON INCREASE

Figures Show That, at Least In New York City, There Are More Sufferers.

Disease of the heart is increasing in this city, according to a report made recently by Dr. Louis I. Harris, director of the bureau of preventable diseases, to Acting Health Commissioner Dr. Frank J. Monoghan of New York, says the New York Times.

"It has been observed that females," the report states, "show greater incidence of cardiac defect up to the age of twenty-four than is found in males of similar age groups. After twenty-four years of age, however, the incidence becomes increasingly pronounced in males.

"What we are particularly concerned about as a public health problem is the early recognition of cases in which any one or numerous causes may have operated to produce damage upon any part of the heart or the vascular system, so that we may shield such persons from physical and mental strain so far as possible and prevent their exposure to subsequent infections.

"For adolescents there ought to be ample provision to ascertain whether or not a child may be suffering from a cardiac defect, and if so to make certain that such children are not permitted to enter into industries in which they are inevitably doomed to suffer an aggravation of their cardiac diseases, with all the menace to health and life which is implied. Such adolescents should not be permitted to be employed in an industrial environment in which excessive heart or physical strain or other causes of fatigue may operate alone or in conjunction with other factors to cause a cardiac breakdown.

"The time may not be far distant when some organization having a keen regard for the sanctity as well as the economic value of human life will carefully consider each case of death reported in a community and place the blame for such death upon the public authorities, parents or employers, each in proper measure as they may have been responsible for failure to conserve the lives of those who are exposed to the development of cardiac disease or are already so handicapped."

Tells of Green Fields of Arctic.

It is the absence of glaciers which makes the difference between the North and South poles, and gives the Arctic the "friendly" disposition towards man which Mr. Stefansson has divulged in his book, "The Friendly Arctic." "If you travel seven or eight hundred miles overland from the glacier-infested South coast northward, you come to the prairies bordering the Alaska North coast," says Mr. Stefansson. "On the great triangular coastal plain of 50,000 square miles there are no mountains, consequently no glaciers. The explanation is that northern Alaska is low, flat land, with a precipitation so light that the snow which falls in winter is all thawed away in the spring."

The Arctic grass lands, he says, have caribou in herds of tens of thousands, and sometimes hundreds of thousands to a single herd, with lesser numbers of musk oxen here and there. There are the polar foxes, both white and blue, that feed in summer on the unbelievable swarms of lemmings that also form the food of thousands of owls and hawks and gulls. There are the goose and brant and swan and crane and loon, and various species of duck. When you add to this picture the bumblebees, bluebottle flies and abundant insect life, of which the clouds of mosquitoes form the most impressive and least tolerable part, you get a picture of a country that in summer certainly is not without life.

Where to Buy One.

Betty, age three, and Jean, age four, were playmates. Betty started the usual morning argument. "I have a new dress and you haven't."

Jean promptly came back with the reply: "Boys don't wear dresses. I have a new suit, and you haven't."

Betty did not hesitate. "I have new slippers and you haven't."

Nothing daunted, Jean answered: "Well, I have new oxfords and you haven't."

Betty determined to have the last word and said: "Well, I have a little baby brother and you haven't."

Jean was stumped, then, leaning forward, whispered: "Say, Betty, what store did you buy him at?"

The Limit.

"There isn't much I don't know about the English language," boasted the long-haired man in the hotel lobby. "I'll test you," a friend picked him up quickly. "I'll dictate a paragraph to you." With an assured air the boaster seized his pencil, but his jaw dropped as he heard: "As Hugh Hughes was hewing a yule log from a a yew tree, a man dressed in clothes of dark blue hue came up to Hugh and said: 'Have you seen my ewes?' 'If you will wait until I hew this yew tree I will go with you anywhere in Europe to look for your ewes,' said Hugh."

Looks Like George.

Mrs. R. D. M. writes: "Last Sunday afternoon I told my little girl that her father was asleep, and that I wanted her and her brother to be as silent as the Sphinx. A moment later I heard her repeat my warning to her brother, aged seven, and inquire what a 'Spinks' was.

"'Why, don't you know?' answered Robert, who is quite a student for his age. 'A Spinks is a big thing that grows in Egypt and looks like George Washington.'"—Boston Transcript.

Standard Time Zones.

The United States standard eastern time zone is from the Atlantic ocean to a line through Sandusky and Mansfield, and between Columbus and Zanesville, O.; thence through Huntington, W. Va.; Norton, Va.; Johnson City, Tenn.; Asheville, N. C.; Atlanta and Macon, Ga., and Apalachicola, Fla.

Standard central zone is from this first line to a line through Mandan, N. D.; Pierre, S. D.; McCook, Neb.; Dodge City, Kan., and along the western boundary of Oklahoma and Texas.

Standard mountain zone is from the second line to a line that forms the western boundary of Montana, and thence passes through Pocatello, Idaho; Ogden and Salt Lake City, Utah; Parker and Yuma, Ariz.

Pricking the Bubble.

"Deacon Summers seems to have lost considerable prestige in your church circles since he permitted himself to be drawn into that rough-and-tumble bar-room fight the other night," observed an Eastern visitor to Arkansas.

"I sh'd say he has," replied a native disgustedly. "Th' hull congregation figgered him a right sight handier with a razor than what he turned out to be."—American Legion Weekly.

Limit to His Appetite.

Bobbie had dinner with his uncle one evening, who gave him a generous helping of everything.

At the close of the meal he was asked why he had not eaten his dessert, whereupon he replied: "Oh, I can't, 'cause my appetite don't hold much tonight."

American shales do not work satisfactorily when retorted in the standard Scotch retort, and that, accordingly, modifications of this retort, or retorts on new principles must be designed. So far the developments have been largely in the hands of mining engineers or of men without technical training. Only lately have chemical engineers taken an active hand in the industry.

In concluding, Dr. McKee says: "The demands for petroleum are increasing in this country at the rate of about 50,000,000 bbls. a year. We have in prospect no source of fuel oil, gasoline, or gasoline substitute other than oil shale that promises to furnish even a minor part of this demand. To meet this, even without making any allowances for the expected decrease in production from oil wells will require each year the building of 75 shale oil plants, each handling 2,000 tons of oil shale daily, and each representing an investment of nearly a million dollars. And yet some men feel that the industrial need for chemical engineers and chemists is limited!"

Tuesday, February 13

WILL BE

DE LAVAL SERVICE DAY

For the benefit of our many customers and users of De Laval Cream Separators we have established a De Laval Service Day.

On this day we shall be glad to have any De Laval user bring his complete separator to our store for a thorough and careful inspection and adjustment, which will be made free of charge. Should any parts, due to unusual wear or accident, need to be replaced, this will be done, the only charge being for the price of the new parts used. No charge will be made for the service.

A De Laval representative will be with us to assist with this work. Bring in your De Laval Separator that day and receive the benefit of his advice on the care and operation of the machine, as well as the free service. It is our wish, and that of the De Laval Company, that every user of a De Laval Separator get the maximum of service at the minimum of cost, and we therefore urge you to avail yourself of this free and useful service.

COME EARLY

Jacobs and Son

FORDSON

You Will Want Your Fordson Tractor Earl

Everything points to the greatest shortage of Ford ducts this year that has ever existed.
Never before has the demand been so great.
You will want a Fordson Tractor early—here is one pr you cannot wait for—when the weather opens up yo need it.

You will want it for plowing, seeding, cultivating—an your other work. Already it has proved the greatest to profitable farming that has ever been offered to you. at $395 f. o. b. Detroit, the price is so low that you money every day you are without a Fordson. To get del you must order early.

There are no reserve stocks among our dealers—our duction capacitiy, great as it is, will not enable us to a reserve.

It must be a case of "first come, first served" and the way in which you can protect yourself is to list your with a Ford Dealer Dealer immediately.

By taking advantage of our dealer's first opportunity to make delivery, you will be assured of having your Fordson when you need it.

FORD MOTOR CO.

$395.00

f. o. b. Detroit

Greimann Motor Co.

Aaron Greimann, Mgr. Klemme,

ANNOUNCEMENT

I wish to announce to the people of Klemme and vicinity that I have purchased ha interest in the Empire Motor Sales Co., of Mason City, Ia., located at 18-20 Second S S. W. and will be open for business at said place after Feb. 15.

We will operate a public garage and repair business with a complete line of acces ories; National Storage Batteries; Fisk Tires.

We are distributors of the famous Stephens Six Automobiles for Northern Iowa.

The 1923 Stephens line sets a standard of motor car values never approached be fore.

For the first time, Stephens presents two distinct models, carrying seven bod types. A seven passenger touring car; a seven passenger Sedan, and a new "Sport, having a longer wheelbase of 124 inch. To complete the line, there is a 5-pass. Tourin at $1295; a smart Touring Sedan seating 5 at $1595; a 5-pass. Sedan at $1895; and a ran gy Roadster 2-3 passenger at $1345, f. o. b. factory. With a 59 h. p. six-cylinder over head valve motor in all models.

No other automobile within $350 of Stephens' price range uses so many high grad units in extra large sizes.

Delco Ignition, starting and lighting, Timkin Axles, Stromberg Carburetor, Ber and Beck Clutch, Pressure oiled bearings, full chrome-vanadium springs.

No American Motor is more flexible, more economical, swifter in acceleration better built. The 59 h. p. motor allows acceleration from a standing start to 50 mile an hour in 20 seconds; drifting through city streets in high gear at a mile an hour is n harder for a Stephens than the leap to 60 miles an hour, should you require such spee

Low gasoline consumption and high tire mileage are routine experiences for Steph en owners.

In eight competitive economy runs, under official supervision, in the last five year Stephens touring cars, fully loaded, have averaged 21.12 miles per gallon of gasoline.

Some of the earliest Stephens cars, though they lack the refinements of more re cent models, have traveled 75,000 miles, 100,000 miles and even 200,000 miles and ar still satisfactory motor cars.

The low cost of motor upkeep and the exceptional freedom from carbon and valv troubles are reported by Stephens owners daily.

A Stephens in Columbus, Ohio, has traveled 95,000 miles with only two valve grind ings; another in San Antonia, Texas, has run 39,000 miles without any valve attentio whatever, while reports of 18,000 and 20,000 miles are common.

Equipment on Stephens 1923 line is unusual——Transmission Lock, Kellog Powe Driven Tire Pump, Stewart 75 mile Speedometer, Cowl Ventilator, Stop Light, Mono gram Head Light Lenses and Large Barrel Type Head Lights.

Equipment on closed models includes Dome Lights, Perfection Heater, Vanity Case Smoking Set, Robe Rail, Silk Cord Hat Rack, Mirror, Adjustable Sun and Rain Visor With this complete equipment, and power and endurance enough to meet all hazards of any journey the Stephens sets the pace in any company.

Stephens cars are strictly Stephens built, and are not an assembled car as some com petitors woul have you beleive. To appreciate the real value of a Stephens, you must see the car, ride in it. If you have any intention to own a real automobile write or phone us, as we are ever ready to demonstrate a Stephens. Show us a road with the longest and steepest hills, and you will enjoy seeing them vanish before the Stephens.

We have new cars on the floor, and will be glad to have you call on us and look them over, whether you intend to buy or not. We are always glad to see old friends and ac quaintances.

Buy A STEPHENS—"The car you can't wear out."

Empire Motor Sales Company

A. G. LAU MASON CITY, IOWA.

Cecil THEATER MASON CITY Wed.-Thurs. Matinee Thurs. Washington's Birthday Feb. 21-22

John Golden Will Present THE WORLD'S GREATEST PLAY

LIGHTNIN

Brilliant Cast Includes Thomas Jefferson, Bessie Bacon. Direct from Kansas City, Minneapolis, Omaha, Des Moines.

Mail Orders Are best protection for out-of-town people. Prices: Nights, Lower Floor, $2.50; Balcony, first six rows, $2; Balance $1.50. Thursday Matinee, Lower Floor $2; Balcony, first six rows $1.50; Balance $1; Gallery—not reserved—50c all performances. Add 10 percent tax to remittances and send self addressed stamped envelope. Box Office sale opens Tues., Feb. 20. NO OTHER ENGAGEMENTS WITHIN 100 MILES OF MASON CITY.

To Whom This May Concern

42 years experience in the music world; as a Teacher of the piano, as a Piano Tuner, as a Piano Dealer. My experience may be yours without its costing you one cent, and my personal guarantee as well as the Piano Co. guarantee goes with each and every piano sold by me. The good book says, "The blind shall not lead the blind lest they both fall in the ditch." While teaching the piano, I often wished there was a law compelling all piano dealers to pass a rigid examination before being permitted to sell pianos. Compelling them to be able to at least play the fifth grade in music and masering sufficient technic to play the scales at the rate of eight hundred keys per minute to test out the piano actions. The country then would not be flooded with poor pianos and hundreds of music pupils would not be crippled, as it were, trying to get a musical education under such terrible conditions. All music teachers hate poor pianos. Nearly 1500 satisfied customers who would gladly testify to the good tone and lasting qualities of my pianos. A good piano with proper care improves with age; but a poor piano, the same as a poor violin, is at its best when new and never satisfies the cultured in music. Write me if you are thinking of buying a piano, and I will call on you, and we will talk the matter over together, also talk about your child's musical education, etc. Will also give you bed rock prices on all good pianos.

C. D. WELTY, PIANO DEALER,
1wc Britt, Iowa

54,000 MILES AFOOT IS THIS MAN'S RECORD

CEDAR RAPIDS, Feb. 7.—Fifty-four thousand miles from his home to work and return over a period of 40 years' employment at the local shops of the Rock Island railroad is the unusual record of Joseph Dvorak of this city. Dvorak is 68 years old, but declares he can outstep many of the younger men.

The distance rom his home to the shops and back again is four and a half miles. He estimates he has spent more than two years of his life in walking.

PUBLIC AUCTION

As I have decided to quit farming, I will hold a Public Auction on the farm located 2 miles north and 5 miles west of Klemme; and 4 miles south and 5 miles west of Garner; (also located exactly 1 1-2 miles west of the Liberty Center School House.) Sale will be held on——

Thursday, Febr. 15

SALE BEGINS AT 12:00 O'CLOCK. FREE HOT LUNCH SERVED AT NOON.

4 Head of Horses 4

Span of Brown Mares, weight 2600.

Span Bay Geldings, weight 3600, coming 8 in sprnig.

13 head of Cattle 13

13 head of milch cows, some fresh and others fresh soon.

59 Head of Hogs 59

13 Chester White Brood Sows.

46 head of good thifty Chester White Fall Pigs.

4 Head of Sheep 4

Farm Machinery

8-ft. Acme Binder.
5 ft. Acme Mower
Hay Rake
3 Corn Cultivators
Drag
2 8-ft. Discs
1 Spayder
Seeder

Wagon and rack
Extra hay rack
Cream Separator
Top Buggy
3 h. p. Gasoline Engine
6 inch Feed Grinder
And many other articles too numerous to mention on this list.

TERMS OF SALE——All sums of ten dollars and under, cash. Over that amount a credit of 8 month's time will be given on approved notes bearing 8 per cent interest from date of sale. No property to be removed until settled for.

Lee Price, Prop.

COL. B. A. REEMSTMA, Auctioneer. STATE SAVINGS BANK, KLEMME, CLERKS.

ALL FEAR SNAKES BAD FOR BRUIN

Members of Uncle Sam's Forestry Service Protected.

Animal Evidently Didn't Know Mule's Capabilities.

Never Without Antidote That Is Said to Render Bite of Even the Rattler Innocuous.

Chances Are That Particular Bear Will Never Again Engage Pugilistically With Humble Worker.

Uncle Sam's forestry service is ever on the watch against rattlesnakes in the national forests. Arrangements were some time ago perfected for the arming of forest officers and fire-fighters against snake bites.

The weapon provided for them is a small combination tool containing a sharp steel lancet and a receptacle to hold permanganate of potash, which is declared to be the best antidote for snake bites. This remedy may not be altogether popular in districts where from time immemorial the old-time favorite remedy, whisky, is held to have no equal, but, nevertheless, the official sanction has been given permanganate.

The necessity for furnishing forest officers with adequate means of protection against attacks by snakes has time and again been strikingly demonstrated in the case of big forest fires. After the fires were thought extinguished and the men withdrawn it was discovered that the fire had broken out again. Squads of men were dispatched immediately to fight them and on their way they ran into a regiment or two of rattlesnakes. In one case it seemed as if the brush was literally alive with snakes. The men consumed the greater part of six hours fighting snakes before they could get through to the fire. Several of the men were bitten.

Officials of the forestry service assert that rattlesnakes are as plentiful in Montana as in southern California forests and in sections of the southern Appalachians, acquired in 1915 under the Weeks law.

The little tool with which the forest guards are armed can be carried conveniently in the vest pocket, being only a trifle larger than an ordinary fountain pen and not as long. Individual employees of the United States Geological Survey have been using these little tools for a long time and with great success.

Field parties of geologists frequently run across snakes. If armed with these vest pocket first-aid instruments, a bitten man quickly opens up the wound with the lancet, shakes in a little of the antidote and resumes his work, apparently none the worse for the attack.

Timber survey crews of the forestry service frequently battle with snakes. It is believed that they have the worst time of all in this relation.

Two amusing bear stories, both vouched for by reputable eye-witnesses, are going the rounds here, says a dispatch from Prince George, B. C.

Forest fires in northern British Columbia during the past month have had a peculiar effect upon some of the wild animals of the woods, judging from some of the stories brought to Prince George.

A fight between a fire-crazed bear and a mule, in which the bear was worsted, occurred at L. Mason's ranch at Bednesti, B. C. The forest fire routed the bear from his lair, and in its dash from the flames into the open country it collided violently with a mule. The bear was promptly stretched on the ground by a double tattoo from the capable hind hoofs, and the mule calmly resumed its interrupted grazing.

Thoroughly angered, the bear picked itself up and cautiously approached the mule from a different angle. The huge paw was brought down with a resounding thwack on the mule's ribs. This was unfortunate. The hoofs were again brought into play, after a quick, accurate maneuver for position, and the fight was called off, so far as the bear was concerned.

Mr. Mason, who had witnessed the unusual encounter, dashed to the house for a rifle to finish the bear, should any life be left. Before he could get back to the scene, however, bruin managed to get groggily to his feet and return to the less exciting environment of the forest fire.

A fire patrol ranger is sponsor for another bear story. While making a survey in the mountain district he came upon a young cub suffering from severe burns on feet and body. The youngster was whimpering from the pain and the forester took pity on it, lifted it into his car, and there made it fast with some rope.

The patrolman started on his journey only to discover that the mother bear had appeared and was in hot pursuit. As the track ran uphill at this point, the bear, making long strides, gained steadily, and the need for strategy was clearly indicated. The forestry book of instructions does not cover a situation such as this, but the ranger was resourceful and decided that the best plan would be to throw the cub overboard.

His attempts to untie the knots on the lashings which secured the youngster to the machine, however, proved futile. Pursuer and pursued came to a yet steeper grade, with the advantage all with the former. Finally, with one mighty effort, the old bear threw herself on the back of the car, holding on by her claws and paws.

This is where the forester decided to retire in favor of the enemy. He dived off the car, and regained his feet in time to see it continuing its journey eastward, with a mother and child happily reunited as its passengers. Later the car was found, run down and everywhere intact, except the side where the cub had been tied, the old bear having torn it out to release her offspring.

A Troubled Conscience.

A Norwegian, John Larson by name, a lumberman had a couple of Swedes working for him. One day one of the Swedes got a little fresh and the Norwegian threw him into the river. Then the other Swede got into an argument with him, and he, too, went into the river and was drowned.

In about six years John's conscience began to bother him. He went down to the sheriff, Ole Oleson, and said:

"Ola, sax yar ago Ay kill a couple Swides, and my conscience is begin to bother. What skoll Ay do?"

"Vell, I dunno, John. Ay bane sheriff only 18 months and dunno the rules. You better go and see Knute Nelson, the county clerk. Maybe he know what to do."

So John proceeded to the county clerk's office, and there unloaded his troubled mind. Knute, after hearing the story, took down a big book, rushed through its pages, then took down another book, and studied it. Finally, looking a bit puzzled, he spoke up:

"There ain't no bounty on them," he said.—Exchange.

Alarming.

A certain actor who shall be nameless here but who has been known for his matrimonial adventures, one day approached a physician and asked for a thorough physical examination.

"I want to see that I'm fit for a good many years yet, doc," he said. "You know I'm to be married again soon, for the fifth time."

"H-m-m," muttered the examiner as he put the stethoscope to the actor's heart. "Of course this fifth lady is the only girl in the world for you, and this is positively your last matrimonial venture?"

"Oh, come, doctor," cried the thespian, much alarmed. "I'm not as bad off as that, am I?"—American Legion Weekly.

Altogether Too Tame.

One was twelve and the other was eleven—Ethel and May let's call them, because those are not their names. They had their usual weekly one afternoon at the movies and, as it was their custom to sit through the reel for a second showing, they were not expected home at the hour they showed up.

"What was the matter with the show that you didn't see it through twice?" was asked.

"Oh," was the bored reply, "the man was married and had a family and there was no lovemaking."

No Fish Stories for Him.

"Why don't you take a rest and go fishing?"

"I never go fishing," replied Senator Sorghum. "A man in my position has trouble enough in keeping up his reputation for strict veracity without jeopardizing it in pastime."

Can It Be True?

Thomas A. Edison, in a recent interview talked about the many advantages of being deaf.

"For instance," he said, "a motorist hurried into a country drug store the other day and asked if he was on the right road to Brandywine.

"'Brandy, yes,' said the druggist, who was very deaf. 'No wine, but plenty of brandy. I can see you're all right by your looks, sir.' And he poured the motorist a stiff drink out of a big blue china jar labeled 'Ipecachuana.'

"'I don't want that,' the motorist protested. 'I want to know if this is the best road to the Brandy—'

"'The best brandy? You bet it's the best,' interrupted the druggist.

"'No, no! The Brandywine!' yelled the motorist. 'I want to get to the Brandy—'

"'Thank you,' said the druggist. 'I don't care if I do.'

"And with a gratified smile he poured a second stiff drink out of the blue china jar for himself."

Something to Fall Back On.

"Suppose you were not allowed to write wheezes on prohibition, women's clothes, flappers and the movies?'

"Well," mused the column conductor, "in my younger days I was handy with tools. Maybe I could get a job in a garage."

Overlooking Nothing.

His Friend—Great Scott! That's a fine pearl you just found. It's worth at least $500.

Mr. Grabtall—Yes, and I broke a tooth on it. As soon as I sell the pearl I'm going to sue this restaurant keeper for damages.

Girls Will Be Boys.

"What did the young man say when you told him you would be a sister to him?"

"He declined with thanks. He said he already had two sisters who borrowed his golf clothes."

School for Recruits.

Sergeant—What is understood by a theoretical instruction?

Recruit—It's an instruction which is not practical.

.. Hawkeye .. State News

Interesting Items Gathered From all Parts of Iowa

Rev. D. F. Boomershine of Maquoketa claims the record as marrying parson. He has united 1,314 people.

The Graham farm two and one-half miles southeast of South English was sold to W. W. Coffman at $315 per acre.

Hogs in Iowa increased 17 per cent January 1, 1923, over a year ago, according to the monthly livestock statement.

A gain of 60 per cent in building activities was made in 1922 over the previous year in 12 principal cities of the state.

Agricultural instruction as provided by the Smith-Hughes act is in progress in thirty-five Iowa counties according to reports.

Mrs. Nancy E. McRae, 92 years old, for sixty-three years a resident of Iowa, died at the home of her daughter in Osceola recently.

The 15-month-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Mueller of Griswold fell into a bucket of boiling hot water and was scalded to death.

Fire causing a loss estimated at half a million dollars destroyed the huge Rock Island roundhouse in the railroad yards at Valley Junction recently.

National Commander Owsley, of the American Legion, will be the principal speaker at the Iowa State Legion conference of post commanders and adjutants banquet in Des Moines.

The Hansen Produce company of Maquoketa since Nov. 10, 1922, has dressed 64,027 chickens. This would represent sixteen carloads of live poultry.

Cass is one county in the state where in nearly all the taxing districts taxes which are being paid now are running from three to fifteen mills lower.

Between 250 and 300 boys and girls from seventy Iowa counties were special guests at the annual short course which was held at Iowa State college at Ames recently.

Plans for a nationwide revival campaign among Protestant churches were presented to 175 Des Moines ministers and churchmen at a conference and luncheon program recently.

Attorney General Gibson announced the appointment of Attorney Maxwell O'Brien of Oskaloosa as assistant attorney general to succeed W. R. C. Kendrick, who was recently appointed insurance commissioner.

The farm sale of Mast brothers near Grundy Center stands as a record for that section of the state, according to auctioneers. The sale totaled $14,000. A pair of horses brought $400. Top for graded cows was $175.

While the rest of the country shows a decrease of 3 per cent in wheat acreage, Iowa is in an advantageous position with a 10 per cent increase, states the mid-winter agricultural survey of the state by the Iowa weather and crop service.

In the hottest fight of this session, the Iowa House rejected one of Governor Kendall's pet measures when it refused to pass the Blake bill which would have compelled compulsory auditing of school boards' expenditures by state examiners.

A clash between the Iowa department of the American Legion and the farmers of the legislature may result from a bill introduced in the house by Representative Ontjes of Grundy county, providing for repealing the present exemption from taxation of fixed amounts of property for soldiers serving in the civil, Spanish-American and world wars.

The sixty-fifth anniversary of the Congregational church of New Hampton was celebrated by the 142 resident members and 39 non-resident members recently. This was the pioneer church of that community. It was organized in 1858 with eight sturdy eastern people as charter members. James D. Colt, Manhattan, Kansas, now past ninety, is the only charter member alive today and still thinks of the old church.

The constituency of State Senator J. D. Buser is apparently anything but in accord with his bill to prohibit the shooting of wild ducks and geese over live decoys and the cutting down of the number of such game which a hunter may have in his possession. Vigorous protest against senate file No. 306 has been manifested here. Petitions remonstrating against the bill are now in circulation. Sportsmen hope to secure several thousand names.

The bankers of Warren county have voted to buy sawed-off shotguns for the thirty-eight deputies of the sheriff, specifically commissioned to protect the banks of the county.

Asserting that prohibition has been the greatest measure ever enacted in the history of the United States, approximately 100 delegates to the annual convention of the Iowa Anti-Saloon league at Des Moines recently, adopted resolutions that the Iowa Anti-Saloon continue their crusade until the entire world shall be made dry.

REFUNDING TERMS ARE ANNOUNCED

How Great Britain Agrees to Pay $4,604,128,085 to the U. S.

STATEMENT BY COMMISSION

Outline of Recommendations of the Body to President Harding—Accepts $23,000,000 as First Year's Installment.

Washington, Feb. 3.—General terms for the funding of the British debt to the United States were officially announced by the American debt funding commission here. The statement outlines the recommendations of the commission to the President and reveals that the back interest rate is to be reduced from 5 per cent to 4¼ per cent. This reduction means a decrease of $200,000,000 in the total amount of the debt to be refunded. The statement, in part, follows

"The funding commission met this afternoon to consider the final details of the proposed plan for funding the debt of Great Britain to the United States. Ambassador Geddes was present.

"The commission decided to make the following recommendations to the President as a basis for settlement which it is understood will be accepted by the British government.

Principal of notes to be refunded	$4,074,818,358
Interest accrued and unpaid up to Dec. 15, 1922, at the rate of 4½ per cent	629,836,106
Total	4,704,654,464
Deduction of payments made Oct. 16, 1922 and Nov. 15, 1922, with interest at 4¼ per cent to Dec. 15, 1922	100,526,379
Total	4,604,128,085
To be paid for in cash	4,128,085
Total principal of indebtedness as of Dec. 15, 1922, for which British government bonds are to be issued to the United States government at par	4,600,000,000

"The principal of bonds shall be paid in annual installments on a fixed schedule subject to the right of the British government to make these payments in three-year periods. The amount of the first year's installment will be $23,000,000 and these annual installments will be increased with due regularity during the life of the bonds until, in the sixty-second year, the amount of the installment will be $175,000,000, the aggregate installments being equal to the total principal of the debt."

FRENCH MOVE COAL TRAIN

Open Rail Line, Heavily Guarded by Troops, Between Luenen and Dusseldorf.

Berlin, Feb. 3.—The French were reported to be planning a military rail route from the Ruhr valley through the old occupied areas, along which coal is to be moved into France. The first step toward this objective was taken when an open railroad line, heavily guarded and supported by the military, was established between Luenen and Dusseldorf.

FARM CREDITS BILL PASSED

Senate Approves Lenroot Measure, 69 to 0—Provides $60,000,000 Bank Capital.

Washington, Feb. 3.—By a vote of 69 to 0, the senate passed the Lenroot rural credits bill, creating a new farm credits department in each of the twelve federal bank districts, with a starting capital of $60,000,000, each bank subscribing $5,000,000. The bill provides that the capital may later be doubled.

GERMANY RECRUITING ARMY

Letters to Holland Show Large Numbers of Volunteers Are Joining the Ranks.

The Hague, Feb. 3.—According to reliable evidence obtained here, there now appears to be little doubt that Germany is recruiting large numbers of volunteers and is also forcing former deserters to join the ranks. There have been a number of cases of Germans who were engaged by Dutch employers being unable to fill the positions.

$1,000,000 Gas Well in Buffalo.

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 31.—Drillers on the grounds of the municipal hospital here brought in a city-owned gas well with an estimated flow of 500,000 cubic feet a day. The value of the well is estimated at $1,000,000.

Lewis Leads in Miners' Vote.

Indianapolis, Feb. 3.—President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers leads the eight successful candidates out of fifty-nine voted on to represent the union in the American Federation of Labor convention.

Balanced French Budget Demanded.

Paris, Feb. 3.—Because of the refusal of the senate finance committee to examine the budget until it has been balanced by the chamber of deputies, the budgets cannot be voted on until March 1.

COMMANDER HUNSAKER

Commander Jerome C. Hunsaker of the bureau of construction and repair of the Navy department, known as an authority on certain phases of aeronautics, has been selected by President Harding as a member of the national advisory committee for aeronautics.

BRITISH ACCEPT PLAN

War Debt Funding Scheme O. K.'d by Cabinet.

England Now Owes the United States About $4,746,862,560, Including Unpaid Interest.

London, Feb. 1.—Great Britain has accepted the American terms of payment of the debt to the United States.

This decision was reached after Stanley Baldwin, chancellor of the exchequer, had made a report to Premier Bonar Law and his cabinet on the negotiations he conducted at Washington for settlement of the debt question.

The full cabinet had been in session for only a few minutes at No. 10 Downing street when the official announcement was made.

The British debt to the United States on November 15 last aggregated $4,746,862,560, of which $4,135,818,238 was principal and $611,044,201 was interest accrued since the loans were made.

Details of the funding suggestions made by the American debt commission to the British mission which have been accepted by the British cabinet called for a retroactive interest rate at 4¼ per cent from the date the obligations were contracted in 1917, to the date of the completion of the funding arrangements, which will arrive when congress ratifies the plan.

Furthermore, the commission suggested an interest rate of 3 per cent for the first ten years after the funding, the rate to be increased to 3½ per cent after ten years, to continue until the debts were liquidated, probably another fifty-two years.

COAL BLOCKADE IN GERMANY

French Clamp Down Lid on Ruhr Valley, General Degoutte Telephones Paris.

Paris, Feb. 1.—General Degoutte, from his headquarters at Dusseldorf, telephoned to the French foreign office shortly after midnight that at 12 o'clock midnight the military customs barrier control went into effect, stopping all shipments of coal and coke from the Ruhr into unoccupied Germany. Three trainloads leaving Dortmund were held up and ordered back.

FRENCH SEIZE COAL IN RUHR

Refusal of Operators to Send Fuel Into France Brings Severe Penalties.

London, Feb. 2.—The French have issued instructions to the military authorities that the state-owned mines in the Ruhr must be forced to send coal to France at once.

The Hibernia mines refused to comply with the demand and the officials were arrested and expelled.

SENATE IN NIGHT SESSIONS

Leaders Decide to Work Overtime to Complete Program by March 4.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Unable to obtain an agreement for an early vote on the Lenroot rural credits bill, senate leaders decided to hold night sessions, thus hoping to complete the administration's program before March 4.

National Timber Sales Set Record.

Washington, Feb. 3.—The Agriculture department announced that sale of national forest timber in 1922 amounted to $2,307,000, setting a record and indicating the end of the depression in the lumber industry.

Honolulu-Midway Cable Broken.

New York, Feb. 3.—The Commercial Cable company announced that the Honolulu-Midway cable, which carries messages to Guam, the Philippines, the Dutch East Indies, China and Japan, has broken.

MEXICAN REDS ARE SHOT DOWN

Troops Kill Fourteen and Wound Fifty in Capital Street Fight.

MANY CARRIED TO HOMES

Regular Soldiers Invade Labor Hall and Capture 100 Traction Strikers, Including Red Leaders—Big Sympathetic Strike.

Mexico City, Feb. 2.—A clash between soldiers and Red street car strikers occurred in front of the headquarters of the labor organization. The Reds, who had held an all night meeting, resolved at all costs to prevent cars from running, tried to hold up a suburban car. They pulled a soldier from the platform and boarded the car. The guard fired on the strikers. Shooting on both sides became general, the soldiers barricading themselves behind cars and the strikers around the corners of buildings. Suddenly the Reds began firing from upstairs in the labor headquarters in Uruguay street on heavily loaded street cars.

The fight continued a quarter of an hour, when a hurried call brought regular troops and mounted police, who invaded the headquarters, taking over 100 of the most radical element prisoners.

Fourteen are reported dead and half a hundred wounded, many seriously.

The Reds displayed activities in other parts of the city, intercepting cars and forcing the motormen to leave their posts.

The number of dead is not definitely known, as many were carried to their homes before the police arrived on the scene.

About 17,000 workmen are reported to be striking to aid the Reds, including the workers in the Ericson Telephone company, the iron mills, and numerous factories, and bakers and pastry makers. Further serious trouble is threatened on account of agitation created by the Reds. It may be averted owing to the arrest of so many Reds, including the principal leaders, and the preparations made by the government to handle the situation.

HOUSE AMENDS REVENUE BILL

Also Tariff and Bank Laws in Bills Passed by the Body Thursday.

Washington, Feb. 2.—Bills making emergency amendments to the revenue, tariff and federal reserve acts were passed Thursday by the house. One revenue act prevents the evasion of taxation on profits from the sale of securities by exchanges of securities. The other extends the time for filing claims for refunds of taxes for taxpayers whose 1917 returns were not audited within the statutory time.

$2,247,187,000 TAXES PAID

Federal Collections for 1922 Have Exceeded Treasury Estimates, Says Washington Dispatch.

Washington, Feb. 2.—Federal tax collections for 1922, despite depressed conditions which characterized business during part of the year, have exceeded treasury estimates, bringing a total for the twelve months of $2,247,187,000, according to figures compiled here. While the amount is far under the collections for 1921, the drop in receipts is chargeable largely to the changes in the revenue law.

SEE PLANS TO SEIZE BERLIN

Washington Hears French Will Occupy German Capital If Ruhr Measures Fail.

Washington, Feb. 2.—France is prepared to take over the Berlin government and occupy all of Germany if the Ruhr occupation fails, according to dispatches from German sources, which confirm reports that Premier Poincare and his experts have worked out in detail the steps necessary to effect complete subjugation of Germany.

MANY DIE IN SILESIAN MINE

Explosion of Fire Damp Entombs 600 Men in Heinitz Mine at Beuthen.

Berlin, Feb. 1.—Six hundred miners are entombed in the Heinitz mine at Beuthen, Polish Silesia, following an explosion of fire damp. Of 100 rescued 80 were taken to hospitals. Thirty-five bodies have been brought to the surface.

Brazil Revolt Spreads.

Montevideo, Feb. 3. — Dispatches from Brazil state that the revolution in the state of Rio Grande do Sul is assuming unexpected violence. The movement, which formerly was localized, is now general.

Newfoundland Is Marooned.

Montreal, Que., Feb. 3.—Newfoundland is marooned by icebergs and St. Johns is entirely shut off from the sea, according to Capt. Rhude of the steamship Stanley, which arrived at Louisburg, N. S.

KANSAS PLAN TO GET DUES

Conversational Sketch Is Used to Induce Auxiliary Members to Keep Their Credit Clear.

The Kansas department of the American Legion Auxiliary has issued a bulletin to each unit in the state containing a clever little conversational sketch, illustrating the importance of keeping one's credit clear with the auxiliary. The heroine of the sketch is Mrs. "Ima Member," who in conversation with her friend, Mrs. "De Linquent," endeavors to bring home the advisability of paying dues in the auxiliary for 1923.

"Mrs. 'Ima Member': I'm so proud of my new auxiliary membership card; you will notice that it bears the date, 1923. I always pay my dues a little in advance of the new year, in order to keep up with the times. This little card means much to me. It commemorates the gallant service of four millions of valiant young Americans in the great war; it breathes the spirit of true democracy; it speaks to me of service for those who jeopardized their lives, that I might remain at home in peace and safety. In short, I believe in the doctrine of legionism."

"Mrs. 'De Linquent': You are quite right. I am beginning to see, in a new light, the great opportunities for service that are open to me through my membership in the American Legion Auxiliary. Instead of paying up my membership fees promptly at the beginning of this year, I waited until the middle of the summer. But this shall not happen again. How can I get a membership card for 1923, right away?"

"Mrs. 'Ima Member': Consult Miss 'Do It,' the unit secretary, immediately; you will be asked to pay 75 cents department and national dues, plus the amount of local dues determined by the unit. Upon receipt of dues at the department office in Topeka, you will be issued a 1923 card. And do you know, they say that two Legion posts in the state have already remitted to the Topeka office for their entire membership. So you see, if we are going to 'keep step' with the boys, we must get busy."

"Mrs. 'De Linquent': How very simple. You know I have a family of seven sisters and they are all in arrears with their dues. I shall use my influence to the utmost to see that we are graduated from the 'delinquent' class before the next auxiliary meeting."

TO MEMORY OF ALL SOLDIERS

Construction Soon to Be Started on Splendid Memorial in City Park at Pocatello, Idaho.

Work is progressing rapidly and construction will be started in early spring on a memorial in Pocatello, Idaho, for all soldiers and sailors of all wars, according to Ivan Gasser, commander of Pocatello Post No. 4 of the American Legion, which has charge of the project Gasser recently presided at a meeting which selected 30 citizens from different organizations to assist the Legion in drawing the plans and financing the building, which will cost in the neighborhood of $30,000.

Ivan Gasser.

The memorial to be erected in Pocatello will be in keeping with the greatness of the contributions of the city and Bannock county in the World war. The site has been donated by the city in the park, overlooking the Portneuf river.

"No nation is greater than its memories," was the keynote of a stirring address delivered at the recent meeting by the post chaplain, Rev. Harry S. Hamilton.

HE LIKES WAR-TIME THRILLS

S. G. Irwin, Legion Man, Former Army Flyer, Is an Expert in Aerial Acrobatics.

The thrills of war-time aviation were not enough for S. G. Irwin, former World war flyer and member of the American Legion.

S. G. Irwin.

With the return to peace, Irwin stayed in the flying game and became a specialist in stunt flying and in aerial acrobatics. One of his favorite antics is when he "stalls" or "pancakes" his machine over the business districts of large cities. An extreme nicety of touch is required in this operation since the motor is cut off and the plane is allowed to settle slowly toward the earth. The slightest error in judgment usually results in a crash. In flying speed means safety.

Irwin thrilled his former comrades at the American Legion national convention in New Orleans with his aerial feats over the downtown district.

Missed It.

"A Wells county man had a wireless telephone outfit," said an Indianapolis newspaper man the other day, "and was listening to a program of music. Then came announcement that the next selection would be 'Three o'clock in the Morning.' The man closed the machine, set his alarm clock for 3 a. m., and retired."

LEGISLATIVE NE

Results of Work of our Law Presented to our Readers Week Direct from the Ca

The fortieth general a swung into another week wit revision still the bone of co The senate, predicted at the of the session to be more fa to code revision than the hou tinued its course, adopted the game, of throwing wrenches into the machiner the house adhered religiously olive branch of peaceful While the senate had ente week deadlocked on code revi ter the introduction and pas a resolution by Senator John calling upon the attorney gen an opinion whether the co were legally drawn and whet of the action taken by the le that far was valid, the house ing about it in another wa sume that the work was lega ator Price objected to the co legality because the titles the compiled code, which ha been adopted as the law o Code bill No. 1, passed unan by the senate, came to the about the time Price raised jection in the senate. The ho proceeded to hang an amend code revision bill No. 1 wh the intent to legalize all th The first code bill is a mod of the law specifying the which new bills to be introd the legislature shall be drawn was no change in the law wha it came from the code com The house amendment inte give the code bills clear leg setting out that a reference compiled code, which was com handy reference, should ha same force and effect as th referred minutely to the code the supplement of 1913 and mental supplement of 1915 session laws of the thirty- thirty-eighth and thirty-ninth assemblies. The house adop bill with its amendments a saged it back to the senate. meantime, Attorney General decided that the code bills legally drawn and that the r es to the compiled code in th did not invalidate them. Th senate took up code bill No mitted to be the basis of all vision and passed it for the time with all the amendment own and those of the house The net result of the first weeks of code revision is the of nine code bills in the sen three in the house. The four saw two additional ones pa the senate. Code bill No. 1 first to have been passed houses. In addition to the of fourteen code bills in both the house of representative been busy with a good man bills. The senate had given way to code revision until the February but the house had no such hule so new legislat greater attention in the house.

Two bills were passed by houses and signed by the g in the first three weeks. Th of these was a bill by Repres Bradley of Poweshiek county, city councils the option of bonds issued for park impro purposes in five years instead teen. Such bonds under the ing law have a maximum m of thirty years and cannot be in less than fifteen years. Th bill is an emergency appro bill by the house committee propriations loaning $20,000 state bonus board for use in administration expense until from the sale of $22,000,000 bonus bonds are available. Th will be returned to the state er.

Two quite radical depart taxation are recommended in port of the joint committee former senators and repres appointed by the thirty-ninth assembly to go into the revi the entire taxation code of th which was submitted at the sion of their two year task houses of the assembly. One is the recommendation of doin with the county and township sor and establishing a state board and county assessors w be permanently on the job. Th is the proposed requirement citizen to make out his own turn similar to that required federal income tax. The tax mittee attached drafts of five ed bill to their report. The these is the administration board of assessment and coun ation units. A bill to create budget board; one to create budget board, another to lev per cent tax on amusements fifth to levy a tax of one cent lon on gasoline. The talked income tax did not find its w a bill but the committee recom in a general way such legislat

At the opening of the fourt the house passed the first h bills of the session. There w of them, and both precipitate and warm debate. The Gack to permit purchase of rights for relocations of the primar system out of the primary ro and for use of the primary ro to pay for other purposes co with the establishment, const and maintenance of the prima system was fought for ame rather than passage.

NOTICE OF SPECIAL SCHOOL ELECTION

——T——

Public Notice is hereby given to the qualified voters of the Independent School District of Klemme, in the County of Hancock, State of Iowa, that a special election of the voters of said District will be held on the 26th day of February, 1923, at the Town Hall, corner 2nd and Hancock streets, Klemme, Iowa, from 1 o'clock P. M. until 6 o'clock P. M. at which time there will be submitted to the voters of said District the following proposition:

"Shall the Independent School District of Klemme, in the County of Hancock, State of Iowa, issue bonds in the sum of not to exceed $15,000 for the purpose of constructing and equipping an addition to the school house within said School District?"

at which time and place you are hereby notified to appear.

This notice is given by order of the Board of Directors of the Independent School District of Klemme, Hancock County, Iowa, pursuant to a sufficient petition in accordance with Sections 2820-d 1 et seq. of the Supplement to the Code of Iowa, 1913, as amended. and in accordance with a resolution of said Board, duly adopted on the 25th day of January, 1923.

Dated at Klemme. Iowa, this 25th day of January, 1923.

LEW LEWIS
Secretary, Board of Directors.

(Jan 25, Feb. 1-8-15-22)

GEORGE ZINN, M. D.

Physician and Surgeon

Office opposite from Hotel Klemme

Phone No. 19

Eyes Examined — Glasses Fitted

NOTICE OF SPECIAL SCHOOL ELECTION

——T——

Public Notice is hereby given to the qualified voters of the Independent School District of Klemme, in the County of Hancock, State of Iowa, that a special election of the voters of said District will be held on the 26th day of February, 1923, at the Town Hall, corner 2nd and Hancock Streets, Klemme, Iowa, from 1 o'clock P. M. until 6 o'clock P. M., at which time there will be submitted to the voters of said district the following proposition:

"Shall the Independent School District of Klemme. in the County of Hancock, State of Iowa, issue bonds in the sum of not to exceed $45,000 for the purpose of constructing and equipping a new school house and procuring a site therefor within said School District?"

at which time and place you are hereby notified to appear.

This Notice is given by order of the Board of Directors of the Independent School District of Klemme, Hancock County, Iowa, pursuant to a sufficient petition in accordance with Sections 2820-d 1 et seq. of the Supplement to the Code of Iowa, 1913, as amended, and in accordance with the resolution of said Board duly adopted on the 25th day of January, 1923.

Dated at Klemme, Iowa. this 25th day of January, 1923.

LEW LEWIS
Secretary, Board of Directors.

(Jan 25, Feb. 1-8-15-22)

Estrayed Notice

Estrayed from my place a red pig, bobbed tail. weight about 75lb, last week. Finder notify Peter Dolse. Klemme, Iowa. 1wp

PUBLIC AUCTION

As I have decided to quit farming and move away, I have decided to hold a Public Auction on the farm known as the Mrs. Minnie Knoke farm located 3 1-2 miles west and 1-2 mile south of Klemme; 3 miles west and 5 1-2 miles north of Goodell; 4 1-2 miles north and 6 miles east of Kanawha; and 5 1-2 miles east and 6 miles south of Britt, on—

Tuesday, February 13th, 1922

SALE BEGINS AT 11:00 A. M. SHARP. BIG FREE HOT LUNCH AT NOON.

60 HEAD OF LIVE STOCK 60

5 Head of Horses 5

2 Bay Mares, weight 2700, 11 and 12 years old, in foal.

2 Bay Mares, 12 years old, weight about 2600.

1 Black Gelding, 18 years old, weight about 1500.

37 head of Cattle 37

11 head of milch cows, fresh since fall and winter.

1 Pure Bred Shorthorn cow, and calf 8 months old.

2 Heifers, 2 years old, springers.

2 Heifers coming 2 years old in March.

2 Steers coming 2 years old.

2 Heifers, 1 year old.

5 Calves, year old in Spring.

1 Pure Bred Shorthorn Bull, 2 years old, coming 3 years in June.

9 Fall and Winter Calves.

18 HEAD OF BROOD SOWS 18

These are very fine sows, all are bred and in pig. These hogs are Pure Bred Duroc Jerseys, but papers have not been kept on them. They have been double treated and are Cholera Imuuned.

FARM MACHINERY, ETC.

8-foot Acme Binder
5-foot Emerson Mower
John Deere Spreader
Acme Side Delivery
8-foot Osborn Disc
11-foot Moline Seeder with grass attachment
Sandwich Hay Loader
John Deere Elevator, 38-ft., with speed jack
John Deere No. 990 latest model Corn Planter, just like new, used but little.
Fuller & Johnson corn plow
John Deere corn plow
Emerson Surface corn plow
Emerson 16-in. sulky plow
Chatam Fanning Mill
R. & V. 6-h. p. Gas Engine
3-h. p. Waterloo Gas Engine
Iowa Cream Separator, 750 pound capacity
260-egg Successful Incubator.
Soft Coal Heater
Gas Drum Kerosine Drum Tank Heater, Pump Jack
Seed Corn Rack
Grind Stone
Set 1 1-2in Concord harness
Set 1 1-2-in breechin harness.
Set Leather Fly Nets
Set Cotton String Nets
3 Wire Corn Cribs
14-in. Moline Gang Plow, nearly new 14-in. Walking Plow
20-ft. Flexible Drag
John Deere 2-in. medium high wheel wagon, almost new.
3 1-2-in. Truck Wagon with triple box
Combination Basket Rack, and Hog Rack
Bob Sleigh
Steel Truck Wagon
Letz 8-in. Feed Grinder
50 feet of Thresher Belt, 8 inch, 5 ply.
26-ft. Extension Ladder
Some Hay in Barn.
Also a great many other articles not listed here.

TERMS OF SALE——All sums of ten dollars and under, cash. Over ten dollars a credit of nine month's time will be given on approved security at 8 per cent interest from date of sale. No property is to be removed until settled for.

Chas. Schmidt, Proprietor

Col H. H. Brummond & Col. B. A. Reemstma, AUCTIONEERS—

STATE SAVINGS BANK, KLEMME, CLERKS.

TIDAL WAVE NOT FEARED AT HILO

Because of Location, Hawaiian City Is in Favorable Position to Observe Disturbances.

PRETTIEST CITY OF ISLANDS

Two Tidal Waves, Following Recent Chilean Earthquakes, Sweep Harbor Without Causing Damage or Uneasiness.

Washington.—Hilo, second city of the Hawaiian islands, into the harbor of which tidal waves swept on two occasions following the recent Chilean earthquakes, is the subject of the following bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Situated on land which rises toward a wonderful background formed by the highest island mountains in the world," says the bulletin, "Hilo is in little danger from ten or twelve-foot tidal waves such as those which recently bathed its shores. But, because of its location on the southernmost island of the chain, facing eastward it was in a most favorable position to observe the results of this mighty phenomenon which raised the level of the earth's greatest ocean seemingly as easily as a careless bather can splash water from his tub.

City In Beautiful Setting.

"Hiloans claim that their city is the most beautiful in the islands; and it would be difficult to find a more ideal setting. The shores of a broad bay sweep away on both sides of the town like the lines of a hyperbola. In the foreground, as one approaches from the sea, is an idyllic tropic islet that its discoverer might have been forgiven for naming 'Enchanted Isle,' but which, in matter-of-fact English, is called 'Coconut Island.' Back of the city and its bay, fringed with tropical verdure, rise the highlands of the interior to their apex in Mauna Kea, often snow-capped, the highest of island peaks. To the right, numerous streams rush to the sea.

"One reason why Hiloans refused to become alarmed because of an unusual phenomenon of the sea is that they live next door to two of the world's greatest land wonders—the active volcanoes Kilauea and Mauna Loa—and not only have not suffered from their nearness, but have profited greatly because their city is the gateway through which thousands of visitors pass to view these 'tame volcanoes.' An excellent automobile highway leads from Hilo through a majestic forest of tree-ferns to a hotel on the brink of Kilauea, about thirty miles away; and a supplemental road actually descends into the huge crater, so that motorcars may be driven to the very brink of the bubbling lake of molten lava in the smaller, interior crater.

Beneficiary of Hawaiian "Magic."

"The highway continues on to Mauna, from which have come the great lava flows of prehistoric and historic times that have built up Hawai, youngest of the islands of the Hawiian group, and make it still an island 'in process of manufacture.' The latest of these lava flows occurred in 1919, when a river of molten stone rushed down the mountain on the opposite side of the island from Hilo and plunged hissing into the sea. For many days the water bubbled, while steam clouds rose. Fish, boiled to a turn, floated nearby and could be picked up by those venturesome enough to row into the hot waters near the fiery cataract.

"In 1880, when Hilo was still largely a native town, its existence was threatened by one of the greatest flows Mauna Loa has ever sent forth. Slowly the white-hot steam advanced straight for the town, until it was less than two miles away. The people were panic-stricken and, as a last resort, appealed to the only surviving princess and priestess of their greatest royal line. She took her stand a mile from the town and declared the flow would stop there. It did. There are Hawaiians who maintain still that Hilo was saved from destruction only because Pele, goddess of the volcano, stopped her fires when her daughter interceded."

GIVE THE CHILD BREAKFAST

Food Experts Warn Against Sending Pupil to School Without Morning Meal.

New York.—Food experts attached to the co-operative extension work of the agriculture and home economics bureau of New Jersey advise mothers and school children against going without breakfast. "Breakfast," they say, "is the bugbear in too many homes—the children may run off to school without any, and often mother thinks she cannot possibly find time for more than a cup of coffee and a piece of toast."

"Children," continues this authority, "need breakfast. It is a long period of time between supper the night before and the noon meal—much too long for the growing child to be without a nourishing, substantial meal. The teacher can often pick out the children that have had no breakfast, because they are the ones that get restless about eleven o'clock, who become inattentive and difficult to interest. The reason is quite apparent—they are hungry."

n Advance—$2.00 Outside of County

FIND THOSE OLD ORS AGAIN

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

Somebody has circulated a false and damaging story connecting my name with that of chicken thieves. I want to say that all such stories are false, and furthermore I will pay a reward of $25.00 to the person who can locate the party who started this story.

(Signed) HENRY MAITLAND.
January 19, 1923. 2w

50 GOOD CIGARETTES 10¢

GENUINE "BULL" DURHAM TOBACCO

TYPEWRITER RIBBONS
All Makes

Typewriter Ribbons for sale at the Times Office. all of the Standard makes. Ribbons 75 cents each.

THE CITY DRAY LINE
—Is prepared to do your hauling carefully and promptly.
We solicit your patronage.
Charges reasonable.
Coal Hauling Done
Louie Knoke

DENTIST
J. L. Hesselhuus, D. D. S.
Office Hours 8-12 1-5:30
Office Opposite State Savings Bank; In Schaffer Bldg.
Evening Work By Appointment Only
Klemme, Ia. Phone 81

KLEMME DRAY LINE
Phone 2105
A share of your patronage is solicited. All work attended to promptly and carefully. We haul coal quick.
LLOYD LAU, PROP.

A Suit To Your Measure

Several have already been measured or their Spring Suits. See the new materials, models and medium prices.

They Cost no More than for ready mades and you'll get Style and Individuality not found in the ready-made suit—it only stands to reason—ask the real dresser.

CALL IN AND SEE WHAT I HAVE TO OFFER YOU

Also an elegant line of Men's Furnishings—new & up-to-date. Business is good thank you.

The Men's Fashion Shop

"Where Good Clothes Are Made."
A. W. JOHNSON
GARNER IOWA

Pantorium in connection

.. Hawkeye .. State News

Interesting Items Gathered From all Parts of Iowa

Behind--

...pping a Switch" to have Light, ...ry going is a very simple mat- ... little thought is given to the ... arranged the equipment that ... pressure of the thumb.

...0 Communities in the United ...se many Thousands of People ...E BILLIONS OF DOLLARS in ...ER BUSINESS.

Yearly producing Over $900,- ...CTRIC LIGHT AND POWER is a NECESSITY.

IOWA FALLS ELECTRIC COMPANY, growing from Nothing in 1915, now supplies This Necessity to—26 COMMUNITIES.

INVEST in the COMMON SHARES, now on a 7% DIVIDEND BASIS ANNUALLY, and receive a Dependable Income Every THREE MONTHS.

See any Employee; Our Manager, Mr. H. F. Kellogg; or Our Representative, Mr. D. J. Thornton, for the Particulars.

Iowa Falls Electric Co.

IOWA FALLS, IOWA.

The Farmer's Relation To This Bank

We consider the Farmer the very backbone of this great Empire. It is through his untiring efforts this community is permitted to enjoy its present prosperity.

A large percent of our business comes from the farmer. Several of our directors ae farmers. Service to the farmer is our first consideration.

WE INVITE YOUR BUSINESS, LARGE OR SMALL.

First National Bank

"The Bank for Everybody'.'

The Best Road

The few dollars you deposit with us to start a Savings Account are not so important in themselves. The big thing is that you have really begun to save.

There is no road that leads as directly to the shining goal as the Savings Road. Countless others who have traveled it before point the way for us to follow.

A Savings Account will be a help to you. Today is not too soon to start.

$1.00 Starts a Savings Account

State Savings Bank

Klemme Iowa

News of Klemme and Vicinity

Ralph Elder went to Ames Tuesday to attend the short course.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lewis visited with friends at Mason City Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gealow, of Meservey, were Klemme visitors Monday.

FOR SALE—R. I. Red Roosters, Single and Rose Comb, $1.50 each. Mrs. Joe Starnes, Phone 5909. 2w

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Cline of Belmond were here Friday buying some furniture at Wellemeyer's.

The young married people enjoyed another dance at the opera house last Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Barr drove to Webster City, Saturday afternoon, for an over Sunday visit with friends

Frank Pringnitz was the among the passengers bound for Chicago Saturday night.

Joe Johnson accompanied a stock shipment to Chicago Saturday night returning yesterday.

FOR SALE—new L. C. Smith typewriter at bargain. See it at Times Office. 1wp.

Mrs. C. Thompson and daughter, Blanche, of near Miller, were in this city shopping Monday.

Mrs. Ed. Hughes and Mr. and Mrs. Sherman from Goodell were Klemme visitors Saturday.

Mrs. Henry Griewe went to Mason City Tuesday to help take care of Mrs. Philip Ell, who is sick.

Eight car loads of live stock were shipped out of the Klemme yards for Chicago Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Hio Harberts of Goodell were Klemme visitors Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Scott of Olaf, Iowa, were shopping in this city Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Hansen. of Kanawha, were Klemme visitors on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Figi and daughtr, Ruth, drove over from Renwick, Monday afternoon, for a visit at the F. J. Wenck home.

For Sale—20 head Duroc Jersey Fall Shoats, good thrifty ones and good weight; and 2 nice red yearling heifers. Phone 4415, Ben Knoll. 2p

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Quigley of Goodell were attending the furniture sale here Friday, and buying furniture.

Miss Emma Sampson went to Center Point, Iowa, last week Thursday for a visit with her sister and family. the Rev. Griewe family.

Saturday morning the thermometer hovered around 20 degrees below zero. Friday night was one of the coldest night we have had this winter.

The Juniors of the Klemme High School entertained the other classes at a party in the basement of the First National Bank last Friday evening. All report a fine time.

Ben Coobs. Herb Bailey and Art Schoenwetter drove to Mason City Friday. Bert Mathews, who had been there a few days visiting, returned to Klemme with them.

Mrs. Emil Blumer was given the fifty-piece Blue Bird Hoover set of dishes that was given away at the Wellemeyer Furniture Sale Saturday.

Mrs. Sam Harvey and daughter, Enid, left Friday evening for Jersey City, New Jersey, to join Mr. Harvey, who has been there for several months. Sam is working for the railroad there now.

Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Hesselhuus left Saturday morning for Minneapolis. The doctor will attend a dental convention there. They will stay with Mrs. Hesselhuus' mother, Mrs. Darner in West Minneapolis.

Mrs. C. A. Carpenter passed away Monday morning after an illness of a few weeks. Funeral services were held from Goodell yesterday afternoon. The Carpenter family reside between Klemme and Goodell.

Miss Mabel Waterman, who teaches in the Belmond school, spent the week end with kher parents here.

Wellemeyer's furniture sale began Saturday morning as advertised. Although the weather was cold and snappy a good crowd was on hand. The ladies were each given a fruit bowl as a soveneir.

County Agent L. T. Nutty, came over from Britt yesterday to attend the Shipping Association dinner and entertainment. A man from Ames was also here to speak to the farmers.

The Ladies Aid Society of the M. E. Church served dinner to the members of the Klemme Shipping Association and their wives. About 120 people were served at the opera house. The farmers also enjoyed a moving picture and a program.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Overlee and son, drove through from N. Dakota about three weeks ago and are staying with her mother, Mrs. Alma Louden. Last week Sunday a baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Overlee; their second son.

Mr. G. H. Ludwig, came from Nevada, Iowa, Saturday to look after the drug store for Mr. Kahrs while Mr. and Mrs. Kahrs are in Minneapolis buying spring goods for their store. They went to Minneapolis Saturday night. The auto show is also in progress there, and of course Ed. will be found near the Buick booth at the show.

Friday, February 2nd, was a big day for the Ground hog. He did not get to see his shadow in Klemme until in the afternoon and it is quite doubtful if he got a very good look then as the sun was not very bright. Snow began to fall a little later here. The groundhog is apt to be somewhat confused as in some localities the sun shone and others it did not. Will we have six weeks more of cold weather?

We heard one on Edwin Josten. That handsome young farmer was over at the Wermerson sale last week. He was standing near the watering tank talking to some other farmers, when he stepped back a little and—dumped himself in the icy waters of the bossy-cows' soda fountain. He managed to swim around until a life line was thrown his way. Little bit early yet, Edwin, the water is warmer in June.

There are three half page advertisements for farm sales in this issue of the Times. On Tuesday the sale of Chas. Schmidt, on Wednesday the sale of Sylvan Johnson, and on Thursday the farm sale of Lee Price. Look over the ads, no doubt you will find something you will be interested in. Farmers now advertise their sales in the newspaper as they have found that it pays them big. By advertising in the paper all the farmers in the community get to read the sale list. as well as the farmer's wife, Johnny, Bill, Harry and perhaps Susie is also interested in what Hank Jones is selling. The old way of tacking up bills on posts is a thing of the past. No farmer now-a-days has time to stop and read a bill on a post—he expects to see it advertised in his weekly paper, and can take plenty of time to read over the list in the evening after the chores are done. One thing we are proud of; every farm sale we have printed bills for this year have also taken the full size space in the paper. We asked one farmer "how soon do you want the bills?" He remarked "to h——l with the bills, get it in the paper, that's where they read it, you can get out a few bills anytime."

Coming that grand old play, Uncle Tom's Cabin, at the opera house one night, Friday, Feb. 9th. Remember this is not a motion picture, but it is the Original Play played in all its original entirety by a company of living and breathing performers. There is no cutting, condensing, eliminating or revising in the entire play but it is played for you to... as it was played for you when ... produced. All scenery is carried ... Clark Wonderful Production ... Uncle Tom's Cabin. Band and Orc... tra, all new vaudeville specialties ... pack of ferocious Siberian Blo... hounds take part in the thrill... chase of Eliza. Two band Conce... will be given on the street daily, ... noon and evening, and if you ar... lover of real band music, played ... a band of real merit, do not m... hearing Clark's Famous Band, ... noon and evening, then see the sh... at night, at the opera house, Fri... Feb. 9th.

Good Example.

Aunt Polly was milking in the ... lot, and her politically excited ... found her there. "Maw, you're a D... ocrat, ain't you?" he asked. She m... no answer, but he persisted: "... maw, ain't you a good Democr... Finally she said, emphatically: ... hain't nothin'. I'm a woman milkin... cow. You go in the house and ... up!"

COMING FARM SALE DATES

Chas. Scmidt	Feb. 1...
Sylvan Johnson	Feb. 1...
Lee Price	Feb. 1...
Henry Groh	Feb. 1...
Martin Jensen	Feb. 2...

Others who plan on a sale can make arrangements at Times Office, or with Auctioneer B... A. Reemstma. List your sale in this space.

THE KLEMME TIMES
Phone 12

Third Annual

Declamatory Contest

Idle Hour Theatre, Klemme, Iowa

Friday Evening, Feb. 16th

At 8:00 O'clock

—o—

Music ..... Orchestra

ORATORICAL

"Reply to Hayne" ..... Leona La...
"A Vision of War" ..... Harvey Bar...
"Raising the Flag Over Fort Sumpter" ... Gearald Koerner
"Spartacus to the Gladiators" ..... Adela Schroeder

Music, Piano Duet ..... Elvira Stille, Florence Behringer

DRAMATIC

"The Flagging of the Cannon Ball" ..... Neota Ridder
"Almost Home" ..... Maurine Hake
"A Judith of 1864" ..... Dolores Koerner
"Billing of '49" ..... Clarence Elder
Music ..... Trio

Adela Schroeder, Florence Behringer, Elvira Stille

HUMOROUS

"A Chip of the Old Block" ..... Beatrice Busch
"A Pleasant Half Hour on the Beach" ..... Marie Blank
"A Modern Sermon" ..... Glenn Busch
Music ..... Orchestra

Decision of Judges

STILLE'S IMPLEMENT NEWS

VOLUME 1. Thursday, February 8, 1923 NUMBER

OIL HOLES THAT AREN'T

When you lubricate the McCormick-Deering Tractor you don't have to hunt up a crooked nail and gouge out a lot of oil holes before you begin. All important bearings, not lubricated automatically from the inside, are positively lubricated by the Alimite System of lubrication. This system forces grease into the bearings, making lubrication thorough and complete. No dust can enter, as the openings are sealed when the pressure is released. Why not ask us to tell you more about the "oil holes that aren't," and to point out the other superior features of the McCormick-Deering Tractor? We will gladly do it. Come in any day.

Society's best—En-ar-co—it's so refined!

REST AT REST TIME

There's a lot of truth in the old philosophy that "we work to live and live to work and happiness is our goal.' But there's no real happiness for those who LIVE ONLY TO WORK, because regardless of how much money they make, they don't have time to enjoy it. When Sunday comes, its time to rest and you can rest at ease if your work has been put in order. One sure way of getting your work up-to-date is by having a good engine as your helper. With a good engine you can always be ahead of the next job and spend your spare time in rest and enjoyment. International engines can be had in 1, 2, 3, 6 and 10 h. p. sizes. We carry the smaller sizes on hand. We have a nice pumping engine in here at less than mail order house price, and it is a real engine. Come in and look them over.

Elmer Schafer purchased a new 10 inch feed Mill of us the other day.

Ralph Ludeke purchased a new McCormick-Deering feed mill.

Dr. Zinn purchasd a new Burnham rack from us.

Al White traded feed grinders ... the Stille Implement Co.

Albert Schmidt, Fred Schm... Tim Waddingham and Ed. Scho... wetter bought a new four-hole ... Cormick-Deering All Steel She... at our place last week. It sure ... fine looking outfit. They selec... the McCormick-Deering because ... built to work and to last; being ... steel construction it will not rot ... like a wood frame, and is much m... solid.

When dressed it's hard to tell ... from chicken.

When we started in business ... we decided that we couldn't buil... profitable business without giv... Service. Getting isn't the wh... thing, and you'll always find tha... man, or business, gets in return ... same proportion of good will ... they are willing to give to oth... Thats why we expect to build g... will and business by giving you s... vice, Courteous Treatment, and ... Square Deal. Remember this w... you buy from us.

The less hair you have the lon... it takes to comb it.

Few people are really importa... Many act that way.

THE KLEMME TIMES

Twenty-seventh Year—Number 23. | Klemme, Iowa, Thursday Afternoon, February 15, 1923. | $1.50 In Advance—$2.00 Outside of County

NEWS OF INTEREST FROM OVER THIS BROAD LAND

NEWS NUBBINS

"The time has come," the Walrus said, "to talk of many things—of shoes and ships and sealing wax; of cabbages and kings."

The United States Has a Postoffice for every 2,124 inhabitants, according to figures just compiled at the Postoffice Department. Ten years ago there was a postoffice for every 1,702 persons living in this country while twenty years ago there was a postoffice for every 1,039 citizens. Density of population and extension of rural route service is responsible for the fact that less postoffices are required every year to give postal service to the people of America.

Organized German Labor Vidws the American Congress as the logical tribunal to which to address an appeal, declaring that "American honor asserted at this time can save Europe and the world from inevitable disaster." This is the keynote of a message which was forwarded to Washington last week, carrying the signatures of the chairman of the executive boards of the General Federation of Trade Unions, the Federation of Christian Labor Unions, the League of Clerical Employes and the Independent Federation of Liberal Trade Unions, which embrace a registered membership of 12,000,000 male and female workers.

The American Bison Owes Its Almost complete extinction to the coming of the railroad. Previous to 1867, what was known as the universal herd occupied the whole pasture region of the West, affording food and clothing to the Indians. In that year the first transcontinental railway was flung across the States, cutting the herd into two portions, known thenceforth as the Souhern and Northern herds. The Southern—the larger portion—consisting of several million head, was totally exterminated by hunters during 1871-74, and the Northern herd was, with a few exceptions, accounted for between 1880-84. Writing at the latter end of 1909, W. T. Hornaday director and general curator of the New York Zoological Park mentions the existence of a herd of 300 head, roaming a wide stretch of barren and inhospitable territory southwest of the Great Slave Lake, and notes a further 20 head in the Yellowstone Park.

Disposal of the Fortune of Jackson Barnett, Oklahoma's wealthiest Indian, has been arranged at his request to keep it out of the hands of "designing persons" when he dies. This was announced by Charles. H. Burke, Commissioner of Indian Affairs. The plan assures Barnett an income of about $50,000 a year during his life and disposes of the bulk of his estate, composed of his allotment in the Cushing Oil Pool of Oklahoma and Liberty bonds and cash of approximately $1,500,000 thru gifts and trust funds.

Tests of the Army's Plans to Protect the Panama canal will be made in the week beginning February 18, when battleships, destroyers and bombing planes of the Atlantic and Pacific fleets will stage a realistic attack on the fortifications at Balboa. The "hostile," or "black" fleet will assemble at Magdalena bay It will include 37 destroyers, a squadron of submarines and the entire battleship force. Secretary of the Navy Denby and members of the Senate and House naval affairs ocmmittees will witness the practice.

Efforts Are Being Made By Suffers from the San Fransico earthquake and fire in 1906 to collect some of their losses from funds of certain German insurance companies that are held by the Alien Property Custodian. Amendments extending the statute o limitation so suits can be brought are pending before the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, which is preparing a bill for the partial return of alien property.

That the World Still is Far From universal contentment, and that every nation should prepare itself for any events in the near future, were statements made by Gen. Leonard Wood before the annual convention of the veterans of the Philippine Revolution. The governor general added that the Filipinos should prepare themselves constantly for defense. if they expect some day to become independent. For this reason, h said, he had advocated military instruction in the schools.

About 50,000,000 Bushels, or more than 11 per cent of last year's record crop of white potatoes, were wasted or consumed on farm or left undug, the Department of Agriculture announced in connection with its survey of marketable stocks of potatoes on hand January 1. Heavy production last year resulted in the prices unprofitable for many farmers.

The Council of the League of Nations in secret session held as temporarily necessary the maintenance of French troops and gendarmerie in the Saar valley. Germany recently protested to the league of nations against retention of the troops and gendarmerie here. The council, however, instructed the Saar commission to recruit local gendarmerie so that it might do its own policing of the region.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

Neota Ridder, Editor-in-Chief.
Maurine Hake, Associate Editor.

The Third Annual Declamatory Contest will be given in the opera house this Friday night, as per the program published in the Times of last week. In the three years that the Klemme school has held declamatory contests, this is the best and largest. The contest held three years ago had six contestants; one dramatic and five in the humoruos class, with none in the oratorical. Last year there were eight selections; three dramatic and five humorous. A first and second prize will be given in eash place. Do not fail to miss this; it is well worth the admission of 25c for school children and 40c for adults. Don't forget the date, Friday evening, February 16th at the Idle Hour Theatre.

The High School was sorry to lose Ruth and Caryl Lau from their midst. These two popular Freshmen have moved to Mason City and will take up their high school work in that city. Good luck and success, Ruth and Caryl.

The high school has been enjoying (?) a concert from many of the students for the last week. It was not a concert of the usual sort as the blowing of horns and the beating of drums, but was made up by the blowing of noses, coughing and sneezing. We hope this seige of the colds will soon be over and all the students be in their normal condition again.

It has been rumored that Maybelle Johnson, one of our Juniors, will not return to school. If this is true we would like to know the mysterious reason. Come on, Maybelle, explain what has caused this sudden decision to leave our happy High School circle.

The Sociology Class have been studying Darwin's theory, Spencer's theory and the first chapter of Genesis in regard to the orgin of life. We have had some heated discussion on these theories but have found them all very interesting, but as far as knowing how man came upon earth is still a mystery and we think it will remain so.

The class in Commercial Law at the present time is studying contracts and agreements. Under thhe able supervision of Mr. Neese we will soon be full-fledged business boys and girls, and will be able to enter the business world with many advantages to ourselves and with a knowledge which will keep us out of many misunderstandings.

Richard Ax, one of the Freshmen boys, came to school Tuesday morning with his arm in a sling. We asked him what happened and he said he slipped on the ice Saturday, and broke it. It makes it hard for Richard to write as it is the right arm that is injured.

Monday, Maurine Hake, Marie Blank, Richard and Faith Ax were absent.

Don't forget the Declamatory Contest Friday, February 16th at the Idle Hour theatre. Admission 25c and 40c

ROSENAU-HARTBECK

On Wednesday, February 1, at high noon a quiet wedding took place at the home of Chas. Rosenau, near Ventura. Their daughter, Mary was married to Leslie Hartbeck, of Klemme. They were attended by the bride's sister Vida and Mr. Carl Swanson. Rev. T. J. Like performed the ring ceremony, after which Miss Fern Thomas sang "God Will Take Care of You." Miss Thomas also played the wedding march.

The Bride wore a beautiful dress of yellow canton crepe and a bridal wreath of orange blossoms on the veil. She carried a fine bouquet of roses. The groom wore a blue suit. The house was beautifully decorated, carrying out the gold and white color scheme. After the ceremony a delicious wedding dinner was served by the bride's aunt.

The Bride is a well known young lady of Ventura, having taught school three years. Her parents reside on a farm north of town.

The groom is a fine young man and is well known in this community and has spent most of his time as a farmer.

They will be at home to their many friends on the Elder farm a couple of miles southwest of town.

Their many friends extend congratulations.

Basket Social

A Basket Social will be given at Liberty No. 6, February 23rd. Every one is cordially invited. Ladies please bring baskets.

Drusilla Stromer, Teacher.
R. R. Lemke, Director.

GRAND JURY FOR YEAR 1923

Clarence Halverson	Garner
T. J. Ormsby	Woden
F. E. Ellsworth	Corwith
Walter Meinecke	Garner
James Schneider	Goodell
J. T. Jackson	Kanawha
Frank Fillenworth	Britt
Harm Ostercamp	Wesley
Hans Mortenson	Britt
George Klipping	Forest City
H. L. McNary	Britt
John Newberger	Klemme

PETIT JURY FOR MARCH TERM, MARCH 19, 1923

Wm. McCormick	Garner
Ollie Foley	Garner
Gladys Barnes	Garner
Joe Schneider	Garner
E. N. Peterson	Garner
Fred Meyer	Garner
Lou Griffen	Garner
Martha Prull	Garner
Albert Vanderploeg	Kanawha
F. Cordes	Goodell
D. C. Petheram	Kanawha
Guy Judd	Kanawha
Ge. Yepson	Kanawha
B. L. Converse	Kanawha
L. N. Anderson	Britt
Beatrice Ross	Britt
Nels Munson	Britt
M. A. Staplin	Britt
Robert Round	Britt
O. L. McCormick	Britt
Ed Hrubes	Britt
Wilda Hatten	Britt
Josephine Strong	Britt
J. E. Vincent	Britt
Erick Erickson	Corwith
Leona Zweifel	Corwith
John Etchen	Klemme
Mrs. Anna Pavey	Klemme
Hanna Chisel	Miller
Abe Reinken	Woden

WASHINGTON NEWS-LETTER

The amendment in the Army appropriation bill for the increase of the rivers and harbors item, providing for additional improvements on the Mississippi and Missouri Rivers, was passed by the Senate. The increase of this item marks the determination of Congress to cooperate in the plan for the construction of water ways in competition with railroad transportation. It is the belief of many that, instead of building a second Panama Canal, that we should connect up the Great Lakes with New Orleans and the Atlantic Ocean.

SHOWER GIVEN NEWLY-WEDS

Saturday evening, February 10th, a shower was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Maitland northeast of Klemme, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Maitland, Jr.

The young couple stole a march on their friends January 13, 1923, and went to Clarion where they were quietly married.

The Bride was formerly Miss Sylvia Brooks, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brooks, living nine miles east of Klemme.

The Groom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Maitland, Sr.

The evening was spent in playing jokes on the newly-weds and eating oysters.

The young couple received many beautiful and useful gifts, as well as best wishes for a long and happy married life from all present.

A. G. Lau, Jr. At Mason City

Mason City. Iowa,
Feb. 10, '23.

R. A. Jorgenson,
Klemme, Iowa.

Dear Mr. Jorgenson:

We arrived in Mason City in due time Friday. We did not move into the house we had intended to, as the furnace and water pipes were frozen, so it was impossible to get any heat. We are now living at 1011 Third St., S. W. in Forest Park addition. Wish you would mention this in your paper next week, as we left our address with many people there that do not know of the change Please send the Times to me at the above address.

Yours truly,
A. G. Lau.

MRS. FRIEDOW DEAD

Anna Schupper was born in Germany, December 16, 1833, and passed out of this life in the early hours of Saturday, February 10th, 1923, at the advanced age of 89 years, 1 month and 24 days. She grew to womanhood in the land of her birth and was educated in the schools and church of the Lutheran faith. She was united in marriage to John Friedow, to which union four children, two sons and two daughters were born. The family came to America in the year 1883, residing for some years near Sterling, Illinois, and later coming to Hancock County, living many years on a farm some 8 miles northwest of Klemme. Some 19 years ago Mr. and Mrs. Friedow bought a house in Klemme, where, shortly after taking possession, the husband died.

Mother Friedow, by which name she was best known, was blessed with a strong, robust constitution. She was a very ambitious lady, ever looking for an opportunity to lend a helping hand. In the services of the church she was faithful until the end. Her pew was never found empty without a good reason. At the place of the Mid-week prayer meetings, she was inveriably the first person present, and always taking some active part. This can also be said of her as regards to her interest and loyalty to the work of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of which she was an active member for many years. Because of her true devoted life, her cheerful, and pleasing disposition she was loved and rspected by all who knew her. She will be missed in our homes, in the church and on the streets. May the memory of her cheering words. her zeal and her loyalty to God and His Church long linger in the minds of her many relatives and friends.

There are left to mourn her departure. her four children, Mrs. Mary Baumeister of Klemme with whom the deceased spent her last years; Mrs. Anna Kaiser of Belvedier, Illinois; William and Martin who reside near Britt, Iowa; 19 grandchildren; 16 great grandchildren and numerous friends.

Funeral services took place at 1 o'clock at the home and 1:30 at the church on Monday afternoon, W. C. Bergmann officiating.

The British debt to the United States, amounting to four and half billion dollars, will be refunded at three and three and one-half per cent, covering a period of sixty-two years, by action of the House. This will stabilize international credits, and give notice to Europe that the United States will insist upon the payment of the foreign debt.

WHERE TO FIND THOSE OLD NEIGHBORS AGAIN

A SURE SIGN OF SPRING WHEN EVERY BODY BEGINS TO MOVE

There Has Been Much Moving The Past Week Near Klemme

There has been a great deal of moving from one place to another the past week, which seems to be a little earliar than is usually the custom. But everyone is anxious to get on the "new place" and this perhaps accounts for the early moving in this vicinity.

We have tried to get a correct detail of the moving the past week but may have missed it some as it is a real job to figure all this out. A few of the farmers we mention on this list have not yet moved but intend to move in a few days. Here is the "moving" list and it may enable you to tell who your new neighbor is or where your old nieghbor is now located:

We will begin with Aug. Lau, Jr. He held a farm sale and moved to Mason City where he bought an interest in a garage. B. A. Reemstma moved to his farm the other day. That leaves the Elder farm vacant by Reemstma, but Lester Hartbeck got married and has rented it for the coming year. That completes one moving circle.

Next we will consider the A. D. Gimer farm southeast of Klemme, which is now occupied by Sylvan Johnson who is having a farm sale and will sell his stuff and go to work this year for Lubbe Albers. Carl Wille became married and rented the farm of Gimer for the coming season; so that completes another circle on our list.

About a week ago or so, Ernest Henzie had a closing out sale east and south of town and will retire. So he rented his farm this year to Petro Dolcie who has been on the Ax farm north of town a mile the past year. Clint Stokesbary moves on the Ax place.

George Stokesbary, who has been on the Henry Church place south of town held a public auction recently and this year he will work for Mrs. C. A. Arnold, taking the place of Garland Hoffman who worked there last year. Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman may rent a farm, but at present will visit in Michigan until they decide what to do. This completes another round of moving.

We did not learn who will move to the Henry Church farm.

George Johnson, who has been farming in pardnership with his brother, Clarence, east of town the past summer, and later living in this city, will move to the farm just north of town vacated by Charles Bausman, who will move to Wellesburg. Iowa.

Martin Jensen bought property in town and will be close neighbor to Ye Editor. Martin had a hankering for town life so he is holding a sale next week and will sell the whole shoo-bang. He is on W. R. Bloom's place, the Red Cloud ranch south-east of town. This has been rented for the coming year by Chris Anderson who has been on the Dr. Zinn farm for several years north east of town. Dr. Zinn did not rent his farm for the coming year but has hired a manager to run the place under his supervision, so Mr. Frank Allison and family will move on the farm as managers. This completes another round of moving.

Lee Price, living on a farm north west of Klemme about eight miles is having a sale today and will move to town, having rented the Henry Maitland residence. The farm he vacates has been rented the coming year by a Mr. Dillon.

Now we will start on another big ring of moving farmers. Chas. Schmidt, who was to have had a sale Tuesday on the Mrs. Knoke farm a few miles south west of this city Tuesday, but did not do so on account of the storm, but will have it Saturday, will move to Sac City, Iowa, where he will enter business. Art Knoke will then move on this place. Then Fred Schmidt will go on the place vacated by Knoke; and Tim Waddingham will move on the farm vacated by Fred Schmidt; and Albert Schmidt will move to the farm vacated by Tim Waddingham. We understand that Will Stille goes on the place just at the north edge of town vacated by Albert Schmidt. Thus is completed the last round of moving farmers which we have been able to trace for this time. We will appreciate very much getting a further report on moving if we have missed any. which perhaps we did in making out this list.

Moving In Town

To begin with a list in town we will start with Will Stille. As before mentioned he goes to the Albert Schmidt place in north Klemme and the house vacated by him will be occupied by Alvina Griffen.

George Johnson is moving to the country and the house he vacates in north-west Klemme will be occupied in the future by Lester Stille. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Buss will move into the house on east Main St. vacated by Lester Stille. Harry Buss and wife have been living with Mr. and Mrs. Ben Coobs.

Martin Jensen purchased the Mrs. Leo Wilkins property west of the M. E. Church and will move in from the country soon.

The Henry Maitland house in the north-east part of Klemme has been vacant for some time but has been rented by Lee Price who is moving in from the country.

We beleive this completes the list of changes in Klemme for the present time.

By looking over this list you may be able to locate your old neighbor and also know who is your new neighbor.

RAMSAY FOR JUDGE

A bill has passed the house and senate providing a fourth judge in this judicial district, and it is very likely that Governor Kendall will sign it. The governor will appoint the new judge who will serve until the next general election. The bill was introduced in the house by Representative Knudson of Cerro Gordo County and in the senate by Senator Wichman.

This judicial district, the twelfth, consists of eight counties: Bremer, Butler, Floyd, Mitchell, Worth, Cerro Gordo, Hancock and Winnebago. The present judges are C. H. Kelley of Charles City, who has served since 1898; J. J. Clark of Mason City, who was elected in 1908, and M. F. Edwards of Parkersburg who has been on the bench since 1912.

The new judge, the fourth, would by right of location, and for other reasons, belong to Hancock County. Hancock County has been very backward in asking for plums, or perhaps it might be said honors, and has therefore, had very few of the good things that are handed out. But from point of location, and for many other reasons that could be set out, this appointment belongs to Hancock County.

Now if the honor belong to Hancock County, the man that is entitled to it, and in every way qualified for the position is W. H. Ramsay of Garner. Mr. Ramsay, senior member of the firm of Ramsay & Blackstone, has been practicing law in Garner for 24 years. In fact, the firm began business 24 years ago the first day of January, and is one of the oldest firms in town, as well as being one of the oldest law firms in the judicial district.

Mr. Ramsay has no superior in the profession in Hancock or any other county in the district. He has the unanimous endorsement of the bar of the county, and will have the endorsement of a large percentage of the attorneys of the district. We shall expect his appointment by Governor Kendall.

PORTO RICO HEARD OVER OUR RADIO

Sunday evening we listened in on a concert from Porto Rico, Cuba, over our radio. We were "hooked" up with Porto Rico for about half an hour and heard very distinctly several musical numbers, and a very interesting lecture in Spanish (so the announcer said) but we did not understand a word of it. The announcer talked broken English but he could make himself understood.

.. Hawkeye .. State News

Interesting Items Gathered From all Parts of Iowa

Fire destroyed $100,000 worth of business property in Leon recently.

The lakes at Arnolds Park are being seined of useless fish which are shipped east for food.

A contract for paving about 50,000 square yards of streets and alleys in Ida Grove has been awarded.

Story county, unlike Palo Alto and Calhoun, favors the 10 mill state school tax levy to relieve rural districts.

Approximately $9,000,000 was paid for cattle, hogs and sheep handled at the Sioux City livestock market during January.

Iowa is now 100 per cent organized for Red Cross service for the year 1923, according to an announcement just issued at state headquarters.

E. F. Saunders, alias James Colson of Davenport has been identified as one of six men who robbed the Toledo Postoffice of $1,000,000 two years ago.

Iowa's legal rate of interest will be cut from eight to seven per cent, if a bill by Sen. J. L. Brookhart of Washington county presented in the senate is adopted.

Lester Kelly, hog buyer in Shenandoah in January alone paid Iowa farmers $24,250.55 for 1,361 hogs, which he shipped in eighteen cars to eastern markets.

Mrs. L. A. Miller of Colorado Springs, who has been named poet laureate of Colorado was born in Iowa and was graduated in 1894 from Upper Iowa university.

A project to erect a soy bean crushing plant somewhere in the state, the place to be determined later, is under consideration by the State Farm Bureau federation.

The farrowing of three litters of pigs in eleven months, the production of twenty-four pigs in the three litters is the record of a Duroc Jersey twenty-two months old sow owned by a Montgomery county farmer.

Paroles would be harder to secure, under a bill introduced in the Iowa House Friday by Rep. Anderson of Webster county. The bill would provide that no parole could be granted until half the sentence had been served.

Co-operative marketing of farmer's products is big business as much so as any other enterprise in the country, Prof. E. G. Nourse, chief of agricultural economics at Iowa State college at Ames told farmers gathered at Ohio State university, Columbus, Ohio, recently.

Participation of members of the Denver mint bandit gang in both the Drake Park and the Cottage Grove bank robberies in Des Moines has been established by the police, who say they have unearthed clews which may lead to the capture of the surviving members of the band.

The Iowa house of representatives has passed the Fackler bill, which provides, in its final form, that upon approval by county boards of supervisors and the state highway commission, any expense incident to the improvement of maintenance of primary roads may be paid for out of the primary road fund.

Countless hundreds of orphan pigs, those that are prematurely weaned, are lost annually in Iowa and other states of the corn belt through the failure of farmers to use scientific methods in caring for them, is the statement made in a bulletin on "Saving The Orphan Pigs" just issued by the animal husbandry section of Iowa State college.

In Iowa, five farms in every six, have telephones, according to a booklet on the organization, financing and management of farmers' telephone companies, just issued by the department of agriculture. The other extreme in South Carolina, where only one farm in every eighteen is so equipped, Iowa stands at the head of the list of all states in organizing and using farmers' telephones, 86.1 per cent of all the farms in the state having this form of communication.

The American Polled Hereford association sale at the State fair grounds recently closed with a total of 130 head going through the ring for approximately $28,600, an average of $220 a head. Top price was paid by the Mount Larcom Pastoral company of Euroa, Queensland, Australia, in the purchase for $1,200 of King Perfection, a junior yearling bull that took first in its class at the show. F. O. Peterson, Galva, was the seller. This is the same firm that paid the top price when it bought Marvel's Dandy from the Ralph Pianter & Son exhibit for $2,000

J. A. Price held a farm sale to retire to live in Council Bluffs. Mr. Price's life has had several items out of the usual in it. He was the first white child born within Hardin township, Pottawattamie county. He was born on the farm on which he has lived ever since—seventy-two years—and which he himself has farmed over forty-five years. Mr. Price is believed to be the champion holder of the same public office in Iowa. He is just completing his fiftieth year as secretary of the Hardin township school board.

LEGISLATIVE NEWS

Code revision, fought over, fought for, fought against, the chief issue throughout the opening weeks of the session, storm center of political battles of various sorts, given right of way in the senate and obstructed in every manner possible, let to ride easily in the house, came to a turning of the ways in the fourth week of the legislature when both houses consented to give it a back seat but not to drop it entirely. Anxiety to get into the big mill on the hundred or more bills already shied into the hopper, the first thought of the smell of the spring flowers and the sound of the meadow larks brought members of both houses to the belief that code revision should largely be left to the special session which Governor Kendall has promised to call. The report of the joint committee to revise the taxation code of Iowa is pressing hard for consideration in the senate and the logical way out of the situation presented by the report is advanced by many, particularly members of the ways and means committee to whom the report was first submitted, to be consideration of it and the five bills submitted with it by the senate and the house as committees of the whole. Taking up the tax committee's report in the regular session and the consideration of many other problems, chief of them the highway question, would necessitate giving code revision the go by or at least making it incidental to other legislation. Only minor code bills over which no scrap is expected have been introduced in either house through a policy of leaving the others to the special session. The senate gave code commission bills the right of way up to February 1st, but did not stop acting on them at that time. The house never had any such rule as the senate and the consequence was the introduction and passage or killing of code bills just as if they were new bills.

Taxation of gasoline took a front seat in the legislature with the introduction of the third bill advocating a tax on gasoline by Representative Ontjes of Grundy county. Two other bills preceding the Antjes one had recommended a gasoline tax. The Caldwell bill would impose a tax of two cents a gallon. The tax committee bill and the Ontjes bill provide for a tax of one cent per gallon. The Caldwell bill would expend the gasoline revenue on the surfacing a part of the primary road system with either paving or gravel. The other two bills would expend the money on the secondary roads of the county. The Ontjes bill differs radically from the other two in that it proposes a privilege tax while its companions are sales taxes. The Ontjes and tax committee bills also differ from each other in the manner of aportioning the revenue. The former would divide it among the counties on the basis of their area; the tax committee bill on the basis of their taxable valuation. Under the latter bill counties would retain all of the money paid in their counties and receive a portion of that paid in counties which are larger and more wealthy.

An anti-Ku Klux Klan bill has been introduced in both branches of the legislature. It provides strict penalties of imprisonment for wearing masks, hoods, or other means of concealing the identities of persons, and makes the solicitation of memberships in organizations banned by the act punishable by imprisonment. All of the penalties provided for in the act are imprisonment. No fines would be acceptable under the proposed act. Representatives Yenter and Senator White fathered the bill, which has the backing of the American Legion and is credited with the support of a number of other organizations.

Another law passed by the thirty-ninth general assembly which is not a source of pride to the old members of the legislature, who were either for or against it is the one requiring all public officers to make an inventory at least once a year and in some cases quarterly of the property in their custody. An attempt to repeal the bill failed temporarily while it was sent back to another committee for amendment.

The senate passed a bill which would make the sale of poison booze punishable as manslaughter with only one negative vote. The original bill, of which Senator Caldwell is the author, would have made sale of poison booze punishable as murder, but this clause was amended out of the bill.

The house hiked the penalty for robbery from a maximum of twenty to twenty-five years. The minimum of ten years was untouched. The bill for this purpose was introduced by Representative Anderson of Webster county, and went through the house without either a negative vote cast against or any debate.

Auto drivers would have to be licensed under another bill in the senate and stringent penalties for driving a car while intoxicated are contained in the measure.

Another stringent bill in the senate is one by Senator Price which would make gun toting unpopular in the state. Small firearms could be purchased only on order of the district court and the finding of concealed weapons upon the person or in the vehicle of an arrested person would subject him to a charge of commiting a felony.

HOUSE PASSES WAR DEBT BILL

Senators La Follette and Walsh Insist on Hearings in Senate.

VOTE IS 291 AGAINST 44

Sixty-three Democrats and the Only Socialist Congressman Join the Republicans in Voting for the Measure.

Washington, Feb. 10.—The house passed the bill ratifying the British debt settlement agreement. The vote was 291 to 44.

In the senate, on the other hand, the plans of administration leaders to report the measure out of the finance committee were upset by Senators La Follette of Wisconsin and Walsh of Massachusetts, who demanded full hearings on the bill.

The only Socialist congressman, Representative London of New York, expressed his pleasure at the opportunity to "support a measure which would promote world peace."

"I am in such complete sympathy with the vast majority of my colleagues of the house in this matter," said Mr. London, "that I am beginning to doubt whether I am right." The remark caused laughter.

An ovation was accorded by Republican members to Representative Burton, Republican of Ohio, a member of the American debt commission, when he arose to ask for passage of the bill.

Debate was opened in the house by Representative Burton. He declared that no bill of such far-reaching importance had been considered "since the days when our armies were battling in the field."

Mr. Burton reiterated that the policy of the administration is opposition to debt cancellation, but declared it was as much in the interest of the United States as that of the debtor nations that some leniency should be shown in settlement terms.

"If we cancelled the debts," Mr. Burton said, "Europe, in a ferment, might use the money for military purposes."

Expression by Mr. Burton of hope for future peace in the world and friendship between the United States and Great Britain invoked enthusiastic applause.

Responding to questions from Democrats, Mr. Burton said it was impossible for Great Britain to pay a higher rate of interest than provided in the settlement terms.

BERLIN SCHOOLS ARE CLOSED

Twenty-five Shut on Account of Coal Shortage Due to Ruhr Occupation.

Berlin, Feb. 10.—Twenty-five public schools in Berlin were closed on account of a coal shortage due to the Ruhr occupation. Three hundred and thirty-five schools will close within a week or two and not be opened again until Easter.

In Barmen thirty textile factories were closed on account of a coal shortage.

HUGHES SPURNS SENATE CALL

Refuses Committee's Requests to Appear—Says Policy Needs No Explanation.

Washington, Feb. 10.—Secretary of State Hughes told the senate foreign relations committee that a personal appearance by him to explain the reparations question and the instructions given Roland Boyden, as unofficial representative, would be devoid of any result and would add nothing to the written statements submitted.

WARSHIPS STAY AT SMYRNA

Turks Bow to Allies' Demand—To Settle the Question by Diplomatic Means.

London, Feb. 10.—Allied naval officers and the Turkish commander at Smyrna have agreed that the status quo will be maintained until the question of Turks' sovereign right to order foreign warships from the harbor has been settled by diplomatic means, according to a dispatch from Smyrna received in Constantinople.

REJECT ALL ALLIES' TERMS

London Hears That Assembly at Angora Has Refused to Approve Lausanne Agreement.

London, Feb. 10.—The Turkish national assembly rejected all the terms of the Near East peace parley at Lausanne, according to a dispatch from Angora.

Head of Russ Church in Poland Slain.

Warsaw, Feb. 10.—A Russian monk named Smargad killed the Metropolitan George, chief of the Russian church in Poland, because of his pro-Polish policies. Smargad opposes the policies of the metropolitan.

Prison for Montagnes.

New York, Feb. 10.—Jail sentences for bootlegging were imposed on the four Montagne brothers, proprietors of distilleries, all socially prominent, and one of whom is internationally known as a polo player.

MARIE A. PIESINGER

Miss Marie A. Piesinger, a pharmacist of New Prague, Minn., who has just been elected president of the Minnesota board of pharmacy. She is the first woman in the United States to be selected for such a position and has also been named delegate to the United States Pharmacopoeia convention for 1920-1930.

ASKS FOR DEBT PACT

President Harding in Plea to Congress for Action.

Neither Hard Bargain Nor Too Much Generosity, He Says—Wants Vote on Ship Bill.

Washington, Feb. 8. — President Harding appealed to congress to ratify the British debt funding agreement and at the same time appealed for a decision from congress on the pending ship aid bill.

Delivering his message in person to a joint session of the senate and house, the President told the members that he would not report a hard bargain driven with the British nor would he proclaim a rare generosity in settlement. He reminded them that although Great Britain will, under the terms of the agreement, pay the United States approximately $150,000,000 a year, the government is losing $50,000,000 a year in the operation of the merchant marine.

The President appealed only for a vote on the ship aid bill, saying that he was not seeking to influence the senate's opinion. "I plead for a decision," he said. "If there is a favorable majority the bill should be enacted. If a majority is opposed, the defeat will be decisive."

He pictured the settlement of the British debt as the "first clearing of war-clouded skies in a debt-burdened world," and pointed out that the British government had come to make acknowledgment of the debt in the midst of world-wide clamor for cancellation.

The executive added that the American commission had been fair in dealing with the British commission, had not sought to drive a hard bargain, but had arranged a settlement, which is looked upon as just and fair, and that the concessions went as far as American sentiment would justify.

The settlement of the British debt, the President explained, means "recommitment of the English-speaking world to the validity of the contract."

TURKS CALLED TO COLORS

Kemal Orders Retired and Active Officers of Army to Register at Once.

Constantinople, Feb. 8. — Retired and active officers of the Turkish army under Mustapha Kemal have been ordered to register immediately.

The military commander announced all evaders will be punished. This order follows the notice to commanders of all allied warships of more than 1,000 tons to leave the port of Smyrna.

MINE EXPLOSION TRAPS 125

Blast in New Mexican Coal Pit Entombs Workers—Terrible Havoc Is Wrought.

East Las Vegas, N. M., Feb. 9.—An explosion at the Phelps-Dodge corporation's mine No. 1 at Dawson, N. M., caused entombment of about 125 soft coal miners. The blast ruined all the heavy concrete work at the mouth of the main entry, and it is believed that terrible havoc was wrought in the deeper workings.

Seattle Banker Vindicated.

Seattle, Feb. 10. — An indictment against J. E. Chilberg, former president of the defunct Scandinavian-American Bank of Seattle, charging him with illegally borrowing $65,000 from the bank, has been dismissed.

Jute Mills Reopened.

Ludlow, Mass., Feb. 10.—The jute mills were reopened by the Ludlow Manufacturing associations. The disorders that attended a demonstration by strike sympathizers were not renewed at the reopening.

RIVER, HARBOR FUND APPROVED

"Pork Barrel" Rolls Through Senate by 46 to 35 Vote.

DISCARDS ECONOMY PROGRAM

Acid Test Comes in Vote on Senator Underwood's Motion to Table Two Amendments to Cut Appropriation.

Washington, Feb. 9.—The pork barrel, fatter and heavier than for ten years past, demonstrated its invincibility anew in the senate, rolling irresistibly over the budget and the administration's economy program.

Efforts to trim it were wholly futile and when it emerged triumphantly from the day's proceedings its stout staves showed no dents.

Senator Underwood (Dem., Ala.), Democratic leader, brought the pork contest to a decisive finish by moving to table both the amendment of Senator Borah (Rep., Idaho), cutting the rivers and harbors appropriation to $27,000,000, the amount recommended by the budget bureau, and that of Senator Lenroot (Rep., Wis.), cutting it to $42,000,000.

The senate never got a chance to vote on either of these amendments directly. It swept both of them into the discard with one swoop, adopting the Underwood motion by a vote of 46 to 35.

The lineup of the senate on the Underwood motion, the acid test vote, revealed the usual bi-partisan coalition behind the barrel.

Party lines were broken in the vote for the item, the support for it coming chiefly from states where there are rivers to be improved. Southern Democrats led by Senator Underwood, the minority leader, backed the appropriation with all their force, as did those Republican and Democratic senators whose states are traversed by such rivers as the Mississippi and Missouri, the development of the upper reaches of which is part of the program.

FRENCH RAIL MEN VOLUNTEER

Government Takes Another Battalion of 5,000 Into the Ruhr, Making Total of 10,000.

Paris, Feb. 9.—In order to cope with the transportation breakdown in the Ruhr, France is withdrawing another battalion of railroad workers from French railroads for employment in the Ruhr. Approximately 5,000 more French railroad employees have volunteered to go to the Ruhr for service there, it is officially stated. The number of French railroad men in the Ruhr now is approximately 10,000.

YANKS HOME FROM RHINE

Arrive at Savannah With Wives, Children and Mothers-in-Law—Great Reception.

Savannah, Ga., Feb. 8.—Nine hundred American soldiers came home from the Rhine. Savannah turned out to welcome the Yanks.

As the transport neared the dock bands, whistles and sirens took up the welcome, and these were augmented by the cheers of the thousands on the decks.

The St. Mihiel brought fourscore German women, wives and mothers-in-law of American soldiers, and their children, Americans, though born on Rhineland soil.

U. S.-COSTA RICA PROTOCOL

Agreement Follows Lines of Former One and Covers Question of Canal Building.

Washington, Feb. 9.—The United States and Costa Rica have signed a protocol which eliminates disputes of many years' standing, affecting the possible future development of the Nicaraguan interoceanic canal route, it is officially stated. Under the terms of the protocol, the United States will consult Costa Rica if a decision is made to construct a canal by the Nicaraguan route.

BLAST KILLS 18 MINERS

Many Others Are Injured as Result of Explosion in Vancouver Island Pit.

Vancouver, B. C., Feb. 9.—Eighteen miners are dead and as many are injured as the result of an explosion which occurred in No. 4 tunnel of the Cumberland mine, Cumberland, Vancouver island.

Kenyon Halts Presidential Boom.

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 10.—Federal Judge Kenyon, former senator from Iowa, has telegraphed Representative Blake to withdraw his resolution for legislative indorsement of Judge Kenyon for president. Mr. Blake complied.

Governor Frees Howat.

Topeka, Kan., Feb. 10.—The sentence of Alexander Howat, deposed head of the Kansas union miners, serving the remainder of a six months' sentence for violating the Industrial court law, was commuted.

AH SING CHING WINS FI

Fourteen-Year-Old Boy of Ha... Takes Prize in Legion's Natio... Essay Contest.

Ah Sing Ching, of Ewa ... Hawaii, a fourteen-year-old boy ... Chinese ... tion, won ... place in the A... ican Legion's ... tional essay ... test on the ... ject, "How ... the Americ... gion Best ... the Nation?" ... test results ... announced re... ly by Garland ... Powell, wh... the director ... the Legion's ... tional Americanism commission.

Ah Sing Ching.

Second prize in the contest, ... was open to all school childre... tween the ages of twelve and eig... was awarded to Miss Pauline Vi... Chastain of Indianapolis. Joseph ... donato of Bridgeport, Conn., won ... prize. Honorable mention was ... of the essays of Phillip E. Mos... Westfield, Mass., and Ralph R. ... van of Twin Harbors, Minn.

The board of judges of the L... contest was composed of John ... gert, United States commissio... education; Chancellor E. E. Bro... New York City university, and ... McClure, the publisher. Na... prizes are first, $750; second, $5... the third, $250, the money to be ... as scholarships in any univers... college. They were awarded by ... ford MacNider, of Mason City, Ia., ... was national commander of the L... last year.

"The fact that a boy of Chine... scent in Hawaii won the essay ... testifies to the splendid work of ... icanism which Legion posts in ... are emphasizing," Mr. Powell ... "The Hawaii department is to b... gratulated on the development ... national winner in a contest in ... more than 50,000 school childre... ticipated."

The text of Ah Sing Ching's w... essay follows.

"The American Legion, whi... composed of men and women w... Gene Haver, Vicksburg (Miss.) ... during the war stands for uni... mocracy, peace and service to G... our country.

"The slogan of our country ... union there is strength,' and it ... cause of this unity, our country ... strong, but during the World w... found that we had internal as ... as external enemies. Bolshe... communism and anarchy are as ... enemies as any we had to fight ... seas, and much harder to conqu...

"The American Legion can ... wonderful service to the coun... encouraging a spirit of unity a... operation, and by teaching fore... who come into the United State... to live under a republican for... government, and by helping th... understand that ours is a gover... of the people, by the people, f... people and it shall not perish ... the earth. Many foreigners come ... countries where they have bee... pressed and they do not under... the word liberty, but think it is ... to commit crimes. These people ... be taught and the American L... can aid in doing this.

"We learned at the beginning ... World war that many of our ow... zens were uneducated, and tha... nearly enough money was being ... for schools. Here is a great wo... the American Legion, to see that ... child in the United States has a c... to be educated. What we want ... nation we must put in our scho... the need for schools and well-t... teachers is very great. Night s... for the training of men and w... who work during the day help t... cate our citizens and those wh... to become citizens. The Americ... gion is on the side of educatio... we believe will make every ef... see that the schools of the ... States rank first in the world an... every citizen has the opportun... learning.

"During the World war ma... our soldiers were wounded an... turned home, suffering from ... shock, sick and unable to ca... themselves. They fought in a ... cause and deserve well of their ... try and their comrades. The ... can give these returned veter... and comfort, and after they ... sufficiently recovered help them ... come self-supporting. Many of ... will be unable to follow the sa... cupation that they did before th... but some kind of work can be ... for them to do. The Legion ... see that their comrades are ... cared for.

"The United States is not a m... nation and believes in war for ... and not for conquest. At the ... the war, our country asked for n... and no indemnity. Not many ... ago President Harding called ... ference of the nations to discus... duction of armies and armament... American Legion can aid by fo... and encouraging peace and goo... among nations and by standing ... fair deal between large and sm... tions, allowing the small nations ... cide for themselves how they sh... governed."

Disabled Man Gets Membe...

Although he is a disabled ma... ing treatment at a St. Paul ho... Hans Hundorf has signed up f... members for St. Paul Post No. 8 ... American Legion. The post no... 400 members.

HAVE LARGEST CALF CLUB

Woodbury County Organization Has 123 Members.

With a total of 123 club members and 151 calves, Woodbury county claims to have the largest baby beef club in the United States and intends to go on blowing its horn to that effect until some other county is heard from, according to H. C. Breckenridge, county club leader.

In data received at Iowa State College at Ames, Mr. Breckenridge states that there are 109 boys and 14 girls in the club The 151 calves, which are pretty evenly divided as to breed among the Hereford, Shorthorn and Angus, averaged 451 pounds each when they were started on the test Dec. 1. Mr. Breckenridge says that recent reports from the 13 different club leaders indicate that the calves are doing very well and that much interest is being manifested by the club members.

The average age of the club mebers is between 13 and 14 years. Five are enrolled from Ida and Plymouth counties

Date of Sylvan Johnson's

PUBLIC AUCTION

Postponed!

On account of the storm Wednesday, I have postponed the date of my Public Auction. The sale will be held on the A. D. Gimer farm 1 mile south, 1-2 mile east and 1-4 mile south of Klemme, on——

Monday, Feb. 19

Beginning at 11:00 A. M. Free Lunch at Noon.

See the big bills for a complete list of the sale, or see the advertisement in last isue of the Times.

THIS WILL BE A LARGE SALE 60 Head of Live Stock, consisting of 6 Head of Horses; 34 Head of Cattle; and 20 Head of Feeding Shoats are offered. I also have a complete line of farm machinery, in good condition and much is practically like new.

Usual Terms of Sale—nine month's time at 8 percent, etc.

Sylvan Johnson

Col. B. A. Reemstma, —Auctioneer

State Savings Bank, Klemme, —Clerks

Date of Chas. Schmidt's

Farm Sale

POSTPONED!

On account of the storm Tuesday, I have postponed the date of my Public Auction. The sale will be held on the farm 3 1-2 miles west and 1-2 mile south of Klemme, on—

Saturday, Feb. 17

Beginning at 10:30 A. M. Free Lunch at Noon.

See the big bills for a complete list of the sale, or see a copy of the bill in last issue of the Klemme Times.

THIS IS A CLOSING OUT SALE. 60 Head of Live Stock is on the list, including 5 Head of Horses; 37 Head of good Cattle; 18 Head of Duroc Jersey Brood Sows, which are cholera immune.. Also a Complete List of Farm Machinery, Too's, and other articles will be sold.

Usual Terms of Sale—nine month's time at 8 percent, etc.

Chas. Schmidt

Brummond & Reemstma —Auctioneers

State Savings Bank, Klemme —Clerks

News of Goodell And Vicinity

Those who were present at the dance in the hall Friday night given by J. D. G. Houghton and Conlan's enjoyed themselves greatly.

Mrs. Eli Hetland returned from Minnesota Friday, where she had been visiting relatives.

Mae Griggs spent the week end with Clara Johnson.

Miss McCormick spent Saturday and Sunday in Ames, visiting with a friend.

Quite a few are on the sick list this week.

The dance at the Bill Heginger home Monda ynight was enjoyed by all present.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Nelson took Sunday dinner at the J. Johnson home.

Miss Hill spent Saturday and Sunday in Clarion visiting her parents.

A large crowd enjoyed themselves at a dance given at the Fred Chase home Tuesday.

Denny Conlan is on the sick list this week.

The Farm Bureau Ladies made dress forms at the home of Lula Wilkins. They made two forms.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Hemingway were Mason City callers Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T Griggs were Klemme callers Saturday

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Chase were Klemme callers Saturday.

Jay Grigs and son. Fernon, were Belmond callers Tuesday.

Mrs. Prelipp, Sr., who formerly lived in this vicinity, died at her home in Meservey after an illness of several months.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman returned to their home in Wyoming, after spending several months with Mrs. Shermans folks.

Mrs. White is improving in health which is good news to her many friends.

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT OF ADMINISTRATOR

Notice is hereby given, That the undersigned has been duly appointed and qualified as Administrator of the estate of MILLIE SMITH late of Hancock County, State of Iowa, deceased. All persons indebted to the estate are requested to make immediate payment; and those having claims against the same will present them, duly authenticated, to the undersigned, for allowance.

Dated February 7, A. D. 1923.

LUVERNE SMITH,

Feb. 8-15-22) Administrator.

MRS. LYDIA CARPENTER PASSES AWAY

Another useful life was completed when Mrs. Carpenter on February 5th closed her eyes in her last long sleep. Mrs. Carpenter had been failing in health for over a year. About two weeks ago she was taken with pneumonia and her weakened condition made her unable to combat with the disease.

Miss Lydia Smith was born at Polo, Illinois, March 9, 1871 and died at her home on February 5, 1923, age 51 years, 10 months and 27 days.

In the fall of 1881 she with her parents, brothers and sisters moved to Traer, Iowa, where her youthful life was spent.

On December 24, 1895 she was united in marriage with Alfred Charles Carpenter. For three years they lived in Goodell, after that moving to their present home. To this union were born six children all of whom are living; Thelma Lucinda Schlichting; Harry Leonard; Loyd Merle; Thora Mary; Alfred Verle; and Richard Charles. She leaves to mourn her departure, her six children, her husband, Albert Schlichting, son-in-law, Mrs. Lloy Carpenter. daughter-in-law, her mother, Mrs. Smith, Traer, Iowa; two sisters Mrs. Bell Jordon, Traer, Iowa, Mrs. Mary Roberts, of Polo, Illinois; her three brothers, Wm. Smith of St. Louis, Mo., Frank and Robert Smith of Traer, Iowa, and many friends and neighbors.

While she lived at Traer, Iowa, she worshipped at the Methodist Church and she was a regular and faithful attendant of the M. E. Sunday school.

Shortly after her marriage she united with the United Brthran Church in Goodell and remained firm in the faith. The subject of Christianity was a frequent topic of conversation with her.

She was a great lover of beautiful flowers. Her yard in the summer time was an inspiring flower garden and in winter her home was brightened by numerous and various plants and flowers. Mrs. Carpenter was a woman of high ideals for her children and no sacrifice was found too great in order to realize these ideals. She was a great home builder. Every effort was made to make her home attractive and inviting to her family and to the young people of the neighborhood. Here the young people received a warm welcome and enjoyed many social afternoons and evenings.

But to build a home and rear a large family in these trying times takes more than these earthly means it takes flesh and blood; it takes life. But in this sacrifice she rejoiced. Indeed she looked well to the ways of her household. She has left her children a priceless legacy.

A faithful and sacrificing wife, a kind and loving mother has gone to her heavenly reward.?No more will her voice be heard, her chair is vacant, but her sweet influence still lives in the home.

The funeral was held from the Goodell church Wednesday afternoon, February 7, 1923, and interment in Amsterdam Cemetery.

Card Of Thanks

We wish to thank those who so generously assisted us during the sickness and death of our beloved wife and mother.

A. C. Carpenter and Family.

HONEYBEE DOESN'T HIBERNATE

Quality and Quantity of Stores Factors Desired, Says Park.

"Honeybees differ from all other insects in that they cannot hibernate, but must keep up body temperature during winter," said Wallace Park, assistant chief in apiculture, in the opening address of the beekeepers' short course at Iowa State College at Ames. The necessary heat is produced by the oxidation of the honey which they consume.

"There are two essential considerations," said Mr. Park, "quality and quantity of stores." He pointed out that in general light colored honeys are better for this purpose than darker grades. Winter stores should be well ripened and care should be taken to avoid the use of granulated honey for this purpose, he stated.

With regard to the quantity of winter stores, Mr. Park said, "the only safe rule to follow is to have more than enough." He condemned the practice of "hefting" hives to determine the amount of stores in them and told of tests he had conducted to prove the inaccuracy of such a method.

Mr. Park recommends the weighing of the hives to determine the status of the bees early enough in the fall so that those colonies which which are deficient in stores can be fed before cold weather sets in. He states that while weighing costs more than "hefting," it also makes better returns on the investment. One colony saved in this way will pay for the labor of weighing 100 to 200 colonies.

SHIP LOTS OF ONIONS

Total of 300 Carloads Sent From St. Ansgar in 1922.

Do people eat onions? Judging from figures showing the number of carloads shipped from St. Ansgar, Mitchell county, Iowa, during the past year, it seems everyone eats them.

St. Ansgar is the shipping point for Iowa's leading vegetable growing community and during 1922 a total of 643 carloads of vegetables were loaded and shipped from that place. Three hundred of these cars were loaded with onions. The detail figures for the year follow: cabbage 92 cars; potatoes, 226 cars; carrots 1 car; mixed vegetables, 24 cars; onions, 300 cars.

In commenting on these figures, C. L. Fitch, extension professor of vegetables at Iowa State Collge, points out the advantages of vegetable growing as compared with orcharding.

"Vegetbles are the only crop except apples which can pay interest on high priced land," he says. "To grow apples a young man must wait 15 years before he can get returns from his trees. The returns on vegetables come much quicker. Near St. Ansgar two 40-acre tracts were purchased 4 years ago for $1,000 per acre. Since that time both of these tracts have been making from 10 to 50 percent interest on the purchase price each year."

FORDSON

You Will Want Your Fordson Tractor Early

Everything points to the greatest shortage of Ford products this year that has ever existed.

Never before has the demand been so great.

You will want a Fordson Tractor early—here is one product you cannot wait for—when the weather opens up you will need it.

You will want it for plowing, seeding, cultivating—and all your other work. Already it has proved the greatest help to profitable farming that has ever been offered to you. And at $395 f. o. b. Detroit, the price is so low that you lose money every day you are without a Fordson. To get delivery you must order early.

There are no reserve stocks among our dealers—our production capacitiy, great as it is, will not enable us to build a reserve.

It must be a case of "first come, first served" and the only way in which you can protect yourself is to list your order with a Ford Dealer Dealer immediately.

By taking advantage of our dealer's first opportunity to make delivery, you will be assured of having your Fordson when you need it.

FORD MOTOR CO.

$395.00

f. o. b. Detroit

Greimann Motor Co.

Aaron Greimann, Mgr. Klemme, Iowa

KILLIAN'S New York Resident Buyers' SALE

FIFTH ANNUAL

New York Resident Buyers' Sale

Begins Thursday February 22nd

Sale bills are now in the mails. If yours has failed to arrive, a post card will bring one by return mail.

Louis Killian Co.

MASON CITY, IOWA

NOTICE OF SPECIAL SCHOOL ELECTION

——T——

Public Notice is hereby given to the qualified voters of the Independent School District of Klemme, in the County of Hancock, State of Iowa, that a special election of the voters of said District will be held on the 26th day of February, 1923, at the Town Hall, corner 2nd and Hancock streets, Klemme, Iowa. from 1 o'clock P. M. until 6 o'clock P. M. at which time there will be submitted to the voters of said District the following proposition:

"Shall the Independent School District of Klemme, in the County of Hancock, State of Iowa, issue bonds in the sum of not to exceed $15,000 for the purpose of constructing and equipping an addition to the school house within said School District?"

at which time and place you are hereby notified to appear.

This notice is given by order of the Board of Directors of the Independent School District of Klemme, Hancock County, Iowa, pursuant to a sufficient petition in accordance with Sections 2820-d 1 et seq. of the Supplement to the Code of Iowa, 1913, as amended. and in accordance with a resolution of said Board, duly adopted on the 25th day of January, 1923.

Dated at Klemme. Iowa, this 25th day of January, 1923.

LEW LEWIS
Secretary, Board of Directors.

(Jan 25, Feb. 1-8-15-22)

GEORGE ZINN, M. D.

Physician and Surgeon

Office opposite from Hotel Klemme

Phone No. 19

Eyes Examined Glasses Fitted

NOTICE OF SPECIAL SCHOOL ELECTION

——T——

Public Notice is hereby given to the qualified voters of the Independent School District of Klemme, in the County of Hancock, State of Iowa, that a special election of the voters of said District will be held on the 26th day of February, 1923, at the Town Hall, corner 2nd and Hancock Streets, Klemme, Iowa, from 1 o'clock P. M. until 6 o'clock P. M., at which time there will be submitted to the voters of said district the following proposition:

"Shall the Independent School District of Klemme. in the County of Hancock, State of Iowa, issue bonds in the sum of not to exceed $45,000 for the purpose of constructing and equipping a new school house and procuring a site therefor within said School District?"

at which time and place you are hereby notified to appear.

This Notice is given by order of the Board of Directors of the Independent School District of Klemme, Hancock County, Iowa, pursuant to a sufficient petition in accordance with Sections 2820-d 1 et seq. of the Supplement to the Code of Iowa, 1913, as amended, and in accordance with the resolution of said Board duly adopted on the 25th day of January, 1923.

Dated at Klemme, Iowa. this 25th day of January, 1923.

LEW LEWIS
Secretary, Board of Directors.

(Jan 25, Feb. 1-8-15-22)

HAS WON MANY PRIZES

A. E. Johnson, of Laurens, Consistent Winner at Shows.

A. E. Johnson of Laurens, Iowa, who graduated from the two-year course in agriculture at Iowa State College in 1914, has been an exhibitor at the state corn show at Ames since its beginning and besides has been a consistent winner at the State fair, the Tri-State fair at Sioux City, various county fairs and at the International.

Mr. Johnson's showings have been mainly with corn and small grains. Out of his nearly 60 winnings, he has been in the running at the International, and although his placings were not high, they speak well for his products when the competition of the International is considered. In 1921 he took sixth for the best peck of Iowar oats and this year he placed sixteenth for the best 10 ears of Silver King corn.

Last year at the Clay County fair, with a showing of potatoes, corn and oats, he took six firsts and did nearly as well in the Pocahontas, Kossuth and Sioux county fairs.

RUST FIGHT SUCCESSFUL

Barberry Will Be Eradicated in Two Years.

An Iowa entirely free of common barberry, which due to its place in the life cycle of black stem rust has been causing losses totaling as high as one-third the total wheat crop of the state, is forecasted within the next two years by A. H. Muncie, state leader of barberry eradication. in Iowa.

"The rust in which we are most interested," says Mr. Muncie, "is the black stem rust. This disease needs the common barberry bush to complete its life cycle. Consequently, we can stop its growth by completely eradicating the barberry bushes."

Mr. Muncie says that through the present campaign, the barberry plants of the southeastern corner of Iowa are getting pretty well cleaned out. This territory under surveillance covers 36 counties. The rest of the state has already been surveyed.

BOOKKEEPING IS ESSENTIAL

Many Livestock Shipping Associations Are in Need of Accurate Records.

A complete and accurate set of records is the remedy for many of the ills under which a great many cooperative live stock shipping associations are operating today, according to Frank Robotka of the department of agricultural economics at Iowa State College, who has made a thorough study of livestock marketing accounts.

Cooperative marketing of livestock has had a greater growth than any other form of cooperative endeavor, but with this rapid expansion has come a series of perplexing problems. In most cases these may be traced either to the small volume of business, to inexperienced management, or in the case of a few localities, to undesirable competition among the livestock shipping associations themselves.

The possibility of working out a solution for these problems depending largely upon the management having a thorough knowledge of the relative advantages of different methods. Mr. Robotka says the question of what business policy is to be pursued in connection with these problems can be answered intelligently only when the details regarding the different shipments are summarized and analyzed.

To be adequate, a systemof records must provide for the keeping of two principal classes of information—the detail records or working records and the permanent records. The detail records are needed as evidence of business transacted and to furnish the authority any data needed in making entries in permanent records. They should be preserved for unless they are available when an audit is being made it is practically impossible to prove the accuracy of the books.

Mr. Robotka has compiled a great mass of information on this subject in Iowa Experiment Station bulletin No. 209, entitled, "Accounting records for livestock shipping associations." It may be had upon request to the bulletin editor, Iowa State College.

BUY INCUBATOR WITH CARE

For Average Farm 240-Egg Capacity is Best.

Methods of applying and controlling heat, controlling ventilation and moisture and the durability of the machine are the three most important points to be considered in the selection of an incubator, says R. L. Cochran, instructor in poultry husbandry at Iowa State College, after making a study of incubation. The most economical size of incubator for the average farm is that having a capacity of from 240 to 260 eggs according to Mr. Cochran.

In choosing a machine, be sure that the heating system is substantial and strong. It should be well supported and the egg chamber should be well protected from the outside temperature. This, according to Mr. Cochranfi is done by providing adequate insulation. If proper care is given to the construction of an incubator, useful service may be had over a long period of time.

Hot water and hot air are the two general methods of applying heat. The heat is controlled by the thermostat, which is located in the egg chamber.

There are several methods of controlling ventilation, such as openings on the bottom, top or sides of the egg chamber," Professor Cochran says. "In some cases slides are provided which make this problem very simple. In other cases only holes are present to admit fresh air. Some of the common ways of controlling moisture are the use of the sand pan, sprinkling the eggs, placing a dish of water with a sponge in the egg chamber or by wetting down the floor.

If good results are to be expected the instructions sent with each machine should be followed closely. Now is the time to get your incubator and get it ready for the hatching season.

PUBLIC AUCTION

Having decided to quit farming, I will hold a Public Sale at the Red Cloud Ranch 2 miles south and 2 1-2 miles east of Klemme; 3 miles east and 5 miles north of Goodell; and 6 1-2 miles north-west of Meservey, on——

Wednesday, Febr. 21

SALE WILL BEGIN PROMPTLY AT 11:00 A. M. FREE HOT LUNCH WILL BE SERVED AT NOON.

Come Early As All Small Articles Will Be sold Before Noon

151 HEAD OF LIVE STOCK 151

9 Head of Horses 9

Span of Bay Horses, 7 and 9 years old, weight 3600.

Span of Blacks, a mare and a gelding, 9 and 10 years old, weight 3100.

White Horse, 14 years old, weight 1200.

Span of Bays, a gelding and a mare, 8 and 10 years old, weight 3300.

Bay Horse, 8 years old, weight 1600.

Dark Bay mare, 13 years old, weight 1500.

44 Head of Cattle 44

1 Milch Cow.

43 Head of Herford Yearling Steers.

98 Head of Hogs 98

58 Sows Bred to Farrow in March.

40 Head of Fall Pigs.

The sows listed above are all well bred Duroc Jerseys, and Poland Chinas, bred to Registered Boars and are guaranteed not to be in-bred. They are sure good ones but are not registered. The entire herd are vaccinated for cholera.

FARM MACHINERY, ETC.

10-20 Titan Tractor, with steering device
3-bottom Oliver Tractor Plow
14-in. Kingman Gang Plow
16-in. Moline Sulky Plow
16-in. Sulky Plow
Walking Plow
Deering Corn Husker
Acme Binder, 8-ft. cut
McComick Mower 6-ft. cut
Deere Hay Loader
Hay Rake
Case double-row corn plow
David Bradley double-row corn plow
4 single-row corn plows
Rock Island 10-ft. Disc
2 8-ft. Rock Island Disc
John Deere Elevator with horse-power and lifting dump
4-section Flexible Harrow
Endgate Seeder
Fanning Mill
International 8-in. Grinder
50 feet 7-in. Belt, and 30 feet 5-in. Belt.
Deere Manure Spreader
Hand Corn Sheller
2 36-in. Box Wagons
Iron wheel Truck Wagon
Hay Rack
Hayes Corn Planter with 110 rods of wire
2 sets Bob Sleds
Slop Cart
Grindstone
Hog Oiler
3 rolls Hog Wire
8 sets Harness
1 Saddle 14 Horse Collars
4 sets Heavy Horse Blankets, 4 sets Fly Nets
6-horse Evener
4-horse Evener
3 sets of 3-horse Eveners
Seed Corn Rack
2 Feed Bunks
Tank Heater
1 Barrel of Crude Oil
220 gal. Kerosene Tank
Kitchen Cabinte
7-ft. Dining Table
And many other tools in daily use on a farm.

The farm machinery and tools listed above is in first class condition, as it has been well taken care of at all times.

Some full blooded Buff Orphington Roosters.

TERMS OF SALE——All sums of ten dollars and under, cash. Over ten dollars a credit of ten month's time will be given on approved security at 8 per cent interest from date of sale. No property is to be removed until settled for. All property at buyer's risk after sold.

Martin Jensen, Prop.

REEMSTMA & YOUNG, Auctioneers. FIRST NATIONAL BANK, KLEMME, CLERKS.

50 GOOD CIGARETTES 10¢

GENUINE "BULL" DURHAM TOBACCO

TYPEWRITER RIBBONS
All Makes

Typewriter Ribbons for sale at the Times Office. all of the Standard makes. Ribbons 75 cents each.

THE CITY DRAY LINE

—Is prepared to do your hauling carefully and promptly. We solicit your patronage. Charges reasonable.

Coal Hauling Done
Louie Knoke

DENTIST

J. L. Hesselhuus, D. D. S.
Office Hours 8-12 1-5:30
Office Opposite State Savings Bank; In Schaffer Bldg.
Evening Work By Appointment Only
Klemme, Ia. Phone 81

KLEMME DRAY LINE
Phone 2105

A share of your patronage is solicited. All work attended to promptly and carefully. We haul coal quick.

LLOYD LAU, PROP.

A Suit To Your Measure

Several have already been measured or their Spring Suits. See the new materials, models and medium prices.

They Cost no More than for ready mades and you'll get Style and Individuality not found in the ready-made suit—it only stands to reason—ask the real dresser.

CALL IN AND SEE WHAT I HAVE TO OFFER YOU

Also an elegant line of Men's Furaishings—new & up-to-date. Business is good thank you.

The Men's Fashion Shop

"Where Good Clothes Are Made."
A. W. JOHNSON
GARNER IOWA

Pantorium in connection

DESERT GOLD

by

ZANE GREY

Author of

Riders of the Purple Sage, Wildfire, Etc.

Copyright by Harper & Brothers.

A NEW GALE

SYNOPSIS.—Seeking gold in the desert, "Cameron," solitary prospector, forms a partnership with an unknown man whom he later learns is Jonas Warren, father of a girl whom Cameron wronged, but later married, back in Illinois. Cameron's explanations appease Warren, and the two proceed together. Taking refuge from a sandstorm in a cave, Cameron discovers gold, but too late; both men are dying. Cameron leaves evidence, in the cave, of their discovery of gold, and personal documents. Richard Gale, adventurer, in Casita, Mexican border town, meets George Thorne, lieutenant in the Ninth cavalry, old college friend. Thorne tells Gale he is there to save Mercedes Castaneda, Spanish girl, his affianced wife, from Rojas, Mexican bandit. Gale "roughhouses" Rojas and his gang, with the help of two American cowboys, and he, Mercedes and Thorne escape. A bugle call from the fort orders Thorne to his regiment. He leaves Mercedes under Gale's protection. The pair, aided by the cowboys, Charlie Ladd and Jim Lash, arrive in safety at a ranch known as Forlorn River, across the border. The fugitives are at Tom Belding's home. Belding is immigration inspector. Living with him are his wife and stepdaughter, Nell Burton. Gale, with Ladd and Lash, take service with Belding as rangers, Gale telling Belding the cause of his being a wanderer, a misunderstanding with his father concerning the son's business abilities.

CHAPTER V
—6—
A Desert Rose.

When Dick lay down that night he s dully conscious of pain and heade—that he did not feel well. Dete this, and a mind thronging with mories and anticipations, he succbed to weariness and soon fell eep.

t was light when he awoke, but strange brightness seen through at seemed blurred eyes. A mont passed before his mind worked arly, and then he had to make an ort to think. He was dizzy. When essayed to lift his right arm, an cruciating pain made him desist. en he discovered that his arm was dly swollen, and the hand had rst its bandages. The injured memr was red, angry, inflamed, and ice its normal size. He felt hot all er, and a raging headache conmed him.

Belding came stamping into the om.

"Hello, Dick. Do you know it's e? How's the busted fist this orning?"

Dick tried to sit up, but his effort as a failure. He got about half up, en felt himself weakly sliding back. "I guess—I'm pretty sick," he said. He saw Belding lean over him, feel s face, and speak, and then everying seemed to drift, not into darkss, but into some region where he d dim perceptions of gray moving ings, and of voices that were rebte. Then there came an interval hen all was blank. When he again closed his eyes the room was sunny, d cool with a fragrant breeze that ew through the open door. Dick lt better; but he had no particular sire to move or talk or eat.

On the next day he was very much proved.

"We've been afraid of blood poning," said Belding. "But my wife inks the danger's past. You'll have rest that arm for a while."

Ladd and Jim came peeping in at e door.

"Come in, boys. He can have comny—the more the better—if it'll ep him content. He mustn't move, at's all."

The cowboys entered, slow, easy, ol, kind-voiced.

"Shore it's tough," said Ladd, after e had greeted Dick. "You look used p."

Jim Lash wagged his half-bald, nburned head. "Musta been more'n ugh for Rojas."

"Gale, Laddy tells me one of our eighbors, fellow named Carter, is oing to Casita," put in Belding. Here's a chance to get word to your iend the soldier."

"Oh, that will be fine!" exclaimed ick. "I declare I'd forgotten horne. . . . How is Miss Castaeda? I hope—"

"She's all right, Gale. Been up and round the patio for two days. She nd Nell made friends at once. I'll all them in."

Both girls came in, Mercedes leadng. Like Nell, she wore white, and he had a red rose in her hand. She as swift, impulsive in her movenents to reach Dick's side.

"Senor, I am so sorry you were ll—so happy you are better."

Dick greeted her, offering his left and, gravely apologizing for the fact hat, owing to a late infirmity, he ould not offer the right. Her smile xquisitely combined sympathy, gratiude, admiration. Then Dick spoke o Nell, likewise offering his hand, hich she took shyly. Her reply was murmured, unintelligible one; but er eyes were glad, and the tint in er cheeks threatened to rival the ue of the rose she carried.

Presently Dick remembered to peak of the matter of getting news o Thorne.

"Senor, may I write to him? Will someone take a letter? . . . I shall hear from him!" she said; and er white hands emphasized her words.

"Assuredly. I guess poor Thorne is almost crazy. I'll write to him. . . . No, I can't with this crippled hand."

"That'll be all right, Gale," said Belding. "Nell will write for you. She writes all my letters."

So Belding arranged it; and Mercedes flew away to her room to write, while Nell fetched pen and paper and seated herself beside Gale's bed to take his dictation.

What with watching Nell and trying to catch her glance, and listening to Belding's talk with the cowboys, Dick was hard put to it to dictate any kind of a creditable letter. Nell met his gaze once, then no more. Belding was talking over the risks involved in a trip to Casita.

"I'll tell you, boys, I'll ride in myself with Carter. There's business I can see to, and I'm curious to know what the rebels are doing. Gale, I'm going to Casita myself. Ought to get back tomorrow some time. I'll be ready to start in an hour. Have your letter ready. And say—if you want to write home it's a chance. Sometimes we don't go to the P. O. in a month."

He tramped out, followed by the tall cowboys, and then Dick was enabled to bring his letter to a close. Mercedes came back, and her eyes were shining. Dick, remembering Belding's suggestion, decided to profit by it.

"May I trouble you to write another for me?" asked Dick, as he received the letter from Nell.

"It's no trouble, I'm sure—I'd be pleased," she replied.

That was altogether a wonderful speech of hers, Dick thought, because the words were the first coherent ones she had spoken to him.

He settled back and began.

Presently Gale paused, partly because of genuine emotion, and stole a look from under his hand at Nell. If she had in the very least been drawn to him— But that was absurd—impossible!

When Dick finished dictating, his eyes were upon Mercedes, who sat smilingly curious and sympathetic. How responsive she was! He looked at Nell. Presently she rose, holding out his letter. He was just in time to see a wave of red recede from her face. She gave him one swift gaze, unconscious, searching, then averted it and turned away. She left the room with Mercedes before he could express his thanks.

But that strange, speaking flash of eyes remained to haunt and torment Gale. It was indescribably sweet, and provocative of thoughts that he believed were wild without warrant.

"Hello, Dick! Good News and Bad!"

It dawned upon him that for the brief instant when Nell had met his gaze she had lost her shyness. It was a woman's questioning eyes that had pierced through him.

Next day Dick believed he was well enough to leave his room; but Mrs. Belding would not permit him to do so. She was kind, soft-handed, motherly, and she was always coming in to minister to his comfort; yet Gale felt that the friendliness so manifest in the others of the household did not extend to her. He was conscious of something that a little thought persuaded him was antagonism. It surprised and hurt him. He reflected that there might come a time when it would be desirable, far beyond any ground of every-day friendly kindliness, to have Mrs. Belding be well disposed toward him. So he thought about her, and pondered how to make her like him. It did not take very long for Dick to discover that he liked her. Her face, except when she smiled, was thoughtful and sad. But it seemed too strong, too intense, too nobly lined. It was a face to make one serious. Like a haunting shadow, like a phantom of happier years, the sweetness of Nell's face was there, and infinitely more of beauty than had been transmitted to the daughter. Dick believed Mrs. Belding's friendship and motherly love were worth much striving to win, entirely aside from any more selfish motive. He decided both would be hard to get.

Toward evening Gale heard the tramp of horses and Belding's hearty voice. Presently the rancher strode in upon Gale, shaking the gray dust from his broad shoulders and waving a letter.

"Hello, Dick! Good news and bad!" he said, putting the letter in Dick's hand. "Had no trouble finding your friend Thorne. Looked like he'd been drunk for a week! Say, he nearly threw a fit. I never saw a fellow so wild with joy. He made sure you and Mercedes were lost in the desert. He wrote two letters, which I brought. Casita is one h—l of a place these days. I tried to get your baggage, and think I made a mistake. We're going to see travel toward Forlorn River. The federal garrison got re-enforcements from somewhere, and is holding out."

"Do you think we'll have trouble here?" asked Dick, excitedly.

"Sure. Some kind of trouble sooner or later," replied Belding, gloomily. "Anyway, my boy, as soon as you can hold a bridle and a gun you'll be on the job, don't mistake me."

"With Laddy and Jim?" asked Dick, trying to be cool.

"Sure. With them and me, and by yourself."

Dick drew a deep breath, and even after Belding had departed he forgot for a moment about the letter in his hand. Then he unfolded the paper and read:

"Dear Dick—You've more than saved my life. To the end of my days you'll be the one man to whom I owe everything. Words fail to express my feelings.

"This must be a brief note. Belding is waiting, and I used up most of the time writing to Mercedes.

"I'm leaving Mercedes in your charge, subect, of course, to advice from Belding. Take care of her, Dick, for my life is wrapped up in her. By all means keep her from being seen by Mexicans. We are sitting tight here—nothing doing.

"If things quiet down before my commission expires, I'll get leave of absence, run out to Forlorn River, marry my beautiful Spanish princess, and take her to a civilized country, where, I opine, every son of a gun who sees her will lose his head, and drive me mad. Dick, harken to these glad words: Rojas is in the hospital. I was interested to inquire. He had a smashed finger, a dislocated collar bone, three broken ribs, and a fearful gash on his face. He'll be in the hospital for a month. Dick, when I meet that pigheaded dad of yours I'm going to give him the surprise of his life.

"Send me a line whenever any one comes in from F. R., and inclose Mercedes' letter in yours. Take care of her, Dick, and may the future hold in store for you some of the sweetness I know now! Faithfully yours,

"THORNE."

While Dick was eating his supper, with appetite rapidly returning to normal, Ladd and Jim came in. Their friendly advances were singularly welcome to Gale, but he was still backward. He allowed himself to show that he was glad to see them, and he listened. It took no keen judge of human nature to see that horses constituted Ladd's ruling passion.

"Shore it's a cinch Beldin' is agoin' to lose some of them animals of his," he said. "You can search me if I don't think there'll be more doin' on the border here than along the Rio Grande."

"Look-a-here, Laddy; you cain't believe all you hear," replied Jim, seriously. "I reckon we mightn't have any trouble."

"Back up, Jim. Shore you're standin' on your bridle. There's more doin' than the raidin' of a few hosses. An' Forlorn River is goin' to get hers!"

Another dawn found Gale so much recovered that he arose and looked after himself; not, however, without considerable difficulty and rather disheartening twinges of pain.

Some time during the morning he heard the girls in the patio and called to ask if he might join them. He received one response, a mellow, "Si, senor." It was not as much as he wanted, but considering that it was enough, he went out. In the shade of a beautiful tree, he found the girls, Mercedes sitting in a hammock, Nell upon a blanket.

"What a beautiful tree!" he exclaimed. "I never saw one like that. What is it?"

"Palo verde," replied Nell.

"Senor, palo verde means 'green tree,'" added Mercedes.

Little by little Dick learned details of Nell's varied life. She had lived in many places. As a child she remembered Lawrence, Kansas, where she studied for several years. Then she moved to Stillwater, Oklahoma, from there to Austin, Texas, and on to Waco, where her mother met and married Belding. They lived in New Mexico awhile, in Tucson, Arizona, in Douglas, and finally had come to lonely Forlorn River.

"Mother could never live in one place any length of time," said Nell. "And since we've been in the Southwest she has never ceased trying to find some trace of her father. He was last heard of in Nogales fourteen years ago. She thinks grandfather was lost in the Sonora desert. . . . And every place we go is worse. Oh, I love the desert. But I'd like to go back to Lawrence—or to see Chicago or New York—some of the places Mr. Gale speaks of . . . I remember the college at Lawrence, though I was only twelve. I saw races—and once real football . . . Mr. Gale, of course, you've seen games?"

"Yes, a few," replied Dick; and he laughed a little. It was on his lips then to tell her about some of the famous games in which he had participated. But he refrained from exploiting himself. There was little, however, of the color and sound and cheer, of the violent action and rush and battle incidental to a big college football game that he did not succeed in making Mercedes and Nell feel just as if they had been there. They hung breathless and wide-eyed upon his words.

Some one else was present at the latter part of Dick's narrative. The moment he became aware of Mrs. Belding's presence he remembered fancying he had heard her call, and now he was certain she had done so. Mercedes and Nell, however, had been and still were oblivious to everything except Dick's recital. He saw Mrs. Belding cast a strange, intent glance upon Nell, then turn and go silently through the patio.

Dick was haunted by the strange expression he had caught on Mrs. Belding's face, especially the look in her eyes. It had been one of repressed pain liberated in a flash of certainty. The mother had seen how far he had gone on the road of love. Perhaps she had seen more—even more than he dared hope.

CHAPTER VI
The Yaqui.

Toward evening of a lowering December day, some fifty miles west of Forlorn River, a horseman rode along an old, dimly defined trail.

This lonely horseman bestrode a steed of magnificent build, perfectly white except for a dark bar of color running down the noble head from ears to nose. Sweat-caked dust stained the long flanks. The horse had been running. He was lean, gaunt, worn, a huge machine of muscle and bone, beautiful only in head and mane, a weight-carrier, a horse strong and fierce like the desert that had bred him.

The rider fitted the horse as he fitted the saddle. He was a young man of exceedingly powerful physique, wide-shouldered, long-armed, big-legged. His lean face, where it was not red, blistered and peeling, was the hue of bronze. He had a dark eye, a falcon gaze, roving and keen. His jaw was prominent and set, mastiff-like; his lips were stern. It was youth with its softness not yet quite burned and hardened away that kept the whole cast of his face from being ruthless.

This young man was Dick Gale, but not the listless traveler, nor the lounging wanderer who, two months before, had by chance dropped into Casita. The desert had claimed Gale, and had drawn him into its crucible. The desert had multiplied weeks into years. Heat, thirst, hunger, loneliness, toil, fear, ferocity, pain—he knew them all. He had felt them all—the white sun, with its glazed, coalescing, lurid fire; the caked split lips and rasping, dry-puffed tongue; the sickening ache in the pit of his stomache; the insupportable silence, the empty space, the utter desolation, the contempt of life; the watch and wait, the dread of ambush, the swift flight; the fierce pursuit of men wild as Bedouins and as fleet, the willingness to deal sudden death, the pain of poison thorn, the stinging tear of lead through flesh; and that strange paradox of the burning desert, the cold at night, the piercing icy wind, the dew that penetrated to the marrow, the numbing desert cold of the dawn.

Ladd's prophecy of trouble on the border had been mild compared to what had become the actuality. With rebel occupancy of the garrison at Casita, outlaws, bandits, raiders in rioting bands had spread westward. Many a dark-skinned raider bestrode one of Belding's fast horses; and, indeed, all except his selected white thoroughbreds had been stolen. So the job of the rangers had become more than a patrolling of the boundary line to keep Japanese and Chinese from being smuggled into the United States.

On this December afternoon the three rangers, as often, were separated. Lash was far to the westward of Sonoyta, somewhere along Camino del Diablo, that terrible Devil's road, where many desert wayfarers had perished. Ladd had long been overdue in a prearranged meeting with Gale. The fact that Ladd had not shown up miles west of the Papago well was significant.

Gale dismounted to lead his horse, to go forward more slowly. He had ridden sixty miles since morning, and he was tired, and a not entirely healed wound in his hip made one leg drag a little. A mile up the arroyo, near its head, lay the Papago well. The need of water for his horse entailed a risk that otherwise he could have avoided. The well was on Mexican soil. Gale distinguished a faint light flickering through the thin, sharp foliage. Campers were at the well, and, whoever they were, no doubt they had prevented Ladd from meeting Gale. Ladd had gone back to the next waterhole, or maybe he was hiding in an arroyo to the eastward, awaiting developments.

Gale turned his horse, not without urge of iron arm and persuasive speech, for the desert steed scented water, and plodded back to the edge of the arroyo, where in a secluded circle of mesquite he halted. The horse snorted his relief at the removal of the heavy, burdened saddle and accoutrements. Gale poured the contents of his larger canteen into his hat and held it to the horse's nose.

"Drink, Sol," he said.

It was but a drop for a thirsty horse. However, Blanco Sol rubbed a wet muzzle against Gale's hand in appreciation. Gale loved the horse, and was loved in return. They had saved each other's lives, and had spent long days and nights of desert solitude together.

The spot of secluded ground was covered with bunches of galleta grass upon which Sol began to graze. Gale made a long halter of his lariat to keep the horse from wandering in search of water. Next Gale kicked off the cumbersome chapparejos, with their flapping, tripping folds of leather over his feet, and drawing a long rifle from his saddle sheath, he slipped away into the shadows. In the soft sand his steps made no sound. The twinkling light vanished occasionally, like a Jack-o'-lantern, and when it did show it seemed still a long way off. Gale was not seeking trouble or inviting danger. Water was the thing that drove him. He must see who these campers were, and then decide how to give Blanco Sol a drink.

Stooping low, with bushy mesquites between him and the fire, Gale advanced. The coyotes were in full cry. Gale heard the tramping, stamping thumps of many hoofs. The sound worried him. Foot by foot he advanced, and finally began to crawl. The nearer he approached the head of the arroyo, where the well was located, the thicker grew the desert vegetation. He secured a favorable position, and then rose to peep from behind his covert.

Gale Dismounted to Lead His Horse, to Go Forward More Slowly.

He saw a bright fire, not a cooking-fire, for that would have been low and red, but a crackling blaze of mesquite. Three men were in sight, all close to the burning sticks. They were Mexicans and of the coarse type of raiders, rebels, bandits that Gale had expected to see. A glint of steel caught his eye. Three short, shiny carbines leaned against a rock. A little to the left, within the circle of light, stood a square house made of adobe bricks. This house was a Papagon Indian habitation, and a month before had been occupied by a family that had been murdered or driven off by a roving band of outlaws. A rude corral showed dimly in the edge of firelight, and from a black mass within came the snort and stamp and whinny of horses.

Gale took in the scene in one quick glance, then sank down at the foot of the mesquite. He had naturally expected to see more men. But the situation was by no means new. This was one, or part of one, of the raider bands harrying the border. They were stealing horses, or driving a herd already stolen. Gale revolved questions in mind. Had this trio of outlaws run across Ladd? It was not likely, for in that event they might not have been so comfortable and carefree in camp. Were they waiting for more members of their gang? That was very probable. With Gale, however, the most important consideration was how to get his horse to water. Sol must have a drink if it cost a fight. There was stern reason for Gale to hurry eastward along the trail. He thought it best to go back to where he had left his horse and not make any decisive move until daylight.

With the same noiseless care he had exercised in the advance, Gale retreated until it was safe for him to rise and walk on down the arroyo. He found Blanco Sol contentedly grazing. Gale carried his saddle, blankets and bags into the lee of a little greasewood-covered mound, from around which the wind had cut the soil; and here, in a wash, he risked building a fire. By this time the wind was piercingly cold. Gale's hands were numb, and he moved them to and fro in the little blaze. Then he made coffee in a cup, cooked some slices of bacon on the end of a stick, and took a couple of hard biscuits from a saddlebag. Of these his meal consisted. After that he removed the halter from Blanco Sol, intending to leave him free to graze for a while.

"'A crippled Yaqui! Why the h—l did you saddle yourself with him?' roared Belding."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Follow the river and you will go to sea.

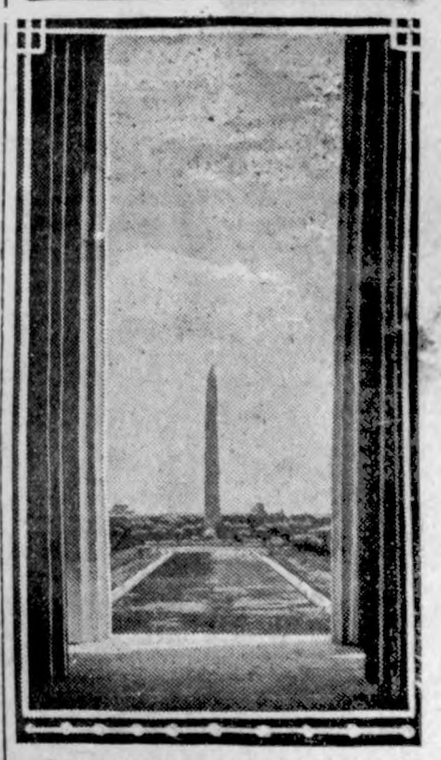
World Has Come to Have Right Idea of the Real Washington

In the room of the Masonic lodge at Alexandria, Va., is a pastel portrait of George Washington, painted from life in 1794 for the members of this lodge of which Washington was a member by William Williams of Philadelphia. Washington was then sixty-two years old and was in his second term as President. This portrait is perhaps the most faithful likeness of him in existence. The artist, according to instructions, painted him exactly as he was, omitting no blemish. The marks left by smallpox in his youth are plainly visible. No wrinkle is overlooked nor subdued. The eyes are faded. The corners of the mouth droop. It is not a handsome face, and bears little resemblance to the idealized portraits of Stuart. Moreover, it shows that at sixty-two Washington was an old man physically. He looks in the picture to be at least ten years older than that.

Yet there is a strength and a dignity in this severely honest portrait that makes it more impressive than the handsomer ones with which we are familiar, says a writer in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. One finds it hard to leave it. There are numerous interesting relics of Washington in this lodge room, but one comes back to this portrait again and again. This, one feels, is Washington himself, the real Washington, the man his intimate contemporaries knew. And seeing him there as he was, one feels that he loses nothing by this frank revelation. On the contrary, that scarred old face inspires more reverence than all the pictures that glossed his blemishes and made him something other than he was.

And it is no less true of his reputation, that reality is more impressive than fiction. Historical research and criticism have removed much of the glamor of legend and tradition that surrounded Washington. They have ruthlessly exposed his weaknesses, such as they could find. The net result of all this is a truer conception of the man, a better understanding of the vast difficulties with which he contended, a judgment of posterity that is based upon truth, and yet adds to rather than subtracts from our admiration for his personality and his services. We know Washington today—or we can know if we will but read—better than did most of his contemporaries, who were too close to the circumstances of the time to get a fair perspective. And we know him much better than in the succeeding years which tended to deify him, rather than to appraise him justly. We owe much to historical iconoclasm, when it has been truthful and sincere, for it has helped to make Washington more real, more substantial, and because, having done this without diminishing his greatness, it has established his place in history and in national reverence more securely and permanently.

Linking the Memorials



Two memorials, tributes to the Father of the Country and Abraham Lincoln, now face each other in the most beautiful section of the national capital. This view of the Washington monument was made from the base of the French statue of Lincoln, looking through the central columns of the Lincoln memorial.

Observe good faith and justice toward all nations. Cultivate peace and harmony with all. Religion and morality enjoin this conduct. And can it be that good policy does not equally enjoin it? It will be worthy of a free, enlightened, and at no distant period a great nation to give to mankind the magnanimous and too novel example of a people always guided by an exalted justice and benevolence. Who can doubt that in the course of time and things the fruits of such a plan would amply repay any temporary advantages which might be lost by a steady adherence to it?—George Washington.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Klemme, Iowa,
November 13, 1922.

Regular meeting of the Town Council held in Mayor F. J. Wenck's office.

Meeting called to order by Mayor Wenck.

Members present: Mayor F. J. Wenck; Clerk J. N. Day; Councilmen C. W. Wiles, Wm. Bachman, A. D. Gimer, Joe Johnson and Wm. Smith.

Members absent: None.

Motion made and seconded that the following bills be allowed:

Klemme Co-Op. Grain Co., coal	12.50
Albert Schmidt, dragging roads	3.00
Northern Lumber Company	1.75
Joe Johnson, 4 loads of sand	4.00
Standard Oil Co., gas	6.69
Lloyd Lau, hauling gravel	47.75
Henry Ludeke, 38 loads of gravel	19.00
Fred Ridder, repairs	3.25
John Henschen, for use of cement mixer	3.50

Moved to adjourn.

F. J. WENCK, Mayor,
J. N. DAY, Clerk.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Klemme, Iowa,
December 11, 1922.

Regular meeting of the Town Council held in Mayor F. J. Wenck's office.

Meeting called to order by Mayor Wenck.

Members present: Mayor F. J. Wenck; Clerk J. N. Day; Councilmen Wm. Smith, C. W. Wiles and Wm. Bachman.

Members absent: A. D. Gimer, and Joe Johnson, Councilmen.

Motion made and seconded that the following bills be allowed:

Fred Henschen, salary for October and November	$115.00
Lloyd Lau, hauling gravel	52.00
Henry Ludeke, 25 loads of gravel	12.50
Wm. Stille, 25 loads of gravel	12.50
Standard Oil Company, gas	8.60
Henry Swartz, hauling 18 loads of gravel	18.00
Albert Krause, dragging the streets	4.00

Moved to adjourn.

F. J. WENCK, Mayor,
J. N. DAY, Clerk.

UNDER GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION

The Farmer's Relation To This Bank

We consider the Farmer the very backbone of this great Empire. It is through his untiring efforts this community is permitted to enjoy its present prosperity.

A large percent of our business comes from the farmer. Several of our directors ae farmers. Service to the farmer is our first consideration.

WE INVITE YOUR BUSINESS, LARGE OR SMALL.

First National Bank

"The Bank for Everybody'.'

The Best Road

The few dollars you deposit with us to start a Savings Account are not so important in themselves. The big thing is that you have really begun to save.

There is no road that leads as directly to the shining goal as the Savings Road. Countless others who have traveled it before point the way for us to follow.

A Savings Account will be a help to you. Today is not too soon to start.

$1.00 Starts a Savings Account

State Savings Bank

Klemme Iowa

News of Klemme and Vicinity

See the new Chevrolet at Coobs & Buss Garage. adv

Free moving pictures, Monday, February 26 by Fox Chemical Co. 2

Chevrolt Touring Car, $590.00, at Coobs & Buss Garage. adv

Remember the free movies, Feb. 26 by Fox Chemical Co. 2wp

Ed. Jacobs went to Des Moines Tuesday night on business.

Mr. R. E. Lee Aldrige, of Rowan, was here on business Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman, of Godell were Klemme visitors Wednesday.

Co. Supt. J. R. Baggs was here last Thursday afternoon on business.

Miss Marie Blank was visiting her sister at Goodell Monday.

Henry Lewis and wife drove over to Clear Lake Sunday for a visit.

Martin Jensen has a half page ad in this isue advertising his sale. He has a fine list of stuff to sell.

Famous Lutby Battry, guaranteed for 2 years. Coobs & Buss Garage. adv

Mrs. Jacobs is enjoying a visit from her mother and baby sister from Clear Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Buss spent Sunday at the Frank Buss home east of town.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Grim, of Clear Lake, were Klemme visitors Tuesday.

Mrs. Gretlidg from Clear Lake, was in Klemme Tuesday calling on Mrs. Charlie Luick.

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Hughes from Goodell. were Klemme visitors Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Ruka, of Goodell were Klemme callers Friday.

Mr. Wm. Voiles of Belmond was in Klemme on business Friday. He sells nursery supplies.

The Greimann boys shot two wolves Sunday. Leave it to them, they can sure get 'em.

Dr. J. L. Hesselhuus was not at his office Monday, he was one of the numerous grippe victims.

Mr. H. Ludwig returned to his home at Nevada Friday after spending a week at the E. S. D. Kahrs home.

Miss Minnie Lenz was on the sick list a few days this week and was not at the post office. Her place was taken by Minnie Lau.

Clarence Wterman laid off from the bank a few days the past week while he enteretained Old Man Mr. Grippe for a few days.

Wellemeyer reports that his furniture sale was very successful. He sold practically his entire stock of furniture during the sale which came to a close Saturday.

Mr. Henry Luick and his mother of Belmond were Klemme visitors at the LuVerne Smith home Thursday of the past week. The visitors were Mrs. Smith's mother and broth er.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Sherman returned to their home in Wyoming Sunday. They were called to this vicinity by the illness of Mrs. Shermans mother, who is much better at this time.

Mrs. Truer Davenport, of Belmond came last Wednesday to attend the wedding of Hartbeck-Rosenau near Ventura. She is an aunt of the bride. She spent a week visiting in this vicinity.

Mr. R. H. Fouts, of Sioux City, Ia., a nephew of Mrs. A. D. Gimer, came last week Wednesday for a visit and also on matters of business He is manager of the Parsons Supply Co., who handle creamery supplies.

Dr. J. L. Hesselhuus and wife who spent a week in Minneapolis, returned to Klemme Saturday night. They were accompanied by their niece who will stay here until next summer.

Free educational moving picture of interest to farmers showing The Secret of Successful Stock Raising. You are invited Feb. 26 by the Fox Chemical Co. 2p

Mr. C. A. Luick went to Clear Lak Tuesday and returned to Klemme on Wednesday evening. The buss did not run between Mason City and Garner Wednesday as the paving is still blocked with snow.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" showed here last Friday evening to a super-packed house; in fact a large number stood up in the back of the hall to see the play. It was a real good show and pleased everyone.

Art Wellemeyer selected rather a chilly day for a horseback journey yesterday. The thermometer hovered around the zero mark but Art thought it an ideal day for a jaunt with Dobbin, so he took a sixteen mile ride.

The home talent play, "A Poor Married Man" put on by the Garner Legion here last Thursday night was as good a home talent play as w have ever sen, and was far better than most road shows. They drew a packed house.

Mrs. Ed. G. Ell and son Milvern drove down from Mankato, Saturday to see Mrs. Philip Ell at Mason City, who is sick. They then came to Klemme for an over Sunday visit at the R. W. Elder home, returning to Mankato Monday—in the snow.

The Epworth League of the First Methodist Church had a Valentine Party in the bank basement Tuesday evening. Although the weather was stormy and cold nineteen members turned otu. The room was nicely decorated with red and white. Refreshments were served. All report a good time.

For the benefit of our California readers we might say that we have had some real winter weather the past few days. Below zero weather with snow and high winds—a regular old fashioned blizzard. But the storm has cleared off again and the weather is looking better again.

Quite a number of people in this town and vicinity have been wrestling with colds and grippe the past week—Ye Editor included. We have had it in the neck and for a number of days could not talk (lucky for the wife) and now we are practicing up on singing—still we don't seem to be able to make any perceptable squeak which might resemble talk.

Mrs. Barr has been at Spirit Lake for about a week visiting with her mother and intended to return to Klemme last night. The train did not run from Estherville that day so she went to Clarion and Mr. Barr would drive over to get her. He at least made a noble attempt but got stuck in a snow drift south of here at the Carpenter place and so hoofed it back to town and took the train to Belmond. We don' know what he did after that, but anyway both Mr. and Mrs. Barr are again in this city.

New Plan Books

At the Northern Lbr. Co. Office

NOW IS THE TIME to get busy if you're figuring on doing any building for the coming year. We have received several Sets of Plan Books. Come and get one, take it home and look it over; maybe it might get you in the notion of building a new house, barn or other building that you have needed for the last couple of years. The outlook for 1923 is good for everybody and if you are going to build this year here is a little hint "Plan now, buy early and save some money." We will help.

Watch for our Sale Announcement once
Red Top Steel Posts

Norhern Lumber Co

..DANGER..

ATTENTION! Radio Enthusiasts

Amateur Radio Enthusiasts Who Anticipated Installing Receiving Sets Should Pay Particular Attention to the Danger Connected With This Installation, And Should Be Guided by the Following Rules:

NEVER climb a pole to which wires are attached. It might be in contact with high voltage wires that are dangerous to life.

NEVER string aerials over or under any other wires. Should these two sets of wires come in contact with one another the aerials might become dangerously charged.

NEVER attach radio aerials or anything else to poles carrying wires of any sort. Accidental contact with power wires may cause injury or death, or bring about fires.

ALWAYS attach radio aerials to substantial supports so located that if either the supports or aerial wires breaks it cannot come in contact with other wires.

Iowa Falls Electric Co.
IOWA FALLS, IOWA

STILLE'S IMPLEMENT NEWS

VOLUME 1. Thursday, February 15, 1923 NUMBER

Clean Your Seed Oats

You can spread more weeds in the field with your oats if it isn't cleaned than you can cultivate out of the field in two summers. If your fanning mill is poor or if you have none now is the time to fix yours up or look around for a new one. A good fanning mill is just as important as a good cream separator. We have several good mills on the floor now, so you better come in the next time you are in town and look them over.

This would be a terrible world if we were all as badly off as we think.

29 BALL AND ROLLER BEARINGS

These dust-proof, quiet-running bearings releive the McCormick-Deering 10-20 of all excess friction—at drawbar or belt work the power of the cylinder, valve-in-head kerosene motor is delivered without strain or drag. In fact, every unit of the McCormick-Deering 10-20 has been designed for long life, economy, full power, and operating comfort. The McCormick-Deering 10-20, like all Harvester tractors, is an all-purpose farm power plant. It is equipped with belt pulley, large steel platform, wide fenders, throttle governor, adjustable drawbar, reliable brakes, and removable lugs. Come in and find out more about the McCormick-Deering 10-20. You will like it.

Many a nose is now in good running condition.

Look 'em Over Now

You wouldn't think of sending an urgent call for a doctor whom you knew to drive a habitually balky horse, or a worn out car. A balky or worn out planter or seeder is about as dependable as a balky horse, and much more expensive. It's an injustice to a well prepared seed bed to go into it with such a machine. Of course there are degrees of "worn outness" and you may not be aware that your plantr or seeder has now reached that stage. Why isn't now a good time to look it over? Then if you need a new one you have plenty of time to decide on which one to buy. We have a line here that is of field-proved dependability. glad to tell you all about t next time you are in.

THE GENUINE ARE CHE

Some farmers buy imitati without knowing it. In ma these parts give trouble for reasons and the owner bla manufacturer of the machi posing that he also made the See that you get genuine your I H C and John Deere They cost no more than th tion, yet they fit much be wear longer. Hereafter in parts for your machines it you to insist upon having th ine parts. See that your repa the genuine I H C and Joh trade mark and not the wor Fit" or "Made For."

THE KLEMME TIMES

wenty-seventh Year—Number 24. Klemme, Iowa, Thursday Afternoon, February 22, 1923. $1.50 In Advance—$2.00 Outside of County

DEATH SUMMONS MANY HERE THE PAST WEEK

KATHERINE WAGNER ULRICH

Katherine Wagner was born in ussia, Germany, March 17, 1835, d died at the home of her son, orge, on Thursday evening, Feb- ary 15th, 1923. When she was a ar old, the family came to Ameri- and settled in the state of Indi- a. where, a few years later, the her died. At the age of 18 years e deceased was employed at the me of the family of President W. Harrison, where she was treated one of the family. Many experi- ces she had while there, brought ppy memories to her in later years. ter the mother had again married, e family moved to Clayton County, wa, where the deceased soon came der the influence of the Gospel, e converted to God and joined the thodist church. In her 22nd ar she was united in marriage to hn Ulrich. Five children, three s and two daughters, were born this union. In the year 1893 the nily moved to Hancock County, d later to the city of Garner, ere, in the year 1904, the hus- nd died. Finding it difficult to ger attend to her household dut- on account of the infirmities of age, Mother Ulrich came to make r home and spend her last years th her son George and his family. re she received the best of care ring the many days of health and kness. In the last weeks she of- expressed the desire to go home her reward.

Knowing that the end was draw- near. she desired the sacrament the Lord's Supper, tehreby evi- ncing her faith in Christ, and her st in the merits of His sacraficial ath. O, that the Mantle of the orld overcoming" faith of our hers and mothers might fall upon e shoulders of their children and ildren's children for many genera- ns.

The deceased leaves to mourn her parture her three sons, John W., Clarion, Iowa; George H., of emme; James M., of Cedar Falls, wa; her daughter, Mrs. Lizzie Eif- rt, of Monona. Iowa; 14 grand- ildren, 4 great grandchildren and merous friends. One daughter, s. Helen Fritz, died some 11 years o.

Thus, one by one our friends pass o'er the bright and peaceful shore;
And they join in glad surprise
e glorious anthem of the skies.

Funeral services were conducted her pastor, W. C. Bergmann, who s assisted by Rev. Gedye, on Sun- y afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, Feb- ary 18th. Burial was made in e Garner Cemetery.

—W. C. Bergmann.

Card of Thanks

We the undersigned wish to ex- ess our heartfelt thanks to our ighbors and friends for their many pressions of sympathy and respect ring these days of our bereave- ent.

John W. Ulrich,
George H. Ulrich,
James M. Ulrich,
Mrs. Lizzie Eiffert.

CLARA AMANDA SCHLEI

Clara Amanda Schlei was born in berty Township. Hancock Coun y, wa, December 24, 1881. and pass- from this life, at St. Luke's Hos- al, St. Paul, on February 15th. 23, thus reaching the age of 41 ars, 1 month and 22 days The se of her death was general peri- itis brought on by an ulcer of the mach.

She was the eldest daughter born o the pioneer home of Mr. and s. Fred Schlei of this township, d here she grew to womanhood. account of her mother's poor alth the responsibilities of the me fell largely upon her.

She was kind and helpful to her nger brothers and sisters, where- e they miss her all the more now ause she was more than a sister them. During the last ten years was a nurse, making her home in neapolis. In her work she was ed to many a saddened home to ng cheer and comfort, and help viate pain and distress.

The many words of comfort. and the bouquets sent her during her illness and later, speak very dis- tinctly of the love and respect she held in the hearts of her patients and friends.

During a severe case of nursing, that often tries the strength of physi- cal endurance in a nurse, the de- ceased became very ill and was tak- en to the Hospital for an operation. Everything that was within the pow- ers of the doctors and nurses to save her life was done, but to no avail. When she realized the end was drawing near, she said to one of her nurses, "If I go before brother Edd gets here, please tell him for me that I am ready and willing to go. Tell him, I am happy and tell the folks all Goodbye."

She leaves to mourn her so early departure, her aged mother, Mrs. Fred Schlei; her six brothers, Will- iam of Dubuque, Iowa; Benjamin of Seattle, Washington; Edward of Fenton, Iowa; Henry, Elmer and Alfred of this township; her two sisters, Mrs. Edward Weisbrod of Fenton, Iowa; and Mrs. Edwin Jost- en, of Klemme; and numerous more distant relatives and friends. Her father and her brother, Emil, pre- ceded her in death some 24 years ago.

Sometime, when all life's lessons have been learned,
And suns and stars forevermore
have set,
And we shall see how all God's plans
are right,
The things o'er which we grieved
with lashes wet,
Will flash before us out of life's dark night,
As stars shine most in deeper tints of blue;
And we shall see how Gods plans are right,
And how what seems reproof was love most true.

Funeral services took place at the Liberty Methodist Church Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. The body was lain to rest in the Liberty town- ship Cemetery.

—W. C. Bergmann.

Card Of Thanks

We wish to thank all who assisted us during the illness and death of our daughter and sister. and for the flowers and other favors.

Mrs. Fred Schlei, and Family.

BERT TRUMBELL

Bert Trumbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Trumbell, was born at Belmond, Iowa. May 21, 1902.

His mother died July 28 1902 leav ing Bert with no remembrance of her. His grandmother, Mrs. J. W. Brooks, took him to her home and was a faithful and kind mother to him, up untill the time of his death.

Bert was not a strong physical, but possessed a very keen intellect, and through his whole school life, stood high in his class work. He graduated from the Belmond High School in June, 1920. After gradu- ating from high school he took a business course at Des Moines, and then entered the business world for himself.

Though meeting many difficulties in life, he always demonstrated a high degree of hopefullness and self reliance, working during all his va- cations while attending school, in order that he might finish.

He was stricken with Pneumonia while at work in Des Moines, and died at the Congregational Hospital on Monday, February 19, 1923, at the age of 20 years, 9 months and 28 days. and was buried at Goodell, Iowa, Wednesday, February 21st, 1923.

Thus another young life has gone from amang us, and one that will be missed. Not in the sense of the passing of an old man, but because of the sterling, manly qualities of his young life. To those of us who knew him well, we love to remember the kind self-sacrificing quality of his life in his relation to his grand- mother, with whom he lived. Though short, we feel his life was well spent.

The deceased leaves to mourn his loss his father, Chas. Trumbell, of Stockton, Calif.; four sisters, Iva, (Mrs. Chas. Courter) in California; Iris and Wilma, at Belmond, Iowa; his grandparents, Mrs. James Brooks and Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Trumbell; besides aunts and uncles and innum- erable friends.

This obituary was written by Dr. G. F. McBurney, of Belmond, Iowa, a life long friend of the deceased.

The funeral services were con- ducted at the Methodist Episcopal Church in Klemme by the Rev. A. B. Gedye, pastor, assisted by Rev. W. A. Wilkinson, of Belmond; and interment being made in the Cem- etery at Goodell, Iowa.

Card Of Thanks

We wish to extend our sincere thanks to the friends and neighbors for aid and sympathy; also for the floral offerings, during the illness and death of our Dear Mother.

Mrs. Mary Baumeister,
Mrs. Anna Kaiser,
Wm. Friedow and Family,
Martin Friedow and Family.

FRIENDS SHARE IN HENRY CRIST WILL

Garner Man Receives $5,000; Three Charitable Homes Are Remembered Too

BELMOND. Feb. 22.—The will of Belmond's late lamented citizen, Hen ry I. Crist, provides, for certain friends, legacies as follows: to T. A. Craig of Almo, Texas, $15,000; Mrs. Ethel Fisher of Honolulu, Hawaii, $5,000; H. A. Craig of Gazella, Cal., $10.000; Henrietta Burden, Rockford Ill., $5,000 and to Henry Erskine of Garner, $5,000.

The will further provides, that all taxes, of whatever nature or kind, to which the foregoing legacies are amenable, shall be first paid out of the estate, meaning that each of the foregoing legatees shall receive the full amount of such legacy.

Following the liquidation of all debts, and all other expenses pertin- ent to the probating of this his last will and testament, that the balance then remaining shall be equally di- vided between the Iowa Children's Home of Des Moines; the American Home Finding Association of Ottum- wa, and the Christian Home at Coun- cil Bluffs.

A. L. Luick. president of the State Bank of Belmond, is named as ex- ecutor. The total value of the es- tate is problematical, by reason of the many generous gifts made by him in his life-time; but the current opinion is that it will aggregate something like $200,000.

Success

It's doing your job the best you can.
And being just to your fellow man;
It's making money, but holding friends.
And staying true to your aims and ends;
It's figuring how and learning why
And looking forward and thinking high,
And dreaming a little and doing much;
It's keeping always in closest touch,
With what is finest in word and deed
It's being thorough yet making speed
It's daring blithely the field o chance
While making labor a brave romance;
It's going onward despite defeat
And fighting staunchly but keeping sweet;
It's being clean and it's playing fair;
It's laughing lightly at Dame Despair;
It's looking up at the stars above,
And drinking deeply of life and love;
It's struggling on with a will to win,
It's taking loss with a cheerful grin;
It's sharing sorrow and work and mirth,
And making better this good old
earth;
It's serving, striving through strain
and stress,
It's doing your noblest—that's success. —Selected.

BEIER—RIEMER

At high noon, in Garner, Iowa, on Wednesday, February 21, 1923, a happy home wedding took place in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Riemer, when their daughter, Eliza- beth, was joined in marriage to Mr. Emil B. Beier, of Liberty Township.

The home was tasetfully decorat- ed in blue and white. Promptly at twelve o'clock, to the strains of a wedding march played by Miss Lydia Beier, siter of the Groom, the bridal party entered the room, led by Rev. A. W. Gauger, followed by two little nieces of the groom who functioned as flower girls as well as by little Marcelo Blumer, niece of the Bride. who acted as ring bearer. Rev. A. W. Gauger spoke the words that pro- nounced them husband and wife, us- ing the beautiful ring ceremony of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The Bride was beautifully attired in white, while the Groom wore a blue serge suit.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Beier are so favorably known that they need no comment; both have traits that make for happiness and success in life. We predict for them a useful life, such as their sterling qualities war- rant. They will be an asset to the community in which they expect to live, which is Liberty Township.

They left on Wednesday evening on a wedding trip to Waterloo and other points before starting house- keeping.

May life's journey be a happy one for them.

REUBEN—ALBERTS

On Wednesday, February 21st, 1923, occured the marriage of Miss Jennie Albers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Albers, to Mr. William Reuben, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Reuben. Both of these young people are well and favorably known to our readers. They are popular with the young people of the community.

In honor of the happy young couple, their many friends tendered them a reception at the Geo. Albers home the same evening. The even- ing was enjoyed in dancing as the chief entertainment. followed by a generous wedding supper.

They will go to house keeping on ne farm of Henry Reuben five miles west of Klemme, where they will be at home to their many friends.

Th Times joins with the fri ends of the couple in wishing them the best in life.

THAT ELECTION MONDAY WILL BE A THRILLER

WILL BE A BIG DAY IN THE OLD TOWN THEY SAY

This Election Promises To Be The Greatest In History

It is hardly necessary to tell our readers that on Monday, February 26 will be the day to go to the polls and cast a vote either for an addi- tion to the present school, or vote for a brand new building.

The polls will be open from 1:00 P. M. until 6:00 P. M., as per the school laws of this grand state of ours. There is no question but that every voter in the district will be at the polls to cast his or her vote one way or the other.

There are two propositions to be voted upon. One is to settle the question whether or not an addition shall be added to the present school building at a cost of not to exceed $15,000. The other is a proposition for a new building at a cost of not to exceed $45,000.

Each of the propositions have a large number of backers and it is a hard matter to even guess which proposition will have the biggest backing. There is also a probabili- ty that neither proposition will be carried, as it will be a three-corner- ed fight and the advantage will be will those who will vote no against either or both. On the other hand we know that there are some voters who have said they will vote yes on both propositions with the idea of off-setting the "nos." They wil do this because they want some kind of an improvement and do not partic- ularly care which one carries. The idea is quite sensible at that as it will hlp to break up the three corn- ered fight and give one or the oth- er of the propositions a better chance of winning.

But this is not all. Another new petition, signed in a large way by those who signed the first addition petion, has been circulated and pre- sented to the school board, asking them to call an election for the pur- pose of voting on a proposition of raising $19.500 for the purpose of constructing a brick addition to the present school building (instead of a frame addition) and covering both the new and the old building with Kellastone or a like coating to make it all appear uniform. That is the substance of the petition. It was circulated because a number of tax payers thought it was foolish to go ahead with a frame addition, as the idea is to make a permanent sturct- ure that can easily be built onto if that time should come. The board is putting this petition through the necessary channels and an election date will be set for in due time.

No doubt this new petition which has been filed will have some bear- ing on the coming election, but just what effect it will have we do not know. Possibly it may have this effect on the election: Those who were formerly in favor of the frame addition and who are now for the proposed permanent addition will no doubt vote against the frame addi- tion Monday, and with those in favor of a new building also voting a- gainst the frame addition, they are sure to knock it completely off the map. And on the other hand the people in favor of the new building are going to stick solid on that and therefore that proposiion may carry. Now, we may be entirely wrong on that point, but we think we will not miss it sa far at that. Now, then, we will just suppose that the new building carries (we know the frame addition will fail) and now comes election number 2 to decide on the question of voting for the perman- ent addition costing $19,500. Now then, there is no question but what it will have a lot of support. But there are going to be quite a num- ber who will look at it in the follow- ing light: If a permanent addition is going to cost us $19,500, would it not be better to spend a little more money and get a brand new build- ing? Those people will vote against that proposition as well as those in strong favor of a new building. We say it is a hard matter to dope out and there may have to be several elctions before the puzzle is worked out. As we have said before we may have this all doped out wrong, but we figure our opinion in this case is about as acurate as the next man's which perhaps is not saying much for either.

People have their minds pretty well made up as to how they ar go- ing to vote Monday, but whatever thy do we sincerely hope they will go to the polls as progressive citi- zens of Klemme and will go with the intention of doing good for our schools. Be a booster, not a knock- er; build up, don't tear down. Put Klemme on the map as a live, pro- gressive town with good schools.

We are still "under the weather" and too hoarse to talk and have been unable to join in the arguments on the street, so we are saying our little piece in print, and if you like it, so much the better. and if you don't like it—well you don't, that's all.

WALKS FOUR BLOCKS IN THIN ATTIRE ON A BET; FINED FOR EXPOSURE

STRATFORD, Feb. 22.—On a wa- ger of $10, J. L. Fisher walked to his home from the C. A. Danielson drug store, a distance of four blocks, Tuesday morning, clad only in a breech cloth made by tying his shirt about himself. At the time the mer- cury registered around 15 degrees below zero, with a 45 mile gale.

Yesterday in the mayor's court he was fined $100 for indecent expos- ure and is sick with a severe cold.

STILL ASLEEP AFTER 48 DAYS, BUT BETTER

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 17— Joseph G. Wright. said by physicians to have been asleep 48 days, today was reported to be gaining strength and recovering, although unconscious. Dr. J. A. Parker, who diagnosed the dis- ease as toxic meningitis, said he expected Wright to come out of his sleep within ten days.

For Sharp Tuning

An exceptionally large antenna makes it more difficult to tune a radio set sharply, and for this rea- son it is advised that a very short, single-wire antenna (approximately 90 feet long, measuring from the apparatus to the far end) be used. This single-wire antenna should be stretched away from all metallic ob- jects, and run straight and clear of all obstructions.

SCOUT CORNER

The regular meeting of the Boy Scouts was held at Headquarters on Monday night. The usual business was attended to and then the Scouts enjoyed themselves by boxing. Al- bert Keeper furnished the gloves and nearly everybody had a chance to secure a black-eye free of charge. We were sorry to see our Assistant Scout Master, Fred Arnold, appear on the streets the next morning with a black eye. Upon inquiry we then learned that "Fritz" earned the prize in a bout with Scribe Jack Welle- meyer. We wish to thank Scout Keeper for the use of the gloves. He says that he will bring them to the next meeting, so don't fail to miss the fun, scouts.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS

The Camp Fire Girls held a spec- al meeting in the First National Bk. basement on Saturday afternoon.

The purpose of the meeting was to prepare for the chicken dinner, to be given Wednesday evening, Feb. 21st.

The girls sold a large number of tickets for the dinner, and are ex- pecting to feed a large crowd.

KLEMME SHIPPING ASSOCIATION The Klemme Ship- ping Associat'n has been reorganized and is now ready to receive stock. Notify the manager, Joe Johnson of what you have to ship.

ROYAL NEIGHBORS Meet every second and fourth Friday at the Odd Fellows Hall, Klemme, Ia,

NOTICE OF SPECIAL SCHOOL ELECTION

——T——

Public Notice is hereby given to the qualified voters of the Independent School District of Klemme, in the County of Hancock, State of Iowa, that a special election of the voters of said District will be held on the 26th day of February, 1923, at the Town Hall, corner 2nd and Hancock streets, Klemme, Iowa, from 1 o'clock P. M. until 6 o'clock P. M. at which time there will be submitted to the voters of said District the following proposition:

"Shall the Independent School District of Klemme, in the County of Hancock, State of Iowa, issue bonds in the sum of not to exceed $15,000 for the purpose of constructing and equipping an addition to the school house within said School District?"

at which time and place you are hereby notified to appear.

This notice is given by order of the Board of Directors of the Independent School District of Klemme, Hancock County, Iowa, pursuant to a sufficient petition in accordance with Sections 2820-d 1 et seq. of the Supplement to the Code of Iowa, 1913, as amended, and in accordance with a resolution of said Board, duly adopted on the 25th day of January, 1923.

Dated at Klemme, Iowa, this 25th day of January, 1923.

LEW LEWIS
Secretary, Board of Directors.

(Jan 25, Feb. 1-8-15-22)

GEORGE ZINN, M. D.

Physician and Surgeon

Office opposite from Hotel Klemme

Phone No. 19

Eyes Examined — Glasses Fitted

NOTICE OF SPECIAL SCHOOL ELECTION

——T——

Public Notice is hereby given to the qualified voters of the Independent School District of Klemme, in the County of Hancock, State of Iowa, that a special election of the voters of said District will be held on the 26th day of February, 1923, at the Town Hall, corner 2nd and Hancock Streets, Klemme, Iowa, from 1 o'clock P. M. until 6 o'clock P. M., at which time there will be submitted to the voters of said district the following proposition:

"Shall the Independent School District of Klemme, in the County of Hancock, State of Iowa, issue bonds in the sum of not to exceed $45,000 for the purpose of constructing and equipping a new school house and procuring a site therefor within said School District?"

at which time and place you are hereby notified to appear.

This Notice is given by order of the Board of Directors of the Independent School District of Klemme, Hancock County, Iowa, pursuant to a sufficient petition in accordance with Sections 2820-d 1 et seq. of the Supplement to the Code of Iowa, 1913, as amended, and in accordance with the resolution of said Board duly adopted on the 25th day of January, 1923.

Dated at Klemme, Iowa, this 25th day of January, 1923.

LEW LEWIS
Secretary, Board of Directors.

(Jan 25, Feb. 1-8-15-22)

PUBLIC AUCTION

Having rented a smaller farm I will sell at Public Auction, on the W. C. Schmidt farm, 5 miles west and 2 miles south of Klemme; and 3 miles north and 4 miles east of Kanawha, on——

Tuesday, February 27

SALE BEGINS PROMPTLY AT 12:00 O'CLOCK. FREE HOT LUNCH SERVED AT NOON.

73 HEAD OF LIVE STOCK 73

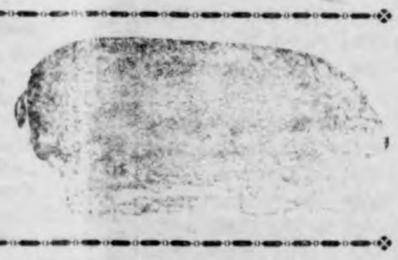
9 Head of Horses 9

Bay Mare, 4 years old, weight 1450.
Bay Gelding, 3 years old, weight 1400.
Brown Mare, 3 years old, weight 1150.
Black Team, 7 and 8 years old, weight 3100.
Bay Horse, 5 years old, weight 1500.
Black Mule, 1 year old,
Span of Mules, 2 and 3 years old, weight 1800.

44 Head of Cattle 44

Some are fresh and others will be fresh by day of sale.
2 two-year old Heifers.
9 one-year old Heifers.
21 Steers coming one-year old.

20 Head of Brood Sows 20



Bred to farrow in April and May.

Farm Machinery

1 Disc
1 20-foot Drag
1 1-2 h. p. Gasoline Engine.
2-hole Corn Sheller
Walking Plow
Robinson Manure Spreader
Triple Box and Wagon
Seed Corn Rack
Litter Carrier
Iowa Cream Separator, 750 lb. cap.
1 Set of Breechen Harness
1 Set of 1 1-2 inch Back Pad Harness
Fly Nets
Horse Collars
4-horse Evener

And many other articles too numerous to mention.

TERMS OF SALE——All sums of ten dollars and under, cash. Over ten dollars a credit of ten month's time will be given on approved security at 8 per cent interest from date of sale. No property is to be removed until settled for.

Tim Waddingham

COL. B. A. REEMSTMA, Auctioneer. FIRST NATIONAL BANK, KLEMME, CLERKS.

HAS WON MANY PRIZES

A. E. Johnson, of Laurens, Consistent Winner at Shows.

A. E. Johnson of Laurens, Iowa, who graduated from the two-year course in agriculture at Iowa State

NOT NATURAL END

Death From Old Age Never in Scheme of Things.

Man Really Is the Only Animal That Is Coddled, Propped Up, and Kept Alive.

Those wistful clingers to life who cherish the ignoble ambition of dying of old age, if they must die at all, may be shocked to hear that death from old age is not a natural death. There's a paradox that will bear the light of reason, for it can easily be shown that such a death is quite remote from the normal operations of Dame Nature when she is left to her own devices, says a writer in the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Dame Nature would have made short work of Uncle Johnny Shell, Kentucky's senility freak, who died the other day at the reputed age of 134, had not the driveling old man's relatives and neighbors, to say nothing of the rustic showmen who sometimes exploited him as the "oldest man on earth," conspired to protect him from the normal accidents of injury or starvation that otherwise overtake the worn-out individuals of any species.

No creature is permitted by Dame Nature to "lag superfluous on the stage" until overtaken by the dissolution of absolute senility. Wild animals don't live to die of old age. They don't linger along as doddering dependents, like the Kentucky Methuselah.

The superannuated elephant or buffalo isn't supported or tended by the herd. It retires gracefully to a solitary state of existence and maintains itself as well as it can with its failing faculties until it starves to death, stumbles over a cliff or is overcome by enemies.

Whatever the end may be, it comes pretty quickly and is considered by some far more merciful than the protracted life that Uncle Johnny Shell dragged out for so many years. The elderly tiger, no longer spry enough to catch the nimble antelope, becomes a man-eater and poaches babies on the outskirts of some village. Then somebody gets up a tiger hunt, and an explosive bullet saves it from the unnatural disgrace of dying of old age.

Who ever found a senile or enfeebled rabbit, robin, wolf, bear, trout, eagle, wren, black bass or minnow? Why, Dame Nature wouldn't dream of allowing her nice, clean cosmos to be cluttered up. She cleans house with a broom of accidents.

Even the peaceful tree is not allowed to cumber the earth beyond the period of its ability to withstand the normal stress of the elements. It may be a California sequoia over 3,000 years old or a Cape de Verde baobab over 5,000 years old, and it may have passed its period of growth and entered its period of decay, but it will not be allowed to die of old age. Some storm will bring it down in its glory.

The untidy business of living to die of old age is a fad of civilized man. Its deplorable products are often seen in almshouses. Also civilized man has inflicted the curse upon his domestic pets to a certain extent, so that senile and enfeebled dogs and cats are kept alive by sentimentalists long after outraged common sense would have called for chloroform.

The tradition of Uncle Johnny's extreme age is not supported by any official records. A scientific investigator who sought to ferret out the facts found that he could not honestly deduce any greater age for Uncle Johnny than a hundred years or thereabouts.

Local tradition always exaggerates the age of a very old person, as in the case of old Parr, whose bones crumble in Westminster abbey, and whose fame was embalmed in a book entitled "The Olde, Olde, Very Olde Man." Old Parr was a Shropshire peasant who was reputed to be 152 years old when taken to London by the earl of Arundel and presented at court.

He died the same year—1635. Dr. William Harvey, who discovered the circulation of the blood, performed an autopsy and found the body in excellent condition. He thought death had been caused by the change from simple country fare to the rich diet of London high life. On Old Parr's tomb are recorded the names of ten monarchs, from Edward IV to Charles I, under whom he lived. But later historical investigation threw a strong doubt on the length attributed to his life.

Veteran Denies He Is Dead.

A certain veteran of the World war has a hard job on his hands.

He recently wrote to the Veterans' bureau, making an appeal for compensation.

"You are dead," replied the official communication from the bureau. Of course, it was not worded exactly that way, but that was the entire drift of the letter.

So the man has appealed to the Red Cross to tell the bureau that he is very much alive.

"I am not dead at all," the veteran continues to assert in letters to the Veterans' bureau.

"You are dead," replies the bureau.

Misrepresented.

"People say that you are interested in some of the industries mentioned in the tariff."

"It's untrue," exclaimed Senator Sorghum. "What I am trying to keep from my constituents is the fact that I am absolutely uninterested and not very well informed."

San Juan, Porto Rico, was again heard over the radio at the home of Ye Editor Sunday evening. Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Barr were present at the time when we "tuned in" with that station. The concert came through very distinctly, in fact much plainer than many stations in the United States much nearer. They "signed-off" at ten o'clock; we looked at our watches and the time was eight o'clock here.

50 GOOD CIGARETTES 10¢

GENUINE "BULL" DURHAM TOBACCO

TYPEWRITER RIBBONS
All Makes

Typewriter Ribbons for sale at the Times Office. all of the Standard makes. Ribbons 75 cents each.

THE CITY DRAY LINE

—Is prepared to do your hauling carefully and promptly. We solicit your patronage. Charges reasonable.

Coal Hauling Done
Louie Knoke

DENTIST
J. L. Hesselhuus, D. D. S.
Office Hours 8-12 1-5:30
Office Opposite State Savings Bank; In Schaffer Bldg.
Evening Work By Appointment Only
Klemme, Ia. Phone 81

KLEMME DRAY LINE
Phone 2105

A share of your patronage is solicited. All work attended to promptly and carefully. We haul coal quick.

LLOYD LAU, PROP.

Suits for Easter

I have over a thousand samples from which you may make your selection.

Clothing is not High

Use judgement as most of you always do and the purchase price will be very reasonable.

You can buy a suit of me at any price you wish to pay and made to your individual measure.

Last Season's Business Was Big—Let's Double It This Spring.

The Men's Fashion Shop

"Where Good Clothes Are Made."
A. W. JOHNSON
GARNER IOWA

Pantorium in connection

NEWS OF INTEREST FROM OVER THIS BROAD LAND

NEWS NUBBINS

"The time has come," the [illegible] said "to talk of [illegible], and not a German inventor who recently announced production of a "walking" model, is the pioneers in the automobile-with-legs field, Mr. Bryan says his machine is operated by two engines developing 40 horse-power and theoretically capable of making a speed of eighty-one miles an hour. The legs have practically the same action as those of human beings, Mr. Bryan says, and can negotiate a perpendicular rise or drop of one foot without moving the automobile from a horizntal plane.

Estimates By Army Engineers that the cost of constructing a new isthmian canal through Nicaragua would be nearly $1,000,000,000, led to an announcement by President Harding that the project had been abandoned for the preset. The President had hoped, it was said, that it might be possible to build a Nicaraguan canal out of the earnings of the Panama Canal, which has been doing an unprecedented business for six months. The prewar pric of building the Nicaraguan canal, with dimensions similar to those of the waterway at Panama, would have been $494,000,000, according to an estimate given to Secretary Weeks by Maj. Gen. Lansing H. Beach,, Chief of Engineers of the Army. Present day costs, however, would more than double this figure.

Precipitation Has Been Caused and clouds have been made to disappear in a series of experiments which are being conducted at McCook Field, according to announcement made at Dayton, Ohio, by the experimentors, Professor Wilder B. Bancroft of Cornell University and L. Francis Warren. The experiments were made with the co-operation of the Army Air Service. Results of th experiments were described as "absolutely uncanny" by obsrvers at the army air field. The clouds were made to disappear and precipitate their moisture by the dropping of electrically charged grains of sand upon them from airplanes, according to the experimenters.

Employment Conditions Throughout the United States in January showed marked improvement over the favorable conditions of December, according to the monthly report of the United States Employment Service. Manufacturing industries almost without exception showed shortages of both skilled and the common labor. Many mining districts made similar reports, although here and there production was held back by car shortages. The lumber industries also reported shortages of labor, both in the woods and in the mills. Only the agricultural, food and some of the seasonal industries experienced surpluses.

A Whole Code Of New Sanitary regulations for Iowa hotels and restaurants is proposed in bills introduced in the Iowa legislature by Representative Yenter.ffiUnder these masures hotels would be required to provide 96-inch bed sheets, could not force patrons to sleep on straw mattresses, couldn't have quilts on the beds, couudn't use cracked dishes in the dining rooms, and would be forced to provide at least 400 cubic feet of air space for each person sleeping in its bedrooms. Cooks would be prohibited from smoking in restaurant kitchens, uncovered pies would be barred and cats could not be allowed inside.

Passage Of A Resolution Autizing Gov. Percival P. Baxter to turn to Southern States several ba flags captured by Maine troops th civil war and now kept in a inet in the State house was sugg ed to the legislature in a mess by the governor. "If Maine sh rturn these flags," the mes read, "such action would consti an act of frindliness that never woud be forgotten. The scars of the civil war long since have healed and many states, both those in the North and those in the South, have given the flags which they took from former enemies."

The Ohio House Of Representas declared against the State atpting to regulate activiies of seorganizations within its borders. bill, it was said, was intended urb Ku Klux Klan activities. By te of 80 to 26 the lower branch ie general assembly defeated the proposed by Representative JusHarding, Republican, requiring t organizations, other than those nized for purely social purposo file a list of their officers with secretary of state and keep a er of their membership, open for official inspection.

North America's First Civilizations, flourishing 2,000 to 6,000 years ago, will be traced in excavations of ancient Maya cities in Yucatan, Mexico, by twenty representatives of the Archaeological Institute who sailed for Progreso last week. J. F. Barry, executive committeeman of the institute, and Dr. Sylvania G. Morley, archaeologist, head the party, which will proceed immediately to the site of recent excavations less than 100 miles from Progreso.

The Paris Matin Says That The French Ministery of Marine is framing a naval program, of which the following are the lines: Within 20 years France will build a fleet of 700,000 tons, including auxilliary ships. This figure comprises 65,000 tons for submarines and 60,000 for airplane carrying ships. In first eight years no battleships will be built—only light ships, comprising six new cruisers, thirty-five destroyers and thirty-four submarines.

The Quantity of Freight Handled by Amrican railroads continues to beat all records for previous years, according to the report of the American Railway Association for the week ending January 27. The roads handled 871,164 cars, exceeding all records for the same week in the five previous years. The records show that 497,967 cars of miscellaneous freight were handled.

Owing To The Fact That The Netherlands shipping on the Rhine is practically at a standstill since the occupation of the Ruhr, large consignments of goods are being transported via the North German ports, thereby seriously injuring the Dutch interests. Steps have been taken by both the Dutch and British to keep shipping going by supplying it with English coal.

INCOME TAX FACTS

Revenue officers are visiting every county in the United States to aid taxpayers in the preparation of their income tax returns for the year 1922. Information concerning the date of their arrival and the location of their offices may be obtained by writing the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the taxpayer lives.

Forms for filing returns of individual net incomes for the year 1922 are being sent to taxpayers who filed returns for the year 1921. Failure to receive a form, however, does not relieve the taxpayer of his obligation to file a return and pay the tax or time, on or before March 15, 1923 The forms 1040A for filing returns of net income $5,000 and less and 1040 for filing returns of net income in excess of $5,000 may be obtained from collectors of internal revenue and deputy collectors.

Returns are required of every single person whose net income for 1922 was $1,000 or more or whose gross income was $5,000 or more and of every married person whose net income was $2,000 or more or whose gross income was $5,000 or more. Careful study of the instructions on the forms will greatly aid in making a correct return at there is nothing mysterious t curing pork on the farm and any one who can follow the simple directions can supply amily with a strictly high clas ict, was emphasized by M. D. r, professor of animal husry and head of the meat demation work at Iowa State Col at Ames.

BUTCHERING IS SIMPLE

Farm Meat Supply Emphasized at the Ames Short Course.

ealth is an all important fac to be considered in selecting hogs for butchering." Professor Helser said. He stated that animals should be in medium condition. Many farmers think that the "fatter the hog the better the meat," but this is a mistake.

Hogs should not be fed for at least 24 hours before killing, but should be given plenty of clean water. This saving of feed may seem small when only four or five hogs are killed, but with 50,000,000 hogs killed annually in the United States it will mean enough corn to produce approximately 50,000,000 pounds of pork.

Tools needed for farm butchering are a common 6 or 8-inch bucher knife, a steel hog hook, hog scraper, a hog gambrel and a kettle for heating water, Professor Helser says. For scalding, a small platform with a barrel slanted up at one end does very well. This can be used for scraping and cutting.

For a detailed description of the butchering operation, those interested may send to the Bulletin Editor, Ames, Iowa, for free Circular No. 61.

Kenneth Kluckhohn was all swelled up Saturday, for on that day he was eight years old. That was not all either. He had a big birthday party at which some twenty-six of his friends were present. They had a big feed, and lots of fun. Kenneth also received some fine presents, among which he proudly exhibited 2 jack knives.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Dutheridge and little girl, returned last Friday in their car from a three week's visit at Morriss and Chicago, Illinois, as well as other points in that vicinity. They have a great many relatives at those places whom they visited. As stated they made the trip in Ted's Ford Sedan and it took them two days of driving time to return from Chicago.

There has been a report out that Everett Amey, formerly of this city, was recently in an automobile accident and seriously injured and later died from the effects of the accident. The rumor is entirely false; Everett is vry much alive and is working in a mill at Marseilles, Ill., and doing well. It is true he was in an accident just before Christmas but he only received slight injuries. His daughter, Charlotte is with a sister of Everett's, and the baby is being cared for by his sister-in-law.

SCHOOL NOTES

(Dolores Koerner, Associate Editor)

The Declamatory Contest which was given Friday, February 16th, was a big success. The judges were Miss McLean, Supt. Rankins, and Co. Supt. Baggs, all of Garner. The decision stands as follows:

Oratorical

1st. Adela Schroeder, "Spartacus of the Gladiators."
2nd. Gerald Koerner, "Raising the Flag Over Fort Sumpter."

Dramatic

1st. Maurine Hake "Almost Home"
2nd. Clarence Elder, "Billings of 49."

Humorous

1st. Marie Blank, "A Pleasant Half Hour On The Beach."
2nd. Glenn Busch, "A Modern Sermon."

The contestants all took their parts fine and it was the largest and best contest ever given in Klemme. The score cards which the judges used will show the contestants their weak points in speaking and next time they will be able to do better in these.

These score cards showed that the contestants were very even and in some there were only one half of a point difference.

The contestants received a lot of practice from this, due to their excellent and capable teacher, Miss McKahan.

Mrs. Lester Stille is teaching in Miss McKahan's place in the High School. Miss McKahan was called home Saturday by her sister's illness. We hope for a speedy recovery on her part so Miss McKahan may return.

The Juniors and Sophomores have finished the classic, "Hamlet." They are now writing a brief synopsis of it.

There was a mistake in the school news last week about the school editors. Dolores Koerner was Associate Editor last week instead of Maurine Hake.

Clara Larsen was absent Monday. The cause for her absence is unknown.

A Literary Program is to be given in the near future by the faculty of the high school and Miss Smith. They are now practicing and the exact date will be given in this column next week.

AVERY TOWNSHIP NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Marshall returned Monday from a three week's trip to Illinois. They were called to Illinois by the death of Mrs. Marshall's mother.

Mrs. Fred Bachman and daughter, Bonnie, and Mrs. Frank Roths. were callers at the Robert Roth home on Sunday afternoon.

Quite a number from this vicinity attended the Public Auction of Sylvan Johnson which was held Monday.

Edd Rooks moved down near Meservey this year. Jimmie Wade from west of town moved there and will farm it this year.

School was closed Tuesday in the Prairie Queen school on account of the teacher being sick.

Mrs. Harry Buss, teacher of Avery No. 2 school, was a visitor at the home of Wm. Bell Thursday evening.

OLD RED SCHOOLHOUSE GONE

In Its Place Has Come the Modern, Steam-Heated Building, and Many Teachers.

The little red schoolhouse is passing. In its place is springing up a pretentious handsome affair of stone, brick or stucco, with two or more rooms, with modern equipment, a library, and an advanced curriculum for the education of boys and girls of the farming districts.

There are still, of course, many of the old one-room school houses, of frame construction, shabby and forsaken-appearing standing in the country, but the consolidated school plan, and the rapid settling of farm lands in this section particularly, has marked the doom of the old-time institution.

No more does a sheep's-tail, split and fastened, wool out, on a block of wood serve as an eraser for bumpy blackboards in these schools; no more do a tattered dictionary and a few outdated text books constitute the "library."

Standard school equipment, coming up to regulations set by the state, is to be found in practically all of the rural schools in any but remote districts today.

A marked contrast can be seen between representative schools of today in the country and those of a generation ago.

Then the boys carried stove-wood from the outdoors and corded it along the walls of the room, to feed the box stove in winter; today a hot-air or steam furnace, fueled with coal, provides heat in the modern district school.

Then a tin wash-basin in a corner, provided a place to wash at noon, or to thaw out frost-bitten fingers; today a pressure water system or artesian well empties into a modern lavatory.

Then there was one teacher for all grades from primary to eighth. Today schools are graded, with separate rooms and individual teachers in many country districts.

Then the subjects offered were reading, writing and arithmetic, with a few added such as geography and some history. Now the boy or girl may study agriculture, domestic science, manual training and other supplementary courses.

Truly, times have changed for the farm schoolboy since the end of the last century.

Beautiful St. Helena.

Napoleon Bonaparte drew public attention to a hitherto little-known island in mid-Atlantic, almost opposite the southern extremity of the Portuguese settlement of Angola, next door to what used to be German Southwest Africa. Few of the general public of that day knew of Elba, not far from Leghorn, where the French emperor was first sequestered; and when, after Waterloo, he went to St. Helena people looked in vain upon most of the maps for that tropical dot, with an area of only 47 square miles and with but few inhabitants.

After the Boer war the English turned to St. Helena as a safe spot to send Boer prisoners of war, and so many thousands were transported there that the inhabitants of Jamestown—the only town then on the island—became suddenly enriched, for British soldiers and sailors brought money, and their prisoners were rarely poor men.

Next to the Red sea ports along the African coast, St. Helena probably entertains in its waters the greatest aggregation of sharks in the world, but the Boer prisoners discovered that these sharks always slept when the sun reached the meridian; and many of these prisoners were rescued by their friends, who brought small vessels, apparently laden with provender, but steamed rapidly away when their confederates had swum a few yards from beneath the towering cliffs to the awaiting boat.

The friend that sticks closer than a brother is named Dollar.

Every married man knows the meaning of "women and children first."

Word was received from Mrs. M. O. Hocum that her mother, Mrs. John Wylie passed away last week Tuesday and was buried at Gilman, Iowa, on Thursday of last week. Mrs. Wylie has been living with Mrs. Hocum at Iowa Falls the past year. She had not been well for some time and had been seriously ill for the past two weeks before her death. The Hocum family and Mrs. Wylie spent Christmas day with Ye Editor and family and at that time Mrs. Wylie was feeling quite well. The community extends sympathy to the bereaved family.

A great many single men lead double lives.

EAGLE "MIKADO" Pencil No. 174

For Sale at your Dealer — Made in five grades

ASK FOR THE YELLOW PENCIL WITH THE RED BAND

EAGLE MIKADO

EAGLE PENCIL COMPANY, NEW YORK

Ford

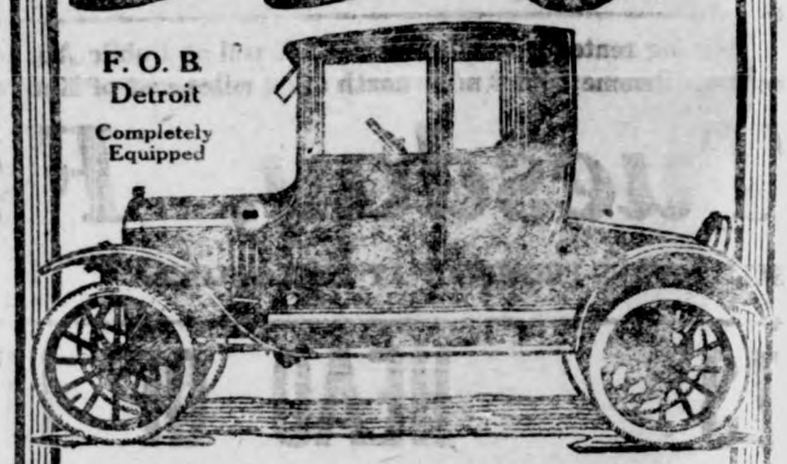
COUPE

New Price

$530

F. O. B. Detroit

Completely Equipped



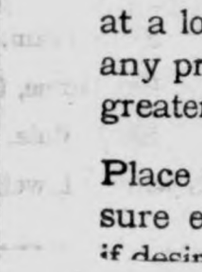
The world has never known an enclosed car of this type at a lower price. No car at any price has ever offered a greater value.

Place your order now to insure early delivery. Terms if desired

Greimann Motor Co

Aaron Greimann, Mgr. Klemme, Iowa

Reduced Prices on Red Top Steel Fence Posts



WATCH for the announcement of our RED TOP Steel Fence Post Sale. You will be able to save money on your Spring post requirements. How many do you need for new fences, temporary work and repairs?

FREE--A Red Top Post Driver

During this sale we will give free of charge to every purchaser of 100 or more RED TOP Posts one of the new RED TOP One Man Post Drivers—the best helper that the fence builder ever had. It will save many fence building hours and

Northern Lumber Co.

Klemme Iowa

INCOME TAX FACTS

In the making of his income tax return for the year 1922, a taxpayor, if single, is allowed an exemption of $1,000. A married person, or head of a family, whose net income for the year 1922 was $5,000 or less is allowed an exemption of $2,500. The exemption allowed a married person or head of a family whose net income was in excess of $5,000 is $2,000. A head of a family, is a person who actually supports one or more persons living in his or her household who are closely related to him or her by blood, marriage or adoption.

An additional credit of $100 is allowed for each person, other than husband or wife, dependent upon the taxpayer for chief support, if such person is under 18 years of age or incapable of self support because mentally or physically defective. A single man whose net income for 1922 was $2,000 and who supports in his home an aged mother would have no tax to pay, but would nevertheless be required to file a return. The fact that a person's income may be nontaxable by reason of the exemptions does not nullify the requirement to file a return if his income was within the prescribed figures —$1,000 if single and $2,000 if married.

The normal tax is 4 per cent on the first $4,000 of net income in excess of the exemptions, and 8 per cent on the remaining net income. The tax may be paid in full at the time of filing the return, or in four installments due on or before March 15, June 15, September 15 and December 15.

Representative-elect T. J. B. Robinson, of Hampton, in the Third Iowa District, has been in Washington during the week, accompanied by Mrs. Robinson and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Purcell. Mr. Purcell is the editor of the Chronicle at Hampton. They are getting acquainted with the Washington and Capitol atmosphere. Mr. Robinson will represent the Third District in the 68th Congress.

The trouble with having a chip on your shoulder is that somebody is likely to knock your block off.

A few people possess a sixth sense. It is common sense.

A fool and his money are soon owned by the fake stock salesman.

The Farmer's Relation To This Bank

We consider the Farmer the very backbone of this great Empire. It is through his untiring efforts this community is permitted to enjoy its present prosperity.

A large percent of our business comes from the farmer. Several of our directors are farmers. Service to the farmer is our first consideration.

WE INVITE YOUR BUSINESS, LARGE OR SMALL.

First National Bank

"The Bank for Everybody'."

The Best Road

The few dollars you deposit with us to start a Savings Account are not so important in themselves. The big thing is that you have really begun to save.

There is no road that leads as directly to the shining goal as the Savings Road. Countless others who have traveled it before point the way for us to follow.

A Savings Account will be a help to you. Today is not too soon to start.

$1.00 Starts a Savings Account

State Savings Bank

Klemme Iowa

News of Klemme and Vicinity

We are again having nice weather.

Earl Miller, of Clear Lake, was a Klemme visitor Tuesday.

Jimmie Wade moved Tuesday to a farm south-east of town.

See the new Chevrolet at Coobs & Buss Garage. adv

Wm. Dempsey, of Belmond, was a Klemme business caller Monday.

Free moving pictures, Monday, February 26 by Fox Chemical Co. 2

Joe Wenck, of Garner, was a business caller here Monday.

Chevrolt Touring Car, $590.00, at Coobs & Buss Garage. adv

Art Wellemeyer was at Garner on business Tuesday.

Remember the free movies, Feb. 26 by Fox Chemical Co. 2wp

Mr. White, form Estherville, was a business caller here yesterday.

Mrs. Harvey Stille was a visitor at Garner Friday morning.

Mr. Lee Robbins, of Goodell, was a business caller here Saturday.

Mr. Tom Hake drove to Belmond Saturday with a load of furniture which was sold by Wellemeyer.

LOST—Scoop shovel betwwen H. J. Stille's and Henry Stromer's place Friday. Phone. Henry Wade. 1wp

---

Mrs. Tony Ahrenkeil and son. of Goodell, were Klemme visitors Friday afternoon.

Famous Lutby Battry, guaranteed for 2 years. Coobs & Buss Garage. adv

---

Rv. Wilkinson, of Belmond, was here yesterday to assist with the funeral services of Bert Trumbell.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Webb, of Belmond, were here yesterday to attend the funeral of Bert Trumbell.

Mrs. E. S. D. Kahrs went to Nevada, Iowa, Saturday for a few days visit with her parents.

R. W. Elder is firing the furnace at the school as Janitor Yahnke is on the sick list.

Charlie Carlson left for Ingram, Wisconsin, Friday for a visit with his brother. Gus, and family.

Henry Lewis has been a grippe victim the past week. Tom Hake is looking after the produce store for him.

Ed. Jacobs returned last Friday from Des Moines, whree he went to attend a hardware dealers' convention.

Mis McKahan was called home on Saturday on account of the illness of her sister. She has not yet returned at this time.

A fine baby boy of ten pounds was born to Mr. and Mrs. Howard Doyle Sunday morning. The young man has been named Howard Dean.

Grandma Ulrich died at the home of her son, George, last Thursday evening. The obituary is published on the first page of this issue.

R. A. Jorgenson and family spent Sunday at the J. Jorgenson home at Garner. Mrs. J. Jorgenson had just returned from a two month's visit with her son John at Carter, S Dak.

Free educational moving picture of interest to farmers showing The Secret of Successful Stock Raising. You are invited Feb. 26 by the Fox Chemical Co. 2p

---

Miss Emma Sampson returned Friday from Center Point, Iowa, where she had been visiting for a week or more with her sister, Mrs. Griewe.

Clara Schlei died at a Minneapolis hospital Friday and the body was brought to Klemme for burial Monday. We are publishing the obituary notice in this issue.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Wichman, (by the way they are newly-weds) from Redoak, Illinois, are in this vicinity visiting at the Leonard Sampson home. Mr. Wichman is a brother of Mrs. Sampson.

Corwin Smith and wife, and Mrs. Theo. Wright, and the iMeses Iris and Wilma Trumbell, of Belmond, the latter sisters of Bert Trumbell, were here to attend his funeral yesterday.

R. W. Elder returned Saturday from Ames, where he had been taking a short course in butter-making. Ralph reports a very fine meeting which was well attended by men from all over the States and some from Canada.

Miss Anna Griewe has returned from Reinbeck, Iowa, where she has been visiting since last fall. Her parents here have not been very well of late and were among the grippe sufferers, so is is now caring for them.

Miss Laura Brooks left on the noon train Saturday for Des Moines, being called there by the serious illness of her newphew, Bert Trumbell who was in the hospital suffering with pneumonia. He passed away Monday. His obituary is published in this issue.

The Camp Fire Girls gave a chicken dinner last night in the basement of the First National Bank. They served over a hundred persons and could have served many more but the chickens did not hold out. We might add that the girls served a real fine dinner which was certainly enjoyed.

FARM CONDITIONS IMPROVED

Speaker Thinks Agricultural Prices Will Reach Proper Level.

"Since the beginning of 1922 farm conditions have undergone a decided improvement and although farm prices have not yet risen to the level of other prices, it may be expected that, barring unfavorable developments in Europe, farm prices will gradually come up to that level and the normal progress of agriculture will be resumed," declared J. A. Hopkins of the department of agricultural economics in an address before short course visitors at Ames.

Mr. Hopkins used data obtained by the section of agricultural economics in its studies of cost of production on farms, to show the condition of the Iowa farmer as it has changed from year to year and to point out ways in which farmers can put the results of these studies to profitable use.

He cited instances to show that the cost per hour of man labor was twice as high on some farms as on others and stated that one of the chief reasons for this condition is that on the farms with the high labor costs, the farmers have failed to provide themselves with year-round employment. The cost of horse labor was shown to vary even more widely, because while some men keep only enough horses to operate their farms efficiently, others keep a relatively larger number, so that they do not keep them fully employed during rush seasons.

A success is one who finds things that can't be done and then does them.

SECRETARY'S ANNUAL FINANCIAL STATEMENT 1923

To School District

Independent School District of Klemme, Hancock County, Iowa, for year ending February 21st, 1923.

Dr. GENERAL FUND

On hand Feb. 22, 1922	$ 3,843.38	Paid teachers since last report:
Received from dist. tax	12,937.03	Males	$ 1,944
Rec'd. from semi-an. app't.	146.00	Females	4,423
Received from State	145.00	Paid Secretary	40
Rece'd from tuition	981.00	Paid for tuition	495
Rec'd from sale of text books	87.47	Paid for Lib. boks	7
Rec'd from int. on deposits	57.87	Pd. for free text books	468
Rec'd from other sources	16.62	Paid for fuel. rent, repairs, insurance, janitor, general supplies	2,914
		Am't. on hand Feb. 22, 1923	7,921
TOTAL	$18,214.31	TOTAL	$18,241

I hereby certify that the foregoing report is correct.

Dated Feb. 22, 1923. LEW LEWIS, Secretary.

No Danger--

IN THE ELECTRIC COMPANY'S SECURITIES

It is well to avoid Contact with the Company's Wires, and Wise to get as close as you can to the Company by investing in the SAFE Common Shares now paying Dividends at the rate of 7% Per Year.

There is no more Solidly Established business than Electric Lighting and Power.

It is necessary and growing fast.

Government Statistics show an increase in Killowatt Hour Output of 16% for the period January to November, inclusive, 1922. over the same period of 1921.

IOWA FALLS ELECTRIC COMPANY

furnished Its share of this Increase.

Let us tell you more about this Investment.

Iowa Falls Electric Co.

IOWA FALLS, IOWA

We Have Taken On The Agency And Are Now Selling The—

CHEVROLET

More than ever before the Chevrolet Motor Company has again emphasized ist admitted leadership as producer of the world's lowest priced quality automobiles.

The SUPERIOR MODELS, at no higher prices than those of our preceding Models, represent the most sensational values in modern economical transportation ever established.

QUALITY has been still further improved by more artistic design and added equipment.

ECONOMY has been still further increased by engineering refinements and greatly increased service facilities throughout the whole country.

PRICES remain the same in spite of added equipment and more expensive construction which have materially increased the average values.

1923 SUPERIOR 5-Passenger Touring Car	$525
1923 SUPERIOR 2-Passenger Roadster	$510
1923 SUPERIOR 2-Passenger Utility Coupe	$680
1923 SUPERIOR 5-Passenger Sedan	$860
1923 SUPERIOR Sedanette	$850

(Above Prices are F. O. B. Flint, Mich.)

When you buy a Chevrolet you get a fully equipped car—nothing extra to buy but the license.

All closed models come with genuine Fisher Bodies, and also straight side Cord Tires. Open cars with one-man top.

—Come in and look over the Chevrolte now.

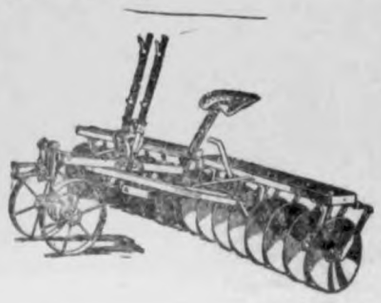
COOBS & BUSS

STILLE'S IMPLEMENT NEWS

VOLUME 1. Thursday, February 22, 1923 NUMBER

GOOD SEEDERS AND GOOD CROPS

When you buy an endgate seeder you can afford to pay a few dollars extra and gt one that will seed accurate whether the hopper is full or half full, and one that will work thru the busy season without giving trouble, and one that will last for a good number of seasons better than you can afford to get one that is cheap and not dependable nor accurate. A good seeder that will bring a good even stand at harvest time will be worth as much to you as a dozen poor seeders. Come in and look over our line, we have the dependable kind.



How much more satisfying to turn on the radiator than the radio on these cold nights.

Just about the time you lay up something for a rainy day it rains.

Black Beauty Axle Grease best substitute for good roads.

WORK OF THE MONTH

The suggestions contained in an editorial of the February issue of the "Farm Mechanic" is very timely. It says "February and March are the months when preparations for the start of the season's work are made. First and foremost of the season's preparations is putting the machinery and implements into condition Repair parts needed should be ordered at once, so that they may be received and put in place as quickly as possible." That's mighty good advice—and remember to come to us for your genuine I. H. C. and John Deere repairs.

You can't tell a man's income the way he bloys his money, but you can generally guess the outcome.

Japanese law requires that suitable land must be cultivated.

A hand-operated wall paper machine has been invented.

THE KLEMME TIMES

Twenty-seventh Year—Number 25. | Klemme, Iowa, Thursday Afternoon, March 1, 1923. | $1.50 In Advance—$2.00 Outside of County

KLEMME TAXPAYERS VOTE FOR BETTER SCHOOLS

BOTH PROPOSITION CARRY IN ELECTION HERE MONDAY

Addition to Old Building Pulls the Biggest VVote; Some Question If New Building Carried

Klemme had an election here on Monday, February 26th, to decide the question whteher the district should improve the school situation by building an addition to the old building, or to build a new fire-proof school building, or to do without either one or the other. This matter had been the main topic of conversation and many heated arguments for the past couple of weeks. The election is over but the argument does not seem to be entirely settled with some. At any rate the taxpayrs came to the rescue of the Klemme schools and voted in improvements Monday—in fact thay out-did themeselves in their generosity and gave Klemme two propositions for improvenment.

Now we will look into the votes as they were cast. The proposition for $15,000 for an addition to the old building carried by a vote of 150 for, and 83 against, with about 7 or 8 spoiled ballots also cast. Now, there is no question but what the addition project carried. For the new building the vote stood 116 for and 113 against, carrying by three votes. There were abount 13 ballots spoiled on this issue. Here is just where the argument comes in. Some claim that the proposition did carry. Others claim that it did not carry as it did not get a majority of the total ballots cast. They contend that spoiled ballots count in determining he total number of votes cast, and if this is the case, then the project lost. We have our doubts as to this, but not being an attorney of the law we are unable to give an answer to the question noy puzzling the voters.

The addition received by far the greatest support of the two propositions and seems to be the choice of a large number of taxpayers. The election was a mixed up affair all the way through. Many people voted "yes" on both questions in order to be sure of getting something. Now the gang in favor of the new building claim they helped the addition, this is of course true; on the other hand many of the addition backers also helped the new project. They did this to off-set a lot of expected downers against both, but the downers did not appear in such strong force as had been expected, so really the voters raised Ned with each other and if thy had voted their own project the two propositions would have an entirely different appearance in the total count. They might have come out somewhere near close.

Anyway we are glad that Klemme schools are to be improved and the coveted twelve grades installed for next year.

The vote on the new building is as follows: Men—for 68, against 79; Women—for 48, against 34. Total—for 116, against 113; with about 3 spoiled ballots.

The vote on the $15,000 addition was as follows: Men—for 93, against 55; Women—for 57, against 28; Total—for 150, against 83. About 3 spoiled ballots.

Now, what next?

ROTHS—SMITH

Last week Wednesday Thomas Roths and Miss Leoda Smith. both of this city, were quietly married at the Presbyterian parsonage at Garner by the Rev. Gillis, pastor of the Presbyterian church there. They then left on the evening train for a few days honeymoon trip, returning to Klemme Friday evening, and also spent a few days with his folks and his brother in the country.

Both of these young people have a large number of friends who extend their congratulations. Nothing that we could say would better the many fine qualities of these young people.

We understand they have rented the Gus Baack residence and will soon go to housekeeping there.

Tom will work for Mr. Bredbenner this year, so Klemme will be the home of these young people.

The Times joins with their many friends in wishing them happiness in life's journey.

EDWARD LUDWIG GRIFFEN

Edward Ludwig Griffen was born at Vahle, Uslar in the Province of Hanover, Germany, September 1st, 1854, and passed out of this life in the early morning of Monday, February 26th, 1923, after a siege of illness which ended in a paralytic stroke.

He came to America in 1879 and settled in Clayton County, Iowa.

Two years later he was united in marriage with Mrs. Mary Lange. Four children, two sons and two daughters were born to them. He soon moved to Garner, Hancock County, Iowa, and for over 40 years has been a very successul farmer in his community. Blessed with a strong robust constitution, a great will power and a fearless courage he readily overcome the many obstacles which confronted the early settlers. In his youth, the deceased was confirmed in the faith of the Lutheran Church, but in the year 1882 he joined the Methodist Church at Garner and later had his membership transferred to the Liberty Methodist Church.

The decasd leaves to mourn his departure, his widow; his two sons, John and Louis; his two daughters, Mrs. Alice Upmeyer and Mrs. Nettie Greimann; also three step-children, Mrs. Boevers of Mason City; Mrs. Fred Chase of Goodell; and Albert Lange, of Liberty Township; twenty-two grandchildren; one brothe., Fred; and two sisters, Mrs. Paulman and Mrs. Neidermeyer in Germany, and one sister, Mrs. Fred Schlei, of Liberty Township; besides a large number of more distant relatives and numerous friends.

How truthful are the words:—

Stout and strong today,
Tomorrow turned to clay.
Therefore let us heed the words of the composer:
Be swift, dear heart, in doing
The gracious deed,
Lest soon they whom thou holdest dearest
Be past the need.

Be swift, dear heart, in giving
The rare sweet flower,
Nor wait to heap with blossoms the casket
In some sad hour.

Dear heart, be swift in loving—
Time speedeth on;
And all thy chance of blessed service
Will soon be gone.

The funeral service was held on Thursday afternoon at one o'clock at the home and at two o'clock in the Grace Methodist church at Garner. The choir of the Grace Church had charge of the singing, and Rev. A. W. Gauger, assisted the pastor, W. C. Bergmann, in the service. Burial took place in the Garner Cemetery.

W. C. Bergmann.

40th Anniversary

The Christian Home Orphanage, Council Bluffs, Iowa, will have rounded out forty years of service in behalf of orphan and destitute children on March 16th. This great institution, known in all parts of the country, has been built up and maintained wholly by the voluntary contributions of the people. It has no other means of support. It cares for a daily average of more than two hundred children, received from all parts of the country, and also conducts a hospital department, a department for aged, dependant women, and a department for the crippled and deformed. At present a most serious epidemic of flu has stricken the Home, more than one hundred being sick, many of them seriously. Funds are badly needed to help meet the expense of this onslaught, and to help keep the work from debt. Every department of the institution is crowded, and appeals are made to the people to help. It is hoped that a Fortieth Anniversary offering to this work will relieve a pressing situation which, if long continued, will work serious injury to the Orphanage. Send something to help these little ones. Address the Christian Home Orphanage, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Concentration is the life of trade.

That's Us!

The newspaper starts in
When you are born,
Relates about your excellence
And tells about your sweetness.
It follows you to school,
And prints the honor roll
If your name is ound there,
It tells of your graduation
And speaks of the excellence
Of your magnificent essay;
It tells of your grogress
During your college career
And then dilates much about
The choice of your location.
Then it gives a nice notice
About your marriage
And praises up the blushing bride
Till her kinsfolk don't know her,
Then, in due course of events,
It tells about the bouncing baby
That happens in your family—
Thereby beginning its like work
All over and over again.
The newspaper does all this
And it does also much more
It tells of the progress
Made by city and country
And boost all enterprises;
Gives free advertising
Worth thousands of dollars
To its own home town.
There are scads of things
That all good newspapers do
For which they cannot be paid.
That is why every citizen
Should do his darndest
To support the newspaper
In every possible way
And all the time.
Yassum.
I thank you.—Editor.

FIRST M. E. CHURCH
W. C. H. Bergmann, Pastor

Sunday school at 10:00 A. M.
Sermon at 11:00 o'clock.
Epworth League and evening sermon at the usual hour.

The Sunday morning service will be a communion service. Rev. L. J. Brenner, of Sioux City, District Superintendent, will be with us and preach both morning and evening. Come out to hear him.

The Quarterly Conference will take place at the church at 10 o'clock on Saturday morning. All members of the Board are requested to be present.

Midweek prayer service at the parsonage next Thursday evening.

Please remember the change in the Sunday school hour for Sunday morning.

—W. C. Bergmann, Pastor.

NOTICE OF ANNUAL MEETING
Klemme Independent School District

Notice is hereby given to the qualified electors of the Independent District of Klemme, in the county of Hancock. state of Iowa, that the annual meeting of said district will be held at the Klemme Town Hall on the 2nd Monday in March, 1923, at 1:00 o'clock p. m. and closing at 6:00 o'clock p. m.

A director will be named for a term of three years to succeed Art Wellemeyer, one for one year to succeed R. A. Jorgenson to fill vacancy, and a Treasurer for the term of two years to succeed John Gruetzmacher.

The meeting will be open for the transaction of such business as may legally come before it.

LEW LEWIS,
Secretary.

February 27, 1923.

WESLEY WANTS CREAMERY

The farmers of Wesley and vicinity, together with the business men of that town are desirous of having a creamery, and with that point in view called a meeting which was to be held last night. They want a modern up-to-date creamery for the farmers there. A creamery expert fom Ames is helping them. We did not learn of the outcome.

Wesley is on the right track as a creamery is a fine thing, both for the farmers as well as the town.

WOULD AGAIN HAVE NURSE FOR HANCOCK COUNTY

(From the Signal, last night.)

Miss Elizabeth Reynolds of the Central Division of the American Red Cross, superintendent of Red Cross nurses in northern Iowa, has been spending some time here lately as w rportd last week. Thursday evening Miss Reynolds, a representative of the local chapter of the Red Cros, the mayor, one of the doctors, as well as representatives of several church societies, and a number of the ministers of the town met with the school board and discussed the advisability of putting a Red Cross nurse back into the work in connection with the schools of the county.

The proposition advanced by the Red Cross was that the school board pay 50 cents per year for each pupil and that the Red Cross would take care of the balance of the expense. This proposition yas to be put up to the different schools of the county. It is estimated that the expense would be in the neighborhood of $3500 a year to retain the nurse on the job all the time.

No definite action was taken by the local school board and just what their attitude is, we are unable to say. Their expenses have been very heavy and they are no doubt a little reluctant to take on this expense.

Miss Mae Ferleman was County Red Cross nurse for some time, and no doubt she acomplished much good. If a nurse is again put back on the work, we hope that Miss Ferleman can be secured, as she puts forth every effort to acomplish the most posible good, considering the large number of children she had to look after.

THIEVES ENTER FIVE PLACES AT BELMOND; LOOT $20 CASH

BELMOND, March 1.—Thieves broke into five places Friday night as follows: M. & St. L. station, Bohning's store; Nisson Horborson meat market, Belmond Motor Sales Co., and Standard Oil Co. They only got about $20 in all. It is not known how much meat and other loot they obtained from the general store. No clews have been unearthed.

A rich man wears bear skin in winter, but a South Sea Ilander wears bare skin all the year 'round.

NEWS OF THE WEEK'S DOINGS AT HIGH SCHOOL

AVERY PROGERESSIVE CLUB FEBRUARY MEETING

The members and guests of the North Avery Progressive Club enjoyed their monthly meeting Friday, February 23rd, at the home of J. W. Johnson.

A one o'clock luncheon was served, after which the meeting was called to order for a breif business session, followed by a mixed program.

The roll call response was "Activities and Instances of George Washington's life. Scripture was read by Mrs. Thomas Nelson. Mrs. Johnson read an interesting article on "The Hot School Lunch."

The topic of "curing and canning meat" was ably covered by Mrs. Virgil Cook. "The feeding and management of dairy cattle" was discussed by J. J. Cook. Dorothy Ridder read "The Sign of the Cross," taken from the Arena.

Rev. Gedye favored his listeners with a very impressive "Tribute to Geo. Washington."

Both instrumental and vocal music was rendered, making this program well worthy of the name, "Progressive."

The next meeting will be held at the home of E. J. Arnold March 23.

Tender Her A Pleasant Surprise

Sunday, February 25th, 1923, occured the 60th birthday of Mrs. Frank Roths. In honor of the event a number of friends and relatives gathered at her home with well filled baskets of good things ot eat. to help celebrate her birthday.

About one o'clock, all present partook of the bountiful dinner which had been prepared.

After the dinner was over and all were seated in the living room, the crowd presented Mrs. Roths with a beautiful gas lamp, and many other presents.

Those present to help her celebrate her birthday were: Robert Roths and wif; Ranko Buss and family; Geo. Buseman and family; Henry Buseman and family; Wm. Bell and family; Walter Reed and family; Fred Bachman and family; Tommy Roths and wife; D. A. Marshall and wife; Herbrt Marshall and family; Wm. Bachman and family; Clarence Bachman and wife.

At a late hour in the afternoon the guests departed for their various homes, all wishing Mrs. Roths many, many more happy birthdays, as this one had been.

—By a Guest.

POWERFUL EXPLOSIVES AND DELICATE PERFUMES FROM COAL

By-products of coal range all the way from the most powerful explosives to the most delicate perfumes, according to Floyd W. Parsons in the Gas Age-Record.

"Coal is the ancestor of more useful products than any other element in nature," says Mr. Parsons. "From the time we rise until the day is done, we maintain an intimate association with some by-product of coal. In our industrial life, the use of coal derivatives is only commencing to be felt. The rubber industry depends upon these products for solvents, compounding ingrediants and softeners. Practically all types of paint now use a derivative of coal. Printing inks, shoe polishes, brake linings, dry cleaners, perfumes, explosives, linoleums, glues, pastes and photographic developers contain coal derivatives as basic ingredients. The paper industry, the soap business and shoe manuacturing would be hard hit were it not for the offspring of Old King Coal. The electrical industry would likewise be cut off from its chief source of insulating material, while the doctors of the country and the druggists who supply them would be up against it for a sufficient supply of phenol, from which to get common drugs that are in every-day use."

ROYAL NEIGHBORS Meet every second and fourth Friday at the Odd Fellows Hall, Klemme, Ia

Neota Ridder, Editor-in-chief.
Dolores Koerner, Associate Editor.

Girls Out-argue The Boys

The Community Civics Class had a debate Tuesday afternoon. The girls debated against the boys on the question of Woman Suffrage. The girls received 147 points, yhile the boys received only 47. Come on, boys, you'll have to step lively if you want to beat the girls on women rights.

Six-weeks Exams This Week

The six-weeks exams are to be held Thursday and Friday of this week. No one gets exempted from these, but if the grades of the pupils average 90 and the deportment averages 90, they will get out of the finals. We are working hard so our grades will average 90 so we can be exempted from them.

Juniors To Debate Again

The Juniors will have a debate in Sociology Monday morning on the question "Resolved: That Darwin's and Spencer's theories should be discarded." Bernice Tanner and Bertha Johnson will uphold the affirmative and Dolores Koerner, Marie Blank and Clarence Elder are on the negative side.

Miss McKahan Returns

Miss McKahan returned from Stuart, Iowa, Monday morning. Mrs. Lester Stille has been teaching in her place the past week. Miss McKahan, who was called home on account of her sister's illness, states that she is much better and we hope for her complte recovery.

"Limbering-u'p' For Baseball

The baseball boys are now practicing whenever the weather permits. The diamond wil have to be put in shape though before they can do much. As soon as we can join the Athletic Association the boys will schedule their games.

They are now practicing short distance throwing in order to get their arms loosened up. No strenuous pratice will start until the middle of March.

Study Chilly Subject

The Physical Geography Class have been having laboratory exercises on glaciers. After they have this finished they will spend the rest of the time in reviewing for the six week's tests.

The A+B—2XY Class

The Algebra Class have just started on fractions and got as far as Clearing Equations of Fractions. They will spend the rest of the time in reviewing.

Association Holds Meeting

The High School Association held a meeting Tuesday morning, and also Tuesday noon to settle some bills which had been brought against them during the Declamatory Contest.

Some were left over from last year's baseball expenses and if any one has some bill against the High School Association please present it to Mr. Neese and he will see to payment of same.

Richard Ax was absent Monday, and Tuesday of this week on account of sickness.

Surprise Party

All the neighbors in the community east of town from Barz's to the Schlawein place quietly gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Rockow last Friday evening for a farewell surprise party on them.

The Rockow's were completely surprised when their neighbors came in noisily and heavily laden with big baskets of good things to eat. The evening was enjoyably spent in playing games and visiting. Along about the mid-night hour a fine lunch was served, which all enjoyed, and at a later hour the merry-makers departed for home to natch a few hour of sleep before chores time in the early morning. The Rockow family are moving to a farm south of Forest City on the Wilson Highway road.

.. Hawkeye .. State News

Interesting Items Gathered From all Parts of Iowa

W. H. Wilfong, 85 years old, who lived on one farm near Shenandoah forty-nine years is dead.

Masons in Cedar Rapids will shortly erect a new temple at a cost of $500,000. A site for the new building was purchased by the order.

An excellent one sow production record comes from West Liberty. The sow cost $100.00, produced and raised a litter of nine which sold for $1,142.00.

The J. A. Clippinger closing out farm sale held near Mechanicsville holds the record for size this season. The offering brought a total of $21,000.

Veterans of two wars protested before the house ways and means committee against the Ontjes bill repealing the soldiers' exemption laws.

A petition for a rehearing of the Ernest Rathbun case before the state supreme court has been filed with the supreme court clerk by attorneys of Rathbun.

David Beers, who arrived in Audubon county in 1854, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. S. L. Budd in Atlantic recently. He was 84 years old.

Joseph W. Smith, one of the oldest native born residents of Marshall county, died recently at his home of tuberculosis, following an illness of more than a year.

After fifty years' residence in Highland township, Tama county, twenty-one years on the same farm, Mr. and Mrs. James Martin will quit farming March 1st and move to Toledo.

The possibility of many Iowa banks collecting a tax refund was killed when the Supreme court handed down an opinion for the plaintiff in the case of Guthrie county against the First National bank of Guthrie Center.

J. Pemberton paid $550 for a high class senior yearling sow, which topped the sale of Hendrickson and Lang Brothers held at Grinnell recently. The sale was well attended and fifty-two head of fine young Hampshires averaged about $88.

Iowans in California held their annual "get-together" picnic in Lincoln Park, Los Angeles recently. A big time was had by the corn state people and several thousand were in attendance. Herbert Hoover, Senator Smith Brookhart and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace were the principle speakers.

Prospects for high priced sugar indicate possible reductions in home canning. At the present time it looks as though sugar might be very scarce and rather high this year, compared to last when the grower of sugar cane got about as much out of his crop as the farmer got out of his corn. The farmer is doing better, so is the sugar grower.

A new agricultural undertaking is to be launched at a gathering of representatives of middle west and northwest states to be held in St. Paul Feb. 27th and 28th in which Iowa will take an active part. The purpose is to endeavor to work out some plan which will "bring about a readjustment of agricultural markets" and to aid in finding a market abroad for the crop surplus of the country.

Milton Holliday, by many known as the sage of Council Bluffs, was taken to a hospital recently. Holiday is a former printer. He served under General Grenville M. Dodge, in the civil war. He once ran a newspaper at Lewis, Iowa, and for many years was a nationally known contributor to the North American Review, Review of Reviews and other leading publications. He has also been active in theosophical societies here and in Omaha and was employed on local papers.

Fertile fields of "Sure Crop" Iowa returned a harvest in 1922 valued at $480,142,000, according to government figures furnished by the Iowa State Chamber of Commerce. This amount is only on crops. Corn stood high above the others, having a value of $245,989,000; with oats and winter wheat second and third. Last year's valuation was 57 per cent more than that of 1921 and, according to Babson's figures, 1923 prices will return 40 per cent more than those of 1922. Dairy products, composed largely of butter, market milk and cheese, reached a total of $126,948,011.98, from July 1, 1921 to July 1, 1922, reports the state dairy and food commission. Butter brought farmers and creameries $60,110,805.12 during this period.

"Put Iowa roads under cover." Such is the slogan of Senator D. Kimberly of Davenport. The Scott county solon has come forth in the Iowa senate with a bill which he promises will settle Iowa's highway troubles once and for all. Briefly, he would have a roof built over all primary and second roads in the state. Not only would the roads thus be saved from the elements, Senator Kimberly points out, but so would the farmers, the joyriders, the pedestrians and others who make use of Iowa's highways.

LEGISLATIVE NEWS

Both houses of the fortieth general assembly swung up to the spring adjournment in a burst of speed and a show of oratory and activity which gave unmistakable indication that the warming up process is over and that the remaining weeks of the session from reconvening to adjournment will see much and sincere work done. All of the preliminaries are out of the way. Not a great many bills have been passed; a whole lot have been killed; and the important ones are yet to come. The first weeks of the legislature have served to bring out many fair test votes and have also shown that while there is a tendency for the house and senate to work at cross purposes there is assurance that deadlocks will be few.

Among the actions taken on the floor of both houses just prior to adjournment which provoked long and bitter debate were the killing of the Berry bill to restore the office of county superintendent of schools to elective status in the senate, the killing of the Brookhart bill to make the election of a county engineer optional with the county boards of supervisors, the killing of the Criswell bill to tie the hands of the board of education in letting contracts for state work and the passage of the Rewoldt bill, similar to the Brookhart bill in the house. This bill, however, was probably killed by the action of the house in defeating a bill which sought to change the same statute in the same way. There is a rule of order that the same measure cannot be twice acted on in the same session.

The startegy of watchful waiting and careful thinking has been adopted by the ways and means committees. As one member of the joint legislative committee on taxation who is also a member of a ways and means committee put it: "We are working like troopers on the report of the tax committee in our ways and means committee. But we are not shoving a vote on it, because the radical changes in taxation advocated in this report must be approached gradually. When I went on that tax committee and for six months afterward nobody could convince me that I'd ever sanction that first bill, the administrative one to do away with city and township assessors and substitute a state board of assessment and review and county assessors. But after a while I became convinced that was the thing to do, and I have hopes that the legislature will come to see that before it is through."

The dividing line between conservatives and progressives in the legislature has been drawn pretty taut. Several votes in the last few days before adjournment served to show that on a number of important measures, chief of which is always highway matters, the forward looking individuals are in the majority. Constructive highway legislation stands a much better chance of passage now than it did last January. The senate was equally divided until a few days ago. The house was top-heavy against the highway commission. Now the senate by two test votes has shown pretty clearly that it is in a mood to go a long way with the highway commission.

The Berry bill passed the house by a vote of just one more than the constitutional majority of fifty-five required. In the senate a substitute for it which would have made the county superintendents elective but at the spring elections so as to make the office non-partisan was adopted after a long and acrid debate in which many startling charges against the county superintendents now in office and the Iowa State Teachers association were made. A call of the senate was issued and forty-eight of the fifty members were on hand to vote. The other two were sick and excused. The bill finally lost by a vote of 26 to 22.

On taxation, the biggest problem, perhaps of the entire session, there has been little indication. There have been threats to kill appropriation bills—one openly on the floor of the house—and other covertly in informal gatherings. The only indication of what may happen to the big appropriation bills was given when the house committee on ways and means killed one bill entirely on a first committee vote and slashed another appropriation from $160,000 to $100,000.

On highway matters there is much of the same attitude. There must, unquestionably be many changes in the highway laws. To some of them there is opposition. But it is less than it was when the session opened. A test vote on this sentiment taken in the house highways committee revealed some startling changes in thought.

An eight-hour day for persons employed at the state prisons and reformatories is proposed in a bill introduced by Representative Potts of Lee.

The Brookhart bill was killed in the senate on the same day the Rewoldt bill was passed. In the house similar action in some ways to that of the senate on the Berry bill was taken on the Criswell bill. The original bill required the board of education to let only by contract all work involving in excess of $2,500. The schools and text books committee recommended a substitute which would have required contracts on work involving $10,000; but gave the board the option of rejecting all bids and doing the work by day labor.

ELIZABETH J. EDWARDS

Miss Elizabeth J. Edwards, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey, who has just made her debut as a singer with the New York Mozart society in the Hotel Astor, New York city.

BATTLE IN DUBLIN

Rebels Swoop Down on Capital From Hills.

Two Killed and Many Wounded in Heart of Irish Capital—City in Panic.

Dublin, Feb. 22.—Rebels broke from their hiding places, swooped down on Dublin and plunged the city into a crowded half hour of warfare Wednesday afternoon.

Advancing somewhat after the fashion of American Indians on a peaceful settlement, rebel bands from the Dublin mountains joined other irregulars who had stowed themselves away in the Irish capital during the night.

The enemies of the Free State fired pistols and rifles as they advanced through the streets toward the center of the city.

Panic broke out. Control was lost of traffic and horses and autos ran in all directions. Women shrieked and fainted. Scores of people, not knowing what else to do, threw themselves face downward on the sidewalks and gutters. Others scurried for cover.

Snipers from tall buildings began firing on the crowd; Free State marksmen began aiming at the advancing rebels. Rebel snipers tried to fell Free State troops who came rushing from barracks when the war call was sounded.

The attack principally was aimed against public buildings of the Free State. Windows were shattered and doors smashed in the city hall.

Finally, the Free State soldiery, greatly outnumbering the rebels, forced the latter to retreat after two of their number had been slain and several had been wounded on both sides.

MORE JOBS, SLIMMER WAGES

Bureau of Labor Statistics Gives Out Figures for the Month of January.

Washington, Feb. 22.—An increase in the number of employees, but a decrease in the amount of the pay roll of 4,153 representative industries is reported by the bureau of labor statistics for January.

Figures for January covered 1,839,678 employees, whose total wages during the one week pay roll period reported amounted to $45,10[illegible],280.

BANK PRESIDENT IS SEIZED

Fugitive From Warren, Mass., Is Held at Chicago on Embezzlement Charge.

Chicago, Feb. 22.—Frank L. Taylor was arrested here Wednesday, charged with embezzling $212,000 from the First National bank of Warren, Mass., of which he was president.

Taylor was hiding in the apartment of Arthur Mann, an engraver, at 3455 West Madison street, after a precipitate flight from Warren last week.

BOCHUM UNDER MARTIAL LAW

Civilian Outbreaks in Ruhr City Bring Military Rule, Berlin Reports.

Berlin, Feb. 24.—Disturbances, which resulted in the firing upon citizens by French soldiers, have resulted in martial law being declared in Bochum, says a dispatch to the Central News. Any further outbreak by the populace will be followed by even more severe measures.

May Get $10,000 Return.

Washington, Feb. 24.—The administration bill directing the return of as much as $10,000 of each estate of former enemy aliens held by the alien property custodian was passed by the house.

Rejects Packer Merger Quiz.

Washington, Feb. 24.—A demand in the form of a resolution asking a federal trade commission investigation of the proposed Armour and Morris merger was tabled by the house agricultural committee.

CAR LOADINGS FOR WEEK HEAVY

Reports Indicate Greatest Prosperity in History of the Nation.

BIG EXCESS OVER YEAR AGO

Coal Loading Amounted to 190,860 Cars—Loading of Grain and Grain Products Totaled 40,939 Cars.

Washington, Feb. 23.—Indications of the greatest prosperity in the history of the nation were seen in reports of the car service division of the American Railway association, which showed that in the week ending February 10, loading of revenue freight totaled 853,289 cars. This was not only a continuation of the unusually heavy loading for this season of the year, which has been in evidence for some months, but exceeded all corresponding weeks for last year on record.

The total for the week was 75,498 cars in excess for the same week last year and exceeded the same week in 1921 by 165,422 cars. Due principally to severe weather conditions in various parts of the country, the total, however, was a decrease of 12,386 cars as compared with the preceding week this year.

Coal loading amounted to 190,860 cars, 1,087 in excess of the week before. While this was a decrease of 1,929 cars as compared with the corresponding week last year, when the coal movement was stimulated somewhat by fears of a miners' strike, it exceeded the corresponding week in 1921 by 38,288 cars.

Loading of grain and grain products totaled 40,939 cars, which was a decrease under the week before of 797 cars and a decrease under the same week last year of 13,070 cars. It was, however, an increase of 7,477 cars over the same week in 1921.

Forest products loading totaled 64,310 cars, 5,457 cars below the week before, but 12,316 cars over the same week last year. It also exceeded the same week two years ago by 11,175 cars.

ENGLISH PER CAPITA TAX $48

French Is $15 and the United States $13, Says British Chancellor of Exchequer.

London, Feb. 23.—A comparison of the per capita taxation in Great Britain, France, and the United States was given by Stanley Baldwin, chancellor of the exchequer, in reply to a question in the house of commons, as follows:

Great Britain—Direct taxes, 210 shillings (roughly $18.30); indirect, 122 shillings ($28.06).

France—Direct, 242 francs (roughly $15); indirect, 193 francs ($12).

United States—Federal taxes, direct, $13.60; indirect, $12.70.

AUTO OUTPUT SETS RECORD

Passenger Production in January Was 221,697, Truck Output Being 19,206, Says Report.

Washington Feb. 23.—Automobile production in the United States increased in January to the highest point since last August, the usual month of peak production, according to the Commerce department. Passenger car production in January was 221,697, or almost three times the production of 81,693 in January, 1921, and truck production was more than double, being 19,206 last month, as compared with 9,416 in January a year ago.

AMERICANS EAT MORE MEAT

Official Figures Show That 149.7 Pounds Was Average Yankee's Supply for 1922.

Washington, Feb. 22.—More meat was consumed in the United States last year than in any previous year, the Department of Agriculture announced. The total consumption was estimated at 16,333,000,000 pounds, which amounts to 149.7 pounds per person. The per capita consumption showed an increase of six pounds over 1921 and 6½ pounds over 1920.

Seize Coal in New York State.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Feb. 20.—Upper New York's coal famine became so acute that citizens of several communities seized fuel from railroads. Other communities threaten to do so unless relief comes immediately.

Arthur J. Leonard, commissioner of public works, seized nine carloads.

Mediation by U. S. Welcome.

Constantinople, Feb. 24.—Although mediation in the Near East by the League of Nations is barred by Turkey, it is declared by Turkish officials that such mediation by the United States would be welcomed.

Tied Up by Dry Prosecution.

Washington, Feb. 24.—Forty-four per cent of the time of the U. S. district attorneys is devoted to prohibition enforcement, John D. Harris, budget officer of the Department of Justice, told the house appropriations committee.

Prominent Peop

Mrs. Poindexter Stirs Up Hornets'

Official Washington is en[illegible] Mrs. Miles Poindexter, wi[illegible] Washington senator who wa[illegible] beaten for re-election. Wha[illegible] done? Why, written up t[illegible] for the Spokesman-Review o[illegible] Why, official Washington [illegible] like a beehive over her co[illegible] official and social life in t[illegible] and bitterly sarcastic refe[illegible] public officials and their w[illegible] seriously was the matter ta[illegible] cial circles that it was sa[illegible] expected nomination of [illegible] dexter for the post of amb[illegible] Peru had been held up at t[illegible] House.

Among the customs of W[illegible] life singled out for special [illegible] by Mrs. Poindexter are the [illegible] of automobiles for the use o[illegible] members, though not of secr[illegible] detail of army officers as a[illegible] cial functions, the yacht at t[illegible] al of the secretary of the navy, flowers from the Agricultural Depart[illegible] music from the Marine band at the disposal of cabinet officers and th[illegible]

Secretary of War and Mrs. Weeks, Secretary of the Navy Denby, retary of Agriculture and Mrs. Wallace, and Mrs. Davis, wife of the of labor, are named in this connection.

Senator La Follette (Rep., Wis.) and Senator Borah (Rep., I[illegible] denounced, congress is dealt with at some length, and the bloc sys[illegible] ferred to as follows:

"Congress has had too many blocs—the farm bloc, the railroad labor bloc—not to mention the blockheads that seem to be there."

Grant Escapes Church Heresy

Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant will not be tried for heresy because of recent sermons before his pastorate in the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Ascension, it now appears. Bishop William T. Manning, who had requested Rev. Dr. Grant to "recant or resign," because of his professed doubt of the deity of Christ, said he would let the matter rest for the present because the pastor, replying to the request, had not made clear whether he really doubted Christ's deity or not.

Of course, there are those who figure that Dr. Grant is grievously disappointed, and there are those who do not hesitate to intimate that Dr. Grant never would have preached the "heresy" sermons, had he been allowed to marry Mrs. Lydig. Dr. Grant, it will be remembered, publicly announced his intention of marrying Mrs. Lydig, the former wife of Mayor Philip Lydig and of W. E. D. Stokes, in defiance of church canons which forbid her to remarry.

Dr. Grant is sixty-three years old and has been rector of his ch[illegible] 1893. He is the author of several books and belongs to several clubs.

Wheat King, Ten Books, Desert I[illegible]

James A. Patten of Evan[illegible] is famous as one of the few [illegible] men who ever took millions [illegible] wheat pit and got away w[illegible] Moreover he's a man of affa[illegible] many activities. He's head [illegible] linois State Prison comm[illegible] charge of the building of the [illegible] penitentiary at Joliet, for [illegible] and is identified with the en[illegible] of the Landis award in Chi[illegible]

If James A. Patten, w[illegible] were cast away on a deser[illegible] would start out to become [illegible] successful outcast on the lot. What ten would he take a[illegible] would take none. For——

"Nobody who reads and [illegible] his time away will ever am[illegible] hill of beans."

That observation came [illegible] Patten when he was asked [illegible] ment on the controversy rais[illegible] Princeton professors who se[illegible] ten books they would take if they knew they were to be isolated or sh[illegible] for life.

"What the Sam Hill would I do with ten books on a desert island Mr. Patten. "I'm no reading man. The only way to get ahead on a land or anywhere else to go out and work. I never saw any one amounted to anything if they studied and read all the time.

"It wouldn't matter what ten to me, because after you've read t[illegible] what good are they?"

Woman Novelist Whacks "God-Sak[illegible]

Mary Roberts Rinehart, the novelist, is given more to entertaining than to sermonizing, but she has decided notions of orderly government in this country and expresses them in a letter to the president of the Institute of Government. After alluding to the effort required to transform the nation from the effects of the conflict, the country is still hysterical, she says, and the people emotional, followers of rumor, suspicious and fearful.

"A good many of us," said Mrs. Rinehart, "have become what Wells calls the 'Godsakers,' people who are madly wringing their hands and crying, 'For God's sake, let's do something.' The writer insists that it is time the American people do a little straight thinking, with the certainty that a thoughtful and patriotic citizenry of this rich and advanced country cannot go far wrong. The people are still swayed by emotional gales, which blow them hither and yon, she says, and sane leadership is sorely Mrs. Rinehart continues:

"When we cease to pull together toward the definite ends of life and the pursuit of happiness we are open to the attack of every de[illegible] who chooses to assume the attitude of leadership. New theories spri[illegible] tried and revolutionary, and find their following among this seething m[illegible] normal uneasiness of a people recovering from a great war is being [illegible] into bitterness and discontent."

John Wanamaker

Said

"It seems to me that retail advertising is a very simple matter in these days, when the newspaper goes into every home in the land. I believe that the retail merchant who fails to advertise, fails in his duty to his customers. The public has a right to know what a merchant is doing; it has a right to know what sort of goods he has in his establishment, and what kind of service he renders, and what the conditions of his service are. It has a right to know when he receives new goods, and has a right to know what the new goods are like.

"No merchant nowadays ought to expect the public to give him its patronage unless he comes out frankly and tells the public what reasons he has to expect its patronage. And he ought to do this in the daily newspapers—or the weekly newspaper if there is no daily in his town. That's the way for him to stand fair and square with the people whom he expects to come in and buy his goods.

"Let his advertisement be the truthful news of what he is doing, and let him print it in the newspaper, where news belongs, and then he will be playing fair with the public and deserving of it's confidence."

Advertise in

The Klemme Times

FAITHLESS NELLY GRAY

Ben Battle was a soldier bold
  And used to war's alarms;
But a cannon-ball took off his legs,
  So he laid down his arms!

Now, they bore him off the field,
  Said he, "Let others shoot
For here I leave my second leg,
  And the forty-second Foot!"

The army surgeons made him limbs;
  Said he, "they're only pegs!
But there's as wooden numbers quite
  As represent my legs."

Now, Ben, he loved a pretty maid,
  Her name was Nelly Gray;
So he went to pay her his devoirs,
  When he'd devoured his pay.

But when he called on Nelly Gray,
  She made him quite a scoff;
And when she saw his wooden legs,
  Began to take them off!

"O Nelly Gray! O Nelly Gray!
  Is this your love so warm?
The love that loves a scarlet coat
  Should be more uniform!"

Said she, "I loved a soldier once,
  For he was blithe and brave;
But I will never have a man
  With both legs in the grave!"

"Before you had these timber toes,
  Your love I did allow,
But then, you know, you stand upon Another footing now!"

"O false and fickle Nelly Gray!
  I know why you refuse:
Though I've no feet—some other man
  Is standing in my shoes!"

"I wish I ne'er had seen your face;
  But, now a long farewell!
For you will be my death;—alas!
  You will not be my NELL."

Now when he went from Nelly Gray
  His heart so heavy got,
And life was such a burden grown,
  It made him take a knot!

So around his melancholy neck,
  A rope he did entwine,
And, for the second time in life,
  Enlisted in the Line.

One end he tied around a beam,
  And then removed his pegs,
And, as his legs were off, of course
  He soon was off his legs.

And there he hung, till he was dead
  As any nail in town.
For though distress had cut him up,
  It could not cut him down!

—Thomas Hood.

AVERY TOWNSHIP

Wava Bachman spent the week end at home with her parents.

D. A. Marshall and Virgil Cook shelled corn the past week.

Tommy Nelson shelled corn and sawed wood one day last week.

Quite a number in the vicinity attended the Public Sale of Martin Jensen which was held February 21.

Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Roths visited Mr. and Mrs. Robert Roths a few days last week.

Forestalled

"I suppose the young man thought he would live with his wife's parents?"

"That's what he thought, but her father was too smart for him."

"What did he do?"

"Before they got back from the honeymoon he sold the old home place and moved to a hotel."

They Thought Alike

Pat had got hurt—not much more than a scratch, it is true—but his employer had visions of being compelled to keep him for life and had adopted the wise course of sending him to the hospital.

After the house surgeon had examined him carefully, he said to the nurse: "As subcutaneous abrasion is not observable, I do not think there is any reason to apprehend tegumental cicatrization of the wound."

Then, turning to the patient, he asked quizzically: "What do you think, Pat?"

"Sure," said Pat, "ye took the very words out of my mouth. That's jist what I was going to say."

Obliging

A man who had been drinking too many saw a sign, "Please ring the bell for the caretaker."

He walked up and gave the bell such a pull that it nearly came out by the roots.

In a few moments an angry man appeared at the door. "Are you the caretaker?' asked the bell puller.

"Yes. What do you want?"

"I saw that notice, so I rang the bell, and now I want to know why you can't ring it yourself."

Naming The Baby

"I've decided on a name for baby" said the young mother. "I shall call her Euphrosyne."

Her husband dil not care for the suggestion; but, being a tactful fellow, he was far too wise to say so.

"Splendid," he said cheerfully. "The first girl I ever loved was called Euphrosyne and the name will revive pleasant memories."

There was a brief silence. Then: "We will call her Elizabeth, after my mothr," said the young wife firmly.

JAP FINDS COMET IN SKIES

Discovery Makes Three Tailed Stars Now Under Observation by Astronomers.

Cambridge, Mass —The spectacle of three comets swinging through the skies is afforded astronomers for the first time in years.

To the two comets, Skjellerup's and Baade's, that have been under observation for weeks, another has been added. The tailed star known as Perrine's, making another visitation to our stellar system after an absence of two generations, has been sighted.

Announcement of the rediscovery of Perrine's comet was made by the Harvard college observatory in a cable gram from the central bureau of astronomical telegrams at Copenhagen.

Nakamura, a Japanese scientist, reported having spotted the wanderer on November 29. The position which he gave is southeast of the star Procyon, and about midway between the constellations Monoceros and Hydra. In magnitude the comet is comparatively faint.

The Harvard observatory an nounces also an observation from Prof. A. O. Leuschner, director of the students' observatory, University of California, that may change the name of Skjellerup's comet by identifying it as Brooks' comet.

HE BEGS; WIFE TAKES CASH

Cohen, Aged 76, Uses Tiny Bank, but Mrs. Cohen Keeps the Key and Grabs the Money.

New York.—When Aaron Cohen, seventy-six years old, of 320 East One Hundred and Third street, was arrested at Hester and Essex streets for begging, it developed his wife holds the key to the tiny bank he uses in his trade and holds also the key to the city prison as far as her husband's release is concerned.

Every morning Cohen's wife gives him the bank and five cents, Cohen told Magistrate McAndrews in Essex Market court, and then he goes forth to beg. When he returns home he gives the bank to his wife and she removes the money.

He was fined $10, with the alternative of passing three days in the city prison. Lacking the necessary money, he went to jail until officials communicated with Mrs. Cohen.

GOTHAM GETS 7 TOWN CLOCKS

Time Meters Are to Be Placed in Fifth Avenue as Part of Traffic Signal System.

New York.—New York is to have a town clock, or, to be more exact, seven town clocks. The seven clocks are a part of the equipment of the seven new bronze signal towers being erected in Fifth avenue as the gift of the Fifth Avenue association.

Each of the seven towers will be equipped with electrically synchronized clocks with north and south faces. The hours will be tolled by 350-pound bronze bells. The master tower at Forty-second street and Fifth avenue was put into operation after dedicatory exercises. The others are nearing completion.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS

who expect to move soon. Kindly send us your present address, your new address and the date you make the change soe w can keep the paper coming without your missing a single copy.

THE KLEMME TIMES,
Klemme, Iowa.

Please change my address as follows:

My old address is—

Name .....

Town ..... State ..... R.F.D....

My new address will be—

Town ..... Sta ..... R.F.D....

Make change.....
(Give Date.)

Fill out the blank and mail at once to The Klemme Times

There are two kinds of men—thos who are on their toes and those who are on their backs.

Physically, all human beings are constructed alike, but a lot of them would feel insulted if you told them so.

Farm work is being made lighter but nobody has ever invented anything to keep the animals from demanding food at the best sleeping time of the morning.

What a youth starting into business should keep in mind is that honors may be very cheap, but cash is always expensive.

More men fail by trying to attend to somebody else's business than by trying to attend to their own.

Better a weeping pessimist than a smiling hypocrite.

A lot of men who are stuck on themselves, go around trying to stick others.

Exactly what is it that a flapper does when she flaps?

When a motor stalls, the inexpert driver does the same thing.

Narrow minds have not had wide experience.

Those who have tried it find that rich relatives make poor picking.

50 GOOD CIGARETTES 10¢

GENUINE "BULL" DURHAM TOBACCO

TYPEWRITER RIBBONS
All Makes

Typewriter Ribbons for sale at the Times Office. all of the Standard makes. Ribbons 75 cents each.

THE CITY DRAY LINE
—Is prepared to do your hauling carefully and promptly.
We solicit your patronage.
Charges reasonable.
Coal Hauling Done
Louie Knoke

DENTIST
J. L. Hesselhuus, D. D. S.
Office Hours 8-12 1-5:30
Office Opposite State Savings Bank; In Schaffer Bldg.
Evening Work By Appointment Only
Klemme, Ia. Phone 81

KLEMME DRAY LINE
Phone 2105
A share of your patronage is solicited. All work attended to promptly and carefully. We haul coal quick.
LLOYD LAU, PROP.

Suits for Easter

I have over a thousand samples from which you may make your selection.

Clothing is not High

Use judgement as most of you always do and the purchase price will be very reasonable.

You can buy a suit of me at any price you wish to pay and made to your individual measure.

Last Season's Business Was Big—Let's Double It This Spring.

The Men's Fashion Shop

"Where Good Clothes Are Made."
A. W. JOHNSON
GARNER IOWA
Pantorium in connection

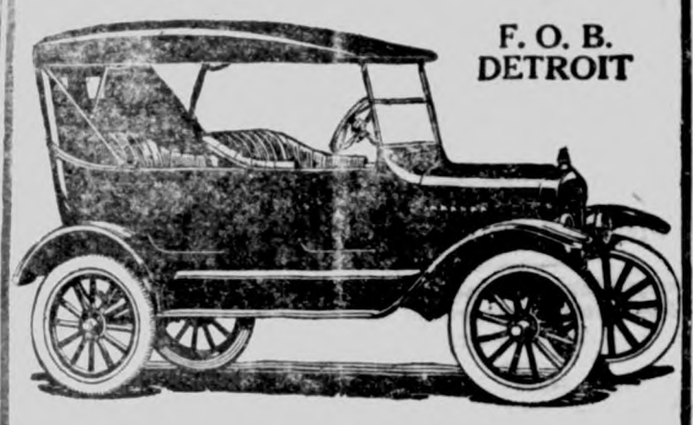
Ford

TOURING CAR

New Price

$298

F. O. B. DETROIT



This is the lowest price at which the Ford Touring Car has ever sold, and with the many new improvements, including the one man top, it is a bigger value than ever before.

Buy now. Terms if desired.

Greimann Motor Co

Aaron Greimann, Mgr. Klemme, Iowa

GEORGE ZINN, M. D.

Physician and Surgeon

Office opposite from Hotel Klemme

Phone No. 19

Eyes Examined Glasses Fitted

Just to Remiud You-

That this is the place to get some nice fresh bulk

Sauerkraut, per pound 10c

Then there are times you don't know just what to get for a little variety at the meal, so we suggest that you try our nice fresh smoked or pickled fish.

Herring Mackeral
Salmon White Fish

Fresh Fish this Week

If you want a pie "like mother used to make" try our bulk Armour's Very Best

Mince Meat, per pound 18c

J. P. Larsen & Sons

The Klemme Meat Market

NEWS OF INTEREST FROM OVER THIS BROAD LAND

NEWS NUBBINS

"The time has come," the Walrus said, "to talk of many things—of shoes and ships anl sealing wax; of cabbages and kings."

Spanish War Veterans Observed the twenty-fifth anniversary of the sinking of the battleship Maine, which resulted in the war in which they fought. With the ladies' auxilliary and the Lineal Society, the veterans first held services at the mast of the old battleship in Arlington cemetery. Many wreaths, including one sent by President Harding, were placed there in memory of those who lost their lives when the vessel wnt down in Cuban waters. From Arlington, the party proceeded to the riding hall at Fort Myer, Va., where the principal ceremonies were held. Addresses were delivered lauding the spirit of those who fought in the Spanish war and urging the veterans on to greater activities.

United States Army Statistics Credit the German super gun that pounded Paris during the war with a range of 132,000 yards (seventy-five miles and compare this with the 39,000 yard (a little more than twenty-two miles) maximum range of American fourteen-inch naval guns. The German projectile for which figures are given, however, was 8.26 inches in diameter and weighed 264 pounds. The shell in the American gun weighs 1,400 pounds and is fourteen inches in diameter. The report says the German gun was constructed "from worn out fifteen-inch naval guns, mounted on concrete emplacements."

Railroads Serving The More Important bituminous mining districts are making heavy expenditures in the purchase of new coal cars and engines to prevent a repetition this year of car shortage and congestion which occurd in 1922, according to a statement given out by the National Coal Association. The facts were developed by means of a questionaire sent to railroad presidents concerned and will be printed in the current issue of the Coal Review, the association's official journal.

In Brussels, Belgium, It Is Announced that King Gustav of Sweden plans to visit King Albert, and will be accompanied by the Swedish Premier, Hjalmar Branting. Brussels political circles see in Branting's journey an attempt by Germany to sound Belgium on the possibility of negotiating in the reparations difficulty. Branting is known to be favorable to Germanys entry into the League of Nations, which would only be possible after she had given proof of good will.

Medical Records Of The A. E. F. indicate that artillery fire was responsible for 70 per cent of the gunshot wounds reported. In the civil war 90 per cent of gunshot wounds were from small arms and grenades. The statistics are based on a study of 245,790 civil war gunshot wound records and 147,651 similar A. E. F. returns. In more than 103,000 civil war cases and in 74,883 world war cases, however, the nature of the missile inflicting the wound was not recorded.

German Authorities Are Putting into effect more rigid control over the movements of foreigners in Germany, the State Department was advised in a cablegram from Ambassador Houghton, who reported that he had been notified by the German Foreign Office that hereafter foreigners who lacked proper vises of their passports and who otherwise were unable to explain satisfactorily their presence in Germany probably would be expelled.

The Raising Of United States Currency above its face value by unscrupulous individuals has become so general during the past few years that the Secret Service Division of the United States has issued a general warning to all who handle large sums of money to give close watch to all currency acepted. Hotels, banks and merchants are generaby the ones who receive most of the raised mony.

Five Airplanes, Each Manned With a pilot and mechanician will start March 15 from Villa Coublay near Paris, for a tour of the world. The itinerary will include Italy, Turnesia Egypt, Syria, Mesopotamia, Persia, India, Siam, Indo-China, China, Korea, Japan, Canada, United States, Central America, Argentina, Africa and Spain. The aviators will be headed by Capt. Marcel Madon, famous war ace.

Sadi Lecointe. The French Aviator, flying a 300-horsepoyer Nieuport, the other day maintained an officially timed speed of 377,657 kilo meters (234.664 miles) an hour for a distance of four kilometers. This eclipses the record established by Brig. Gen. William Mitchell, assistant chief of the American air firce, who flew 224.05 miles and hour at Selfridge field, Michigan, on October 18 last.

Nevada Went Back Into The 'Wet' column last week so far as state regulation is concerned, the legislature having repealed over the governor's veto the existing prohibition laws. At the same time the legislature passed the Whitley prohibition law of Nevada, but until the governor signs it no state law will prohibit the liquor traffic. Doubt as to the constitutionality of he Whiley law may lead to its veto.

The Population of the Continental United States on January 1, 192-, was approximately 110,100,000, according to a preliminary estimate made by the national bureau of economic research of New York City. This shows an estimated gain of 4.-500,000 since the date of the last government census.

A New Record For Speed Between Cleveland and New York was establishd this week, when a De Haviland-mail plane, carrying 400 pounds of mail made the 435 miles run in 2 hours and 37 minutes. The former record was one minute more. The plane was piloted by Paul Collins.

The Cost Of The Ruhr Occupation was vividly brought home to the French people this week by the announcement that Minister of Finance de Lasteyrie would ask the Cabinet to sanction credits for 100,000,000 francs for the occupation.

The Strike Of Coal Mineus In northern France ordered by the United General Confederation of Labor the communist organization of seceders from the General Conferation of Labor, began a few days ago with probably 25,000 men quitting.

Local Items

A charivari gang entertained Mr. and Mrs. Tom Roths with some excellent "music" Tuesday evening. The newly-weds evidently enjoyed the racket for Tom instructed them to go to th restaurant and eat hat concern out of business and he would pay the bill. That hungry feeling vanished in a hurry, we'll say so!

Mrs. W. F. Misman has been a patient at the Hampton Hospital for a week or more, taking treatments. Her mother, Mrs. Ely, of Belmond has been keeping house during her absence. Her many friends hope that she may soon regain her health. She is expected to return home the latter part of this week.

Mrs. Hake told our reporter that she celebrated her birthday Saturday, and that evening had a dinner to remember the event. The birthday cake had on it candles to the numbr of — —? She stuttered when she told the reporter how many so we will have to let Mrs. Hake inform any who are curious.

Lesley Hartbeck has rented the working land of U. G. Smid, and we suppose he will farm it in connection with the Elder farm he has also rented. U. G. says he is going to join the list of —tired farmers, but will still live on his farm 1-2 mile south of town. He will have a farm sale soon. he tells us, so watch this paper for the date.

Harry Carpenter and Alma Ruka, both of near Goodell, were married last Wednesday. They will go to housekeeping on a farm near Klemme. Friday evening a large number of their friends gathered at the Geo. Ruka home to have a shower on the happy young couple. Many useful presents were presented to them. Refreshments were served and all those present report a pleasant evning.

Emil Patet is the good looking gentleman behind the grocery counter at the Wellemeyer store. ... work there two or three ... Bert Mathews is taking a ... Bert has not been well of late ... feeling some better. A long ... tion will put Bert in shape ... Mr. Patet is an experienced ... man. He is also well acq... with many people of this vic... he formerly lived at Garner ... ber of years ago.

Harl Gimer took the bas... girls to Goodell last night ... Overland sedan. He left the ... in front of the hall at Goo... when he returned to go hom... that one of the windows ha... broken; he also found that ... tery wasrun down and he ... crank the car. Whoever ta... with his car should be prose... the full extent of the law ... out. It was a dirty trick for ... to do.

Ernie Helps is again back ... U. S. A. and more particular... Klemme again. Ernie le... the 10th of November for ... for a visit with his folks an... other relatives and friends ... the winter. Tuesday morn... saw him coming smiling up ... drag and he seemed to be ... be in Klemme again. He ... formed us that he had a fi... that he enjoyed visiting h... and many friends but that ... mighty glad to get back to t... again.

Card Of Thanks

We want to thank all who ... ly assisted us, and for the fl... erings presented in memory ... grandson and nephew, Bert ... bell, also for the expressio... words of sympathy.

—Mrs. J. W. Brooks
—Miss Laura Brooks.

PURE BRED

Hatching Eg...

Ferris 300 Egg Strain.. S...
Comb White Leghorn-

Hatching Eggs $...
Per 100

H. G. Brun...

Phone 607 Goodell

Red Top Steel Post Sale

GOOD News! Fence Posts at Reduced Prices! Buy your spring fence post requirements while our RED TOP sale is on.

This is the first and only fence post sale we will hold this year. So look over your fence situation, see how many posts you'll need this year, for new fences, temporary fences, and repairs. Then attend our sale.

Posts on sale are the famous RED TOP Double Strength Studded Tee. They are all new, bright stock, in the handsome aluminized finish.

The RED TOP Double Strength Studded Tee Post. It is guaranteed.

FREE—A Red Top Post Driver

During this sale we will give free of charge to every purchaser of 100 or more RED TOP Posts one of the new RED TOP One Man Post Drivers—the best helper that the fence builder ever had. It will save many fence building hours and dollars.

Sale Dates---March 3rh to 17th

Northern Lumber Co.

Klemme Iowa

DESERT GOLD

By ZANE GREY

Author of

The Riders of the Purple Sage, Wildfire, Etc.

Copyright by Harper & Brothers.

DIABLO STOLEN

SYNOPSIS.—Seeking gold in the desert, "Cameron," solitary prospector, forms a partnership with an unknown man whom he later learns is Jonas Warren, father of a girl whom Cameron wronged, but later married, back in Illinois. Cameron's explanations appease Warren, and the two proceed together. Taking refuge from a sandstorm in a cave, Cameron discovers gold, but too late; both men are dying. Cameron leaves evidence, in the cave, of their discovery of gold, and personal documents. Richard Gale, adventurer, in Casita, Mexican border town, meets George Thorne, lieutenant in the Ninth cavalry, old college friend. Thorne tells Gale he is there to save Mercedes Castaneda, Spanish girl, his affianced wife, from Rojas, Mexican bandit. Gale "roughhouses" Rojas and his gang, with the help of two American cowboys, and he, Mercedes and Thorne escape. A bugle call from the fort orders Thorne to his regiment. He leaves Mercedes under Gale's protection. The pair, aided by the cowboys, Charlie Ladd and Jim Lash, arrive in safety at a ranch known as Forlorn River, across the border. The fugitives are at Tom Belding's home. Belding is immigration inspector. Living with him are his wife and stepdaughter, Nell Burton. Gale, with Ladd and Lash, take service with Belding as rangers, Gale telling Belding the cause of his being a wanderer, a misunderstanding with his father concerning the son's business abilities. Mercedes gets word to Thorne of her safety. Dick also writes to his parents, informing them of his whereabouts. Nell's personality, and her kindness, attract Gale. Riding the range, Gale falls in with a party of three Mexican raiders encamped at a water hole. Watching his opportunity to oust them, he sees two Indians ride into the camp. One of them, a Yaqui, is evidently badly wounded, and the Mexicans seek to kill him in a cruel way. Dick drives them off, conveying the wounded Yaqui to Belding's ranch.

CHAPTER VII.—Continued.

—8—

A great fenced field of velvety green alfa furnished a rich background r the drove of about twenty white orses. Blanco Diablo was the only he in the field that was not free to am and graze where he listed. A ake and a halter held him to one rner, where he was severely let one by the other horses. He did not ke this isolation. Blanco Diablo was t happy unless he was running, or hting a rival. Of the two he would ther fight. If anything white could semble a devil, this horse surely d. He had nothing beautiful about m, yet he drew the gaze and held The look of him suggested disntent, anger, revolt, viciousness. hen he was not grazing or prancing, held his long, lean head level, pointg his nose and showing his teeth. elding's favorite was almost all the orld to him, and he swore Diablo uld stand more heat and thirst and ctus than any other horse he owned, d could run down and kill any rse in the Southwest.

The cowboys admitted some of elding's claims for Diablo, but they ve loyal and unshakable allegiance Blanco Sol. As for Dick, he had fight himself to keep out of arguents, for he sometimes imagined he as unreasonable about the horse. hough he could not understand himlf, he knew he loved Sol as a man ved a friend, a brother. Free of eavy saddle and the clumsy leg hields, Blanco Sol was somehow allatisfying to the eyes of the rangers. he dazzling whiteness of the desert n shone from his coat; he had the re and spirit of the desert in his oble head, its strength and power in s gigantic frame.

"Belding swears Sol never beat Diablo," Dick was saying.

"He believes it," replied Nell. "Dad queer about that horse."

"I've often wondered how Belding ver came to give Blanco Sol to me," aid Dick.

"I think he wanted to get rid of ol."

"Maybe. He surely has strange pasion for horses. I think I understand etter than I used to. I owned a ouple of racers once. They were ast animals to me, I guess. But lanco Sol!"

"Do you love him?" asked Nell; and ow a warm, blue flash of eyes swept is face.

"Do I? Well, rather."

"I'm glad. Sol has been finer, a etter horse since you owned him. He oves you, Dick. Sol always hated Diablo, and never had much use for Dad."

Dick looked up at her.

"It'll be—be pretty hard to leave Sol —when I go away."

Nell sat perfectly still.

"Go away?" she asked, presently, with just the faintest tremor in her roice.

"Yes. Sometimes when I get blue—as I am today—I think I'll go. But, n sober truth, Nell, it's not likely hat I'll spend all my life here."

There was no answer to this. Dick put his hand softly over hers; and, despite her half-hearted struggle to free it, he held on.

"Nell!"

Her color fled. He saw her lips part. Then a heavy step on the gravel, a cheerful, complaining voice interrupted him, and made him release Nell and draw back. Belding strode into view round the adobe shed.

"Hey, Dick, that darned Yaqui Indian can't be driven or hired or coaxed to leave Forlorn River. He's well enough to travel. I offered him horse, gun, blanket, grub. But no go."

"That's funny," replied Gale, with a smile. "Let him stay—put him to work."

"It doesn't strike me funny. But I'll tell you what I think. That poor, homeless, heartbroken Indian has taken a liking to you, Dick. You saved his life. That sort of thing counts big with any Indian, even with an Apache. With a Yaqui maybe it's of deep significance. I've heard a Yaqui say that with his tribe no debt to friend or foe ever went unpaid. Perhaps that's what ails this fellow."

"Dick, don't laugh," said Nell. "I've noticed the Yaqui. It's pathetic the way his great gloomy eyes follow you."

Her Color Fled. He Saw Her Lips Part.

"You've made a friend," continued Belding. "A Yaqui could be a real friend on this desert. If he gets his strength back he'll be of service to you, don't mistake me. He's welcome here. But you're responsible for him, and you'll have trouble keeping him from massacring all the Greasers in Forlorn River."

* * * * * * *

The probability of a visit from the raiders, and a dash bolder than usual on the outskirts of a ranch, led Belding to build a new corral. It was not sightly to the eye, but it was high and exceedingly strong. The gate was a massive affair, swinging on huge hinges and fastening with heavy chains and padlocks.

At night Belding locked his white horses in this corral. The Papago herdsmen slept in the adobe shed adjoining. Belding did not imagine that any wooden fence, however substantially built, could keep determined raiders from breaking it down. They would have to take time, however, and make considerable noise; and Belding relied on these facts. Belding did not believe a band of night raiders would hold out against a hot rifle fire. Ladd did not share Belding's sanguine hopes.

One January morning Dick Gale was awakened by a shrill, menacing cry. He leaped up bewildered and frightened. He heard Belding's booming voice answering shouts, and rapid steps on flagstones. But these had not awakened him. Heavy breaths, almost sobs, seemed at his very door. In the cold and gray dawn Dick saw something white. Gun in hand, he bounded across the room. Just outside his door stood Blanco Sol.

It was not unusual for Sol to come poking his head in at Dick's door during daylight. But now in the early dawn, when he had been locked in the corral, it meant raiders—no less. Dick called softly to the snorting horse; and, hurriedly getting into clothes and boots, he went out with a gun in each hand. Sol was quivering in every muscle. Like a dog he followed Dick around the house. Hearing shouts in the direction of the corrals, Gale bent swift steps that way.

He caught up with Jim Lash, who was also leading a white horse.

They reached the corral to find Belding shaking, roaring like a madman. The gate was open, the corral was empty. "Tom, where's the Papago?" said Ladd.

"He's gone, Laddy—gone!"

"Double-crossed us, eh? I see here's a crowbar lyin' by the gatepost. That Indian fetched it from the forge. It was used to pry out the bolts an' steeples. Tom, I reckon there wasn't much time lost forcin' that gate."

Daylight made clear some details of the raid. The cowboys found tracks of eight raiders coming up from the river bed where their horses had been left. Evidently the Papago had been false to his trust. His few personal belongings were gone. More horses were found loose in the fields. The men soon rounded up eleven of the whites, all more or less frightened.

Belding was unconsolable. He cursed and railed, and finally declared he was going to trail the raiders.

"Tom, you just ain't agoin' to do nothin' of the kind," said Laddy, coolly.

Belding groaned and bowed his head.

"Laddy, you're right," he replied, presently. "I've got to stand it. I can't leave the women and my property. But it's sure tough. I'm sore way down deep, and nothin' but blood would ever satisfy me."

"Leave that to me an' Jim," said Ladd.

"What do you mean to do?" demanded Belding, starting up.

"Shore I don't know yet. . . . Give me a light for my pipe. An' Dick, go fetch out your Yaqui."

CHAPTER VIII

The Running of Blanco Sol.

The Yaqui's strange glance roved over the corral, the swinging gate with its broken fastenings, the tracks in the road, and then rested upon Belding.

"Malo," he said, and his Spanish was clear.

"Shore, Yaqui, about eight bad men, an' a traitor Indian," said Ladd.

"I think he means my herder," added Belding. "If he does, that settles any doubt it might be decent to have —Yaqui—malo Papago—Si?"

The Yaqui spread wide his hands. Then he bent over the tracks in the road. They led everywhither, but gradually he worked out of the thick net to take the trail that the cowboys had followed down to the river. Belding and the rangers kept close at his heels. He found a trampled spot where the raiders had left their horses. From this point a deeply defined narrow trail led across the dry river bed.

The trail of the raiders took a southeasterly course over untrodden desert. The Yaqui spoke in his own tongue, then in Spanish.

"Think he means slow march," said Belding. "Laddy, from the looks of that trail the Greasers are having trouble with the horses."

"Tom, shore a boy could see that," replied Laddy. "Ask Yaqui to tell us where the raiders are headin', an' if there's water."

It was wonderful to see the Yaqui point. With a stick he traced a line in the sand, and then at the end of that another line at right angles. He made crosses and marks and holes, and as he drew the rude map he talked in Yaqui, in Spanish; with a word here and there in English. Belding translated as best he could. The raiders were heading southeast toward the railroad that ran from Nogales down into Sonora. It was four days' travel, bad trail, good sure waterhole one day out; then water not sure for two days. Raiders, not looking for pursuit, could be headed and ambushed that night at the first waterhole, a natural trap in a valley.

The men returned to the ranch. The rangers ate and drank while making hurried preparations for travel. Blanco Sol and the cowboys' horses were fed, watered, and saddled. Ladd refused to ride one of Belding's whites. He was quick and cold.

"Get me a long-range rifle an' lots of shells. Rustle, now," he said. "I want a gun that'll outshoot the dinky little carbines an' muskets used by the rebels. Trot one out an' be quick."

"I've got a .405, a long-barreled heavy rifle that'll shoot a mile. I use it for mountain sheep. But Laddy, it'll break that bronch's back."

"His back won't break so easy. . . . Dick, take plenty of shells for your Remington. An' don't forget your field glass."

In less than an hour after the time of the raid the three rangers, heavily armed and superbly mounted on fresh horses, rode out on the trail. As Gale turned to look back from the far bank of Forlorn river, he saw Nell waving a white scarf. He stood high in his stirrups and waved his sombrero. Then the mesquite hid the girl's slight figure, and Gale wheeled grim-faced to follow the rangers.

They rode in single file with Ladd in the lead. He took a bee-line course for the white escarpment pointed out by the Yaqui; and nothing save deep washes and impassable patches of cactus or rocks made him swerve from it.

At noon the rangers got out of the thick cactus. The desert floor inclined perceptibly upward. When Gale got an unobstructed view of the slope of the escarpment he located the raiders and horses. In another hour's travel the rangers could see with naked eyes a long, faint moving streak of black-and-white dots.

"They're headin' for that yellow pass," said Ladd, pointing to a break in the eastern end of the escarpment. "When they get out of sight we'll rustle. I'm thinkin' that waterhole the Yaqui spoke of lays in the pass."

The rangers traveled swiftly over the remaining miles of level desert leading to the ascent of the escarpment. When they achieved the gateway of the pass the sun was low in the west. Ladd gave the word to tie up horses and go forward on foot.

The narrow neck of the pass opened and descended into a valley half a mile wide, perhaps twice that in length. It had apparently unscalable slopes of weathered rock leading up to beetling walls.

"Keep down, boys," said Ladd. "There's the waterhole, an' hosses have sharp eyes. Shore the Yaqui figgered this place. I never seen its like for a trap."

Both white and black horses showed against the green, and a thin curling column of blue smoke rose lazily from amid the mesquites.

"I reckon we'd better wait till dark, or mebby daylight," said Jim Lash.

"Let me figger some. Dick, what do you make of the outlet to this hole? Looks rough to me."

With his glass Gale studied the narrow construction of walls and roughened rising floor.

"Laddy, it's harder to get out at that end than here," he replied.

"Shore that's hard enough. Let me have a look. . . . Well, boys, it don't take no figgerin' for this job. Jim, I'll want you at the other end blockin' the pass when we're ready to start."

"When 'll that be?" inquired Jim.

"Soon as it's light enough in the mornin'. That Greaser outfit will hang till tomorrow. There's no sure water ahead for two days, you remember."

The rangers stole back from the vantage point and returned to their horses, which they untied and left farther round among broken sections of cliff. For the horses it was a dry, hungry camp, but the rangers built a fire and had their short though strengthening meal.

Jim Lash rolled in his saddle blanket, his feet near the fire, and went to sleep. Ladd told Gale to do likewise while he kept the fire up and waited until it was late enough for Jim to undertake circling round the raiders. When Gale awakened, Jim was up saddling his horse, and Ladd was talking low.

With Ladd leading, they moved away into the gloom. Advance was exceedingly slow, careful, silent. Finally the trail showed pale in the gloom, and eastern stars twinkled between the lofty ramparts of the pass.

Ladd halted and stood silent a moment. "Luck again!" he whispered. "The wind's in your face, Jim. The horses won't scent you. Try to get up as high as this at the other end. Wait till daylight before riskin' a loose slope. I'll be ridin' the job early. That's all."

Ladd's cool, easy speech was scarcely significant of the perilous undertaking. Lash moved very slowly away, leading his horse. Then Ladd touched Dick's arm, and turned back up the trail.

Together they picked a way back through the winding recesses of cliff. The campfire was smoldering. Ladd replenished it and lay down to get a few hours' sleep, while Gale kept watch. The after part of the night wore on till the paling of stars, the thickening of gloom indicated the dark hour before dawn. Ladd awoke before the faintest gray appeared. The rangers ate and drank. When the black did lighten to gray they saddled the horses and led them out to the pass and down to the point where they had parted with Lash. Here they awaited daylight.

The valley grew clear of gray shadow except under leaning walls on the eastern side. Then a straight column of smoke rose from among the mesquites. Manifestly this was what Ladd had been awaiting. He took the long .405 from its sheath and tried the lever. Then he lifted a cartridge belt from the pommel of his saddle. Every ring held a shell and these shells were four inches long. He buckled the belt round him.

"Dick, Here's Your Stand. If Any Raider Rides In Range Take a Crack at Him."

"Come on, Dick."

Ladd led the way down the slope until he reached a position that commanded the rising of the trail from a level. It was the only place a man or horse could leave the valley for the pass.

"Dick, here's your stand. If any raider rides in range take a crack at him. . . . Now I want the lend of your hoss."

"Blanco Sol!" exclaimed Gale, more in amaze that Ladd should ask for the horse than in reluctance to lend him.

"Will you let me have him?" Ladd repeated, almost curtly.

"Certainly, Laddy."

A smile momentarily chased the dark, cold gloom that had set upon the ranger's lean face.

"Shore I appreciate it, Dick. I know how you care for that hoss. I guess mebbe Charley Ladd has loved a hoss! An' one not so good as Sol. I was only tryin' your nerve, Dick, askin' you without tellin' my plan. Sol won't get a scratch, you can gamble on that! I'll ride him down into the valley an' pull the Greasers out into the open. They've got short-ranged carbines. They can't keep out of range of the .405, an' I'll be takin' the dust of their lead. They can't gain on Sol, an' he'll run them down when I want. Can you beat it?"

"No. It's great! . . . But suppose a raider comes out on Blanco Diablo?"

"I reckon that's the one weak place in my plan. But if they do, well, Sol can outrun Diablo. An' I can always kill the white devil!"

Ladd's strange hate of the horse showed in the passion of his last words, in his hardening jaw and grim set lips.

Gale's hand went swiftly to the ranger's shoulder.

"Laddy. Don't kill Diablo unless it's to save your life."

"All right. But by G—d, if I get a chance I'll make Blanco Sol run him off his legs!"

He spoke no more and set about changing the length of Sol's stirrups. When he had them adjusted to suit, he mounted and rode down the trail and out upon the level. He rode leisurely as if merely going to water his horse. The long black rifle lying across his saddle, however, was ominous.

Gale securely tied the other horse to a mesquite at hand, and took a position behind a low rock over which he could easily see and shoot when necessary. Ladd rode a quarter of a mile out upon the flat before anything happened. Then a whistle rent the still, cold air. A horse had seen or scented Blanco Sol. The whistle was prolonged, faint, but clear. It made the blood thrum in Gale's ears. Sol halted. His head shot up with the old, wild, spirited sweep. Gale leveled his glass at the patch of mesquites. He saw the raiders running to an open place, pointing, gesticulating. Then he got only white and dark gleams of moving bodies. Evidently that moment was one of boots, guns and saddles for the raiders.

Then Gale saw a rider gallop swiftly from the group toward the farther outlet of the valley. This might have been owing to characteristic cowardice; but it was more likely a move of the raiders to make sure of retreat. Undoubtedly Ladd saw this galloping horseman. A few waiting moments ensued. The galloping horseman reached the slope, began to climb. With naked eyes Gale saw a puff of white smoke spring out of the rocks. Then the raider wheeled his plunging horse back to the level, and went racing wildly down the valley.

The compact bunch of bays and blacks seemed to break apart and spread rapidly from the edge of the mesquites. Puffs of white smoke indicated firing, and showed the nature of the raiders' excitement. They were far out of ordinary range; but they spurred toward Ladd, shooting as they rode. The raiders' bullets, striking low, were skipping along the hard, bare floor of the valley. Then Ladd raised the long rifle. There was no smoke, but three high, spanging reports rang out. A gap opened in the dark line of advancing horsemen; then a riderless steed sheered off to the right. Blanco Sol seemed to turn as on a pivot and charged back toward the lower end of the valley. He circled over to Gale's right and stretched out into his run. There were now five raiders in pursuit, and they came sweeping down, yelling and shooting, evidently sure of their quarry. Ladd reserved his fire. He kept turning from back to front in his saddle.

Manifestly he intended to try to lead the raiders round in front of Gale's position, and, presently, Gale saw he was going to succeed. The raiders, riding like vaqueros, swept on in a curve, cutting off what distance they could. Blanco Sol pounded by, his rapid, rhythmic hoofbeats plainly to be heard. He was running easily.

Gale tried to still the jump of heart and pulse, and turned his eye again on the nearest pursuer. This raider was crossing in, his carbine held muzzle up in his right hand, and he was coming swiftly. It was a long shot, upward of five hundred yards. Gale had not time to adjust the sights of the Remington, but he knew the gun and, holding coarsely upon the swiftly moving blot, he began to shoot. The rifle was automatic; Gale needed only to pull the trigger. Swiftly he worked it. Suddenly the leading horse leaped convulsively, not up nor aside, but straight ahead, and then he crashed to the ground, throwing his rider like a catapult, and then slid and rolled. He half got up, fell back, and kicked; but his rider never moved.

"'I love Nell,' went on Dick, simply, 'and I want you to let me ask her to be my wife.'"

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

RIDES FOR EX-SERVICE MEN

Watson B. Miller, Washington (D. C.) Bus Man, Sees That Disabled Get Attention.

If you see a crowd of happy disabled veterans riding in a sight-seeing bus in Washington, D. C., it's dollars to doughnuts that Watson B. Miller, national vice commander of the American Legion, is responsible.

W. B. Miller.

Mr. Miller is head of a sightseeing line in Washington and his hobby is to give long rides to disabled ex-service men of Walter Reed and other large hospitals in the Capitol city. He also provides cars to carry Legionnaires and families of dead heroes to Arlington cemetery to attend the funerals of the overseas dead.

Hospitalization of disabled veterans is one of Mr. Miller's chief interests. He is a member of the Legion's Fourth district hospitalization board, comprising the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia. Mr. Miller has assisted scores of needy ex-service men visiting Washington for adjustment of claims with the United States veterans' bureau.

Although he was well over the draft age, Mr. Miller enlisted early in the World war and served as a captain in the Motor Transport corps.

PROUD OF LEGION WRESTLER

Charles Gordan of Dodge City, Kan., the Man Who Won at National Convention.

The Kansas department of the American Legion is proud of the record of Charles Gordan of Dodge City, Kan., who is rapidly becoming known as one of the cleanest wrestlers in the Middle West.

Charles Gordan.

Gordan is a farmer and weighs 147 pounds. He had made such a reputation around Dodge City for his fast and clean work that he was entered in the wrestling contest held at the Legion national convention in New Orleans. In the finals he met some of the best men of his weight in the country and threw them all. He received a gold medal and the honor of being the best that the American Legion had to offer.

Gordan is an active member of the Legion post at Dodge City.

BOY GOOD ESSAY WRITER

Gene Haver, Vicksburg (Miss.) Youngster, One of National Contest Prize Winners.

Of all citizens of this country the American Legion values the good opinion of none more than the boys of grade and early high school age; wide awake youngsters, still bound by affectionate ties to dogs and swimming holes and pirate caves, but beginning to take an unfeigned interest in mathematics and history and composition. Of such is Gene Haver of Vicksburg, one of the prize winners in Mississippi, in the recent national essay contest conducted by the legion.

Girls and boys were invited to write on the subject: "How can the American Legion best serve the nation." First prize was won by a young lad of Chinese extraction, of Hawaii; second prize by a school girl in Indianapolis; third, by an American lad of Italian blood in Bridgeport, Conn.

Gene Haver's essay was adjudged one of the best submitted by youngsters below the Mason and Dixon line. He was of the sort the Legion wanted to reach—an outdoor boy, with a pup for a pal; but a studious youngster, withal, first in his class in many subjects.

Despite his accomplishment as an essayist, Gene aspires to be a civil engineer, he says.

IN THE ARKANSAS HOSPITALS

Rehabilitation of Former Service Men Making Rapid Progress; Some Not Receiving Compensation.

Rehabilitation of the former service men in the hospitals of the state of Arkansas is making rapid progress, and the auxiliary members of that department express themselves as well pleased with existing conditions and the constructive plans which are being executed by the hospital management, Red Cross workers, etc., especially at the United States Veterans' hospital at Fort Roots, which was recently visited by Mrs. James H. Brooks, department president of Arkansas.

Mrs. Brooks was well satisfied with conditions and remarked upon the noticeable improvement in a number of the patients. However, she was much concerned over the fact that at least 30 per cent of the ex-service men patients were not receiving compensation, and because of this, are denied many little things they crave, particularly their "smokes."

This is a field for work for the members of the auxiliary, both in the department of Arkansas and other states.

Although the boys and girls basket ball teams of the Klemme High School have not practiced any this year, they played a game with the Goodell High School last night on the Goodell floor. This was only intended for a practice game and was not official. The Klemme girls lost to the Goodell girls by a score of 7 to 4. The Klemme boys fared much worse and the Goodell boys beat the local team 25 to 10. All enjoyed the game, despite the defeat. This was Klemme's first game since last season.

SECRETARY'S ANNUAL FINANCIAL STATEMENT 1923

To School District

Independent School District of Klemme, Hancock County, Iowa, for year ending February 21st, 1923.

GENERAL FUND

Dr.		Cr.
On hand Feb. 22, 1922	$ 3,843.38	Paid teachers since last report:
Received from dist. tax	12,937.03	Males	$ 1,944.43
Rec'd. from semi-an. app't.	146.00	Females	4,425.00
Received from State	145.00	Paid Secretary	40.00
Rece'd from tuition	981.00	Paid for tuition	495.00
Rec'd from sale of text books	87.47	Paid for Lib. boks	7.31
Rec'd from int. on deposits	57.87	Pd. for free text books	468.74
Rec'd from other sources	16.62	Paid for fuel. rent., repairs, insurance, janitor, general supplies	2,910.76
		Am't. on hand Feb. 22, 1923	7,923.07
TOTAL	$18,214.31	TOTAL	$18,241.31

I hereby certify that the foregoing report is correct.

Dated Feb. 22, 1923. LEW LEWIS, Secretary.

UNDER GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION

The Value of Thrift

Thrift means more than the mere accumulation of money. It means saving money for a comfortable and independent future; it means preparedness for meeting emergencies and embracing opportunities; it means the cultivation of habits that will bring success.

Use a savings account at the First National Bank as a basis and acquire the thrift habit. The value of thrift will become more evident as it enables you to plan with certainty for the fullfillment of your desires. Begin at once!

UNDER GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION

First National Bank

"The Bank for Everybody'.'

One Out of Every Three Persons Has a Saving Account

The savings accounts in the United States total nearly twenty billion dollars.

The average balance of these accounts is about six hundred dollars.

One out of three persons are thus prepared for sudden emergency and sudden opportunity.

You are one of the three. Which one?

We cordially invite new savings accounts.

5% Interest Paid On Time Deposits

State Savings Bank

Klemme Iowa

News of Klemme and Vicinity

We are again having nice weather.

See the new Chevrolet at Coobs & Buss Garage. adv

Charlie Carlson returned Tuesday from his visit in Wisconsin.

Chevrolt Touring Car, $590.00, at Coobs & Buss Garage. adv

Paul Grange has installed a radio receiving set at his home.

L C. Smith typewriter for sale. Call at Times Office. adv

Mr. and Mrs. Hans Hanson were visiting in Mason City Saturday.

Famous Lutby Battry, guaranteed for 2 years. Coobs & Buss Garage. adv

Supervisor Burhow was a pleasant caller at the Times Office last week Thursday afternoon.

Sheriff E. P. Hanson was a business caller in town yesterday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brooks and son, went to Belmond Friday to see Mrs. Brook's father, who is ill.

Mrs. Al Mayhew and son went to Belmond Friday for a visit with her father.

Miss Esther Jante went to Garner for an over Sunday visit with her mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lewis and Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Barr drove over to Mason City last Thursday

Mss Anna Griewe was visiting with relatives and friends at Garner Friday and Saturday.

Mrs. Phil Behringer and daughter Florence were callers at Mason City Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ortmeyer and family drove down from Garner Sunday for a visit at the Henry Griewe home.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Jorgenson drove to Mason City Saturday morning on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Bailey and daughter, Ruth, were Mason City visitors Saturday.

Mrs J. B. Spitler came up from Belmond yesterday for a couple of days visit with Klemme friends.

Mrs. J. Jorgenson, of Garner, was a visitor at the R. A. Jorgenson home today.

Miss Faye Bridges came to town Tuesday for a visit of several days at the home of her sister, Mrs. Paul Stille.

Mrs. Louis Sampson entertains the W .F. M. S. of the First Methodist church at her home this afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Dahl, of Kanawha, accompanied by their children, were Klemme visitors Saturday. They obught a piano of Wellemeyer.

Ed. Wellemeyer from Garner was in this city Monday gazing at our high buildings, and also visiting with his brother Arthur.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Reformed Church met at the home of Mrs. Valentine Josten Wednesday afternoon.

Dave Ross was down from Garner again Tuesday. We suggest that D. D. move to Klemme as it would save him lots of gas, as well as taxes.

R. W. Elder went to Austin, Minn., Tuesday on business. Ralph has a farm near that city which he went to look after.

Soren Kristensen has been elected buttermaker for the creamery at Forest City for the coming year, according to a news dispatch.

Martin Jensen moved in from the country Tuesday and is now living in the house he bought of Mrs. Leo. Wilkins.

Ed. Jacobs has installed a new Burroughs posting and book-keeping machine. It will enable him to do his book work swiftly and acurately, and will be a great time saver.

The little baby daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. M. Thomas was quite sick for a few days with pneumonia. We are glad to report at this time that the baby is much better.

Miss Claus was here Friday and spent the night with Miss Emma Sampson. Miss Claus i canvassing this territory selling a new kind of dictionary.

The members of the First Methodist Church had a surprise party on Gus Back and family Tuesday night. The Baack family expect to move to Wisconsin soon.

Clarence Wiles transacted business at the Empire Motor Sales Co., at Mason City Saturday. Mr. Aug. Lau, Jr., a former Klemme man, is the prorietor of the company.

John Suurballe has sold his home to Herman Ollenberg, possession to be given September 1st. This is one of the fine modern homes of the city and is a good buy.—Signal.

We are in receipt of a descriptive pamplet from the Iowa Falls Electric Co. This pamplet illustrates a number of views of their large plant at Iowa Falls, together with a description of the same.

The Garner boys were defeated on the Clear Lake floor Friday of last week by a score of 20-14. Adolph Lauritzen of Klemme made most of the baskets and played fine during the whole game.—Signal.

Mrs. Elmer Fuller, and daughter Mavis, of Clear Lake, spent several days the past week visiting at the home of Mrs. Phil Behringer. Mavis was recently quite ill with pneumonia but is now quite well again.

The past week County Clerk B. E. Erwin issued marriage licenses to the following: Thomas Roths and Leoda Smith, E. G. Beier and Elizabeth Riemer, Nels Alfred Jacobson and Karen Marie Hanson, and Peter Rutler and Anna Folkerts.

Miss McKahan, high school teacher has been at her home at Stuart, Iowa, the past week, being called there by th srious illness of her sister. Mrs. Lester Stille taught her classes last week. Miss McKahan returned to Klemme Monday.

Mrs. A. G. Lau, of Mason City, arrived at the H. J. Stille home Friday evening, being called there by the illness of her mother, Mrs. Koerner, who is quit low. Mr. Lau and children, and Mrs. Kupinger of Mason City, drove up Sunday, Mrs. Lau returning with them.

George Albers went to Mason City Saturday and drove home a new Stephens 5 passenger touring car which he purchased of A. G. Lau of the Empire Motor Co., of that place. Mr. Lau was a resident of this vicinity until recently when he moved to Mason City.

Chas. Schmidt, who had a farm sale recently, shipped his household goods to Sac City the fore part of the week. Their little three month old baby has been quite sick the past few days, so they were unable to go to their new location. Charlie has bought out a Watkins or Rawleigh medicine business and will take up his new work as soon as possible.

Office Phone 149 J. Residence Phone 149 L

Dr. E. H. Phillips

Osteopathic Physician
GARNER, IOWA.

Diagnosis and Treatment of Diseases.
Surgical and Obstetrical cases cared for
"Consult an Osteopath"

A Company Is Known BY THE SHAREHOLDERS IT KEEPS

Our Company is striving to attain the Ideal in this respect being a company owned byt its Employees and Customers, accordingingly, we are constantly inviting our Customers to become our Partners.

Wealthy people and poor people have the same opportunity Safely Investing in this Publich and Necessary busines.

The growth of Electric Service offers the opportunity to every Customer of becoming a Shareholder.

We now have Shareholders in every walk of Life, from children. saving and investing pennies, to the rich man who invests for Sure Income.

We will be glad to give you full information concerning the Company, and the Reasons WHY the Shares are offered for investment.

Remember you take no chances when your money is Safely Invested.

Iowa Falls Electric Co.

COMMON SHARES NOW PAYING 7 PER CENT

Ask us about them.
See any Employee, or Write the SECURITIES DEPARTMENT
215 South Second Street, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

We Have Taken On The Agency And Are Now Selling The—

CHEVROLET

More than ever before the Chevrolet Motor Company has gain emphasized ist admitted leadership as producer of world's lowest priced quality automobiles.
The SUPERIOR MODELS, at no higher prices than the of our preceding Models, represent the most sensational ues in modern economical transportation ever established.
QUALITY has been still further improved by more artistic design and added equipment.
ECONOMY has been still further increased by engineering refinements and greatly increased service facilities throughout the whole country.
PRICES remain the same in spite of added equipment and more expensive construction which have materially increased the average values.

1923 SUPERIOR 5-Passenger Touring Car..... $
1923 SUPERIOR 2-Passenger Roadster ..... $
1923 SUPERIOR 2-Passenger Utility Coupe ..... $
1923 SUPERIOR 5-Passenger Sedan ..... $
1923 SUPERIOR Sedanette ..... $

(Above Prices are F. O. B. Flint, Mich.)

When you buy a Chevrolet you get a fully equipped car nothing extra to buy but the license.
All closed models come with genuine Fisher Bodies, and straight side Cord Tires. Open cars with one-man top.

—Come in and look over the Chevrolte now.

COOBS & BUSS

STILLE'S IMPLEMENT NEWS

VOLUME 1. Thursday, March 1, 1923. NUMBER

ONCE OVER—AND IT'S ALL OVER

As a seed-bed finisher, the Dunham Culti-Packer has no equal. It is ideal to use back of the McCormick-Deering Tractor Disc Harrow. Used together they form a seed-bed making unit that combines the best quality of work with the utmost economy of ime and money. The harrow mixes and aerates the soil, cuts and slices the clods, and levels the surface. The Culti-Packer immediately firms out air spaces, pulverizes the top soil, producing a granular mulch, leaving the seed bed in ideal condition for the planter or seeder. The Culti-Packer will more than repay its cost in seed-bed work alone. It also may be used for cultivating corn, sugar beets, etc., and for rejuvenating alfalfa, meadows, etc. It breaks crust, helps control insect pests, and is better than a roller for all small grain crops.

Some of these up-to-date women would rather devote themselves to holding office than children.

A PLOW FOR EVERY PURPOSE

A good mechanic has a different wrench, hammer, or other tool for every different job that may come up. Each one is made to do certain kind of work to perfection. The same is true of our line of plows. No matter what your farm or soil conditions may be—we have plows to fit them. We sell Diamond Gang two or three bottom Little Genius Tractor Plows, and all styles of Jno. Deere plows. We have a plow for YOUR requirements. The same quality and perfection of workmanship is put into every P. & O. and John Deere Plow from the small walking to the large tractor plow—be sure it's a P. & O. or John Deere. Come in and see our line and if we havent the plow in stock you want we'll get one in a jiffy that will suit you.

INSURES BETTER STAND—

You don't plant your corn until soil and season are right. Then you want to get the job done quickly and efficiently. An acurate, dependable planter is vital to profitable crop production. Too little seed just so much idle soil. Too seed means overworked soil, ed corn, under production, nubbins and greater huskin If your planter is not absolut pendable it is an expensive to own. Better get a dependa ternational No. 8 planter and The No. 8 is thoroughly dep easy to operate and durabl accuracy insures a good, even of corn.

Less cylinder oil and more grease would serve as a bett ricant for some people who are ing about present day conditi

A need is an extravagance filled. Fill your needs wit Cormick-Deering machines a void extravagance.

Yes, marriage is a failure is, when two failures marry.

Funny thing, but you can g ly tell the age of a man by the he whistles.

THE KLEMME TIMES

Twenty-seventh Year—Number 26. | Klemme, Iowa, Thursday Afternoon, March 8, 1923. | $1.50 In Advance—$2.00 Outside of County

SCHOOL ELECTION MONDAY; FOUR RUNNING FOR DIRECTORS

TIVE CANDIDATES SEEK TO BE DIRECTORS OF THE KLEMME SCHOOLS

hree Want The Three Year Term; Two On To Fill Vacancy

OHN GRUETZMACHER, TREAS.

Monday, March 12th, is the date f the annual school election this ear. The polls will open at one clock P. M. and will remain open ntil six o'clock P. M. for the purse of electing two directors; one r a three year term, and one to l a vacancy for one year.

As there are five candidates running for directors this year the elecon promises some interest and ore so than in previous years when ere was no opposition on the tick-

We are glad to see the people Klemme taking more interest in hool affairs. which thy have been ing the past few months and we lieve the election will be quite inesting as each man runing has his al numbr of loyal backers.

Following is the way the ballot l appear and the arrangements of mes:

OFFICIAL BALLOT
mme Independent School District
MARCH 12, 1923

Director For Three Year Term
(Vote For One)

JOHN N. DAY

ARTHUR WELLEMEYER

.....

Director For One Year
To Fill Vacancy
(Vote For One)

R. A. JORGENSON

FRANK KLUCKHOHN

.....

reasurer For Two Year Term
(Vote For One)

JOHN GRUETZMACHER

.....

e above is the line-up handed by the Secretary, Lew Lewis, printing the ballots.

. Wellemeyer is a candidate to ed himself as a director for the year term. He has always much of his personal attenand time to the interests of the l and is a good man for the . He has several children in l and is especially interested in elfare of all pupils in the school s a wide awake director, always e look-out for better things aschool line.

thur Wellemeyer is opposed e ticket by J. N. Day, a popular ess man of Klemme, who, we re would also take deep interschool work as he has a boy in school. If elected we know John will deliver the service ted of a good school director.

ther man running for the posiof director of the three year is Mr. George Ulrich.

ist as we are going to press we change this item, as George has drawn his name from the race, ere are now only two men on race for the three year term. sort of breaks into our writewe have "pulled" a lot of type. lrich did not state his reason.)

wer down on the ticket you notice that you are to vote for two men to fill vacancy. We explain. In December R. W. , then a director, handed in his nation to the board as he at time intended to move away Klemme as he had a position creamery at Bode, Iowa. To e balance of the school year as or, the Board appointed R. A. nson to serve until the next on. R. A. Jorgenson has been nber of the board since about iddle of December and is now r election to finish a one year

Being editor of the Klemme the people are by this time he is interested in school and well acquainted as to whether school work. He has no children of school age but has a youngster who will enter school in a few years.

The other candidate running on the one year term is Frank Kluckhohn. and although he is our apponent, nevertheless, we are glad to see him running for that position. Frank will make a good director if elected, we will vouch for that and if he beats us in the election we will not be sorry, for he is the type of man who would do credit to any school board. He is a hustling young business man. He has children of school age now attending, and we are sure he is much interested in schools as any man the voters could choose.

John Gruetzmacher is again up for treasurer and will get the office. He has no opposition.

In case the voter does not care to vote for any of the men on the above ticket he can write a name in on the dotted line and make a cross in the square and that ballot will count just the same as if the name had been printed in. Care should be used when writing in a name, as so many will write in a name and then forget to mark the square, this does not count and your vote will be lost on that paricular director.

Remember the date, Monday, March 12th; and the polls are open from 1:00 to 6:00 P. M. Pick the man you want, you've got a good assortment to choose from.

$45,000 BOND ISSUE DID NOT CARRY AT SPECIAL ELECTION

School Board Will Go Ahead With Addition Project

Did or did it not carry was the topic of many an argument regarding the $45,000 bond issue, with which it was hoped to build a new school house in Klemme.

The $45,000 bond issue did not carry, according to law.

Some contended that the proposition did carry because it won out over the "nos" by a vote of 166 to 113. And on the face of it, it did look like the proposition carried.

However, the law settles the argument by saying in Sec. 2820-d4. Bonds. "If a majority of all the electors voting at such election vote in favor of the issuance of such bonds. the board of directors shall issue the same and make provision for the payment of the same and the interest thereon as provided in sections twenty-eight hundred twelve-d, twenty-eight hundred twelve-e, twenty-eight hundred twelve-f, and twenty-eight hundred thirteen of the supplement to the code, 1907. (33 G. A., ch. 184, ‡ 4.)"

The proposition did not carry because it did not receive a majority of the total number of persons who voted on that proposition. Whereas the $15,000 proposition carried by a large majority over the total number of votes cast on that issue.

The school board is therefore acting on the $15,000 bond isue for the building of an addition and this is now being pushed and they will ask for bids on this in a short time.

The addition should be completed by the time school opens in the fall.

Of course there are a great number who are dissapointed that a new school house cannot be built at this time. However, the addition will be a great improvement and will do for a few years, but eventually this town will see a new building sometime in the future. The new addition will provide for a gymnasium, auditorium and stage for school and other entertainments. Domestic science and manual training departments. laboratory. ample class rooms and large assembly, proper heating and light, and full equipment thruout in every respect.

BIG SNOW STORM HERE SATURDAY; WORST YET

All Roads Were Badly Drifted After Storm Hit This Section

No need to mention the big snow storm for our local readers, but our readers in California and other sunny states will be interested to hear that this section of Iowa was visited by one of the worst blizzards for years when the storm broke here on Saturday afternoon. Saturday night was the worst night we have had all winter. A good old fashioned blizzard was doing its darndest.

Snow piled up in great drifts and roads were blocked in every direction. The main roads are now open again but many side roads are still impassible.

The storm did not extend very far south. At Dows they had snow but it did not drift. At Iowa Falls it only rained hard. At Waterloo and on east to Davenport only heavy rains fell. At Hampton, Sheffield and that vicinity only a very little snow fell. East along the North Iowa Pike through Mason City, and Charles City and on east they had a lot of snow and high drifts.

The fine spring weather came to a sudden stop. Friday the weather was warm and mild. Saturday the temeperature began to drop with the coming blizzard. At this time the weather is gradually turning warmer again, although we still have a lot of snow piled up.

MISSIONARY SERVICE

The Annual T O. Service of the W. F. M. S. will be held on Sunday, March 18th. At this time we are unable to state whether it will be morning or evening.

Speaker for this service will be Miss Elizabeth Wells, returned missionary from India.

Everyone having any interest at all or sympathy for Missionaries and the cause. boost for this service. Please give this some thought and plan on what you will give toward this cause.

Do not disappoint us. We have been giving around eighty dollars previous years. Come let us go over the top. Pray and give.

Pray for those things you have need of. The indwelling spirit, the flame of desire for the salvation of others. Missionaries for the waiting millions and money to send them Be sure only need will call forth prevailing prayer.

W. F. M. S., Methodist Episcopal Church
—A. B. Gedye, Pastor.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS

Camp Fire meeting held March 1st in the basement of the First National Bank The meeting proved to be very exciting for we figured out how much money we had cleared at the dinner given February 22nd. We made $37.30 clear. Didn't we do fine? We'll say we did. Will serve a dinner again some time when we are short of funds.

Was decided to hold a Ceremonial Meeting March 15th. Several of the members have handed in their Honor Cards and in return will receive beads. For each honor the member secures a bead. These are of a special color for each honor craft. All the members are working hard to secure these beads, each trying to get more than their neighbors.

The Camp Fire girls are sorry to state that our editor, Florence Behringer, is very ill. We all hope she gets better faster than the fastest flying machine. You'll do it won't you "Minne-Ha-Ha?"

NEWS ABOUT NEWSPAPERS

The word NEWS is said to come from a custom of former times of placing on newspapers the initial letters of the cardinal points of the compass—

N
E—W
S

These letters indicated the paper contained intelligence from the four quarters of the globe, but finally assumed the word "news," from which "newspaper" comes.

The oldest Newspaper in England was established by Nathaniel Butter, in 1662.

The oldest paper in France was the Gazette de France, published by Theophrastus Renaudot in 1632.

The first Dutch newspaper was the Haarlem Courant, published in 1656.

The first Russian newspaper yas published in 1703 and Peter the Great wrote some of its editorials and corrected the proofs himself.

The first newspaper published in North America was the Boston Newsletter, in 1704.

Damage Asked

"You say this man means nothing to you?"

"Nothing whatever," replied the fair plaintiff, haughtily..

"If it please your honor," interrupted her lawyer, "he has a certain financial value to her and we propose to show that it is approximately $50,000."

That's Pep

Vigor, vitality, vim and punch—
That's pep!
The courage to act on a sudden hunch—
That's pep!
The nerve to tackle the hardest thing,
With feet that climb, and hands that cling,
And a heart that never forgets to sing—
That's pep!

Sand and grit in a concrete base—
That's pep!
Friendly smile on an honest face—
That's pep!
The spirit that helps when another's down,
That knows how to scatter the black'st frown
That loves its neighbor, and loves its town—
That's pep!

To say "I will"—for you know you can—
That's pep!
To look for the best in every man—
That's pep!
To meet each thundering knock-out blow,
And come back with a laugh, cause you know
You'll get the best of the whole darn show—
That's pep!

—Grace G. Bostwick.

NEXT ON PROGRAM WILL BE THE TOWN ELECTION

MRS. WM. KOERNER

Maria Franciska. a daughter of Henry VeVnnekolt, was born in Stephenson County, Illinois, on the 17th day of May, 1852. Her parents were staunch Christians, having been converted in Germany and became members of the Methodist Episcopal Church soon after their arrival in America. Their ambition was to give their children a good education, but through the early death of the father, the children were obliged to earn their own support, and the father's plans could not be carried out. However, the early impressions of a Christian home could not be easily eradicated. and all the children lived in the faith of their parents as useful members of the church.

In the spring of 1869 Marie Vennekolt was married to William Koerner, at Flood Creek, near Charles City, Iowa. They built for themselves a little log hut on an eighty acres which Mr. Koerner had purchased and spent a pear on the farm. In the fall of 1870 they entered the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church. For 32 years they gave themselves unreservedly to the work of the church, and then retired becaus of ill health and spent 8 years in Colorado, one year in Minnesota and Iowa, and about two years in California, where, on the 18th day of May, 1922, the husband was suddenly called to his reward. Lovely and full of sorrow, Mrs. Koerner accompanied the lifeless form of her husband back to Iowa where he was laid to rest, and she went to spend the rest of her days with her children at Klemme. She was by nature of a sweet disposition and a delightful entertainer. While apparently healthy. she had internal ailments that caused her many an hour of severe and nerve wracking suffering. About six weeks ago she became severely ill and on several occasions it seemed the end had come, but each time she rallied. Her constant desire was to go to her Heavenly Home. With a remarkable display of patience and consideration for those who had the care of her, she endured the suffering in the hope of an early relief. On the 2nd of March her wish was granted and she quietly passed away.

She leaves six children, Mrs. H. J. Stille; Mrs. W. F. Stille; Mrs J E. Stille; Mr. Albert Koerner, all of Klemme, Iowa; Rev. W. F. Koerner of St. Paul, Minnesota; and Mrs. August Lau, of Mason City, Iowa. One sister, Mrs. Ludeke, of Klemme and one brother and a half brother. besides many other relatives and friends.

Funeral service was held Tuesday afternoon at the First Methodist Church.

Relatives coming from a distance were: Mr. Herman Carter and wife, from Orangeville. Illinois; and Mr. Wm. Kohlstedt, of Fenton, Iowa.

The following named ministers were present, each taking active part in the service: J. H. Klaus, of Charles City, Iowa; W. H. Klaus, of Mason City, Iowa; and A. W. Gauger, of Garner, Iowa.

W. C. Bergmann.

Card Of Thanks

We wish to thank all those who assisted us during the illness of our mother, and to those who contributed floral offerings and otherwise expressed their sympathy in our bereavemnt.

Mrs. H. J. Stille,
Mrs. Will Stille,
Wm. F. Koerner.
Mrs. J. E. Stille,
Albert G. Koerner,
Mrs. A. G. Lau.

"Zip," This Beats You

An argument was in progress, Private Smart claimed that the tallest man was in his regiment. while Private White upheld his own regiment's claims.

"Why," said the first, "we've a chap in our lot who can light a cigarette from a lamp post."

"That's nothing," replied the other. "A fellow in my company's so tall that he has to kneel down when he wants to put his hands in his pockets."

CAUCAUS TONIGHT

There will be a caucus held at the Town Hall tonight at 8:00 o'clock.

This caucus is for the purpose of nominating a complete town ticket. Mayor, councilmen, etc.

THE COMING TOWN ELECTION

March 26th Is The Date Of Election

At this time there is not much excitement over the coming town election when we will choose a new mayor, council and other town officers, or return the old gang to the helm again.

There is not a great deal of talk yet as to what the line-up will be. There are many who want to keep the old officials in office. On the other hand some are dissatisfied and want a change. We have this much to say; no matter what group of men are put into office there are always some who find fault with them and sometimes their fault finding has grounds. Our present body of town officials have run a conservative form of government and tried to hold down the town's expenses as much as possible, and we believe they have succeeded in doing that. Times the past two years had not been of the very best, financially, but things are brighter now and if the present officials stay in office, or whether a new group is elected there are many who would like to see a few improvements this coming year. The streets are badly in need of attention in many places and need to b leveled up and graveled. Conditions are better and a few of those necessary things can b done in the future at a moderate cost. We do not blame the prescnt officials for waiting with these things as the cost in the past was beyond reach. but the time has come for improvements

It will not be long before this city will need an improvement in the water system. What this town is in need of is a water tower, or standpipe to replace the present system of air presure tank. A good waterworks systm means better fire protection, and that may mean a saving of many thousands of dollars. We doudt if the present system would be of much account if a fire should break out here similar to the one Goodell and Corwith suffered a short time ago. More people are using city water in Klemme every year and the presure is often very weak. A tower and tank of ample capacity to care for the present and future needs of the town is necessary, both in serving the patrons and for the more important consideration—fire protection.

The caucus tonight will enlighten us to some extent as to who will be on the ticket again. And no doudt, there will also be one or more other caucus' held as in the past. Got to have competition to make an exciting election, you know.

MANY SUBSCRIPTIONS ARE THIS MONTH

Look At The Date Following Your Name At Top Of Your Paper

The month of March is a great month in many ways, and in other ways it is not so great. It is the month of the year for most of the moving; it is the month when that mortgage comes due; and it is also the month when many subscriptions to the Klemme Times are due. We art most interested in the latter.

If you will look at the date following your name at the top right hand side of the front page of this issue you can determine the correct date as to when your subscription is due. If the date reads "Mar. 23" it means your subscription expires this month (March, 1923.) Or if it is an earlier date such as Feb. 23, Jan. 23, or any earlier date it means that your subscription is past due, and if that is the case please remitt for same.

The entire subscription list was carefully corrected and re-set Monday and all names are correct to this date. But there are still a number of subscribers who have failed to pay up for another year and these we request to settle.

Nobody trusts you if you trust to luck.

BIG RUM FLEET OFF NEW YORK

Armada Lining Up to Do Business at the Old Stand.

FOOD EMBARGO IS ASKED

Customs Officials Will Try to Starve the Booze Runners Dry—Treasury Department ot Be Asked for Ruling.

New York, Feb. 3.—The rum invasion of New York has begun again. The breaking up of the ice fields off the Jersey Highlands has permitted the operations of small boats, impossible during the greater part of February, and the armada is lining up at Whisky Row to do business at the old stand.

There have been a few vessels standing off shore for several weeks. They were reinforced Friday by eleven vessels—six steamers and five schooners—which sailed in from the Bahamas. Behind this vanguard are many more ships, steaming or sailing as swiftly as possible to reach the spring market. Some of the late comers are reported to be bringing a $7,000,000 whisky cargo directly from Scotland.

Closer ashore there is feverish activity as the small boats are being prepared to go out to the runners and land their cargo. The crews of these small boats are preparing to meet what recently has proved a greater menace to the runner fleet than were the prohibition agents. This peril lies in the whisky pirates who have been preying on the small boats. The shore of north Jersey is resounding with pistol shots daily as the crews of the small boats engage in pistol practice.

The runners are to be attacked in a new way. Customs officials announced they would seek a Treasury department ruling to prevent Rum Row from getting anything to eat. The announcement was made after H. W. Truitt, skipper of the cruiser Natalie, admitted that he delivered food supplies to the rum boats in Ambrose channel daily.

The Treasury department, the customs officials said, would be requested to rule that carrying of supplies of any sort of rum boats was in effect abetting violation of the enforcement laws.

3 DEMOCRATS IN DEBT BODY

New Harding Nominations to Funding Commission Confirmed by Senate.

Washington, March 3.—The World war debt funding commission, with three newly appointed Democratic members, will be organized in a few days. In consonance with the legislation approving the agreement for settlement of the debt of Great Britain to the United States, the President sent to the senate the nominations of Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, Representative Charles R. Crisp of Georgia and Richard Olney of Massachusetts to be members of the commission. The nominations were promptly confirmed in open senate.

MRS. MELLON TO WED AGAIN

Former Wife of Secretary of Treasury to Marry New York Antique Dealer.

New York, March 1.—Romance has come again into the life of Mrs. Nora McMullen Mellon, divorced wife of Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury in the cabinet of President Harding. License for her marriage to Harry Arthur Lee, until recently a dealer in antiques in a miniature shop at 603 Lexington avenue, and living in a third floor walkup apartment over his shop, was taken out at the municipal building.

ALABAMA MINERS GET RAISE

Approximately 30,000 Coal and Ore Mine Workers Given 12½ Per Cent Wage Increase.

Birmingham, Ala., March 2.—Approximately 30,000 miners and other laborers employed in coal and ore mines in Alabama outside of Walker county received notice of a wage advance averaging approximately 12½ per cent, effective March 16.

Coal and ore miners of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company and the Woodward Iron company are affected.

Czechs to Pay Debt to U. S.

Prague, March 2.—The sum of 127,000,000 crowns (almost $4,000,000) has been provided in the 1923 budget of Czechoslovakia for payment of its debt to America.

Fess Election Protested.

Washington, March 3.—David K. Hempstead, who was active in the campaign of Senator Pomerene (Dem., Ohio) for re-election, filed a petition protesting the election to the senate of Simeon D. Fess.

Harding Signs Narcotic Resolution.

Washington, March 3.—President Harding signed the Porter resolution requesting the administration to begin negotiations with foreign governments looking to curtailment of production of habit-forming drugs.

B. BUENADVENTURA

WIDE WORLD PHOTO

Biralysia Buenadventura is president of Andorra, smallest republic in the world. It lies in the Pyrennes mountains and has a population of 2,000.

U. S. IS NO SHYLOCK

Ambassador Harvey Gives Britain Some Facts.

Yankee Diplomat Speaks at Dinner Given by the Pilgrims' Society.

London, March 1.—The Pilgrims' society gave a dinner Wednesday night for Stanley Baldwin, the British chancellor of the exchequer, in honor of the settlement of the British debt to the United States. The prince of Wales, the duke of Devonshire, and Ambassador Harvey were among the guests.

In proposing Mr. Baldwin's health, Mr. Harvey said that the debt settlement was the first conclusive settlement of a really vital world problem since the armistice.

"We loaned £850,000,000 (more than $4,000,000,000) to England and borrowed $4,000,000,000, which we ought to and must pay. The cost of the war to the United States and Great Britain was about equal—$50,000,000,000," Mr. Harvey said.

Mr. Harvey said that various nations came over to talk about the debt to America. One or two appeared at Washington and talked about the weather and then Great Britain turned up and talked business. He added that there was an unfortunate illusion in England that the United States insisted that Great Britain guarantee the allied debt.

"The United States did nothing of the sort; she loaned money to Great Britain to be spent in the prosecution of the war, and she had nothing at all to do with what Great Britain loaned to other nations."

"Surely asking for the repayment of such a loan cannot be regarded as an act of Shylock demanding his pound of flesh," he said.

ESTATE THROWN INTO COURT

Niece of Late George B. Cox, Former Republican Boss of Cincinnati, Sues for $2,000,000.

Cincinnati, Feb. 28.—The $4,000,000 estate of George B. Cox, who, until his death in 1916, was the Republican boss of Cincinnati, was thrown into court here as the result of a suit filed against the widow by Mrs. Clara N. Etting of Philadelphia, daughter of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Newman, a sister of Mr. Cox. In this suit Mrs. Etting questions the right of Mrs. Cox to enjoy dower rights in the estate and asks for a judgment of $2,000,000 as representing her share as one of the two blood heirs.

TO ARREST MEMBERS OF MOB

Warrants Sworn Out for Twelve Florida Men for Attempt to Lynch Negro.

Palatka, Fla., March 3.—Warrants were sworn out here for twelve men charging them with assault with intent to murder, firing into an occupied dwelling and conspiring to commit a felony in connection with an attempt of a mob to break into the county jail here where Arthur Johnson, negro, alleged slayer of H. O. Cross of Albany, Ga., was believed to be confined.

House Passes Flood Control Bill.

Washington, March 3.—The house passed the Mississippi river flood control bill, which authorizes an expenditure of $10,000,000 a year for six years, under the supervision of the Mississippi river commission.

Miners' Strike Cuts Coal Exports.

Washington, March 3.—The Commerce department, in final summaries of the 1922 export figures, says that the normal coal exports from the U. S. after April last year were cut nearly one-half by the miners' strike.

FARM CREDITS PASSES HOUSE

Bill Provides for Twelve Banks With $660,000,000 in Reserves.

APPROVED BY BIG MAJORITY

Vote Stood 305 to 36, Thirty-One Republicans and Five Democrats Opposing the Composite Measure.

Washington, March 2.—The house passed the compromise farm credits bill, under which two new banking systems, one operated by the government and the other by private interests, would be established to meet the financial needs of agriculture.

The bill then was sent to the senate, where it was called up immediately and conferees were appointed to meet the house conferees. The measure combines various features of the Capper and the Lenroot-Anderson bills, both of which were passed by the senate.

The vote on the house bill was 305 to 36. Most of the opposition came from New England and New York. Opposed to the bill were five Democrats—Representatives Carew and Riordan of New York; Tague, Massachusetts; Tucker and Deal, Virginia.

The 31 Republicans in opposition were: Representatives Ackerman, Parker, Radcliffe and Taylor, New Jersey; Andrews, Frothingham, Greene, Luce, Rogers, Underhill and Winslow, Massachusetts; Burbick, Rhode Island. Burton and Stephens, Ohio; Edmonds, Gernerd, Graham, Kirkpatrick, Temple and Kreider, Pennsylvania; Fenn, Glynn, Merritt and Tilson, Connecticut; Greene, Vermont; Hill, Maryland; Husted and MacGregor, New York; Layton, Delaware. Moores, Indiana, and Stafford, Wisconsin.

An unlimited number of private credit corporations would be authorized by the bill. Each would have a capital of $250,000 and will lend money to live stock producers on long-term paper. Private rediscount corporations, having a capital of not less than $1,000,000 each, also would be authorized.

INCOME TAX IS $400,000,000

Secretary of Treasury Mellon's Estimate Subject to Review Because of Uncertainties.

Washington, March 1.—Secretary Mellon announced that the treasury estimates income and profits taxes to be collected during March, 1923, will amount to about $400,000,000, although this figure is subject to uncertainty since collections during March will be based for the most part on the business of 1922 and will show the full effects of the changes made by the revenue act of 1921.

MINERS ASSAIL COAL PROFITS

Union Tells U. S. Commission Production Costs Do Not Warrant Prices.

Washington, Feb. 28.—The United Mine Workers of America declared to the United States coal commission that the anthracite operators are making a profit of $1.488 on every ton of coal produced. This, they said, is the apparent net income on present commercial production of 70,000,000 tons annually. The union holds that a reasonable profit is between $0.202 and $0.216.

TO SEND HINT TO DEBTORS

European Governments to Be Advised of Additional Powers Given U. S. Treasury Officials.

Washington, March 2.—To speed up payment of war debts owed the United States by European powers other than Great Britain, Secretary of State Hughes will shortly advise debtors of additional powers granted the American debt commission in its funding operation, it was announced at the Treasury department. In approving the British settlement congress authorized other funding agreements on similar terms.

LOAN IN AMERICAN DOLLARS

German Government to Float Internal Gold Bonds Amounting to $50,000,000, Quotng American Dollars.

Berlin, March 3.—The reichstag adopted the government's project for the flotation of an internal gold loan amounting to $50,000,000 by passing a bill authorizing Finance Minister Hermes to issue treasury bills for that amount quoted in American dollars.

Members of Mob Arrested.

Gainesville, Fla., March 3.—Nineteen men were arrested near here by sheriff's forces following a telephone message from Sheriff Hagan, telling of the attempt to take a negro prisoner from jail.

Ide Brothers Die.

Troy, N. Y., March 3.—Jess A. Ide died suddenly here, less than nine hours after the death of his brother, James M. Ide, who was found dead in his bathroom. Both were pioneer collar manufacturers.

GEN. JANIS BALADIS

WIDE WORLD PHOTO

Gen. Janis Baladis is the military leader of the new republic of Latvia, which has been quarreling with Poland over the possession of Vilna.

U. S. MARKET REPORT

Weekly Marketgram by Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Washington.—For the week ending March 1—HAY—No. 1 timothy, $18.00 Cincinnati, $22.00 Chicago, $20.50 St. Louis; No. 1 alfalfa, $16.50 St. Louis.

FEED—Spring bran and middlings, $28.00 Minneapolis; linseed meal, $50.00 Chicago; white hominy, $32.50 Cincinnati; gluten feed, $42.65 Chicago.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES—Sacked round white potatoes, $1.45@1.65 per 100 lbs., $1.25@1.20 f. o. b.; northern sacked round whites mostly $1.00@1.15 at shipping points, 65@70c f. o. b. Baldwin apples, $5.25@5.50 per bbl., $4.75@5.00 f. o. b.; northwestern extra fancy boxed winesaps, $2.25@2.75, $1.60 f. o. b. Middle-western yellow onions, $2.75@3.25 per 100-lb. sack. Florida pointed type cabbage, $2.75@3.00 per 1½ bu. hamper; Texas flat stock, $85.00@100.00 per ton bulk in Cincinnati and St. Louis; northern Danish, $50.00@75.00. Texas Savoy spinach mostly $1.00@1.25 per bu. basket, $1.25@1.50 at Cincinnati.

GRAIN—Chicago cash market: No. 2 red winter wheat, $1.34; No. 2 hard winter wheat, $1.19; No. 2 mixed corn, 73c; No. 2 yellow corn, 74c; No. 3 white oats, 45c. Average farm prices: No. 2 mixed corn in central Iowa, 61c; No. 1 dark northern wheat in central North Dakota, $1.01; No. 2 hard winter wheat in central Kansas, $1.02.

LIVE STOCK—Chicago prices: Hogs, top, $8.35; bulk of sales, $7.75@8.30; medium and good beef steers, $8.25@10.15; butcher cows and heifers, $4.25@9.75; light and medium weight veal calves, $7.25@11.50; fat lambs, $13.50@15.25; feeding lambs, $13.50@15.25; yearlings, $9.75@13.50; fat ewes, $6.50@8.65.

DAIRY PRODUCTS—Butter, 92 score, 48½c Chicago. Cheese prices at Wisconsin markets: Flats, 24c, twins, 23½c; daisies and double daisies, 24¼c; young Americas, 25½c; longhorns, 25½c; square prints, 25¾c.

BOURKE COCKRAN IS DEAD

Famous New York Congressman Passes Away Suddenly at His Washington Home.

Washington, March 2.—W. Bourke Cockran, representative in congress for the Sixteenth district of New York, died at his home here at 7:10 o'clock Thursday morning. The cause was hemorrhage of the brain. Mr. Cockran had not been ill and had attended Wednesday's session of the house in his usual good spirits and apparently in the best of health. He was stricken at his home, 1615 Rhode Island avenue, at about one o'clock in the morning.

He was born in Sligo, Ireland, February 28, 1854. Educated in Ireland and France, he came to the United States in 1871, and taught school. He was admitted to the bar in 1876 and soon became prominent in New York, and later in national politics.

TOWNER GOES TO PORTO RICO

President Harding Forwards an Important Nomination List to Senate.

Washington, March 1.—President Harding sent a score of important nominations to the senate. In the list were included a new governor of Porto Rico, an assistant secretary of war, a director of the War Finance corporation, and several federal judges. Representative Horace H. Towner of Iowa was nominated as governor of Porto Rico.

THREE RUM RUNNERS KILLED

Federal Posse Badly Wounds Fourth of a Gang of Tennessee Moonshiners.

Knoxville, Tenn., March 3.—Ambushed by a federal posse near Jellico, Tenn., four alleged rum runners decided to fight it out. Three of them were shot to death, the fourth seriously wounded, while four posse men were wounded.

McCook Field Glider Tested.

Dayton, O., March 2.—The McCook field glider was given its preliminary ground tests here. If it proves satisfactory, it will be entered in the international gliding contest to be held in this country in the fall, officers said.

Six Sailors Burned to Death.

Manila, March 2.—Six enlisted men on the United States destroyer Hulbert of the Asiatic fleet were burned to death in an explosion in the boiler room, caused by a flare-back of oil. No others were injured.

LEGISLATIVE NEWS

Three house joint resolutions were approved by the governor, the chief in importance of which was the Graham and Hauge resolution to amend the constitution to permit women to occupy seats in the legislature. More or less of a jinx seems to have followed this measure after its passage by both houses. It must be passed by the next general assembly and approved by the voters at the following general election before it becomes effective. After it passed the senate and was being enrolled for the governor's signature, two journal clerks in the house, Lillian Leffert and Mabel Elwood, discovered that the word "weekly" had been placed before newspapers in the publication clause. This was corrected by both houses and the bill was enrolled. When it reached the governor he discovered that while the word "male" had been stricken from the section stating the qualifications of members of the general assembly the male pronoun had been left unchanged in three places. By that time the legislature had adjourned. The governor did not want to veto the bill; it would become effective as an act of the fortieth general assembly in three days if he did not sign it; so he signed it and will have it corrected when the legislature reconvenes.

The impression has got around that the present legislature is a repealing and bill killing body. Four bills have failed to pass the senate; the house has killed three, and one of the measures it passed met death in the senate. The various standing committees of the senate have reported nine bills for indefinite postponement which is ordinarily the equivalent of killing them. The house has been more ruthless than the senate in the matter of chloroforming bills in committee for its committees have taken such adverse action on eighteen bills. Altogether the number of bills which have either failed or been indefinitely postponed in both houses is thirty-four against a total of forty-six passed and signed by the governor. The fortieth general assembly has not been a spectacular one. It has been sawing wood in a non-conspicuous manner and the preliminary work is well out of the way. When the assembly reconvenes it will have much work to do. Taxation, appropriations, and the highway question will hold first place in the minds of the assemblymen, and out of the consideration of the three major phases something like this is indicated as the probable result: Approurrations requested in such volume that they would double the present millage will be slashed until the miliage is either not increased at all or not to exceed one or two mills.

These are the creation of a state board of assessment and review and the inauguration of a county assessor instead of the present town and township assessor plan; the creation of a state budget board and a comparative local budget board which will prepare the estimates for appropriations in the future and keep expenditures within them. The primary road system will probably be given over to the state highway commission's full control in order that the federal bureau of roads in extending Iowa's portion of federal aid may be enabled to deal with the state as a unit instead of with ninety-nine separate counties. None of these things will be done except after a bitter and prolonged fight, but they would eventually pass a general assembly and there is undoubtedly bright prospect for their being passed at this session. On taxation there are about as many new proposals as there are requests for appropriations but it is almost certain that no tax scheme which will add to the general property levy or tap new sources of revenue without abolishing some present tax will pass the assembly. Among these new forms of taxes advocated are no less than five proposals for a gasoline tax. A bill to impose a state income tax on graduated percentage has made its appearance in the house and one of a definite percentage has been introduced in the senate. An amusement tax was incorporated in the drafts presented by the joint legislative committee on tax revision. Bills have been before committees a bill which would extend the excise tax on cigarets to all forms of tobacco. The income tax will not pass, if present indications hold out. There is more cordiality to a gasoline tax now than there was hostility at the opening of the legislature last January; but that does not mean that one of the five proposals will be adopted. At least two organizations are interested in getting the amusement tax levy—the state teachers association, which wants it for an annuity pension proposal and the Associated School Boards of Iowa which asks that it be part of the revenue they wish to see make up a state fund for school support.

A five year auto license plate was incorporated in a bill by Senator Mead of Butler county who proposed an insert place each year on the same number. He says it would save the state $250,000.

Life insurance companies hereafter organized in Iowa will not be licensed to start business until they have a paid up capital of at least $100,000 and a cash surplus of twenty-five per cent of the capital. The bill which was prepared by the insurance department, was introduced in the house by Rankin of Lee.

.. Hawkeye .. State News

Interesting Items Gathered From all Parts of Iowa

To prevent weevil, beans should not be planted before June 15th.

Twenty-three fully organized sp... rings are to be found in Ben... count, according to the county ag...

A $10,000 hog sale was held ... Shenandoah when the Henry Fi... Seed company sold 118 head of sp... ted Poland-Chinas.

The girls in the classical acade... at Orange City will have a new $... 000 dormitory erected by the Du... Reformed church.

The Secretary of State says t... the state automobile departm... turned back $100,850 into the prim... road fund in 1922.

With $35,000 of the annual bud... of $40,000 raised by the Iowa Y. ... C. A. the workers consider the d... has reached its goal.

A team, 8 and 9 years old, on ... A. G. Flake farm near Humb... sold for $310 at a recent sale. ... black gelding 6 years old, sold ... $179.

If there are any members of ... Ku Klux Klan among the offic... and employes of the state ho... they are not willing to make the... public.

Funds raised in Mason City for ... Lutheran hospital which is to ... started in June has reached the ... 000 mark. The building is to ... $600,000.

As the result of the tubercul... tests given to a large number ... herds of cattle near Oelwein sixty ... acted. This is not considered ... large percentage.

Appropriations asked of the ... tieth General assembly for the ... two years total $38,803,837 an incr... of $7,060,035 over those awarded ... the previous legislature.

If the state inheritance tax ... tinues to bring in as much rev... as it did in January and Februar... will mean $1,000,000 for the stat... the end of the year announces ... State treasurer.

S. J. Key & Son delivered to ... ket 288 Duroc Jersey hogs, ... spring shoats, all of which had ... raised on their farm near L... The bunch weighed 83,740 poun... an average of 290½ pounds per ...

W. H. Enfield, a farmer living ... Osage has made application for ... tent on a railway crossing ... which has been examined by Ill... Central executives and procla... the most feasible of any devise ... known.

Ira H. Lee, prominent Musc... county Hereford cattle breeder ... one of nine leading Iowa bree... who will have purebred Here... on sale at the sixth annual Her... roundup at Kansas City, March ... to 22nd.

Means whereby the 75 per ce... the energy of the aggregate of ... mined, which is now wasted, ma... conserved, will occupy the atte... of the Iowa District Gas associ... at its annual convention in M... City April 18, 19 and 20.

Iowa world war veterans are b... ing for Capt. Dan Newquist of ... Moines for the position of dir... of the United States veterans' ... reau. This position will be v... March 1st when the resignatio... Col. C. R. Forbes is effective.

Opposition to the Patterson ... providing for a state income ta... the ground that it would not equ... the burdens of taxation and w... tend to drive industry out of ... has been declared by the Des M... Chamber of Commerce.

During 1922 a flock of not ... 500 White Leghorns, owned by ... Ira Stetzel at Ross produced ... and poultry worth within a few ... lars of $2,000. The eggs were ... on the local market and did not ... the fancy prices which are often ... cured for hatching eggs.

If Iowa can be made a da... state, comparable to Wisconsin ... propaganda and education, Gov... Kendall intends that it shall b... intend to launch a statewide ... to point out what can be done ... the dairy industry, not as a mer... line to farming, but as a busi... ness itself," Governor Kendall ... clared. "When the financial ... struck Iowa, and particularly ... farming industry, there was a ... group of counties, centering at ... Bremer, Fayette, and Buchanan, ... never felt the pinch and cont... to be plentifully supplied with ... The reason was that those who ... selling milk, butter, cheese, p... and eggs; shipping them to Ch... and other points in carload lots ... getting back their checks two ... later.

Ray R. Simpson's sale near ... recently was a very satisfactory ... considering roads and weather. ... brought an average of $62, h... $40, sows $28, pigs $8, top ... $220, machinery fair, chickens ... 07½.

Efforts of Louis Hess and bro... Vernon Hess, of Grundy coun... obtain a cancellation of notes a... ing to $9,000 given to the ... Iowa Bankers Mortgage compa... years ago for stock, failed ... when Judge Atherton B. Clar... missed their petition.

NOTICE OF PROBATE OF WILL

ate of Iowa, c
TATE OF IOWA, ss.
ancock County.
O ALL TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:
YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED, That an instrument of writing purporting to be the last Will and Testament of KATHERINE ULRICH deceased, dated May 6th, 1905, having been this day filed, opened and read, Monday the 7th day of May, 1923 is fixed for hearing proof of same at the Court House in Garner, Iowa, before the District Court of said County or the Clerk of said Court; and at 10:00 o'clock A. M. of the day above mentioned, all persons interested are hereby notified and required to appear, and show cause, if any they have, why said instrument should not be probated and allowed as and for the last Will and Testament of said deceased.

Dated at Garner, Iowa, March 6th, 1923.

(Mr.8-15-22) Clerk of District Court
B. E. ERWIN,

Loose nuts become dangerous when one of them is driving.

NOTICE OF ANNUAL MEETING
Klemme Independent School District

Notice is hereby given to the qualified electors of the Independent District of Klemme, in the county of Hancock, state of Iowa, that the annual meeting of said district will be held at the Klemme Town Hall on the 2nd Monday in March, 1923, at 1:00 o'clock p. m. and closing at 6:00 o'clock p. m.

A director will be named for a term of three years to succeed Art Wellemeyer, one for one year to succeed R. A. Jorgenson to fill vacancy, and a Treasurer for the term of two years to succeed John Gruetzmacher.

The meeting will be open for the transaction of such business as may legally come before it.

LEW LEWIS,
Secretary.

February 27, 1923.

"One swallow doesn't make a summer," but a few swallows of the kind you get nowadays generally means an early fall.

FREE!

TO EACH CUSTOMER WHO MAILS THIS AD

We will send a FREE COPY of our New Illustrated Booklet, entitled:—

"BACK OF THE PUSH BUTTON"

This Booklet contains many Photographs and much interesting information.

CLIP this AD, and Write your name here:.....

Your Address here: .....

And Mail to IOWA FALLS ELECTRIC COMPANY
Iowa Falls, Iowa

PURE BRED

Hatching Eggs

Ferris 300 Egg Strain...Single Comb White Leghorn—

Hatching Eggs $3.50
Per 100

H. G. Brunes

Phone 607 Goodell, Iowa

PUBLIC AUCTION

As I have decided to quit farming, and having rented my land, I will hold a Public Auction on my place which is located 1-2 mile south of Klemme (on the road going south at the east end of Main Street) on——

Thursday, March 15

SALE WILL BEGIN PROMPTLY AT 11:00 A. M. A FREE, HOT LUNCH SERVED AT NOON.

70 HEAD OF LIVE STOCK 70

7 Head of Horses 7

Matched team Grays, 7 and 8 years old.
Bay Mare Coming 3 years old.
One Bay Driving Horse.
Team of Roan Geldings, 4 and 5 years old.
Gray Mare

39 Head of Cattle 39

11 Head of Milch Cows, now milking. will be furnished.
Two 2-year old Heifers.
One Registered Shorthorn Bull, papers
3 Steers, two years old.
7 Calves.

39 Head of Hogs 39

4 Brood Sows, to farrow this spring.
35 Head of Fall Shoats.

FARM MACHINERY, ETC.

McCormick Binder, 6-foot cut.
McCormick Mower, 5-foot cut
Acme Hay Rake
John Deere Spreader, 75 bushel
Gale Corn Planter, edge-drop, with about 100 rods of wire
John Deere 16-inch Sulky Plow
International Pivot-axle Cultivator
Cultivator, with surface attachment
11-foot Seeder, with Grass Seed attachment
14-inch Walking Plow
4-section Drag
Wagon, with 28-inch Box
One 26-inch Wagon Box
Hay Rack
Rock Island, low iron wheel, running gear
Fanning Mill
Spring Wagon
Two Top Buggies
5-ton Scale
8-foot Emerson Disc
Oliver Gang Plow
Clover Buncher
Seed Corn Tester
Economy Wing Separator, 750 pound capacity
Stone Boat
Couple of Log Chains
One horse power
Concord Harness
Breeching Harness
Work Harness
Some Straw
Many other Tools, etc.
Few Household goods, robe, Kitchen cabinet base, Combination desk cupboard

The Machinery which is listed above is all in good condition, has always been taken good care of and always shedded.

TERMS OF SALE——All sums of ten dollars and under, cash. Over ten dollars a credit of eight month's time will be given on approved security at 8 per cent interest from date of sale. No property is to be removed until settled for. All property at buyer's risk after sold.

U. G. SMID

YOUNG & REEMSTMA, Auctioneers.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK, KLEMME, CLERKS.

FIJIANS POLITE TO A FAULT

In Some Respects, It Might Be Criticized, They Carry Desirable Quality to Excess.

So eager are the Fijians to be polite to visitors that if a guest slips and falls they most immediately follow suit. If a guest slips and happens to fall in the presence of many Fijians, there will be a great scrambling, as everyone tries to place himself prostrate upon the ground first. Instead of hastily getting up and looking around in an embarrassed manner to see if any one saw the mishap, a guest in Fiji has the satisfaction of feeling that he is not the only unfortunate one.

In many other ways the Fijian shows his respect for his guest. When the subjects of a ruler in Fiji hear that the tribe is to be visited by a chief from another tribe, or a person from another country, all volunteer to help entertain the guest.

Each man begs to be allowed to contribute something toward the feast, or in some other way to add to the comfort of the visitor. The chief is at liberty to command anything the Fijian has for the comfort of his guest. The ruler seldom abuses this privilege. He is very desirous to win and hold the favor of his subjects, and, as a rule, rewards them liberally for their services.

SPARED OBLIVION OF GRAVE

Many Animal Pets Receive Ministrations of Taxidermists Instead of Sextons.

There are hundreds of people in Greater New York who become so fond of their pets that when they die they will not permit them to be buried. When a pet cat or a toy dog dies they find the idea of sending it to the city dump so utterly intolerable that they take the departed favorite to a taxidermist, and by this route it acquires the right to remain in New York with them indefinitely, and the stuffed animal becomes a cherished ornament.

There is nothing flippant about the owners' feelings in the matter. Downtown taxidermists who conduct annually thirty or forty of these ceremonial comfortings of those who have lost their pets, smile a little always as they speak of this branch of the business, which is a small but steady item in every year's work.

Some taxidermists have more birds brought in for mounting than cats and dogs. Canaries are still being mounted, sitting on a branch, surrounded by the same sort of grasses and immortelles that were in vogue a generation ago. They are still covered by a grass bell, and the resulting ornament is as fondly treasured today as it ever was.

Racine.

Strange as it may seem to those who have been accustomed to think of that great artist merely as a type of the frigid pomposity of an antiquated age, his music, to ears that are attuned to hear it, comes fraught with a poignancy of loveliness whose peculiar quality is shared by no other poetry in the world. To have grown familiar with the voice of Racine, to have realized once and for all its intensity, its beauty and its depth, is to have learnt a new happiness, to have discovered something exquisite and splendid, to have enlarged the glorious boundaries of art. For such benefits as these, who would not be grateful? Who would not seek to make them known to others, that they too may enjoy, and render thanks.—Lytton Strachey, in "Books and Character."

Nature's Little Joke.

A food expert warns the public against the Ben Davis apple. "Such apples," he says, "are neither flavorful nor have they good keeping qualities. They are good for neither eating nor cooking." He might have said more. He might have told of the reproachful looks cast on you by a hog or cow when you give it a Ben Davis. Someone must have had an awful grouch to call this thing after a man of that name. The Ben Davis is a deceptive-looking vegetable. In color and shape it resembles a fine apple. It is good only to look at. Its flesh is tasteless and without juice. It looks like an apple, but it isn't one. It is one of Nature's jokes.—New York Daily News.

Heat.

On hot days most of us are about as efficient as dull razors. We blame the heat. The trouble may be in the sunshine—brilliant daylight—instead of the heat, according to a new theory among English meteorologists. Some of them are coming out against daylight saving, arguing that the more hours of daylight we have the less efficient we are. You have observed that you are most energetic in winter, when daylight is short, with sky laden and light dim. We are puppets of the sun.

Saving Money Through Fossils.

The invertebrate fossil is the clock by which the geologist tells the time in history when the rock bed containing the fossil was formed. This clock has been put to practical uses. New York was spending thousands of dollars in search of anthracite coal beds until geologists demonstrated that the beds in this state could not possibly contain coal. Fossils proved that the rock beds belong to the Devonian age, not the Carboniferous, and the useless expenditure of money at once ceased.—Scientific American.

A Mean Trick

A young man was walking along a lonely stretch of seashore when the incoming tide washed up a bottle He picked it up and saw a slip of paper inside.

For several minutes he refrained from extracting the message, while toying with the idea that it must have been scrawled by some wreck survivor in an open boat or on a raft.

Finally he broke the bottle's neck, cut his finger on a piece of jagged glass and read: "Whoever discovers this bottle will find all the beer gone."

Hatching Eggs

—T—

S. C. W. Leghorn Eggs for Hatching

$3.00 PER HUNDRED

Will have four or five hundred

BABY CHICKS

March 27th. $10.00 a hundred at farm if all are taken.

Rufus Steffen

Britt Phone Kanawha Mail
(7 1-2 miles west of Klemme)

TYPEWRITER RIBBONS
All Makes

Typewriter Ribbons for sale at the Times Office. all of the Standard makes. Ribbons 75 cents each.

THE CITY DRAY LINE
—Is prepared to do your hauling carefully and promptly
We solicit your patronage.
Charges reasonable.
Coal Hauling Done
Louie Knoke

DENTIST
J. L. Hesselhuus, D. D. S.
Office Hours 8-12 1-5:30
Office Opposite State Savings Bank; In Schaffer Bldg.
Evening Work By Appointment Only
Klemme, Ia. Phone 81

KLEMME DRAY LINE
Phone 2105
A share of your patronage is solicited. All work attended to promptly and carefully. We haul coal quick.
LLOYD LAU, PROP.

Hurry Up

You Still Have Time To Get That Suit Made for Easter

I have possibly a thousand samples from which you may select. The patterns are nifty and the workmanship is first class.

Buy a suit at any price you wish to pay. Glad to have you come in any time, or if you're too busy will be pleased to make an appointment.

SUITS TO YOUR MEASMENT AT—
$22.50, $25.00, $30.00

When you see these patterns at the prices, you'll be justk as enthusiastic as I am.

Ladies and gents hosiery, mens shirts, neckwear, underwear, handkerchiefts, dress gloves, etc.

A good time now to get your winter suit or overcoat cleaned and pressed for the last round of winter.

fine asortment of—
MEN'S and YOUNG MEN'S CAPS

Elegant Materials and beautiful shades, moderate price. Cleanliness is good, thank you

The Men's Fashion Shop

A. W. JOHNSON
GARNER IOWA

Ford

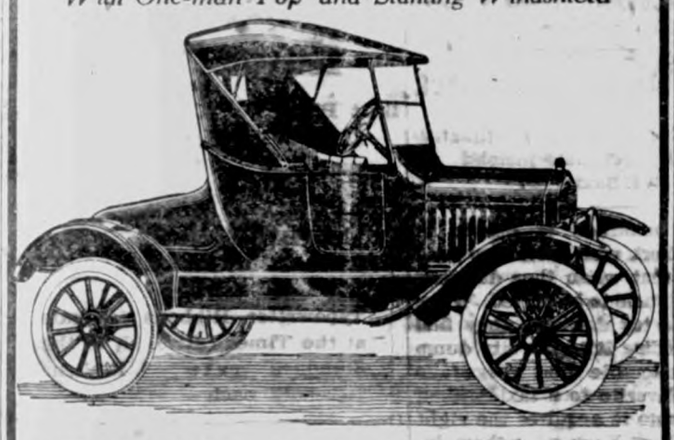
RUNABOUT

New Price

$269

F. O. B. DETROIT

With One-man Top and Slanting Windshield



The Ford Runabout at this new low price is the most economical means of transportation salesmen can employ. With the new one-man top and slanting windshield, it is a more wonderful value than ever before. Time-saving, absolutely dependable transportation at the minimum cost. Buy now — Terms if desired.

Greimann Motor Co

Aaron Greimann, Mgr. Klemme, Iowa

WE have only a couple of new Fords in Stock—Act Now!

GEORGE ZINN, M. D.

Physician and Surgeon

Office opposite from Hotel Klemme

Phone No. 19

Eyes Examined Glasses Fitted

Just to Remiud You-

That this is the place to get some nice fresh bulk

Sauerkraut, per pound 10c

Then there are times you don't know just what to get for a little variety at the meal, so we suggest that you try our nice fresh smoked or pickled fish.

Herring Mackeral

Salmon White Fish

Fresh Fish this Week

If you want a pie "like mother used to make" try our bulk Armour's Very Best

Mince Meat, per pound 18c

J. P. Larsen & Sons

The Klemme Meat Market

NEWS OF THE WEEK'S DOINGS AT HIGH SCHOOL

Neota Ridder, Editor-in-Chief.
Dolores Koerner, Associate Editor.

Sophies Turn To Set 'em Up

The Sophomores are giving a party for the Juniors and Freshmen on Thursday night. This is the second party given, as the Juniors gave one a short time agao. All school enteretainments of this kind are welcomed by the pupils, and we hope they will show their appreciation to the Sophomores by coming.

They Sign For Athletics

All the pupils who wish to participate in Athletics and join the Athletic Association have signed up with Prof. Neese so he could send their names in to the Association. These names were sent in to find out if all those who signed up to play were elligible.

Darwin Scores Again

In the debate which was given by the Juniors in Sociology Tuesday morning on the question "Resolved: That Darwin's and Spencer's theories should be discarded," the results were 27 points for the affirmative and 58 points for the negative. Bernice Tanner and Bertha Johnson upheld the affirmative and Dolores Koerner, Marie Blank, and Clarence Elder, the negative.

School Should Supply Snow Shoes For Stranded Students

Harvey Barz was absent Monday. Harvey could not get to school on account of the large snow-drifts that blockaded the road. Faith and Richard Ax were also absent Mondap and Tuesday. The reason for their absence is not known.

We'll All Go To This

A Literary Program which is to be given by the High School and the Seventh and Eighth Grades will be held Tuesday, March 13th. at 7:30 o'clock P. M. This is the second Literary Program given and promises to be a good one. School entertainments are always good and every one is invited to come.

"Worry Week" Safely Passed

The six weeks exams which were held last Thursday and Friday are safely over, although some in the Phy. Geographp Clas did not do very well. The work is now going on in the same old swing and we invite all the people to come and visit us

Florence Behringer has been absent this week on acount of illness. Elvira Stille and Martin Barz were also absent but the reason is unknown.

ENGLISH. AS SHE IS SPELLED

A stranger in our land was he;
He tried to learn our spelling.
He thought it would as easy be,
As buying or as selling.

He tried to write, but couldn't quite
Learn when to write or right.
He couldn't tell just where he stood,
When using cood or wood or shood.
He tried to stand a lot of chaffing,
When cruel peple started laffing;
When other things confused him so,
As doe and dough and roe and row,
And mail and male and sail and sale,
And many more that turned him pail.
Said he "I left my wife and daughter
In other lands across the waughter,
I wanted much to bring them here,
But they will have to stay I fere,
And I must leave pou." With a sigh
He added, "Else I'll surely digh."

When Does He Work?

"May I speak with Mr. Wombat?"

"He is at lunch."

"I telephoned at 2 o'clock and he was at lunch then. It is now nearly five."

"Well, he's at dinner now."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

CHECKING UP

One morning a negro sauntered into the office of a white friend. "Good mawnin', Mr. Withrow. Kin I use yo' phone a minute?" he asked.

"Why, certainly, Sam."

Sam called his number, and after a few minutes' wait, said, "Is this Mrs. Whiteside? Well, I seen in de papeh where youall wanted a good culled man. Is you still wantin' one? Then the man youse got is puffdestly satisfactory, and you doesn't connemplate makin' no change soon?. All right, ma'am. Goodbye."

Mr. Withrow called to Sam as he left the phone, "Now that's too bad, Sam, that the place is filled."

"Oh, dat's all right, Mr. Withrow. Ise de nigger what's got de job, but I's jest a wantin' to check up."

ABILITIES THAT ARE LATENT

Few Realize to the Fullest Extent the Intellectual Powers They Have at Command.

How many times have you been forced to undertake some piece of work which you did not believe you could perform, only to find yourself agreeably surprised at the credible way in which you finally accomplished it? You discovered latent abilities which only come to light through the driving force of necessity. There is no doubt we all have possibilities which we do not suspect. All that is needed to develop them is self confidence and initiative.

Many people never succeed because they never try. They lack faith in themselves. The habit of saying "I can't" is an easy one to acquire, and it grows stronger with time, but it does not lead to accomplishment. It does not put our faculties to work to overcome the perplexities of the job which confronts us. Many people feel that unless they can solve some problem easily they lack the ability to do it at all. They do not realize that the performance of anything worth while requires much hard work and hard thinking.

Don't allow yourself to become conceited or to get into an overconfident frame of mind in regard to your ability, but nevertheless do not give up trying to achieve some goal until you have brought every faculty into play. If you concentrate strongly enough on the effort you will be surprised at the results.—Exchange.

BLIND MAN "SEES" WITH NOSE

Making Up for the Loss of Sight, Nature Increases Power of the Olfactory Organs.

A blind man can "see with his nose." So, at least, writes a blind man who has made a study of his own faculties and those of his companions in darkness.

"The sense of smelling among the blind," he says, "grows exceedingly sharp, and we utilize it instinctively for our purposes, for which the normal man naturally uses his eyes. The smell, in particular, helps us in creating a sense of locality, and enables us, in a region in which we are at home, to find the way as easily and surely as if we could see the world around us with our eyes. It is relatively easy for the nose, as there are not two streets that have the same odor.

"Not only has each street its particular odor, but also the various parts of the same street; nay, each house has its characteristic smell, and the blind man knows in a street through which he often comes where he is. For the recognition of human beings the sense of smell is likewise invaluable. Besides the special smells of cigars or perfumes, there are many delicate scents by which he can recognize men. Every material of clothing has a definite odor, and with a little experience the blind man can 'see with his nose' whether one wears wool, silk or velvet."

Points of the Moon.

The "points" or ends of the crescent moon always point away from the sun. When the moon is new the setting sun, or sun recently set, is on the west of it, which sends the points to the east. As the sun sinks farther below the horizon the points of the crescent moon point more in an upward direction; for the convex part of the crescent must always be toward the sun. When the moon is waning the sun is on the east of it, which, of course, sends the points toward the west. The moon is always a sphere; the crescent is merely that part of its illuminated side which we are in a position to see.

Mean Man.

Mrs. N. Parker came bursting in to see her new neighbor, and found Mr. Jones reclining in an armchair.

"Well, Mr. Jones, and what's Mrs. Jones doing?"

Mr. Jones sucked his pipe with evident enjoyment.

"Ah, poor soul, she's dying!"

Mrs. Parker was horrified.

"What? You brute! Why don't you do something?"

Just at that moment Mrs. Jones walked in.

Mrs. Parker spluttered:

"But—but you said she was dying!"

"Yes," said Jones quietly. "So she is—to see you mind your own business."

None of the Apple Goes to Waste.

The thoroughness with which the apple is now worked over and utilized by some manufacturers makes it comparable with the packinghouse pig that leaves only a futile squeal. In many of the apple-using factories the apples are first pressed to produce cider, which may be sold as such or may be manufactured into vinegar. After thorough pressing the pomace is treated with hot water to remove the pectin, which, after purification, is sold in either liquid or solid form to manufacturers of jellies and similar products and to housewives. The much wasted and squeezed residue is dried, ground and sold as cattle food.—Department of Agriculture Bulletin.

News of Goodell And Vicinity

Dr. Snearly has been numbered among the sick the last few days.

Goodell and vicinitp was visited by a heavy snow last Saturday night.

Miss Hill visited her parents at Clarion over Saturday and Sunday.

Mis McCormick was a Belmond caller between trains Saturday. x

Mrs. Chase returned from Garner Saturday.

Mr. Miller from west of town moved onto the S. G. Eldred farm northeast of town.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Chase and the family attended the funeral of Mrs. Chase's father of Garner, last week Thursday.

Mrs. E. A. Strasburg, of Meservey, was a visitor at the sewing demonstration at the J. Griggs home on Friday.

The play, "Fun on the Podunk Limited," which was put on by the High School Friday night was enjoyed by a crowded house, and it was wetll worth the money.

The Averp Township Ladies of the Farm Bureau met at the home of Mrs. Jay Griggs last Friday. An all day meeting was held. Miss Smith of Ames gave a very instructive lesson on the "Making and Cutting of Patterns." The serving committee was as follows: Mrs. Jay Griggs, Mrs. Jewell Cook and Mrs. S. G. Chase. The next meeting will be held at the Mrs. F P Chase home.

Goodell High School Notes

"Fun on the Podunk Limited," was successfully put on to a full house Friday night.

Our basket ball teams played the Klemme teams a practice game last Wednesday night, resulting in a victory for both our boys and girls. The boys' score being 25-10. and the girls 7-3. Perhaps if our Captain and "best" Forward had not been entertaing the flu that evening the girls would have won by a larger score.

Ethel Church has been absent for over a week on account of illness.

Edith Halfpop and Dorothy Lackore returned to school Thursday, after several days of absence on account of illness.

Dale and Nettie Chase were absent Thursday.

Mamie Dieger was absent Monday.

THE SILENT INK ERASER

Take a 2-ounce bottle and put in a tablespoonful of Acetic Acid. Then fill bottle with solution of Chlorine and it is ready for use. Saturate a small mucilage brush with this liquid, after well shaking, and apply it to the ink or stain it is desired to remove. Then absorb with a blotting paper, same as when writing, and the ink will have disappeared.

The New Spring Styles Are Here---

COME IN AND SEE THEM——

We've never had such variety and quality in the new styles for spring. Everything in our stock from furnishings to suits is the last word in style.

The Merchants' Spring Opening is being held this week. It's the opportune time to look over the new styles.

Come in and see them while our stocks are complete.

Patton Brothers Co.

"Where a dollar does its duty"

MASON CITY and MANLY, IOWA.

Going Fast

OUR RED TOP fence post sale is proving a winner. Posts are going fast at the reduced prices.

This is the last opportunity of the year to buy at these reduced prices so be sure to get in your order before the sale ends.

FREE—a Red Top Post Driver

During this sale we are giving free to each purchaser of 100 or more RED TOP Posts a Red Top One-Man Post Driver. Get yours and save much work, time and many fence building dollars.

Sale Closes March 17

Northern Lumber Co.

Klemme • Iowa

Desert Gold

By ZANE GREY

Author of

Riders of the Purple Sage, Wildfire, Etc.

Copyright by Harper & Brothers.

"I LOVE NELL"

NOPSIS.—Seeking gold in the rt, "Cameron," solitary pros- or, forms a partnership with unknown man whom he later ns is Jonas Warren, father of irl whom Cameron wronged, later married, back in Illinois. eron's explanations appease rren, and the two proceed to- er. Taking refuge from a storm in a cave, Cameron dis- ers gold, but too late; both men dying. Cameron leaves evi- ce, in the cave, of their dis- ery of gold, and personal docu- nts. Richard Gale, adventurer, Casita, Mexican border town, ets George Thorne, lieutenant in Ninth cavalry, old college nd. Thorne tells Gale he is re to save Mercedes Castaneda, nish girl, his affianced wife, m Rojas, Mexican bandit. Gale oughhouses" Rojas and his gang, th the help of two American wboys, and he, Mercedes and orne escape. A bugle call from fort orders Thorne to his regi- nt. He leaves Mercedes under le's protection. The pair, aided the cowboys, Charlie Ladd and n Lash, arrive in safety at a nch known as Forlorn River, ross the border. The fugitives e at Tom Belding's home. Beld- is immigration inspector. Living th him are his wife and step- ughter, Nell Burton. Gale, with dd and Lash, take service with lding as rangers, Gale telling lding the cause of his being a nderer, a misunderstanding with father concerning the son's siness abilities. Mercedes gets ord to Thorne of her safety. ck also writes to his parents, in- rming them of his whereabouts. ell's personality, and her kind- ss, attract Gale. Riding the nge, Gale falls in with a party three Mexican raiders encamped t a water hole. Watching his pportunity to oust them, he sees wo Indians ride into the camp. ne of them, a Yaqui, is evidently adly wounded, and the Mexicans eek to kill him in a cruel way. ick drives them off, conveying he wounded Yaqui to Belding's anch. The Indian becomes Dick's rdent admirer. Gale's admira- ion for Nell increases. Belding's horses, the pride of his life, are un off by the Mexicans. Gale, with Ladd, Lash and the Yaqui, pursue the raiding party, finally cornering them.

CHAPTER VIII.—Continued.

—9—

The other rangers sawed the reins plunging steeds and whirled to ape the unseen battery. Gale pped a fresh clip into the maga- e of his rifle. He restrained him- lf from useless firing and gave eager e to the duel below. Ladd began to oot while Sol was running. The 5 rang out sharply—then again. e heavy bullets streaked the dust the way across the valley. The iders spurred madly in pursuit, ading and firing. They shot ten nes while Ladd shot once, and all vain; and on Ladd's sixth shot a ider toppled backward, threw his rbine and fell with his foot catching a stirrup. The frightened horse unged away, dragging him in a path dust.

Ladd had emptied a magazine, and ow Blanco Sol quickened and length- ned his running stride. He ran away rom his pursuers. Then it was that he ranger's ruse was divined by the iders. They hauled sharply up and eemed to be conferring. But that as a fatal mistake. Blanco Sol was een to break his gait and slow down n several jumps, then square away nd stand stockstill. Ladd fired at the losely grouped raiders. An instant passed. Then Gale heard the spat of bullet out in front, saw a puff of ust, then heard the lead strike the ocks and go whining away. And it was fter this that one of the raiders fell prone from his saddle. The steel- acketed .405 had gone through him n its uninterrupted way to hum past Gale's position.

The remaining two raiders fran- ically spurred their horses and fled up the valley. Ladd sent Sol after them. The raiders split, one making for the eastern outlet, the other circling back of the mesquites. Ladd kept on after the latter. Then puffs of white smoke and rifle shots faintly crackling told of Jim Lash's hand in the game. How- ever, he succeeded only in driving the raider back into the valley. But Ladd had turned the other horseman, and now it appeared the two raiders were between Lash above on the stony slope and Ladd below on the level. There was desperate riding on part of the raiders to keep from being hemmed in closer. Only one of them got away, and he came riding for life down under the eastern wall. Blanco Sol settled into his graceful, beautiful swing. He gained steadily, though he was far from extending himself.

Some few hundred rods to the left of Gale the raider put his horse to the weathered slope. He began to climb. Zigzag they went up and up, and when Ladd reached the edge of the slope they were high along the cracked and guttered rampart. Once—twice Ladd raised the long rifle, but each time he lowered it. Gale divined that the ranger's restraint was not on account of the Mexican, but for that valiant and faithful horse. Up and up he went, and the yellow dust clouds rose, and an avalanche rolled rattling and cracking down the slope. It was be- yond belief that a horse, burdened or unburdened, could find footing and hold it upon that wall of narrow ledges and inverted, slanting gullies. But he climbed on, sure-footed as a mountain goat, and, surmounting the last rough steps, he stood a moment silhouetted against the white sky. Then he disappeared. Ladd sat astride Blanco Sol gazing upward. How the cowboy must have honored that raider's brave steed!

Gale, who had been too dumb to shout the admiration he felt, suddenly leaped up, and his voice came with a shriek:

"Look out, Laddy!"

A big horse, like a white streak, was bearing down to the right of the ranger. Blanco Diablo! A matchless rider swung with the horse's motion. Gale was stunned. Then he remembered the first raider, the one Lash had shot at and driven away from the outlet. This fellow had made for the mesquite and had put a saddle on Belding's favorite. In the heat of the excitement, while Ladd had been intent upon the climbing horse, this last raider had come down with the speed of the wind straight for the western outlet. Perhaps, very probably, he did not know Gale was there to block it; and certainly he hoped to pass Ladd and Blanco Sol.

A touch of the spur made Sol lunge forward to head off the raider. Diablo was in his stride, but the distance and angle favored Sol. The raider had no carbine. He held aloft a gun ready to level it and fire. He sat the saddle as if it were a stationary seat. Gale saw Ladd lean down and drop the .405 in the sand. He would take no chances of wounding Belding's best-loved horse.

Then Gale sat transfixed with suspended breath watching the horses thundering toward him. Blanco Diablo was speeding low, fleet as an antelope, fierce and terrible in his devilish action, a horse for war and blood and death. He seemed unbeatable. Yet to see the magnificently running Blanco Sol was but to court a doubt. Plain it was the raider could not make the opening ahead of Ladd. He saw it and swerved to the left, emptying his six-shooter as he turned.

Blanco Sol thundered across. Then the race became straight away up the valley. It was a fleet, beautiful, magnificent race. Gale thrilled and exulted and yelled as his horse settled into a steadily swifter run and began to gain.

The gap between Diablo and Sol narrowed yard by yard. All the devil that was in Blanco Diablo had its running on the downward stretch. The strange, cruel urge of bit and spur, the crazed rider who stuck like a burr upon him, the shots and smoke added terror to his natural violent temper. He ran himself off his feet. But he could not elude that relentless horse behind him.

Then, like one white flash following another, the two horses gleamed down the bank of a wash and disappeared in clouds of dust.

Only One of Them Got Away, and He Came Riding for Life Down Under the Eastern Wall.

Gale watched with strained and smarting eyes. The thick throb in his ears was pierced by faint sounds of gunshots. Then he waited in almost unendurable suspense.

Suddenly something whiter than the background of dust appeared above the low roll of valley floor. Gale leveled his glass. In the clear circle shone Blanco Sol's noble head with its long black bar from ears to nose. Sol's head was drooping now. Another second showed Ladd still in the saddle.

The ranger was leading Blanco Diablo — spent — broken—dragging—riderless.

CHAPTER IX

An Interrupted Siesta.

No man ever had a more eloquent and beautiful pleader for his cause than had Dick Gale in Mercedes Castaneda. Nell lay in the hammock, her hands behind her head, with rosy cheeks and arch eyes. Indeed she looked rebellious.

Dick was inclined to be rebellious himself. Belding had kept the rangers in off the line, and therefore Dick had been idle most of the time, and, though he tried hard, he had been unable to stay far from Nell's vicinity. He believed she cared for him; but he could not catch her alone long enough to verify his tormenting hope. He had long before enlisted the loyal Mercedes in his cause; but in spite of this Nell had been more than a match for them both.

Gale pondered over an idea he had long revolved in mind, and which now suddenly gave place to a decision that made his heart swell and his cheek burn. He went in search of Mrs. Belding, and found her busy in the kitchen.

The relation between Gale and Mrs. Belding had subtly and incomprehensively changed. He understood her less than when at first he divined an antagonism in her. If such a thing were possible she had retained the antagonism while seeming to yield to some influence that must have been fondness for him. Gale had come to care greatly for Nell's mother. Not only was she the comfort and strength of her home, but also of the inhabitants of Forlorn River. Indian, Mexican, American were all the same to her in trouble or illness; and then she was nurse, doctor, peacemaker, helper. She was good and noble, and there was not a child or grownup in Forlorn River who did not love and bless her. But Mrs. Belding did not seem happy. She seldom smiled, and never laughed. There was always a soft, sad, hurt look in her eyes. Gale often wondered if there had been other tragedy in her life than the supposed loss of her father in the desert.

Mrs. Belding heard Dick's step as he entered the kitchen, and, looking up, greeted him.

"Mother," began Dick, earnestly. Belding called her that, and so did Ladd and Lash, but it was the first time for Dick. "Mother—I want to speak to you."

The only indication Mrs. Belding gave of being startled was in her eyes, which darkened, shadowed with multiplying thought.

"I love Nell," went on Dick, simply, "and I want you to let me ask her to be my wife."

Mrs. Belding's face blanched to a deathly white. Gale, thinking with surprise and concern that she was going to faint, moved quickly toward her, took her arm.

"Forgive me. I was blunt. . . . But I thought you knew."

"I've known for a long time," replied Mrs. Belding. Her voice was steady, and there was no evidence of agitation except in her pallor. "Then you—you haven't spoken to Nell?"

Dick laughed. "I've been trying to get a chance to tell her. I haven't had it yet. But she knows. I hope, I almost believe Nell cares a little for me."

"I've known that, too, for a long time," said Mrs. Belding, low almost as a whisper.

"You know!" cried Dick, with a glow and rush of feeling. "Mother! You'll give her to me?"

She drew him to the light and looked with strange, piercing intentness into his face. Gale had never dreamed a woman's eyes could hold such a world of thought and feeling. It seemed all the sweetness of life was there, and all the pain.

"Dick Gale, you want my Nell? You love her just as she is—her sweetness—her goodness? Just herself, body and soul? . . . There's nothing could change you—nothing?"

"Dear Mrs. Belding, I love Nell for herself. If she loves me I'll be the happiest of men. There's absolutely nothing that could make any difference in me."

"But your people? Oh, Dick, you come of a proud family. I can tell. You've become a ranger. You love the adventure—the wild life. That won't last. Perhaps you'll settle down to ranching. I know you love the West. But, Dick, there's your family—"

"If you want to know anything about my family, I'll tell you," interrupted Dick, with strong feeling. "I've no secrets about them or myself. My future and happiness are Nell's to make. No one else shall count with me."

"Then, Dick—you may have her. God—bless—you—both."

Mrs. Belding's strained face underwent a swift and mobile relaxation, and suddenly she was weeping in strangely mingled happiness and bitterness.

"Why, mother!" Gale could say no more. He put his arm around her. In another moment she had gained command over herself, and, kissing him, she pushed him out of the door.

"There! Go tell her, Dick. . . . And have some spunk about it!"

Gale went thoughtfully back to his room. Then remembering the hope Mrs. Belding had given him, Dick lost his gravity in a flash, and something began to dance and ring within him. He simply could not keep his steps turned from the patio. Every path led there. His blood was throbbing, his hopes mounting, his spirit soaring.

"Now for some spunk!" he said, under his breath.

Plainly he meant his merry whistle and his buoyant step to interrupt this first languorous stage of the siesta which the girls always took during the hot hours. But neither girl heard him. Mercedes lay under the palo verde, her beautiful head dark and still upon a cushion. Nell was asleep in the hammock. Her sweet, red lips, with the soft, perfect curve, had always fascinated Dick, and now drew him irresistibly. He had always been consumed with a desire to kiss her, and now he was overwhelmed with his opportunity. It would be a terrible thing to do, but if she did not waken at once— No, he would fight the temptation. That would be more than spunk. It would— She stirred—he feared she would awaken.

He had dropped back erect when she opened her eyes. They were sleepy, yet surprised until she saw him. Then she was wide awake in a second, bewildered, uncertain.

"Why—you here?" she asked, slowly.

"Large as life!" replied Dick, with unusual gayety.

"How long have you been here?"

"Just got here this fraction of a second," he replied, lying shamelessly.

"I thought—I was—dreaming," she said, and evidently the sound of her voice reassured her.

"Yes, you looked as if you were having pleasant dreams," replied Dick. "So sorry to wake you. I can't see how I came to do it, I was so quiet. Mercedes didn't wake. Well, I'll go and let you have your siesta and dreams."

Nell Was Now Deep In Her Siesta. She Was Inert, Relaxed, Untroubled by Dreams.

But he did not move to go. Nell regarded him with curious, speculative eyes.

"Isn't it a lovely day?" queried Dick.

"Yesterday was finer, but you didn't notice it."

"Oh, yesterday was somewhere back in the past—the inconsequential past."

Nell's sleepy eyes opened a little wider. She did not know what to make of this changed young man. Dick felt gleeful and tried hard to keep the fact from becoming manifest.

"What's the inconsequential past? You seem remarkably happy today."

"I certainly am happy. Adios. Pleasant dreams."

Dick turned away then and left the patio by the opening into the yard. Nell was really sleepy, and when she had fallen asleep again he would return. He walked around for a while. Presently, as if magnet-drawn, he retraced his steps to the patio and entered noiselessly.

Nell was now deep in her siesta. She was inert, relaxed, untroubled by dreams. Her hair was damp on her brow.

Again Nell stirred, and gradually awakened. Her eyes unclosed, humid, shadowy, unconscious. They rested upon Dick for a moment before they became clear and comprehensive. He stood back fully ten feet from her, and to all outside appearances regarded her calmly.

"I've interrupted your siesta again," he said. "Please forgive me. I'll take myself off."

He wandered away, and when it became impossible for him to stay away any longer he returned to the patio.

The instant his glance rested upon Nell's face he divined she was feigning sleep. Dick dropped upon his knees and bent over her. He wanted more than anything he had ever wanted in his life to see if she would keep up that pretense of sleep and let him kiss her. She must have felt his breath, for her hair waved off her brow. Her cheeks were now white. Her breast swelled and sank. He bent down closer—closer. But he must have been maddeningly slow, for as he bent still closer Nell's eyes opened, and he caught a swift purple gaze of eyes as she whirled her head. Then, with a little cry, she rose and fled.

CHAPTER X

Rojas.

No word from George Thorne had come to Forlorn River in weeks. Gale grew concerned over the fact, and began to wonder if anything serious could have happened to him. Mercedes showed a slow, wearing strain.

Thorne's commission expired the end of January, and if he could not get his discharge immediately, he surely could obtain leave of absence. Therefore, Gale waited, not without growing anxiety, and did his best to cheer Mercedes. The first of February came bringing news of rebel activities and bandit operations in and around Casita, but not a word from the cavalryman.

A dozen times Gale declared he would ride in to Casita and find out why they did not hear from Thorne; however, older and wiser heads prevailed over his impetuosity. Belding and the rangers and the Yaqui held a consultation. Not only had the Indian become a faithful servant to Gale, but he was also of value to Belding. Yaqui had all the craft of his class, and superior intelligence. His knowledge of Mexicans was second only to his hate of them. And Yaqui, who had been scouting on all the trails, gave information that made Belding decide to wait some days before sending anyone to Casita.

It was upon Gale's coming from this conference that he encountered Nell. Since the interrupted siesta episode she had been more than ordinarily elusive, and about all he had received from her was a tantalizing smile from a distance. He got the impression now, however, that she had awaited him. When he drew close to her he was certain of it, and he experienced more than surprise.

"Dick," she began, hurriedly. "Mercedes is dying by inches. Can't you see what ails her? It's more than love or fear. It's uncertainty—suspense. Oh, can't we find out for her?"

"Nell, I feel as badly as you about her. I wanted to ride to Casita. Belding shut me up quick, the last time."

Nell came close to Gale, clasped his arm. There was no color in her face. Her eyes held a dark, eager excitement.

"Dick, will you slip off without Dad's consent? Risk it! Go to Casita and find out what's happened to Thorne—at least if he ever started for Forlorn River?"

"No, Nell, I won't do that."

She drew away from him with passionate suddenness.

"Are you afraid?"

This certainly was not the Nell Burton that Gale knew.

"No, I'm not afraid," Gale replied, a little nettled.

"Will you go—for my sake?" Like lightning her mood changed and she was close to him again, hands on his, her face white, her whole presence sweetly alluring.

"Nell, I won't disobey Belding," protested Gale. "I won't break my word."

"Dick, it'll not be so bad as that. But—what if it is? . . . Go, Dick, if not for poor Mercedes' sake, then for mine—to please me. I'll—I'll . . . you won't lose anything by going. I think I know how Mercedes feels. Just a word from Thorne or about him would save her. Take Blanco Sol and go, Dick. What rebel outfit could ever ride you down on that horse? Why, Dick, if I was up on Sol I wouldn't be afraid of the whole rebel army."

Gale could only stare at this transformed girl.

"Dick, listen! . . . If you go—if you fetch some word of Thorne to comfort Mercedes, you—well, you will have your reward. Dick, will you go."

"No—no!" cried Gale, in violence, struggling with himself. "Nell Burton, I'll tell you this. To have the reward I want would mean pretty near heaven for me. But not even for that will I break my word to your father."

She seemed the incarnation of girlish scorn and willful passion.

"Gracias, senor," she replied, mockingly. "Adios." Then she flashed out of his sight.

Gale went to his room at once, disturbed and thrilling, and did not soon recover from that encounter.

The following morning at the breakfast table Nell was not present. "She's in one of her tantrums lately," said Belding. "Wouldn't speak to me this morning. Let her alone, mother. She's spoiled enough, without running after her. She's always hungry. She'll be on hand presently, don't mistake me."

Notwithstanding Belding's conviction, which Gale shared, Nell did not appear at all during the hour. Perhaps half an hour afterward, as Gale was leaving his room, he saw the Yaqui running up the path from the fields. Gale wondered what was the matter. Yaqui ran straight to Belding, who was at work at his bench under the wagon shed. In less than a moment Belding was bellowing for his rangers. Gale got to him first, but Ladd and Lash were not far behind.

"Right out then Nell swore she'd go after Thorne."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Charms of Music.

"Sarantha, what's the chune the orchestry's playin' now?" asked the old farmer, who was attending a concert for the first time in his life.

Sarantha, his wife, looked long and earnestly at her program.

"It's by a fellow called Chopin," she replied.

"Well, maybe," was the reply. "But it sounds a deal more like sawin'."—London Answers.

A Near Guess.

"I'm improving in drawing, mother," said the little girl. "Are you, dear? That's good!" "Yes, I drawed a cake on my slate and Bennie guessed it was an oyster. He knew it was something to eat, anyway, didn't he?"

THE PORT OF MISSING MEN

The American Legion is attempting to solve the mystery of the disappearance of Edward Stanley Starr, who left his home at 611 West One Hundred and Thirty-sixth street, New York City, on the morning of November 6 and has not been heard from since.

Edward Starr.

Starr was a bugler in the One Hundred and Second engineers of the Twenty-seventh division during the World war. Strenuous days left him physically fit but subject to periods of melancholy disposition.

Starr is an electrician and was employed by the International Time Recording company, 11 East Thirty-seventh street, New York, at the time of his disappearance. He is twenty-three years old, about five feet, eleven inches tall; weight 160 pounds, blue eyes, light brown hair, fair complexion, scar on his left wrist.

A widowed mother has asked the American Legion to find William Davern whom she has not seen since November, 1920, when he left his home in St. Paul to work in Cedar Rapids, Ia. Later he was heard from in St. Louis and New Orleans. In April, 1921, he was sent to New Jersey and then apparently dropped off the face of the earth. He was affiliated with the Bridge Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers' union. During the war he was a corporal in Battery B of the Seventy-seventh Field Artillery.

William Davern.

The American Legion is assisting Henry McKee of De Land, Ill., to locate his son, Harry T. McKee, who enlisted at Camp Grant, Ill., in September, 1919, and was discharged at San Francisco on November 28, 1922, after serving one year at Camp Grant and two years in Hawaii with the Eleventh F. A. He has dark brown eyes, black hair, a crooked right arm, and a scar just below the elbow; weight about 140 pounds. He will be twenty-one years of age on May 14, 1923.

Mrs. C. J. Traen of Taunton, Minn., would be very glad to hear from anyone who could give her any information regarding her brother, A. L. Houle, who enlisted on May 2, 1917, and was a member of company F, Fourteenth Infantry. He is five feet five inches tall; weight, 160 pounds; dark brown eyes and brown hair, inclined to be curly. Last heard from in December, 1921, and was at that time employed by J. P. Lang Co. at Corn Creek Branch, Belt, Mont.

Mrs. Florence Minney of McGregor, Ia., requests information concerning her son, Charles W. Minney, from whom she has not heard for the last two years. During the World war he served with the Thirty-fifth infantry, Company C, and when next heard from was in Nuevo Laredo, Mexico. He is five feet eight inches in height, brown eyes, black hair.

Claude C. Du Lay, whose temporary address is Room 2116, Interior Department Building, Washington, D. C., is trying to locate his brother, Floyd C. Du Lay, who was discharged at Camp Custer, Michigan, on March 5, 1918, as a private, Company G, Three Hundred and Fortieth Infantry. On or about November 11, 1918, he left his home in Detroit and has not been heard from since. He is twenty-nine years of age; five feet eleven inches tall, with heavy dark brown hair and dark brown eyes. Weight approximately 155 pounds. He has served in both the navy and the army. His occupation has been soda-man, and he has worked in a theater. At one time he traveled with a show under the name of R. W. Harris, and is known to many by the name of Bob Harris. A reward of $25 is offered.

In the interest of a father and mother, the Matoaka Post, No. 86 of Matoaka, W. Va., is inquiring for the whereabouts of George D. Donley, who was discharged at Camp Dix, New Jersey, on December 31, 1918, and who has not been heard from since. Any information should be sent to Matoaka Post No. 86, or to Mrs. C. L. Donley, Glatto, Mercer County, West Virginia.

Mrs. Edna Van Fleet, 349 South River street, Aurora, Ill., has asked the American Legion to assist her in locating her husband, Arthur Van Fleet, formerly a member of the Fourth H. M. O. R. S. He was last heard from in Milwaukee, Wis.

Anyone having information relative to the whereabouts of Bergen W. Harmon, who escaped from the Neuro-psychiatric hospital at Mendota, Wis., about January 2, is requested to communicate with J. B. Harmon at 520 Seventh avenue East, Ashland, Wis. Bergen W. Harmon is twenty-six years old; about five feet six inches in height; weight about 140 pounds; has light complexion and light hair. He served with the Three Hundred and Eighteenth Engineers, Medical detachment.

Joseph Toahey, 448 Minerva street, Indianapolis, Ind., is trying to locate Private Alick Burke, who enlisted in the Canadian army at Calgary on November 2, 1917. He served in England and France and was discharged at Calgary on May 26, 1919. Burke was born in County Galway, Ireland, March 17, 1891. Address given by him at date of discharge was Spokane, Wash., or Richelieu hotel, Ottawa, Ontario.

Can anyone furnish information as to the present whereabouts of George C. Bussing; age thirty-four; height six feet; weight, 175 pounds; dark brown and gray mixed hair; formerly a major in the One Hundred and Fifty-seventh Depot Brigade and instructor of the General Officers' Training school, Camp Lee, Virginia? Communicate with the National Rehabilitation committee of the American Legion, Indianapolis, Ind.

Mr. Henry Church, of Garner, was in town last Thursday on business.

Mrs. Elmer Wiesbrod returned to Fenton. Friday.

WALL PAPER—18c per double roll and up, at Kahrs Drug Store. 2c

W. H. Trafford, of Belmond, was a visitor here Monday.

F. A. Arnold went to Mason City Monday morning on business.

Mr. Clare Schultz, of Belmond was a visitor in our city Saturday.

Attornep "Bill" Ramsay, of Garner was here on business Friday.

Mrs. John Bachman's mother is here visiting her.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS

who expect to move soon. Kindly send us your present address, your new address and the date you make the change soe w can keep the paper coming without your missing a single copy.

THE KLEMME TIMES,
Klemme, Iowa.

Please change my address as follows:

My old address is—

Name .....

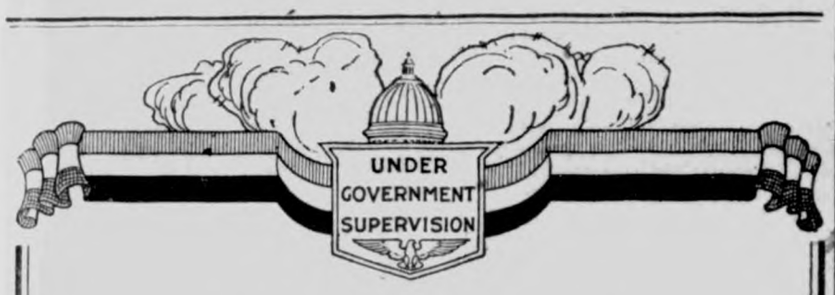
Town ..... State ..... R.F.D....

My new address will be—

Town ..... Sta e ..... R.F.D....

Make change.....
(Give Date.)

Fill out the blank and mail at once to The Klemme Times



The Value of Thrift

Thrift means more than the mere accumulation of money. It means saving money for a comfortable and independent future; it means preparedness for meeting emergencies and embracing opportunities; it means the cultivation of habits that will bring success.

Use a savings account at the First National Bank as a basis and acquire the thrift habit. The value of thrift will become more evident as it enables you to plan with certainty for the fullfillment of your desires. Begin at once!

First National Bank

"The Bank for Everybody'.'

One Out of Every Three Persons Has a Saving Account

The savings accounts in the United States total nearly twenty billion dollars.

The average balance of these accounts is about six hundred dollars.

One out of three persons are thus prepared for sudden emergency and sudden opportunity.

You are one of the three. Which one?

We cordially invite new savings accounts.

5% Interest Paid On Time Deposits

State Savings Bank

Klemme Iowa

News of Klemme and Vicinity

L C. Smith typewriter for sale. Call at Times Office. adv

Mrs. Martha Brass from Goodell, was a Klemme visitor Friday.

Wm. Voiles, of Belmond, was a business visitor here Tuesday.

Mrs. Andrew Hansen, of Kanawha, was shopping here Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth were up from Goodell Saturday, visiting.

Look over the bg sale ad of U. G. Smid in this issue of the Times.

Mrs. J. L. Hesselhuus was a Mason City visitor yesterday.

Mrs. Clarence Bachman was a visitor at Mason City yesterday.

Lew Sampson went to Garner yesterday afternoon on business.

Mr. Charlie Luick went to Clear Lake on business Tuesday.

George Hall, of Charles City, was here on business Tuesday.

Mrs. Ben Coobs was on the sick list a couple of days the past week a victim of grippe.

Mrs. W. F. Missman returned from the Hampton Hospital Monday and is much improved in health.

ALABASTINE—VVarnish Stains, and Floor Paints, at Kahrs Drug Store. adv-2c

Mrs. Avery from Goodell was in this city last Thursday afternoon on a shopping tour.

Give Poultry Kura to Poultry for Roup, Cholera, and other diseases. Guaranteed. Kahrs Drug Store. 2c

Mrs. J. E. Kelley was a visitor at Garner between trains last week on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Andy Peterson from Goodell were visitors in our city last Friday.

Mrs. Ben Neiman and daughter, and Mrs. Lambert went to Steamboat, Iowa, last Friday for a visit.

Rev. Wm. Koerner came down from St. Paul, being called here by the dath of his mothr.

Mrs. Kudej and children returned from Iowa Falls Saturday whre she had been visiting her parents.

Mr. W. C. Gast and daughter, Miss Myrtle, of Garner, were visiting in Klemme Saturday.

Mrs. Gee returned to Goodell Monday after visiting her daughter, Mrs. C. M. Gram, the past week.

Mrs. R. A Jorgenson and son, "Buster." were visiting with friends at Garner yesterday afternoon

Miss Mable Smith went to Belmond Tuesday evening for a visit with friends, returning Wednesday.

Harry Buss has been absent from the garage the past few days on account of the grippe.

Eggs for hatching. Choice Rhode Island Red Eggs, 60c. per setting. At Mrs. John Jostens. Klemme, Ia.

Mrs. Hod Lawhorn, of Garner, was an over Sunday visitor with rela tives here.

Mrs. Henry Maitland, Jr., of Belmond, was an over Sunday visitor with Klemme friends.

Mrs. Gilbert Schaper is now working as clerk in Kluckhohn's store. She is taking the place of Geneve Schuldt, who has resigned.

Mrs. Luverne Smith went to Belmond Friday and remained until the following day visiting with her mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Franselow of Dows, Iowa. were here visiting with Paul Stille and family last week on Thursday.

Charlie Schmidt and family expect to leave the fore part of the week for Sac City, where they will make thir home in the future.

Mike Haskins and son, Webb. of Garner, were in town last Thursday and Friday doing some electrical work for the Iowa Falls Company.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Elder and daughter, Reva, went to Belmond last Friday and remained until the following day visiting with friends.

Dr. and Mrs. R. M. Thomas's little baby girl is much improved this week and is on the road to recovery. She was quite ill last week.

Miss Florence Behringer has been on the list of grippe victims the past week and was unable to attend to her school duties.

Mrs. Henry Church came down from Garner Saturday and stayed until yesterday afternoon visiting with her daughter, Mrs. Tries.

Holly Lewis has been quite sick at his home at asMon City the past few days, but we are glad to report that he is now much better.

Mrs. Brouwer, of Minnesota is in this vicinity visiting with old friends and relatves. She is a sister of Joe, Freida, and August Schuldt.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lewis went to Sheffield, Iowa. Monday to attend the wedding of a cousin. They returned to Klemme last vning.

The Ladies Aid Society of the M. E. Church meets this afternoon in the bank basement. Supper will be served to the members and their families at 5:30.

NOTICE—We ask that all patrons of this co-operative concern to please settle accounts at least twice a year —or oftener. Klemme Co-Operative Grain Company. adv

Frank Wenck took Mr. and Mrs. Lew Lewis to Mason City yesterday in his car. They went over to see Holly who was sick, but is now a great deal better.

Mr. and Mrs. Levi Klotzbach's little baby has been seriously ill the past week, but at this writing we are glad to report that the little one seems to be gradually improving.

There has been some moving about in Klemme this week, so get acquainted with your new neighbors. We published a complete list of all moving a couple of weeks ago.

Mrs. C. M. Gram was quite sick the past week, and her mother, Mrs. Gee from Goodell was here taking care of her. She is again able to be up around the house and is feeling much better.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Keraus spent from Mondap until Wednesday evening at Clear Lake. fixing up their cottage and getting it ready for the summer renters. They have two cottages near the site of the old Oaks Hotel.

There was a partial eclipse of the moon last Friday night beginning at abaut nine o'clock and lasting until about ten fifteen o'clock. We were listening in on the radio when it was announced by the Detroit News that an eclipse was in progress. It was very clear.

Chris Jacobs drove down from Garner last Saturday. Along toward evening Chris started home in the blizzard and got stalled a couple of miles out when the coils in his car became wet. He phoned for his son Ed. to come and get him, so Ed took him on to Garner, but coming back Ed got stalled in a big snow drift just outside of town and had to leav his car and walk in. There were a lot of cars stalled all over that could not get through the blizzard.

Postmaster J. W. Waterman is all puffed up again. He has boug new Jewett inclosed car. He to Mason City Friday morning swapped his Buick for it. The report we heard was that our p master had landed in the coo Mason City, but later we learne was a coupe, just merely a mi derstanding, so we felt better a the safety of our local stamp lic We must say that John looks riding back of glass and he ha real joy-wagon now.

Office Phone 149 J. Residence Phone 149 L.

Dr. E. H. Phillips

Osteopathic Physician
GARNER, IOWA.

Diagnosis and Treatment of Diseases.
Surgical and Obstetrical cases cared for.
"Consult an Osteopath"

Co-Operation Will Win
Stay With It

Buy and sell CO-OPERATIVELY thu the KLEMME CO-OPERATIVE GRAIN CO., of KLEMME, IOWA. If you are a member of our company and we make any profit on the business you do with us during the year we will return that profit in the form of patronage dividends at the end of our fiscal year July 1st.

The car situation has been very bad this year and we have not been able to give the farmers the service that we would like to have given them. The Railroad has cut down the volume of our grain this year. Last year when cars were plentiful KLEMME market served a larger territory than ever before. It is poven time and again that CO-OPERATIVE ELEVATORS keep a better market for grain.

FLOUR

We are selling a lot of MADE-RITE FLOUR at $2.00 per sack. Those who are using it say it is fine flour and they always come back for more. Tryi t next time.

MILL FEEDS

LOW GRADE FLOUR (Red Dog) per cwt.	$2.25
MIDDLINGS per cwt.	$2.00
BRAN, per cwt.	$1.50

We carry a good stock of merchandise in the different lines we handle, buy our stock in car load lots and give our trade the benefit of car load prices. You will find our stock in good condition and well taken care of. We have the room and always carry a good stock.

Watch our prices on COAL, TWINE, SALT, GRASS SEEDS, Etc. Orders for seed now being taken for this spring delivery. Medium Red Clover, Timothy, Alsike Clover, Alfalfa, Soy Beans, Sweet Clover, Blue Grass, Rape, Millet, and White Clover. Get your order in early and get the benefit of a good buy. We handle NORTHRUP KING'S BEST GRADE OF SEEDS. The highest priced seed on the market—Also the BEST.

Klemme
Co-Operative Grain Co.

Klemme, Iowa. Phone 16

STILLE'S IMPLEMENT NEWS

VOLUME 1. Thursday, March 8, 1923 NUMBER 22.

Buying quality McCormick-Deering and John Deere Machines is investing—not spending money.

If you are interested in a good manure spreader come in and look over the one we have on the floor. We have a machine that is built to last, to work and give satisfaction. and at a price that is right. There are spreaders in this vicinity of this make that have been in active service a dozen years, and they are good for years to come. Look this one over, then ask the man that has one and we are sure you will buy. You are not spending money when you buy one of these spreadrs, you are investing. Ask us.

The man who is absolutely certain he can't be wrong about anything isn't married.

In the near future we expect to put on a sale of farm machinery with a party who is going to put on a sale of live stock. This will be your opportunity to buy new machines for your farm work and horses to pull it with, engines to run it with, and cows to pay for it with. Watch for the bills.

YOU'RE ALWAYS WELCOME

It is always open house at our store. Whenever you are in town drop in for a talk. You will no doubt find some of your neighbors here and chances are you will pick up some information that will help you with your farming. Whenever you have time to spare come in and look over our complete line of farm equipment, especially spring lines such as endgate seeders. John Deere 999, and International No. 8 Corn Planters, and various cultivators. We can show you the latest thing in these machines and explain the newest and best labor saving devices. We are the exclusive agents for the complete lines of International and John Dere Farm Implements. We are sure you can find the machines or tools you want in these complete lines.

WHY NOT BUY THE BEST

One "Big Ball" of McCormick Twine contains 66 2-3 per cent more twine than one of the old style small balls. In using one bale of the "Big Ball" twine, containing six balls, it is only necessary to refill the twine can three times, as against five times times with the old style bale of ten balls. This saves time during the busy harvest season. "Big Ball" McCormick Twine is made of the highest grade fibres, carefully selected, under constant and rigid inspection, resulting in a smooth even twine of uniform length and strength Do not experiment with an inferior twine which is weak and uneven, and sometimes short the required length. Don't try to save a cent in buying twine, and lose a dollar in using it. Buy the original "Big Ball" McCormick Twine, the kind you can always rely upon.

The modern motto; "Say it with hootch." (The flowers come lattr.) own fodder.

It's a Wise Cow that knows it's

THE KLEMME TIMES

Twenty-seventh Year—Number 27. | Klemme, Iowa, Thursday Afternoon, March 15, 1923. | $1.50 In Advance—$2.00 Outside of County

WELLEMEYER AND KLUCKHOHN ELECTED SCHOOL DIRECTORS

ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY VOTERS TURNED OUT TO THE ELECTION

The Race Was Close For Director For Each Of The Two Terms

GRUETZMACHER GOES ON AGAIN

Monday, March 12th, school election day, was not a very favorable day as to the weather and the full quoto of voters did not turn out to cast their votes on directors and for school treasurer. However, there were one hundred and fifty ballots cast, the greater part of which were cast by the men. The women did not turn out very strong, perhaps it being wash day had some effect on keeping the ladies at home, as well as the muddy streets.

The election was close for the directors; Wellemeyer winning over John Day by only thirteen votes, for the three year term. Frank Kluckhohn won over R. A. Jorgenson by twelve votes to fill the vacancy for a one year term. John Gruetzmacher was again put in for treasurer of the district. He had no opposition on the ticket.

Following is the way the votes were cast:

Director Three Year Term—

	Men	Women	Total
Wellemeyer	53	25	78
John Day	48	17	65

Director For One Year Term—

	Men	Women	Total
R. A. Jorgenson	42	23	65
F. Kluckhohn	59	18	77

For Treasurer—

	Men	Women	Total
Gruetzmacher	96	25	121

Total number ballots cast—150.

Scattered Votes—Director for 3 year term, Geo. Ulrich 1 vote.

For Treasurer—C. G. Waterman 2 votes; John Waterman 1 vote, and F. J. Wenck 1 vote.

A. Wellemeyer was re-elected to succeed himself. He has been a director of the schools here for a long number of years, and is a good man on the board. He is always working for the best interests of the school. Mr. Wellemeyer is also a member of the Hancock County Board of Education.

Frank Kluckhohn was elected to complete the term caused by the resignature of R. W. Elder and which position on the board had been temporarily filled by R. A. Jorgenson. Frank will undoubtedly make an excellent director as h should be quite interested in school affairs, having children in school and also being a taxpayer, and a hustling business man.

John Gruetzmacher had no opposition for treasurer. John again gets the office and will handle the school funds accurately and carefuly as he has done in the past years.

Altogether, we beleive Klemme has a good bunch of level headed men on the school board who will work for the best interests in education as well as being on the lookout for the interests of the taxpayers of Klemme.

DEBT TERMS ARE FAIR

England and the United States have come to terms over the English war debt. Incidentally it may be remarked that the terms approved are the terms set by this country. and that when assurance reached the English cabinet that these terms were America's last word regarding the war debt there was no furthur protest but quick action on the part of the English. It is only shrewd business for foreign nations to drive as good as bargain as possible in their own behalf, and the English strove for the most lenient terms; America set up what appeared to her a fair bargain, and England by her ready acceptance when she found no furthur concessions were to be forthcoming admitted the fairness of the American terms.—Fairmona West Virginian.

Most people admit they like cats and dogs, and a man feels complimented if he's called a sly dog, but no women feels the same way if shes called a sly cat.

There never seem to be any tacks on the road to destruction

NEWS NUBBINS

"The time has come," the Walrus said, "to talk of many things—of shoes and ships anl sealing wax; of cabbages and kings."

The Odd Fellows at Mason City have awarded a contract for a $100-000 addition to their Odd Fellow's Old Folk's Home.

Thousands of Iowa women are required to file an income tax return and pay a tax on their neet income for the year 1922.

An appropriation of $12,00 to buy land for the state highway commission at Ames has been asked by Rep. Donhowe of Story county in the Iowa House.

Governor Kendall has announced the appointment of M. H. Kepler of Northwood, as judge of the twelfth judicial district and Robert H. Munger of Sioux City, as judge of the fourth judicial district.

Henry J. Wieneke, aged 85, civil war veteran. and believed to be the last Johnson county survivor of the Indian wars which followd the struggle between the north and the south died at his home recently.

Electric light and power companies were added to the list of public utilities that the 40th general assembly may put under the supervision of boards of supervisors and the state railroad commission.

Twenty-four thousand and sixty-five persons died in Iowa last year. According to Dr. Rodney Fagan, secretary of the state board of health. Pneumonia was the cause of more than 10 per cent of this number of 2,582 deaths.

G. H. Mackrill of Griswood said: "I read in The Register of J. E. James breaking groud near Lewis in 1888. I can beat that. I still live on the farm that I broke out in 1873 and 1874 and have the rings, chain and staple for the yoke and clevis for the plow.

Soil survey bulletins form Iowa State College at Ames showing the results of crop experiments of Cedar county soil and containg other valuabl data have been received by the county agent at Tipton and are in high demand. More and more farmers are becoming interested in the scientific side of their profession.

MARNE GETS LIGHT

Marne, Iowa, March 12. Marne is enjoying its first electric light service, transmission line connections having been completed with the Iowa Service Co. at Red Oak. The town voted $14,000 bonds to establish electric service and gave the Iowa Service Company a franchise. It has twenty four hour service.

IOWA CAPITOL BUILDING NOTED FOR ART

An artist who beheld Iowa's state house and grounds for the first time contributed the following description; The Capitol building is surrounded by 80 acres of beautiful grounds, with historic monuments. he interior finish contains twenty different kinds of marble. The painting and statuary are among the st in America. It cost over ,000,000; the gold leaf in the ome cost $3,500. The six "Dieman Mosaics" in the grand stairway, cated over the Blashfield painting e the finest in America. "Westard," the painting by Edwin Howland Blasfield, at the head of the grand stairway is a symbolic presentation of the Pioneers led by the Spirit of Civilization and Enlightenment to the conquest of he Grea Wes.

In spite of all his inner belief that he belongs to the superior sex, every man has a sneaking idea that every girl is too good to marry any man.

Us For Him

Give me the every-day sort of a man.
The feller who laughs when he is glad.
Give me the open-faced, big-hearted man,
The fellow who weeps when he is sad.

Give me the man who says what he thinks,
The feller whose word is pure as gold;
Give me the man who can always be found,
The feller who's not bought and sold.

Give me the man who stands up to the rack,
The feller whose spirit never bends;
Give me the man who is there with the goods,
The feller who stands by his friends.

—Selected.

HOW BIG IS THE UNITED STATES DEBT

Is Much Less Now Than In 1919

Furthur reductions in the gross debt of the United States is noted in a statement of the Treasury, showing the condition of the government finances as of February28, 1923. Total gross debt on the day amounted to $22,715,338,730, as compared with $23,478,667,789 a year ago and $26,596,701,648 on August 31, 1919 when the war debt was at its peak.

COLLECTING REPARATIONS IS TOPIC OF THE DAY

Great Britain Getting Settlements From The Germans

While the United States is in conference with the allies in Paris, trying to find a way to collect $256.-000,000 due for the upkeep of the American forces in Germany, Great Britain is receiving from Berlin a more nearly complete payment of her reparations claims than she ever has before enjoyed. This is the curious situation marking the reparations deadlock between France and Belgium on one hand, and Germany on the other. Since the reparations commission, January 27, declared the German government willfully in default on its treaty obligations, the only power to which the Cuno goverment has paid the amounts stipulated in London schedule of payments is Great Britain.

U. S. QUITTING SEA TRADE

Competition Too Strong For Private Owned American Ships

The competition of the open seas has driven so many privately-owned American ships into the coastal trade that the Shipping board's bureau of research characterized the increased coastal movement of cargoes as "the most marked development in the employment of ships under the United States flag during the past year."

"The vessels under private ownership," said a report by the bureau, "have practically abandoned the hopeless task of competing with the more cheaply operated foreign fleets. and have turned to the protected traffic of our coastal waters, where the basis of operation cost is equal, and the opportunity is presented of making a profit through increased efficiency in fair competition."

FORMER HEAD HUNTERS

But Now They Are Useful Councilors

Army camps in the Philippines are turning back into the non-Christian communinties men trained for the ways of civilizatio and "bringing about a condition of perfect peace and order among these former headhunters," according to a letter from Governor General Wood, tansmitted to the War Department by Major General Read, commanding the island troops. The native ex-soldiers Generol Wood said, were becoming Presidents. or .Councilmen of the Municipal districts.

CONNECT SUPER-POWER SYSTEMS

Boone, Iowa, March 12.—The two extensive transmission line systems of the Iowa Railroad & Light Company will be connected this year by a 33,000 volt line between Boone and Nevada. This will give the company a continous connection between its lines from Cedar Rapids directly west across eight counties with branches extending north and south. It will connect up the generating stations at Cedar Rapids. Boone and Perry and the other cities.

Material for immediate ship etat Material for the extension has been ordered for immediate shipment and work will be started on its arrival. This connection will give auxiliary service on this big Iowa super-power system, insuring uninterrupted service. Over 200 towns and scores of farm lines are served from this system.

The distance between Boone and Navada is 24 miles. The new line will be of steel pole construction.

DUMB DAN

He's so stupid he thinks—that the Woolworth Building is a book of many stories.
that Marshall Field was a general.
that Avenue "S" has many danger curves.
that air-brakes are part of a flying machine.
that the Farm Bloc is an overgrown city square.
that Easter is an annua l poultry show.
—and that Lent is a European loan.

There is a big difference between doing your best and saying you are doing your bst.

TWO TICKETS NOMINATED FOR TOWN ELECTION

YEAR 1922 WAS GENERALLY WARMER THAN AVERAGE

The year 1922 was the sixth consecutive year with temperatures generally above normal east of the Rocky Mountains, except that 1920 was slightly cooler than normal in the west Gulf districts. The annual means ranged from 1 degree to 3 degrees above normal in all sections east of the Rocky Mountains, but west of the mountains they were slightly below normal in most districts.

The first three months of the year were abnormally cold in the more western States, and February was especially cold in the Northwest, where the monthly means ranged from 9 degrees to 15 degrees below normal. March, April, May and June were persistently warm from the Mississippi Valley eastward, altho temperatures, as a rule, were only slightly above normal in the Gulf districts. Unusually warm weather for the season was experienced during March in the Central-Northern States and in May form the Ohio and middle Mississippi Valleys northward. June was uniformly warmer than the average, except at a few points in the Northwest. July was the only warm-season month, with temperatures below normal in most sections of the country, although August was unseasonably cool in the middle and south Atlantic areas. September and October were warmer than normal througout the country, except in a very few limited sections, principally in the South and far West. November was uniformly cool west of the Rocky Mountains, and the average December temperature was below normal in the more northern States from the Atlantic to the Pacific Oceans. Otherwise these months were warmer than the seasonal average.

While the monthly mean temperatures ran quite uniformly above normal throughout the year in most sections, maximum temperatures were not unusually high at any time and no prolonged hot spells were experienced. No previous high records were broken in any section of the country.

TIRE FACTORY TO START AT KANAWHA SOON

Local Kanawha Man Will Manufacture Cord Tires

J. G. MacKellar, proprietor of the MacKellar Produce House, informs us that he will soon have his tire factory in full swing. The machinery is expected to arrive any day and when it does the plant will begin operations at once.

Mr. MacKellar will make a cord tire equal to any and with none superior. An expert tire maker will be on hand, anxious to demonstrate to the people of Kanawha and vicinity that "The MacKellar Cord" is indeed all and more than Mr. MacKellar claims for it.—Kanawha Reporter.

HOW MANY DUST PARTICLES IN THE AIR WE BREATH?

In connection with the solar radiation work of the Weather Bureau, United States Department of Agriculture, a daily count is now being made of the number of dust particles in the atmosphere at Washington. To make the count, the air presure within the dust counter is suddenly decreased, causing a line of dust to be precipitated on glass, where the particles are counted with a microscope having a magnification of 1.000 diameters. On quiet mornings as many as 3,000 dust particles per cubic centimeter have been counted, but on clear mornings following prcipitation the number drops to 150. Most of the particles appear to be extremely fine minerals or organic matter from the earth's surface, although some unconsumed carbon from smoke, gypsum, and calcite from building operations, and diatomaceous material have been observed. Undoubtedly there are many particles which, while large enough to act as nuclei for condensation, are too small to be seen through a microscope with a magnifying power of 1.000 diameters.

FIRST CAUCUS HELD THURSDAY NIGHT AND SECOND CAUCUS FRIDAY

Two Complete Tickets Were Put Up For Mayor And Council; Good Men To Run

FRANK VS. FRANK FOR MAYOR

As announced in the Times last week a caucus would be held on Thursday evening at the City Hall. This caucus represented the "Citizens Party."

By motion P. M. Greisemer and H. A. Jorgenson acted as Chairman and Secretary of the meeting.

On the first informal ballot for mayor Frank Wenck received 14 ballots and Frank Gruetzmacher 13. On the second ballot Frank Wenck was nominated by a vote of 22 and Gruetzmacher received 21.

On the first informal ballot for picking five councilmen there were about fifty names listed, and of this number 16 men were selected to run on the formal ballot the outcome being that Joe Johnson with 32 votes, Art Gimer 26, Geo. Ulrich 25, Wm. Smith 28 and C. W. Wiles 17, were nominated as councilmen. C. W. Wiles withdrew and his vacancy was then filled by motion by Wm. Bachman as being next highest with 16 votes.

For Treasurer C. G. Waterman was nominated.

For Assessor Louis Sampson was nominated.

Second Caucus Held Friday Night; Peoples Party

In order that the election might be interesting another ticket was needed in he field, and so the followers of the "Peoples Party" held a caucus at the City Hall the following evening, Friday night.

By motion A. Wellemeyer was appointed Chairman of the meeting and A. G. Koerner, secretary.

This caucus was made more interesting than the first one as a large number of women attended in a body to take part in the nominating and voting went with a snap and a bang as the ladies had centered on a ticket and stuck to it and did not fool away any ballots on impossible candidates.

This caucus was practically unanimous in nominating Frank Gruetzmacher to head their ticket as candidate for mayor.

For councilmen this caucus put up the following men and the names are given with the result of votes on the second ballot which nominated them: Valentine Josten 41; M. O. Barr 35; Paul Grange 48; Ed. Jacobs 43; C. A. Larsen 28. The rest of the ballots were scattered among a large number of men.

This caucus endorsed the candidates for Treasurer and Assessor on the Citizens Ticket.

A councilmen will have to be named by the chairman and secretary to fill a vacancy as Ed. Jacobs has withdrawn his name from the ticket. Ed. states that he feels that he would not have time to devote to council work should he be elected as he has almost more work than he can attend to now. Ed. would make a good member of the council and we are sure he would be elected if he chose to enter the race. Up to this time we have not learned who will be appointed to take his place on the ballot.

The election for town officers will be held on Monday, March 26th.

A sample ballot will be published in the Times next week showing a corrected list of candidates for the various offices.

Revenge

"Now I've had my revenge." said the shoe-shop proprietor to his friend, as a customer left.

"Revenge? How so?"

"Well, the young lady who just went out is a telephone operator. I gave her the wrong number."

Sometimes the star-eyed goddess turns out to be the star-eyed devil.

FALLS 504 FEET OFF MONUMENT

Young Man Hurls Himself From Top of Washington Memorial Shaft.

EVERY BONE IN BODY BROKEN

Force of the Wind Tears Shoes From His Feet—Was Grandson of Gen. William Birney Civil War Officer.

Washington, March 10.—Albert Birney Seip hurled himself from a window at the top of the Washington monument and plunged 504 feet to his death on the stone flagging below. Every bone in his body was broken, and his shoes were torn from his feet by the force of the wind as he fell at an estimated speed of 120 miles an hour.

Scientists estimated that 5.6 seconds were consumed between the time Seip left the window ledge and the time he smashed into the flagging. The force at which he struck the pavement was estimated at 300,000 foot pounds, or about 150 foot tons. This was explained as a force capable of raising a 150-ton weight one foot in the air.

Seip, who lived with his mother at 1694 Lanier place, was twenty-five years old. Neighbors said he had been in a Philadelphia sanitarium, returning recently. His mother identified the shattered body at the morgue. He was a grandson of Gen. William Birney, a distinguished officer during the Civil war.

Seip must have walked up the long flight of stairs, for C. H. F. Reintzell, the guard on duty at the top landing, did not know of the tragedy until he received a telephone message. Officials are certain Seip committed suicide, as the ledge of the window from which he fell is four feet from the floor.

The falling body of the man struck the sidewalk only a short distance from Thomas S. Searles, Wilmington, Del.

"I was standing near the curb around the monument," he said, "when suddenly I heard a noise almost like an airplane motor. I looked up and saw what looked like a bundle sliding down the almost perpendicular side of the monument.

"The body was about 200 feet from the ground. I jumped back and there was a loud thud as the body struck the sidewalk. Then there were two sharp reports as the man's shoes struck the cement.

"The man's coat apparently was bellowed out as he fell and caused the sound like an airplane motor."

INCREASE IN RAIL EARNINGS

Class 1 Carriers Show Net Operating Income of $60,654,700 in January.

New York, March 9.—Reports just filed with the interstate commerce commission show that the class 1 railroads of the United States in January had a net railway operating income of $60,654,700, representing a return on an annual basis of 5.54 per cent on their tentative valuation. In January last year the net operating income amounted to $29,486,000, equivalent to an annual return of 2.75 per cent.

FRENCH SEIZE MORE TOWNS

Latest Seizure Includes Wittenfuerth, Gummersbach and Mulheim, Seat of Stinnes Interests.

Essen, March 8.—French troops have occupied three more towns, including Mulheim, the seat of the Stinnes interests. The other cities are Wittenfuerth and Gummersbach, which are south of Elberfeld. Because German railway men refused to help move railway material, the French have occupied the railway station and tracks at Kehl.

FRENCH TAKE DORTMUND CITY

Invaders Expel Civil Authorities and Increase Forces—Aim to Confiscate Coal.

Berlin, March 9.—The French increased their forces in Dortmund, occupying the railway station and the city hall and disarming the police. Officials of the town were expelled. Preparations are being made to confiscate coal and railroad material.

Hughes to Stump for Court.

Washington, March 7.—Secretary of State Hughes may deliver one or more speeches during the congressional recess, explaining the relationship of the United States to the court of international justice of the League of Nations.

Drys Win in Wisconsin.

Madison, Wis., March 10.—The house killed the Mark bill to remove regulation of saloons from the jurisdiction of the state prohibition department and place it exclusively in the hands of the cities.

Isadora Not U. S. Citizen.

Washington, March 10.—Isadora Duncan, who says she does not like the United States, is not an American citizen, the Department of Labor has decided. She lost her citizenship through her marriage to a Russian.

JOHN D. NAGLE

John D. Nagle, undersheriff of San Francisco, was nominated by the President as immigration commissioner of San Francisco to succeed Edward White, ousted by the Harding administration.

HALT BAVARIA COUP

Fifteen Men Are Seized in Munich Revolt.

Berlin Government Authorities Declare Bavarians Sought to Set Up Monarchial Regime.

Berlin, March 8.—The Bavarian police are investigating the alleged activities of M. Allize, now French minister to Switzerland, in connection with a proposed monarchistic coup, which was broken up by the arrest of fifteen leaders. M. Allize is reported to have been connected with Dr. Kuhles, prominent in the Bavarian separatist movement, who killed himself soon after his arrest.

Details of the conspiracy as revealed here show the plotters planned to place former Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria on a Bavarian-Austrian throne. This move, it was hoped, would lead to a monarchistic revolution throughout Germany.

Dr. Kuhles, who was food dictator-elect of the proposed monarchy, was the son-in-law of Count Bothmer, erstwhile president of the Bavarian royalist party. Dr. George Fuchs, director of the Munich art theater, was chosen as minister president. Hugo Machhaus, director of the orchestra of the Munich opera, also was among those arrested.

Dr. Kuhles was one of the leaders of Bavarian society and he was well known throughout the artistic world in Munich and Berlin. His suicide disclosures have placed the entire artistic colony under suspicion.

CAN'T AID RUHR CHILDREN

France Warns Denmark That Giving of Refuge Constitutes Violation of Neutrality.

Berlin, March 10.—The Social Democratic News agency announces that the Danish government has been notified by Premier Poincare that France views the admission of German children to Denmark for their health's sake as a violation of neutrality. Danish Socialists had announced that they would care for 1,000 children from the Ruhr district for three months. Now they have revised their plans so as to care for 10,000 children.

BRITAIN CUTS NAVY PLANS

Slashes $37,600,000 Out of Estimates for This Year's Building Program.

London, March 9.—The British navy estimates for 1923-24 show a reduction of more than £8,000,000 ($37,600,000) as compared with the present year, which is also a reduction of more than 33 1-3 per cent in two years. The estimates were prepared on the assumption that the Washington naval treaty will be ratified effectively by all the signatory powers.

VENEZUELA OIL STRIKE BIG

Bringing In of a 100,000-Barrel Well Stimulates United States-British Competition.

Washington, March 8.—The recent bringing in of one of the largest oil wells the world has ever known, with a daily production of more than 100,000 barrels, has stimulated interest in oil development in Venezuela, where a number of American and British companies are in competition to open up promising fields in which they have procured concessions.

American Negroes for the Ruhr.

New York, March 10.—Harry V. Dougherty, arriving on the steamship Majestic, announced that he had perfected plans to transport about 5,000 American negro miners to the Ruhr to work seized coal mines.

Battles Reported in Brazil.

Montevideo, Uruguay, March 10.—Several battles, in which many were killed or wounded, are reported to have taken place in Rio Grande Do Sul, a Brazilian province. All the border towns joined the rebel chief.

KING AND LABOR AT SAME TABLE

British Ruler and Queen Break Bread With Union Leaders.

UNIQUE IN BRITISH HISTORY

Laborites in Silken Breeches, Described as a Concession—There Was Also Present Mr. George Harvey, U. S. Ambassador.

London, March 9.—The king and queen for the first time in their lives broke bread with the labor members of parliament Thursday night in the home of one of their subjects. The occasion was a dinner given by Viscount and Lady Astor, at which their majesties met among others James Henry Thomas, general secretary of the National Union of Railway Men; John Robert Clynes, president of the National Union of General Workers and former labor leader in the house; Philip Snowden, and their wives.

Labor came in silken knee breeches, which was jocosely described as a concession, and there also were present those who wear the cherished garter—Balfour, Salisbury and Grey of Falloden.

The affair, unique in British social history, was arranged as much to permit the king and queen to meet in social intercourse with the laborites as to allow the laborites to come into social contact with their rulers. It was said that the king had made known his desire to meet the leaders of the labor party in such a manner.

Lady Astor, whose campaign for political honors was characterized by much banter, greeted the laborites when they appeared in knee breeches with joking demarks. She whispered "Pull up your stockings," in the ear of Mr. Thomas and even inquired of the Canadian high commissioner, Mr. Larken, if his stockings were on straight.

The American ambassador, George Harvey, escaped remarks on his black knickerbockers, because he has frequently appeared in them and has become a familiar figure in the customary court dress.

8 REBEL PRISONERS SLAIN

Made to Remove Trigger Barricades Connected With Mines in County Kerry.

Dublin, March 8.—National troops in County Kerry have replied swiftly to traps set for them by irregulars, such as Tuesday's, when three officers and two men were killed in a dump trap.

A party of troops were traveling on a road out of Tralee, when they found a barricade. Their suspicions were aroused and they went back to Tralee and brought out a party of irregular prisoners, setting them to work to remove the barricade. Almost immediately a trigger mine exploded, killing eight prisoners and wounding two officers and a sergeant.

W. K. VANDERBILT ESTATE

New Yorker, Who Died in Paris, Leaves a New Estate of $50,000,842.23.

New York, March 7.—William Kissam Vanderbilt, who died in France in 1920, left a net estate of $50,000,842.23, according to a report just filed with the surrogate at River Head by the state transfer tax appraiser.

The surrogate levied a tax of $1,934,571.73 upon the estate—the largest ever fixed in Suffolk county. Mr. Vanderbilt claimed Oakdale, Suffolk county, as his legal residence.

WON'T TAKE THE INITIATIVE

German Chancellor Cuno Refuses to Ask France to Negotiate for New Peace.

Berlin, March 7.—Chancellor Cuno notified the reichstag and the world at large that the German government had no intention of taking the initiative with regard to the inception of negotiations for a peaceful settlement of the problems produced by the French invasion of the Ruhr and the previously unoccupied parts of the Rhineland.

Man Spider Falls to Death.

New York, March 6.—With a Broadway crowd of 20,000 standing agape and movie machines clicking, Harry F. Young, "human fly," plunged ten stories to his death while attempting to scale the side of the Hotel Martinique. Among those who crowded Greeley square, watching the performer at his stunt, was his wife.

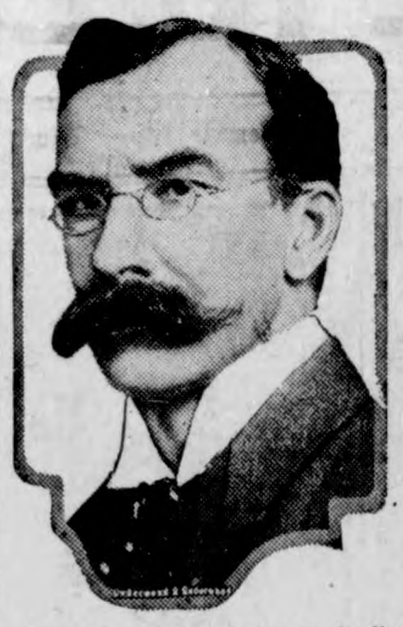
"Uncle Joe" at Home.

Danville, Ill., March 10.—"I am just plain Citizen Joe Cannon now, back in my home town, to spend the balance of my days with my folks," declared Uncle Joe Cannon upon his arrival home here.

Americans Protest Blockade.

Berlin, March 10.—The American embassies at Berlin and Paris are forwarding to Washington complaints made by American firms against the railroad tie-up in the Ruhr and the export tax imposed by the French.

SIR THEODORE COOK



American dog lovers are lending their support to a world-wide move to stamp out the worst of canine epizootic diseases—distemper—which has been started and is being led by Sir Theodore Cook, editor of the "London Field."

U. S. MARKET REPORT

Weekly Marketgram by Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Washington.—For the week ending March 8—GRAIN—Chicago cash market: No. 2 red winter wheat, $1.30; No. 2 hard winter wheat, $1.19; No. 2 mixed corn, 73c; No. 2 yellow corn, 74c; No. 3 white oats, 45c. Average farm prices: No. 2 mixed corn in central Iowa, 61c; No. 1 dark northern wheat in central North Dakota, $1.01; No. 2 hard winter wheat in central Kansas, $1.09.

HAY—No 1 timothy, $19.00 Cincinnati, $16.00 Minneapolis, $23.00 Chicago; No. 1 prairie, $15.50 Minneapolis, $17.50 St. Louis.

FEED—Bran, $28.25; middlings, $28.50; flour middlings, $30.00; rye middlings, $28.00 Minneapolis; 34 per cent linseed meal, $47.75 Minneapolis; gluten feed, $42.65 Chicago; white hominy feed, $29.50 St. Louis, $30.00 Chicago.

DAIRY PRODUCTS—Butter, 92 score, 47½c Chicago. Cheese prices at Wisconsin primary markets: Twins, 22¾c; daisies, 22½c; double daisies, 22¼c; young Americas, 24c; longhorns, 23¾c; square prints, 25¼c.

LIVE STOCK—Chicago prices: Hogs, top, $8.25; bulk of sales, $7.75@8.20; medium and good beef steers, $8.00@10.00; butcher cows and heifers, $4.25@8.95; feeder steers, $7.50@10.50; light and medium weight veal calves, $7.50@10.50; fat lambs, $13.00@15.25; feeding lambs, $13.50@15.30; yearlings, $9.75@13.50; fat ewes, $6.50@8.75.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES—Sacked round white potatoes, $1.45@1.85 in consuming markets, $1.35 f. o. b.; northern stock, 90c@$1.00 in Chicago, 75@82c f. o. b. Baldwin apples mostly $5.00@5.50; northwestern extra fancy winesaps, $2.25@2.75 per box. Yellow globe onions sold at $2.25@3.25 per 100-lb. sack in consuming markets. Florida pointed cabbage, $3.00@3.75 per 1½ bu. hamper; flat Dutch, $6.00 per bbl.; northern Danish type, $60.00@75.00.

BADGER SENATE SAVES GUARD

Only Four Members of the Body Vote to Abolish the State Soldiers.

Madison, Wis., March 8.—The Wisconsin senate by a vote of 26 to 4 beat the bill of Senator J. J. Hirsch, Socialist, to abolish the National Guard. The decisive vote was rolled up after Senator Timothy Burke of Green Bay, one of the old timers at the statehouse, had declared that since Civil war days no legislature of any state has been "skating so near sedition."

MAKING THE SLACKERS PAY

U. S. to Collect $430,000,000 in Back Taxes This Year, Says Mellon.

Washington, March 9.—The bureau of internal revenue has collected $300,000,000 in back taxes since last July 1, Secretary Mellon announced. During the remaining four months of the present fiscal year these collections are expected to average $32,000,000 a month, bringing the total for the year to about $430,000,000.

U. S. CREDIT FOR 1923 CROPS

Chairman Lobdell Announces Intermediate Banks Will Be Established Soon.

Washington, March 7.—The system of intermediate farm credits created by the new farm financing law will be set up in time to aid farmers in moving this year's crops, Charles E. Lobdell, chairman of the federal farm loan board, stated.

NEW MOVE GOES PAST RUHR

German Newspaper Says French Have Occupied Railway Station at Hamm.

Berlin, March 9.—The newspaper Germania reports the French have occupied the railway station at Hamm, an important junction of the main railroad between Essen and Berlin.

Ismet to Seek New Treaty.

Angora, March 9.—Foreign Minister Ismet Pasha has been empowered by the Turkish assembly to seek to negotiate a new treaty with the allies in place of the old treaty, some of whose provisions the assembly rejected.

Chilean Cabinet Resigns.

Santiago, March 9.—As the result of the senate's action in defeating a resolution of confidence in the government, the cabinet resigned. It was formed early in January with Francisco Garces Gana as premier.

LEGISLATIVE NEWS

Returned from ten days with the home folks, the members of the fortieth general assembly settled into the collar and began the final deliberations of the session with a pretty fair idea of what was expected of them in their counties. Widely varying reports of the way in which proposed highway and taxation legislation is received in the different counties and even in different portions of the same county were brought back by the legislators. In some counties, where meetings were held and votes taken on the separate subjects of legislation, the report of the joint legislative committee on taxation was heartily endorsed. In others it was condemned with equal vehemence. People at one meeting in northwestern Iowa voted better than two to one for acceptance of the Rockefeller foundation gift to the state university for a new medical college, and very few unfavorable reports on this project came in.

Appropriations will hold the floor for some time now, and the fights over them will be more or less bitter. The fact that there is a good deal of "trading stock" in the tentative schedule of askings prepared by A. O. Hauge, chairman of the house appropriations committee, makes the requests seem a great deal larger than they really are. But even with the parings off they will be large. An interesting story was told of a meeting held in one Iowa county to which all the nearby representatives and senators had been invited. Two men were "panning" the legislature for doing nothing except spend money. They were followed by a member of the house who has had considerable experience in the legislature. He began by saying that he quite agreed with his fellow speakers—that the legislature does spend money. "But that's exactly what the legislature is for," he came back. "Under the present law there is no other way to provide for the carrying on of the state's affairs. If you don't want the legislature to spend money, you'd better get it abolished. Then the Iowa government can close up shop." All of which is true. Legislatures meet every two years, and have a two-fold duty—making new laws and revising existing ones, and providing for carrying on state government through appropriations. Appropriations for the two-year period beginning July 1st of this year amounting to $38,803,837 are asked of the legislature according to the estimates prepared by Mr. Hauge. These estimates are nearly exact as the bills are all in, including the omnibus bill which carries the askings of the state departments for salaries and expense. They include however, sums asked in bills which may fail. There are three classes of appropriations, the standing limited appropriations for permanent state institutions, including those under the board of education and the board of control; the standing unlimited appropriations for state departments; and the special requests which are made in bills already presented or to be presented within a few days. The total estimated requests under these three divisions are: Standing limited appropriations, $6,764,055; standing unlimited, $10,240,175; special requests, $21,799,607; total, $38,803,837. This total is some $7,000,000 larger than the askings of two years ago. All state expenditures are not included in it, but the funds for the other outlays are raised separately from the state property levy, so should not be included in this list. The soldier bonus will be paid from the sale of bonds issued for that purpose and the primary road fund is made up of the motor vehicle license fees and the Iowa allotment of federal aid. All of the $38,000,000, if it were granted—as it will not be in all probability,—would not have to be raised by direct levy because an income from the various state institutions of nearly $12,000,000 for the next two years is estimated by Mr. Hauge. This would reduce the appropriations to around $13,000,000 per year and would mean a state levy of about 12½ mills. The state levy is 9.11 mills now. This will be increased to 11.11 mills by the soldier bonus, which would make the state levy, including the bonus levy 14½ mills. Some idea of the distribution of the amounts asked may be gathered from a list of the major appropriations. Iowa State college at Ames asks $4,085,200 each year for the next two years or a total of $8,171,000 for the biennium. This sum for the two years includes $5,911,000 for maintenance and support, $160,000 for a new armory to replace the one destroyed by fire, $1,600,000 for new buildings, and $500,000 for dormitories. For the State Teachers college $1,504,000 is asked; the school for the blind at Vinton requests $189,200 for the two years, and the school for the deaf at Council Bluffs requests $189,200. The State University of Iowa at Iowa City, asks $4,502,647 each year or $9,007,294 for the biennium.

Taking a cue from the closing days of the latest national senate, a minority group in the upper house of the Iowa legislature has engineered a successful filibuster against the Buser bill to require state audits of the fair board, the state board of education and the highway commission. Senator Stoddard of Woodbury tried successively to have the measure referred to the committee on educational institutions, the committee on departmental affairs, and the committee on appropriations.

.. Hawkeye .. State News

Interesting Items Gathered From all Parts of Iowa

Walter E. Dillon of Simpson college won the annual state contest the Collegiate Forensic association held at Pella recently.

Arnolds Park has recently passed an ordinance requiring a tuberculin test for all herds from which milk is sold to the people of Arnolds Park.

Suffering from melancholia due to ill health, Thomas Bair, aged 70, a resident of Jasper county since he was 5 years old, committed suicide.

Growth of Sioux City is reflected by a study of the increase in the revenue from the public utilities which has quadrupled during the last eleven years.

What is believed a record egg was laid by a Black Minorca belonging to Mrs. Fred Hacker near Dubuque. The egg is eight and one-half inches in circumference.

Suspected of being members of the bandit band which staged the $2,000,000 Denver mint robbery last December, a man and a woman were arrested in Des Moines recently.

I. N. Kramer, 90, one of the earliest settlers, who came to the state in a covered wagon with his father in 1839, died at his home in Marion recently of old age.

From the state report it is shown that the Ice Cave creamery of Decorah with a product of 7[illegible] pounds of butter last year was sixth in production in the state.

Salaries of pastors in the four Methodist conferences showed a steady increase, generally, throughout 1922, according to the results of a survey made public by the Northwestern Christian Advocate.

The amount of produce [illegible] handled in Lamoni is somewhat indicated by the fact that a fourth business of this kind is being opened by the General Supply company in connection with their general store.

The Tipton Produce Packing company of Tipton owned and operated by G. F. Craven, dealer in poultry, eggs, cream and hides, paid out to local patrons during the past year about $350,000, shipping [illegible] pounds of dressed poultry.

By increasing the strength of solution of formaldehyde used in the treatment of oats for smut two-thirds of the labor and time formerly required may be eliminated by the latest methods of the Iowa Experiment station.

One of the most modern and largest creameries in southeastern Iowa is being erected by H. S. Rhynsburger of the Rhynsburger's Produce plant at Oskaloosa, which is a beginning of the proposition to date in Mahaska county.

The fortieth general assembly did not enact any legislation that will injure the highway commission or set back road improvement in Iowa, in the opinion of the chairman of the commission, who with the other members, called on Governor Kendall recently.

Too much stress has been placed by public schools on information relating to production of crops and not enough on marketing of them, declared Prof. K. K. Rath, who will open a course in co-operative marketing at Iowa State Teachers' college at Cedar Falls in the spring.

An Ottumwan, has a number of interesting relics, among them a [illegible] water bottle over a hundred years old, and a piece of wood taken from Lincoln's cabin in Kentucky. Mr. Morgan's grandfather brought the article with him from North Carolina in 1826 to his new home in Tennessee.

In a recent lecture given at the State college before the Washington Township Farm bureau on the eradication of stock tuberculosis it was stated that in the packing houses of Iowa where inspection is maintained the presence of tubercular animals has increased from 1 to 1½ per cent in 1900 to over 20 per cent in 1922, and that at the present time the percentage of tubercular animals is increasing at the rate of approximately 1 per cent per year.

Miss Lily Viersen, teacher of the first grade in the Lincoln school of Pella, recently lost two days on account of illness. This would be remarkable except for the fact that it is the first and only time lost by illiness in 43 years of service. Miss Viersen is an accomplished musician and has found time after school hours and in vacations to start a class of Pella boys and girls in their musical education. Besides, she has gathered and practically raised to [illegible] manhood and womanhood, three different sets of children belonging to relatives.

Former service men in Iowa penitentiaries whose crimes are believed to have resulted from conditions brought on by gas, shell shock and other war experiences, have been receiving clemency at the hands of Governor Kendall.

The president of the Iowa state board of conservation, speaking to the Ames Kiwanis club, said that in the last fifty years the water level in the state had fallen 12 feet and that a very serious loss to agriculture would result if this level were permitted to fall much lower.

PROBATE OF WILL

CWA, ss.
nty.
WHOM IT MAY CON-

HEREBY NOTIFIED, rument of writing pur-
the last Will and Test-
ATHERINE ULRICH de-
May 6th, 1905, having filed, opened and read,
7th day of May, 1923
hearing proof of same
House in Garner. Iowa,
District Court of said
e Clerk of said Court;
0 o'clock A. M. of the mentioned, all persons
re hereby notified and ppear, and show cause, have, why said instru-
not be probated, and nd for the last Will and
f said deceased.
Garner, Iowa, March

) Clerk of District Court
E. ERWIN,

OFT-TOLD TALES

"I'll be detained at the office tonight."

'Please Remit".

"You are the dearest girl in the world."

"I'm going home to mother."

"Lend me ten."

"I can get twenty miles on a gal lon."

—Cincinnati Enquirer.

NOT A HEAVY BEARD

The son and heir, aged sixteen, had come home after his first experience at boarding school. One morning he rushed his into mother's room demanding to know what had been done with his razor.

Mother was not aware that he had any use for a razor, but, being a wise woman, she controlled her curiosity and hunted up tkhe missing article. "How often do you have to shave?" she inquired casually as she left the room.

"Oh, about once a month," the young hopeful answered, seriously.

Grease and Oil SPECIAL

lar ice		SPECIAL PRICE
Pail of	Axle Grease	$1.25
Pail of	Axle Grease	$1.00
Pail of	Axle Grease	$0.75
Can of	Dipolene	$1.19
Can of	Hard Oil	$0.75
Stick of	Belt Dressing	$0.29
Can of	Belt Dressing	$0.29
Can of	Neatsfoot Oil	$0.75
Gallon	Bulk Neatsfoot Oil	$0.55
1 gallon	Can of Harvester Oil	$0.70
5-in-1	Gun Oil	$0.09
Can of	French Auto Oil	$3.75
Gallon	Bulk Frenck Auto Oil	$0.65
Gallon	Tractor Oil	$0.65

We made a SPECIAL BUY on this Oil and Grease and will sell at the above prices ONLY WHILE THE SUPPLY LASTS.

Jacobs & Son

We Serve

FIRST CLASS MEALS and LUNCHES

Home Made Pies
Ice Cream and Soft Drinks
FRESH BREAD EVERY DAY

Candy Cigars Tobacco

The Crystal Cafe

Conrad Quandt, Prop. Klemme, Ia.

"A Good Cafe in a Good Town"

NATIONAL BANKS STATE BANKS are obably the last places you would go for Good Electric Service; for ideas on how to get plenty of Electric Light and Pwer. ur Banker should be the first man to see, because he knows t you and Your Towns cannot get Complete Electric Servicce less yourElectric Company can finance the Necessary Equipnt to supply it.

Your Banker can advise you concerning your Home Comny, and you will find by consulting him that the Electric Light d Power Business is Sound and Progressive.

Your Banker should have the Facts, so if you want a Good vestment, "Look up":-

IOWA FALLS ELECTRIC COMPANY
COMMON SHARES

Now Paying Dividends at the rate of 7% Annually. And ve your money work for you at Home.

Send for the Illustrated Booklet. IT'S FREE.

ddress

Securities Department

IOWA ELECTRIC COMPANY

15 South 2nd Street—2nd Floor. CEDAR RAPIDS, IA.

KICKIN' THE DORG AROUND

A Colyum O' Humor By the Office Divvil Hisself

Attention, Mr. Volstead

The other night I
Vent to ashow with a low Brow
Friend of mine and the Orchestra struck up
The "Little Brown Jug."
And he thought it was the National anthem and stood up,
The durned fool—
And so did I.

Ain't It The Truth?

"It pays to Advertise," said the salesman. "D'd you ever hear the story about the rooster who crowed? Well, that's the same one that's got his stature on top the barn now."

An Enterprising Burglar

The shadows lay thick beneath the tree, and where they were deepest a figure crouched.

Suddnly he heard a sound, a light footfall on the grass.

"That you, mate?" he whispered hoarsely.

"Yes," came the answer.

"What you doing with that dog?" he muttered as his burglar partner drew near.

"Why," answered his confederate. "there was nothing worth taking in the house, and it's bad luck to come away without anything. So I just pinched the watchdog and these burglar alarms!"

Down At Palm Beach

Whmere are you going my pretty maid?
I'm going forth to bathe, said she.
Where are you going, fresh young sir?
Me? I think I'll go fifth, said he.

LESSONS IN ETIQUETTE
..By Miss Vera Dence

A real gentlemen is always helpful and considerate to the weaker sex. When in the home of his best beloved, perchance his future mother-in -law has a coughing fit at the dinner table; he should quietly arise and with a manner full of respect and consideration, pound her on the back with his fist until her cough is relieved.

MINOR MUSINGS k

Even though you think life is an open book, you would much prefer that the book be open at certain pages rather than at others.

The petting that a lot of girls get before marriage is about all they will ever receive.

The man who used to drink a little wine for his stomach's sake," now drinks a little bootleg for the undertakers sake.

One of the best jokes is the belief which a young man has before marriage that afterward he is going to run his life just as he did before.

There is a good deal of kicking about women's playing card games to excess, but still it's better for them to play progressive bridge than progressive matrimony.

The man who says he is a nature lover may merely mean that he loves a small part of nature that is wrapped up in a few yards of chiffon.

The difference between thrift and extravegence is that between the man who drives the fliver and admits it's the best he can afford, and one who drives a big sedan and wont admit he can't afford it.

LEMONS FROM ITALY

The bulk of lemons entering into world trade are from Italy. Her exports in both 1920 and 1921 were approximately 4,000,000 boxes, this was about half the pre-war figure of 8,000,000 boxes, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture. Imports into the United Kingdom amounted to 1,000,000 boxes in 1921. as compared with 700,000 boxes in 1920 and 900,000 boxes in 1913. After the United Kingdom, Germany and the Netherlands are the heaviest importers of lemons.

RETURN FROM ILLINOIS TRIP OF THREE WEEKS

Drove Distance Of Eight Hundred Miles In Three Days Time

Mr. and Mrs. Garland Hoffman returned home after a three weeks visit in Illinois and Michigan. They visitd at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hoffman, formerly of this vicinity. They found the Hoffmans all well. Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman drove out there in three days, a distance of eight hundred miles. It took them the same number of days to return home.

News of Goodell And Vicinity

Mr. F. R. Chase is very sick this week.

Dr. Snearly, who has been ill with the grippe, is able to be out and attend to his patients.

Dr. Missman, of Klemme, was the professional caller in the vicinity.

Miss Hill returned to her home in Clarion for the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Hemingway, Mr. Martin Kearney and son drove to Williams Sunday.

Miss Clara Johnson of Godell was a week end visitor at the Jay Griggs home.

Sumner Trumbell's, who live near Klemme, were Goodell callers Sunday.

Little Carthland Buchanan has been quite sick this week.

Jay Grigs was a Klemme caller Tuesday.

There wil be an old time dance at the Star Theatre on St. Patrick's night, March 17th. All are cordially invited.

A trained nurse is expected Wednesday morning from Fort Dodge to care for Fred Chase, who is seriously ill.

Goodell High School Notes

Mamie Dieger was absent from school Tuesday.

Ethel Church is back to school again, after two weeks absence on account of illness.

Sociology and Civics classes intend to go to Garner and visit Court next week.

A good many Sophomores looked rather sleepy Friday morning, wonder why?

Election was held Monday and Dr. Geo. Snearly and Harm Rust were elected as directors.

Some very interesting talks in Literary Digest works were given last Friday by the Juniors and the Seniors.

About twenty-two class mates and friends surprised Edith Halfpop at her home on Thursday night, it being her 16th birthday. Games and dancing were enjoyed. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Halfpop.

PLANT LOTS OF SPUDS

Foreign Growers Said to Anticipate Market Better Than Americans

Seed potatoes are relatively cheap in price this spring and for that reason Iowa potato grower should plant larger fields, according to C. L. Flint of the Extension Service at Ames.

Mr. Fitch explains that in years when the seed is cheap the potato acreage should be increased, while in springs when seed potatoes are selling high the number of acres should be kept down. The low price of seed is ordinarilly followed by a relatively high market price in the fall. A high seed price means a low selling price.

"Foreigners are especially alert in this respect," says Mr. Fitch, "and fr that reason are seldom caught in the fall with a large crop of potatoes and a low market. American growers however, do not pay much attention to the matter of seed price and for this reason often go ahead and plant high pricd seed without apparent thought of what the market price may be in the fall."

The foreign born potato growers are conspicuously more careful about looking ahead. Mr. Fitch believes that native born Americans would do well to follow their lead and anticipate the market as nearly as possible.

CREAMERY HITS HIGH MARK

The Klemme Co-Operative Creamery had a big day Tuesday of this week. when 1200 gallons of cream was received in a single day. This amounts to 9,600 pounds of cream.

Last year the Creamery handled the biggest volume of business since its organization; and the make so far this year is averaging 30% over last year.

The make of butter for 1923 will reach over the Half Million Mark.

For the month of February the Creamery paid for butter fat 55c and 51c per pound. The average price paid was 53c.

IRISH CITY'S LONG HISTORY

Limerick Has for Many Centuries Been a Place of High Importance and Interest.

Limerick, Ireland, which occupies both sides of the river as well as King's island, is about 130 miles from Dublin. Its bacon-curing industry, its creameries, its condensed milk factories, and its salmon fisheries keep busy its Rory O'Mores and its pretty little Irish colleens, the glances of whose beautiful eyes are like to prove as fatal as those of Kate Kearney. Limerick fish hooks are celebrated, and though the Limerick lace worked upon a fine quality of net derived its name from the city, it is mostly made in other portions of the island at the present time.

Limerick has had a past, says a bulletin of the National Geographic society. It was the ancient Regia of Ptolemy; the Danes desired it for a long while before they finally occupied it in the Ninth century; and in 1210 King John visited it and built forts upon its coveted soil. The dethroned James II of England made it his last stronghold. On the island in the river the ancient Limerick had its beginnings, and today its maze of crooked streets, and its old cathedral, dating from 1170, are important points of interest.

CONSTANT FIGHT ON CRABS

Destructiveness of the Crustaceans in the West Indies Is Something Almost Beyond Belief.

The fisherman of Japan has a supreme contempt for the gigantic crab of his coast, which has nippers ten feet in length, and when moving along the bottom of the sea with its claws spread out covers an area of 22 feet or so.

The destructiveness of certain species of crab in the West Indies is remarkable, observes an exchange. They are great burrowers and in localities where they are plentiful—and they multiply with the rapidity of the rodent—nothing is safe from them. They will eat the eggs on which a hen is sitting, and just as readily the leaves of seedling coconut trees. They effect in the West Indies practicaly the same degree of destruction on the young coconuts as the sepoy crab does in the East Indies. In each instance some 8 to 11 per cent of the seedlings have to be replaced if they are planted in the newly cleared ground from which the crabs have not been thoroughly cleared out.

Put Out Your Tongue.

The latest science, "called glossomancy," purports to read the person's character by the size and shape of the tongue. According to glossomancists, those who possess short and broad tongues are apt to be untruthful, while people whose tongues are short and narrow are sly and badtempered. When the tongue is long and broad, it is a sign that its owner is inclined to be a gossip. A tongue that is long and narrow denotes a frank, open disposition. Girls with small, round, plump tongues possess trustful and affectionate dispositions; but men with similar shaped tongues are apt to be inconsistent. What glossomancists term the rectangular type of tongue—one that is almost square in shape—is indicative of a strong, virile nature. Men with these shaped tongues are ambitious, active, and likely to get on in the world. Square-tongued women, however, are likely to be self-assertive.

Myths Are History.

Mythology, or the study of the beliefs of ancient peoples, is a fascinating study. Myths do not just happen to be. There were no story writers in olden times who said, "I must write a popular story," and forthwith a story appeared that lived and went from mouth to mouth for thousands of years. A myth, in its last analysis, is an historic account, every detail of which is based on fact.

The tales of Homer were thought to be poetic fiction until the burned ruins of Troy were uncovered. The story of Theseus slaying the Minotaur is no idle creation, for every detail of it—the Athenian children for the sacrifice, the labyrinth palace, the wild bull in the center, and a host of other details—has been abundantly verified as fact.

Got the Toll-Keeper's Goat.

A Dutchman riding a little cart drawn by a goat was stopped at the bridge by the toll-keeper.

"I got to pay toll?" said Hans.

"Yes; five cents to cross the bridge."

After an argument he paid the toll and went back again, only this time he had the goat sitting in the cart and he was drawing it himself. Out came the toll-keeper. "Here, you know you've got to pay five cents."

The Dutchman shook his head and pointing to the goat, said, "Don't talk to me—ask the driver."—Boston Transcript.

Mixed Religions.

Doctor Grenfell after amputating the limb of a Roman Catholic patient wrote an appeal for a wooden leg to enable the man to move about. This was published in the Congregationalist and read by a Baptist woman whose husband, a Methodist, who had worn a wooden leg, had just died. So the Methodist leg given by a Baptist woman in answer to a Congregational appeal is now being used as a perfectly good interdenominational understanding.—The Christian Advocate.

PURE BRED

Hatching Eggs

Ferris 300 Egg Strain...Single Comb White Leghorn—

Hatching Eggs $3.50
Per 100

H. G. Brunes

Phone 607 . Goodell, Iowa

Hatching Eggs

—T—

S. C. W. Leghorn Eggs for Hatching

$3.00 PER HUNDRED

Will have four or five hundred

BABY CHICKS

March 27th. $10.00 a hundred at farm if all are taken.

Rufus Steffen

Britt Phone Kanawha Mail
(7 1-2 miles west of Klemme)

TYPEWRITER RIBBONS
All Makes

Typewriter Ribbons for sale at the Times Office. all of the Standard makes. Ribbons 75 cents each.

THE CITY DRAY LINE
—Is prepared to do your hauling carefully and promptly.
We solicit your patronage.
Charges reasonable.
Coal Hauling Done
Louie Knoke

DENTIST
J. L. Hesselhuus, D. D. S.
Office Hours 8-12 1-5:30
Office Opposite State Savings Bank; In Schaffer Bldg.
Evening Work By Appointment Only
Klemme, Ia. Phone 81

KLEMME DRAY LINE
Phone 2105
A share of your patronage is solicited. All work attended to promptly and carefully. We haul coal quick.
LLOYD LAU, PROP.

Hurry Up

You Still Have Time To Get That Suit Made for Easter

I have possibly a thousand samples from which you may select. The patterns are nifty and the workmanship is first class.

Buy a suit at any price you wish to pay. Glad to have you come in any time, or if you're too busy will be pleased to make an appointment.

SUITS TO YOUR MEASMENT AT—
$22.50, $25.00, $30.00

When you see these patterns at the prices, you'll be justk as enthusiastic as I am.

Ladies and gents hosiery, mens shirts, neckwear, underwear, handkerchiefts, dress gloves. etc.

A good time now to get that winter suit or overcoat cleaned and pressed for the last round of winter.

A fine asortment of—
MEN'S and YOUNG MEN'S CAPS

Elegant Materials and beautiful shades, moderate price. Business is good, thank you.

The Men's Fashion Shop

A. W. JOHNSON
GARNER IOWA

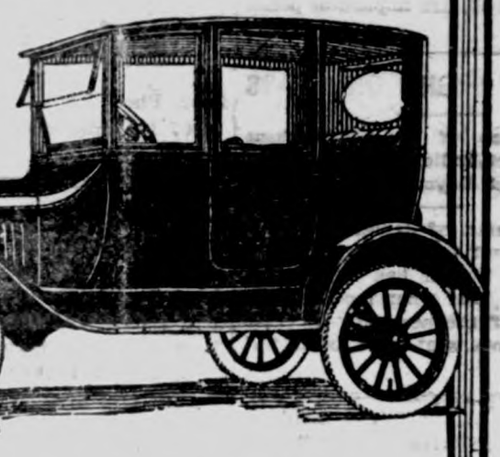
Ford

SEDAN

New Price

$595

F. O. B. DETROIT



At the new low price the Ford Sedan represents a greater value than has ever been offered.

It provides enclosed car comfort in a dependable, quality product at a minimum cost.

Your order placed now will insure reasonably prompt delivery. Terms if desired.

Greimann Motor Co

Aaron Greimann, Mgr. Klemme, Iowa

WE have only a couple of new Fords in Stock—Act Now!

GEORGE ZINN, M. D.

Physician and Surgeon

Office opposite from Hotel Klemme

Phone No. 19

Eyes Examined Glasses Fitted

"HEINZ 57"

Ketchup

Week

March 19 to March 24

Come and Sample HEINZ Ketchup FREE. You will say there is none better.

Something New

Heinz Cooked

Macaroni

With Cheese and Mushroom Sauce--try it.

Its one of the 57

J. P. Larsen & Sons

The Klemme Meat Market

PARENTS OF NAVEL ORANGE

From Two Trees Has Grown an Industry Which Is Now Estimated in Millions.

From two lone orange trees, to which buds of the seedless "navel" orange of Brazil were grafted some years ago, has grown an industry which last year showed a net profit of some forty million dollars. Today one hundred and seventy-five thousand acres of California land is planted to navel oranges, which are set out in numbers ranging from 80 to 180 trees to the acre.

William Saunders, one-time superintendent of the government horticultural grounds at Washington, D. C., learned in 1870 that a new seedless orange had been developed at Bahai, Brazil, and procured 12 of the young trees through the aid of a missionary. They were brought to the United States and planted under conditions as nearly those of their native land as could be found, but they could not withstand the more rigorous northern climate, and they soon died. Buds had been taken from them, however, and grafted upon sprouts of native propagation. Two of these sprouts survived and were transplanted to the West coast in 1875.

From them have sprung the thousands of trees which have made the navel orange the foremost among the many varieties of oranges. Every year buds have been taken from them to impart navel characteristics to home-grown seedlings, and still though somewhat ravished by time, these patriarchs annually add their small quota to the thousands of bushels of fruit their offspring yields.

One of them stands just outside Riverside.

PASS UP ALL KINDS OF WORK

Masculine Natives of the South Sea Islands Cannot Be Brought to Do Any Labor.

The natives of the Marshall islands, 50 years ago, before the advent of the missionaries, were typical savages of the South seas. They lived a natural wild existence, unburdened by clothes, and eating only what nature provided for them—coconut and the pandanus fruit. They had no houses. They lived under thatched roofs, supported at the four corners by poles.

Today the natives wear white linen suits. The stiff white collar seems to make their faces blacker than they really are, and to bring out the designs of the tattoo marks more clearly. They have schools and hospitals, which were started by those brave missionaries of half a century ago. Their chief is particularly modern. He lives in a house, and since Japan has taken possession he has a wireless station on his island, the island of Wotje. He even dictates to a stenographer, who sits on the floor with a typewriter between his legs. The natives are not so far modernized, however, that the men will bestir themselves to do any work. They do not believe in work. They leave work to the women. The hardest task the men perform is to carry around the babies. They do this so the women will have nothing to interfere with their work.

Plants Have Heart and Pulse Beat.

Plants have a heart and pulse and a "blood circulation" very similar to that of the animal world. This is the sensational discovery of Sir Jagardis Chandra Bose, the famous Indian botanist. According to Sir Jagardis, great quantities of water are absorbed daily by the average tree. This water is driven up to the very top of the tree and then breathed out again through the leaves. Experiments were carried out by Sir Jagardis at his botanical institute in Calcutta. He says there is no characteristic manifestation of animal life which could not be found in simple form in plants also. The plant has a heart beat and a "pulse" astonishingly similar to that of animals. Besides, it also reacts upon stimulation in almost the same way, and shows that it possesses a nervous system.

To Honor Congo Martyr.

A tablet is to be placed in one of the wards of a London hospital in honor of the Congo chief, Mandobi, who volunteered, when sleeping sickness appeared among his tribe, to go to England and submit to all the experiments necessary to determine the cause of this malady and to discover a remedy. For several months he permitted himself to be bled daily in order to supply material for the microscopists. At length the germ of the sleeping sickness was discovered; but almost simultaneously the volunteer subject of these researches paid for that discovery with his life.—The Living Age.

Oh, Well—

A young woman, having decided that it was just at present the fashionable thing to know all about business and town industries, was being shown through a garter factory.

"Goodness!" she exclaimed, "ninety thousand pairs in one week! I don't see where they all go!"

"Neither do I," replied the young man who was guiding her, coloring slightly.—American Legion Weekly.

Perhaps.

"Here's a lady gets a divorce on account of mental cruelty."

"What is mental cruelty?"

"I suppose her brute of a husband went around thinking mean things."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

SMALL MIGRATORY BIRDS SWEPT TO SEA BY STORMS

Migratory birds on their way to southern wintering places are sometimes swept long distances out of their courses by storms. An interesting memorandum has been received by the Weather Bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture in connection with a marine weather report from the American steamship Manchuria. From October 27, when the vessel was in latitude 40—36, longitude 66, to noon October 28, latitude 41—45, longitude 59—27, several hundred birds alighted on the ship, having evidently been swept to sea by a strong northwest breeze. The varieties noted included six or more robins, several starlings and thrushes, one catbird, a flicker, many vesper sparrows, several bluebirds, many small flycatcherlike birds, and many other small birds about the size of sparrows unfamiliar to the ship's officer who made the observations.

At the time these birds began to alight on the ship there seemed to be many more on the sea. Those that failed to make the ship died rapidly, although there were only light breezes. Undoubtedly thousands of birds are lost each year during the migrating season in strong offshore breezes. Other ships report similar visitations from birds, which sometimes traveled more than 2,000 miles to port in the ship's riging.

EXAMPLE OF FOOL PARENTS

Onlookers Doubtless Would Have Said the "Twig" Might Have Been "Bent" to Advantage.

"They" boarded an outbound street car. "They"—father and mother, mistakenly, unfairly adoring and old enough to be wiser, and sturdy, handsome, adorable (at times) two-year-old son, wise beyond his years and beyond his parents. Not quite so adorable at this particular time, for he was screeching, yelling, howling, screaming, kicking and doing everything else in his small but mighty power to make known his wants and attain his desire. His attention refused to be distracted. Older people might have envied him his power of concentration.

"What do you want, darling? Come on, let's have a little lunch. Oh, look at the pretty lights. Tell mother what sweetheart wants"—repeated in tones of varying invitation and hopefulness—were all in vain. "Darling-sweetheart" refused to be diverted from his purpose or to vouchsafe a single word of reply.

After two blocks of this uninterrupted performance the small family rose to leave the car, the mother explaining to an obviously curious beholder: "We have to get off. He won't ride in a street car. He must have a taxi." Last seen, adored and adoring were hiking up Sixth avenue to a taxi station, adored all smiles and sunshine in his father's arms.—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

Caveman's Hearth.

What we know of our cave-dwelling ancestors we have gleaned chiefly from the relics left by the cavemen in their places of habitation in caverns and holes in the rock. Marett, the anthropologist, tells of a cave in Jersey, near the Bay of St. Brelaide, where scientists dug down through some twenty feet of clay and rock rubbish, probably carried there in the course of the last Ice age that mantled Europe, and found large stones that had propped up the fire, and even some of the ashes. Bones were found in a heap of food-refuse, which, when examined, proved to be the remains of the woolly rhinoceros, the reindeer, two kinds of horses, of a wild ox and of a deer. Thirteen human teeth were found in the food-heap. The diners had also left their knives—flint chipped on one side.

Chinese Bird Lovers.

Birds play an important part in the domestic life of the Chinese. Besides using their flesh, eggs, and even their nests as food, they keep a great many as pets. Indeed their fondness for birds is one of the most pleasant features of their national character. Birds furnish them with much amusement. Some, like the pelican and cormorant, they teach to fish for them. Several kinds of bird pets are taught to catch seeds thrown into the air after jumping from perches held in the hand. Except in winter one can always see people going into the open country early in the morning with their pets, to catch grasshoppers for them and to teach their pets new songs.

Intermittent Grandeur.

In an aristocratic Virginia town where the spirit has long outlived the letter of social grandeur, and where in the scarcity of servants any respectable colored person of any age may be employed, some callers were received at the front door by an ample negress of the "mammy" type. Greeting them, she apologized: "You ladies must 'scuse me for coming to the door, but the butler's gone to school."—Harper's Magazine.

Value of Publicity.

"Do you think your opponent has a chance in the coming election?"

"No," replied Senator Sorghum; "and he doesn't think so, either. He accepted the nomination merely for the sake of the advertising."

THE POOR EDITOR

Flowery and long is the wedding notice which the editor printeth. The minister getteth ten bones. The groom standeth the editor off for a 12 month subscription. All flesh is grass and in time the wife is gathered into a silo. The minister getteth his bit. The editor printeth a death notice, two columns of obituary, three lodge notices, a cubit of poetry and a card of thanks. And he forgetteth to read the proof on the head and the darned thing comethout: "Gone to Her Last Roasting Place." And all the kin to the deceased jumpeth on the editor with exceedingly great vigor. And they pulleth out their ads and cancelleth their subscriptions out and swingeth the hammer unto the third and fourth generation. —Arkansas Thomas Cat.

SUPPRESSING A SQUEAK

Queer Old Law of England Puts Him in Bad

Recently it has been discovered at Macclesfield, in England, that a brakelock on a cart must not by virtue of an old law be allowed to squeak. A quarry owner was summoned for allowing a cart to be driven without an appliance for lessening the noise caused by the brakes, and though he pleaded that the cart did not make as much noise as many motorcars, he had to pay the costs of the prosecution. Macclesfield is a town where they make silk. Will they some day discover that there is an ancient law forbidding silk to rustle.?

Some butchers leave so much bone in the steak that "Day by day in every weigh they are getting worse and worse."

Also the Best In

Implements

Supplies

Accessories

H. Lau Sons

Bakery Goods

SALLY ANN BREAD—
CREAM PUFFS—
SNOW BALLS—
FRIED CAKES—
CINNAMON ROLLS—
RYE BREAD—
COOKIES—

A Big Basket of Bakery Goods arrives fresh every afternoon from the Gates Bakery Co., of Traer, Iowa.

We have tried samples from a dozen different Bakeries and we find

SALLY ANN BREAD
BEATS
THEM
ALL!

Those of you who want the best will ask for

SALLY
ANN
BREAD—
—at—

Wellemeyer's

Going Fast

OUR RED TOP fence post sale is proving a winner. Posts are going fast at the reduced prices.

This is the last opportunity of the year to buy at these reduced prices so be sure to get in your order before the sale ends.

FREE—a Red Top Post Driver

During this sale we are giving free to each purchaser of 100 or more RED TOP Posts a Red Top One-Man Post Driver. Get yours and save much work, time and many fence building dollars.

Sale Closes March 17

Northern Lumber Co.

Klemme Iowa

ESERT GOLD

by

ANE GREY

thor of Riders of
he Purple Sage,
Wildfire, Etc.

Copyright by Harper & Brothers.

THORNE

NOPSIS.—Seeking gold in the rt, "Cameron," solitary pros-or, forms a partnership with unknown man whom he later s is Jonas Warren, father of girl whom Cameron wronged, later married, back in Illinois. eron's explanations appease ren, and the two proceed to-er. Taking refuge from a storm in a cave, Cameron dis-rs gold, but too late; both men dying. Cameron leaves evi-ce, in the cave, of their dis-ry of gold, and personal docu-ts. Richard Gale, adventurer, Casita, Mexican border town, ts George Thorne, lieutenant in Ninth cavalry, old college nd. Thorne tells Gale he is e to save Mercedes Castaneda, nish girl, his affianced wife, n Rojas, Mexican bandit. Gale ughhouses" Rojas and his gang, h the help of two American boys, and he, Mercedes and rne escape. A bugle call from fort orders Thorne to his regi-nt. He leaves Mercedes under e's protection. The pair, aided the cowboys, Charlie Ladd and Lash, arrive in safety at a ch known as Forlorn River, ross the border. The fugitives at Tom Belding's home. Beld-is immigration inspector. Living h him are his wife and step-ughter, Nell Burton. Gale, with dd and Lash, take service with lding as rangers, Gale telling lding the cause of his being a nderer, a misunderstanding with father concerning the son's siness abilities. Mercedes gets rd to Thorne of her safety. ck also writes to his parents, in-rming them of his whereabouts. ell's personality, and her kind-ss, attract Gale. Riding the nge, Gale falls in with a party three Mexican raiders encamped a water hole. Watching his portunity to oust them, he sees o Indians ride into the camp. ne of them, a Yaqui, is evidently adly wounded, and the Mexicans ek to kill him in a cruel way. ick drives them off, conveying e wounded Yaqui to Belding's nch. The Indian becomes Dick's rdent admirer. Gale's admira-ion for Nell increases. Belding's orses, the pride of his life, are un off by the Mexicans. Gale, ith Ladd, Lash and the Yaqui, ursue the raiding party, finally ornering them. The whites, with e recovered horses, return to the anch in triumph. Gale secures rom Mrs. Belding reluctant per-mission and begins his courtship with energy. Not getting word rom Thorne, whose period of army service has expired, Mercedes loses heart. Nell, although forbid-den, rides to Casita to seek infor-mation of him.

CHAPTER X.—Continued.

—10—

"Blanco Sol gone!" yelled Belding, in a rage.

"Raiders!" exclaimed Jim Lash.

"Lord only knows. Yaqui says it wasn't raiders."

"Send Yaqui to find the hoss' trail, an' let's figger," said Ladd. "Shore this 's no raider job."

In the swift search that ensued Gale did not have anything to say; but his mind was forming a conclusion. When he found his old saddle and bridle missing from the peg in the barn his conclusion became a positive conviction, and it made him, for the moment, cold and sick and speechless.

"Blanco Sol Gone!" Yelled Belding, in a Rage.

"Hey, Dick, don't take it so much to heart," said Belding. "We'll likely find Sol, and if we don't, there's other good horses."

"I'm not thinking of Sol," replied Gale.

Ladd cast a sharp glance at Gale, snapped his fingers, and said:

"D—n me if I ain't guessed it too!"

"What's wrong with you locoed gents?" bluntly demanded Belding.

"Nell has started for Casita," burst out Gale. "She has gone to fetch Mercedes some word about Thorne. Oh, Belding, you needn't shake your head. I know she's gone. She tried to persuade me to go, and was furious when I wouldn't."

"I don't believe it," replied Belding, hoarsely. "Nell may have her temper. She's a little devil at times, but she always had good sense."

"Tom, you can gamble she's gone," said Ladd.

"Aw, h—l, no! Jim, what do you think?" implored Belding.

"I reckon Sol's white head is pointed level and straight down Casita trail. An' Nell can ride. We're losin' time."

That roused Belding to action.

"I say you're all wrong," he yelled, starting for the corrals. "She's only taking a little ride, same as she's done often. But rustle now. Find out. Dick, you ride cross the valley. Jim, you hunt up and down the river. I'll head up San Felipe way. And you, Laddy, take Diablo and hit the Casita trail. If she really has gone after Thorne you can catch her in an hour or so."

"Shore I'll go," replied Ladd. "But, Beldin', if you're not plumb crazy you're close to it. That big white devil can't catch Sol. Not in an hour or a day or a week!"

"Laddy, you mean to say Sol is a faster horse than Diablo?" thundered Belding, his face purple.

"Shore I mean to tell you just that there," replied the ranger. "I'll ride your Blanco Devil as he never was rid before, 'cept once when a d—n sight better hossman than I am couldn't make him outrun Sol."

Without more words the men saddled and were off. The interminable time that followed contained for Gale about as much suspense as he could well bear. What astonished him and helped him greatly to fight off actual distress was the endurance of Nell's mother.

Early on the morning of the second day, Gale saw three white horses and a bay come wearily stepping down the road. He heard Blanco Sol's familiar whistle, and he leaped up wild with joy. The horse was riderless. Gale's sudden joy received a violent check, then resurged when he saw a limp form in Jim Lash's arms. Ladd was supporting a horseman who wore a military uniform.

Gale shouted with joy and ran into the house to tell the good news. It was the ever-thoughtful Mrs. Belding who prevented him from rushing to tell Mercedes.

Lash handed down a ragged, travel-stained, wan girl into Belding's arms.

"Dad! Mamma!"

It was indeed a repentant Nell, but there was spirit yet in the tired blue eyes. Then she caught sight of Gale and gave him a faint smile.

"Hello—Dick."

"Nell!" Gale reached for her hand, held it tightly, and found speech difficult.

"You needn't worry—about your old horse," she said, as Belding carried her toward the door. "Oh, Dick! Blanco Sol is—glorious!"

Gale turned to greet his friend. Indeed, it was but a haggard ghost of the cavalryman. Thorne looked ill or wounded. Gale's greeting was also a question full of fear.

Thorne's answer was a faint smile. He seemed ready to drop from the saddle. Gale helped Ladd hold Thorne upon the horse until they reached the house. Belding came out again. His welcome was checked as he saw the condition of the cavalryman. Thorne reeled into Dick's arms. But he was able to stand and walk.

"I'm not — hurt. Only weak — starved," he said. "Is Mercedes—Take me to her."

"She'll be well the minute she sees him," averred Belding, as he and Gale led the cavalryman to Mercedes' room. There they left him; and Gale, at least, felt his ears ringing with the girl's broken cry of joy.

When Belding and Gale hurried forth again the rangers were tending the tired horses. Upon returning to the house Jim Lash calmly lit his pipe, and Ladd declared that, hungry as he was, he had to tell his story.

"Shore, Beldin'," began Ladd, "that was funny about Diablo catchin' Blanco Sol. Funny ain't the word. I nearly laughed myself to death. Well, I rode in Sol's tracks all the way to Casita. Never seen a rebel or a raider till I got to town. I went straight to the camp of the cavalrymen, an' found them just coolin' off an' dressin' down their hosses after what looked to me like a big ride.

"Some soldier took me to an officer's tent. Nell was there, some white an' all in. She just said, 'Laddy!' Thorne was there, too, an' he was bein' worked over by the camp doctor. I didn't ask no questions, because I seen quiet was needed round that tent. After satisfying myself that Nell was all right, an' Thorne in no danger, I went out.

"Shore there was so darn many fellers who wanted to an' tried to tell me what'd come off, I thought I'd never find out. But I got the story piece by piece. An' here's what happened:

"Nell rode Blanco Sol a-tearin' into camp, an' had a crowd round her in a jiffy. She told who she was, where she'd come from, an' what she wanted. Well, it seemed a day or so before Nell got there the cavalrymen had heard word of Thorne. You see, Thorne had left camp on leave of absence some time before. In a few more days it turned out pretty sure that for some reason Rojas was holdin' Thorne.

"Now, it happened when this news came Colonel Weede was in Nogales with his staff, an' the officer left in charge didn't know how to proceed. Rojas' camp was across the line in Mexico, an' ridin' over there was serious business. It meant a whole lot more than just scatterin' one Greaser camp. Thorne's feller soldiers was anxious to get him out of a bad fix, but they had to wait for orders.

"When Nell found out Thorne was bein' starved an' beat in a dobe shack no more'n two mile across the line, she shore stirred up that cavalry camp. Shore! She told them soldiers Rojas was holdin' Thorne—torturin' him to make him tell where Mercedes was. An' she begged the cavalrymen to rescue Thorne.

"From the way it was told to me I reckon them cavalrymen went up in the air. Fine fiery lot of young bloods, I thought, achin' for a scrap. But the officer in charge, bein' in a ticklish place, still held out for higher orders.

"Then Nell broke loose. You-all know Nell's tongue is sometimes like a choya thorn. I'd have give somethin' to see her work up that soldier outfit. Can't you fellers see her on Blanco Sol with her eyes turnin' black?"

Ladd mopped his sweaty face with his dusty scarf. He was beaming. He was growing excited, hurried in his narrative.

He Was Very Weak, Yet He Would Keep Mercedes' Hand and Gaze at Her With Unbelieving Eyes.

"Right out then Nell swore she'd go after Thorne. If them cavalrymen couldn't ride with a western girl to save a brother American—let them hang back! One feller, under orders, tried to stop Blanco Sol. An' that feller invited himself to the hospital. Then the cavalrymen went flyin' for their hosses. It didn't take long for every man in that camp to get wind of what was comin' off. Shore they musta been wild. They strung out after Nell in a thunderin' troop.

"Rojas and his men vamoosed without a shot. That ain't surprisin'. There wasn't a shot fired by anybody. The cavalrymen soon found Thorne an' hurried with him back on Uncle Sam's land. Thorne was half naked, black an' blue all over, thin as a rail. He was given food an' drink. Shore he seemed a starved man. But he picked up wonderful, an' by the time Jim came along he was wantin' to start for Forlorn River. So was Nell. By main strength as much as persuasion we kept the two men quiet till next evenin' at dark.

"Well, we made as sneaky a start in the dark as Jim an' me could manage, an' never hit the trail till we was miles from town. Thorne's nerve held him up for a while. Then all at once he tumbled out of his saddle. We got him back, an' Lash held him on. Nell didn't give out till daybreak."

As Ladd paused in his story Belding began to stutter, and finally he exploded. His mighty utterances were incoherent. But plainly the wrath he had felt toward the willful girl was forgotten. Gale remained gripped by silence.

"Laddy, what knocks me is Rojas holding Thorne prisoner, trying to make him tell where Mercedes had been hidden," said Belding.

"Shore. It'd knock anybody."

"The bandit's crazy over her. That's the Spanish of it," replied Belding, his voice rolling. "Rojas loves Mercedes as he hates her. He wants this girl only to have her, then kill her. It's d—n strange, boys, and even with Thorne here our troubles have just begun."

"Tom, you spoke correct," said Jim Ladd, in his cool drawl.

"Shore I'm not sayin' what I think," added Ladd. But the look of him was not indicative of a tranquil optimism.

Thorne was put to bed in Gale's room. He was very weak, yet he would keep Mercedes' hand and gaze at her with unbelieving eyes. Then, fighting sleep with what little strength he had left, at last he succumbed.

For all Dick could ascertain his friend never stirred an eyelash nor a finger for twenty-seven hours. When he awoke he was pale, weak, but the old Thorne.

"Hello, Dick; I didn't dream it, then," he said. "There you are, and my darling with the proud, dark eyes—she's here? Mercedes is well—safe! Oh! . . . But say, I haven't a dollar to my name. I had a lot of money, Dick, and those robbers stole it, my watch—everything. D—n that little black Greaser!"

"Cheer up. Belding will make you a proposition presently. The future smiles, old friend. If this rebel business was only ended!"

"Dick, you're going to be my savior twice over. . . . Well, now, listen to me." His gay excitement changed to earnest gravity. "I want to marry Mercedes at once. Is there a padre here?"

"Yes. But are you wise in letting any Mexican, even a priest, know Mercedes is hidden in Forlorn River?"

"It couldn't be hidden long."

Gale was compelled to acknowledge the truth of this statement.

"I'll marry her first, then I'll face my problem. Fetch the padre, Dick. And ask our kind friends to be witnesses at the ceremony."

Much to Gale's surprise, neither Belding nor Ladd objected to the idea of bringing a padre into the household, and thereby making known to at least one Mexican the whereabouts of Mercedes Castaneda. Belding's caution was wearing out in wrath at the persistent unsettled condition of the border, and Ladd grew only the cooler and more silent as possibilities of trouble multiplied.

Gale fetched the padre, a little, weazened, timid man who was old and without interest or penetration. Apparently he married Mercedes and Thorne as he told his beads or mumbled a prayer. It was Mrs. Belding who kept the occasion from being a merry one, and she insisted on not exciting Thorne. Gale marked her unusual pallor and the singular depth and sweetness of her voice.

Thorne could not be kept in bed, and all in a day, it seemed, he grew so well and so hungry that his friends were delighted, and Mercedes was radiant. In a few days his weakness disappeared and he was going the round of the fields and looking over the ground marked out in Gale's plan of water development. Thorne was highly enthusiastic, and at once staked out his claim for one hundred and sixty acres of land adjoining that of Belding and the rangers. These five tracts took in all the ground necessary for their operations, but in case of the success of the irrigation project the idea was to increase their squatter holding by purchase of more land down the valley. A hundred families had lately moved to Forlorn River; more were coming all the time; and Belding vowed he could see a vision of the whole Altar valley green with farms.

Meanwhile everybody in Belding's household, except the quiet Ladd and the watchful Yaqui, in the absence of disturbance of any kind along the border, grew freer and more unrestrained, as if anxiety was slowly fading in the peace of the present. Jim Lash made a trip to the Sonoyta oasis, and Ladd patrolled fifty miles of the line eastward without incident or sight of raiders. Evidently all the border hawks were in at the picking of Casita.

The February nights were cold, with a dry, icy, penetrating coldness that made a warm fire most comfortable. Belding's household congregated in the sitting room, where burning mesquite logs crackled in the open fireplace.

There came a low knock at the door. It may have been an ordinary knock, for it did not disturb the women; but to Belding and his rangers it had a subtle meaning.

"Who's that?" asked Belding, as he slowly pushed back his chair and looked at Ladd.

"Yaqui," replied the ranger.

"Come in," called Belding.

The door opened, and the short, square, powerfully built Indian entered. He carried a rifle and strode with impressive dignity.

"Yaqui, what do you want?" asked Belding, and repeated his question in Spanish.

"Senor Dick," replied the Indian.

Gale jumped up, stifling an exclamation, and he went outdoors with Yaqui. The Indian's presence was always one of gloom, and now his stern action boded catastrophe. Once clear of trees he pointed to the level desert across the river, where a row of campfires shone bright out of the darkness.

"Raiders!" ejaculated Gale.

Then he cautioned Yaqui to keep sharp lookout, and, hurriedly returning to the house, he called the men out and told them there were rebels or raiders camping just across the line.

Ladd did not say a word. Belding, with an oath, slammed down his cigar.

"I knew it was too good to last. . . . Dick, you and Jam stay here while Laddy and I look around."

Dick returned to the sitting-room. The women were nervous and not to be deceived. So Dick merely said Yaqui had sighted lights off in the desert, and they probably were campfires. Belding did not soon return, and when he did he was alone, and, saying he wanted to consult with the men, he sent Mrs. Belding and the girls to their rooms.

"Laddy's gone over to scout around and try to find out who the outfit belongs to and how many are in it," said Belding. "I don't look for an attack on Forlorn River. I'm afraid it's—"

Belding hesitated and looked with grim concern at the cavalryman.

"What?" queried Thorne.

"I'm afraid it's Rojas."

Thorne turned pale but did not lose his nerve.

"I thought of that at once. But Rojas will never get his hands on my wife. If I can't kill him, I'll kill her! . . . Belding, this is tough on you—this risk we put upon your family. I regret—"

"Cut that kind of talk," replied Belding, bluntly. "Well, if it is Rojas he's acting d—n queer for a raider. That's what worries me. We can't do anything but wait. With Laddy and Yaqui out there we won't be surprised."

The women of the house might have gotten some sleep that night, but it was certain the men did not get any. Morning broke cold and gray, the 19th of February. Ladd came in hungry and cold, and said the Mexicans were not breaking camp. He reported a good-sized force of rebels, and was taciturn as to his idea of forthcoming events.

About an hour after sunrise Yaqui ran in with the information that part of the rebels were crossing the river.

"That can't mean a fight yet," declared Belding. "But get in the house, boys, and make ready anyway. I'll meet him."

"Belding, you're an officer of the United States. Mexicans are much impressed by show of authority. I've seen that often in camp," said Thorne.

"Oh, I know the white-livered Greasers better than any of you, don't mistake me," replied Belding. He was pale with rage, but kept command over himself.

The rangers, with Yaqui and Thorne, stationed themselves at the several windows of the sitting room. Rifles and smaller arms and boxes of shells littered the tables and window seats. No small force of besiegers could overcome a resistance such as Belding and his men were capable of making.

The horsemen halted at the corrals. They were orderly and showed no evidence of hostility. They were, however, fully armed. Belding stalked out to meet them. Apparently a leader wanted to parley with him, but Belding would hear nothing. He shook his head, waved his arms, stamped to and fro, and his loud, angry voice could be heard clear back at the house. Whereupon the detachment of rebels retired to the bank of the river, beyond the white post that marked the boundary line, and there they once more drew rein. Belding remained by the corrals watching them, evidently still in threatening mood. Presently a single rider left the troop and trotted his horse back down the road. When he reached the corral he was seen to halt and pass something to Belding. Then he galloped away to join his comrades.

Belding looked at whatever it was he held in his hand, shook his burly head, and started swiftly for the house. He came striding into the room holding a piece of soiled paper.

"Can't read it now and don't know as I want to," he said, savagely.

Not one of the men was able to translate the garbled scrawl.

"Shore Mercedes can read it," said Ladd.

Thorne opened a door and called her. She came into the room followed by Nell and Mrs. Belding.

"My dear, we want you to read what's written on this paper," said Thorne, as he led her to the table.

Mercedes gave the writing one swift glance, then fainted in Thorne's arms. He carried her to a couch, and with Nell and Mrs. Belding began to work over her.

Belding looked at his rangers.

"Laddy, it's Rojas all right. How many men has he out there?"

"Mebbe twenty. Not more."

"We can lick twice that many Greasers."

"Shore."

Jim Lash removed his pipe long enough to speak. "Let's stave the Greaser off till dark. Then Laddy an' me an' Thorne will take Mercedes an' hit the trail for Yuma."

"Camino del Diablo! That awful trail with a woman! Jim, do you forget how many hundreds of men have perished on the Devil's road?"

"I reckon I ain't forgettin' nothin'," replied Jim. "The waterholes are full

When He Reached the Corrals He Was Seen to Halt and Pass Something to Belding.

now. There's grass, an' we can do the job in six days."

"It's three hundred miles to Yuma."

"Beldin', Jim's idea hits me as pretty reasonable," interposed Ladd. "Lord knows that's about the only chance we've got except fightin'."

"But suppose we do stave Rojas off, and you get safely away with Mercedes. Isn't Rojas going to find it out quick? Then what'll he try to do to us who're left here?"

"I reckon he'd find out by daylight," replied Jim. "But, Tom, he ain't a-goin' to start a scrap then. You see, I'm figgerin' on the crazy Greaser wantin' the girl. But he's too smart to fight you for nothin'. Rojas may be nutty about women, but he's afraid of the U. S. Take my word for it, he'd discover the trail in the mornin' an' light out on it. I reckon with ten hours' start we could travel comfortable."

"'Dearest, I'm going—soon. And maybe I'll never—'"

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

INTERESTED IN WORLD PEACE

H. Nelson Jackson, Vermont, One of Legion Men Presenting Program to President Harding.

H. Nelson Jackson of Huntington, Vt., is one of the prominent American Legion representatives in its relations with veterans' organizations of other countries. Mr. Jackson is vice president of the Interallied Veterans' association, composed of societies of ex-fighters in eight allied countries.

Recently, Mr. Jackson, with other Legion representatives, submitted to President Harding a program leading toward world peace, recommended by the international veterans' organization at its last convention held in New Orleans.

Born in Burlington, Mr. Jackson was graduated from the public schools and the University of Vermont. Following his graduation, he entered the practice of medicine in Burlington. In 1900, failing health caused his retirement from professional activities, and he entered in a series of extensive travel in continental Europe. Continuing in his quest of health, Doctor Jackson took up motoring in 1903, when the automobile was in its early stages of development. He was the first man to accomplish the difficult trip across the American continent by automobile, making the journey in 63 days. Afterward he went to Mexico.

From the beginning of the World war, his interest was on the side of the allies. When Theodore Roosevelt offered to raise a volunteer division and to lead it against the Germans, Doctor Jackson, on Colonel Roosevelt's personal request, guaranteed a regiment of cavalry from Vermont. On America's entrance into the war, Doctor Jackson was refused enlistment for active combat service on account of his age. Volunteering thereafter in the medical corps, he was commissioned a first lieutenant. He reached the front line trenches a major in 1918, and was wounded three times in the capture of Mont Faucon. For his heroism on the field of battle, he received the Distinguished Service Cross, the Croix de Guerre, and the decoration of Chevalier of the Legion of Honor.

A leader in American Legion affairs in Vermont, Doctor Jackson obtained national distinction among ex-service men, and served the Legion nance national vice commander in

-up on the ere just in fun we de

K. C. PROVIDES $50,

Organization Turns Over Large This to Legion to Aid Tubercular V the erans in Southwest.

Tubercular ex-service men are flocking by the thousands to the states of the Southwest, where they hope to find the promised land of convalescence, according to Claude J. Harris, director of the American Legion's national service division.

Claude J. Harris.

Mr. Harris, with William J. McGinley, supreme secretary of the Knights of Columbus, has completed a survey of conditions among tubercular veterans in a number of states, which has resulted in the allotment of a fund of $50,000 by the Knights of Columbus to the Legion to relieve the situation.

"Our survey showed that the former fighters, who are migrating to Colorado, California and other states, are oftentimes in destitute circumstances," Mr. Harris stated. "In many instances they have brought their families with them. Legion posts and charitable organizations are attempting to provide for the veterans, but their number has increased to such an extent that these organizations are unable to care for a large percentage of veterans."

The Legion will administer the fund authorized by the Knights of Columbus in the communities where the problem is the heaviest, according to Mr. Harris, who stated that the fund will relieve many ex-fighters who have developed tuberculosis since the war. A great many of these men are ineligible for compensation from the United States Veterans' bureau because their disability developed at a period later than two years from time of discharge, the bureau's time limit for compensation in cases of pulmonary tuberculosis.

GIRL, LEGION POST ADJUTANT

Miss H. C. Hilden, Cleveland, Is Honored by the Shupe Machine Gun Organization.

Wounded veterans in the hospitals of France learned to submit to the rule of the weaker sex as represented by members of the army nurse corps. Members of the Shupe Machine Gun post at Cleveland are now bossed by Miss H. C. Hilden, a former nurse, who has recently been elected post adjutant.

Miss H. C. Hilden.

Miss Hilden has taken a great interest in the various activities of the post. She has been especially interested in the relief of disabled ex-service men and of other sick and needy veterans.

In a recent membership campaign, Miss Hilden led her post to victory.

Helen Maitland was out of school last Friday, a grippe sufferer.

Mrs. George Ulrich was a Garner visitor last week Thursday.

Miss Mable Swartz was a Garner visitor last Thursday.

Mrs. C. F. Keraus visited at Garner Friday morning between trains.

Mary Sullivan, of Goodell. was a Klemme visitor Saturday.

George Ell. of Belmond, was a Klemme caller Monday.

WALL PAPER—18c per double roll and up, at Kahrs Drug Store. 2c

U. G. Smid is having a farm sale today.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS

who expect to move soon. Kindly send us your present address, your new address and the date you make the change soe w can keep the paper coming without your missing a single copy.

THE KLEMME TIMES,
Klemme, Iowa.

Please change my address as follows:

My old address is—

Name .....

Town ..... State ..... R.F.D....

My new address will be—

Town ..... Sta ..... R.F.D....

Make change.....
(Give Date.)

Fill out the blank and mail at once to The Klemme Times

UNDER GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION

The World Hasn't Grown Up Yet

There are pessimists who assert that the world has reached the peak of its developement. Yet within a few short years we have seen the invention of the electric light, the automobile, the motion picture, the airplane and the radio give birth to gigantic new industries.

The world is still developing—but its new opportunities are for those who through thrift have prepared themselves to take advantage of them.

Are YOU saving for the opportunity which coming years will offer? We pay 5 per cent on savings.

UNDER GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION

First National Bank

"The Bank for Everybody'.'

The Best Business Reference

Your credit is exactly what you make it. A bank account is worth far more to you when the time comes, than an armful of

Letters of Recommendations

Money in the bank, is what talks, and such a small beginning, such as a well kept savings account, has led to many a man's business success.

We welcome the account of the young business man, or the man contemplating going into business.

State Savings Bank

Klemme Iowa

News of Klemme and Vicinity

C. C. Tessier. of Garner, was a caller at the Times Office Tuesday.

Jeff Bell was a Garner visitor between trains yesterday morning.

Ben Swalve was a business caller at Belmond Tuesday.

Chas. Busch was a business caller at Belmond Tuesday.

W. E. McAlpin, of Belmond, was a Klemme visitor Tuesday.

P. M. Griesemer went to Iowa Falls on business Tuesday.

Mrs. Chris Blumer was visiting at Garner yesterday.

Mrs. Lena Schroeder was a Garner visitor yesterday.

Boyd Hake, of Belmond, was visiting in Klemme yesterday.

ALABASTINE — Varnish Stains, and Floor Paints, at Kahrs' Drug Store. adv-2c

Philip Bock transacted business at Garner between trains las Friday morning.

Genuine Senator Dunlap Strawberry Plants for Sale. $1.50 per hundred, at John Josten's.

Give Poultry Kura to Poultry for Roup, Cholera, and other diseases. Guaranteed. Kahrs' Drug Store. 2c

John Tanner went to Chicago last Saturday night with a stock shipment.

Mrs. Behringer and Miss McKahan were on the sick list the past week with grippe.

Mrs. Bergmann was on the sick list the fore part of the week with grippe.

Eggs for hatching. Choice Rhode Island Red Eggs, 60c per setting. John Josten. Klemme, Iowa.

Lloyd Baby Stroller, or go-cart for sale. In good condition, brown reed body and top. Times Office.

The ladies of the Rebeccah lodge are having a shower on Mrs. Howard Doyle this afternoon.

C. C. Tessier, of Garner, was in town Friday doing some electrical work.

Mrs. W. F. Missman and Mrs. Ely, went to Belmond Saturday for an over Sunday visit, returning Monday.

Fred Gates came Monday from Ingram, Wisconsin to visit his three daughters who live near Klemme.

Mrs. Hake went to Belmond Tuesday for a short visit with her parents.

Mike Haskins and son, Webb, of Garner were in town Tuesday doing some electrical work on the street lights.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wellemeyer came from Charles City yesterday for a visit at the home of his brother, Arthur, and family.

The Misses Iris Trumbell and Nettie Benson, of Belmond, visited with Klemme friends from Monday until Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Levi Klotzbach's little baby is gradually improving in health again, after it's recent serious illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Palmby, of Owasa, Minnesota, came Saturday evening for a visit with their many Klemme relatives and friends.

Wm. Bachman was on the sick list a few days the fore part of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Palmby and child, of Garden City, Minnesota, were visiting Klemme relatives the past week.

Mrs. Charlie Luick went to Clear Lake last week Thursday and remained there until Saturday, visiting relatives and friends.

Miss Faye Hilt, of Ventura came last Friday and remained until the following day visiting with Mrs. C. A. Bachman.

Gus Baack and family are staying out in the country for a while; they have rented their house in town to Tom Roths and wife, who moved in Saturday.

Miss Emma Sampson left Monday for Colesburg, Iowa, to attend the funeral of Gus Wessel, a cousin, and also related to others in this vicinity.

Henry Lewis and wife went to Cherokee Saturday night. Henry is in that city on business—and perhaps staying shy of the building of padded cells.

The Stille Implement Company and C. M. Bredbenner held a public auction in Klemme yesterday which was well attended, and we understand stu sold good.

NOTICE—We ask that all patrons of this co-operative concern to please settle accounts at least twice a year —or oftener. Klemme Co-Operative Grain Company. adv

Scotty Irving and family took a little vacation Sunday, and during their absence Mr. and Mrs. LuVerne Smith took charge of their restaurant.

Mrs. J. L. Hsselhuus was called to Marshalltown last Friday by the death of her grandmother, her father's mother. The funeral was held at Marshalltown Sunday. She returned to Klemme Tuesday.

Mrs. John Brouwer who has been visiting in this vicinity with relatives, went to Garner Saturday for a visit wth relatves and friends. She left for her home in Minnesota Monday.

Miss Celia Brouwer has quit teaching her school in Liberty Township, and has gone to Cedar Falls to attend school. She will also remain there to attend the summer school. We did not learn who will teach in her place.

Wellemeyer has built some kind of a dood-dad in his store and from all appearances it will be some sort of an office. He is working out a new cash and credit system for his store.

Snowed again Sunday night and some Monday morning. Great stuff but we are getting too much snow. Last night it snowed again! It is still snowing and there will soon be a foot on the level! This will tickle Walt Bloom, we bet.

Henry, better known as "Butch" Schroeder is again in Klemme for a visit with his mother and other relatives and friends. "Butch" drops in from Chicago quite often and combines his visit with looking after the live stock business.

The Sophomore Class of the K. H. S. entertained the other classes of the high school at a party in the basement of the First Naional Bank last week on Thursday evening. All report that the Sophomores are fine entertainers. Refreshments were served.

Clint Stokesbary and Ulrich Hippen, with the aid of a couple of dogs, killed a raccoon last Saturday. They were out getting a load of hay when the dogs scented the 'coon. Clint killed it with a pitchfork. 'Coons are rather scarce in this neck of the woods and is quite a curiosity.

How Old Is Aunty?

Aunty was explaining to little Harold the story about Columbus discovering America and tnded it with: "And this all happened over four hundred years ago."

Harold his eyes wide open with wonder , said after a moment's thought. "Gosh, aunty, what a memory you have.

Bettor and Bettor

We heard a new one on Coue the other day. Two newsboys arguing the point—one was trying to persuade the other to "bet" and the other was putting over the point that he "was too good to gamble." The first lad, listening a while, then. as a light suddenly dawned upon him, wrecked the argument with this outburst: "Why. Duke, every day in every way. I'se a 'bettor' an you're NO bettor."

POCKET GOPHERS ARE PE... ON RECLAMATION PR...

Pocket gophers are amo... worst of our native rodent p... some of the reclamation p... and other irrigated distric... cause great damage by de... crops and burrowing in the ... tion canal banks. This causes ... washouts, resulting in an en... annual loss to farmers. An i... of successful control measu... dertaken by the Biological ... United States Department of ... culture, is furnished in Do... County, N. Mex. Losses the... mated at $60,000 a year, we... inated at a total cost to the ... of about $3,500. Field ope... as a result have been exte... other portions of the Elephan... projct, both in New Mexico a... as, with a view to covering co... ly this important irrigation ... In Idaho approximately 140 ... canal banks were treated wi... on in two counties, in conj... with work done on farmig h... 11 couties of that State, whe... 000 acres of private lands wer... ed to destroy these animals.

Office Phone 149 J. Residence Phone 149

Dr. E. H. Phillips

Osteopathic Physician
GARNER, IOWA.

Diagnosis and Treatment of Diseases.
Surgical and Obstetrical cases cared f...
"Consult an Osteopath"

New Spring Goods

Come into our store and see the fine, new line of SPRING GOODS which have been arriving the past few days. The very latest in DRY GOODS and also Ladies' Furnishings; and the prices are very conservative. The new line consists of—

PERCALES—
GINGHAMS—
RATINES—
CREPES (All Colors)—
FANCY DRESS GOODS—
CURTAIN GOODS—
CURTAIN DRAPES—
TABLE LINENS—
OXFORDS and SHOES—
HOSIERY and FURNISHINGS--

Dress Up Your House and Yourself For Easter!

Our usual line of Fresh Groceries, Fruits, and Vegetables for your Easter Dinner.
MEN! We carry a nice line of Shirts, Ties, Hose, Shoes, Oxfords, Hats, Caps, etc.

G. W. Kluckhohn & Son...

STILLE'S IMPLEMENT NEW...

VOLUME 1. Thursday, March 15, 1923 NUMBE...

POWER ON FOUR WHEELS

The McCormick-Deering 15-30 Tractor is a vertible rolling powerhouse. Whenever you need strength to do a hard job, the 15-30 is willing and always on hand ready for the task. It is built with greater care than enters into the manufacture ot many auomobiles. Thought is given to the comfort of the operator as well as to the perfection of tne work it does. The 15-30 is built to plow at the rate of 3 miles per hour. It has been found in tests that this is the happy medium for plowing, and doing it correctly at a minimum cost. It's a mighty power house on wheels—giving its own power to go where it is needed. No job is too small or too large for it. You should have one of these fine McCormick-Deering Tractors on your farm—it will save you time and money.

Here's to the man who puts things over—but not over the other fellow

Did you ever stop to think that if you got anything you wanted—and the same way with everyone else—there wouldn't be room for anything?

McCORMICK-DEERING TILLAGE IMPLEMENTS

Good tools, intelligently used, will solve your tillage problems. It pays to select tools that have been correctly designed by men who know their business. McCormick-Deering horse disk, tractor disk, peg and spring-tooth harrows, Dunham Culti-Packer. and P. & O. Plows have this distinction—their designers are men who have spent most of their lives on the farm and who know from experience just what is needed to produce a good seed bed. We have a full line of these spring goods here at our store ready for your inspection. Drop in the next time you are in town and look them over. You'll like 'em.

In parts of France and Germany the women out-number the men; and they soon will be here if their aim continues good.

A RELIABLE ENDGATE SEEDER

The Hoosier No. 4 endgate Seeder is the best and most practical endgate seeder made. It is practically double throughout. The force feed rolls, cutoffs, steel distributing wheel seed tubes, driving gears, etc., are in pairs. The extra large grain hopper is easy to fill because it slan... toward the operator and over ... wagon box where no seed wi... wasted. A supplementary grass ... hopper can be supplied for u... sowing alfalfa, timothy, clover, ... other grass seeds. The Hoosier ... 4 endgate seeder has a wide ... from 36 to 40 feet for common ... clover 24 to 28 feet and timoth... to 24 feet. It's easy to sow an ... of oats every five or six minutes ... this machine. The cost is sm... get one from us.

BUY GOOD TWINE

It always pays to buy good tw... It never pays to experiment wit... ferior twine. No man would ... foolish enough to blame his aut... bile for not working properly on ... count of poor gasline, yet some ... ers cuss their binders because ... poor work when the fault is ca... by poor twine. Don't try to sa... cent when buying twine and los... dollar when using it. Buy ... Ball" McCormick twine and get ... value for your money—twine ... will work efficiently in your bi... and bind every bundle.

Service, not price, decides the ... al cost. McCormick-Deering m... ines give the utmost service.

THE KLEMME TIMES

nty-seventh Year—Number 28. Klemme, Iowa, Thursday Afternoon, March 22, 1923. $1.50 In Advance—$2.00 Outside of County

WS OF THE WEEK'S DOINGS AT HIGH SCHOOL

OR LIST, LAST SIX WEEK

rs .Again .Lead .the .High School and Grades

e to the Literary Program and other work the Honor List ot been made until a late date Juniors again lead the school e average grades and number onor roll according to the en- ent. There are five enrolled in unior class and the entire num- appears on the Honor List. again challenge the other grad- make as good a record as theirs six weeks the Sophomores and man accepted the challenge s seen below they did not beat a Johnson 98%

JUNIORS

e Blank 97½%
nce Elder 97½%
ice Tanner 96½%
es Koerner 96%
(carrying five subjects e average grade for the entire in 97.1%

SOPHOMORES
Enrollment 11
ew Wellemeyer.....97 1-3%
a Schroeder 95½%
ey Barz 94%

FRESHMAN in Barz 97%
Johnson 96½%
nce Behringer 94 3-4%
el Schaeffer 94½%

he seventh and eighth grades no students with grades averag above 90 or90.

eota Ridder handed in her re- ation as school editor Friday ning, and the job has again fall- upon the old editors, Dolores rner and Clarence Elder.

Did You Attend?

he second program of the High ol Literary Association was held the High school Friday evening program proved to be a real en- ainment and all those taking did very well. The High School packed to its capacity and quite umber were required to stand. did not have the stage facilities er schools have, but on the whole program was a success.

The High School and Grades in- you to call again.

No School

No school was held last Thursday city water was turned off Wed- day afternoon and it was impossi- to get any water at the school. day morning the drayman brot en large cream cans filled with er and we again drank from the fashioned tin cup. As the wat- was still turned off Monday, wat- was hauled up to the school Sun- and Monday morning.

Many Absences

When school was called Monday rning, only twenty students were sent in the high school assembly. en of the pupils from the coun- came in tardy and in the after- n several of the students from country were present. The large mber of absences were due to bad ds and cold weather.

We Have Company

The high school has been enjoy visits from its former students o are attending high school at rner this year. Howard Wiles d Adolph Lauritzen were callers iday morning; Edna Bergmann d Pearl Johnson were visitors on nday morning; and Ella Barz was caller Monday afternoon. We ght say that we are glad to have e people call and extend a hearty vitation for you to come.

Freshman Class Meeting

The freshmen held a class meet- g Friday evening after school. The esident had already been elected an early meeting but the other fices were not filled. Following e the new officers of the class: ice President, Frank Gibbs; Treas- er, Richard Ax and secretary, Harl Gimer; and Mabel Schaff- is the President of the class. The eshmen have a large enrollment d a fine group of officers. They ght to have some real live meet- gs and good times.

Freshmen Study About Iowa

The Freshman class in Community Civics have been studying about some interesting facts of Iowa. Such as its origin, location, length of its growing season, rainfall and glacial drift.

They have prepared a list of about forty different places in Iowa where people can go and spend a day or longer sight seeing. Why go out of our own state to see sights "See Iowa First."

Law Class Study Contracts

For the last two weeks the Practical Law has been studying Contracts in detail. This is a very important part of every business, for scarcely anybody can live without making a contract.

Association Elect Officers

Tuesday morning the Literary Association met to elect ocicers for the next six weeks. The term of office in this Student Body is six weeks. No student can be elected to office who has taken a part in the Association before. As the time was limited only the president and vice-president were elected. The meting was then adjourned. Alvina Buss was elected president; and Richard Ax vice-president.

The Physical Geography Class

The Physical Geography class has taken up the study of the atmosphere. Such things as clouds, rainfall and temperature are taken up and studied in detail. This is a very interesting class although some of the brilliant Sophomores think it is a little dense. They also have some laboratory work on volcanoes and earthquakes to prepare and hand in during this six weeks period. There are approximately sixty references to look up in this work.

"As You Like It."

Some of the people like it fine and others say its so dry the leaves rattle. "As You Like It," is a play written by Shakespeare. The American Literature Class are reading it and also writing a brief paraphase of the story.

DOINGS OF THE GRAMMAR ROOM

St. Patrick's Day

The Grammar Room was entertained to a St. Patricks party Friday evening in the First National Bank basement. Their teacher, Miss Sara Smith acted as hostess. Miss Everest was also present. All the student enjoyed themselves very much and reports show that they had a very good time.

Large Class

The Seventh Grade had a large attendance Monday morning. One student reported. The great many absences were due to the bad weather and sickness.

They're Hard Workers

That the Eighth grade are industrious, has been proven. Their teacher, Miss Smith, thought her bright pupils might be further enlightened, and that their mentality might be increased and for other unknown reasons has assigned to them a short (or maybe it's long) poem to learn. The title of it is "Self Dependence." We don't know if the students used self-dependence in learning it or not, but they have ben learning it for two days up to date and haven't it near learned yet. One more day has been allowed for them to have it learned, and are put under the penalty of having to stay after school until they know it if they don't have it committed to memory in that time.

The value of milk consumed on farms in 1922 was nearly equal to the value of the milk sold, according to estimates of the United States Department of Agriculure. The farm value of milk sold is estimated at $722,000,000 and of milk consumed on farms at $636,000,000.

Wool is produced in every state in the Union, according to reports of the United States Department of Agriculture. In 1922 production totaled 219,095,000 pounds (not including pulled wool) compared with 225,546,000 pounds in 1921. Wyoming and Texas led in production in 1922, having produced 22,500,000 pounds and 19,300,000 pounds, respectively.

DAWN

(From the Kansas City Star)

Far in the east a tinted glow is seen
That steals upon the darkness unaware,
Dimming the luster of the shining stars,
Filling the sky with beauty rosy, fair;
A moment more and gorgeous tints appear,
A flame of gold lies on the high hill's crest,
The dusky veil of night has been dissolved
And all the twinkling stars have sought their rest;
A million dancing sunbeams wend their way
To stream and lake and shining windowpane,
Waking the sleeping earth to life anew,
Telling the news that day is here again.

—Katherine Edelman.

Popular Young Couple Of This City Were Married Tuesday

At high noon Tuesday, March the 20th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe E. Johnson, occured the wedding of their daughter. Miss Maybelle, to Mr. Arthur Kudje.

As the strains of Mendelsohn's Wedding March was being played by Mrs. Clarence Johnson, the wedding party descended the stairway into the living room, taking their place beneath an arch. They were preceded by Irene Johnson, dressed in yellow satin carrying a satin pillow with two rings, she was followed by the minister, Rev. A. B. Gedye, the Bride and Groom, Mr. Fred Holch as Best Man and Miss Mildred Johnson as Bridesmaid. The bridal party was then followed in order by the parents of the Bride and the wedding guests.

At the appointed time Rev. A. B. Gedye read the double ring service of the Methodist Episcopal church which united the happy young couple as man and wife, after which congratulations were offered Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kudje.

The Bride wore a yellow satin dress trimmed in silk Spanish lace, with a corsage of golden grapes and carried a bridal bouquet of Columbia Pink Roses with white streamers.

The Bridtsmaid wore a beautiful gown of black satin.

The Groom was attired in the conventional blue broadcloth, with a bouquet of sweetpeas. The Best Man was also attired in blue.

After the wedding a sumptuous wedding dinner was served by the hostess. The table was decorated in yellow, with yellow ribbon streamers radiating from the chandelier above to each of the guest's places. In the center of the table was placed a wedding cake on which was placed an ornament in the image of a dove with two rings. A large bouquet of red roses also adorned the table.

The Bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe E. Johnson, of this city, and is a young lady of a most pleasing disposition; she is talented in music as well as in the culinary art. She is popular with her many young friends and former school mates and we are sure she will make the man of her choice an ideal wife.

Mr. Kudje has only been in Klemme for a little less than a year. His parents reside at Britt. Since coming to Klemme he has been assisting in the First National Bank. He has made a large number of friends while in Klemme. He is a rather quiet and unassuming sort of a man but has those qualities which mark him as being a man of sterling worth and one who has a way of winning true friends. He will be a most worthy husband for the young lady who has embarked on life's matrimonial sea as his helpmate.

The young couple will soon go to housekeeping in the Chas. F. Keraus home, which they have rented, as Mr. and Mrs. Keraus will soon leave for the summer at their Clear Lake cottage.

Those who were present at the wedding, besides Joe Johnson and family of Klemme, were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Johnson; Mr. and Mrs. George Johnson; John Johnson and family; Mrs. John Etchen; Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Keraus; Mr and Mrs. W. C Keraus; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Waterman; Rev. A. B. Gedye and family; Miss Adna Church and Miss Dolores Koerner, all of Klemme and vicinity. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jacobek, and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Urich, of Garner. The ladies are sisters of the groom. His parents of Britt were unable to be present at the wedding.

The evening of the wedding a charivari crowd of approximately one hundred men, women, boys and girls gathered at the Johnson home to offer their pleasing "music" to the bride and groom. With a little effort on the cans, horns and rattles the desired tune finally reached the ears of those newly-weds and the crowd was treated to ice cream and cake for the ladies and the men lit up cigars given by the groom, and as Mr. and Mrs. Johnson had cake enough to feed an army the men were also let in on that treat.

The bride and groom were then give a sight-seeing trip on a two-wheeled cart through Main Street, as is usually the custom here.

The Times wishes to join with the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Kudje in wishing them happiness and prosperity in their wedded life.

Spring opened yesterday, March 21st, according to the calendar. But it is hard to realize that it is spring and sill a lo of snow on the ground.

TOWN MUNICIPAL ELECTION TO BE HELD MONDAY

Evelyn Katherine Klotchbach

Evelyn Katherine, beloved infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Levi Klotchbach, born January 22, 1923, baptised March 3rd and died Saturday afternoon, March 17th; aged 7 weeks and 5 days.

Those who mourn her passing are father and mother, sister Iola, three brothers. Allen, Floyd and Walter; grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sampson, grandmother Mrs. Klotchbach, Sr., and many other relatives.

"My Bud In Heaven"

A bud the Gardener gave me.
A fair bud and darling child,
He gave it to my keeping,
To cherish unefiled;
It lay upon my bosom,
It was my hope, my pride;
Perhaps it was an idol
Which I must be denied.

For just as it was opening
In glory to the day,
Came down the heavenly Gardener
And took the bud away.
Yet not in wrath He took it,
A smile was on his face;
And tenderly and kindly
He bore it from its place.

Fear not, methought he whispered,
Thy bud shall be restored,
I take it but to plant it
In the garden of my Lord.
Then bid me not to sorrow,
As those who hopeless weep,
For He who gave hath taken,
And He who took can keep.

And night and morn together.
By the open gate of prayer,
I'll go unto my darling,
And sit beside her there.
I know 'twill open for me,
Unworthy tho' I be,
For His dear sake who keeps it
And keeps my bud for me.

Card of Thanks

We sincerely express our thanks to all who kindly helped us during the illness and death of our baby daughter and sister, and for the floral offrings; also thanking the various social and religious organizations for their help and sympathy.

Levi Klotchbach and family.

---

29 OUT OF 40 CATTLE BUTCHERED SHOWN TO BE VICTIMS OF T. B.

DUBUQUE—The widespread ravages of bovine tuberculosis in Dubuque county were graphically shown by tests recently completed at the Union slaughterhouse here, when, out of a herd of 40 cattle, 29 were found to be affected with the disease. The high total indicates the need of testing cattle of the county, according to N. G. Malin, county agent. Already several herd owners have applied for the tests. A large number of Dubuque county cattle feeders were present at the time the slaughter house tests were made.

"The Iowa commission of animal health has recommended an appropriation of $650,000 a year for the next two years to carry on the work of testing for tuberculosis, and that is the smallest sum which should be given any consideration," E. J. Kerr, federal state veterinarian who conducted the tests stated. According to Mr. Kerr the state would not err in appropriaing a full million dollars for the work.

---

o o o o o o o o o o
o CAMP FIRE GIRLS o
o o o o o o o o o o

The Camp Fire Girls gave Maybelle Johnson (Mrs. Arhur Kudje) a very delightful surprise last Thursday evening.

The surprise consisted of a towel shower. Maybelle received many beautiful towels and other useful presnts.

After a round of good party games which everyone enjoyed, Leona Lau, Dolores Koerner. and Gertrude Johnson served a delicious lunch, which everyone greeted with delight.

Though everyone of the girls brot a towel, we wondered why we should give them to Maybelle, but on Tuesday, March 20th, our puzzle was solved.

We wish you all the happiness in the world "Walohi."

TWO TICKETS ON BALLOT THIS YEAR AGAIN

Citizens Ticket Complete; Peoples Ticket Lacks Councilman

A BIG TURN-OUT LOOKED FOR

All kinds of excitement in the old burg this spring! First came the question of building a new school house, or an addition on the old one. It stirred up a lot of excitement and the addition project won out in that case. Next on the line came the election for directors and that also stirred out a goodly number of voters.

So far nobody has lost their shirt, but keep it on—Monday is town election and that always causes a big bunch of excitement, so keep your shirt on and don't make any foolish bets.

At the election Monday, which is to be held at the Town Hall which is located on the corner of 2nd and Hancock Streets (look it up or ask the cop where it is) and at the hour of 8:00 A. M. some bird will begin to shout "Hear Ye! Hear Ye! the polls are now open! And they will remain open until 7:00 P. M. and so everyone should have a chance to vote.

Following is the line-up on the two tickets, and if we were just in the newspaper business for fun we would tell you how to vote. This year a blind man could mark the ballot and no matter where he made a cross he would vote for a good man—maybe.

CITIZENS TICKET
—For Mayor, vote for one
F. J. WENCK
—For Councilmen, vote for five
A. D. GIMER
Wm. SMITH
JOE JOHNSON
GEO. ULRICH
Wm. BACHMAN
—For Treasurer, vote for one
C. G. WATERMAN
—For Assessor, vote for one
LOUIS SAMPSON

PEOPLES TICKET
—For Mayor, vote for one
FRANK GRUETZMACHER
—For Councilmen, vote for five
PAUL GRANGE
VALENTINE JOSTEN
M. O BARR
C. A. LARSEN
.....
—For Treasurer, vote for one
C. G. WATRMAN
—For Assessor, vote for one
LOUIS SAMPSON

Elsewhere in this issue we are publishing a sample ballot, an exact reproduction (excpt the heading which on the ballot will read "'Official Ballot.")

With the sample ballot you can practice up on voting, and incidently friend wife can show hubby how to vote, as there have been more spoiled ballots lately by the men than the women, which shows that the ladies study the ballot and are sure just how to vote before they go to the polls.

BUILD NEW FLYING FIELD FOR THE NAVY

One of the finest naval experimental flying fields in the country is now under construction on a track near the Philadelphia navy yard.

The field will be about 3,300 feet long and 1,500 feet wide, according to Admiral F. R. Harrison, in charge of the work.

When the project was first begun it was planned only to prepare a 30 acre field, which would have been in readiness this spring, but the original plan was extended until the field will embrace 110 acres.

Much of the increased acreage will be obtained by filling in the back of the eastern part of the yard. Material taken from the channel used by boats will be used for filling in the eastern end. Dredging machines are now engaged in the work. The new field will be completed by the spring of 1924.

BISHOP WOULD BAR DIVORCES

Manning Says Present System Will Eventually Abolish Marriage.

FAMILY LIFE IS AT STAKE

Episcopal Church Head Says Institution Should Change Laws So That No One Could Be Married Who Has Living Mate.

New York, March 17.—Bishop William T. Manning in a Lenten address declared that to allow men and women to live together for a time and then with legal sanction to separate and form new alliances as often as they please is in principle to abolish marriage and to adopt a system of legalized free love.

The bishop's topic was "The Peril of Easy Divorce to Our Life as a Nation."

"It is worthy of notice that those who seek to break down and destroy the life of the church seek also to destroy the institutions of marriage and the family," remarked the bishop.

Dr. Manning declared the Episcopal church should change her laws so that no one could be married at her altars who has a husband or wife living, which is the law of the Roman Catholic church. At present the Episcopal church has a canon forbidding one of her clergy to officiate at the marriage of a man or woman who has a wife or husband living unless the applicant was the innocent party in a divorce for infidelity, and then only after the bishop and the diocesan lawyer have given their consent.

"We must not think in hard and unsympathetic spirit of the human sufferings connected with this question, but on the other hand we must not allow our feelings to make us unmindful of the supreme moral principles involved," said the bishop.

"Let me say at once that separation of man and wife is not forbidden by the church. The church in some cases even advises this. It is divorce and remarriage which the church opposes and which is bringing such disastrous consequences upon us.

"The institution of the family based in monogamic marriages is the supreme possession that man has won through all the long ages of his moral and spiritual progress. And yet as a nation we are traveling on a course which is undermining and sapping the life of this institution.

"It is a simple fact that as a nation we are rapidly abandoning the principle of monogamic marriage. The proportion of divorce to marriages has reached figures that are appalling."

FAT HOOTCH MINER STICKS

Hole Too Small, So Dry Officers Grab Whole Crew and Close Pity Me Shaft.

Pomeroy, Ohio, March 17.—The Red Bird mine at Pity Me, in this county, was closed because of a lack of miners. Eighteen miners are in jail here on a charge of making moonshine. The miners are alleged to have walled up a section of an abandoned mine with fallen slate and equipped it to manufacture liquor on a large scale. When half a dozen officers crawled into the mine the first of the miners to reach the exit hole was so fat that he stuck and the officers captured the entire crew.

PRESIDENT IS TAXED $17,990

Harding Turns in First Full Year Report Under Law Making Executive Salary Taxable.

Columbus, O., March 15.—The first full year income tax return ever filed by a President of the United States is in the local internal revenue office—President Harding's report for 1922. An amendment to the law making the President's salary taxable went into effect when Harding took office.

Revenue statisticians figured Mr. Harding will pay $17,990 on his $75,000 a year.

BRITAIN PAYS $4,128,085.74

First Payment Under Funding Treaty Leaves $4,600,000,000 Due to United States.

Washington, March 16.—The British government turned over to the Federal Reserve bank in New York $4,128,085.74, representing the first payment under the new funding agreement upon its debt to the United States incurred during the war. With the payment of this amount the British government owes this country exactly $4,600,000,000.

Swiss Army Cost 80,000,000 Francs.

Geneva, Switzerland, March 17.—The cost of Switzerland's military forces last year amounted to 80,000,000 francs, approximately 20 francs per capita, according to statistics made public here.

Uruguay Moves Troops.

Montevideo, Uruguay, March 17.—The Uruguayan government has decided to send troops for the protection of its Brazilian frontier in view of the actions of rebels in the Rio Grande do Sul, the southernmost state of Brazil.

RICHARD M. TOBIN

Richard M. Tobin of San Francisco, Cal., who has been appointed United States minister to the Netherlands, succeeding William Phillips, who becomes undersecretary of state. During the war Tobin served as a lieutenant in the United States navy, acting as cable censor in the intelligence service in Paris. Subsequently he was an attache at the American embassy in Paris.

GERMAN PEACE OFFER

Berlin Intimates She Is Ready for Settlement.

Would Pawn Industries for Huge International Loan—Proposal Backed by Industrialists.

London, March 15.—Germany is about to make a declaration that she is willing and ready to produce a plan for the final settlement of the reparations question, provided she can rely on the plan receiving consideration of the allied governments, says the Daily Telegraph's correspondent.

The Daily Telegraph says the fullest reliance may be placed on the information.

According to the correspondent, the plan, which involves a material guarantee by the German industrialists, will not be disclosed until the German government is assured that it will not be brushed aside without serious examination, as happened to Karl Bergman's propositions in London in December and in Paris in January.

Unofficial or semiofficial envoys from Berlin, says the correspondent, recently caused inquiries to be made of the British cabinet whether the cabinet would not take the lead by suggesting that a concrete offer from Germany would be welcomed in London.

British statesmen were reluctant to commit themselves.

The proceeds of the loan, estimated at 20,000,000,000 gold marks ($5,000,000,000), would be the initial installment toward whatever reparations figure the experts fixed.

FINDS ONE OF WETTEST SPOTS

U. S. Federal Prohibition Commissioner Haynes Says Detroit Is a Very Moist City.

Detroit, Mich., March 15.—Detroit is one of the "wettest spots" in the United States, Federal Prohibition Commissioner Haynes said here. "I will increase federal prohibition forces to whatever size you may think necessary," he told James R. Davis, in charge of the Detroit office.

BOOTLEGGER HAS AN ALIBI

Says Names of Washington Citizens Not Liquor Customers, but Auto Sale Prospects.

Washington, March 15.—The Washngton bootlegger, whose recent arrest was followed by publication of a list of names of prominent citizens, army any navy officers and officials of the State department found in his possession, now explains that these were not names of his liquor customers but a list of automobile sale prospects.

SALT WATER RUINS OIL?

Standard Man Says Mexican Fields Damaged to Extent of $250,000,000.

New York, March 16.—A. C. Bedford, chairman of the board of directors of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, believes salt water has invaded the Mexican oil fields to such an extent American oil companies face a collective loss of at least half their original $500,000,000 investment.

Steel Plants Busy.

New York, March 17.—Operations of leading steel companies are at the highest point in three years, according to reports compiled here. The United States Steel corporation is operating at close to 92 per cent of capacity.

U. S. to Issue More Stamps.

Washington, March 17.—The Post Office department will issue four more stamps of the complete new series on March 20. With the new issue, 17 of the series of 21 denominations will have been issued

INCOMES IN U. S. ARE UP MILLIONS

Tax Receipts Are Estimated at $400,000,000 by Treasury Department.

REFLECTS 1922 PROSPERITY

Year's Collections Expected to Exceed $1,500,000,000—Settlement of Back Taxes Continues to Net About $32,000,000 a Month.

Washington, March 16.—Tangible evidence of the revival of business and the return of prosperity are contained in the income tax returns for 1922, according to estimates of the Treasury department.

Conservative estimates prepared by the actuaries of the department indicate the return which closed last night will approximate $400,000,000, or about $7,000,000 more than for the first quarter of last year.

Later information from the large financial centers, New York, Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia, indicated that this estimate may be exceeded greatly.

The indications now would appear to be that the collections for the entire year 1923, based on business done in 1922, will approximate and probably exceed $1,500,000,000.

The day's reports are taken to mean that prosperity is more generally distributed, earning power has increased, industry is more prosperous, and that on the whole the prospect for business future is rosy.

The Treasury department is anticipating continued returns from the settlement of back tax claims growing out of the war period. Settlement of these claims, it is expected, will continue to net the government about $32,000,000 a month.

BERLIN'S REPARATION OFFER

Would Pay $10,000,000,000 in Gold to Free Ruhr, Says Report.

Berlin, March 16.—Germany's new reparation offer to France was taken to Switzerland directly and was handed to a French emissary there.

Whether Leopold Dubois, the Swiss economist, acted as intermediary, as was previously suggested, cannot be definitely ascertained. The offer carried totals of more than 40,000,000,000 gold marks ($10,000,000,000), considerably higher than Chancellor Cuno's Paris offer.

BIG DEAL MADE BY RADIO

New York $1,200,000 Building Sold by Wireless Telephone—Owner Cruising Mediterranean.

New York, March 15.—A $1,200,000 real estate deal was completed by radio after E. Clifford Potter, cruising in the Mediterranean aboard the Adriatic, had "sat in" with his colleagues in discussions of the deal in this city. By the long-distance wireless transaction, the seven-story office building at Broadway and Thirtieth street was sold to the Amri Realty company.

TURK FLAG IN JERUSALEM

Arabs Carry Emblem in Procession in Connection With Strike Demonstration—Several Wounded.

Jerusalem, March 17.—The Turkish flag was flown here during a procession held in connection with a strike called by the Arab leaders to celebrate the success of the recent Arab boycott of the legislative council elections. British troops dispersed the paraders. Several Arabs and a few native policemen were wounded.

SENATOR READ OUT OF PARTY

Washington National Republican, Semi-Official Organ, Criticizes Brookhart's Economic Views.

Washington, March 17.—Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa was read out of the Republican party by the National Republican, semi-official organ of the Republican national committee, in an article referring to the senator's economic views.

SHIPPED TO 53 COUNTRIES

American Collar Is Literally Around the Neck of the World, Statistics Show.

Washington, March 16.—The American collar is literally around the neck of the world. Exports of collars and cuffs to 53 countries in 1922 aggregated 2,554,536 single articles or 212,878 dozens, valued at $348,646.

$1,000,000 Fire in Montreal.

Montreal, March 17.—Damage of $1,000,000 was done by fire which destroyed the Catholic home for incurables. A woman inmate died of shock. The fire was the fourteenth to destroy a catholic institution this year.

Kamchatka Oil Fields Reported.

Vladivostok, March 17.—Oil fields of greater value than those of Baku are reported to have been discovered in Kamchatka. A commission of experts has been sent by the government to make a report.

EARLE B. MAYFIELD

Earle B. Mayfield is the new senator from Texas. He is a Democrat.

U. S. MARKET REPORT

Weekly Marketgram by Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Washington.—For the week ending March 15.—GRAIN—Chicago cash market: No. 2 red winter wheat, $1.30; No. 2 hard winter wheat, $1.20; No. 2 mixed corn, 74c; No. 2 yellow corn, 74c; No. 3 white oats, 45c. Average farm prices: No. 2 mixed corn in central Iowa, 61c; No. 2 hard winter wheat in central Kansas, $1.02; No. 1 dark northern wheat in central North Dakota, $1.01.

HAY—No. 1 timothy, Cincinnati, $19.50; Chicago, $22; Minneapolis, $16; St. Louis, $20; No. 1 prairie Minneapolis, $15.50; St. Louis, $17.

FEED—Bran, $28; middlings, $27.75; flour middlings, $29.50, Minneapolis; gluten feed, $42.65, Chicago; 33 per cent linseed meal, $46, Minneapolis; white hominy feed, $29, Chicago; $29.50, St. Louis.

DAIRY PRODUCTS—Butter, 92 score at Chicago, 49½c; Cheese at Wisconsin primary markets: Flats, 23c; twins, 22¾c; daisies, 22¾c; double daisies, 22½c; young Americas, 24c; longhorns, 23¾c; square prints, 25½c.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES—Sacked round white potatoes, $1.65@1.80 per 100-lbs in consuming markets, $1.25@1.30 f. o. b. Northern stock, $1.00@1.10 in Chicago, 75@80c f. o. b. Baldwin apples and greenings, $4.75@5.50 per bbl. Northwestern extra fancy boxed winesaps, $2.25@2.75 per box. Barrel stock, $4.75@5.00 at shipping points. Onions, midwestern yellow varieties, $3.25@4.00 per 100-lb sack. Florida pointed cabbage, $3.00@3.50 per 1½ bu. hamper. Texas flat dutch $90@$110 per ton. Danish mostly, $40.00@60.00. Florida celery, $2.25@3.00 per crate in leading markets, $1.40@1.65 f. o. b. Texas spinach, 75c@$1.50 per bu. basket.

LIVE STOCK—Chicago prices: Hogs, top, $8.70; bulk of sales, $8.00@8.60; medium and good beef steers, $8.10@9.85; butcher cows and heifers, $4.50@9.85; feeder steers, $6.35@8.35; light and medium weight calves, $8.00@11.00; fat lambs, $13.25@14.75; feeding lambs, $13.25@15.00; yearlings, $9.75@13.50; fat ewes, $6.50@8.75.

WINDSTORM DESTROYS TOWN

Savage, Miss., Is Hit by Cyclone for Second Time in Two Months.

Crenshaw, Miss., March 16.—One man was probably fatally hurt, several persons are believed dead, more than a score were injured, and the little town of Savage, a few miles north of here, was destroyed for the second time in two months, as a result of a cyclone which swept this section.

STERILIZATION BILL SIGNED

Governor of Montana Approves Measure for Operation on Idiots and Insane.

Helena, Mont., March 16.—The "sterilization bill," providing for sterilization of congenital idiots and insane confined in institutions upon the consent of the guardian and of the custodial officers, passed by the legislature recently, was signed by Governor Dixon.

GERMAN PEOPLE WANT PEACE

There Is Maze of Statements and Counter-Statements, but Berlin's Ready to Negotiate.

Berlin, March 17.—From the maze of statements, counter-statements, denials and reaffirmations which cloud Berlin's political atmosphere here one outstanding fact emerges. Germany is ready for negotiations, and the sooner they come the better pleased will be the bulk of the German people.

WISCONSIN TO HAVE RECALL

State Senate Passes Measure 17 to 12—Would Affect All Elective Officers.

Madison, Wis., March 15.—An amendment to the state constitution to permit the popular recall of all elective officers in Wisconsin, including judges, was approved by the senate, 17 to 12.

Plunges Over Niagara Falls.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., March 16.—A woman leaped into the river about thirty feet above the brink of the American falls and was swept to death over the cataract. She was apparently about twenty-five years old.

Triumvirate Rules Russia.

Berlin, March 16.—Reports reaching here from Moscow are to the effect that a triumvirate composed of Rykoff, Kameneff and Krassin has taken over control of the Russian government.

LEGISLATIVE NEWS

The reporting out by the senate ways and means committee of the first three bills changing the taxation code drawn by the joint legislative committee on taxation—although without recommendation—is the most singular thing and probably action leading to the most sweeping change the fortieth general assembly could make. Indeed it has frequently been said that if this legislature had met, passed these three bills and gone home, the session would have been of immensely great value.

There has been more time spent on these three bills than on any other subject of legislation before the assembly to date, and their reporting out by the senate committee is a distinct advance in worth while legislation. The bill may not pass—sentiment is equally divided or against them now—but they have strong support from many quarters. The house committee probably will stop action on them since they will get before the legislature through the senate.

The three bills set up a new system of levying, collecting and spending taxes.

The first one establishes a state board of assessment and review, consisting of three members appointed by the governor and confirmed by the senate, for a term of six years. It provides for the appointment of a county assessor in each county, who assumes the duties now required of the county auditor and local assessors. The assessor would be appointed by a board composed of the chairman of the county board of supervisors, the county auditor and the county treasurer. Assessment of all property at full value, providing adequate safeguards against increase in tax burden, is also a feature of the bill.

The second one establishes a state budget system, with an ex-officio board of assessment and review, the chairmen of the appropriations and ways and means committee of the house and senate, the auditor of state and the governor, who would serve as chairman.

The third establishes local budget committees, consisting of county, town or township boards, with an equal number of property owners, who would prepare estimates of expenditures, giving full publicity to such estimates with provision for hearings and appeal.

Another road bill which finally went up to the governor after being a subject of considerable discussion was the Fackler bill, permitting the payment for rights of way for primary road relocations out of the primary road fund. The bill passed both houses without any great difficulty. In the senate it was amended to allow boards of supervisors to have paid back into their county road funds money extended in former years for purchase of primary road rights of way out of the county road fund.

This amendment was accepted by unanimous vote in the senate. Then some senators got scared and thought of what dire consequences might follow. But the house knew what it was doing and the amendment was concurred in without difficulty.

Aside from this bill highway legislation has been at a standstill since recess. The house highway committee, however, is about ready to report out its first bill—a gasoline tax measure which will take the place of the existing 2 mill county road fund levy and the 2 mill township dragging levy. All the revenue from a tax of 2 cents per gallon will be expended on the county and township roads under the provisions of the bill.

There are twenty-one counties in the state which have more than $100,000 in outstanding warrants according to the last published figures of the state auditor. It is customary for county boards to issue warrants in excess of funds and then take them up by bond issues which are retired by tax levies the succeeding year.

The bill which gained the most prominence in the time up to the present was the Tuck bill, which took its place in the sun after it had been passed by both houses.

This bill limits expenditures of county funds to actual collectible revenues in them for the year. It will be signed by the governor in all probability and will become effective July 4th.

Nearly 1350 bills have been introduced in the legislature to date, with the 534 code bills included. The mass of bills means only one thing above all others—that a great number of them will get lost in the shuffle in sifting committee.

Of the bills introduced, 178 have been definitely acted on, 129 have been passed by one house or another and are pending final action, and the balance are either in committee or on their way to passage on the calendar.

The first three bills drafted by the tax committee of the thirty-ninth general assembly, which worked for many months to revise the present tax laws, will be voted out of the joint ways and means committee without recommendation, it was stated recently by Senator Smith of Madison county, chairman of the committee. This was decided upon at a meeting of the committee, but the report was not announced because the bills are not in shape to present to the legislature.

.. Hawkeye State New

Interesting Items Gath... From all Parts of Iow...

A large amount of red clo... be sown by farmers in Union... this year.

A party of business men fr... field are holding revival me... Indianola and are said to be ... ing scores.

Iowa Guernsey Breeders' as... have made plans for a summ... ing and picnic at Dubuque ... day, June 15.

Fifty major industries in ... City report an increase of ... cent in the number of men e... March 1st as compared wi... employed March 1st of last ...

One hundred sixty-four hog... ing 38,580 pounds were ship... week from the Gilmore City ... The hogs sold on the Chica... kets for $1,227.90, or an ave... $7.48.

Peter Neilson, near Greenf... ed farmer, was killed when h... ing caught in the belt of a ... engine. He was the father ... teen children, eleven of wh... living. Seven were in the wo...

By increasing the strength ... solution of formaldehyde used ... treatment of oats for smut to ... of the labor and time form... quired may be eliminated by ... est methods of the Iowa Exp... station.

The Ontjes bill to repeal ... emptions to Iowa soldiers w... its death in the house recent... but one speech on it—that ... author in favor of his bill. ... mustered three cohorts in fav... substitute amendment he pr... but ninety-eight negative vote... cast.

Harrison W. Huegle, 64 ye... veteran Des Moines druggist, ... a bandit in his store at Eas... teenth and Lyon streets ... died three days later at a h... after a fight for life which ph... cian declared was the most r... able exhibition of gameness ... ever seen.

"The University of Iowa h... complished a wonderful feat ... ing up an educational institu... is known throughout the w... said President John G. Bow... the University of Pittsburgh ... recent visit to the university ... of the most remarkable feat... the university," continued Pr... Bowman, "is the development ... of the finest medical colleges ... world in such a small town."

Quickly swinging a wire ... body of his fellow workman w... hurtling headfirst from the t... forty-foot smokestack above th... of the Rock Island roundhou... Council Bluffs, Clarence Speer ... ably saved the life of Charles ... tleman, 36, when he caused th... to strike the wire and so turn... body that instead of lighting ... first on the ground Ettleman ... on his back on the roundhous...

Iowa is making a faster recov... agriculture than any other st... cept the cotton states, Henry C... lace, secretary of agriculture ... nounced recently on arriving ... Moines for a short stop at h... his way west on department ... ness. The new farm credits la... materially aid agriculture, he ... lieves, for it will tap the pool ... vestment money for agricultur... dit purposes and make possible ... coinciding with the farm turn...

About two-thirds of Iowa's ... tries are now electrified, acc... to figures received by the Iowa ... mittee on Public Utility Infor... The rapidity with which indus... abandoning private steam gen... plants and connecting up wi... central generating station is ... by the figures. In 1915 there ... 16,300 motors in Iowa ind... plants served by central stati... 1922 there were 26,900. In a... there were 4,000 motors in ind... plants which generate their ow... ergy.

That prices of livestock ar... on the decrease is shown by ... paid recently by Tama county ... mers at different sales. John ... of Traer sold eight head of ... horn dairy cows to farmers ... Traer for an average of $1... head. At Art Runft's sale near ... beck, recently, purebred C... Whites sold for an average ... and the top price was $540. ... & Son of Toledo recently bou... brood sow at a sale for $85. ... Bruene of Beaman paid $145 f... sow, W. T. Cold of Lincoln paid ... 50 for one, and T. V. Gunder ... ledo $102.50 each for two.

Death has claimed the wid... one of the famous Iowa soldi... the civil war, Mrs. Elizabeth Bo... of Burlington, who was the w... Sargeant Nicholas S. Mouquet, ... bearer of the Twenty-fifth Iow... fantry.

Two cow testing associations ... been formed by groups of farm... Jones county. One will includ... mers in the vicinity of Mon... and the other will be compos... those living near Anamosa. Th... sociations have been started b... farm bureau.

NOTICE OF PROBATE OF WILL

STATE OF IOWA,
ss.
Hancock County.

TO ALL TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED, That an instrument of writing purporting to be the last Will and Testament of KATHERINE ULRICH deceased, dated May 6th, 1905, having been this day filed, opened and read, Monday the 7th day of May, 1923 is fixed for hearing proof of same at the Court House in Garner, Iowa, before the District Court of said County or the Clerk of said Court; and at 10:00 o'clock A. M. of the day above mentioned, all persons interested are hereby notified and required to appear, and show cause, if any they have, why said instrument should not be probated and allowed as and for the last Will and Testament of said deceased.

Dated at Garner, Iowa, March 6th, 1923.

(Mr.8-15-22) Clerk of District Court
B. E. ERWIN,

ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned have formed, under the provisions of chap. 122 laws of the Thirty Ninth General Assembly of Iowa, a corporation named the Klemme Cooperative Live Stock Shippers, principle place of business at Klemme, Iowa. The objects of this corporation shall be to buy, sell, handle, market and ship the live stock and other farm products cooperatively for its membership, which is open to all livestock producers, by payment of $1.00 membership fee. Each member is entitled to one vote in all meetings. The corporate period began March 1923, and ends March 1948. The first annual meeting shall be held January 8th, 1924. and each year thereafter on the first Friday following the second Thursday in January. Liabilities of the members for the debts of the Association shall be limited to the membership fee paid. The association shall have power to borrow up to and not over $1,000.00 on a majority vote of all directors.

Management shall consist of five directors, three of which shall serve until the annual meeting in 1925 and two util the annual election in 1924. Succeeding directors shall be elected for two years. The directors shall at their first meeting elect from their own number a president, a vice president and a secretary-treasurer. The two year directors are E. J. Arnold, Herman Priebe and John G. Tanner. The one year directors are Wm. J. Schlawin and John Miller. The president is Wm. J. Schlawin, the vice president is Herman Priebe and the secretary-treasurer is E. J. Arnold.

Signed this 7th day of February, 1923 by Wm. J. Schlawin, John G. Tanner, J. F. Miller, Herman Priebe and E. J. Arnold.

(Mar 22-29 Apr-5-12.)

Send Us Your Name and address on a post card or in a letter and we will mail free and postpaid, a sample copy of the most wonderful magazine published 160 pages and 400 pictures every month, that will entertain every member of the family.

Popular Mechanics MAGAZINE

It contains interesting and instructive articles on the Home, Farm, Shop and Office—the newest developments in Radio, Aviation, Automobile and Garage. Each issue contains something to interest everybody. We do not employ subscription solicitors so you will not be urged to subscribe and you are not obligating yourself in the least in asking for a free sample copy. We gladly send it to prospective readers. If you like it you can buy a copy every month from any newsdealer or send us your subscription—$3.00 for one year.

Popular Mechanics Company
200-214 E. Ontario Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

Popular Mechanics building is devoted exclusively to the production of this great magazine.

Sample Ballot

Municiple Election of the Incorporated Town of Klemme, Iowa, March 26, 1923

Peoples Party

FOR MAYOR
—Vote For One—

☐ FANK GRUETZMACHER

FOR COUNCILMEN
—Vote For Five—

☐ PAUL GRANGE
☐ VALENTINE JOSTEN
☐ M. O. BARR
☐ C. A. LARSEN
☐ .....

FOR TREASURER
—Vote For One—

☐ .....

FOR ASSESSOR
—Vote For One—

☐ .....

Citizens Party

FOR MAYOR
—Vote For One—

☐ F. J. WENCK

FOR COUNCILMEN
—Vote For Five—

☐ A. D. GIMER
☐ WM. SMITH
☐ JOE JOHNSON
☐ GEO. ULRICH
☐ WM. BACHMAN

FOR ASSESSOR
—Vote For One—

☐ LOUIS SAMPSON

FOR TREASURER
—Vote For One—

☐ C. G. WATERMAN

We Serve

FIRST CLASS MEALS and LUNCHES

Home Made Pies
Ice Cream and Soft Drinks
FRESH BREAD EVERY DAY
Candy Cigars Tobacco

The Crystal Cafe

Conrad Quandt, Prop. Klemme, Ia.

"A Good Cafe in a Good Town"

KICKIN' THE DORG AROUND

A Colyum O' Humor By the Office Divvil Hisself

SOME TONGUE TWISTERS

Grafting Gland Grafters. Grafting Glands, Gleaned Grand Gland Graft.

Wielder Wields Wee Wheels, Wielding Wee Wheels Wielder Weakens.

Huge Hugh Hughes Hews Hiram Hodges' Hugest Hedges.

Bessie Blue Blew Bubbles, Buster Blue Busted Bubbles Bessie Blew.

Gay Green - Grey Grasshopper Grabs Gruff Grey-Green Grasshopper's Grub.

Percy Played Plain Poker, Percy Paid Poker Players Plainly.

Six Sick Slick Slackers Sleepily Swept Slippery Ships.

Slowly Stiching Slipstiches Sleepy Stichers Slipstiches Slip.

Slim Sam Slammed Sly Sam So Sam Slew Slim Sam.

She Saw Shy Sue's Son Shun Shy Sue's Sire's Shoes.

Can Catchfish catch cats? Cats can catch Catfish.

Thither Thicker Thistle Thickets Thive Thrice Thicker.

Shiftless Schnitzer snithched Smith's Shiftless Sister's Siftless Sifter.

Better Batter Beats Batter Babe by Better Batter Batting Batter.

Robert. Robbing Robber. Robs Robber Robbing Robert's Rooms.

Juggling Juggler Juggled Juggling ly Jugglinly Jade Jugs.

Will Woolen Warp Woven With Woody Woof Wear Well?

Sitka Sealskin Sellers Sell Sealskins Skilled Skinners Skin.

"Mex Mike Mocks Meek Max; Makes Max Mix.

She Sews Sheets So She Shows Sheets She Sews.

Charlet Catches Carrie's Cat; Cat Catcher Cashes Check.

Could Canny Coue's Curious Cant Cure Class Clash?.

Boss Bosses Bessie but Booze Bosses Boss.

Mother Made Mollie Mop Mes Mollie Made Making Muffins.

Will Willingly Willed Willie Wil's Wild Wiliow.

"DO RIGHT THING" BY AUTO

Constant Service Can Be Had Only By Meeting Motor Needs

Before the Auto owner has a right to demand ever-ready service from his car, he should "do the right thing" by his machine by giving it reasonable care While the most severe weather is now over, the auto will have to be started a good many times yet before the robins are very numerous or before the young's fancy turns to planting corn and garden seed.

Raymond L. McFarland, in charge of automobile instruction at Iowa State College, offers several suggestions for the man who must start his car on chilly mornings. A number of cold weather troubles arise from an excessive use of the choker, according to Mr. McFarland. He says that in making an effort to start his motor the average driver uses the chokertoo much. As a result he says a great deal of unburned fuel its way past the piston and rings and into the oilpump. This not only washes off the lubricating oil, but lessens its lubricative qualities. The storage battery is called upon to give off a high amperage charge in order to start the cold auto engine, as the trips are often short the battery does no have a chance to recharge.

"The Aut Owner," says Mr. McFarland, can relieve himself of much of this trouble if he will appreciate the importance of draining his lubricating oil regurlarily after drivevery 400 or 500 hundred miles. If he will use the choke less, if he will prime the cylinders sparingly. If he will keep the top of the battery clean and free from moisture, if he will step on the starting pedal for a period of ten seconds only, if he will install a drip pan under the engine, if possible, and if he will see that the egniter points are clean and properly adjusted."

STRAWBERRIES BEST SMALL FRUIT FOR HOME GARDENS

Strawberries are so easily handled and require so little room that if only one of the small fruits can be grown in the home garden they should have the preference. New plants for setting out this spring can be purchased at small cost from a nurseryman, or perhaps may be obtained free from a neighbor. In either case, says the United States Department of Agriculture, the bed should contain some plants known as a perfect-blossom variety, otherwise the plants of the imperfect blosom variety in th ebed will not be polinated and consequently will not bear fruit.

Strawberry blosoms are of two kinds. One kind is called perfect, staminate or male, and the other kind imperfect, pistilate, or female. Some varieties have perfect blossoms and other varieties have imperfect blossoms. Those with perfect blosoms produce pollen which will fertilize both perfect and imperfect blosoms and enable them to bear fruit. The varieties with imperfect blossoms can not set fruit without receiving pollen from perfect blosoms.

If both kinds are planted there should be at least one row of the perfect-blosom variety to four rows with imperfect blossoms. The nurseryman's catalog will specify the kind of blossoms. Set the plants early in the spring, if possible, so they will get the benefit of the spring rains and make a strong growth. Trim off the dead leaves and all but one or two live ones and cut the roots to 4 or 5 inches long. Spread the roots somewhat and set the plants the same depth in the soil as they were before they were dug. Be especially careful not to get earth over the growing crowns, for this will probably kill the plants.

The plants may be grown in hills or in narrow or wide matted rows. For very small areas, plants set in hills close together will no doubt produce the most and largest fruit, but will require more care than the matted rows. For hill growing, set the plants 1 foot apart in the row and have the rows just far enough apart to cultivate easily, say from 2 to 3 feet; or set two rows a foot apart in double rows. Keep all the runners cut off and give good cultivation, so as to make extra strong plants.

PLANTING POTATOES BEFORE CORN GIVES BETTER YIELD.

Planting potatoes after the corn has been put in, a practice followed by many Corn Belt farmers, does not produce the best results, according to a five-year experiment conducted cooperatively by the United States Department of Agriculture and the Iowa Experiment Station. The fact that the minimum growing temperature for potatoes is fully 10 degrees lower than for corn would make the reverse of this practice seem advisable, and yields from the plantings made on various dates from early April to the middle of June have proved this contention to be sound. The early planting also has the advantage of an early fall market when prices usually are better than a little later when marketing is in full swing.

In this experiment the Rural New Yorker variety was used and the dates of planting were set at 10-day intervals, beginning April 10. The seasonal rise in temperature reaches the 40-degree line in central Iowa usually a little before the middle of April. The best yields were obtained from plantings made shortly after the temperature passed the 40-degree line. Plantings made after the middle of May produced a successive decline in yield, and between the first and last plantings there was a spread of 65 bushels an acre. The average for the five years for the April plantings was 124.4 bushels and for the plantings made the first half of June 76.2 bushels per acre.

Miss MacElroy, who has been teaching at Cherokee came here Saturday for an over Sunday visit with frinds. She had accepted a position as teacher near Klemme and took up her new duties Monday. —Kanawha Reporter.

In a pinch people ride in patragons.

Kisses are easier to take with a spocn.

Saving common cents is good common sense.

ALWAYS A GROWING CONCERN

Impossible to Set Boundaries That Shall Confine the Growth of the English Language.

William Shakespeare's vocabulary was about 15,500 words. John Milton needed only 8,000 different words for "Paradise Lost," while the Old Testament has fewer than 6,000 different words. Some people use only about 300 different words, and most of us get along with between 2,000 and 3,000. A few years ago some peasants in rural England, farm laborers, were found who used about 300. Prof. Max Muller (1823-1900), the great Oxford philologist, who was perhaps the greatest authority of his age on this subject, put the number of words in the English language at 100,000. "If we include all the words which have fixed places in the dialect of the country," says "The Book of Knowledge," "and include also many which we know were spoken in earlier times, we shall have to put the total at 400,000 for the English language." The number is constantly growing. When a new dictionary was made, some years ago, it was found that the new words necessary for use in relation to electricity and electrical appliances numbered over 4,000. A similar increase had taken place with regard to other arts and sciences.

HOW TO FORETELL WEATHER

Simple Observation All That Is Necessary to Know What the Heavens Will Furnish.

To be a good weather prophet is often a great convenience to yourself and others. Here is a simple and reliable way of telling if rain is coming during the day. As early as possible in the morning go out and search the sky for the smallest cloud that is in sight. Keep this under close observation for five minutes or so and note whether it alters in size. If the cloud gets smaller one can be almost certain of a fine day. On the other hand, if it increases in size, rain will surely come in a few hours. Where the cloud remains the same size no special change in the prevailing weather is likely to take place. If the cloud increases very rapidly thunder is almost a certainty, in the summer. Alteration in the size of clouds is connected with the state of the atmosphere. When the air is very dry and rain is unlikely, the clouds soon vanish; if the atmosphere is charged with moisture, the masses of vapor increase and this will soon be discharged in the form of rain.

Oil-Well Adventure.

An oil well that is being dug to any considerable depth usually has a twenty-inch casing in the upper part and a small, slender man could get down in one of that size. In fact, such a feat was recently performed near Los Angeles by Walter McCay of Taft, Cal., who is known as the "human gopher." A master rotary bushing had been lost in the well and the only way in which it could be got out without destroying the well was to send a man down after it. The tool was lodged at the 110 foot level. McCay was lowered into the well with a one-inch rope and wore a gas mask attached to an oxygen tank from which air was pumped to him constantly. It was necessary for him to make six descents before he succeeded in grappling the lost tool and he spent almost an hour in one of the smallest holes in the ground in which a man ever found himself.

Danish Folk Songs Simple in Style.

The people of Denmark are not as musical as those of the other northern countries. Danish music of importance dates almost entirely from the Nineteenth century. In earlier times Denmark depended on Italian and German musicians for most of her music. Old Danish folk-music is closely related to the Swedish, as these two countries are similar in language and customs. Celtic tunes are also like those of the Danes, due, no doubt, to the Danish invasion of northern Britain. Both in Ireland and Denmark the reel is a popular dance. The Danish folk-songs are simple in style and usually of a gay character. They tell of the sea, the chase and sometimes of love. The usual melancholy of Scandinavian tunes is not so noticeable here.

Startling.

An East-end matron got the shock of her life over the telephone the other day. The lady in question is extremely dignified, and conducts her whole life in keeping with a calm stateliness that is increasing with the whitening of her hair. In her quiet, slow, perfectly self-possessed manner and tone of voice she called the Pennsylvania station, requested "Information," and from the person at the other end of the wire inquired concerning trains to a certain town. Imagine her emotions when said voice flippantly rasped out: "What time of the day do you want to go, girlie?"—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Just Wonders.

"There's a lot of traffic along the road, isn't there?" inquired Will H. Adams, reporter of the Supreme and Appellate courts, of an aged farm woman, as he repaired a tire in the shade of the farmyard while the old woman watched interestedly.

"Yes, they whiz along here from morning to night, every day. I just wonder sometimes who's doing the work up there in town these days."—Indianapolis News.

FIRST M. E. CHURCH

W. C. H. Bergmann, Pastor

Let every Christian man and woman, boy and girl, in Klemme make Palm Sunday a great day for spiritual uplift in their lives by attending service in one of the three churches here. Thereby honoring our Christ as the King of Kings and Lord of Lords, who came into this world and into the hearts of men to save from sin and death.

Morning worship at 10 oclock.
Sunday school at 11 o'clock.
Epworth League at 7:30 o'clock.
Evening worship at 8 o'clock.

With the evening service we begin a series of Passion Week services which will be continued throughout the week.

Rev. A. B. Gedye and his congregation wil join with us in these meetings.

All are invited to attend these meetings throughout the week. The time is 7:45 o'clock.

—W. C. Bergmann.

PURE BRED

Hatching Eggs

Ferris 300 Egg Strain...Single Comb White Leghorn—

Hatching Eggs $3.50
Per 100

H. G. Brunes

Phone 607 Goodell, Iowa

Hatching Eggs

—T—

S. C. W. Leghorn Eggs for Hatching

$3.00 PER HUNDRED

Will have four or five hundred

BABY CHICKS

March 27th. $10.00 a hundred at farm if all are taken.

Rufus Steffen

Britt Phone Kanawha Mail
(7 1-2 miles west of Klemme)

DENTIST
J. L. Hesselhuus, D. D. S.
Office Hours 8-12 1-5:30
Office Opposite State Savings Bank; In Schaffer Bldg.
Evening Work By Appointment Only
Klemme, Ia. Phone 81

Hurry Up

You Still Have Time To Get That Suit Made for Easter

I have possibly a thousand samples from which you may select. The patterns are nifty and the workmanship is first class.

[illegible] wish to pay. Glad to have you come in any time, or if you're too busy [illegible]

SUITS TO YOUR MEASUREMENT AT—
$22.50, $25.00, $30.00

When you see these patterns and the prices you'll be [illegible]

Ladies and [illegible]

[illegible] winter suit or overcoat cleaned and pressed for the next round of winter

[illegible] fine assortment of—

MEN'S and YOUNG MEN'S CAPS

Elegant Materials and beautiful shades, moderate price. Business is good, thank you.

The Men's Fashion Shop

A. W. JOHNSON
GARNER IOWA

GEORGE ZINN, M. D.
Physician and Surgeon
Office opposite from Hotel Klemme
Phone No. 19
Eyes Examined Glasses Fitted

"HEINZ 57"
Ketchup
Week
March 19 to March 24
Come and Sample HEINZ Ketchup FREE. You will say there is none better.
Something New
Heinz Cooked
Macaroni
With Cheese and Mushroom Sauce--try it.
Its one of the 57
J. P. Larsen & Sons
The Klemme Meat Market

116'080 Fords For February
SHORTEST MONTH BRINGS NEW RECORD
Acute Situation Certain As 6,000 Cars a Day Production Fails to Meet The Demand.—

Ford
THE UNIVERSAL CAR

DETROIT, Mich.—With 166,080 FORD CARS sold at retail in February a new record for the shortest month in the year has been established. February sales exceeded those of January by more than 15,000 and marked the eleventh month in which FORD sales have topped the 100,000 line.

This sales record bears out predictions made at the opening of the year that an acute shortage in FORD Cars is certain and this shortage is expected to be felt within the next two months with the increased volume of car buying which is always attendant upon the spring months.

Even the high production schedule set at the Ford Motor Co.'s factory here, which will reach 6,000 cars and trucks a day about April 1st, will be unable to meet the apparent demand for Ford products.

Anticipating a great increase in the demand for FORD Cars during the present year the factory here laid plans for increasing production to the 6,000 car a day schedule and since Jan. 1st had been constantly speeding up manufacture to reach this figure. Demand so far has been of such great proportions as to absorb nearly all production, and stocks in hands of dealers at present the lowest they have been in months.

February sales of 116,080 cars were made in the face of unfavorable weather conditions in many sections of the country which tied up freight traic and prevented many deliveries. This was particularly true thruout the Northwest, the northern tier of states and in New England. In California, too, cold weather during a part of the month had its effect upon car sales.

Yet with even these unfavorable conditions, the February sales topped those of January by 15 per cent and set a new high record for mid-winter selling.

With February the eleventh month in which FORD Car sales have gone over the 100,000, the total for this period is close to 1,250,000 cars.

Peak car sales usually are reached during the summer months with drops in the fall and winter. This feature of automobile absorption by the buying public has been completely changed during the last few months thru the activities of the FORD dealer organization which has raised the "peak" line to include every month in the year.

Greimann Motor Company

SHEETS AGAIN HEADS FAIR ASSOCIATION.

Nutty Will Again Act As Secretary and Fair Will Take Place on August 28, 29, 30 and 31

AUDITING COMMITTEE IS NAMED

The annual question "will thre be a fair this year" was definitely settled Wednesday afternoon when the stockholders of the Hancock County Agricultural Association met in annual session for the purpose of going over the business of the past year, electing new officers and entering into plans to carry out the annual show in August.

The meeting was called to order by President Sheets, reports were read and approved and a general discussion entered into. An auditing committee of three men, H. R. Brooks, W. H. C. Schubert and M. S. Burgitt, was named to go over the books and they will make a report at a later meeting.

Election of officers being in order John Sheets was made president, J. M. Townsend, vice president, Antony Baker, treasurer. The board of directors consists of nine good men, viz: M. S. Burgitt, Antony Baker, J. M. Townsend, J. C. Sheets, E. A. Fisher, C. W. Erwin, Ren Smith, Will Nail and R. A. Wing.

The new board held a meeting immediately after adjournment of the stockholder's meeting. They named August 28, 29, 30 and 31, 1923, as the dates for holding the annual fair.

The matter of races was discussed. There will be a 2:25 trot, 2:20 trot, 2:16 trot, 2:25 pace, 2:17 pace, 2:12 pace and a 3-year-old pace or trot. The county running race and pony races will be a feature as in former years.

J. C. Sheets, L. T. Nutty and M. S. Burgitt were appointed a committee to book attractios and they were asked to attend the Fort Dodge meeting of fair men the latter part of March. Exhibits will be looked after by Secretary Nutty and such lieutenants as may be selected later.—The Britt News-Tribune.

JUDGE CLARK HOLDS COURT AT GARNER

Court In Session At Garner For A Three Week's Period

District Court opened in Hancock County at Garner this week and will continue for a period of three weeks. Judge J. Clark is on the bench for this term. He has just completed a long session at the Cerro Gordo county court.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Klemme, Iowa,
January 11, 1923.

Regular meeting of the Town Council held in Mayor F. J. Wenck's office.

Meeting called to order by Mayor Wenck.

Members present: Mayor F. J. Wenck; Clerk J. N. Day; Councilmen A. D. Gimer, Wm. Smith, Joe Johnson, Wm. Bachman.

Members absent, C. W. Wiles.

Motion made and seconded that the following bills be allowed:

Iowa Falls Electric Company	$151.20
Wm. Stille, 15 loads of gravel	7.50
Henry Ludeke, 3 loads of gravel	1.50
Albert Schmidt, dragging streets	7.50
Art Wellemeyer, electric bulbs	2.00
Lloyd Lau, hauling gravel	3.00
Dr. George Zinn, making culture	2.00
Klemme Times, publishing council proceedings	5.20
E. S. D. Kahrs, Antitoxine	6.00
Standard Oil Company, Gas	16.24

Moved to adjourn.
F. J. WENCK, Mayor,
J. N. DAY, Clerk.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Klemme, Iowa,
January 22, 1923

Regular meeting of the Town Council held in Mayor F. F. Wenck's office.

Meeting called to order by Mayor Wenck.

Members present: Mayor F. J. Wenck; Clerk J. N. Day; Councilmen Joe Johnson. A. D. Gimer, Wm. Smith, Wm. Bachman, C. W. Wiles.

Absent: None

Motion made and seconded that the following bills be allowed:

Dr Missman, culturing the school	30.00
Dr. Zinn, culturing the school	20.75
Standard Oil Company Gas	8.60

Moved to adjourn.
F. J. WENCK, Mayor,
J. N. DAY, Clerk.

CAN YOU BEAT IT

There are three hundred and sixty five days in the year. We are sure of that. We work eight hours a day and that makes 16 hours out of the twenty-four that we don't work at all Andthat equals 244days. Therefore:

365 days in the year
244 as above

121 days, of which
52 are Sundays.

69 days, from which we deduct
26 days because there are 52 half holidays.

43 days. Deduct
16 days for lunch hours. and

27 days.
14 days for two weeks vacation

13 days, from which deduct
12 legal holidays. and

1 day left for real work. We ask again, Can you beat it?

A NEWSPAPER

The newspaper is an ever unfolding encyclopedia; and unbound book forever issuing; never finished and always new. Did you ever stop to think that millions have no literature, no school and almost no pulpit but the press? Not one man in ten reads books, but everyone of except the very helpless poor satiates himself eveyday with the paper. It is parent, school, college, theater, pulpit, example, counsellor, all in one. every drop of our blood is colored with it. —Henry Ward Beecher

AVERY TOWNSHIP NEWS

Anna Carlson didn't have school Thrsday and Friday on account of her being sick.

Robert Roths and John Bachman were Goodell callers Saturday.

Fern Ulrick taught school in the Prairie Queen school for Miss Adna Church last Monday and Tuesday.

Quite a number in this vicinity rre on the sick list.

School in Avery No. 2 has not been held for two weeks on account of the teacher being sick.

Wava Bachman came home Friday night for a visit, but on account of thes torm, she was unable to return to Goodell, Sunday.

SWEET CREAM IS BEST

Brings Higher Prices and Makes Better Butter

"By delivering their cream in a sour condition, millions of dollars are lost annually by the American farmer," So says M. Mortensen, head of the diary department of Iowa State College. "Sweet Cream has more utility than sour cream and brings a higher price," he says.

According to Proffessor Mortensen, Iowa butter has been improved more during the past two years than at any like period before and, he says, there is just one reason for it. This is the use of sweet cream in the butter factories. "By getting the cream while it is sweet, the butermaker can conrol the flavor of his product by using starters which he knows will give certain results. Producing and delivering sweet cream is a comparatively easy task."

As soon as the cream is separated from the milk it should be cooled in water. Placing the cream in a cellar or a refrigerator will not prove satisfactory as the water cools 48 times as fast as air. One of theb est ways, according to Proffessor Mortensen, is to have a cooling tank made of two inch lumber with a top of the same material. It is placed between thep ump and the stock tank. All water that goes to the later may be roued through the cooling tank. be run through the cooling tank.. there and kept sweet for two days in the summer time.

Another reason for keeping the cream sweet, says Proffessor Mortensen, is its use for making sweet cream butter, a product for which there is an increasing demand in the East. Sweet Cream butter usually brings a higher price than butter made from ripened cream, and it has been found to keep much longer in cold storage than butter made form rpened cream.

Finny Fish Flakes Fattened Fanny Fay Fine.

Adam's Apt Apple Appetite Ate Apples Appalling Apostles.

Also the Best In Implements
Supplies
Accessories
H. Lau Sons

Bakery Goods
SALLY ANN BREAD—
CREAM PUFFS—
SNOW BALLS—
FRIED CAKES—
CINNAMON ROLLS—
RYE BREAD—
COOKIES—

A Big Basket of Bakery Goods arrives fresh every afternoon from the Gates Bakery Co., of Traer, Iowa.

We have tried samples from a dozen different Bakeries and we find

SALLY ANN BREAD
BEATS
THEM
ALL!

Those of you who want the best will ask for

SALLY
ANN
BREAD—
—at—

Wellemeyer's

Easter Means
New Spring Clothes

It's the occasion when most men want to "blossom forth" in clothes that fit the season, and the rejuvinated spirit.

And this store is ready, as never before, to serve you with quality apparel, sound in style, rich in texture and superb in tailoring.

We have a fine variety for you to choose from, and the one you pick will be good looking for a long time.

Other Clothes—
$25.00 to $50.00

Patton Bros. Co.
Where a dollar does its duty
MASON CITY and Manly, Iowa

DESERT GOLD by Zane Grey

Author of Riders of the Purple Sage, Wildfire, Etc.

Copyright by Harper & Brothers.

CHAPTER X—Continued.

—11—

Belding paced up and down the room. Jim and Ladd whispered together. Gale walked to the window and looked out at the distant group of bandits, and then turned his gaze to rest upon Mercedes. She was anxious now, and her eyes seemed all the larger and blacker for the whiteness of her face. No one but Gale saw the Yaqui in the background looking down upon the Spanish girl. All of Yaqui's looks were strange; but this was singularly so. Gale wondered if the Indian were affected by her loveliness, her helplessness, or her terror.

Presently Belding called his rangers to him, and then Thorne.

"Listen to this," he said, earnestly. "I'll go out and have a talk with Rojas. I'll try to reason with him; tell him to think a long time before he spends blood on Uncle Sam's soil. That's now after an American's wife! I'll not commit myself, nor will I refuse outright to consider his demands, nor will I show the least fear of him. I'll play for time. If my bluff goes through . . . well and good. . . . After dark the four of you, Laddy, Jim, Dick and Thorne, will take Mercedes and my best white horses, and, with Yaqui as guide, circle round through Alar valley to the trail, and head for Yuma. I want you to take the Indian, because in a case of this kind he'll be a godsend. If you get headed or lost or have to circle off the trail, think what it'd mean to have a Yaqui with you. He knows Sonora as no Greaser knows it. He could hide you, find water and grass, when you would absolutely believe it impossible. The Indian is loyal. He has his debt to pay, and he'll pay it, don't mistake me. When you're gone I'll hide Nell so Rojas won't see her if he searches the place. Then I think I could sit down and wait without any particular worry."

The rangers approved of Belding's plan, and Thorne went to the side of his wife.

"Mercedes, we've planned to outwit Rojas. Will you tell us what he wrote?"

"Rojas swore—by his saints and his Virgin—that if I wasn't given—to him—in twenty-four hours—he would set fire to the village—kill the men—carry off the women—hang the children on cactus thorns!"

A moment's silence followed her last halting whisper.

Then the Yaqui uttered a singular cry. Gale had heard this once before, and now he remembered it was at the Papago well.

"Look at the Indian," whispered Belding, hoarsely. "D—n if I don't believe he understood every word Mercedes said. And, gentlemen, don't mistake me, if he ever gets near Senor Rojas there'll be some gory Aztec knife work."

Yaqui had moved close to Mercedes, and stood beside her as she leaned against her husband. She seemed impelled to meet the Indian's gaze, and evidently it was so powerful or hypnotic that it wrought irresistibly upon her. But she must have seen or divined what was beyond the others, for she offered him her trembling hand. Yaqui took it and laid it against his body in a strange motion, and bowed his head. Then he stepped back into the shadow of the room.

Belding went outdoors while the rangers took up their former position at the west window. Each had his own somber thoughts, Gale imagined, and knew his own were dark enough. He saw Belding halt at the corrals and wave his hand. Then the rebels mounted and came briskly up the road, this time to rein in abreast.

Wherever Rojas had kept himself upon the former advance was not clear; but he certainly was prominently in sight now. He made a gaudy, almost a dashing figure. Rojas dismounted and seemed to be listening. Belding made gestures, vehemently bobbed his big head, appeared to talk with his body as much as with his tongue. Then Rojas was seen to reply, and after that it was clear that the talk became painful and difficult. It ended finally in what appeared to be mutual understanding. Rojas mounted and rode away with his men, while Belding came tramping back to the house.

As he entered the door his eyes were shining, his big hands were clenched, and he was breathing audibly.

"You can rope me if I'm not loco!" he burst out. "I went out to conciliate a red-handed little murderer, and d—n me if I didn't meet a—well, I've no suitable name handy. I started my bluff and got along pretty well, but I forgot to mention that Mercedes was Thorne's wife. And what do you think? Rojas swore he loved Mercedes—swore he'd marry her right here in Forlorn River—swore he would give up robbing and killing people, and take her away from Mexico. He has gold—jewels. He swore if he didn't get her nothing mattered. He'd die anyway without her. . . . And here's the strange thing. I believe him! He was cold as ice, and all h—l inside. Never saw a Greaser like him. Anyway, without my asking he said for me to think it over for a day and then we'd talk again."

"Shore we're born lucky!" ejaculated Ladd.

"I reckon Rojas'll be smart enough to string his outfit across the few trails out of Forlorn River," remarked Jim.

"That needn't worry us. All we want is dark to come," replied Belding. "Yaqui will slip through. If we thank any lucky stars let it be for the Indian. You may go to Yuma in six days and maybe in six weeks. You may have a big fight. Laddy, take the .405. Dick will pack his Remington. All of you go gunned heavy. But the main thing is a pack that'll be light enough for swift travel, yet one that'll keep you from starving on the desert."

The rest of that day passed swiftly. The sun set, twilight fell, then night closed down, fortunately a night slightly overcast. Gale saw the white horses pass his door like silent ghosts. Even Blanco Diablo made no sound, and that fact was indeed a tribute to the Yaqui. Gale went out to put his saddle on Blanco Sol. The horse rubbed a soft nose against his shoulder. Then Gale returned to the sitting room. There was nothing more to do but wait and say good-by. Mercedes came clad in leather chaps and coat, a slim stripling of a cowboy, her dark eyes flashing. Her beauty could not be hidden, and now hope and courage had fired her blood.

"If I Come Back—No—When I Come Back, Will You Marry Me?"

Gale drew Nell into his arms.

"Dearest, I'm going—soon. . . . And maybe I'll never—"

"Dick, do—don't say it," sobbed Nell, with her head on his breast.

"I might never come back," he went on, steadily. "I love you—I've loved you ever since the first moment I saw you. Do you love me?"

"Yes, yes. Oh, I love you so! I never knew it till now. I love you so. Dick, I'll be safe and I'll wait—and hope and pray for your return."

"If I come back—no—when I come back, will you marry me?"

"I—I—oh yes!" she whispered, and returned his kiss.

Belding was in the room speaking softly.

"Nell, darling, I must go," said Dick.

"I'm a selfish little coward," cried Nell. "It's so splendid of you all. I ought to glory in it, but I can't. . . . Fight if you must, Dick. Fight for that lovely persecuted girl. I'll love you—the more. . . . Oh! Good-by! Goodby!"

With a wrench that shook him, Gale let her go. He heard Belding's soft voice.

"Yaqui says the early hour's the best. Trust him, Laddy. Remember what I say—Yaqui's a godsend."

Then they were all outside in the pale gloom under the trees. Yaqui mounted Blanco Diablo; Mercedes was lifted upon White Woman; Thorne climbed astride Queen; Jim Lash was already upon his horse, which was as white as the others but bore no name; Ladd mounted the stallion Blanco Torres, and gathered up the long halters of the two pack horses; Gale came last with Blanco Sol.

As he toed the stirrup, hand on mane and pommel, Gale took one more look in at the door. Nell stood in the gleam of light, her hair shining, face like ashes, her eyes dark, her lips parted, her arms outstretched. That sweet and tragic picture etched its cruel outlines into Gale's heart. He waved his hand and then fiercely leaped into the saddle.

Blanco Sol stepped out.

Before Gale stretched a line of moving horses, white against dark shadows. He could not see the head of that column; he scarcely heard a soft hoofbeat. A single star shone out of a rift in thin clouds. There was no wind. The air was cold. The dark space of desert seemed to yawn. To the left across the river flickered a few campfires. The chill night, silent and mystical, seemed to close in upon Gale; and he faced the wide, quivering, black level with keen eyes and grim intent, and an awakening of that wild rapture which came like a spell to him in the open desert.

CHAPTER XI

Across Cactus and Lava.

At the far corner of the field Yaqui halted, and slowly the line of white horses merged into a compact mass. Yaqui slipped out of his saddle. He ran his hand over Diablo's nose and spoke low, and repeated this action for each of the other horses. Gale had long ceased to question the strange Indian's behavior. There was no explaining or understanding many of his maneuvers. But the results of them were always thought-provoking. Gale had never seen horses stand so silently as in this instance; no stamp—no champ of bit—no toss of head—no shake of saddle or pack—no heave or snort! It seemed they had become imbued with the spirit of the Indian.

Yaqui moved away into the shadows as noiselessly as if he were one of them. The darkness swallowed him. He had taken a direction parallel with the trail. Gale wondered if Yaqui meant to try to lead his string of horses by the rebel sentinels.

The Indian appeared as he had vanished. He might have been part of the shadows. But he was there. He started off down the trail leading Diablo. Again the white line stretched slowly out. Gale fell in behind. Peering low with keen eyes, he made out three objects—a white sombrero, a blanket and a Mexican lying face down. The Yaqui had stolen upon this sentinel like a silent wind of death.

Once under the dark lee of the river bank Yaqui caused another halt, and he disappeared as before. Moments passed. The horses held heads up, looked toward the glimmering campfires and listened. Gale thrilled with the meaning of it all—the night—the silence—the flight—and the wonderful Indian stealing with the slow inevitableness of doom upon another sentinel.

Suddenly the Indian stalked out of the gloom. He mounted Diablo and headed across the river. Once more the line of moving white shadows stretched out. Gale peered sharply along the trail, and, presumably, on the pale sand under a cactus, there lay a blanketed form, prone, outstretched, a carbine clutched in one hand, a cigarette, still burning, in the other.

The cavalcade of white horses passed within five hundred yards of campfires, around which dark forms moved in plain sight. The lights disappeared from time to time, grew dimmer, more flickering, and at last they vanished altogether. Belding's fleet and tireless steeds were out in front; the desert opened ahead wide, dark, vast. Rojas and his rebels were behind, eating, drinking, careless. The somber shadow lifted from Gale's heart. He held now an unquenchable faith in the Yaqui. Belding would be listening back there along the river. He would know of the escape. He would tell Nell, and then hide her safely. As Gale had accepted a strange and fatalistic foreshadowing of toil, blood and agony in this desert journey, so he believed in Mercedes' ultimate freedom and happiness, and his own return to the girl who had grown dearer than life.

* * * * * * *

A cold, gray dawn was fleeing before a rosy sun when Yaqui halted the march at Papago well. The horses were taken to water, then led down the arroyo into the grass. Here packs were slipped, saddles removed. Jim Lash remarked how cleverly they had fooled the rebels.

"Shore they'll be comin' along," replied Ladd.

They built a fire, cooked and ate. The Yaqui spoke only one word: "Sleep." Blankets were spread. Mercedes dropped into a deep slumber, her head on Thorne's shoulder. Excitement kept Thorne awake. The two rangers dozed beside the fire. Gale shared the Yaqui's watch. At the end of three hours the rangers grew active, Mercedes was awakened; and soon the party faced westward, their long shadows moving before them. Yaqui led with Blanco Diablo in a long, easy lope. The heated air lifted, and incoming currents from the west swept low and hard over the barren earth. In the distance, all around the horizon, accumulations of dust seemed like ranging, mushrooming yellow clouds.

Yaqui was the only one of the fugitives who never looked back. Gale had a conviction that when Yaqui gazed back toward the well and the shining plain beyond, there would be reason for it. But when the sun lost its heat and the wind died down Yaqui took long and careful surveys westward from the high points on the trail. Sunset was not far off, and there in a bare, spotted valley lay Coyote tanks, the only waterhole between Papago well and the Sonoyta oasis. Gale used his glass, told Yaqui there was no smoke, no sign of life; still the Indian fixed his falcon eyes on distant spots and looked long. No further advance was undertaken. The Yaqui headed south and traveled slowly, climbing to the brow of a bold height of weathered mesa. There he sat his horse and waited. No one questioned him. The rangers dismounted to stretch their legs, and Mercedes was lifted to a rock, where she rested. Thorne had gradually yielded to the desert's influence for silence. He spoke once or twice to Gale, and occasionally whispered to Mercedes. Gale fancied his friend would soon learn that necessary speech in desert travel meant a few greetings, a few words to make real the fact of human companionship, a few short, terse terms for the business of the day or night, and perhaps a stern order or a soft call to a horse.

The sun went down, and the golden, rosy veils turned to blue and shaded darker till twilight was there in the valley. Darkness approached, and the clear peaks faded. The horses stamped to be on the move.

"Malo!" exclaimed the Yaqui.

He did not point with arm, but his falcon head was outstretched, and his piercing eyes gazed at the blurring spot which marked the location of Coyote tanks.

"Jim, can you see anything?" asked Ladd.

"Nope, but I reckon he can."

Then Ladd suddenly straightened up, turned to his horse, and muttered low under his breath.

"I reckon so," said Lash, and for once his easy, good-natured tone was not in evidence. His voice was harsh.

Gale's eyes, keen as they were, were last of the rangers to see tiny needle-points of light just faintly perceptible in the blackness.

"Laddy! Campfires?" he asked, quickly.

"Shore's you're born, my boy."

"How many?"

Ladd did not reply; but Yaqui held up his hand, his fingers wide. Five campfires! A strong force of rebels or raiders or some other desert troop was camping at Coyote tanks.

Yaqui sat his horse for a moment motionless as stone, his dark face immutable and impassive. Then he stretched his right arm in the direction of No Name mountains, now losing their last faint traces of the afterglow, and he shook his head. He made the same impressive gesture toward the Sonoyta oasis with the same somber negation.

Thereupon he turned Diablo's head to the south and started down the slope. His manner had been decisive, even stern. Lash did not question it, nor did Ladd. Both rangers hesitated, however, and showed a strange, almost a sullen reluctance which Gale had never seen in them before. Raiders were one thing, Rojas was another; Camino del Diablo still another; but that vast and desolate and unwatered waste of cactus and lava, the Sonora desert, might appall the stoutest heart. Gale felt his own sink—felt himself flinch.

"Oh, where is he going?" cried Mercedes. Her poignant voice seemed to break a spell.

"Shore, lady, Yaqui's goin' home," replied Ladd gently. "An' considerin' our troubles, I reckon we ought to thank God he knows the way."

They mounted and rode down the slope toward the darkening south.

Not until night travel was obstructed by a wall of cactus did the Indian halt to make a dry camp. Water and grass for the horses and fire to cook by were not to be had. Mercedes bore up surprisingly; but she fell asleep almost the instant her thirst had been allayed. Thorne laid her upon a blanket and covered her. The men ate and drank. Gale lay down weary of limb and eye. He heard the soft thump of hoofs, the sough of wind in the cactus—then no more.

Day dawned with the fugitives in the saddle. A picketed wall of cactus hedged them in, yet the Yaqui made a tortuous path, that, zigzag as it might, in the main always headed south.

The Yaqui, if not at fault, was yet uncertain. His falcon eyes searched and roved, and became fixed at length at the southwest, and toward this he turned his horse. The great, fluted saguaros, fifty, sixt, feet high, raised columnal forms, and their branching limbs and curving lines added a grace to the desert. It was the low-bushed cactus that made the toil and pain of travel. Yet these thorny forms were beautiful.

In the basins between the ridges, to right and left along the floor of low plains the mirage glistened, wavered, faded, vanished—lakes and trees and clouds. Inverted mountains hung suspended in the lilac air and faint tracery of white-walled cities.

At noon Yaqui halted the cavalcade. He had selected a field of bisnagi cactus for the place of rest. Presently his reason became obvious. With long, heavy knife he cut off the tops of these barrel-shaped plants. He scooped out soft pulp, and with stone and hand then began to pound the deeper pulp into a juicy mass. When he threw this out there was a little water left, sweet, cold water which man and horse shared eagerly. Thus he made even the desert's fiercest growths minister to their needs.

But he did not halt long. Miles of gray-green spiked walls lay between him and that line of ragged, red lava which manifestly he must reach before dark. The travel became faster, straighter. And the glistening thorns clutched and clung to leather and cloth and flesh. The horses reared, snorted, balked, leaped—but they were sent on. Only Blanco Sol, the patient, the plodding, the indomitable, needed no goad or spur. Mercedes reeled in her saddle. Thorne bade her drink, bathed her face, supported her, and then gave way to Ladd, who took the girl with him on Torres' broad back. The middle of the afternoon saw Thorne reeling in his saddle, and then, wherever possible, Gale's powerful arm lent him strength to hold his seat.

The fugitives were entering a desolate, burned-out world. The waste of sand began to yield to cinders. The horses sank to their fetlocks as they toiled on. A fine, choking dust blew back from the leaders, and men coughed and horses snorted. But the sun was now behind the hills. In between ran the stream of lava. It was broken, sharp, dull rust color, full of cracks and caves and crevices, and everywhere upon its jagged surface grew the white-thorned choya.

Again twilight encompassed the travelers. But there was still light enough for Gale to see the constricted passage open into a wide, deep space where the dull color was relieved by the gray of gnarled and dwarfed mesquite. Blanco Sol, keenest of scent, whistled his welcome herald of water. The other horses answered, quickened their gait. Gale smelled it, too, sweet, cool, damp on the dry air.

Yaqui turned the corner of a pocket in the lava wall. The file of white horses rounded the corner after him. And Gale, coming last, saw the pale, glancing gleam of a pool of water beautiful in the twilight.

Next day the Yaqui's relentless driving demand on the horses was no longer in evidence. He lost no time, but he did not hasten. His course wound between low cinder dunes which limited their view of the surrounding country. These dunes finally sank down to a black floor as hard as flint, with tongues of lava to the left, and to the right the slow descent into the cactus plain. Yaqui was now traveling due west. It was Gale's idea that the Indian was skirting the first sharp-toothed slope of a vast volcanic plateau which formed the western half of the Sonora desert and extended to the Gulf of California. Travel was slow, but not exhausting for rider or beast.

Thirty miles of easy stages brought the fugitives to another waterhole, a little round pocket under the heaved-up edge of lava. There was spare short, bleached grass for the horses, but no wood for a fire. This night there were question and reply, conjecture, doubt, opinion and conviction expressed by the men of the party. But the Indian, who alone could have told where they were, where they were going, what chance they had to escape, maintained his stoical silence. Gale took the early watch, Ladd the midnight one, and Lash that of the morning. The day broke rosy, glorious, cold as ice. Action was necessary to make useful benumbed hands and feet. Mercedes was fed while yet wrapped in blankets.

Mercedes Must Ride; but the Others Must Walk.

It was a significant index to the day's travel that Yaqui should keep a blanket from the pack and tear it into strips to bind the legs of the horses. It meant the dreaded choya and the knife-edged lava. That Yaqui did not mount Diablo was still more significant. Mercedes must ride; but the others must walk.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

PLAN F

American Change in Substantial

Congress to di

Joe Sparks.

County

NIX

of their war service, not no relief from the government, cared for by law.

Amendments to the war risk ance act requested by the Legion recent hearing follow:

1. That if the insurance of a neuro-psychiatric patient of the veterans' bureau has lapsed and he has not had a guardian appointed by court, that the director of the United States veterans' bureau be directed to reinstate his insurance and continue it in force.

2. To prevent the examiners of the veterans' bureau from using their judgment as to whether a man's disability is of service origin when this disability was not noted at the time of his enrollment for service.

3. The word "pulmonary" be stricken from the law so that service men suffering from tuberculosis of the glands or bone may become compensable.

4. That the period of separation from active service during which an ex-service man would be considered to have contracted tuberculosis automatically from service be extended to five years from the present period of two years following discharge.

5. That the provision limiting to two years a man's automatic service connection when suffering from a neuro-psychiatric disease, be automatically extended to five years.

6. That burial expenses of $100 be amended to provide for $200, transportation of the body and burial, and that this be extended to claimants of the bureau who die in institutions under the jurisdiction of the bureau, although they have not been declared compensable.

7. That where a disabled veteran has been an inmate of a hospial or asylum during a continual period of one year or more or where such person has been rated as totally disabled or totally and temporarily disabled for a continual period of one year or more, he shall be rated as totally and permanently disabled.

8. Providing that the total permanent disability rating clause be amended to include the loss of the hearing of both ears as permanent and total disability.

9. That in no case shall the compensation of a disabled person be reduced unless a physical examination has been made since the last rating, nor until he shall have been given at least three months' notice mailed to his last address of the bureau's intention to make a reduction.

10. To extend the period from one year after discharge or from August 9, 1922, to August 9, 1926, for obtaining certificates of disability.

11. To make certificates of disability irrevocable.

12. That the date by which government term insurance must be converted to insurance carrying a reserve shall be extended from 1926 to 1931.

13. That an applicant for reinstatement who suffers from a disability of service origin, and who is indigent may reinstate his government insurance and have the lapsed premiums charged against the face of his policy.

14. To make permanent total disability payable to veterans whose insurance has lapsed, where compensation in excess of premiums was due.

15. To make insurance payable to beneficiaries, where a permanent total disabled veteran was denied reinstatement because of his condition, and has since died.

16. To provide that the veterans' bureau shall furnish all patients on discharge from hospital, a statement of the medical finding as to the condition of such patient.

SINGS IN YORK POST REVUE

Miss Nora Sechrist, Vocalist, Assists Pennsylvania Boys in Big Entertainment.

Remembering the cheering effects of soldier shows which enlivened the long, dreary months while the American doughboys were waiting in France for the ship to take them home, American Legion members have established the practice of staging home-talent dramatic productions in all parts of the country.

Miss Nora Sechrist

Assisted by their woman friends and relatives, the Legionnaires have been able to produce some creditable performances. Among the productions of 1923 was the American Legion Revue, held by the post at York, Pa.

Miss Nora Sechrist, who sang the leading role in the 1921 and 1922 revues of the same post, consented to assist the Legionnaires by starring in the 1923 performance.

A Rain Trap.

In a time of distressing drought a harassed amateur agriculturist stepped into a shop and bought a barometer. The clerk was making a few explanations about indications and pressures when the customer interrupted impatiently, saying:

"Yes, yes, that's all right, but what I want to know is how you set the thing when you want it to rain?"—American Legion Weekly.

Fund to Buy Linens.

The Marion County Council of the American Legion Auxiliary in Indianapolis, unanimously voted to raise $2,500 for a memorial fund to buy linens for the first unit of the James Whitcomb Riley Memorial Hospital for Children, now under construction.

...cts You Should Know

...: TWELVE MILLION CONSUMERS in the United States ...now receiving ELECTRIC SERVICE.

...IVE BILLION, ONE HUNDRED MILLION of DOLLARS is ...w invested in the ELECTRIC LIGHT and POWER Business.

Eyes F... 1,750,000 PEOPLE, mostly CUSTOMERS own the Securities ...epresented by THIS INVESTMENT.

To meet the demand for SERVICE, more than $750,000,000 of NEW CAPITAL is required EACH YEAR.

The interest of all; Individuals, Communities and the Public as a whole will be best served by the ELECTRIFICATION of the COUNTRY at the earliest possible time.

This is WHY we offer the 7% COMMON SHARES to our CUSTOMERS, so as to fill the demand for Service in ...TERRITORY.

Your investment will be in the PUBLIC INTEREST and brings you an ASSURED INCOME.

Let us tell you about it.

Address Securities Department

Iowa Falls Electric Co.

IOWA FALLS, IOWA. Or any of our offices.

UNDER GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION

The World Hasn't Grown Up Yet

There are pessimists who assert that the world has reached the peak of its developement. Yet within a few short years we have seen the invention of the electric light, the automobile, the motion picture, the airplane and the radio give birth to gigantic new industries.

The world is still developing—but its new opportunities are for those who through thrift have prepared themselves to take advantage of them.

Are YOU saving for the opportunity which coming years will offer? We pay 5 per cent on savings.

First National Bank

"The Bank for Everybody'.'

The Best Business R ference

Your credit is exactly what you make ...t. A bank account is worth far more to you when the time comes, than an armful of

Letters of Recommendations

Money in the bank, is what talks, and such a small beginning, such as a well kept savings account, has led to many a man's business success.

We welcome the account of the young business man, or the man contemplating going into business.

State Savings Bank

Klemme Iowa

News of Klemme and Vicinity

Lou Avery, of Goodell was a business visitor in Klemme Saturday.

Mrs. Wm. Bell and son Jeff went to Garner yesterday morning.

Mrs. Mart Bachman has been seriously ill the past week or more.

Mr. and Mrs. Luverne Smith went to Belmond yesterday for a short visit.

Genuine Senator Dunlap Strawberry Plants for Sale. $1.50 per hundred, at John Josten's.

LOST DOG March 1st; little yellow house dag, long haired. Sumner Trumbell. adv 1p

Miss Emma Sampson returned returned home from Colesburg, Ia., last Thursday morning.

Th Camp Fire Girls had a shower on Miss Maybelle Johnson last week Thursday evening.

Henry Luick was up from Belmond Monday visiting with Klemme relatives.

Mrs. Luverne Smith and Lee Luick were at Belmond Saturday for a visit with relatives.

Mrs. Jake Bachman. of Goodell, was in Klemme Tuesday visiting and shopping.

Miss Jeanette Nickols came over from Clear Lake last week Wednesday and remained for a wtek in this city visiting with Mrs. Ed. Jacobs.

Miss Maurine Hake went to Belmond Friday evening for a visit until Saturday afternoon with relatives and friends.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Levi Klotzbach passed away last Saturday afternoon after an illness of a few weeks.

USE OUR SHOWER BATH; THE WATER IS ALWAYS HOT AND THE ROOM WARM. McCULLOUGH BARBER SHOP. adv

Howard Doyle's step-mother and his half-sister came Saturday from Alta Vista, Iowa, for an extended visit at the Doyle home.

Fred Chase of near Goodell is reported to be quite ill. We understand a specialist pronounced his case to be sleeping sickness.

Miss Minnie Blank has joined the ranks of the force at the Wellemyer store and began her duties Monday morning. Sh is assisting in the accounting department.

The morning train from the south was several hours late Friday morning on account of the snow. It arrived about noon. A snow plow had to clear the way.

Henry (Butch) Schroeder left for Chicago last Saturday, after spending about a week in this vicinity on business and visiting his mother and other relatves.

Martin Jensen has been doing a bit of improving on his residence in town. He is rebuilding the back porch buy making it larger, and will then have it fitted with screen for summer use and windows in winter.

Fred Katter, of Garner, was in town ysterday and while here called at the Times Office. Fred recently had a farm sale near Hayfield and has quit farming, moving back to his home at Garner.

C. W. Wiles has inlisted with the Greimann Motor Company, of this city. Wiles is their Ford salesman and we are sure they could not find a better man than Wiles as he is an old hand in the car selling game.

Harry Gibbs has installed a milking machine on his farm southeast of town. The machine will save a great deal of hard work, especially in the summer when milking is no fun.

Miss Mildred Johnson came home last Saturday to be present at the wedding of her sister, Maybelle, on Tuesday. Mildred is studying music at Morningside College, Sioux City and will remain in Klemme over the Easter vacation.

The biggest blizzard of the season began last Saturday afternoon and last for twenty-four hours. not a great deal of snow, but high winds whipped the old snow into big, hard surfaced drifts that raised cain with all the roads.

The ladies of the Twin Lake twp. farm bureau met at the home of Mrs. H. Harberts. About thirty were in attendance at the metting. Short cus in sewing were demonstrated by the local leaders. A very pleasant meeting was enjoyed by all the ladies who were presnt.

U. G. Smid reports that he had a good sal last Thursday. The weather looked a little bad in the morning but a good crowd turned out. It was the last farm sale this season.

Miss Caroline Smid came home last Wednesday to asist her parents get ready for the sale. She is employed near Goodell.

Carl Suckow is now working with the W. T. Rawleigh Co., as their salesman. He has been with them for about five or six weeks. His territory consists of Klemme, Garner and Britt in this county, and Clear Lake and Mason City, in Cerro Gordo.

Word received from Rev. A. H. Meyer, of Edgewood. Iowa, by his friends states that he has so far improved from his injuries received in an auto accident, that he was again able to preach to his congregation a week ago Sunday. His many old firends here are glad to learn that he is again able to be around.

We had more real winter weather since our last issue, and for the bene fit of our California readers we will say we had the worst blizzard and cold weather last week we have had all winter. Monday tht weather again turnd warmer; Tuesday it was like spring; Wednesday it turned a little colder and this morning it is colder and snowing again.

Radio fans might b interested in knowing that an "inside aerial" is very easily constructed and works as well as an outside aerial. About 2 weeks ago Y Editor experimentd in that line by simply string a No. 14 copper aerial wire across the room and back, attaching the wire to ordinary electric knob insulators. The wire we use is about 25 feet in length. For the past two weeks the inside aerial has given wonderful results and distant stations are easily heard and often much louder and clearer than on the outside wire.

T. E. Sondrol don't like dogs and this is a warning to all dogs to stay away from the popular Clear Lake merchant because his pet dog was the cause of cluttering up the court records at Mason City for the past two weeks and the calling of a regiment of witnesses and then the jury decided that Mr. Sondrol should pay Charles Luick of this city $972.28 and the grocery bill amounting to $302.02 because Thork's dog Fanny ran out in the street and scared the horse Mr. Luick was riding and durthe mele he was thrown and sustained a broktn leg.—Clear Lake Mirror.

The city water was shut off for a number of days the past week to repair a rusted casing. The system was put in order and the pump started when a rod broke in the pump and the system again put out of commission. Water was again available Monday when the repairs had been made. It was a bad time to work on the pump as a blizzard was raging and everybody was fearing what would happen should we have a fire. But being fearful. they perhaps exercised more caution in looking after thir furnaces and stoves, knowing that the water was shut off. But a tankful of water was carried at the pump house for imergency use only.

HIGH TENSION LINE TO LINK ALL PROPERTIES.

Line Between Boone and Nevada Will Tie Up Electric Power Plants of Seven Cities

The last link which will hoop up all the properties of the Iowa Railway & Light company, the Iowa Electric company, and the Iowa Falls Electric company will be completed this season when the high tension electric line between Nevada and Boone will be built.

The line will be approximately twenty-eight miles in length and will consist of steel towers and an aluminum line. This lead will go direct north out of Nevada and then west around the city of Ames into the Boone plant from the north side of Boone.

When this is completed it will tie Nevada up with the Cedar Rapids, Marshalltown, Boone, Perry, Grand Center and Iowa Falls power plants and give the company a complete circuit over the state in the various towns where they furnish juice for light and power.

The approximate cost of this improvement will be $75,000 and will be one of the most important pieces of improvement in the way of service provision that has been attempted by the company for some years. —Advertisement.

"Keeping books" on the farm work, or farm accounting, is now taught in the eighth grade of public schools in 21 Ohio counties, according to reports of the United States Department of Agriculture as a result of agricultural extension work in farm management in the counties.

Office Phone 149 J. Residence Phone 149 L

Dr. E. H. Phillips

Osteopathic Physician
GARNER, IOWA.

Diagnosis and Treatment of Diseases.
Surgical and Obstetrical cases cared for.
"Consult an Osteopath"

New Spring Goods

Come into our store and see the fine, new line of SPRING GOODS which have been arriving the past few days. The very latest in DRY GOODS and also Ladies' Furnishings; and the prices are very conservative. The new line consists of—

PERCALES—
GINGHAMS—
RATINES—
CREPES (All Colors)—
FANCY DRESS GOODS—
CURTAIN GOODS—
CURTAIN DRAPES—
TABLE LINENS—
OXFORDS and SHOES—
HOSIERY and FURNISHINGS--

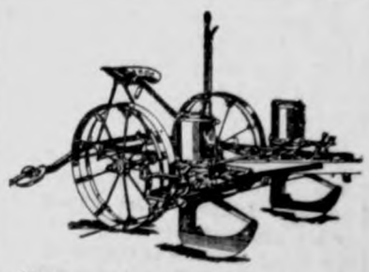
Dress Up Your House and Yourself For Easter!

Our usual line of Fresh Groceries, Fruits, and Vegetables for your Easter Dinner.
MEN! We carry a nice line of Shirts, Ties, Hose, Shoes, Oxfords, Hats, Caps, etc.

G. W. Kluckhohn & Sons

STILLE'S IMPLEMENT NEWS

VOLUME 1. Thursday, March 22, 1923. NUMBER ...



If your planter misses 15 kernels in every 100 hills it will cost you $240 on a hundred acres, pretty near enough to pay for a planter? If your planter is not in good shape it will pay you big to come and talk it over with us.

A clever man is the man who always says the thing you thought of saying after it was too late.

Order your harrow carts early, as well as cultivators, planters and plows. "The early bird catches the worm," is a good hint for the man that figures on buying spring machinery.

Every noble life leaves the fibre of itself interwoven forever in the work of the world.

Its Not a Bit Too Early

Now is the time to find out just what you can get in binder twine. Dont wait until a week or so before you need it—buy it now and make sure that you get what you want and when you want it Remember that we art the exclusive agents for the Original "Big Ball" McCormick Twine. The new patented cover winding found only in Harvester brands of the original Big Ball twine means that you will never have tangled twine in your supply can. The twine cannot tangle—the cover will be standing good and rigid when all the twine has been used from the center of the ball. even up to the time when there is only one layer left which forms the cover. This convenience coupled with the Big Ball quality means that you cannot buy a better twine nor a twine that will do your work more satisfactorily. See us about your twine the nert time you are in town. Dont get left. Order it now.

Adam had lots of trouble but he never had to worry about visits from his mother-in-law.

A MILLION DOLLAR SEED ...

Are you interested in a ma... that will make a seed bed for ... that will not have any of those ... lumps that retard and stop ... growth of the young sprout? "I ... are—and we know you are—we ... the tool for you. The Dunham ... ti-Packer is the latest addition ... the McCormick-Deering line. ... breaks those lumps up and ... the ground in a fine state of ... You can use it to close up ... cracks that come when the ... has started to dry out—you can ... it to reset those plants that ... been heaved out by thawing in ... early spring. If you want a "Mi... Dollar" seed bed learn more a... the Dunham Culti-Packer.

Feeding Pans for those ... Sows 70c apiece.

A good oil in your tractor is ... cheapest regardless of price, we ... a good oil guaranteed to be as ... as any oil that you can buy, and ... a price that is right compared ... other oils.

THE KLEMME TIMES

ty-seventh Year—Number 29. Klemme, Iowa, Thursday Afternoon, March 29, 1923. $1.50 In Advance—$2.00 Outside of County

WS OF THE WEEK'S DOINGS AT HIGH SCHOOL

BALL SEASON OPENS SOON

Games are Being Scheduled for the Spring Season

th the coming spring the base- fans are becoming restless in igh School. The baseball team been organized with Gerald er as Captain and Glenn Busch sistant, and the preliminiares winning baseball season has started. They have scheduled with several towns and have contracts neccessary under the School Athletic associatiin. llowing is a list of the teams have scheduled games with or contemplating playing with:

	Here	There
ERVEY	April 6	May 4
DELL	April 13	May 18
TURA	April 20	May 8
RNTON	April 27	May 11
STAL LAKE	May 1	May25

eservey is not a memberof the tic association, ut a permit has written for and there is little t but what the games with will be played. Ventura has ccepted the games and it is not n wether the Ventura team will ayed or not. All other towns accepted their dates and con- s have been sent.

ue to a ruling of the Athletic ciation that no athletic event be held during school hours e games must be played after o'clock unless by permit from Association.

Finishes Electing Officers

he Literary Association again on Thursday the 22nd. Martin was elected secretary by an un- ous ballot and Wayne Lemke elected treasures over Stella by a majority of two votes. he former treasurer Frank Gibbs re handing the treasurer's book he new treasurer read his report The Association has taken in a l receipts of $44.55 and have ursements amounting to $39.45 This leaves a balance of $5.10 e association also has charge of baseball funds. Not a very large asury to start our baseball cam- gn is it?

Miss McKahan left last Friday e- ing for Stewart, Iowa where she a short visit with her mother e returned Monday Morning.

Glenna Gruetzmacher was a vis- r at the High School Friday after- on. We understand that the chers of the Britt schools were at ding a teachers convention at rt Dodge

They're Sure Mysterious

The Freshman have become as sterious as the Klu Klux Klan hat is the matter we have not at esent been able to find out.

A meeting was held last Thursday ht by their class. Now there is thing very mysterious about a ss meeting,we'll have to admit, t Monday afternoon another meet- g was held. Now here is where e mystery comes in at. It seems ry curious that the Freshman ould have to have two or three eetings inside of a week to carry their business. Upon asking a- ut the meeting it became very ap- rent to us that it was none of our siness what happened in their eetings. Of course they didn't say in so many words but we felt at way just the same A myster- s atmosphere pervades over them d we are eagerly wathching devel- pements. Watch for furthur devel- pements of the Freshman K. K. K. ext week.

Prof. Looses Glasses

Proffessor Neese is in a very haz- rdous circumstance. He has lost is glasses. He has been earching or them high and low, but at the resent time he has found no trace f them whatever. Strange to say e does not have them on either. He has simply misplaced them. It makes it rather hard for him in his lasses. We have not been able to ell if it makes any difference in the lass grades or not.

X x A—B x 2ab equal 0 Class

The Freshman Algebra class have started to study simple equations. That is the book puts the examples under the heading of "Simple Equations." but by the puzzled expressions when the Freshman are trying to solve them they must be either complex or compound or something very dissagreeable.

The Quality of Mercy is Not Strained

The English I class are doubtful as to this fact quoted by Shakespeare. They are studying his "Merchant of Venice" at the present time and find it very good reading (?) according to some of its members.

Is Spring Here?

We surely thought so last Tuesday and Wednesday. The melting snow and the water made a fine play ground for the lower rooms. We wonder how many got wet during that period? Incidentally we know of at least one or two high school boys who were endowed with dampness in their feet during that period.

More Shakespeare

Can you remember the time when you were required to commit to memory that quotation of Shakespeare's beginning. "All the World's a Stage—"? Well the American Lit erature Class hasn't forgot the time. They were required to learn it during the past week. W. happn to know that this class isn't the only class that has ben required to do this. We can remember the time when we were Freshman when Fred Arnold, Pickles Gibbs and the rest of that class got up bfore the class and quoted Shakespeare.

IN THE GRADES

Doings Of The Grammar Room

He has high expectations—When asked what people would remember him for forty years from now Asa Arnold wrote on his paper that he was going to be remembered for inventing perpetual motion. Miss Smith sure is proud that her pupils have such high expectations for their life work. We all feel aware of the fact that Asa is a real genius at inventing toy automobiles,, elevators, cranes and other things of equal importance; but we never expected that he had such high ideals as these. We earnestly hope that Asa will succeed in his work.

Select Important Men

The eighth grade are preparing a list of fifty of the most important Americans living today, and fifty of the most important Americans who are dead. They must give the things that they did during their life and why they are remembered.

Teachers Receive Flowers

When Miss Everest and Miss Smith came to school Monday morning they had a wonderful surprise. On each of their desks was a hyacinth plant; each plant having two beautiful lavender blossoms. Upon investigation they found that the plants were a present from Mr. and Mrs. Jahnke. This is just like these kind people, for they are always going about with kindness and good cheer. Miss Smith and Miss Everest are surely proud of their flowers.

Study Agriculture

The eighth grade are studying elementary agriculture. They have been conducting some very interesting and helpful experiments on the work.

Intermediate Room News

Following is a list of those who received a perfect record in spelling for the past week: Clara Bergman, (sixth grade); Clarice Wellemeyer, (5th grade); and Floyd Klotzbach, (4th grade.)

Ruby Miller has entered school and she is in the fourth grade. The school welcomes her to its ranks.

The fifth grade are drawing maps of Africa at the present time. They have finished the study of Africa. Some very creditable work is being done by the students.

The Elson readers are being taken up in the grades. They have finished reading the Sears & Martin readers. The Elson works is the last reader that is going to be read this year.

Primary Room

The Primary Class has finished their Elson reader and are now taking up another book.

The first grade are dramatizing the story, "Three Billy Goats Gruff". They are doing some very good work in this line.

Scenery

By Maud Frazer Jackson

It vexes much the soul of Rose,
She sometimes gets quite frantic,
Because her lovers will propose
'Mid scenes so unromantic.
A moonlit lake, a lonely glen,
Such scenes would meet her wishes—
Her first proposal cam from Ben
While she was washing dishhes.
Not in the movies do they so;
She finds no lovers silly
Who "pop" in crowded restaurants
And trolley cars like Billy.
That awkward youth by name of Ted
One evening met the dear
As she came home with loaf of bread,
And put the old, old query.
Ah, Rose, it is, if you but knew,
Fine tribute to your graces,
Your lovers popping as they do
In unpropituous places.
Then do not at the poor things scoff
They see your eyes of blue,
The shimmer of your curls, and off
They blow, like Dad's home-brew.
Moonlight, soft music, may be meet
For maids your graces lacking;
You lend each spot your charm, my sweet,
Your beauty needs no backing.

Something Of Interest To The Farmer And Gardener

INSPECT SPUDS FOR DISEASE

College Advises Careful Lookout For Stem End Rot. Scurf And Scab

In the selection of potatoes for planting this spring, particular attention should be given o the presence of diseases, according to plant disease men at Iowa State College.

One of the most important disases to be on the lookout for is stem end rot. This was extremely prevalent in 1922 and is abundant on seed stock. Those who are familiar with the disease say that it can be readily detected at the stem end of the poao by eiher a dark brown ring beneah the skin or in more severe cases by a dry rot affecting a part or all of the tubr. All potatoes affected with the rot should be discarded.

Black scurf, a disease which forms dark brown specks on the surface of the potato, is anothed disease which is said to be comon, especially on northern grown seed. This disease causes a reduced stand. weakens the plants and causes small potatoes.

Common scab, another important disease, is very destructive, often reducing the yield and making the potatoes less salable.

Loss form these diseases may be reducel somewhat by crop rotation and careful seed selection, but in addition to these, potato seed should be treated with either hot formaline or corrosive sublimae. For scab and black scurf, the college recommends that 4 ounces of corrosive sublimate be disolved in 30 gallons of water in which the potatoes may be soaked for 1½ hours. One pint of formaldehyde in 30 gallons of water is also said to be effective. In this treatment the potatoes should be soaked for two hours. In case of larger lots, the hot formaldehyde is more practical. It is made up of 2 pints of formaldehyde to 20 gallons of water and heated to 122 degrees F. After being soaked for 2 minutes the seed should be covered for an hour and either dried or planted.

DIPLODIA MOLD SERIOUS

Disease Caused Average Loss of 4.3 Bushels in 1922

Diplodia mold, a disease affecting corn, is prevalent in Iowa again this year, and unless farmers take a great deal of care in testing their seed. poor stands will be common this spring because of this infection, according to plant disease workers at Iowa State College, Ames, Iowa.

Germination tests of 5,550 ears of corn from six Iowa counties were made at the college recently for the purpose of detecting the presence of the mold. Of this number, 800 ears or 14.6 prcent of the corn was found to be unfit for planting. This is an infection equallp as bad as that of last year when the state's corn crop was trimmed 4.3 bushels per acre.

Plant disease men at the college say this condition indicates that altho the mold was not so generally destructive in producing badly moldears in 1922 as in 1921, yet the mold was severe enough to infect a large number of ears selected for seed. The college rcommnds that every farmer examine his seed corn carefully and conduct a grmination test on at least 100 ears in order to determine the amount of damage that may be expected were the seed actually planted. The modified rag doll tester, with which practically all the farmers are familiar, is recommended for making the test. The doll should be sprinkled twice each day and subjected to a temperature of 75 degrees for 5 or 6 days before taking the reading.

Some people find fault because opportunity nver knocked at their door. Perhaps they were so busy knocking the home town that they couldn't hear her.

F. GRUETZMACHER WINS BY SIX VOTES FOR MAYOR

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH
Arthur B. Gedye, Pastor

Program to be presented by the Young People of the Epworth League, Methodist Episcopal Church, Evening of Easter Day, at 7:30 o'clock.

Song "The Son of God Goes Forth"	Choir and Orchestra
Prayer
Piano Duet	Misses Behringer & Stille
Song	Pearl Johnson
Reading	Beatrice Busch
Monologue	Blanche Hulse
Monologue	Miss G. Johnson
Violin Solo	Mildred Johnson
Song	Busy Bee S. S. Class
Orchestra	"Song of Victory"
Song	Misses Bailey and ohnson
Vocal Solo	Miss Sara Smith
Reading	Maurine Hake
Clarinet Solo	C. G. Waterman
Song	Busy Bee Class
Offering
Orchestra
Closing Song	All

Offering toward support of Algona District Epworth League Missionary to Korea.

FIRST CHURCH—

The meetings of the week so far have been well attended. Yet there is room for others. We invite those who appreciate the merits of the suffering, death and resurrection of our Christ. to come and worship with us in these Passion Week Services.

Sunday morning, Easter sermon and Sunday School at the usual hour.

In the evening beginning at 7:30 o'clock the Sunday school will give a program fitting the occasion. The program will be divided into two parts; the Primary department taking up the first part of the program. This will be followtd by the senior department giving two short plays, entitled, "Poppies and Lillies," and "The New Life."

Come early and get a good saet.

—W. C. Bergmann.

STROMER-BAACK WEDDING

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stromer Bride of Klemme Farmer

(From this week's Signal.)

Last Wednesday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stromer, occurred the wedding of Miss Elyzabeth Stromer and William Baack of Klemme. Rev. C. A. Schmid was the officiating clergyman. Following a dinner at the bride's home the newly-weds left on the evening train on a short honeymoon. They will live on a farm northeast of Klemme where Mr. Baack had everything ready for housekeeping.

The bride has spent her entire life in or near Garner, and is a fine young woman. Th groom is a prosperous farmer of the Klemme neighborhood. The best wishes of the many friends are extended.

TITONKA HAS HAD T. B. MILK ORDINANCE FOR A YEAR NOW

Many towns in Iowa passed the T. B. Milk Ordinance last year and are well pleased with it. Titonka is a nearby town which has adopted the ordinance and has had a year's experience with it. The following article is from the Titonka Topic of last week:

"Titonka passed a T. B. ordinance a year or two ago and was the first town in the county to pass such an ordinance and all milk sold in the city is pure, fresh and free from disease. Every vendor of milk must have a license to sell his product in the city limits."

We would advocate just such an ordinance for Klemme. Nobody is willing to drink or use milk which is tuberculor. Nobody would want to own a tuberculor cow, if they knew the animal was diseased. If a T. B. ordinance was in effect all owners of cows selling milk in the city would be required to have the animla tested by a veterinarian for tuberculosis.

There are some owners of cows in Klemme who have their cows tested occasionally for T. B. But why not compell all do it?

THREE MEN WERE ELECTD ON EACH TICKET; EVERY-BODY HAPPY

Election Was Closest Held In Years; Pletny Of Excitement For Both Parties

GIMER PULLS LARGEST VOTE

Nobody was making any wild bets Monday as everything pointed to a close race, especially for the office of mayor. And the way the councilmen ran it made a great election.

Everybody should now feel quite happy over the election, as three men were elected from each party.

The first ticket, or the Citizen's Party contributed three councilmen to the board, viz. A. D. Gimer, Wm. Smith and Joe Johnson, who were all old members on the board. The Peoples Party furnished as mayor, Frank Gruetzmacher; and two councilmen, Valentine Josten and H. L. Suckow. Sr.

The new board will therefore consist of the following men:

Mayor Frank Gruetzmacher,

Councilmen A. D. Gimer, Wm. Smith, Joe Johnson, Valentine Josten and H. L. Suckow, Sr.

How They Voted

CITIZENS PARTY

F. J. Wenck for mayor	109
A. D. Gimer, councilman	141
Wm. Smith, councilman	136
Joe Johnson, councilman	132
Geo. Ulrich, councilman	32
Wm. Bachman, councilman	115
Louis Sampson, for assessor	170
C. G. Waterman, for treasurer	171

PEOPLES PARTY

Frank Gruetzmacher, mayor	115
Paul Grange, councilman	106
Val Josten, councilman	129
M. O. Barr, councilman	50
C. A. Larsen, councilman	89
H. L. Suckow. Sr.	120

A feature of the election was that out of the 225 ballots cast there was not a spoiled ballot, although there was one ballot that the person did not vote for mayor.

There were not made ballots wasted by writing in names, but as is always the case there are a few written names.

Side Lights On The Election

A large number of women turned out to vote Monday.

They were also on hand to hear the ballots counted.

It was a close race, U-tell-M!

After the election everybody says, "well evrey man I voted for was elcted," when we know they are liars.

Frank was sure to win, either way it went.

We saw a sign, it read "Let Cairns Bros. Jecide for Mayor." That was a deep one. Next morning we saw it again, and underneath the above wording we read further, "They Did!"

Ain't it funny that the guy who never does smoke will load up on election cigars because he gets them for nothing? Have another!

A bon fire was started to throw a little light on the election results. Later more fuel was added—furnished by Mayor Gruetzmacher. We hear that since election he has contemplated on hooking up to the sewer. Fine idea!

Somebody swiped Clark Bredbenner's kerosene election night—later it was found in the can.

But—it was a great election.

U-Tell-M!

The movement to banish unnecessary noises should have gained adherents since jazz music came in.

.. Hawkeye .. State News

Interesting Items Gathered From all Parts of Iowa

A new $125,000 school building was dedicated at George recently.

Mrs. F. G. Murray, wife of a world war veteran, has been elected president of the school board at Cedar Rapids.

The soldier bonus bonds will be offered for sale on Monday, April 16, it was announced by State Treasurer W. J. Burbank.

Market men say that never in the history of Iowa was the prospect for a big turkey crop next fall as good as at the present time.

About two-thirds of Iowa's industries are now electrified, according to figures received by the Iowa Committee on Public Utility Information.

The Cedar Rapids high school band of forty-five pieces will be entered in the school band contest to be held in Chicago June 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th.

Plans for developing White Way No. 7, the new highway from Chicago to Omaha through Iowa were made at a meeting of the executive committee recently.

The Women's club at Newton, has been selling a collection of tested recipes over the state and has made $1,000 for the club.

The members of the Lions club of Vinton have assigned to each member the care of one of the memorial trees planted for the sixteen soldiers who died in the world war.

Reports compiled by the agricultural extension staff of Iowa State College show that 1,108 boys and girls from forty-nine counties have entered the baby beef club contest this year.

By increasing the strength of the solution of formaldehyde used in the treatment of oats for smut two-thirds of the labor and time formerly required may be eliminated by the latest methods of the Iowa Experiment station.

The house turned down, 80 to 13, a report of its committee on animal industry that recommended for indefinite postponement the Criswell bill to appropriate a million dollars in the next two years for work in this state against animal tuberculosis.

"Farm Meats," a new text book written by the head of the meat work at Iowa State college, has been made available. The book will be used as a text in many of the leading agricultural colleges of the country and is particularly valuable for the use of farmers.

Edward B. T. Spencer, professor of Greek in Grinnell College, has been chosen as lecturer on ancient Rome and classic arts for the international students' tours this summer. The tour will extend thru the summer months, and will visit the towns of ancient and modern Italy.

Armed with two revolvers, J. E. Hite, wealthy property owner of Clinton turned upon his attending physician, Dr. W. M. Walliker and shot and seriously wounded the doctor, then shot and killed himself, after one of the two weapons had been taken from him by Dr. Walliker.

Practical citizenship inspired with the thoughts of the leading statesmen of America is the object of a proposed, two-day Commonwealth Conference on Citizenship at the University of Iowa next July, tentative plans for which have been announced by university authorities. National leaders will be among the speakers.

The $2,250,000 gift of the Rockefeller foundations to the Iowa State university was unanimously indorsed by the Iowa Daughters of the American Revolution in the business session of their twenty-fourth annual convention which was held at Cedar Rapids. The delegates went on record urging the appropriation by the state of a like amount.

C. K. Johnson, a farmer living on Duncan's Island, in the Missouri river about five miles below Sioux City, was drowned when his boat overturned while attempting to rescue his family from the island, which was flooded several feet deep by an ice gorge in the river. All the people living on the island, which is about 500 acres in extent, were rescued.

George A. Gordon, 102, who represented Montgomery county in the ninth and ninth extra session of the Iowa Legislature in 1862, sent his greetings to the members of the present general assembly. The extra session he attended was called by Governor Samuel Kirkwood to make an additional appropriation for the care of Iowa's soldiers. Mr. Gordon now lives in Eureka, Kans.

The extension department of Iowa State college, is conducting a series of seed corn tests in various parts of the state, emphasizing to farmers the need of testing seed corn for mould and disease.

Agriculture attains a higher development in Iowa than anywhere else, but the full benefit of efficiency in production will not be reaped until it is associated with efficiency in selling, Secretary of Agriculture Henry C. Wallace said in a recent address at Des Moines, at which business men and farmers were invited.

LEGISLATIVE NEWS

With 1,500 bills and resolutions introduced when the decline for personal introduction of bills was reached and with less than a month left to go until adjournment, the period of ready execution of pet bills set in the fortieth general assembly of Iowa.

Of the 1,500 bills introduced 423 have been disposed of, either passed and signed by the governor, passed and awaiting signature, passed by one house or another, withdrawn or killed. Obviously, if it has taken eight weeks to get through 423 bills, 1,100 bills cannot be handled in less than four weeks, so committees will continue painlessly asphyxiating pet measures, the sifting committees will strangle others, and a few will be passed and enacted into law.

Governor Kendall has signed seventy new laws and thirty more have been passed by both houses waiting only his signature for enactment. In addition 160 more bills have been passed by either the senate or the house, so at a conservative estimate at least 150 new laws should be added to the list by this legislature.

What this will mean to code revision and a special session is not hard to figure out, according to members of the assembly who have been thinking about it. Only about ninety code revision bills of the 250 prepared have been put into the hands of assembly standing committees. The rest have been referred for the special session which Governor Kendall promised to call.

But 150 new laws passed will complicate matters of code revision because a new legislature would not take for granted, and could not know what had been the history of the passage of the bills so it is pretty much up to the present legislature to come back and finish the job it has undertaken.

Unless the special session is called, members point out, it will probably be necessary to issue session laws of the fortieth general assembly to add to the library of statute books now and the code commission would then have to do over all the work it has now done twice in preparing code bills for two legislatures.

With the now famous Tuck bill putting counties on a cash basis passed and signed by the governor, its author, Senator J. C. Tuck of Taylor county, introduced another bill to do the same thing for cities. Under the provisions of his bill, now a law, counties or county officials are restrained from issuing bonds to take up warrants issued in excess of funds in the several county funds. The same restrictions would be imposed on city councils and school boards under the latest bill.

Governor Kendall was prevailed upon to put off the going into effect of the Tuck bill until January 1, 1924 by the state association of county supervisors, but after listening to their arguments, he signed it and sent a statement of his reasons for so doing to the senate. The governor pointed out that he had endorsed it in principles in his biennial message to the legislature and in view of his convictions and the good vote given it in both houses he could not veto it or recommend change it in any way.

The Mead and Caldwell gasoline tax bill imposing an excise of 2 cents per gallon on gasoline passed the house without a great deal of opposition although it received just the bare number of votes necessary—26. The bill provides for the distribution of the revenue, anticipated to be about $3,000,000 a year equally between the primary and secondary road systems of the state.

What will be the fate of the bill in the house is uncertain. The house is apt to pass a bill by its highway committee which levies 2 cents a gallon but gives all the revenue to the county and township roads and replaces the county road levy of 2 mills and the optional 2 mill township dragging levy. If this should happen a conference committee would have to straighten out the tangle in all probability. However, the comparatively easy passage of the gasoline tax bill, which had been expected to cause more of a rumpus than it did augurs well for a fair consideration of the first three of the tax committee's bills. These bills have been passed out by both senate and house committees, so no stones will be laid in their path before getting a hearing in the houses.

There is considerable opposition to the three bills, creating a state board of assessment and review, establishing a county assessor sytem of collection, and instituting state and local budget boards and they may fail of passage in the regular session at least. However, they are considered to be exceptionally good bills; they have strong endorsements from influential organizations

The bill to appropriate $21,000 to meet federal aid for work in Iowa due under the Sheppard-Towner maternity welfare law was passed by the Iowa house seventy-seven to twenty-three. Granting of this appropriation makes about $70,000 available for maternity welfare work in this state during the coming two years. The work is administered by a council of state university workers at Iowa City under appointment by Governor Kendall. Professor O. E. Klingaman is the director.

ROBERT M. ESTES

Robert M. Estes of Kentucky, recently appointed deputy commissioner of internal revenue. He succeeds Judge McKenzie Moss. Mr. Estes entered the census bureau as a clerk in 1900. He also served with the tariff board in President Taft's administration.

BAN ON RUSSIAN REDS

Hughes Sees No Hope for Soviet Ruled Country.

Secretary of State Tells Delegation of Women That Reds Dream Revolution and Live Repudiation.

Washington, March 22.—Secretary of State Hughes sees no hope for soviet Russia except the hope that lies in Russia's own action.

As long as the soviet government continues to maintain its policy of repudiation and confiscation and to disseminate propaganda of revolution throughout the world, the United States will not recognize it. This statement was made by Mr. Hughes to a delegation of forty women from different states brought together by the women's committee for recognition of Russia, affiliated with the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, who urged upon the United States the recognition of the soviet government.

The United States wants to help Russia, Mr. Hughes told the delegation, but it must first see a basis for helpfulness.

First, the secretary declared, there must be evidence of an abandonment of a policy of spreading the doctrine of "cruel and sanguinary" revolution. In this connection he quotes Trotzky's declaration that revolution was coming in America.

KILLS MOTHER AND SELF

Two Chicago Women, Victims of the "Dope" Habit, Chose That Way Out.

Chicago, March 22.—Two women chose death Wednesday night in preference to parting made inevitable by the "dope" habit. Mrs. Edna Robinson, forty years old, a drug addict, murdered her mother, Mrs. Ella Woolson, seventy-two years old, in a rooming house at 2317 Indiana avenue, then turned the edge of the razor against her own throat. The tragedy was the culmination of years of agonized, fruitless struggle against the grip of narcotics.

FOREIGNERS SLIP INTO U. S.

Thousand Aliens a Day Sneak in, Says Secretary of Labor Davis.

Washington, March 24.—The statement that approximately 1,000 aliens are smuggled into the United States every day was made by Secretary of Labor Davis in announcing that immigration officials at all ports and along the Mexican and Canadian borders had been ordered to adopt more stringent methods for barring illegal entry of foreigners.

CHAT REVEALS TAX PLOT

Federal Agent Hears Details of Unreported Mine Sale in Pullman—Suit Filed.

New York, March 21.—A conversation between passengers in a western pullman car a year ago, overheard by a federal revenue agent, resulted in the filing of an equity income and excess profits tax suit for $1,790,842.44 with interest, from 450 individuals and corporations in the United States and Canada.

Coal Storage Is Urged.

Pittsburgh, March 24.—The Carnegie Institute of Technology and the bureau of mines issued a joint report declaring that the only solution of the problem of stabilizing the coal industry lies in safe storage of coal.

$10,000,000 Liquor Plot Is Charged.

New York, March 24.—Prohibition agents charge Charles and Ralph Sabbatino, owners of a Brooklyn warehouse, with attempting to bribe two prohibition officials to connive in the release of $10,000,000 worth of whisky.

INDIANS AT BAY IN UTAH CANYON

Band of Renegade Plutes Are Battling for Their Lives.

POSSE TO USE ARMY PLANE

Governor Mabey Has Asked Commanding Officers of Ninth Corps Area for Loan of Machine—Snipers to Balk Reds.

Salt Lake City, Utah, March 23.—Old Posey, more than a century old, and his band of renegade Indians are battling for their lives. They have been driven into what is known as the Dark Tank country, a sunken section of land twelve miles square and about thirty miles east of Monticello.

Several posse members have been posted at the only two known exits that horses can use and are holding the red men at bay while the others of the posses are closing in on the band from the rear and cutting off all avenues of retreat. Continuous firing is reported.

Governor Asks for Plane.

Governor Mabey has asked the commanding officer of the Ninth corps area for the loan of an army plane to be sent to the scene of the Indian disturbance should such action become necessary.

It is possible that the Indians may attempt to scale a huge cliff in order to escape from the trap, but according to latest dispatches a strong detachment of men has been posted at a point from which the Indians can be picked off as they appear above the rim of the cliff.

Cowboy Charlie Bites Dust.

Cowboy Charlie, one of the most refractory of the renegade Piutes cornered in the canyon, was slain in the battle with a sheriff's posse, and in a surprise rush nine of the Indians were captured. The rest are said to have escaped, but the "war" is over.

ONE DEAD IN IOWA FLOOD

Airplanes Bomb Ice Gorge in Missouri River at Sioux City Without Result.

Sioux City, Ia., March 23.—One person is known to have been drowned and, according to unconfirmed reports, several others are missing and hundreds of head of live stock and farm dwellings swept away as the result of a flood in the Missouri river bottoms south of here, caused by a five-mile ice gorge. Airplanes bombed the gorge, but without result. The bombs dropped from a height of 700 feet, tore craters 200 feet wide, but these filled with soft ice.

DRY VIOLATOR GIVEN LIMIT

Pittsburgh Man Gets Two Years in Prison and a $10,000 Fine at Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., March 22.—Carrying out a threat made several hours before, that the law's limit would be meted out to all liquor law violators found guilty after entering pleas of not guilty, Federal Judge John M. Killits sentenced Joseph Biener of Pittsburgh to two years in Atlanta penitentiary, fined him the maximum of $10,000 and in addition ordered him to pay all court costs.

ALLIES ACCEPT U. S. DEMAND

Willing to Have $240,000,000 Taken From Future Reparations by Germany.

Paris, March 24.—Allied financial delegates in conference with Elliott Wadsworth, assistant secretary of the American treasury, have accepted the main lines of Washington's demands for the payment of the expenses of the American army on the Rhine, namely, almost $240,000,000 to be spread over twelve years and taken from future payments by Germany.

IOWA GOES TO DAVY JONES

Old Battleship, Riddled by Shells, Sinks Sixty Miles Off Panama Canal Entrance.

Aboard U. S. S. Maryland, Balboa, Canal Zone, March 23.—Riddled by 14-inch shells fired from a distance of eight to ten miles, the old battleship Iowa, which fought in the war with Spain and did service in the World war, went down sixty miles south of the Pacific entrance to the Panama canal, sacrificed for the better defense of the nation.

Bulgaria to Make Reparations.

Sofia, March 24.—The reparations commission in Paris is expected to approve the reparations agreement reached here, and Bulgaria will make her first payment, under the new reparations schedule, on April 1.

British Jobless 1,300,000.

London, March 24.—The ministry of labor gives the number of registered unemployed in England as more than 1,300,000 Despite these huge figures, unemployment has been free from serious labor disputes

Death Is Swallowed Up In Victory

Mary stood without at the sepulcher weeping; and as she wept, she stooped down and looked into the sepulcher.

And seeth two angels in white sitting, the one at the head, and the other at the feet, where the body of Jesus had lain.

And they say unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? She saith unto them, Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him.

And when she had said thus, she turned herself back, and saw Jesus standing, and knew not that it was Jesus.

Jesus said unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? whom seekest thou? She, supposing him to be the gardener, saith unto him, Sir, if thou have borne him hence, tell me where thou hast laid him, and I will take him away.

Jesus saith unto her, Mary. She turned herself, and saith unto him, Rabboni, which is to say, Master.—St. John, 20:11-16.

HOT CROSS BUNS IN HISTORY

Originated as Part of the Spring Festival in Honor of the Goddess Eostre.

Hot cross buns, the eating of which is one of the ceremonies of Good Friday, were first baked as part of the spring festival for the goddess Eostre, whose pagan name has clung to the season. The heathen cakes have never been dropped from the regular routine of the feasting, either. Dozens of early clergy tried to stop the more or less ceremonial indulgence in them. They prohibited them, But nothing happened about it. So they had them marked with the cross and took them over.

The delights of children, and of most grownups—eating cakes and kindling bonfires—are actually the two oldest methods of celebrating in the world. They go back to the time that the regular set of gods and goddesses were just in the process of being established. Most every group seems to have started off with a sun-god who was worshiped by fires and lights and with a kind of goddess of plenty, or earth deity, or queen of Heaven. This last lady was worshiped with cakes in old China, in ancient Mexico, in early Britain and in northern Europe.

Beautiful Altar Decoration.

This Easter set was exhibited at the international flower show in Grand Central palace, New York, to show what beauty flowers can add to a church if used tastefully and appropriately.

LIFE BEYOND DEAT

Easter's Revelation Has Ope New Vistas.

Natural Science Silent in the Pres of the Great Belief and Expectation.

Easter brings completion to the ences!

All the secular sciences conduct as far as death, and there they sto

The door of the tomb is a wall, strong and insurmountable by the Geology, geography, astron chemistry, physiology, biology and other divisions bring us on, with a ways increasing precision, to an derstanding of life's functions and tivities, up to that point. There drop us, for beyond death natural ence has not learned to travel. It no formulae to express anything the other side of the closed doo death.

And after much bruising of br and vain beating of hands against obstacle, it confesses itself beate has come to an impasse, it decl that because it cannot pass, that t is no passage, nothing beyond tomb is the end of all!

Either that, or it accepts the Ea miracle—as it must, if it will be towards evidence, towards histor revelation and towards theology, queen of all the sciences"—and knowledges that Easter's revela crowns all human knowledge, opens before it new, endless vistas exploration and future progress.

It would be a sorry conclusion t science if it brought us only to an ing in the corruption, the annihila of death. And an unsatisfactory ing!

For the great majority of mank never has, and never will believe t the closed tomb ends everything! here is too full of inequalities to m that just! The analogies in natu which find no definite ending for Oldest Church in Jerusalem.

thing else but life, help to prove it true! And justness and truth are keystones upon which natural scien builds up all its theories to arrive ultimate fact.

Science, which is perhaps the proje tion of the ripest and best of huma ity, needs Easter.

For Science cannot avert death Men live to their threescore and te or beyond that for a few years of labo and sorrow, as they did in the Psalm ist's days, before science had travele very far along the roads of develop ment.

But since Easter rolled away the wall from the tomb, science may no claim to bring men onto the threshol of a new and glorified life, the resur rection life. The tomb is now but a episode in lives which were—alway were—immortal.

Easter shows the tomb is open o the other side from us—open onto new garden of Edenic soul life, th Paradise of God. And some day it to open on our side also, and let thos blessedly resting ones out into re newed bodily life, which cannot be bound between a birth and a death.

For one man actually, undeniably went through the tomb into that Para dise, and came back at Easter wit an everlasting, undying body!

Just as the little crocus looks up stiff and straight, as a prophecy tha all the temporarily dead bulbs an roots and seeds will arise in their ow time.

Science teaches the imperishability of matter, and it is true logically en dowed when, advancing a step, teaches also the immortality of man.

Then there is but another step on ward, to a grateful acknowledgment of the truth taught by the well attested fact of the Resurrection, that as H rose so shall all our dead also arise the great Easter, which shall fulfill th promise of all the Springs!

It is the mission of the Chur which is His Body here and now complete the thus inspired teaching the natural sciences, and show us th every one who really desires so to may spend eternity along with King and Owner, after the last Eas has opened for ever the tomb of dea —Montreal Family Herald.

THE AUTO'S JOINTS

Car May Be Lengthened By Proper Lubrication.

Joints of an automobile, like ts of any other machine, must antly oiled if the machine is long and useful life. Despite that the truth of this state- generally known, mechanics number of automobiles that ed each year because of im- lubrication is surprising. the working joints of a car constantly oiled, mud and wa close up the oil and grease and cause no end of trouble wear of bolts and bushings d steering are but a few of its. Noisy operation and also rough riding, too, may often be attributed to empty grease cups.

"To lubricate an automobile is the least anyone can possibly do to prolong its life," says Raymond L. McFarland, in charge of automobile instruction at Iowa State College, "yet how many cars wear out before their time, simply because of lack of lubrication."

THE SPRING CLEAN-UP

Everybody Should Cooperate In The Movement For Cleaning-up In Early Spring

MAKE KLEMME ATTRACTIVE

Some genius conceived the notion that a Clean Up Week or Clean Up Day, if appointed during the spring months, would appeal to the popular psychology at that particular time. It did so, and today such occasions are observed in thousands of communities.

The desire for improvement seems to influence people at this season. If you asked a man to clean up disorder around his place in July, he might evasively postpone the suggestion.

But in spring some lure of out doors, emphasized by the bright sunshine and soft breezes and cheerful bird songs, seems to put a new spirit into the heart. The man who at other times is indifferent to appearances, will come forth in his overalls and jumper, prepared for heroic deeds with rake, spade, and bonfire.

This impulse toward industry should be worked for all it is worth. A Clean-Up Day or Week should be appointed in every community. The home folks should all be organized into an army of anti-litter workers, each family detailed to clean up its own refuse. Also they should be induced to add some touch of beauty to their grounds. Municipal authorities should be urged to make careful arrangements for street cleaning for the season. Landlords should be reminded that their buildings will rent better if kept well painted and repaired.

An incessant stream of visitors passes through our towns today, and Klemme is under constant inspection by visitors. These folks form impressions, not so much from superficial appearances of prosperity like costly buildings, as by the degree of neatness and taste shown in the care and improvement of dwellings and their surroundings.

Indications like these reflect the character of the people who live in a place. A city that keeps itself scrubbed and combed, whose homes show a love for beauty, by neat lawns and pretty flowers, gains a name for self respect and culture. Visitors pass along the word that its a fine town.

The above also holds true with a rural community. One farm yard kept in trim with nice lawn, flowers and weeds cut along the road, stands out from its neighbors and passing cars admire the neat appearance. A whole farm community kept neat and trim soon attracts a great deal of attention and soon gains a name as being a well kept, up-to-date community of good farmers.

It frequently happens that the more a girl has on outside her face, the less she has inside her head.

The girls are laying in their sport suits, but some of them have neglected to buy any working aprons.

Present indications are that the American people are drinking in something besides the air of freedom.

TYPEWRITER RIBBONS
All Makes

Typewriter Ribbons for sale at the Times Office. all of the Standard makes. Ribbons 75 cents each.

GEORGE ZINN, M. D.
Physician and Surgeon

Office opposite from Hotel Klemme

Phone No. 19

es Examined — Glasses Fitted

ext Time Try

Sausage

You will like our sausage, it's made of quality meats properly prepared and seasoned. Buy it in

Link
Pork
Liver
Summer
Bologna

It's Good!

Ask For

"HEINZ 57"

We Have Them

. P. Larsen & Sons

The Klemme Meat Market

Standard Ford simplicity of design throughout; no unnecesary weight; all moving parts enclosed. Automobile type drive ure easy handling. Fordson turns in a 21-foot circle. Three ward speeds.

Lowest initial cost and minimum operating cost.

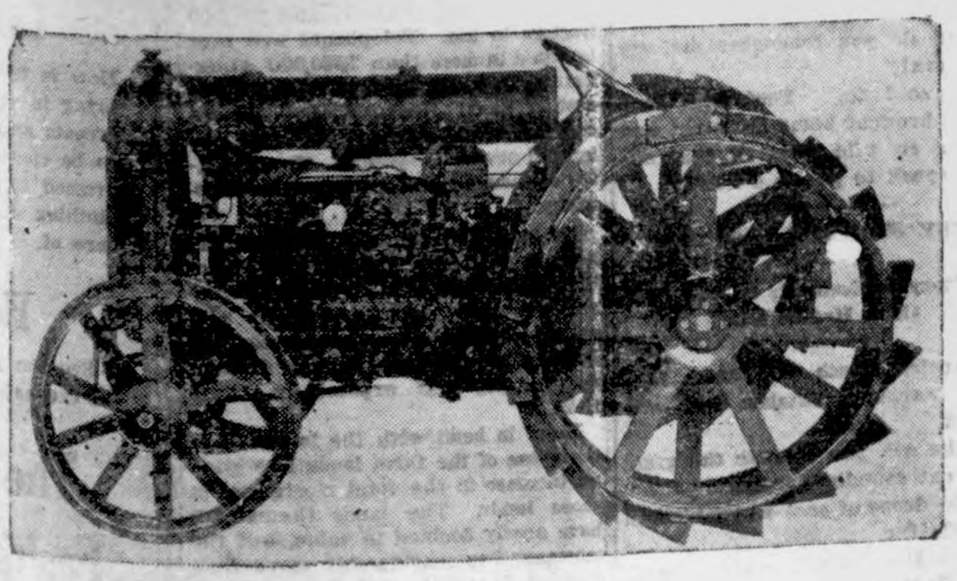
Burns kerosene. Will pull two plows.

Special Ford air washer, through which air supply is drawn, oves all dust, thus reducing wear on vital working parts.

More than 100 farm and commercial uses.

Backed by Ford Service Organization of over 18,000 dealers. ch assures continuous operation of the Fordsn. No costly ys awaiting parts.

Come in and let us tell you more about the Fordson. Order for early delivery.



Greimann Motor Company

Griemann, Manager. — Ford, Fordson, Lincoln

Recovers Handkerchief Lost Forty Years Ago

Halifax.—Forty years ago a boy pushed his pocket-handkerchief into a cavity in the Ebenezer Primitive Methodist chapel, and found he was unable to pull it out again.

The boy is now Alderman Whittaker, deputy mayor of the town, but he never forgot his lost handkerchief. The chapel has just been pulled down and the alderman asked the contractor to look out for the handkerchief.

This was done; the handkerchief was found and has been returned to Alderman Whittaker with a note from the contractor: "I don't know how you have managed without it for so many years."

INDIANS' NUMBERS INCREASE

Total Now 340,917, Dr. E. E. Hingley of Methodist Mission Board Reports.

Atlantic City, N. J.—The American Indians as a race are not dying, as so many people think. On the contrary, they show this year a slight numerical increase as compared to 12 months ago, according to Dr. E. E. Hingley of Chicago, superintendent of the work among Indians of the board of home missions of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Doctor Hingley disclosed this condition in an address recently at the annual meeting in this city of the Home Mission council of the church. The Indian census a year ago showed 340,838 Indians; now they number 340,917.

"There are 90,000 Indian boys and girls between five and sixteen years of age, who are of school age, about 30,000 are enrolled in government schools, and the remaining 30,000 are still without school privileges," continued Doctor Hingley. "In the Indian schools especial emphasis is put upon agriculture and home economics. In the large nonreservation schools many trade courses are provided."

CALIFORNIA'S OLDEST MAN

Charles F. Ames is southern California's oldest man. He is one hundred and five and is still active. He was born in Bridgewater, Mass. In his youth he worked for Daniel Webster on a farm.

KILL 500 BIRDS AT A TIME

Automatic Shotgun Used by Pacific Coast Hunters, Says Game Warden.

Sacramento, Cal.—Automatic shotguns that kill 500 birds at a single discharge are being used by Pacific coast hunters, according to George Neal, an official of the state game and fish commission.

The gun, according to Neal, is equipped with a special appliance which permits a sustained and concentrated fire, similar to the machine gun.

Four men arrested by Neal for exceeding the number of birds the law permits to be killed confessed.

PREDICTS WORLD'S END 1954

Carmelite Monk in Mexico Frightens Credulous Indians With Forecast.

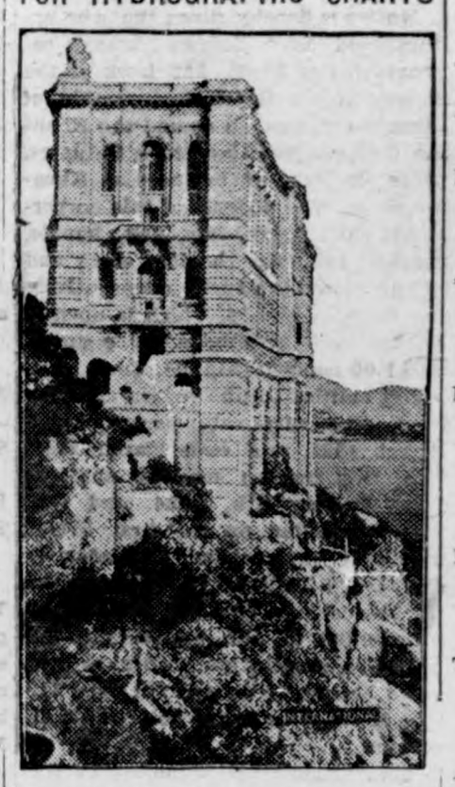
Mexico City.—Considerable anxiety is being shown by the Indian population of the village of Mixoac, near Mexico City, following the recent declarations of Father Genaro Rivera, a Carmelite monk residing there, that the end of the world will come on December 12, 1954.

The monk bases his prediction on highly complex astronomical observations he has been conducting for years, and he asserts that the millenium is a certainty on that date. He is a highly respected man of the village and his assertions have caused great excitement among the credulous Indians.

Radio to Australia 2 Cents a Word.

London.—Plans are maturing for the construction of a wireless system between England and Australia on such a scale as to allow messages to be sent between the two countries at the cost of 2 cents a word.

FOR HYDROGRAPHIC CHARTS



Monaco, in which is located the famous Monte Carlo, has been selected as the seat of the international hydrographic bureau, which is to be responsible for recharting all the seas of the world. Vice Admiral Parry of the British royal navy is president of the bureau. The photo shows the building, right at the edge of the sea, that is used as headquarters for the hydrographic bureau.

CITY HAS 10,000 SCULPTORS

Carrara, Italy, Sends Its Marble Carvings to All Parts of the World.

Rome.—Carrara, in northern Tuscany, with its neighboring smaller towns of Messa and Serravenza, is still the source and center of the marble industry of the world and produces the purest marble, with the maximum freedom from blemishes, in the largest quantities on record. It was because of the snow-white riches of Carrara that Augustus boasted that he had left Rome a city of marble palaces, though he had found it one of brick.

Everywhere as one approaches the town one hears the clink, clink, clink of the chisel and the mallet. For it is safe to say that out of the population of 30,000 at least 10,000 persons in Carrara—adults and minors—are sculptors of a kind.

Many a marble palace has been made in Carrara. That is to say, its marble walls, pillars and lintels have been hewn in Carrara with a fine calculation down to infinitesimal fractions of a millimeter and then shipped in numbered pieces to a distant part of Europe, or even to America.

Claimed there is no family discipline now, but anyway a lot of the parents of Klemme do what the children tell them to.

The school pupils hope there will not be another war, as it would make another history lesson to learn.

Public swimming pools do not necessarily teach everybody to swim, but they help dispel the idea that it is dangerous to take baths.

TO MY UNCLE

From the Boone County (Ark.) Herald

He has gone on. Just as he lived he died.
He left with us the rule he followed when
He daily laid his heavy load aside
To bear the burdens of his fellow men.
"I have done some little here," he said, "and so,
Now that my time for doing good is past,
Let me go out with little pomp and show.'
He thought himself unworthy till the last.
'Twas always so with him; he never cared
To claim the credit of his kindliness;
It was enough for him, when he had shared
His shelter or his substance, to possess
A knowledge of his neighbor's happiness.
It must be so today as he now stands
With happy wonder written on his face
That he should gain from God's own gracious hands
So great a glory and so high a place
As his reward. While we who loved him best
And knew the simple goodness of his ways
Must labor on and honor his bequest
Till we fulfill our given length of days.
And this my prayer through all these days shall be:
O, Master, may I do as much as he!

—A Nephew.

Also the Best In

Implements
Supplies
Accessories

H. Lau Sons

Bakery Goods

SALLY ANN BREAD—
CREAM PUFFS—
SNOW BALLS—
FRIED CAKES—
CINNAMON ROLLS—
RYE BREAD—
COOKIES—

A Big Basket of Bakery Goods arrives fresh every afternoon from the Gates Bakery Co., of Traer, Iowa.

We have tried samples from a dozen different Bakeries and we find

SALLY ANN BREAD
BEATS
THEM
ALL!

Those of you who want the best will ask for

SALLY
ANN
BREAD—
—at—

Wellemeyer's

Send Us Your Name and address on a post card or in a letter and we will mail free and postpaid, a sample copy of the most wonderful magazine published. 160 pages and 400 pictures every month, that will entertain every member of the family.

Popular Mechanics MAGAZINE

It contains interesting and instructive articles on the Home, Farm, Shop and Office—the newest developments in Radio, Aviation, Automobile and Garage. Each issue contains something to interest everybody.

We do not employ subscription solicitors so you will not be urged to subscribe and you are not obligating yourself in the least in asking for a free sample copy. We gladly send it to prospective readers. If you like it you can buy a copy every month from any newsdealer or send us your subscription—$3.00 for one year.

Popular Mechanics Company
200-214 E. Ontario Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

Popular Mechanics building is devoted exclusively to the production of this great magazine.

ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned have formed, under the provisions of chap. 122 laws of the Thirty Ninth General Assembly of Iowa, a corporation named the Klemme Cooperative Live Stock Shippers principle place of business at Klemme, Iowa. The objects of this corpor ation shall be to buy, sell, handle market and ship the live stock an other farm products cooperatively for its membership, which is open to all livestock producers, by payment of $1.00 membership fee. Each member is entitled to one vote in all meetings. The corporate period began March 1923, and ends March 1948. The first annual meeting shall be held January 8th, 1924. and each year thereafter on the first Friday following the second Thursday in January. Liabilities of the members for the debts of the Association shall be limited to the membership fee paid. The association shall have power to borrow up to and not over $1,000.00 on a majority vote of all directors.

Management shall consist of five directors, three of which shall serve until the annual meeting in 1925 and two util the annual election in 1924. Succeeding directors shall be elected for two years. The directors shall at their first meeting elect from their own number a president, a vice president and a secretary-treasurer. The two year directors are E. J. Arnold, Herman Priebe, and John G. Tanner. The one year directors are Wm. J. Schlawin and John Miller. The president is Wm. J. Schlawin, the vice president is Herman Priebe and the secretary-reasurer is E. J. Arnold.

Signed this 7th day of February, 923 by Wm. J. Schlawin, John G. anner, J. F. Miller, Herman Priebe and E. J. Arnold.

(Mar 22-29 Apr-5-12.)

NOTICE OF PROBATE OF WILL

STATE OF IOWA,
ss.
Hancock County.

TO ALL TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED, That an instrument of writing purporting to be the last Will and Testament of KATHERINE ULRICH deceased, dated May 6th, 1905, having been this day filed, opened and read, Monday the 7th day of May, 1923 is fixed for hearing proof of same at the Court House in Garner, Iowa, before the District Court of said County or the Clerk of said Court; and at 10:00 o'clock A. M. of the day above mentioned, all persons interested are hereby notified and required to appear, and show cause, if any they have, why said instrument should not be probated and allowed as and for the last Will and Testament of said deceased.

Dated at Garner, Iowa, March 6th, 1923.

(Mr.8-15-22) Clerk of District Court
B. E. ERWIN,

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Notice is hereby given that proposals for the erection of an addition to the school house in the Independent District of Klemme, Hancock County, Iowa, and for the plumbing and heating therein, will be received by the undersigned in Klemme, Iowa, until One O'clock P. M., April 27th, 1923, bids will be opened at 8:00 O'clock P. M. on the same date, at which time contract will be let to the lowest responsible bidder. Plans and specifications may be seen at the First National Bank. The Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Dated at Klemme, Iowa, March 27, 1923.

LEW LEWIS,
Secretary Independent District of Klemme.

(Pub. Mrch 29, April 5-12-19.)

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Klemme, Iowa.
February 26, 1923.

Regular meeting of the Town Council held in Mayor F. J. Wencks office.

Meeting was called to order by Mayor Wenck.

Members present: Mayor F. J. Wenck; Clerk J. N. Day; Councilmen A. D. Gimer, Wm. Smith, and C. W. Wiles.

Members absent: Councilmen Wm. Bachman and Joe JJohnson.

Motion made and seconded that the following bills be allowed:

Carried.

Klemme Times, publishing Council Proceedings	.70
Standard Oil Company, gas	16.69
Fred Henschen, salary for December and January	80.00

Moved to adjourn.

F. J. WENCK, Mayor,
J. N. DAY, Clerk.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Klemme, Iowa.
March 12, 1923.

Regular meeting of the Town Council held in Mayor F. J. Wenck's office.

Meeting called to order by Mayor F. J. Wenck.

Memebres prsnt: Mayor F. J. Wenck; Clerk J. N. Day; Councilmen C. W. Wiles, Wm. Smith and Joe Johnson.

Members absent: Councilmen A. D. Gimer and Wm. Bachman.

Motion made and seconded that the following bills be allowed.

Carried.

Standard Oil Company, gas	9.50
Klemme Times. publishing Council Proceedings	3.50
W. F. Pavey, for Blacksmith Bill	2.15

Upon motion the following were appointed and qualified to act on City Election Board for Judges:

A. D. Gimer,
Joe Johnson,
F. J. Wenck.

For Clerks:

C. W. Wiles,
J. N. Day.

Carried.

Moved to adjourn.

F. J. WENCK, Mayor.
J. N. Day, Clerk.

KICKIN' THE DORG AROUND

A Colyum O' Humor By the Office Divvil Hisself

What Reputation Will Do

Under a tall sycamore in an old fashioned New England graveyard lie the bones of a once distinguished lawyer. His grave is marked only with a plain headstone containing his name and this epitaph: "Here lies a lawyer and an honest man."

An Irishman invaded the burying place one day and, after reading the epitaph a second time, remarked, "There must be two men in that grave."

A "Fine Art"

"The way your son runs his racing car is an art."

"Yes, and too frequently it's a fine art."

Try These On Your Vocal

Silk Slit Split Stitch Slipped Sightly Slim Slight Shin Seen.

Sixty Stern Stalwart Sheriffs Shouldering Shotguns Scout Swamps Seeking Slayer.

Acosta's Accuser, Accosting Acosta, Accused Acosta's Accosting Accuser.

Seems She Sews Soldiers' Shoulder Seams So Shoulder Seams Show.

Fly Flayed Flea; Flea Flew, Fly Fled.

Send in your tongue twisters to this column. We will print every one that the linotype won't shy at.

Hidden Treasure

"One of the finest collections of stuffed birds in the United States is in the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Sciences," observed a gentleman from that city. "and I chanced to be there one day when a certain millionaire was examing the collection in the company of a curator.

"Yes," said the curator, "this collection of stuffed birds is worth thousands and thousands of dollars."

"Is that so?" said the millionaire. 'Why, what are they stuffed with?' "

Fast Growers

"P'taters is good this morning ma'am," said the old farmer, making his usual weekly call.

"Yes, and that reminds me," retorted the customer rather grimly. "How is it that those you sold me last week were so much smaller at the bottom of the basket than at the top?"

"Well," answered the old man, "p'taters are growing so fast now that by the time I've dug a basketful up the last ones are about twice the size of the first!"

The Only Safe Way

"I hear tell," said an acquaintance, "that Zach Flatt had jower with his wife last night and in the course of the anecdote kicked her on the shin so's she can't hardly walk a-tall today."

"Good—p'tu—goshamighty!" exclaimed Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, Ark. "That's no way for a gent to treat his wife. He mought a-broke her leg so's she couldn't have worked for weeks. He ort to have slapped her jaws if he wanted to do anything."

Remembered

Blinks. after inviting his friend Jinks to dinner, was telling him about the remarkable memory of his little son Bobby.

"And do you think he will remember me?" asked Jinks.

"Remember you? Why, certainly he will."

An hour later they entered the house, and after Jinks had greeted Mrs. Blinks, he called Bobby over to him.

"'And do you remember me, my little man?"

"Course I do. You're the man that pa brought home last year, and ma was so wild about it that she didn't speak to pa for a week."

PUSSY STARTS A HOT TIME

This Story Is Certainly In The Class Of A Heated Tale

Atlantic, March 29.—Mrs. John Jones started a kitchen fire with coal oil.

In the ash pan beneath the grate was a cat soundly sleeping.

Little drops of coal oil trickled on the cat's fur.

When Mrs. Jones touched a match to the oil the blazing cat rushed madly to the hay pile in the barn.

The hay was consumed; so was the barn; so was the cat; nothing was left but the tale.

FARM EXPENSES TAKE BIG JUMP

Huge Increase in Use of Commercial Fertilizers in Last Twenty Years Revealed.

MAKE SURVEY OF AGRICULTURE

Virgin Soil of Nation Has at Length Worn Out and Fertility Must Be Added—Hired Men Get Better Pay.

Washington.—The enigma of why American farming cannot survive under present conditions, although the prices of foodstuffs are higher than they were in ahy prewar year, is not the only topic dealt with in the report of the joint commission which investigated the agricultural crisis. The report itself constitutes a broad survey of farming as it is at present conducted and as such it makes clear what a change has come over the business of food production during the last 20 years.

One prime characteristic of farming today is its increased and increasing use of fertilizer. The virgin soil of the nation that once produced a heavy series of crops year after year and seemed inexhaustible in its richness has at length worn out. Not even manures and the rotation of crops can sustain its productivity. Fertility has to be added and it must be added in the form of commercial fertilizers.

At the beginning of the present century the farmers of America, and principally those of the older states east of the Mississippi, were buying commercial fertilizers at the rate of about $54,000,000 in value each year. In 1919 they spent nearly $330,000,000. Twenty years ago not $4,000,000 a year was spent for fertilizers by farmers west of the Mississippi river; in 1919 the farmers of that region spent approximately $27,000,000. The Pacific states are using nine times as much fertilizer now as they did then. These figures are evidence of the exhaustion of the soil.

Hired Men Get Better Pay.

The hired man on the farm gets better pay than he used to. His wages now, figuring in his board as part of his pay, are about three and one-half times what they were in 1898. It is costing farmers today nearly four times as much to feed their live stock as it did only ten years ago.

In ten years the farms of the nation have nearly doubled in value, due to the increasing cost of land. The average farm in 1910 was valued at $5,471. The present value of the average farm is $10,514, while the total present farm value is close to $68,000,000,000. This represents an increase of about $32,000,000,000. On this increased value interest must be paid, and the greater difficulty of making the farm pay as an investment is one of the things which is embarrassing our farming.

Although in 20 years there has been a great increase in the use of farm machinery, the crop statistics do not indicate that machinery is increasing production. It is permitting fewer men to operate the farms, but it is not sending the farm output ahead of the increase in population. Yet, as farm labor grows harder and harder to get, the tendency is toward a greater use of machinery. This is another indication which points to higher food prices in the future.

Farm Implements Cost More.

Farm machinery and tools have greatly increased in price. So has lumber. Today one farm in every twenty-eight owns at least one tractor; two out of every hundred maintain motortrucks; while the automobile has now become so prevalent that practically one farm of every three has one. The great wheat and corn states of the upper and middle Mississippi valley are the chief users of tractors. Here there is a tractor for every nine farms.

While machinery has not increased the output of crops per acre, it has increased crop output per unit of labor.

The physical conditions of living on farms are growing better. The great number of automobiles in use—nearly 2,000,000 cars on the farms in 1920—is an indication of this. There are about 140,000 motortrucks and 250,000 tractors in use. Telephones are now installed in more than 2,500,000 American farmhouses, or in almost 40 per cent of them. Nearly 650,000 American farm homes have their own water and sewerage systems. About 450,000 of them are lighted by gas or electricity.

Science, while it has done much, has not yet rescued the farmer from the business hazards of weather, destructive insect pests, or plant and animal diseases. The commission believes much more can be done to render farming less exposed to these risks.

Hand in hand with the increase in the value of the farm lands has gone an increase in the total mortgage on those lands. The lands themselves have nearly doubled in value, but the mortgage has considerably more than doubled. It is estimated that the present total mortgage debt on American farms is $8,663,000,000, as against approximately $3,600,000,000 in 1910. On the average the interest rate on the farm debt at present is 6.1 per cent.

NEWS NUBBINS

"The time has come," Walrus said, "to talk many things—of shoes ships and sealing wax cabbages and kings."

o o o o o o o o o o
o THE CITY DRAY LINE
o —Is prepared to do your ha o ing carefully and promp
o We solicit your patron
o Charges reasonable.
o Coal Hauling Done
o Louie Knoke
o o o o o o o o o o

o o o o o o o o o o
o KLEMME DRAY LINE
o Phone 2105
o A share of your patronag
o solicited. All work atte o to promptly and carefully
o haul coal quick.
o LLOYD LAU, PROP.
o o o o o o o o o o

PURE BRED

Hatching Eg

Ferris 300 Egg Strain...
Comb White Leghorn

Hatching Eggs $
Per 100

H. G. Brune

Phone 607 Goodell,

Hatching Eg

—T—

S. C. W. Leghorn Eggs for H

$3.00 PER HUNDRE

Will have four or five hun

BABY CHICKS

March 27th. $10.00 a hun farm if all are taken.

Rufus Steffe

Britt Phone Kanawh

(7 1-2 miles west of Klem

o o o o o o o o o o
o DENTIST
o J. L. Hesselhuus, D. D.
o Office Hours 8-12 1-5
o Office Opposite State Sa
o Bank; In Schaffer Bldg
o Evening Work By Appoint
o Only
o Klemme, Ia. Phon
o o o o o o o o o o

SUITS

To Your Measure

Do not wait or put off b ing that suit made to y measure. Selections ar their very best—enjoy Spring and Summer mo in a brand new—

Suit or Topcoa

Buy at the price you w to pay and select the p ern you desire.

Pantotium

Now is the proper tim bring in your suits and ercoats and other garm to be cleaned, repaired pressed. Bring in y clothing and have it ta care of.

Hosiery

—See the Ladies' Sprin All the new things.

The Men's Fashion Sho

A. W. JOHNSON
GARNER

Danger!

NOTICE TO PARENTS AND CHILDREN

Fallen ELECTRIC WIRES are dangerous and we want to warn parents and everyone else not to touch any wire which has fallen down; also warn your children of the danger of a live wire.

DO NOT go near a puddle of water where a live wire has fallen and is lying in the water. This is extremely dangerous and might prove fatal should you touch the water.

Boys should be careful in flying kites not to let the string come in contact with a live wire, especially on damp days.

NEVER hitch your team to an electric light pole. We will not be responsible for any damage.

CO-OPERATE WITH US—if you notice a wire down notify W. F. Pavey, Klemme, who will notify us to repair the wire.

MYRON HASKINS, LOCAL MGR.

Iowa Falls Electric Co. Garner, Ia.

Always Improving--

This Company is always improving its service and making operation more effecive.

One improvement just authorized is the installation of a set of disconnection switches at Blairsburg to effect operation from the ground.

Another real addition is the purchase of the distributing system in the town of Rowan which system will be improved..

These and other improvements will cost Sevral Thousand Dollars and it is to finance such INCOME PRODUCING improvemnts as these that you are offered the opportunity of investing in the Common Shares now paying 7% Dividends per year.

Ask for th Illustrated booklet ITS FREE!

Iowa Falls Electric Co.

IOWA FALLS, IOWA. Or any of our offices.

We Serve

FIRST CLASS MEALS and LUNCHES

Home Made Pies
Ice Cream and Soft Drinks
FRESH BREAD EVERY DAY
Candy Cigars Tobacco

The Crystal Cafe

Conrad Quandt, Prop. Klemme, Ia.

"A Good Cafe in a Good Town"

DESERT GOLD

By ZANE GREY

Author of

The Riders of the Purple Sage, Wildfire, Etc.

Copyright by Harper & Brothers.

CHAPTER XI.—Continued.

—12—

Indian led off into one of the notches between the tumbled s of lava. At the apex of the where two streams met, a narlly wound and ascended. Yaqui blo into it, and then began the laborious and vexatious and of all slow travel.

disintegrating surface of a lava was at once the roughest, the t, the meanest, the cruelest, the deceitful kind of ground to

The fugitives made slow ss. They picked a cautious, g way to and fro in little steps and there along the many twists the trail, up and down the unavoidepressions, round and round the

At noon, so winding back upon had been their course, they apared to have come only a short dis- up the lava slope.

was rough work for them; it was le work for the horses. Blanco refused to answer to the power Yaqui. He balked, he plunged, and kicked. He had to be pulled beaten over many places. Mer- horse almost threw her, and as put upon Blanco Sol. The charger snorted a protest, then, ent to Gale's stern call, patiently ed his noble head and pawed the for a footing that would hold.

lava caused Gale toil and and pain, but he hated the oyas. He came almost to believe he had heard claimed by desert elers—that the choya was alive leaped at man or beast. Certain was when Gale passed one, if he not put all attention to avoiding was hooked through his chaps held by barbed thorns. The pain almost unendurable. It was like other. It burned, stung, beat—st seemed to freeze. It made ess arm or leg. It made him bite tongue to keep from crying out. made the sweat roll off him. It e him sick.

Moreover, bad as the choya was for , it was infinitely worse for beast. jagged stab from this poisoned cac- was the only thing Blanco Sol uld not stand. Many times that day, re he carried Mercedes, he had dly snorted, and then stood trem- while Gale picked broken thorns the muscular legs. But after rcedes had been put upon Sol Gale de sure no choya touched him.

The afternoon passed like the morn- in ceaseless winding and twist- and climbing along this abandoned ail. Gale saw many waterholes, stly dry, some containing water, all them catch-basins, full only after y season. Little ugly bunched hes, that Gale scarcely recognized mesquites, grew near these holes; o stunted greasewood and prickly r. There was no grass, and the oya alone flourished in that hard l.

Darkness overtook the party as they packed beside a pool of water deep der an overhanging shelf of lava. had been a hard day. The horses nk their fill, and then stood pantly with drooping heads. Hunger d thirst were appeased, and a warm cheered the weary and footsore gitives. Yaqui said, "Sleep." And another night passed.

* * * * * * *

Upon the following morning, ten iles or more up the slow-ascending va slope, Gale was in the rear of l the other horses, so as to take, r Mercedes' sake, the advantage of e broken trail. Yaqui was leading iablo, winding around a break. His ead was bent as he stepped slowly nd unevenly upon the lava. Gale rned to look back, the first time in veral days. He thought, of course, Rojas in certain pursuit; but it emed absurd to look for him.

Yaqui led on, and Gale often glanced from his task to watch the Indian. resently he saw him stop, turn, and ok back. Ladd did likewise, and en Jim and Thorne. Gale found the esire irresistible. Thereafter he ten rested Blanco Sol, and looked ck the while. He had his field- lass, but did not choose to use it.

"Rojas will follow," said Mercedes.

Gale regarded her in amaze. The one of her voice had been indefinable. there were fear then he failed to tect it. She was gazing back down e colored slope, and something about er, perhaps the steady, falcon gaze her magnificent eyes, reminded him Yaqui.

Many times during the ensuing hour e Indian faced about, and always is followers did likewise. It was high oon, with the sun beating hot and he lava radiating heat, when Yaqui alted for a rest. The horses bunched nd drooped their heads. The rangers were about to slip the packs and remove saddles when Yaqui restrained them.

He fixed a changeless, gleaming gaze on the slow descent; but did not seem to look afar.

Suddenly he uttered his strange cry—the one Gale considered involuntary, or else significant of some tribal trait or feeling. Yaqui pointed down the lava slope, pointing with finger and arm and neck and head—his whole being seemed to have been aniated and then frozen.

"Shore he sees somethin'," said Ladd. "But my eyes are no good."

"I reckon I ain't sure of mine," replied Jim. "I'm bothered by a dim movin' streak down there."

Thorne gazed eagerly down as he stood beside Mercedes, who sat motionless facing the slope. Gale looked and looked till he hurt his eyes. Then he took his glass out of its case on Sol's saddle.

There appeared to be nothing upon the lava but the innumerable dots of choya shining in the sun. Gale swept his glass slowly forward and back. Then into a nearer field of vision crept a long white-and-black line of horses and men. Without a word he handed the glass to Ladd. The ranger used it, muttering to himself.

"They're on the lava fifteen miles down in an air line," he said, presently. "Jim, shore they're twice that an' more accordin' to the trail."

Jim had his look and replied: "I reckon we're a day an' a night in the lead."

"Is it Rojas?" burst out Thorne with set jaw.

"Yes, Thorne. It's Rojas and a dozen or more," replied Gale, and he looked up at Mercedes.

She was transformed. She might have been a medieval princess embodying all the Spanish power and passion of that time, breathing revenge, hate, unquenchable spirit of fire. If her beauty had been wonderful in her helpless and appealing moments, now, when she looked back white-faced and flame-eyed, it was transcendent.

Gale drew a long, deep breath. The mood which had presaged pursuit, strife, blood on this somber desert, returned to him tenfold. He saw Thorne's face corded by black veins, and his teeth exposed like those of a snarling wolf. These rangers, who had coolly risked death many times, and had dealt it often, were white as no fear or pain could have made them. Then, on the moment, Yaqui raised his hand, not clenched or doubled tight, but curled rigid like an eagle's claw; and he shook it in a strange, slow gesture which was menacing and terrible.

It was the woman that called to the depths of these men. And their passion to kill and to save was surpassed only by the wild hate which was yet love, the unfathomable emotion of a peon slave. Gale marveled at it, while he felt his whole being cold and tense, as he turned once more to follow in the tracks of his leaders. The fight predicted by Belding was at hand. What a fight that must be! Rojas was traveling light and fast. He was gaining. He had bought his men with gold, with extravagant promises, perhaps with offers of the body and blood of an aristocrat hateful to their kind. Lastly, there was the wild, desolate environment, a tortured wilderness of jagged lava and poisoned choya, a lonely, fierce and repellent world, a red stage most somberly and fittingly colored for a supreme struggle between men.

Yaqui looked back no more. Mercedes looked back no more. But the other looked, and the time came when Gale saw the creeping line of pursuers with naked eyes.

A level line above marked the rim of the plateau. Sand began to show in the little lava pits. On and upward toiled the cavalcade, still very slowly advancing. At last Yaqui reached the rim. He stood with his hand on Blanco Diablo; and both were silhouetted against the sky. That was the outlook for a Yaqui. And his great horse, dazzlingly white in the sunlight, with head wildly and proudly erect, mane and tail flying in the wind, made a magnificent picture. The others toiled on and upward, and at last Gale led Blanco Sol over the rim. Then all looked down the red slope.

That Was the Outlook for a Yaqui.

But shadows were gathering there and no moving line could be seen.

Yaqui mounted and wheeled Diablo away. The others followed. The Yaqui led them into a zone of craters. The top of the earth seemed to have been blown out in holes from a few rods in width to large craters, some shallow, others deep, and all red as fire. Yaqui circled close to abysses which yawned sheer from a level surface, and he appeared always to be turning upon his course to avoid them.

The plateau had now a considerable dip to the west. Gale marked the slow heave and ripple of the ocean of lava to the south, where high, rounded peaks marked the center of this volcanic region. The uneven nature of the slope westward prevented any extended view, until suddenly the fugitives emerged from a rugged break to come upon a sublime and awe-inspiring spectacle.

They were upon a high point of the western slope of the plateau. It was strange to Gale, and perhaps to the others, to see their guide lead Diablo into a smooth and well-worn trail along the rim of the awful crater. Gale looked down into that red chasm. It resembled an inferno. The dark cliffs upon the opposite side were veiled in blue haze that seemed like smoke. Here Yaqui was at home. He moved and looked about him as a man coming at last into his own. Gale saw him stop and gaze out over that red-ribbed void to the Gulf.

Gale divined that somewhere along this crater of hell the Yaqui would make his final stand; and one look into his strange, inscrutable eyes made imagination picture a fitting doom for the pursuing Rojas.

CHAPTER XII

The Crater of Hell.

Presently Gale, upon turning a sharp corner, was utterly amazed to see that the split in the lava sloped out and widened into an arroyo. It was so green and soft and beautiful in all the angry, contorted red surrounding that Gale could scarcely credit his sight. Blanco Sol whistled his welcome to the scent of water. Then Gale saw a great hole, a pit in the shiny lava, a dark, cool, shady well. There was evidence of the fact that at flood seasons water had an outlet into the arroyo. The soil appeared to be a fine sand, in which a reddish tinge predominated; and it was abundantly covered with a long grass, still partly green. Mesquites and palo verdes dotted the arroyo and gradually closed in thickets that obstructed the view.

"Shore it all beats me," exclaimed Ladd. "What a place to hole-up in! We could have hid here for a long time.. Beldin' was shore right about the Indian. An' I can see Rojas' finish somewhere up along that awful hell-hole."

Camp was made on a level spot. Yaqui took the horses to water, and then turned them loose in the arroyo. It was a tired and somber group that sat down to eat. Mercedes was calm, but her great dark eyes burned in her white face. Yaqui watched her. The others looked at her with unspoken pride. Presently Thorne wrapped her in his blankets, and she seemed to fall asleep at once.

Little of Yaqui's purpose or plan could be elicited from him. The rangers and Thorne, however, talked in low tones. It was absolutely impossible for Rojas and his men to reach the waterhole before noon of the next day. And long before that time the fugitives would have decided on a plan of defense.

"What stuns me is that Rojas stuck to our trail," said Thorne, his lined and haggard face expressive of dark passion. "He has followed us into this fearful desert. He'll lose men, horses, perhaps his life. He's only a bandit, and he stands to win no gold. All for a poor little helpless woman—just a woman! I can't understand it."

"Shore—just a woman," replied Ladd, solemnly nodding his head.

Then there was a long silence, during which the men gazed into the fire. Those were cold, hard, grim faces upon which the light flickered.

"Sleep," said Yaqui.

Thorne rolled in his blanket close beside Mercedes. Then one by one the rangers stretched out, feet to the fire. Gale found that he could not sleep. His eyes were weary, but they would not stay shut; his body ached for rest, yet he could not lie still. The Yaqui sat like an image carved out of lava. The others lay prone and quiet. Would another night see any of them lie that way, quiet forever? Gale sat up after a while and again watched the fire. Nell's sweet face floated like a wraith in the pale smoke — glowed and flushed and smiled in the embers. Other faces shone there—his sister's—that of his mother. Gale shook off the tender memories. This desolate wilderness with its forbidding silence and its dark promise of hell on the morrow—this was not the place to unnerve oneself with thoughts of love and home.

Toward dawn Gale managed to get some sleep. Then the morning broke with the sun hidden back of the uplift of the plateau. The horses trooped up the arroyo and snorted for water. After a hurried breakfast the packs were hidden in holes in the lava. The saddles were left where they were, and the horses allowed to graze and wander at will. Canteens were filled, a small bag of food was packed, and blankets made into a bundle. Then Yaqui faced the steep ascent of the lava slope.

The trail he followed led up on the right side of the fissure, opposite to the one he had come down. It was a steep climb, and encumbered as the men were they made but slow progress. At length the rims widened out and the red, smoky crater yawned beneath. Yaqui left the trail and began clambering down over the rough and twisted convolutions of lava which formed the rim. It was with extreme difficulty that the party followed him. The choya was there to hinder passage. Finally the Indian halted upon a narrow bench of flat, smooth lava, and his followers worked with exceeding care and effort down to his position.

At the back of this bench, between bunches of choya, was a niche, a shallow cave with floor lined apparently with mold. Yaqui spread blankets inside, left the canteen and the sack of food, and with a gesture at once humble, yet that of a chief, he invited Mercedes to enter. A few more gestures and fewer words disclosed his plan. In this inaccessible nook Mercedes was to be hidden. The men were to go around upon the opposite rim, and block the trail leading down to the waterhole.

Ladd chose the smallest gun in the party and gave it to Mercedes.

"'Shore it's best to go the limit on bein' ready," he said, simply. "The chances are you'll never need it. But if you do—"

He left off there, and his break was significant. Mercedes answered him with a fearless and indomitable flash of eyes. Thorne was the only one who showed any shaken nerve. His leave-taking of his wife was affecting and hurried. Then he and the rangers carefully stepped in the tracks of the Yaqui. He strode on up the trail toward a higher point, where presently his dark figure stood motionless against the sky. The rangers and Thorne selected a deep depression, out of which led several ruts deep enough for cover. Here the men laid down rifles and guns, and, removing their heavy cartridge belts, settled down to wait.

Jim Lash crawled into a little strip of shade and bided the time tranquilly. Ladd was restless and impatient and watchful, every little while rising to look up the far-reaching slope, and then to the right, where Yaqui's dark figure stood out from a high point of the rim. Thorne grew silent, and seemed consumed by a slow, sullen rage. Gale was neither calm nor free of a gnawing suspense nor of a waiting wrath. But as best he could he put the pending action out of mind.

It came over him all of a sudden that he had not grasped the stupendous nature of this desert setting. There was the measureless red slope, its lower ridges finally sinking into white sand dunes toward the blue sea. The cold, sparkling light, the white sun, the deep azure of sky, the feeling of boundless expanse all around him—these meant high altitude. Southward the barren red simply merged into distance. The field of craters rose in high, dark wheels toward the dominating peaks. When Gale withdrew his gaze from the magnitude of these spaces and heights the crater beneath him seemed dwarfed. Yet while he gazed it spread and deepened and multiplied its ragged lines. No, he could not grasp the meaning of size or distance here. There was too much to stun the sight. But the mood in which nataure had created this convulsed world seized hold upon him.

The hours passed. As the sun climbed the clear sky, steely lights vanished, the blue hazes deepened, and slowly the glistening surfaces of lava turned redder. Ladd was concerned to discover that Yaqui was missing from his outlook upon the high point. Jim Lash came out of the shady crevice, and stood up to buckle on his cartridge belt. His narrow, gray glance slowly roved from the height of lava down along the slope, paused in doubt, and then swept on to resurvey the whole vast eastern dip of the plateau.

"I reckon my eyes are pore," he said. "Mebbe it's this d—n red glare. Anyway, what's them creepin' spots up there?"

"Shore I seen them. Mountain sheep," replied Ladd.

"Guess again, Laddy. Dick, I reckon you'd better flash the glass up the slope."

Gale adjusted the field glass and began to search the lava, beginning close at hand and working away from him. Presently the glass became stationary.

"I see half a dozen small animals, brown in color. They look like sheep. But I couldn't distinguish mountain sheep from antelope."

"Shore they're bighorn," said Laddy. "I reckon if you'll pull around to the east an' search under that long wall of lava—there—you'll see what I see," added Jim.

The glass climbed and circled, wavered an instant, then fixed steady as a rock. There was a breathless silence.

"Fourteen horses — two packed — some mounted—others without riders, and lame," said Gale, slowly.

Yaqui appeared far up the trail, coming swiftly. Presently he saw the rangers and halted to wave his arms and point. Then he vanished as if the lava had opened beneath him.

"Lemme that glass," suddenly said Jim Lash. "I'm seein' red, I tell you. . . . Well, pore as my eyes are they had it right. Rojas an' his outfit have left the trail. Laddy, I'll be danged if the Greaser bunch hasn't vamoosed. Gone out of sight! Right there not a half mile away, the whole caboodle—gone!"

"Shore they're behind a crust or have gone down into a rut," suggested Ladd. "They'll show again in a minute. Look sharp, boys, for I'm figgerin' Rojas 'll spread his men."

From time to time the rangers looked inquiringly at Gale. The field glass, however, like the naked sight, could not catch the slightest moving object out there upon the lava. A long hour of slow, mounting suspense wore on.

"Shore it's all goin' to be as queer as the Yaqui," said Ladd.

Indeed, the strange mien, the silent action, the somber character of the Indian had not been without effect upon the minds of the men. Then the weird, desolate, tragic scene added to the vague sense of mystery. And now the disappearance of Rojas' band, the long wait in the silence, the boding certainty of invisible foes crawling, circling closer and closer, lent to the situation a final touch that made it unreal.

"I'm reckonin' there's a mind behind them Greasers," replied Jim. "Or mebbe we ain't done Rojas credit. . . . If somethin' would only come off!"

That Lash, the coolest, the most provokingly nonchalant of men in times of peril, should begin to show a nervous strain was all the more indicative of a subtle pervading unreality.

"Boys, look sharp!" suddenly called Lash. "Low down to the left—mebbe three hundred yards. See, along by them seams of lava—behind the choyas. First off I thought it was a sheep. But it's the Yaqui! . . . Crawlin' swift as a lizard! Can't you see him?"

It was a full moment before Jim's companions could locate the Indian. Flat as a snake, Yaqui wound himself along with incredible rapidity.

"He's Raisin' His Rifle Slow. Lord, How Slow He Is!"

His advance was all the more remarkable for the fact that he appeared to pass directly under the dreaded choyas. Sometimes he paused to lift his head and look.

"Shore he's headin' for that high place," said Ladd. "He's going slow now. There, he's stopped behind some choyas. He's gettin' up—no, he's kneelin'. . . . Now what the h—l!"

"Laddy, take a peek at the side of that lava ridge," sharply called Jim. "I guess mebbe somethin' ain't comin' off. See! There's Rojas an' his outfit climbin'. Don't make out no hosses. . . . Dick, use your glass an' tell us what's doin'. I'll watch Yaqui an' tell you what his move means."

Clearly and distinctly, almost as if he could have touched them, Gale had Rojas and his followers in sight. They were toiling up the rough lava on foot.

"They're almost up now," Gale was saying. "There! They halt on top. I see Rojas. He looks wild. By ——! fellows, an Indian! It's a Papago. Belding's old herder! . . . The Indian points—this way—then down. He's showing Rojas the lay of the trail."

"Boys, Yaqui's in range of that bunch," said Jim, swiftly. "He's raisin' his rifle slow—Lord, how slow he is! . . . He's covered someone. Which one I can't say. But I think he'll pick Rojas."

"The Yaqui can shoot. He'll pick Rojas," added Gale, grimly.

"Rojas—yes—yes!" cried Thorne, in passion of suspense.

"Not on your life!" Ladd's voice cut in with scorn. "Gentlemen, you can gamble Yaqui'll kill the Papago. That traitor Indian knows these sheep haunts. He's tellin' Rojas—"

A sharp rifle shot rang out.

"Laddy's right," called Gale. The Papago's hit—his arm falls. There, he tumbles."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Artesian Well Seven Centuries Old.

The oldest artesian well in Europe is found at Lillers, France. From its mouth water has flowed uninterruptedly for more than 750 years.

1860 Belle Paid $1 for Hat.

A fashionable woman of 1860 would not pay more than $1 for a fine straw hat.

SERVICE CROSS FOR FOREMAN

One of Highest U. S. War Decorations Goes to One of the Legion Founders.

"I was mad as h—l at the enemy." Thus does Brig. Gen. Milton J. Foreman, one of the founders of the American Legion, characteristically describe his action near Maucourt, France, on November 4, 1918, for which he has just been awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, one of the highest of United States war decorations. The announcement of the presentation was recently made through army officials at Chicago.

M. J. Foreman

General Foreman commanded the 122d Field Artillery, a unit of the 33rd division, but which was assigned temporarily to the 89th division during the final days of the Argonne engagement. This became a part of the "flying wedge" which General Pershing has commended for valor in action.

The particular act of heroism, which has won for the Illinois man the coveted decoration, took place on November 4, 1918, when his outfit had been subjected to continuous and deadly machine gun fire from the enemy. Asking for volunteers, General Foreman headed a handful of enlisted men, which sallied out from the American lines, located the unseen gunners, and soon drove them out with fire from his own batteries.

General Foreman was born in Chicago of poor parents, but made his way, by dint of hard efforts, to the top of the legal profession in his home city and state.

Early in 1894, he enlisted as a private in a cavalry of the Illinois National Guard, to become captain of his troop during the Spanish American war. He was advanced to colonel, and headed the organization in 1916, when in service on the Mexican border. At the outbreak of the World war, he understood that a cavalry organization was not to be taken overseas, and converted his regiment from a cavalry unit to an artillery outfit almost overnight.

His outfit, the 122nd Field Artillery, went overseas as a part of the 33rd division, and while there, General Foreman was cited by the French and Belgian governments for his part in the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives. He has already received the Distinguished Service Medal.

General Foreman presided at the Legion's first caucus held in Paris, and was one of the framers of the constitution. He was chosen as first department commander of Illinois, and ranks as a past national commander of the organization, because of his executive activity at Paris.

One of the founders of the "Illinois Veterans' Trust" which proposes to turn over the funds received from the state bonus, for the creation of a trust to aid disabled men, General Foreman heads another movement which will become of great benefit to ex-service men of his state.

NAVY POST CHAP, ICE CHAMP

William Shepherd, Cleveland (Ohio) "Gob" Pulls Down Coveted Honors in Skating Events.

Skimming along the ice at the speed of an express train is the favorite sport of William Shepherd, Cleveland Legionnaire. At least that is what the "gobs" of Bill's post will tell you, for along with being finance officer of the Kelley Ingram Navy post 55, of the Ohio Department of American Legion, he also breaks records for the post in the skating events held in and around the city.

In the recent Ohio outdoor championship, held at Edgewater park in Cleveland, Shepherd annexed first honors in the 220 and 440-yard events, took second in the half-mile race and third in the mile, scoring a total of 90 points. He made record time in the 220—18 seconds, and in the 440, just exactly doubled that time, 36 seconds.

William Shepherd.

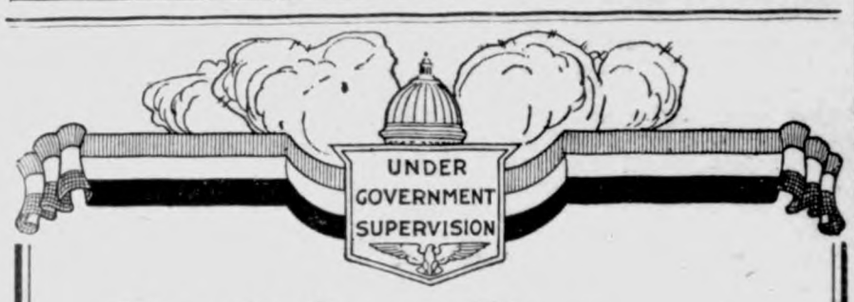
That American Legion emblem on "Bill's" jersey somehow just seems to flash across the line ahead of his competitors in most events. Even his thirteen-year-old brother, "Art," wins too, for the little fellow took the class C championship in the same meet, while a sister, Edna, also placed in events during the day.

The Iowa Valley Operating Company of Belmond, Iowa, have increased their minimum guaranteed price for sugar beets from $5.50 per ton to $6.50 per ton in their co-operative 50-50 beet contract for 1923.

This increase in the guaranteed minimum together with the possibilities of much higher returns under their co-operative 50-50 contract, on account of the scarcity of sugar and the present price of sugar, should justify the farmer to consider raising beets during the coming year, 1923.



Don't Save Too Much

That is, don't save more tha nyou can comfortably afford each pay-day. Too many people have tried saving and then stopped because they tried to do too much.

It's the small, steady savings that grow. The way to do is to decide how much you can save every so often, and THEN STICK TO IT.

But, get started—that's the big thing. As little as a dollar opens a savings account at this bank. We pay 5 per cent on your money. Ask us about it. Also ask about the particular savings plan that meets your needs.

First National Bank

"The Bank for Everybody'.'

Personal Interest

Our customers know from personal experience that this bank is an institution of Personal Service.

We are interested in your success from every standpoint, for we serve oursleves well when we best serve you.

That is why we invite you to avail yourself of our fund of experience when our counsel can be of value to you.

If you have any business problem to solve on which you need advice come in and talk it over with us. If we can help, we will gladly do so.

5 PER CENT
PAID ON SAVINGS—

State Savings Bank

Klemme Iowa

News of Klemme and Vicinity

Tomorrow, Friday, March 30th, is Good Friday, a holiday for many.

F. A. Arnold was a passenger to Garner last Friday afternoon.

F. J. Wenck was at Garner on business last Friday afternoon.

Mrs. J. L. Hesselhuus was a Garner visitor last Friday afternoon.

Paul Grange went to Garner last Friday morning on business.

Mr. Will Nelson, of Belmond, was a Klemme visitor Saturday.

Sunday is both April Fool's Day and also Easter Sunday.

Mrs. J. L. Hesselhuus was a Garner visitor Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Chris Gram drove to Mason City Monday.

Paul Stille went over to Mason City on businss Tuesday.

Mrs. Wm. Bell, was a passenger to Garner Wednesday of this week.

Mr. J. P. Larsen, came down from Belmond last Friday for a short visit with Klemme relatives.

Mrs. Missman and son Byrnes were over Sunday visitors with Belmond relatives.

Miss McKahan spent the week end at her home at Stuart, Iowa, returning to Klemme Monday morning.

A baby boy of regulation weight was born to Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Bock Monday night.

Miss Lena Park. of Ventura, came Tuesday for a few days visit with Mrs. Clarence Bachman.

Mr. Wm. Voiles, of Belmond, was a businss caller in our city Tuesday of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Hendricks, of Kanawha, were shopping in this city Tuesday.

Florence Trumbell, of Mason City, is visiting at the Sumner Trumbell home this week.

HATCHING EGGS—S. C. W. Leghorn eggs for hatching at $300 per 100. Rufus Steffen. Kanawha, Iowa.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hippen and Ulrich Hippen drove to Mason City last Friday on business.

Mrs. R. A. Jorgenson and son, Buster, were visiting Garner friends last Friday between trains.

Mr. and Mrs. Marlin Croner and Mrs. H. Schroeder drove to Mason City Monday.

A. G. Johnson, of the Wisely Construction Co., was in town Saturday looking after business matters.

Mrs. Beaver, a sister of Mrs. Fred Chase, came from Mason City Saturday to attend the funeral of Mr. Chase.

Miss Maurine Hake went to Belmond Friday evening and remained until Saturday afternoon, visiting with friends.

USE OUR SHOWER BATH; THE WATER IS ALWAYS HOT AND THE ROOM WARM. McCULLOUGH BARBER SHOP. adv

Miss Esther Jante, our "hello" girl on the Koerner Telephone Co., went to Garner Saturday for an over Sunday visit with her mother.

Tom Blank went to Estherville Saturday for an over Sunday visit at the home of his son, Ralph, and family.

FOUND—Steer came to my place. Owner can have same by proving property and paying cost of keep and advertising. Fred Schmidt. adv

Mrs. H. Ludwig came Tuesday from Nevada, Iowa, for a few days visit with her daughter, Mrs. E. S. D. Kahrs.

Mrs. August Trampel was quite sick the past week and was suffering with pneumonia. We understand she is much better at this writing.

Mrs. Steve Kleinmaier left Monday evening for her home at Morrisson, Illinois, after an extended visit at the Ted Dutheridge home near Klemme.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Kluckhohn went to Mason City Saturday to see George's sister, Mrs. Philip Ell, who has been quite sick for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. Luverne Smith went to Clarion Saturday for several days visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Farmer. The ladies are sisters.

After an illness of several weeks, which was pronounced to be sleeping sickness, Fred Chase passed away at his home near Goodell last Thursday noon.

Mike Haskins came down from Garner last Friday evening, so that he could get an early start Saturday morning reading the electric light meters in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Kudje of Britt, were in Klemme last Friday visiting with their son, Arthur and his wife, as well as other relatives and friends here.

Nice weather we are having but it is still rather cold for this time of the year. Spring will be late this season and the farmers will be late in getting into their fields.

Miss Lena Bergmann and Earl Josten are home from Morningside College, Sioux City, where they are attending school. They are having thir annual Eastr vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Eilers, of Dell Rapids, South Dakota, drove through in their car and are visiting at the John Ostercamp home, near Klemme.

Lester Stille went to Iowa Falls Tuesday night to get a shipment of coal started which had been sidetracked there. H must have succeeded for yesterday afternoon the coal arrived in Klemme.

Fred Gates returned the latter part of the week to his home at Ingram, Wisconsin, after a couple of weeks visit here with his daughters, Mrs. Ben Ridder, and Mrs. Ben Reimer, who live near town.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kudje have moved into the C. F. Keraus residence. Mr. and Mrs. Keraus will soon move to their cottage at the Lake, as Charlie wants to get there in plenty time for fishing

Fred Arnold left the latter part of last week for McGregor, Iowa, being called there by the death of his cousin's son, Ewald Meyer. The young man was gassed in the war and died from the effects of it. Mr. Arnold returned to Klemme Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lewis returned from Cherokee, Iowa, Saturday, where they had been for two weeks. Henry had an operation of his face while there to have a lump removed from the side of his chin which had formed and was getting larger. He is getting along well now.

R. A. Jorgenson and family were visiting at Garner Sunday. The roads were rather bumpy and rough.

The funeral services of Mr. Fred Chase were held at Goodll Saturday. Rev. A. B. Gedye, of this city, assisted Rev. Miller, of Goodell with the funeral services.

Lavonne Ann arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Burgess, at Spirit Lake, Thursday, March 15, 1923.—Garner Leader. Mr. Burgess is a brother of Mrs. M. O. Barr of this city, and it will be remembered that Mr. and Mrs. Burgess lived here several months before moving to Spirit Lake. Congratulations.

Travelers will be glad to learn that the Rock Island will build a new depot at Iowa Falls. They now have two old depots there about 3 or 4 blocks apart, for each branch. It has not been decided where the new depot will be located. but there will just b the one in the future and all trains will run into it.

C. A. Larsen went to Calmar, Ia., last week Wednesday and remained there for a few days. There is an expert sausage maker at Calmar, in fact one of the best in the state, and it was for the purpose of larning his secret and process of making high grade sausages, meat loaf and other products of the trade that Sam went there. Sam is a good meat m... man and has had a lot of exper... but he says he learned a few t... he didn't know before.

Miss Glenna Gruetzmacher c... over from Britt Friday where s... attending high school. The stu... of the Britt school were hav... short vacation as the teachers w... attending a meeting at Fort Do...

The Ladies Aid Society of the ... formed Church met at the hom... Mrs. H. Schroeder yesterday a... noon. A good program was g... and later delicious refreshm... were served by the Hostesses ... Schoeder and Mrs. Croner.

Ye Editor had a birthday Satu... but had forgot all about it until ... became suspicious when friend ... seemed more than ordinarily ... with cakes and other baking ... cooking that day. And that eve... she had invited Fat Kluckhohn ... family in to dinner to sympa... with us in our advanced age. ... don't know whether Fat counte... right but he said there were tw... eight candles stuck in the cake f... ing—we don't know why wife ... them there as the electric l... seemed to work all right; but w... are qur, you know.

Office Phone 149 J. Residence Phone 149 L

Dr. E. H. Phillips

Osteopathic Physician
GARNER, IOWA.

Diagnosis and Treatment of Diseases.
Surgical and Obstetrical cases cared for.
"Consult an Osteopath"

New Spring Goods

Come into our store and see the fine, new line of SPRING GOODS which have been arriving the past few days. The very latest in DRY GOODS and also Ladies' Furnishings; and the prices are very conservative. The new line consists of—

PERCALES—
GINGHAMS—
RATINES—
CREPES (All Colors)—
FANCY DRESS GOODS—
CURTAIN GOODS—
CURTAIN DRAPES—
TABLE LINENS—
OXFORDS and SHOES—
HOSIERY and FURNISHINGS--

Dress Up Your House and Yourself For Easter!

Our usual line of Fresh Groceries, Fruits, and Vegetables for your Easter Dinner.
MEN! We carry a nice line of Shirts, Ties, Hose, Shoes, Oxfords, Hats, Caps, etc.

G. W. Kluckhohn & Sons

STILLE'S IMPLEMENT NEWS

VOLUME 1. Thursday, March 22, 1923. NUMBER 1

If your planter misses 15 kernels in every 100 hills it will cost you $240 on a hundred acres, pretty near enough to pay for a planter? If your planter is not in good shape it will pay you big to come and talk it over with us.

A clever man is the man who always says the thing you thought of saying after it was too late.

Order your harrow carts early, as well as cultivators, planters and plows. "The early bird catches the worm," is a good hint for the man that figures on buying spring machinery.

Every noble life leaves the fibre of itself interwoven forever in the work of the world.

Its Not a Bit Too Early

Now is the time to find out just what you can get in binder twine. Dont wait until a week or so before you need it—buy it now and make sure that you get what you want and when you want it Remember that we art the exclusive agents for the Original "Big Ball" McCormick Twine. The new patented cover winding found only in Harvester brands of the original Big Ball twine means that you will never have tangled twine in your supply can. The twine cannot tangle—the cover will be standing good and rigid when all the twine has been used from the center of the ball, even up to the time when there is only one layer left which forms the cover. This convenience coupled with the Big Ball quality means that you cannot buy a better twine nor a twine that will do your work more satisfactorily. See us about your twine the nert time you are in town. Dont get left. Order it now.

Adam had lots of trouble but he never had to worry about visits from his mother-in-law.

A MILLION DOLLAR SEED B...

Are you interested in a machi... that will make a seed bed for y... that will not have any of those ha... lumps that retard and stop t... growth of the young sprout? If y... are—and we know you are—we ha... the tool for you. The Dunham C... ti-Packer is the latest addition ... the McCormick-Deering line. ... breaks those lumps up and lea... the ground in a fine state of ti... You can use it to close up th... cracks that come when the grou... has started to dry out—you can u... it to reset those plants that ha... been heaved out by thawing in t... early spring. If you want a "Milli... Dollar" seed bed learn more abo... the Dunham Culti-Packer.

Feeding Pans for those Bro... Sows 70c apiece.

A good oil in your tractor is t... cheapest regardless of price, we ha... a good oil guaranteed to be as go... as any oil that you can buy, and ... a price that is right compared ... other oils.

THE KLEMME TIMES

nty-seventh Year—Number 30. Klemme, Iowa, Thursday Afternoon, April 5, 1923. $1.50 In Advance—$2.00 Outside of Count

EWS OF THE WEEK'S DOINGS AT HIGH SCHOOL

FRESHMAN MYSTERY HAS BEEN SOLVED

shmen Entertain High School Tuesday Evening

he mystery is solved and no pri- detectives were needed either. en the students arrived at school Tuesday morning they all found terious letters on their desks. n opening it, it was found that contained invitations to an il Fool Party tobe givenby the shmanThursday night (last.) Well this party surely showed that Freshies were not so gren as looked and the others didn't w so much. Th first stunt was huntfor peanuts which were sup- ed to havebeen hidden in the m. Everybody was just getting ood start hunting for thm, an l in- ently not finding any, when the shies called out "April Fool." at showed that if the upper class- n had any comon sense they did- use it. The next one which de them feel cheap was another l. They made all the Sophies d Juniors go out in th hall and n led them in one at a time. hen it came our turn they led us before a table. On the table was quarter. We were instructed that we picked that quarter blind-fold- with our teeth, it would belong us. That sounded good to us so were blindfoldd and made a dive it—into a lot of flour!

Other party games followed, and er a delicious lunch was served. e sandwiches were filled with the ost delicious cotton. The people d not car for these, but later sand- iches of the ordinary nature were rved. Coffee, pickles, cake and e cream were also served. One k that was passed around first as fine (?).

We sure have gotto give the Fresh en credit for their party. Everyone at attnded enjoyed a fine time d all agree that the Freshies are ot so green as they might be.

No Vacation

There will be no spring vacation is spring. The school board has ft the question of a spring vaca- on to the teachers and they have ecided that they didn't want any. his will let school out on May the 5th. Thre will also be no gradua- on this year, owing to the adding f the twelfth grade.

Study Immigration

The Sociology Class are studying he immigration problems of the nited States. They find that the nitel States have some serious roblems to workoutin its immigra- on whenwe consider the fact that our-fifths of all the immigrants oming to the U. S. are unskilled nd in some cases over half of them re illiterate.

Owing to the services in the Re- ormed Church on Good Friday there ere a great many absences Friday orning.

Ask No Questions

Miss McKahan was explaining to he American Literature Class the ther day, the old pioneer days in 850 and before when Iowa was ad- mitted to the Union. One of the right Sophomore boys spoke up and sked her if she lived in those imes!

Mr. Joe Schuldt Calls

Mr. Joe Schuldt was a caller on Proffessor Neese Tuesday afternoon. He had an apple twig which was badly infected with Oyster Shell Scale. He did not know whether it was San Jose or Oyster Shell scale and came to ask Mr. Neeses who is quite an agriculturist. Mr. Neeses advised kerosene emulsion as a cure for the disease. This time of the year is a good time to look at your trees for these diseases.

The Law Class

The class in Commercial Law has been studying the sale of personal property and real estate, and mortgages for the past week. Each member of the class was required to write out a mortgage to Mr. Neese Tuesday morning and we found the work very interesting. We have decided mortgages are very dangerous commercial papers to get against an individual and our advice is not to let the other fellow to get one on you.

They Show Some Art

The Physiology class at the present time are studying the circulatory system and have been drawing the organs of this system. We believe Miss McKahan will make some very successful artists out of the Sophomores if she continues to assign lessons containing so many figures to be drawn.

The Government Class

In their community civics the Freshman are studying state government and the important officials connected with it. They are learning the names of each officer. his duties, and other interesting points regarding each one. The study of local government has been finished and following state government our national government will be thoroughly studied.

Neota Ridder Again Yell Leader

Tuesday morning the High School met with the intention of electing a new yell leader. Mr. Neese suggested having a shot gun election and as there were no objections we voted in this style. Neota Ridder, who was our yell leader last year, was re-electd by a majority of 12 votes. Neota is a very good leader and with her assistants we ought to have some good peppy yells.

With The Base Ball Team

The Base Ball Team is preparing for a game of baseball this coming Friday with Meservey. This game of course will not be played if the weather does not permit. You will hear about it if they do, so be out and support the boys.

By a request of the baseball boys the school board provided for more equipment for them. They have given them a dozen baseballs, five new bats, and Mr. Wellemeyer, who is a member of the board, has consented to the use of his lots as a baseball diamond. We wish to thank the school board and Mr. Wellemeyer, in behalf of the boys, for their help and support.

Grammar Room Notes

The eighth grade have completed their list of the fifty greatest American Men that are dead. Following is the accepted list:—

Lincoln
Washington
Theodore Roosevelt
John Adams
John Hancock
Alexander Hamilton
Cyrus McCormick
Patrick Henry
Henry Clay
Daniel Webster
Robert Fulton
Alexander G. Bell
Chas. Goodyear
Eli Whitney
James W. Riley
Robert Morris
Henry W. Longfellow
John Marshall
Daniel Boone
Susan B. Antany
Wm. McKinley
Thomas Jefferson
Cady
Lewis and Clark
Oliver Perry
S. F. Morse
Cyrus Field
O. W. Holmes
Wm. Lloyd Garrison
John Burroughs
Andrew Carnegie
Samuel Clemens
J. G. Whittier
John C. Calhoun
Emerson
Dorothy Dix
Drs. Morton and Jackson
Dewitt Clinton
Clara Barton
John and Charles Wesley
Geo. Dewey
Saint Gaudens
Wm. Penn
Booker T. Washington
Katherine Lee Bates
U. S. Grant
Samuel Adams
Washington Irving

The Eighth Grade Argue

The Eighth Grade have been doing some debatin the past week. The first debate was "Resolved: That the Ship Subsidy would have been a benefit to the United States." The negative side won the case. The other debate was "Resolved: That we should cancel our war debt. The negative side won this debate also. The Seventh Grade acted as judges.

Going to Organize

The Eighth Grade are organizing their class tonight.

The Intermediate Room

Zonnie Beeler was a visitor in the Intermediate Room Tuesday.

Perfect Grades

Those receiving a perfect grade in arithmetic for the past week are Lela Bachman, Esther Larsen and Elmer Larsen. Perfect grades in spelling. Sixth Grade, Clara Bergmann; Fifth Grade, Valera Koernger, Wayne Pavey, Clarice Wellemeyer, Raymond Barz and Paul Kelley.

THE STEADY SUBSCRIBER

(Tune: "The Old Oaken Bucket.)

How dear to our heart is the steady subscriber,
Who pays in advance at the birth of each year.
Who lays down the money and does it quite glady,
And casts 'round the office a halo of cheer.

He never says: "Stop it; I cannot afford it,
I'm getting more papers than now I can read."
But always says: "Send it; our people all like it—
In fact, we all think it a help and a need."

How welcome his check when it reaches our sanctum,
How it makes our pulse throb; how it makes our heart dance.
We outwardly thank him; we inwardly bless him—
The steady subscriber who pays in advance.

"Buy Iowa Land," Says Banker To Farmer Friends

Able Financier Says to Buy Land

(From Waukon Democrat.)

C. J. Weiser, the Decorah banker whose standing as a financier is high wherever he is known, is publishing advertisements signed by the bank of which he is president, advising Winneshiek county residents to buy farm land. The arguments he uses are exactly applicable to Allamakee county From an article in the Decorah Public Opinion we quote as follows:

"Mr. Weiser tells us that in his experience of forty-three years in the banking business he has witnessed three just such periods as the farming industry has been passing thru. While it is very distressing and discouraging, eventually Winneshiek county comes out with flying colors, and finds land values higher. The economic laws while apparently at times do not work truly, eventually rights itself. There is no better land in the world than in Winneshiek county and there is none as cheap. and our advice is to buy now, for there will surely be an advance. Let us be patient, do our duty as we see it, stop grumbling as that does us no good, meet the situation bravely in a spirit of fortitude and confidence; in other words let us believe in Winneshiek county and its land. No one ever got anywhere crying down his wares; the successful man is the optimist, the one who believes in his Maker, his country, his state, his county and himslf. The fact that there have been sixty-seven farms sold in Winneshiek county in two months, and these don't include those transferred March 1, at a total amount of $341,717.22, would indicate that some one believes in our land."

* * * *

What Mr. Weiser says in the article above, we believe will also hold good in Hancock County, for land in this county is certainly far superior to the clay hills in Winneshiek county. If he has so much faith in that land, then Hancock County should certainly feel quite at ease. Where can you find any better land than is right here in this vicinity for the money? Well then snap into it and grab off a chunk when the opportunity comes.

NOTICE FOR BUILDING SCHOOL HOUSE

Notice is hereby given that the proposals for the erection of a school house in the township of Ell, in the county of Hancock, will be received by the undersigned at his office in Ell Township, where plans and specifications may be seen, until 1 o'clock P. M., May 2. 1923, at which time the contract will be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder. The Board reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

Dated April 3, 1923.

PETER JOSTEN,
Secretary.

(A 5-12-19-26) Klemme, Iowa.

MAYOR AND COUNCIL SWORN IN MONDAY; EQUALIZE TAXES

PETTY THIEVING

Lowbrow Swipes Our Storage Battery And We Crank Henry

There has been more or less petty thieving going on in Klemme this winter and spring and the thief is still at large.

Sunday morning when we went to get in our car we noticed that the floor board was not in position and lifting the rug found that some low down dirty thief had stolen our storage battery and had even clipped the battery cables in order to make a quick get-away.

The deed was done sometime during the past week, just when we do not know. Had we of kuown what night it had been done we could have had hounds o nthe scent as the thief left an excellent track. Some amateur crook, for it was crude work. He even left a small article in the car which had evidently fallen from his clothing. No good crook would leave a little article of identification, no mattr how slight it might seem. With this little article we are quite likely to trace the party and if he is caught we are backed by a dozen business men in Klemme to put him over the "road." Catch one crook and put him behind the bars and it is quite likely to put a stop to petty stealing here.

The best thing the thief can do is return the battery and make himself scarce in this community for sooner or later he is going to get caught and it will be a long ride for him.

It may not be generally known but it appears that the party who stole our battery is the same party who entered Henry Lau & Son's warehouse some time ago and made away with a bunch of furs; sprinkling red pepper all around to baffle hounds in case they were used. The pepper was stolen at the restaurant. This happened perhaps over a year ago. Then this winter Etchen Bros. Pool Hall was broken into and some money was taken. A local garage reports a new storage battery to be missing; this recently. How many more articles have been "lifted" at stores we do not know.

It's about time that somebody is getting a load of buck-shot in the west end, going east, and then about ten years on top of that studying prison life from experience.

Fire Company Meets

The Klemme Fire Company held an interesting meeting at the Town Hall Tuesday night, at which time they elected new officers. C. M. Bredbenner was again elected Chief and Chris Gram Assistant Chief. The othr officers were also re-elected to serve for another term.

Plans were discussed for the coming year and various committees appointed to carry out some of the plans.

The Company also want to caution the people of Klemme or anyone else in regard to tampering with the equipment of the Fire Department. There is a heavy fine connected with this if anyone is caught tampering with any of the equipment. Some of the equipment was damaged a couple of years ago on that account when a hose and nozzle were taken from the hall without permission from the Fire Chief and were used. The result was that the hose was ruined by being driven over and also a nozzle was likewise damaged. The Fire Company try to keep the equipment in order and it must be left at the hall.

An old hose is kept at the station for use when needed by individuals but they must first get permission from the Chief to use the same, or suffer the consequences.

BASKET SOCIAL

A program and basket social will be given at District No. 3 Twin Lake Township and No. 1 Amsterdam at the Vigler School, 2 miles south and 7 miles west of Klemme on Thursday evening, April 12. Ladies will please bring baskets. Francis Baker and Gertrude Wilkins, teachers.

NEW MAYOR AND COUNCIL NOW IN CHARGE OF AFFAIRS IN KLEMME

Took Oath Of Office Monday And Acted On Equalization Board

Monday the new Mayor and new Council met for the first time at the City Hall and were given the oath and sworn in. Mayor Gruetzmacher and his Council at once took up the work of the Board of Equalization to adjust tax levies.

They had a lot of work before them. Quite a number of levies in Klemme were found to be low; and a few were also found to be a trifle too high as compared with others. We beleive the Board tried to be fair in the matter of equalizing the levies on different properties, but of course there were a few who could not see it that way and so raised a tmpory racket. The Board did not clear up all the work and so worked on taxes after supper but did not complete the work and so adjourned the meting until tonight (Thursday) whn they hope to complete the tax equalizing.

The first regular meeting of the new Mayor and his Council will meet at Mayor Gruetzmacher's Shoe Store Monday night, April 9th when they will outline their plans for the year.

There wr quite a numbr of visitors at the meeting Monday night.

We beleive people should take a greater interest in the affairs of the town and should attend the meetings of the town council and know something of what is going on and how the councilmen vote on important questions and so forth. Some are under the impression that a council meeting is a private affair and no visitors are allowed. This is not at all the case. The meetings are open to all, as long as they do not disturb the work of the council.

Likewise the meetings of the school board should be attended if you desire to know more about what is going on in regard to school work and conditions.

Get better aquainted with your town and take and interest in these meetings.

Perhaps a few suggestions now and then would help the council in solving the problems of the people of Klemme when a group of taxpayers are present at the meeting.

BIDS WANTED

The Town of Klemme wants bids for the work of pumping city water, street work, park, work and other work requiring the services of one man. Bids must be filed at the office of Mayor Gruetzmacher on or before Saturday evening, April 7, 1923. The job will be let to the lowest responsible bidder. The Council reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

F. GRUETZMACHER,
Mayor, Town of Klemme.

WANTED TO BUY—A good second hand Fordson Tractor, in good mechanical condition. Town of Klemme, inquire of Mayor Gruetzmacher. adv

A CORRECTION

In the report last week on election results a mistake was made in the number of votes cast for Geo. Ulrich for councilman. Instead of 32 votes as announced, he received 50 votes, the correct figure. The Clerk gave us the correct figures but we made a mistake in setting it up.

Good Easter Programs

The Easter Programs given in the Klemme churches Sunday night were very good and were also well attended. The churches had been bautifully decorated for the occassion and the programs given were exceptionally good.

As the programs were held on the same evening an opportunity was not given to see them all.

RUSSIA ANGERED AT AMERICANS

Reds at Moscow Resent Pardon Pleas for Roman Catholic Prelates.

WILL DEFINE OWN POLICY

Archbishop's Death Sentence Is Commuted to Ten Years' Imprisonment —Appeal of Vicar-General for Clemency Denied.

Moscow, March 31.—The death sentence recently imposed on Archbishop Zepliak, head of the Roman Catholic church in Russia, was commuted to ten years' imprisonment under strict isolation. The appeal of Vicar-General Butchkavitch for clemency was denied.

The central executive committee, which met to consider requests for mitigation of the sentences, said in its decision that both prelates were deserving of the penalty imposed by the Moscow court, but that commutation was ordered in the case of the archbishop because a certain element of the Catholic citizens in Russia might exploit the sentence as being directed against the priests and their religion.

The committee, however, said it regarded the evidence in the case of Mgr. Butchkavitch showed his direct treasonable connection with an enemy of the state. The decision was signed by President Kalinin and Secretary Sapronoff.

Poland draws the chief assault. Referring to Premier Sikorski's statement, the Pravda, the official newspaper, says:

"In 1918 a man somewhat stronger than the ephemeral statesman of Poland, namely, the English foreign minister, Balfour, threatened the soviet government with persecution by land, sea and air if it failed to abandon its sins. The soviet angrily brushed aside the threats of the strongest capitalistic state in Europe; it has been doing what the interests of the Russian proletariat and the Russian peasantry demanded.

"The decisions of the supreme soviet authority must be fulfilled. International counter revolution may try as much as it pleases; the decisions will not be changed. The soviet did not allow capitalistic states to define its policy when it was very weak; and even less will it now allow intervention in internal affairs."

The newspaper is especially sarcastic in reference to the note from Secretary of State Hughes. It sharply condemns his "interference."

STRIKES MENACE TO ENGLAND

800,000 Building Men to Be Locked Out —Rail, Farm and Mine Walkouts Listed.

London, March 30.—Great Britain's industrial situation suddenly has taken a decided turn for the worse, not only in the scheduled lockout of 800,000 building workers after Easter, but in the threat of a great railway strike and the possibility of a miners' strike.

Already the Norfolk farm workers are out, and they have received the endorsement of the executive committee of the National Union of Agricultural Workers. This strike is spreading.

RUHR PEOPLE FACE OUSTER

Striking Railroad Employees Must Resume Work or Leave Territory, Says French Order.

Essen, March 31.—A proclamation by General Degoutte, commander-in-chief of the occupational forces for all striking railroad officials and trainmen to resume work, or face expulsion, was posted throughout the Ruhr and Rhineland. The order affects 500,000 Germans, as the families of those refusing to return will accompany them into unoccupied Germany. Approximately 125,000 men come directly under the order.

WOULD CURB SUPREME COURT

Senator Fess of Ohio Joins Radicals in Fight on the High Tribunal.

Washington, March 31.—The movement to curb the powers of the Supreme court, which heretofore has been confined to radicals in congress, gained unexpected impetus here when Senator Fess (Rep., Ohio), long identified with the conservative wing of his party, declared in favor of legislation requiring concurrence of at least six justices to render a law unconstitutional.

U. S. to Admit Mme. Kalinin.

Washington, March 31.—Officials announced that Madame Kalinin, wife of the president of the Russian republic, will be admitted to the United States upon her asurances that her activities will be only Red Cross work.

Army Flyer Breaks Speed Record.

Dayton, O., March 31.—Flying at a maximum speed of 281.4 miles an hour, the highest ever attained, Lieut. Lester J. Maitland, army aviator, broke all speed records when he piloted a racing plane here.

CLARENCE SAUNDERS

Clarence Saunders of Memphis, Tenn., president of the Piggly Wiggly Stores, Inc., whose recent coup in Piggly Wiggly stock set Wall street by the ears. Saunders is said to have netted around two million dollars in the deal.

HUGHES PLAN IS O. K.'D

Berlin Government Agrees to U. S. Proposal.

Germany Notifies Powers That an International Business Men's Commission Is Acceptable.

Berlin, March 29.—Foreign Minister von Rosenberg has informed the foreign relations committee of the reichstag that the German government had sent word to all the European powers except France and Belgium, the invaders of the Ruhr, that Germany endorsed Secretary Hughes' proposal that the reparations problem be settled by an international commission of business men.

If such a commission is appointed and renders a decision, Germany will do everything possible to pay the obligations fixed, said Baron von Rosenberg. Secretary Hughes' speech at New Haven, shortly before the Ruhr invasion, set forth a practicable plan for adjusting the reparations controversy, the foreign minister said.

No negotiations for a settlement, however, can be entered until France and Belgium have evacuated the invaded territory, he declared.

If the international commission of business men were named, with Germany having equal representation on the body, and if the reparations dispute were submitted to the commission, Germany would take steps to obtain an international loan, the proceeds of which would be delivered to the allies as a preliminary cash payment, said the foreign minister.

GIRL SHOOTS RICH BUILDER

Frederick W. Burnham Slain by Miss Helene Zeigler, Who Then Kills Herself.

New York, March 30.—Miss Helene Zeigler, twenty-six years old, who lived with her parents at 583 Riverside drive, shot and mortally wounded Frederick W. Burnham, forty-six years old, a well-known contractor, in his office in the Grand Central terminal.

With her second shot she killed herself instantly. She had once told her parents that she could marry Burnham at any time; and her recent discovery that he already had a wife is believed to have provided her motive. Burnham died at Bellevue hospital without regaining consciousness.

JOHN D., JR.'S, OIL INCOME

Owns 7,638,390 Shares of Stock Having a Total Value of $410,674,399.

New York, March 30.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., owns 7,638,390 shares of stock in nine of the more prominent companies composing the so-called Standard Oil group, having a market value of $410,067,399. From those he receives dividends at the rate of $11,946,622 annually at the present rate of payments, according to a compilation made by Dow, Jones & Co.

CHINESE BATTLE BOLSHEVIKS

Gen. Chang Tso Lin Orders Mobilization of All Troops in Manchuria.

Honolulu, March 30.—A cable from Tokyo to the Nippu Jipi, a local Japanese newspaper, reports that Gen. Chang Tso Lin has ordered a mobilization of all troops to check the Bolshevik forces which are moving toward the south into Manchuria. A clash is reported.

Stove Foundry Plant Burns.

Akron, O., March 31.—Fire caused total destruction of the new foundry of the Taplin-Rice-Clerkin company, manufacturers of stoves and furnaces, in North Akron. The loss is estimated at several hundred thousand dollars.

"Going Up."

New Orleans, La., March 31.—John J. Pelly of Chicago, named general manager of the Illinois Central system, quit teaching a country school in Illinois twenty-two years ago to become a section hand.

DAWES NAMED COMPTROLLER

Chicago Banker, Brother of General Who Once Held Same Post.

TELEGRAPHS HIS ACCEPTANCE

Choice of Member of Widely-Known Family Comes as Surprise to Country—Succeeds D. R. Crissinger.

Washington, March 30.—It was announced here on behalf of President Harding that upon his return here early in April the chief executive will name Henry M. Dawes, brother of Gen. Charles G. Dawes, former director of the budget, to be comptroller of the currency in succession to D. R. Crissinger, who was elevated to the position of governor of the Federal Reserve board.

Mr. Dawes is a director of the Central Trust company of Chicago, a director of the Drovers National bank of that city and of the City National bank of Evanston, Ill.

Mr. Dawes will be given a recess appointment and upon the convening of the Sixty-eighth congress will be nominated by the President. The appointment of Mr. Dawes is of peculiar interest because under the McKinley administration his brother, General Dawes, occupied the same position and in that office first attracted national attention in the financial world.

Mr. Dawes will succeed immediately James G. McNary of New Mexico, president of the First National Bank of El Paso, who had been nominated as comptroller at the same time Mr. Crissinger was named as governor of the Federal Reserve board. While Mr. Crissinger was confirmed, Mr. McNary's confirmation was held up and failed.

Senator Couzens of Michigan, a member of the senate committee on banking and currency, bitterly opposed confirmation of Mr. McNary and was supported by other members of the committee. The President, it is understood, was ready to give Mr. McNary a recess appointment, but Mr. McNary wrote the President, declining it.

M. E. CHURCHES IN AGREEMENT

North and South Divisions of the Denomination to Be Reunited After 78 Years.

St. Louis, Mo., March 29.—The northern and southern divisions of the Methodist Episcopal church finally have reached a general agreement upon unification of the two religious denominations after a separation of seventy-eight years, it was stated here by members of the subcommittee of the joint commission on unification of the Methodist Episcopal church and the Methodist Episcopal Church south.

TO DIVORCE GLORIA SWANSON

Wealthy Mate of Screen Star Tires of Heart-Throb Queen—Separated Two Years.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 29.—Gloria Swanson, heart-throb queen of screen romance, who was starred in "Don't Change Your Husband," became for the second time a principal in a divorce case. Herbert K. Samborn, charging desertion, brought action against Gloria Swanson Samborn, to whom he was married December 26, 1919, and from whom he was separated May 5, 1921.

BLAST IN HOME KILLS TWO

Illinois Mother and Small Son Die When Carbide Tank Explodes Near Freeport.

Freeport, Ill., March 30.—Explosion of a carbide tank used to generate illuminating gas in the farm home of William Wernecke, near Lena, killed Mrs. Wernecke and her son, Robert, four; seriously injured her husband, her daughter, Lois, six, and John Stabenow, a farm hand, and demolished the Wernecke home. Wernecke, inspecting the tank, held a lighted lantern at its opening.

FRENCH AND GERMANS CLASH

Dusseldorf Dispatch Says Eleven Persons Were Killed at Gerolstein, Rhenish Prussia.

London, March 31.—The Times prints a Dusseldorf dispatch saying that in a clash at Gerolstein, Rhenish Prussia, between French and Germans eleven persons were killed. Six of the victims were Germans.

$750,000 Rum Ship Off Boston.

Boston, March 31.—Riding at anchor outside the three-mile limit is the British steamship Avontown, with 10,000 cases of fine Scotch whisky and champagne valued at $150,000 in her hold.

Michigan Congressman Dies.

Charlotte, Mich., March 31.—Congressman J. M. C. Smith of the Third Michigan district died here of heart disease. He was elected last November to his seventh term in the house. He was seventy years of age.

VLADISLAS SIKORSKI

Photograph just received in this country of Vladislas Sikorski, prime minister of Poland, lieutenant in the Polish army and minister of home affairs.

U. S. MARKET REPORT

Weekly Marketgram by Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Washington.—For the week ending March 31—GRAIN—Chicago cash market: No. 2 red winter wheat, $1.30; No. 2 hard winter wheat, $1.20; No. 2 mixed corn, 75c; No. 2 yellow corn, 76c; No. 3 white oats, 44c. Average farm prices: No. 2 mixed corn in central Iowa, 62c; No. 2 hard winter wheat in central Kansas, $1.01; No. 1 dark northern wheat in central North Dakota, $1.01.

HAY—No. 1 timothy, $19.75 Cincinnati, $23.00 Chicago, $16.00 Minneapolis, $22.00 St. Louis; No. 1 prairie, $19.50 St. Louis, $15.50 Minneapolis.

FEED—Bran, $27.75; middlings, $27.50; flour middlings, $29.50 Minneapolis; gluten feed, $40.65 Chicago; 34 per cent linseed meal, $44.00 Minneapolis; white hominy feed, $28.25 St. Louis, $28.75 Chicago.

DAIRY PRODUCTS—Butter, 92 score, 49½ Chicago. Cheese prices at Wisconsin primary markets: Flats, 23c; twins, 22½c; single daisies, 22¼c; double daisies, 22½c; young Americas, 23½c; longhorns, 22c; square prints, 22½c.

LIVE STOCK—Chicago prices: Hogs, top, $8.40; bulk of sales, $7.90@8.30; medium and good beef steers, $8.35@9.90; butcher cows and heifers, $4.35@9.75; feeder steers, $6.35@8.50; light and medium weight veal calves, $7.00@9.75; fat lambs, $13.25@15.15; feeding lambs, $13.25@14.75; yearlings, $9.75@14.25; fat ewes, $7.50@11.25.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES—Eastern sacked round white potatoes, $1.65@2.00 per 100 lbs. in city markets; northern round whites, $1.45@1.75 in consuming centers, $1.05@1.20 at shipping points; Florida Spaulding rose, $13.25@14.00 per bbl. Baldwin apples, $5.25@6.00 per bbl.; northwestern extra fancy winesaps, $2.25@3.00 per box. Texas yellow Bermuda onions, $2.50 per standard crate; eastern and northern yellow globes ranged generally $3.25@4.25 per 100-lb. sack. Florida pointed cabbage, $2.25@3.00 per 1½ bu. hamper; Texas flat Dutch, $100.00@120.00 per ton; New York Danish, $30.00@70.00 in leading markets. Florida strawberries, 50@75c per quart; Louisiana Klondikes, $4.50@5.00 per 24-pint crate in Chicago, $4.55@4.75 auction sales at shipping points.

FOUR KILLED IN RUM WAR

Woman Is Slain in Battle Between Kentucky Moonshiners and Sheriff's Posse.

Harlan, Ky., March 29.—Four persons, including a woman, were killed in a battle between members of a sheriff's posse and moonshiners at the mouth of Beech fork in Leslie county, according to meager reports of the affair which reached here. Kelly Walker, deputy sheriff of Tejan, Bell county; Isaac Strong, George Strong and Mrs. Isaac Strong were listed as killed. Members of the posse were said to have surrounded the Strong home early in the day. Walker was killed when he approached to serve a warrant on Isaac Strong for liquor-law violation. Members of the posse riddled the house, and when a return fire from the inside subsided, entered to find the two men and the woman dead.

HARDING TO VISIT ALASKA

Territory Is Placed on President's Itinerary This Summer, It Is Announced.

St. Augustine, Fla., March 31.—Official announcement was made here by Fred Starek, managing director of the War Finance corporation, and one of the Harding 1920 presidential lieutenants, that the President would visit Alaska this summer on his western tour. Mr. Starek said the President is beginning to give serious thought to the essential features of his proposed western tour.

Admits Armed Revolt Plea.

St. Joseph, Mich., March 29.—C. E. Ruthenberg, co-defendant with William Z. Foster in his trial, admitted on the stand, after first denying it, writing that workers must adopt "use of armed force to overthrow the government of the United States."

15,000 German Miners Strike.

Gelsenkirchen, March 30.—Fifteen thousand miners are on strike in the Gelsenkirchen district at all mines occupied by troops, according to estimates which have come from German quarters.

Teach English in Germany.

Berlin, March 30.—English is the most important language in the world. Therefore all children in Germany will devote the time given to linguistic studies to English, according to a government order.

LEGISLATIVE NEWS

With April 17th definitely set as the date of adjournment of the fortieth general assembly, members of both senate and house are settling down into the collar for the last grind on bills with a determination to get the most important of them out of the way—either passed or killed. Agreement to adjourn at noon on April 17th was reached by both houses after a lively discussion in the senate of whether quitting before the end of 100 days would affect Governor Kendall's call of a special session to finish revision of the code. It was decided to take no chances so the full length of the session will be taken.

Long debate is taking place over many measures, chief of which have been the New York conference bill to rewrite the fraternal insurance code of Iowa, the appropriation of $450,000 for five years to match the $2,250,000 gift of the Rockefeller foundations toward the construction of a new medical college at the state university and the gasoline tax. The New York conference bill was voted down in the house after an allday debate. The bill would, in its essence, have given fraternal societies the option of dividing their policy holders into two classes—those paying adequate rates and those paying inadequate rates. About 70 per cent of the Yeomen, it was said on the floor of the house, have converted their policis from the assessment form to the straight premium form. Regardless of their conversion and the payment of adequate premiums, the holders of this class of policy may still be called on to pay assessments. It was to relieve this that the bill was principally sought. The threat of moving into another state—one of the thirty or more which operate under the New York conference fraternal law—was made unless the bill were passed.

The bill failed but it can be brought up again because a motion to reconsider the vote by which it lost was filed as soon as the vote was taken.

The gasoline tax bill which passed the senate hit a big snag in the house and amendment after amendment was filed to it, until motions to defer action came almost as thick as amendments. Fifty-two members of the house consistently voted down all motions to reconsider but they were stopped from pushing the bill along to a vote by a series of special orders which intervened. The bill, if it passes the house, will spend a long time in conference committee because the house and senate, while in both are many members willing to pass the bill, cannot seem to agree on how the revenue shall be expended. The senate wants to divide the money between the primary and secondary road systems. The house wants to put all the money on the secondary roads. In addition the house differs from the senate over what department the administration of the tax shall be given to, and also over repealing two county and township taxes in lieu of the gasoline tax.

Labor has been much in the forefront for the last few days in the legislature. It won three fights and lost one, two determined partially and the other two finally. It won when the Berry bill requiring mine operators employing more than twenty-five men to erect wash houses and the Lake bill requiring railroads to equip locomotives with automatic fire doors passed the senate and the Brookings bill permitting garnishment of a married man's weekly wage in excess of $20 failed to pass the senate. It lost when the Criswell bill requiring railroads to erect shelters for men doing repair work failed to pass the house.

A bill with which is connected a good deal of history has passed both houses of the legislature. It is the long and short haul bill permitting railroads having lines of varying length between two cities to make equal rates based on the short distance. The restriction against this was one of the chief features of the famous railroad regulation laws of Governor Larrabee. Governor Cummins once vetoed a bill to repeal it.

The House conceded the desire of some members to take the Rockefeller appropriation bill out of the appropriations committee and consider it separately, and the senate, without having had the trouble of dragging it from committee, voted on it and at the end of a long argument passed it by a comfortable lead.

Interstate rates are not based on distance as are the Iowa rates and in order to get around the distance tariff some manufacturers have shipped their product out of the state and then back into it in order to take advantage of lower rates in interstate commerce. The bill is of considerable benefit to shippers and was not opposed by the railroads.

The Senate Judiciary Committee brought in a committee bill for the state labor commissioner to appoint a board to draw up safety regulations for elevators to be under inspection of the state inspection with iron clad instructions to carry out the law.

The House killed the Berry bill which would have required a petition of sixty per cent of the property owners before a public improvement could be ordered and the Perkins Bill that the deposit of public funds of towns in banks should draw two per cent interest.

.. Hawkeye .. State News

Interesting Items Gathered From all Parts of Iowa

A fleet of ten barges is being b in the Keokuk dry dock for the U ed States engineering department be used in river work, at a cost $40,000.

Former Senator W. H. Berry, years old, a resident of Iowa nearly sixty years, was found d at the entrance of his private o at Indianola.

The members of the Lions club Vinton have assigned to each m ber the care of one of the memo trees planted for the sixteen soldi who died in the world war.

Prospects for a creamery spring are bright. At a prelimin organization meeting, over 100 f mers and citizens of Wesley w present. A temporary organizat was formed.

There will be no franchise act p posed upon Iowa corporations by legislature. The senate by a de sive vote, indefinitely postponed Brookhart corporation tax bill, wh is the only measure of that kind pe ing.

One of the best land sales of season has practically been com mated by the purchase of a quar section south of Anita. Ed Allan has signed a contract which amo other things recites that the purch price of the land is $250. The buy is William Bangham.

A great deal of interest is bei manifested by the women of Mus tine county in the farm bureau w under the supervision of Miss Cha lott Kirschner, home demonstrati agent. Clothing, millinery, food cheese, and poultry are among t subjects being taken up.

More than $120,000 in cash pre iums is being offered by the Iow state fair management this year all departments, a total of approx mately $1,000 more than the off ings of last year, according to t complete premium list issued by Se retary A. R. Corey of the state fa board.

Iowa seed is being sent to Sam son Tchernoff, Paris, who is styl the "mystery man of Europe," a se ond cable order having been rece ed by a seed company at Shenan doah. It was for forty bushels Iowa seed corn. The previous orde this month was for $100 worth of Ha bam seed clover.

Better business conditions in Iow were proven by the internal revenu returns this month, Ora William Revenue director, said. Returns on some lines of business were surpris ing, he said. Business men's ac countings showed that they had mad more money during 1922 than the general public realized.

Two hundred and one members of the Armstrong Shipping association shipped 109 cars of livestock from Emmet county during the last year realizing the sum of $150,951 from sales, according to the annual report of the association just issued. This volume of business is an increase over the business completed last year ,according to members of the association.

Ten years ago Buxton was the larg est mining camp in Iowa and the largest town in the United States that was not incorporated with its 6,000 miners, but gradually operations have moved to the southwest fifteen miles until but a few houses remain of the once triving town. This winter has witnessed the wrecking and moving of most of the substantial structures to the scene of operations in Monroe county.

The damage done by the flood caused by the ice gorge in the Missouri river still fresh in their minds the Woodbury county board of supervisors announced it will immediately take up and seriously consider the petition for the establishment of a river protection district. The proposed district extends from five miles south of Sioux City to a point nearly sixteen miles down stream, and would include some of the most valuable winter wheat land in the bottoms.

Seeking the best in agriculture, a delegation of Alabama legislators visited Des Moines recently when a joint session of the fortieth general assembly was held to welcome the visiting solons and a luncheon was given at noon for them by the committee on agriculture of the Chamber of Commerce. The party is visiting several State capitals throughout the country and especially in the agricultural districts. In each case they meet with the legislature of the State visited to get ideas from various sources.

Authorities of four counties—Polk, Story, Boone and Jasper—have joined forces to break up what is described as a larcency ring of tremendous proportions operating in these counties.

The Canning club champions of the United States, Beulah Rodgers and Catherine Bolibaugh, of Oskaloosa, accompanied by Club Leader Esther Bolibaugh and State Leader Miss Arnquist, will leave for their French tour on the steamship American June 2. They will teach Europe how to can things Iowa way.

Remembered

Blinks. after inviting his friend ks to dinner, was telling him out the remarkable memory of little son Bobby.

"And do you think he will rember me?" asked Jinks.

"Remember you? Why, certain-he will."

An hour later they entered the use, and after Jinks had greeted
s. Blinks, he called Bobby over to m.

"And do you remember me, my le man?"

"Course I do. You're the man that pa brought home last year, and ma was so wild about it that she didn't speak to pa for a week."

---

o o o o o o o o o o o o
o THE CITY DRAY LINE o
o —Is prepared to do your haul- o o ing carefully and promptly. o o We solicit your patronage o o Charges reasonable. o
o Coal Hauling Done o
o Louie Knoke o
o o o o o o o o o o o o

o o o o o o o o o o o o
o KLEMME DRAY LINE o
o Phone 2105 o
o A share of your patronage is o
o solicited. All work attended o o to promptly and carefully. We o o haul coal quick. o o LLOYD LAU, PROP. o
o o o o o o o o o o o o

Did You Receive our Letter?

We wrote to you a few days ago suggesting investment in several of the:

COMMON SHRES

for the purpose of obtaining a Sufficient Income to cover your Service Bills.

A number of our Shareholders have done this and now receive SELF PAYING BILLS

We would like to explain this plan fully and will give you all the particulars upon receiving the return card that was mailed with our letter.

Let us tell you about it, anyway, and have us send you a copy of our Booklet showing WHY the COMMON SHARES are a Good Investment.

Address: Securities Department

Iowa Falls Electric Co.

IOWA FALLS, IOWA

We Serve

FIRST CLASS MEALS and LUNCHES

Home Made Pies
Ice Cream and Soft Drinks
FRESH BREAD EVERY DAY
Candy Cigars Tobacco

The Crystal Cafe

Conrad Quandt, Prop. Klemme, Ia.

"A Good Cafe in a Good Town"

SUITS

To Your Measure

Do not wait or put off having that suit made to your measure. Selections are at their very best—enjoy the Spring and Summer months in a brand new—

Suit or Topcoat

Buy at the price you want to pay and select the pattern you desire.

Pantotium

Now is the proper time to bring in your suits and overcoats and other garments to be cleaned, repaired and pressed. Bring in your clothing and have it taken care of.

Hosiery

—See the Ladies' Spring— All the new things.

The Men's Fashion Shop

A. W. JOHNSON
GARNER IOWA

CITY OF SORROW

Smyrna Has Been Ravaged by Many Conquerors.

Place of Consequence Even in the Stone Age—Tamerlane Vainly Sought to Destroy It.

By SELBY F. MAXWELL

There is a legend among the Mohammedans that God has promised that Smyrna shall never be destroyed. They have abundant reason for such a belief.

Smyrna is one of the oldest cities in the world. It has withstood the ravages of time and peoples and has endured where whole empires have crumbled and are forgotten.

Smyrna was a considerable place in the Stone age. Its original people were Semites of the Mediterranean strain, the small dark south Europeans of today.

Before 1500 B. C. the place passed under the rule of the Minoan emperors of Crete. Its civilization remained Cretan until the coming of the Greeks, who introduced the use of iron.

Homer was familiar with Smyrna and is thought to have spent some time there. Homer lived about 3,000 years ago, but to him Smyrna was still an ancient Greek city.

The place was conquered by the Aeolians, one of the first waves of Greek immigration to sweep that country. It was the Aeolians who gave the city its present name. The ancient Greeks were a blond people. They came from the Baltic slope of Europe, particularly from what is now Silesia and Bohemia.

Ionian Greeks followed the Aeolians about 700 B. C. Then came Armenian peoples from the uplands of Asia Minor, the Lydians, who were related to the Hittites, When Lydia fell to the empire of the Medes and the Persians, Smyrna fell with it, and was ravaged. Alexander the Great attempted to restore the city when he rose to power.

There then passed a succession of Grecian, Roman, and Byzantine masters, without, however, affecting the lives of the native peoples. The blond Greek type gradually diminished, whether from the climate or from intermarriage with the natives is not certain.

About the year 1000 A. D. a new ethnic element burst in. Turks from Central Asia appeared on the Aegean shores. The Turks are distantly related to the dark peoples who live in the uplands of central Europe. Their homeland, called Tartary, or Turkestan, extends from the Caspian sea to the Lena. They came first as marauders, later as conquerors.

In 1402 Smyrna was taken by Tamerlane, khan of the Mongola, a yellow people from north China. He burned the city, massacred the people, and to make sure that there would be no rise he filled up the harbor and destroyed the springs of water round about. After the death of Tamerlane the Turks regained control. They restored the harbor and rebuilt the city once more.

There are three main religions in the city, Greek and Armenian Christians and Moslems. These sects, however, mean nothing in an ethnic way.

It would mean as much in this country to imply that Republicans and Democrats are anthropologically different; in both countries these distinctions are political rather than racial.

o o o o o o o o o o o o o o
o DENTIST o
o J. L. Hesselhuus, D. D. S. o
o Office Hours 8-12 1-5:30 o
o Office Opposite State Savings o
o Bank; In Schaffer Bldg. o
o Evening Work By Appointment o
o Only o
o Klemme, Ia. Phone 81 o
o o o o o o o o o o o o o o

Famished Elk Feed on His Stacked Hay

Deadwood, S. D.—John Guidinger, a rancher living about one mile from the South Dakota boundary line in Wyoming, is having difficulty saving his hay supplies from a herd of about one hundred and fifty elk which are roaming the region near his ranch.

Guidinger had stacked his hay and had surrounded it with fences, but the famished elk break through the fences with ease and attack his haystacks. He says the state of Wyoming refuses to reimburse him for his hay losses. It is against the law to kill elk, so he is confronted with a serious problem, being in danger of losing all his hay supplies unless he constantly stands guard over his stacks.

Rats Exterminate Themselves.

Director George Jennison of the Manchester Zoological gardens pronounces Great Britain's "rat week," when efforts were made to decimate the rats responsible for the destruction of $140,000,000 worth of food annually, to be a great mistake. The male rat, the bold rover, is the one caught by poison, and the death of males only improves living conditions for the survivors. Four male and six female rats will, under favorable conditions, increase to large proportions in a period of two years. Doctor Jennison's suggestion is to upset the numerical proportions between the sexes and leave the males to destroy their own kind; he would forbid the poisoning of rats, but would take them alive in traps, kill the females, and turn the males loose. He claims to have followed this method for years with success.—Scientific American.

Social Amenity.

The Woman recently dropped into a restaurant for tea. Being the rush time, she was shown to a table where a young-looking woman and a little girl about five years old were sitting. The Woman smiled at the child, then began looking at the menu, when she heard the childish voice say, "Please, won't you tell me your name?" The Woman did so and the little girl joyfully said, "This is my mother, Mrs. B—. Now you've been introduced, let's talk."

Down on the Farm.

Summer Boarder—And does the splendor of a sunset mean nothing—nothing to you?

Hired Man—You betcher sweet life it does, missus! It means I kin onhitch an' go home.—Life.

Musical Taste.

"Do you miss the summer boarders?"

"No," answered Farmer Corntossel. "Now that the smart, up-to-date city folks are gone we'll get a chance to play a little something besides jazz on the phonograph."

Chicago Gets Prehistoric Monster.

Eight million years ago a dinosaur crawled into a depression in a torrid equatorial belt in Alberta, Can., and died.

For eight million years his grave was unmolested. His kind became extinct, glaciers swept down, mountains formed over his resting place.

When the old dinosaur—50 feet long and 30 tons in weight—died the equator was due north of Chicago and the Mississippi waterways was an actuality, with the Gulf of Mexico stretching to the North pole, scientists say.

Recently, however, the elements had so worn down the mountain near Red Deer river, 125 miles west of Calgary, that the last layer of soil was swept away and the dinosaur bones were bared.

Prof. E. S. Riggs, associate curator of geology for the Field Museum of Natural History, Chicago, with five companions, stumbled across the huge bones. Now they'll go to the Field museum to be stared at by city folks.

Getting out the dinosaur bones—many of which weighed 2,500 pounds or more—was a tremendous task. It was necessary to build roads in some places.

Colors in the Fall.

A desirable tree for brilliant fall color is the sour gum or tupelo. This makes a large almost round-headed tree with very dark green foliage in the summer and brilliant red leaves in the autumn. Even as early as August there may be a few scattered leaves that change color, giving promise of the brilliancy that is to follow. The tree is common in New England and the northern and eastern states.

The scarlet oak is even brighter than the red oak in its fall colors and is equally as brilliant as the gums, says the American Forestry Magazine. Its foliage being more finely divided than that of the red oak gives it a lighter, more airy appearance, while the red of its leaves is most emphatic. It is widely distributed throughout the eastern half of the country.

In marked contrast to the brilliant reds of some trees in the fall is the yellow of the sugar or hard maple. This is a native of gravelly and other well-drained soils of the northern states and southward in and near the mountains. It reaches its greatest perfection in western New England, New York, Ohio and Kentucky.

With a Proviso.

Mary had been frightened by a large dog barking at her while she was walking with her mother. From that time all dogs that approached within a few feet of her caused her to cry and run to her parents for protection.

A few evenings ago some friends called at the house, bringing with them a puppy. Like all dogs of that age, he was playful, cute, and friendly.

Mary, safe in her mother's lap, gazed at the puppy for a moment as he stood looking at her, and then said, "Don't bark, doggie, 'n' I like you."

In Cages, Not in Demand.

Buddy, age three, was making his daily call, when Mr. H— asked him whether he was going to work in his father's grocery store and whether he was going to cut the meat or put the sugar in packages.

Buddy said that he intended to help the butcher by cutting up the chickens. He was asked whether chickens were in demand.

The little caller then answered very quickly that the chickens were not in demand but that they were in back of the store in cages.

BASEBALL MEETING—All who are interested in baseball meet at the Crystal Cafe Monday. "Bally."

Horses Wanted

Will Be In

Klemme Monday April 9th

Regardless of the Weather

KINKNER BROS. want a lot of horses. We want to buy some FARM MARES FOR THE SOUTHERN MARKET; can have a slight blemish but must be fat and have some looks, old or young, 1200 lbs. and up. We want some good chunks for the Eastern Market, MARES or GELDINGS 4 to 8 YEARS OLD. WE WANT SOME BIG HORSES, AS GOOD AS THEY GROW AND WE CAN PAY THE PRICE. We will buy some MULES WITH SIZE FROM 4 YEARS OLD UP.

YOU KNOW KINKNER BROS. COME TO BUY HORSES SO DON'T BE AFRAID TO LEAD THEM IN AS WE ARE NOT DOINGANYDRIVING THIS SPRING.

We Will Be At Klemme

Monday, April 9th

Regardless of the Weather

Kinkner Bros.

of the

Cedar Rapids Horse and Mule Company

Brighten Up For Spring

Clean-Up and Paint-Up!

Chase Out Dirt and Gloom!

Winter is gone and now is the time to brighten up from the dust, dirt and gloom left by Old Man Winter.

This Store is the Official Headquarters of General Dirt Chaser. Here is a bunch of Guaranteed Dirt and Gloom Chasers which will brighten up your home—

Watch Our Windows

OLD DUTCH CLEANSER (Chases Dirt)
BON AMI (Either in powder or cake form)
SOAP, we have all kinds for all kinds of work
WASHING POWDERS, rough on gloom
LEWIS LYE, you know what it will do
SILVER CREAM, puts shine on silverware
SANIFLUSH, Cleans sinks, bathtubs, etc.
CHEESE CLOTH, makes good dust cloth
DYES, Brighten up the old colors with it.
BROOMS, our brooms are the lastink kind
DUST PANS, its handy to have a couple
DUSTLESS MOPS, we handle the best ones
FURNITURE POLISH, OIL, etc, it's great
JOHNSON'S WAX, you know this is best
MOPS, BUCKETS, any kind you need
BRUSHES, for scrubbing, cleaning, etc.
HOSE, SPRAYS, makes cleaning easier
DISINFECTANTS, Kills the germs quick.

Watch our windows!

PAINT UP——Brighten up those rooms with Sherman-Williams Flat Wall Paints, Varnish, Stains, etc. We have a full line of Paints, Brushes, etc. "Save the Surface, and you save all."—PAINT AND VARNISH.

G. W. Kluckhohn & Sons

ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned have formed, under the provisions of chap. 122 laws of the Thirty Ninth General Assembly of Iowa, a corporation named the Klemme Cooperative Live Stock Shippers, principle place of business at Klemme, Iowa. The objects of this corporation shall be to buy, sell, handle, market and ship the live stock and other farm products cooperatively for its membership, which is open to all livestock producers, by payment of $1.00 membership fee. Each member is entitled to one vote in all meetings. The corporate period began March 1923, and ends March 1948. The first annual meeting shall be held January 8th, 1924. and each year thereafter on the first Friday following the second Thursday in January. Liabilities of the members for the debts of the Association shall be limited to the membership fee paid. The association shall have power to borrow up to and not over $1,000.00 on a majority vote of all directors.

Management shall consist of five directors, three of which shall serve until the annual meeting in 1925 and two util the annual election in 1924. Succeeding directors shall be elected for two years. The directors shall at their first meeting elect from their own number a president, a vice president and a secretary-treasurer. The two year directors are E. J. Arnold, Herman Priebe, and John G. Tanner. The one year directors are Wm. J. Schlawin and John Miller. The president is Wm. J. Schlawin, the vice president is Herman Priebe and the secretary-treasurer is E. J. Arnold.

Signed this 7th day of February, 1923 by Wm. J. Schlawin, John G. Tanner, J. F. Miller, Herman Priebe and E. J. Arnold.

(Mar 22-29 Apr-5-12.)

GEORGE ZINN, M. D.

Physician and Surgeon

Office opposite from Hotel Klemme

Phone No. 19

Eyes Examined Glasses Fitted

Next Time Try

Sausage

You will like our sausage, it's made of quality meats properly prepared and seasoned. Buy it in

Link
Pork
Liver
Summer
Bologna

It's Good!

Ask For

"HEINZ 57"

We Have Them

J. P. Larsen & Sons

The Klemme Meat Market

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Notice is hereby given that proposals for the erection of an addition to the school house in the Independent District of Klemme, Hancock County, Iowa, and for the plumbing and heating therein, will be received by the undersigned in Klemme, Iowa, until One O'clock P. M., April 27th, 1923, bids will be opened at 8:00 O'clock P. M. on the same date, at which time contract will be let to the lowest responsible bidder. Plans and specifications may be seen at the First National Bank. The Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Dated at Klemme, Iowa, March 27, 1923.

LEW LEWIS,
Secretary Independent District of Klemme.

(Pub. Mrch 29, April 5-12-19.)

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP

Management, Circulation, Etc, required by the Act of Congress of August 24, 1912. Of The Klemme Times published weekly at Klemme, Iowa, for April 1. 1923.

State of Iowa, County of Hancock, ss.

Before me, a Notary Public in and for the State and county aforesaid, personally appeared R. A. Jorgenson, who. having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the Owner of the Klemme Times and that the following is, to th best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management, etc., of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the Act of August 24, 1912, etc.

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor, and business managers are:

Publisher, R. A. Jorgenson, Klemme, Iowa.

Editor, R. A. Jorgenson, Klemme, Iowa.

Managing Editor, R. A. Jorgenson, Klemme, Iowa

Business Manager, M. J. Jorgenson, Klemme, Iowa.

2. That the owner is: R A. Jorgenson, Klemme, Iowa.

3. That the known bond holders are: None.

R. A. Jorgenson, Owner

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 2nd day of April, 1923.

(SEAL) C. G Waterman.

(My commission expires July 4, 1924.)

TYPEWRITER RIBBONS
All Makes

Typewriter Ribbons for sale at the Times Office. all of the Standard makes. Ribbons 75 cents each.

HAVEN FOR MICE

Small Rodents Said to Infest New York's Skyscrapers.

According to Truthful Janitors, They Burrow Into Steel and Concrete, and Establish Homes.

A stenographer on the third floor of a downtown office building recently aroused considerable comment by climbing on top of her desk and waving her arms around in the air and crying loudly for someone to save her. She had seen a mouse. Now, mice do turn up in odd places in New York, everybody knows, remarks the Sun of that city.

It is of recent newspaper record that one came out of the stony walls of the aquarium and fell into the shark tank and another mouse is reported as emerging inside the Statue of Liberty, up near the top, and looking at a party of school teachers and starting a disturbance in which several of the teachers were badly shaken up.

"Mice!" exclaimed the head janitor of a steel and concrete skyscraper. "Is that the first mouse you ever saw round this joint? Listen, I bring five cats to this place so far, and I been on this job just three weeks."

"Yes?" replied the investigator. "And how have they come out?"

"You mean how have they gone out. You never saw cats go out of a place so fast. They takes one look around and blow. When a mouse gets just so competent, you know, a cat doesn't eat him any more—he eats the cat."

Another building was investigated, one of the richest banks on Wall street, a structure of terra cotta, tile and marble and skeleton steel, and from basement to top floor library, the janitor says, it is one grand cheese.

That janitor has tried everything. He says he began with traps; but gave them up. Then he turned to professional exterminators. Every week they would come and kill all the mice in the building. Every week. He grew tired of having them around after a while and bought a high-priced cat. He still keeps the cat, but it is more for sentimental reasons than anything else. He likes to have something around to pet.

Still further investigation brought to light an incident which happened on the twenty-eighth floor of a Forty-second street skyscraper. The woman in charge of a roomful of girl filing clerks looked up to find her force suddenly begin to conduct itself in a way she never approves under any circumstances.

Three girls began to walk upon the tops of their desks. Three more shinned up the sides of filing cabinets. Another girl stood in a waste basket and called for the police. And the rest cruised about the office in a riotous manner.

The department head looked upon all this as a breach of discipline. She arose and went down into the heart of the riot, intending to say so. But arriving there she changed her mind. She let out a whoop which traveled half way across Manhattan island, and picked up her skirts and fled.

A mouse had come out of the fresh-air shaft looking for a cat.

Island Religious Shrine.

Star island, one of the Isles of Shoals, ten miles off the mainland of New Hampshire, has been dedicated exclusively to religious service for 120 years. On its rocky summit is a small graystone church which was built in the year 1800. This has been used ever since as a place of worship, first by fishermen's mothers, sisters and sweethearts who prayed for the safe return of their loved ones. During the last 26 years it has been a shrine for Unitarians and Congregationalists. At ten o'clock each night long lines of men and women, carrying small lanterns, wend their way thither and, a churchful at a time, hang their lanterns on the walls, and bow their heads in prayer or raise their voices in appropriate hymns.

But Not His Perfumery.

Bobby, a five-year-old citizen of Irvington, had been suffering from quinsy and the specialist found it necessary to give the lad ether when he lanced his throat, says the Indianapolis News. As soon as Bobby had sufficiently recovered, plans were made to have the offending tonsils removed. In order to smooth the way, Bobby's mother said:

"Now, Bobby, the same kind doctor who took away the pain from your throat last week is coming again to remove your tonsils, so that you will never have another sore throat. You liked the doctor, didn't you?"

After a short pause, during which Bobby's face showed signs of unpleasant reflection, he answered:

"Yes, I liked the doctor all right, but I didn't like his perfumery."

Palladium and Platinum.

In the investigation of methods for assaying platinum, conducted by the bureau of mines, recent experiments have developed that with certain ores, especially when the quantity of platinum is considerable, nitric acid will not effect a separation of platinum and palladium. A method which has been found to be accurate and to result in a complete separation of these metals is described in Serial 2351, "Separation of palladium and platinum by means of dimethylgloxime" obtainable from the bureau of mines, Washington, D. C.—Scientific American.

GOOD WEATHER

Ths vicinity is again blessed with what appears to be good spring weather.

The latter part of last week the weather man began to gradually open up the good weather valve and then turned on a little heat. Sunday was a nice day. not at all cold and the roads were fairly good so that many enjoyed a short ride in their car which had been idle for some time.

Monday it clouded up and Monday night we had a good soaking rain which sure loosened up what frost was left in the ground. It cleared off again Tuesday and at this time the weather is bright and warm.

Yesterday morning we heard a number of robins singing gayly. We have seen robins around for a week or two but they did not look very much excited about the spring we were then supposed to have.

Sure, spring is here. We saw a bunch of kids flynig kites the other day and even the farmers are beginning to talk about seeding.

To know how good a cigarette really can be made you must try a—

Also the Best In

Implements
Supplies
Accessories

H. Lau Sons

Standard Ford simplicity of design throughout; no unnecessary weight; all moving parts enclosed. Automobile type drive insurs easy handling. Fordson turns in a 21-foot circle. Three forward speeds.

Lowest initial cost and minimum operating cost.

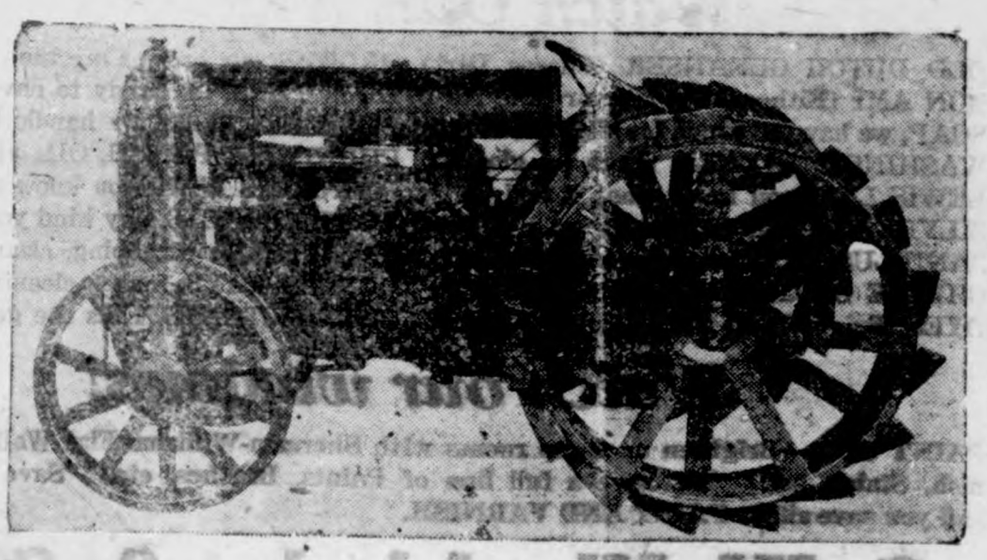
Burns kerosene. Will pull two plows.

Special Ford air washer, through which air supply is drawn, removes all dust, thus reducing wear on vital working parts.

More than 100 farm and commercial uses.

Backed by Ford Service Organization of over 18,000 dealers. which assures continuous operation of the Fordsn. No costly delays awaiting parts.

Come in and let us tell you more about the Fordson. Order now for early delivery.



Greimann Motor Company

Aaron Griemann, Manager. Ford, Fordson, Lincoln

Somethhing New In

Sanitary Wall Finish

We have 500 pounds of this new "Gilt Edge" SANITARY WALL FINISH. It takes the place of Paint, and goes farther than Alabastine and is used in a similar way. It can be mixed with Hot, Warm, or Cold Water. It Comes in 16 Colors. Makes a beautiful wall at a LOW COST.

Flat Wall Paint

We have a full line of FLAT WALL PAINT in all of the popular colors. Also a big line of other Paints, Varnishes, Etc.

FULL LINE OF PAINTER'S SUPPLIES HERE—

Jacobs & Son

Bakery Goods

SALLY ANN BREAD—
CREAM PUFFS—
SNOW BALLS—
FRIED CAKES—
CINNAMON ROLLS—
RYE BREAD—
COOKIES—

A Big Basket of Bakery Goods arrives fresh every afternoon from the Gates Bakery Co., of Traer, Iowa.

We have tried samples from a dozen different Bakeries and we find

SALLY ANN BREAD
BEATS
THEM
ALL!

Those of you who want the best will ask for

SALLY
ANN
BREAD—
—at—

Wellemeyer's

Desert Gold

By ZANE GREY

Author of

Riders of the Purple Sage, Wildfire, Etc.

Copyright by Harper & Brothers.

CHAPTER XII.—Continued.

—13—

...e shots rang out. Yaqui was ...standing erect firing rapidly at ...arting Mexicans. For all Gale ...make out no second bullet took ... Rojas and his men vanished ...d the bulge of lava. The Yaqui ...rately backed away from his po... He made no effort to run or ... Presently he turned and came ...ht toward the position of the ...rs, sheered off perhaps a hun... paces below it, and disappeared ... crevice. Plainly his intention ...o draw pursuers within rifle shot. ...other wait set in then, and judg... by the more direct rays of the ...nd a receding of the little shad... cast by the choyas, Gale was of ...pinion that it was a long wait. ...It seemed short. Gale had the ... position, farthest to the right, ...therefore was best shielded from ...e fire from the higher ridges ...e rim, some three hundred yards ...nt. Jim came next, well hidden ... crack. The positions of Thorne ...Ladd were most exposed. They ... sharp lookout over the uneven ...art of their hiding-place.

...ddenly the dead stillness was ... by a shot, clear and stinging, ... at hand. It was from a rifle, ...a carbine. With startling quick... a cry followed—a cry that ...ed Gale—it was so thin, so high... ...d, so different from all other ... It was the involuntary human ...k of death.

...Yaqui's called out another pard..." said Jim Lash, laconically.

...arbines began to crack. The re... were quick, light, like sharp ...s without any ring. Gale made ... round spots, dark against the ...ground of red, and in front of ...n leaped out small tongues of fire. ...d's .405 began to "spang" with its ...utiful sound of power. Thorne ... firing, somewhat wildly, Gale ...ght. Then Jim Lash pushed his ...chester over the rim under a ...a, and between shots Gale could ... him singing: "Turn the lady, ...—turn the lady, turn! . . . ...man left! Swing your pardners! ... Forward an' back! . . . ...n the lady, turn!" Gale got into ... fight himself, not so sure that he ... any of the round, bobbing objects ...aimed at, but growing sure of him... as action liberated something ...ed and congested within his ...ast.

Then over the position of the rang... came a hail of steel bullets. Those ...t struck the lava hissed away into ... crater; those that came biting ...ough the choyas made a sound ...ich resembled a sharp ripping of ... Bits of cactus stung Gale's face, ...d he dreaded the flying thorns more ...n he did the flying bullets.

"Hold on, boys," called Ladd, as he ...uched down to reload his rifle. ...ave your shells. The Greasers are ...readin' on us, some goin' down be... Yaqui, others movin' up for that ...h ridge. When they get up there ...a d—d if it won't be hot for us. ...ere ain't room for us to hide here."

Ladd raised himself to peep over ... rim. Shots were now scattering, ...d all appeared to come from below. ... volley of shots from a different ...gle was followed by the quick ring ... steel bullets striking the lava all ...ound Gale. His first idea, as he ...ard the projectiles sing and hum ...d whine away into the air, was that ...y were coming from above him. He ...oked up to see a number of low, ...hite and dark knobs upon the high ...int of lava. They had not been ...re before. Then he saw little, pale, ...ping tongues of fire. As he dodged ...wn he distinctly heard a bullet strike ...dd. At the same instant he seemed ... hear Thorne cry out and fall, and ...sh's boots scrape rapidly away.

Ladd fell backward still holding the ...5. Gale dragged him into the shel... of his own position, and dreading ... look at him, took up the heavy ...apon. It was with a kind of sav... strength that he gripped the rifle; ...d it was with a cold and deadly in...nt that he aimed and fired. The first ...easer huddled low, let his carbine ... clattering down, and then crawled ...hind the rim. The second and third ...rked back. The fourth seemed to ...p up over the crest of lava. A dark ...m reached for him, clutched his leg, ...ied to drag him up. It was in vain. ...ildly grasping at the air the bandit ...ll, slid down a steep shelf, rolled ...er the rim, to go hurtling down out ... sight.

"Shore—I'm d—n glad—them Greas... ain't usin' soft-nose bullets," ...rawled a calm voice.

Swift as lightning Gale whirled.

"Laddy! I thought you were done ...r," cried Gale, with a break in his ...oice.

The ranger's blouse was open at the ...eck, and on his right shoulder under ...he collar bone was a small hole just ...eginning to bleed.

"Sure it's high, Laddy," replied Gale, ...adly. "Went clear through, clean as ... whistle!"

He tore a handkerchief into two ...arts, made wads, and pressing them ...lose over the wounds he bound them ...here with Ladd's scarf.

"Laddy, I—I'm afraid Thorne's done for," whispered Gale. "He's lying over there in that crack. I can see part of him. He doesn't move."

"I was wonderin' if I'd have to tell you that. Dick, he went down hard hit, fallin' you know, limp an' soggy. It was a mortal cinch one of us would get it in this fight; but G—d! I'm sorry Thorne had to be the man."

"Laddy, maybe he's not dead," replied Gale. He called aloud to his friend. There was no answer.

Ladd got up, and, after peering keenly at the height of lava, he strode swiftly across the space. It was only a dozen steps to the crack in the lava where Thorne had fallen in head first. Ladd bent over, went to his knees, so that Gale saw only his head. Then he appeared rising with arms round the cavalryman. He dragged him across the hole to the sheltered corner that alone afforded protection. He had scarcely reached it when a carbine cracked and a bullet struck the flinty lava, striking sparks, then singing into the air.

Thorne was either dead or unconscious, and Gale, with a contracting throat and numb heart, decided for the former. Not so Ladd, who probed the bloody gash on Thorne's temple, and then felt his breast.

"He's alive an' not bad hurt. That bullet hit him glancin'. Shore them steel bullets are some lucky for us. Dick, you needn't look so glum. I tell you he ain't bad hurt. I felt his skull with my finger. There's no hole in it. Wash him off an' tie— Wow! did you get the wind of that one? An' mebbe it didn't sing off the lava!"

It was indeed a joy to Gale to find that Thorne had not received a wound necessarily fatal, though it was serious enough. Gale bathed and bound it, and laid the cavalryman against the slant of the bank, his head high to lessen the probability of bleeding.

As Gale straightened up Ladd muttered low and deep, and swung the heavy rifle around to the left. Far along the slope a figure moved. Ladd began to work the lever of the Winchester and to shoot. At every shot Gale saw the bullets strike the lava behind, beside, before the fleeing Mexican, sending up dull puffs of dust. On the sixth shot he plunged down out of sight, either hit or frightened into seeking cover.

"Dick, mebbe there's one or two left above; but we needn't figger much on it," said Ladd, as, loading the rifle, he jerked his fingers quickly from the hot breech. "Listen! Jim an' Yaqui are hittin' it up lively down below. I'll sneak down there. You stay here an' keep about half an eye peeled up yonder, an' keep the rest my way."

There seemed a lull in the battle. Gale ventured to stand high, and, screened behind choyas, he swept the three-quarter circle of lava with his glass. In the distance he saw horses, but no riders. Below him, down the slope along the crater rim and the trail, the lava was bare of all except tufts of choya. Gale gathered assurance. It looked as if the day was favoring his side. Then Thorne, coming partly to consciousness, engaged Gale's care. The cavalryman stirred and moaned, called for water, and then for Mercedes. Gale held him back with a strong hand, and presently he was once more quiet.

It Looked as If the Day Was Favoring His Side.

Suddenly harsh, prolonged yells brought Gale to his feet. Far down the trails where the crater rims closed in the deep fissure he saw moving forms. They were three in number. Two of them ran nimbly across the lava bridge. The third staggered far behind. It was Ladd. He appeared hard hit. He dragged at the heavy rifle, which he seemed unable to raise. The yells came from him. He was calling the Yaqui.

Gale's heart stood still momentarily. Here, then, was the catastrophe! He hardly dared sweep that fissure with his glass. The two fleeing figures halted—turned to fire at Ladd. Gale recognized the foremost one—small, compact, gaudy—Rojas! The bandit's arm was outstretched. Puffs of white smoke rose, and shots rapped out. When Ladd went down Rojas threw his gun aside and with a wild yell bounded over the lava. His companion followed.

A tide of passion, first hot as fire, then cold as ice, rushed over Gale when he saw Rojas take the trail toward Mercedes' hiding-place. The little bandit appeared to have the sure-footedness of a mountain sheep. The Mexican following was not so sure or fast. He turned back. Gale heard the trenchant bark of the .405. Ladd was kneeling. He shot again—again. The retreating bandit seemed to run full into an invisible obstacle, then fell lax, inert, lifeless. Rojas sped on unmindful of the spurts of dust about him. Yaqui, high above Ladd, was also firing at the bandit. Then both rifles were emptied. Rojas turned at a high break in the trail. He shook a defiant hand, and his exulting yell pealed faintly to Gale's ears. About him there was something desperate, magnificent. Then he clambered down the trail.

Ladd dropped the .405, and rising, gun in hand, he staggered toward the bridge of lava. Before he had crossed it Yaqui came bounding down the slope, and in one splendid leap he cleared the fissure. He ran beyond the trail and disappeared on the lava above. Rojas had not seen this sudden, darting move of the Indian.

Gale wondered, fearfully, what had become of Lash. Presently, when Rojas came out of the cracks and ruts of lava there might be a chance of disabling him by a long shot. His progress was now slow. But he was making straight for Mercedes' hiding-place. What was it leading him there—an eagle eye, or hate, or instinct? Why did he go on when there could be no turning back for him on that trail? Ladd was slow, heavy, staggering on the trail; but he was relentless. Only death could stop the ranger now. Surely Rojas must have known that when he chose the trail. From time to time Gale caught glimpses of Yaqui's dark figure stealing along the higher rim of the crater. He was making for a point above the bandit.

Ladd staggered along the trail; at times he crawled. The Yaqui gained; he might have had wings; he leaped from jagged crust to jagged crust; his sure-footedness was a wonderful thing.

But for Gale the marvel of that endless period of watching was the purpose of the bandit Rojas. He had now no weapon. Gale's glass made this fact plain. There was death behind him, death below him, death before him, and though he could not have known it, death above him. He never faltered—never made a misstep upon the narrow, flinty trail. When he reached the lower end of the level ledge Gale's poignant doubt became a certainty. Rojas had seen Mercedes. It was incredible, yet Gale believed it. Then, his heart clamped as in an icy vise, Gale threw forward the Remington, and sinking on one knee, began to shoot. He emptied the magazine. Puffs of dust near Rojas did not even make him turn.

Gale wheeled, rigid now, steeling himself to one last forlorn hope—that Mercedes could defend herself. She had a gun. He doubted not at all that she would use it. But, remembering her terror of this savage, he feared for her. Rojas reached the level of the ledge. He halted. He crouched. It was the act of a panther. Manifestly he saw Mercedes within the cave. Then faint shots patted the air, broke in quick echo. Rojas went down as if struck by a heavy blow. He was hit. But even as Gale yelled in sheer madness the bandit leaped erect. He seemed too quick, too supple to be badly wounded. A slight, dark figure flashed out of the cave. Mercedes! She backed against the wall. Gale saw a puff of white—heard a report. But the bandit lunged at her. Mercedes ran, not to try to pass him, but straight for the precipice. Her intention was plain. But Rojas outstripped her, even as she reached the verge. Then a piercing scream pealed across the crater—a scream of despair.

Gale closed his eyes. He could not bear to see more.

Thorne echoed Mercedes' scream. Gale looked round just in time to leap and catch the cavalryman as he staggered, apparently for the steep slope. And then, as Gale dragged him back, both fell. Gale saved his friend, but he plunged into a choya. He drew his hands away full of the great glistening cones of thorns.

"For God's sake, Gale, shoot! Shoot! Kill her! Kill her! . . . Can't—you—see—Rojas—"

Thorne fainted.

Gale, stunned for the instant, stood with uplifted hands, and gazed from Thorne across the crater. Rojas had not killed Mercedes. He was overpowering her. His actions seemed slow, wearing, purposeful. Hers were violent. Like a trapped she-wolf, Mercedes was fighting. She tore, struggled, flung herself.

Rojas' intention was terribly plain. In agony now, both mental and physical, cold and sick and weak, Gale gripped his rifle and aimed at the struggling forms on the ledge. He pulled the trigger. The bullet struck up a cloud of red dust close to the struggling couple. Again Gale fired, hoping to hit Rojas, praying to kill Mercedes. The bullet struck high. A third—fourth—fifth time the Remington spoke—in vain! The rifle fell from Gale's racked hands.

How horribly plain that fiend's intention! Gale tried to close his eyes, but could not. He prayed wildly for a sudden blindness—to faint as Thorne had fainted. But he was transfixed to the spot with eyes that pierced the red light.

Mercedes was growing weaker, seemed about to collapse.

"Oh, Jim Lash, are you dead?" cried Gale. "Oh, Laddy! . . . Oh, Yaqui!"

Suddenly a dark form literally fell down the wall behind the ledge where Rojas fought the girl. It sank in a heap, then bounded erect.

"Yaqui!" screamed Gale, and he waived his bleeding hands till the blood bespattered his face. Then he choked. Utterance became impossible.

The Indian bent over Rojas and flung him against the wall. Mercedes, sinking back, lay still. When Rojas got up the Indian stood between him and escape from the ledge. Rojas backed the other way along the narrowing shelf of lava. His manner was abject, stupefied. Slowly he stepped backward.

It was then that Gale caught the white gleam of a knife in Yaqui's hand. Rojas turned and ran. Yaqui followed slowly. His figure was dark and menacing. But he was not in a hurry. When he passed off the ledge Rojas was edging farther and farther along the wall. He was clinging now to the lava, creeping inch by inch. Perhaps he had thought to work around the buttress or climb over it. Evidently he went as far as possible, and there he clung, an unscalable wall above, the abyss beneath.

Gale Heard—or Imagined He Heard—That Wild, Strange Yaqui Cry.

The approach of the Yaqui was like a slow dark shadow of gloom. If it seemed so to the stricken Gale what must it have been to Rojas? He appeared to sink against the wall. The Yaqui stole closer and closer. He was the savage now, and for him the moment must have been glorified. Gale saw him gaze up at the great circling walls of the crater, then down into the depths. Perhaps the red haze hanging above him, or the purple haze below, or the deep caverns in the lava, held for Yaqui spirits of the desert, his gods to whom he called. Perhaps he invoked shadows of his loved ones and his race, calling them in this moment of vengeance.

Gale heard—or imagined he heard—that wild, strange Yaqui cry.

Then the Indian stepped close to Rojas, and bent low, keeping out of reach. How slow were his motions! Would Yaqui never—never end it? . . . A wail drifted across the crater to Gale's ears.

Rojas fell backward and plunged sheer. The bank of white choyas caught him, held him upon their steel spikes. How long did the dazed Gale sit there watching Rojas wrestling and writhing in convulsive frenzy? The bandit now seemed mad to win the delayed death.

When he broke free he was a white patched object no longer human, a ball of choya burrs, and he slipped off the bank to shoot down and down into the purple depths of the crater.

CHAPTER XIII

Changes at Forlorn River.

The first of March saw the federal occupation of the garrison at Casita. After a short, decisive engagement the rebels were dispersed into small bands and driven eastward along the boundary line toward Nogales.

It was the destiny of Forlorn River, however, never to return to the slow, sleepy tenor of its former existence. Belding's predictions came true. That straggling line of home-seekers was but a forerunner of the real invasion of Altar valley. Refugees from Mexico and from Casita spread the word that water and wood and grass and land were to be had at Forlorn River; and as if by magic the white tents and red adobe houses sprang up to glisten in the sun.

Belding was happier than he had been for a long time. He believed that evil days for Forlorn River, along with the apathy and lack of enterprise, were in the past. He hired a couple of trustworthy Mexicans to ride the boundary line, and he settled down to think of ranching and irrigation and mining projects. Every morning he expected to receive some word from Sonoyta or Yuma, telling him that Yaqui had guided his party safely across the desert.

Among the many changes coming to pass in Forlorn River were the installing of post office service and the building of a mescal drinking-house. Belding had worked hard for the post office, but he did not like the idea of a saloon for Forlorn River. Still, that was an inevitable evil. The Mexicans would have mescal. A good many Americans drifted into Forlorn River—miners, cowboys, prospectors, outlaws, and others of nondescript character; and these men, of course, made the saloon, which was also an inn, their headquarters. Belding, with Carter and other old residents, saw the need of a sheriff for Forlorn River.

One morning early in this spring month, while Belding was on his way from the house to the corrals, he saw Nell running Blanco Jose down the road at a gait that amazed him. She did not take the turn of the road to come in by the gate. She put Jose at a four-foot wire fence, and came clattering into the yard.

It did not take more than half an eye for Belding to see that she was furious.

"Nell, what's come off now?" asked Belding.

"I'm not going to tell you," she replied, and started away, leading Jose toward the corral.

Belding leisurely followed. She went into the corral, removed Jose's bridle, and led him to the watering-trough. Belding came up, and without saying anything began to unbuckle Jose's saddle girths. But he ventured a look at Nell. The red had gone from her face, and he was surprised to see her eyes brimming with tears. Most assuredly this was not one of Nell's tantrums. While taking off Jose's saddle and hanging it in the shed Belding pondered in his slow way. When he came back to the corral Nell had her face against the bars, and she was crying. He slipped a big arm around her and waited.

"Dad, I don't want you to think me a—a baby any more," she said. "I've been insulted."

With a specific fact to make clear thought in Belding's mind he was never slow.

"I knew something unusual had come off. I guess you'd better tell me."

"Dad, I will, if you promise."

"What?"

"Not to mention it to mother, not to pack a gun down there, and never, never tell Dick."

Belding was silent. Seldom did he make promises readily.

"If you don't promise I'll never tell, that's all," she declared, firmly.

Belding deliberated a little longer. He knew the girl.

"Well, I promise not to tell mother," he said, presently; "and seeing you're here safe and well, I guess I won't go packing a gun down there, wherever that is. But I won't promise to keep anything from Dick that perhaps he ought to know."

Nell, regaining her composure, wiped her eyes and smoothed back her hair.

"The other day, Wednesday," she began, "I was coming home, and in front of that mescal drinking place there was a crowd. It was a noisy crowd. I didn't want to walk out into the street or seem afraid. But I had to do both. There were several young men, and if they weren't drunk they certainly were rude. I never saw them before, but I think they must belong to the mining company that was run out of Sonora by rebels. Anyway, these young fellows were Americans. They stretched themselves across the walk and smiled at me. I had to go out in the road. One of them, the rudest, followed me. He was a big fellow, red-faced, with prominent eyes and a bold look. He came up beside me and spoke to me. I ran home. And as I ran I heard his companions jeering.

"Well, today, just now, when I was riding up the valley road I came upon the same fellows. They had instruments and were surveying. Remembering Dick, and how he always wished for an instrument to help work out his plan for irrigation, I was certainly surprised to see these strangers surveying—and surveying upon Laddy's plot of land. It was a sandy road there, and Jose happened to be walking. So I reined in and asked these engineers what they were doing. The leader, who was that same bold fellow who had followed me, seemed much pleased at being addressed. He said he was glad to tell me he was going to run water all over Altar valley. Dad, you can bet that made me wild. That was Dick's plan, his discovery, and here were surveyors on Laddy's claim.

"Then I told him that he was working on private land and he'd better get off. He said something about not seeing any squatters on the land, and then he shut up tight on that score. But he began to be flirty again. He got hold of Jose's bridle, and before I could catch my breath he said I was a peach, that he wanted to make a date with me, that his name was Chase, that he owned a gold mine in Mexico. He said a lot more I didn't gather, but when he called me 'Dearie' I—well, I lost my temper.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

How Barbados Got Name.

Barbados is the Spanish name of the bearded figtree, native to the island; it has a trunk of phenomenal thickness in proportion to its height, concealed from view by the lower branches bending down around it.

LEGION MAN BUSY IN CHINA

Alfred H. Holt, Wisconsin Boy, Was First Commander of American Organization in China.

Alfred H. Holt, formerly of Oconto, Wis., was the first commander of the Canton (China) American Legion post, one of the recently organized branches of the soldiers' organization in foreign climes. Had it not been for the Legion man China today would be lacking a good "republican" or two, for it was his home that sheltered the mayor of Canton, son of Doctor Sun Yat Sen, during the fighting for the possession of the city in 1922.

Alfred H. Holt.

Holt is an instructor at the Canton Christian college, where he teaches French and English to the Chinese students. He is also instructor of military tactics to the cadet corps, and is active in boy scout work of the school.

While the fighting was in progress last June, the gunboats of Doctor Sun Yat Sen were shelling the city and were answered by the forts of the town. The fire grew so intense that Doctor Sun's wife, his son, then the mayor of the city, his wife, fled to the college grounds for safety. One shell, fortunately a "dud," lit squarely on top of a college dormitory, but did no harm.

Since Doctor Holt's election as commander of this faraway post, he has taken an active part in its work. He organized an American Legion baseball team, of which he himself is a member, as well as of the college baseball team, which met the University of California on the recent trip that team made to the Orient. It is said that when these two teams met, the armies of the republicans and irregulars suspended fighting long enough to watch the baseball game.

A student at Williams college in 1917, Holt became a member of the first training camp at Plattsburg in 1918, and at the close of this camp was ordered to Camp Lee, Va. for further training. He was commissioned as second lieutenant of infantry early in November, 1918, but failed to get overseas. After his release from service he returned to college, finished his course, and soon afterward accepted the post of instructor in China. He heads a small but extremely enthusiastic bunch of Legionnaires in Canton.

GREET GERMAN WAR BRIDES

National President of Legion Auxiliary Announces Organization Members Will Serve as Big Sisters.

Members of the American Legion Auxiliary will act as big sisters to German war brides and their babies, Dr. Kate Waller Barrett, national president of that organization, has announced.

Dr. Kate Barrett

Dr. Barrett went to Savannah to welcome the German women, in the name of the Auxiliary and, while there, made arrangements to obtain information in regard to the final destination of the Rhine women. Auxiliary units in those communities will assist the brides in acclimating themselves to a new country. Dr. Barrett believes that many of the unpleasant experiences which naturally fall to the lot of aliens can be eliminated by the kindly help of Auxiliary women.

The war brides measure up well with any other group of women, Dr. Barrett stated. They are young, healthy women, none of them of the "flapper" type. Most of them spoke English, since their husbands, they said, would not learn to speak German.

Dr. Barrett was interested in the attitude of the men toward returning to America. "All that I spoke to," she said, "were happy to get back home. There was a great deal of merriment in regard to the difference between the financial standing of the soldier at home and in Germany. At the present value of the mark, the soldiers were "millionaires." As many expressed themselves, "We all feel like millionaires who have suddenly lost our fortunes." The only ones who spoke of returning to Germany were those who left their wives and children behind and expected to return for them, she said.

Living It Over.

A western veteran was relating his war experience in an American Legion post to a friend when a third man drew his chair up just in time to hear the first say:

"—and they were falling all around us. Thick? Oh, boy!"

"Living it over, eh?" interrupted the newcomer. "How big were they?"

"Some of 'em eight or ten feet in diameter."

"Hold on there, they don't come that big. What war were you in? You musta been shell shocked."

"Shell shock me eye. I guess I was there and I saw them. And some of them over two hundred feet high."

"Say, what the—what are you talking about?"

"Why, the trees we cut out in Oregon in the Spruce Division."—American Legion Weekly.

1 cent

Brings It!

?

See this ad next week!

UNDER GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION

Don't Save Too Much

That is, don't save more tha nyou can comfortably afford each pay-day. Too many people have tried saving and then stopped because they tried to do too much.

It's the small, steady savings that grow. The way to do is to decide how much you can save every so often, and THEN STICK TO IT.

But, get started—that's the big thing. As little as a dollar opens a savings account at this bank. We pay 5 per cent on your money. Ask us about it. Also ask about the particular savings plan that meets your needs.

GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION

First National Bank

"The Bank for Everybody'.'

Personal Interest

Our customers know from personal experience that this bank is an institution of Personal Service.

We are interested in your success from every standpoint, for we serve oursleves well when we best serve you.

That is why we invite you to avail yourself of our fund of experience when our counsel can be of value to you.

If you have any business problem to solve on which you need advice come in and talk it over with us. If we can help, we will gladly do so.

5 PER CENT
PAID ON SAVINGS——

State Savings Bank

Klemme Iowa

News of Klemme and Vicinity

FOR SALE—Gray Reed Baby Cab very reasonable. Mrs. W. F Lau

Alvin Depping celebrated his 6th birthday last Thursday.

Mrs. Arthur Ruka, of Goodell. was a Klemme visitor Saturday.

Luverne Smith went to Clear Lake Saturday.

Myron Haskins, of Garner, was in town on business Monday.

Miss Laura Brooks was a Belmond visitor Tuesday.

FOR SALE—10 calves 3 to 6 mo. old. also some horses. H. Beek. 1p

Hatching Eggs—T. B. S. C. W. Leghorn eggs at $3 per 100. J. H. Steeman, Britt, Ia., Route 1. (2p)

"Dad" Kelly and August Katter, of Garner, were in Klemme on business Tuesday between trains.

FOR SALE—My residence property 2 blocks from Main Stt, in Klemme. Carl Suckow. (2p)

Buy your Dandruff Remedy, Hair Tonic and Shampoo at McCullough's Barber Shop. tfc

Note Book Paper at the Times Print Shop. Punched for 6-inch center loose leaf covers. tfc

Mrs. Tom Blank went to Garner yesterday for a visit with her daughter, Mrs. Wm Lau

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Haupt, of Clarion, came yesterday for a visit with Klemme relatives and friends.

Miss Elsie Carolus went to Clarion last Thursday. She has a position there and was home for a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Hofer, came over from Clear Lake last Thursday for a visit with Klemme friends.

Sheriff E. P. Hanson was in this city and vicinity Monday on official business.

C. C. Tessier, of Garner, was in town last Friday doing some electrical work.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P Larsen, of Belmond, spent Easter Sunday with relatives here

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Jacobs spent Easter Sunday with Mrs Jacob's parents at Clear Lake.

Miss Barry, of Belmond, visited with Mrs. Frank Rhodes over Easter.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Blank and children of Estherville spent Easter at the Tom Blank home.

Quite a number of Klemme people drove over to Belmond Sunday to viw the damage done by the big fire.

W. C. Keraus and family drove to Belmond Sunday to view the damage done by the fire.

Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Barr spent Easter Sunday with friends at Clear Lake.

Wm. Trafford and family of Belmond spnt Sunday at the Henry Maitland home.

The first rain of the season fell Monday night. It helped to take the frost out of the ground.

Mrs. Tony Ahrenkeil and son, of Goodell, were Klemme visitors Tuesday of this week.

"Happy" Johnson lft Saturday evening for Paxton, Illinois, for a visit of a week or ten days with his mother.

HATCHING EGGS—S. C. W. Leghorn eggs for hatching at $300 per 100. Rufus Steffen. Kanawha, Iowa.

Mary Goldsberry, of Estherville. came Friday evening and remained until Monday morning, visiting with Mrs. Will Kirkwood.

The W. F. M. S. of the First M. E Church meets this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harvey Stille, west of town

Mrs. Lester Hartbeck went to Ventura Saturday for a short visit with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Rosenau.

Mr. Phillips, of the Mason City Globe Gazette was in town Saturday and while here stopped for a chat with Ye Editor.

Some of the members of the members of the school board drove ovr to Mason City on business yesterday afternoon.

Colored cardboards, all colors, including black, at the Times Print Shop. Fine for primary work in the country schools. tfc

Miss Sarah Smith went to Des Moines Friday evening for a short visit with her sister. returning to Klemme Sunday evening.

I WANT TO GO AND SEE MY Papa; therefore I must ask those who owe me to pay up at once. Geo. Zinn, M. D. adv

FOUND—Steer came to my place. Owner can have same by proving property and paying cost of keep and advertising. Fred Schmidt. adv

Rev. Gedye went to Elendale, Minn., last Friday, being called to that plac to preach the funeral sermon of a friend. He returned to Klemme Saturday evening.

Typewriter ribbons at the Times Print Shop. Black, and Red and Black for all standard machines, at 75c. There is no better ribbon than the Remington. tfc

Mr. Alvin Stablr from Charles City came Friday of last week for a few days visit at the Stearnes home near Klemme.. Miss Mable was of course all smiles.

Mrs. Henry Lewis had a carpet-rag cutting bee last Friday afternoon, to which a number of ladies were invited. Delicious refreshments were served.

The high school enjoyed an April Fool's party at the bank basement last Thursday evening. They must of had a lot of fun from the noise they were making.

WHY MUSS AND FUSS AROUND HEATING A TUB OF WATER When YOU CAN ENJOY A SHOWER BATH at McCULLOUGH'S BARBER SHOP? adv tfc

Will Bachman has been laid up with rheumatism the past couple of weeks but was able to be about again the fore part of this week. Bill had quite a seige of it.

There was quite a fire at Mason City last week Thursday morning. A fire started in the new bank building and caused a great deal of damage. The fire is said to have started from a leaking gas pipe.

A new chimney graces the office of the Farmers Elevator. The old chimney got to leaning down instead of up and Herman decided it would not be according to Hoyle to have the smoke traveling downward. The smoke-stack again points toward the moon.

There were four babies baptized at the Methodist Episcopal Church on Easter Sunday. The following parents had their baby baptized: Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Waterman; Mr. and Mrs Peter Christians; Mr and Mrs Louie Knoke, and Mr and Mrs. George Johnson.

The Woodman split logs at their Camp here Tuesday night. From the laughing and noise going on in their hall they must have been taking through some candidates who were anxious to learn more of the art of chopping wood. A couple of fellows were still picking slivers out of their breeches yesterday morning.

Belmond experienced quite a fire last Thursday night. or early Friday morning. Six fram buildings were burned to the ground. One man was burned to death and his brother in jumping from the second floor window broke both legs and injured his back and is in a critical condition. They were sleeping over a pool room where the fire started. Belmond has had a number of fires the past year, but is building up as fast as they burn down. In the recent big fire they exhausted all of their chemical supply as well as the water supply in fighting the fire to save other buildings. Belmond has an excellent fire fighting equipment and their chemical apparatus has more than paid for itself in putting out fires, thus saving property and money. We are told that they will add further to their equipment by purchasing a large pump so they can pump water from the river direct into the mains in case of fire and thus have a large supply of water.

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT OF ADMINISTRATOR

Notice is Hereby Given. That the undersigned has been duly appointed and qualified as Executor of the Estate of FRED R. CHASE late of Hancock County, State of Iowa, deceased. All persons indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment; and those having claims against the same will present them, duly authenticated, to the undersigned, for allowance.

Dated April 4, A. D. 1923.

ELVA CHASE,
Administratrix
By Ramsay & Blackstone,
(A-5-12-19) Her Attorneys

Office Phone 149 J. Residence Phone 149 L.

Dr. E. H. Phillips

Osteopathic Physician
GARNER, IOWA.

Diagnosis and Treatment of Diseases.
Surgical and Obstetrical cases cared for.
"Consult an Osteopath"

New Coal Prices

Effective Aprl 1st

Kind	Price
Blue Sky Semi-Anthracite	$13.50
High Grade New Ohio Egg	9.50
Glendora 'The Wonder Coal'	9.50

Put in your supply now, April price is lowest of the year.

Watch for new prices next week

W. F. Lau

STILLE'S IMPLEMENT NEWS

VOLUME 1. Thursday, April 5, 1923 NUMBER 1

LOCALS

Spring fever. Even the auto wheels are tired.

Those McCormick-Deering Feed Grinders are still going. Dr. Zinn bought a ten inch McCormick-Deering grinder and a Minneapolis 12-25 Tractor from us. Frank Allison who is managing the farm for "Doc" is feeding a bunch of nice young stock and says the corn has to be crushed to make them do well. Dr. Zinn also bought other new machinery from us such as a wagon and box, a hay rack, a harrow, and other tools. "Doc" is stocking his farm with practically all new machinery.

Albert Kraus purchased a new John Deere 10 foot disk harrow of us last week.

Art Katter came in and got a 9 ft. International disk harrow from us last week.

Frank Loock came in and ordered a John Deere tractor plow for his Fordson last winter, he took it out a few days ago.

Chris Back came in and got one of our 8 inch feed grinders a few days ago.

Art Schoenwetter purchased a new John Deere 999 Corn Planter from us an dhad it taken out to his farm.

Harry Gibbs is using a new 3 h. p. International Throtleing kerosene engine to pull his milking machine. Harry says it does the business.

We have a good stock of Gas Engines on hand now, and if you are in the market for an engine better come in and look them over. We have all styles and sizes, and engines that are just the kind you will want.

POLICE ARREST CROSS-EYED MAN. He looked crooked!

WE BELIEVE IN THE CULTI-PACKER

We certainly do believe in the Dunham Culti-Packer. It's time you investigated this machine. Here is a tool that should be included in every farmers outfit. Should you once inspect this implement and find out just what kind of work it will do for you, you too would believe in the Culti-Packer. No farmer should be satisfied with a half-fi ished seed bed. A finished seed bed free of lumps. pulverized so as to conserve the moisture, will give your seed a real home and a difference will be very apparent at harvest time. The Culti-Packer can be used to advantage not only before the planting, but later for cultivating. It is a tool which can be used in the field more days in each year than any other implement. Investigate the Dunham Culti-Packer and you will want to own one.

Opportunity knocks but once, but the collector is more persistent.

THE KLEMME TIMES

ty-seventh Year—Number 31. Klemme, Iowa, Thursday Afternoon, April 12, 1923. $1.50 In Advance—$2.00 Outside of County

WS OF THE WEEK'S DOINGS AT HIGH SCHOOL

SEE IOWA FIRST

These Places This Summer. You Want to go Some Where etime ago we mentioned that ommunity Civics class had pre- a list of interesting places in where you could go and spend or even more seeing the senery he sighhts. In this weeks issue e publishing the list that the prepared. Clip this list out ut in a convenient place so you want to go some place n refer to it for some interest- lace.

egor, (pictured rocks)
City Portland Cement Co.
City Brick and Tile factory
City Sugar Beet Plant
ond Sugar Beet Plant
Mound. Forest City.
Bend, (grotto and church).
Falls. (senery along Ia. River.
Mines in Fort Dodge.
m Mines, Fort Dodge
State College, Ames
State University, Iowa City
State Teachers College, Cedar Falls.
Moines, Old State Capitol Building, Iowa City
Delicious Apple Tree, near Ames
Lake.
Lake.
oji Lake
and Dumb School, Council Bluffs.
Brown Church, Nashua.
Lake.
Dam, near Keokuck.
R. R. Bridge, Boone.
kfast Food Plant. Cedar Rapids
Button Mfg,. Muscatine. bolt. (Humbolt Park.
ra.
dville.
n
Colonies, Amana
Ledges along Des Moines River, Boone County.
Cat Cave, 4 mi. south of Ft. Dodge.
Cave, Decora.
l's Backbone, Delaware Co.
Des Hoines.

Misery Week Here

his is the week for the second inations. You know what that ns. It means cramming, studyworrying, and making one's miserable in general. The exations occur Wednesday and rsday and the principle has postthe schedule. We earnestly hope all will be lucky enough to get ugh. Some of the Base ball are getting pretty worried be- if their grades fall below an age of 77% it will mean that are out of the games for a while

A Talk on U. S. History

rofessor Neese gave us a talk on S. history the other morning. He it in such a way that few of n will never forget the events er. We had just finished singa song, the fourth verse of which t something like thhis:

I had an altercation in the spring inety-eight, when Dewey made a remarks that carried lots of ght. I did some fancy bottling n in Santiago Bay and fixed it evera found it hard to get away.'

told us the history of the battles Manila and of Santiago and of wonderful feets of thee naval cers in command. A few that he tioned were Dewey, Sampson. Hobson.

erican Literature Class Write Stories

ht American Literature class ded in some very good stories nday. These stories were about hundred words or over long and origonal. A few of the stories re read in class and it showed t the majority of the class like nance, because there was romance ed with nearly every one.

After the six weeks exams the s is going to take up the classic, e House of Seven Gables," by thorne. We hope that the class like it, but there are a great many individuals who would like to read some of Mark Twains works much better.

Base Ball Game Friday

The Klemme High School is going to play a game of base ball with the Goodell boys Friday afternoon. This game will be in Klemme. That is if the weather permits. The team has been working diligently the past week. but at the present time the diamond is not in shape for any real team work.

We did not play a game with Meservey last week, owing to bad roads and weather so the game with Goodell will be the first game of the season.

Everybody participating in any athletic activies must pass satisfactorilly a medical examination. Dr. W. F. Missman has examined the most of the boys and they are now ready to play. We wish to thank Dr. Missman for his services in examining the boys. We think "Doc" is a pretty good sport as he always conducts these exeminations free of charge in spite of the fact that it tt takes a good deal of his time. It is supposed to be understood by all the parents that the school board cannot be held responsible in case of accident to any of the players. If a boy wants to participate in athleics he does so at his own risk.

The baseball team is going to enter in the Hancock County Field Meet to be held at Garner, May 4. The boys feel a good deal like Supt. Rankin said in his letter. The day is more for a get togather day rather than to "Win at any Price", affair. The boys will not feel bad if they do not get very far in the meet as we know that our team is not as strong this year as some of the o-the schools in the county.

There is also a Declamatoiry contest in the evening. Our school will be represented by Adela Schroeder and Marie Blank and possibly Maurine Hake.

Girls Going To Support the Team

The girls are preparing to back the boys this year. They have held several pep meetings and they say that they're going to stand back of the boys. It helps some of the boys a lot to have a little encouragement from the fairer sex you know!

Grammer Room

The eighth grade oraganized their class last Tuesday after school. Asa Arnold was elected president and and Donald Gibbs, secretary and treasurer. The other officers were not elected at this time but will be at some ffuture time. Th class colors chosn were red and white

Intrmediate Room

Those who received perfect grades in spelling were:

Lela Bachman
Clara Bergman
Raymond Barz
Floyd Klotzbach

Those receiving perfect grades in Arithmetic were:

Lela Bachman
Reva Elder

The Intermediate room had a perfect attendance all last week. This is a good record for such a large room.

o o o o o o o o o o
o CAMP FIRE GIRLS o
o o o o o o o o o o

The Camp Fire Girls met in the basement of the First National Bank on Thursday evening, April 5th.

The meeting was to be a Ceremonial meeting, but as the girls were not all present, the meeting was postponed.

The girls changed their program for Thursday evening, they decided to try some callisthenics. It was rather interesting to watch the girls They did quite well for the first time and all seemed to enjoy it very much.

Colored cardboards, all colors, including black, at the Times Print Shop. Fine for primary work in the country schools. tfc

Conrad Quandt is "sprucing-up" his restaurant by having the interior treated to a new coat of paint. Howard Doyle is the artist on the job.

Dick Bamman began his new duties yesterday as street commissioner and water works superintendent for the town of Klemme.

Miss Mae Ferlemann left for her home at Garner last Thursday. She was the nurse who cared for Mrs. Philip Bock and baby.

Mrs. Walter Bredlow and children and Mrs. Geo. Ulrich and daughter, Fern. were Mason City visitors yesterday.

Harry Buss has sold his interest in the Coobs & Buss garage and has moved to Goodell, where he bought a garage.

Bert Mathews spent last Wednesday and Thursday stretching his neck looking at the high buildings in Mason City.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C Keraus left last Friday for Aberdeen, South Dakota for a week's visit with his brother.

Read the message from the Iowa Valley Sugar Co. of Belmond. in the Times this week; it will interest a number of farmers here.

Miss Marie Blank went to Goodell Saturday for an over Sunday visit at the home of her sister, Mrs. Anthony Ahrenkeil.

Mr. and Mrs. Kothenbutal and Mrs. Emma Wenig returned Friday evening from a business trip in Wisconsin.

Mrs. Dewey Rice and daughter, Harriet, came Saturday from Clarion for a weeks visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Musfelt.

Mr. Hans Reiken, of Meservey, spent Sunday at the Ben Swalve home. We expect Miss Lena will wonder how we learned his name!

Gracka Quandt was an over Sunday vsitor at the home of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Tony Ahrenkeil, at Goodell.

Ed. Ford. of Iowa Falls was in Klemme on business last Thursday. Ed. is district manager for the Western Life Insurance Company and is doing a good business.

Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Wright of Belmond visited at the Sumner Trumbel home one day the past week. Iris Trumbel, a sister of Sumner, accompanied them.

WHY MUSS AND FUSS AROUND HEATING A TUB OF WATER When YOU CAN ENJOY A SHOWER BATH at McCULLOUGH'S BARBER SHOP? tfc

Tom Nelson went to Forest City last Friday morning and returned on the evening train. Tom spent the day visiting with relatives and old friends.

Miss Mable Waterman, who is a teacher in the Belmond schools this year.. spent the Easter vacation in Klemme, returning to Belmond last Saturday.

Joe Miller boarded the stock train for Chicago Saturday night. He did not get lost among the high buildings as we saw him in Klemme the fore part of the week.

Ladies will be glad to learn, that Wellemeyer's carry in stock the hi-neck cotton vests in all sizes, also the adhesive tape which are the necessary materials for making Dress Forms. adv

The W F. M. S. of the First Methodist Church held their meeting last Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs Harvey Stille west of town. The ladies went out in lumber wagons as the roads were too muddy for a car. They report a fine meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lutuseck, came from Minnesota Lake, Minn., last week and will make Klemme their future home. They have moved into the rooms over the Schaffer building. Mr. Lutuseck will work on the Rock Island section gang.

Mr. H. F. Kellogg. manager of the Iowa Falls Electric Co.. of Iowa Falls, was in town on business yesterday. He stated that the Company are going to reduce the rate on light current in Klemme and will go back to the old rate. That sounds fine.

Does your old Suit look sort of shabby? You will soon "shed your overcoat" and if your suit is bad folks will surely notice. Do one of two things—either have your old suit Cleaned and Pressed or buy a New Suit. We can serve you either way at Wellemeyer's. adv

We are in receipt of a letter from A. G. Lau of Mason City, in which he states that he has purchased the entire automobile business of what was the Empire Motor Sales Co. Mr. Lau handles the Stephens, Durant and the Star cars. He also enclosed an order for job printing; thanks August.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Darner, accompanied by Mansel Darner, all of Minneapolis, came Saturday for a visit at the Dr. J. L. Hesselhuus home. Mr and Mrs. Darner came to see their daughter, Francile, who is staying with Dr. and Mrs. Hesselhuus. The gentlemen are brothers of Mrs. Hesselhuus

Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Barr moved into the Fred Schlichting house on East Main Tuesday, which was vacated by Mr and Mrs. Harry Buss, who have moved to Goodell. There will be a little more moving around which we probably can report in the next issue as we have not a line-up on it at this time.

Does your Piano need tuning?—Does your Player need adjusting?—Audrey Church is the Piano Tuner and Player Repair Man who has been coming to Wellemeyer's Store every now and then for many years. He will be here again about the last week in April; leave your orders at Wellemeyer's. adv

Dr. Zinn left Saturday night for Canada. He intended to stop off at Battle Creek, Michigan (to eat some breakfast cereals) and join his brother there and then they would go on to Hanover, Ontario, Canada, for a visit with their father. "Doc's" daddy is ninety-four years young; perhaps his son George will get a spanking for not coming home for two years. Doc did not say how long he would be gone but instructed us to keep an eye on the shack while he was gone.

BASKET SOCIAL

A program and basket social will be given at District No. 3 Twin Lake Township and No. 1 Amsterdam at the Zeigler school, 2 miles south and 7 miles west of Klemme on Thursday evening, April 12. Ladies will please bring baskets. Francis Baker and Gertrude Wilkins, teachers

NOTICE TO PASTURE CATTLE

To pasture cattle this summer season on good blue grass pasture come and give me your orders. Cattle will be well fed and taken care of. Call soon at A. L. Lau, Klemme, Ia. (Apr 12-19-26)

SCOUT CORNER

The Boy Scouts met last Tuesday night at the Scout Headquarters.

They also met a week ago Monday night. The boys have been doing good work on their Scout Tests.

Scout Donald Gibbs passed his second class signalling test; Scout Wellemeyer passed his first class signalling test which is to be able to send and receive International Morse 16 letters per minute with Semaphore. He chose the Morse code and sent twenty-nine letters and received 26 a minute. Fred Arnold examined him. Scouts Wellemeyer and Elder passed their first aid tests. Asa Arnold and Vernon Turgeson are prepared to pass their tests in signalling for next week.

Scout Wellemeyer has only one test left to pass before he becomes a First Class Scout, which will give him the distinction of being the first of the troop to pass the tests.

The boys amused themselves by boxing and various other things.

Assistant Scoutmaster Arnold also led the boys in some lively scout yells.

The next meeting will be held on next Tuesday evening. Don't forget it fellows.

AVERY TOWNSHIP NEWS

Mrs. August Trampel, who has been sick with pneumonia, is some better at this writing. The nurse is still with her.

Arthur Wade helped D. A. Marshall fan oats one day last week.

Myrtle Bell helped Mrs. D. A. Marshall with her work last Friday

John Bachman. Lenn Sherwood and Charles Fritzell hauled hogs on last week Wednesday.

Anna Carlson and Verner Nelson were callers at the Mrs. C. A. Arnold home Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs Harold Leitzsinger were visitors at the George Stokesbary home Sunday.

D. P. Anderson was a caller at the Wm. Bell home Sunday afternoon.

D. D Ross of Garner came Monday to do some work at the farm

TOWN BUYS TRACTOR TO DO STREET DRAGGING

THE CITY COUNCIL ELECTED DICK BAMMAN TO ACT AS STREET MAN

The Town Purchased A Fodson To Do Street Grading And Dragging This Year

At the regular meeting of the new Town Council at Mayor Gruetzmacher's place of business Monday night they found many things to talk over and act on and it was a busy night for them. It was the first regular meeting of the new Board, as up until Monday night they had only acted as a Board of Review and had not taken up any regular town business. They still have a little tax adjusting to do before they can close the tax books.

Fire Dept. Wants Equipment

The Klemme Fire Dept. had a committe present before the Council to discuss the purchase of some new and needed equipment. As the time of the Council was well taken up no action was taken on this except that the Fire Chief was instructed to get what repairs were needed and the question of purchasing a chemical apparatus was tabled until the next meeting when the proposition would be taken up.

Fordson Tractor Purchased

At the meeting Monday night the Council and Mayor decided to purchase a Fordson Tractor with which to do street dragging and grading with the coming year. This deal went through in a hurry and a used tractor was purchased at once of the Greimann Motor Co. of this city. It will be a part of the street commissioner's job to keep the streets in good condition with the tractor this spring and summer. It was a good move and will save the town a lot of money and will keep the streets in better shape than has heretofor been the case. The streets are in a bad shape but the commissioner can get them into good shape with the aid of the tractor.

Elected Street Commissioner

Bids were opened Monday night for contracts to do the street work, water pumping and so forth for the coming year. Dick Bamman was the successful candidate for this office. We believe the town has secured the services of a good man for this office when the council appointed him. A man with quite a mechanical understanding is required to look after the pumping station and the running of the town tractor and Dick can fill the bill in this respect. He will also tend to the park and the sewer disposal plant. He will be a busy man. especially during the summer months.

There were three bids filed for the above office.

Committees Appointed

Mayor Gruetzmacher appointed the various committees and a chairman of each. In this way each councilman will have a certain line of work to look after and it is up to him to see that it is properly done.

The chairman of the various committees are as follows:

Streets & Alleys	Henry Suckow
Water System	Wm. Smith
Sewer System	Joe Johnson
Finance Committee	Val Josten
Ordinance & Park	A. D. Gimer

Each of the above chairmen also have two assistants each in looking after the work, so that each of the councilmen are represented on four committees.

Meeting Well Attended

People are waking up and taking more interest in the affairs of the town as the meeting Monday night was well attended by a large number of citizens. This is as it should be. If you want to know what the Town Council and Mayor are doing then attend the meetings of the Board and "get an earful." These are public meetings and as long as the spectators and listeners are quiet and do not disturb the council they are welcome to attend.

The regular meeting nights of the Council are the second and fourth Monday of each month and will be held at Frank Gruetzmacher's store. Special meetings are held whenever the Council thinks it necessary to transact business, but these are announced at the regular meetings.

The Council adjourned their meeting last Monday night to next Monday night, April 16th to take up unfinished business.

MESERVEY WANTS A NEW SCHOOL BUILDING SOON

Advice Of Taxpayers Sought By School Board In Questionaire Sent Out

They are having a great time over at Meservey and are going through the same problems that Klemme did a few months ago. The question that is bothering Meservey now is, "Shall Meservey have a new school building and thus again be placed in the class entitled to state aid of $750 a year, or shall the old building suffice a little longer?"

That is the topic of discussion in Meservey and vicinity since the board of directors sent out a questionaire to residents of the district. Members of the board believe the school situation there has reached an important crisis. Some of Meservey's high school students are attending the Clear Lake high school and they are paying a tuition for them. State aid has been discontinued.

The question to decide is whether the board shall pay $1,200 for repairing the old building or begin preparations for a new one.

"Do you favor repairing the old building? Do you favor voting bonds for a new building? Do you want a suitable building for a community gatherings? How many children do you have in school? Do you live in the country?"

These are the questions being asked from citizens in the community. In a letter of explanation the directors state that repairing the old building will ensue expenditures which will eventually be thrown away. They call attention to the fact that at present the tuition for the students attending the Clear Lake high school is $216 and hat it is likely to be much larger next year.

GOODELL NEWS ITEMS

Mardle Avery and Marvel Chase were over Sunday visitors at Belmond.

A. C. Carpenter, accompanied by his daughter, Thora, the Misses Ina Ahrenkeil and Maude Griggs and Mrs. E. Schneider, were Mason City shoppers last Friday.

J. T. Griggs was a Garner caller last Monday.

J. W. Griggs spent a few days at his cottage at Elm Bend last week.

Miss Dorthy McCormick, of Perry, Iowa, is visiting with her sister this week.

The Junior Senior Banquet Saturday night was held in the H. S. building. A very delightful time was had. The toasts were on different parts of an automobile.

A dancing party was held at the Bert Hood home Friday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Johnson and little daughter were Sunday callers at the Lloyd Carpenter home near Belmond.

O. Sandberg's are entertaining a relative from Dakota.

The next meeting of the Farm Bureau Ladies will be held April 20 at the home of Mrs. Eli Hetland.

Choir practice was held Thursday night at the home of Ina Ahrenkeil.

Miss Elvira Buss, of Klemme, was visiting at the home of her brother, Harry.

Harry Buss, of Klemme, has purchased the garage of Wm. Monoghan and took possession Saturday.

Mrs. Miller is visiting with her mother at Gladbrook.

Miss Hill spent Easter Sunday at her home in Clarion.

Mrs. Mike Kearney and niece. Miss Margaret, and Miss Schoenwetter, spent Easter Sunday in Mason City.

Wayne Wesenberg is the new clerk in Thada's store.

Lee Robins spent Sunday at the Chas. Halfpop home.

Esther Keplinger and Agnes Clark of Belmond were visiting friends in Goodell Wednesday.

Eddie Boller returned to Coe College Saturday night.

Gerald Chase spent Sunday at his home in the country.

Mardle Avery spent several days at the Mrs. Chase home.

The Farm Bureau people are planning on a social in the near future, to be held at the Avery Center School House.

SIX HERRIN MINER DEFENDANTS FREE

Acquitted by Jury of Slaying After Seven Hours' Deliberation.

HELD INNOCENT OF MASSACRE

Only One Ballot by Jury of Seven Farmers, One Student, One Union Painter, One Merchant, and Two Union Miners.

Marion, Ill., April 7.—For the second time this year a Williamson county jury walked into the courtroom and announced that the defendants in the Herrin massacre trial were not guilty of the murders charged against them.

Shortly before midnight Friday the jury, composed of seven farmers, one student, one union painter, one merchant, and two union miners, after six hours and fifty-five minutes of deliberation, sent for Circuit Judge D. T. Hartwell.

With their overcoats and wraps on, they filed slowly into the courtroom, prepared to go home after nearly two months, the trial opening on Feb. 12.

The verdicts were handed to the judge by John Caughlin, a peach orchardist of Creal Springs and foreman of the jury.

Judge Hartwell read first the verdict:

"We, the jury, find Hugh Willis not guilty."

Willis is a member of the Illinois miners' state executive committee and the most prominent of the defendants. It was alleged by the state that he was the brains behind the conspiracy that brought about the massacre.

Judge Hartwell then read the same verdicts for James Fontanetta, Oscar Howard, James Brown (colored miner), Otis Clark and Bert Grace.

This was the second trial for Grace and Clark, each having been acquitted at the first trial for the death of Howard Hoffman, one of the twenty-one nonunion miners and guards hacked and shot and beaten to death June 22 last. They with three others were acquitted on Jan. 19. The trial ending Friday was for the murder of Antonio Mulkavitch, war veteran, who went unharmed through three major offensives in the Argonne.

Although the jurors refused to discuss their deliberations, Caughlin said they cast six ballots, one for each of the defendants.

MAIL ROBBERS' LOOT IS BIG

St. Louis Holdup Men Get $2,364,100, Postal Inspectors Say—Mostly Non-Negotiable Bonds.

St. Louis, Mo., April 7.—Postal inspectors expressed the belief that when they completed checking up on the nine pouches of registered mail taken by five bandits in a daring holdup here Monday the total loot, which was announced as $2,364,100 Friday, would be increased considerably. The loss consists mostly of non-negotiable bonds, it was stated.

$2 BILL MAY BE DROPPED

General Revision of Paper Money Designs Almost Complete—Gamblers' Jinx to Go.

Washington, April 7.—Recommendations for a general revision of the designs of all paper money have been almost completed by a special committee of treasury officials and are expected soon to be turned over to Secretary Mellon. If the suggestions of the committee are adopted the $2 bill, shunned by the gambler and mutilated by the superstitious to rid it of any ill omen, will be the first to go.

FARMER TO PAY 7 PER CENT

Chairman Lobdell of Federal Board Announces 5½ Rediscount Rate for Land Banks.

Washington, April 7.—Charles E. Lobdell, chairman of the federal farm loan board, announced that the twelve new intermediate banks provided under the recent farm credits act, will establish a 5½ per cent rediscount rate, which will mean that farmers will pay 7 per cent interest.

ROADS TO ADD 100,000 CARS

Also Buy 4,200 New Locomotives to Care for Expanding Freight Traffic.

New York, April 6.—As a result of a nation-wide campaign the railroads of the country will enter the fall months of heavy traffic this year with an estimated 100,000 additional freight cars and 4,200 more serviceable locomotives than at present.

Indiana Road Program Announced.

Indianapolis, April 7.—John P. Williams, state highway director, announced that the Indiana highway commission fill build 958 miles of hard-surface roads, costing about $27,811,000, in the next three years.

22 Earthquakes in Two Days.

Ponta Delgada, April 7.—Twenty-two earthquake shocks have been felt in the Azores in the last two days. The tremors were the strongest in the western part of St. Michael's island, on which Ponta Delgada it situated.

COL. FRANCIS DRAKE

Col. Francis Drake, a prominent figure in the American colony of Paris, has just received the Distinguished Service Medal for his service during the war. Colonel Drake is the chairman of the Memorial Trust Fund for Overseas Dead being launched in the United States by the American Legion.

TO ROUND UP DODGERS

U. S. Treasury Starts Drive on Tax Delinquents.

Government Officials Expect to Swell Revenues From $200,000,000 to $300,000,000.

Washington, April 5.—A drive against tax dodgers has been started by the Federal government, it was announced at the bureau of internal revenue of the Treasury department here

Thousands of so-called warrants of distraint will be issued in cities throughout the country in an effort to force the payment of back taxes. These warrants call for the seizure and sale of the property of delinquent taxpayers and tax dodgers.

The first move in the drive has been made at Kansas City, where five hundred distraint warrants were issued. The warrants will be issued in other cities as rapidly as the clerical forces of the collectors' offices can prepare the papers. Orders for a concentrated movement against the tax delinquents have been issued to all federal tax collectors.

The internal revenue bureau is trying to collect a record-breaking amount of back taxes this year. It is hoped that in this manner the government revenues will be swelled from $200,000,000 to $300,000,000. The statute of limitations makes it impossible for the government to take legal action against tax dodgers of the year 1917, when war profits were large.

FOSTER JURY IS DISCHARGED

Thirty-eight Ballots Taken in "Red" Case at St. Joseph, Mich., Stood 6 to 6.

St. Joseph, Mich., April 6.—Hopelessly deadlocked after thirty-one and a quarter hours' deliberation, the jury trying William Z. Foster of Chicago for alleged violation of the Michigan law against criminal syndicalism was discharged by Judge Charles White. The jurors stood 6 to 6 from the start, taking 38 ballots without changing a vote.

Five men and one woman voted for Foster's acquittal and six men for his conviction.

FAMOUS HOTEL DESTROYED

Flames Destroy the Arlington at Hot Springs, Ark.—One Fireman Is Killed.

Hot Springs, Ark., April 6.—One fireman was killed and two other firemen were seriously hurt when the walls of the Arlington hotel, noted hostelry, which was destroyed by fire, crumbled and fell upon them as they were working in the ruins with a hose line. George Ford is the dead man. More than three hundred guests of the establishment escaped without injury.

The loss is estimated at upward of a million dollars.

PRIEST SHOT FROM BEHIND

Soviet Execution of Father Butchkavitch Shows Little Finesse—Shot Through Back of Head.

London, April 6.—Father Butchkavitch was executed last Saturday in a cellar beneath a building used by the Cheka, the sovier secret police, according to a Moscow dispatch. The police built a stand with the executioner behind the condemned priest, the executioner shooting him through the back of the head with a revolver.

Postal Business Booms.

Washington, April 7. — Postal receipts during March in fifty selected cities were 14.77 per cent higher than in March, 1922. Highest excesses were shown in Fort Worth, Tex., 48.62, and Akron, O., 30.48.

Adjutant General Shot.

Dublin, April 7.—Thomas Derrig, a member of the original Dail Eireann and said to be at present adjutant general of the irregulars, was shot while attempting to make his escape from custody.

340 PEASANTS SHOT BY REDS

Protest of Butchkavitch Execution Results in Massacre at Jitomir.

SOLDIERS FIRE ON CROWD

Ukrainians Gathered in Public Square Mowed Down by Soviet Troops—Intense Anti-Bolshevist Feeling From Baltic to Bosphorus.

Berlin, April 6.—Three hundred and forty Russian peasants were shot down by Red troops in the public square of Jitomir, during a demonstration against the execution of Monsignor Butchkavitch.

A crowd gathered in the square of the Ukrainian town to protest against the action of the Moscow council in its treatment of the ecclesiastics, when the communist troops appeared and shot into the throng.

American couriers arriving at Berlin from the Near East and bound for Warsaw report that there is the most intense anti-soviet feeling from the Baltic to the Bosphorus.

Rumania is aroused again over demands on Bessarabia made by Moscow, while Angora believes that the Turks are about to be made to pay for slighting the soviet advice in the Lausanne parley with the allies.

It is reported that hundreds of soviet agitators have been seized in Turkey, many of whom were never heard of again. Arrivals in Berlin from Warsaw believe that if Poland is attacked it will mean general warfare along the entire eastern front.

WARNS AGAINST BLOC RULE

President Harding Declares Development of Class a Peril to United States.

Augusta, Ga., April 7.—Declaring he did not believe there was "a vestige of the sectionalism of the Civil war left in the United States," President Harding, in an address delivered at a dinner given by the city of Augusta, deplored any development of classes and organization of blocs in the republic.

"There is a menace to the nation," the President said, "in the development of classes and in the organization of blocs. There is danger in envy and jealousy. Let us be on guard against development of envy and jealousy."

REVIEW OF FARM CONDITIONS

Outlook Is Bright for the Efficient Farmer, Says the Agricultural Department.

Washington, April 5.—The Agricultural department issued a review of the general agricultural situation in which it says that farmers who handle their resources well have a fairly bright outlook this year.

"Farmers who are well situated and who produce efficiently, at low cost per bushel or per pound, have at least a chance this year," said the review. "Farmers who are too low down the scale of efficiency will hardly find salvation in cheap credit, cheap transportation, co-operative marketing, tariffs, price fixing, nor all of these combined."

ARABS SLAY SCORES OF JEWS

Many in Yemen Accept Mohammedanism to Escape Death—Hundreds of Others Flee.

Jerusalem, April 5.—Scores of Jews are reported to have been killed in almost uninterrupted warfare by the Moslems at Yemen, southwestern Arabia, according to dispatches rereceived here. The reports add that many Jews, in order to escape death, have nominally accepted Mohammedanism and that many Jewish children have been seized and given the alternative of death or conversion.

The reports say that hundreds are in flight from town to town in an effort to escape their oppressors.

SIXTEEN INJURED IN WRECK

Chicago Great Western Train No. 3 Goes Into Ditch Near Marshalltown, Ia.

Marshalltown, Ia., April 6.—Chicago Great Western passenger train No. 3, Minneapolis to Kansas City, was wrecked three miles east of here. Sixteen persons were injured, including several women, but none seriously. Many delegates returning from a state convention of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Maccabees were on the train.

Dynamite Blast in Nashville.

Nashville, Tenn., April 7. — West Nashville was shaken by the explosion of a supply of dynamite, the amount of which is estimated at from 168 to 300 sticks. Several persons were hurt and dozens of homes damaged.

"Bear" Hug Breaks Two Ribs.

Boone, Ia., April 7.—A "bear" hug so tight that it is alleged to have fractured two of her ribs is the basis of a $5,000 damage suit filed here by Miss Opal Thompson against George Upton of Ogden, Ia.

J. M. DALZELL

"Private" J. M. Dalzell, eighty-five years old, of the United States Soldiers' home in Washington, is to receive a diploma from Washington and Jefferson college sixty-two years after he left his studies to enter the northern army in the Civil war. Private Dalzell is well known to the Grand Army of the Republic men all over the country. The college has voted to confer the degree of bachelor of arts on him and he will be present, if he is physically able, to receive the diploma at this year's commencement exercises.

U. S. MARKET REPORT

Weekly Marketgram by Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Washington.—For the week ending April 4—GRAIN—Chicago cash market: No. 2 red winter wheat, $1.31; No. 2 hard winter wheat, $1.22; No. 2 mixed corn, 76c; No. 2 yellow corn, 76c; No. 3 white oats, 45c. Average farm prices: No. 2 mixed corn in central Iowa, 63c: No. 2 hard winter wheat in central Kansas, $1.00.

HAY—No. 1 timothy, $23.00 Chicago, $23.00 St. Louis; No. 1 prairie, $19.00 St. Louis.

FEED—Bran, $27.75; middlings, $27.50; flour middlings, $29.25 Minneapolis; gluten feed, $40.65 Chicago; white hominy feed, $29.00 St. Louis, $29.50 Chicago; 34 per cent linseed meal, $43.00 Minneapolis.

LIVE STOCK—Chicago prices: Hogs, top, $8.55; bulk of sales, $8.00@8.50; medium and good beef steers, $8.45@8.90; butcher cows and heifers, $4.35@9.85; feeder steers, $6.35@8.50; light and medium weight veal calves, $7.00@9.75; fat lambs, $13.25@15.15; feeding lambs, $13.25@14.75; yearlings, $9.75@14.25; fat ewes, $6.75@9.25.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES—Eastern round white potatoes ranged generally $1.90@2.00 per 100 lbs. in leading cities, $1.50@1.60 at shipping points; northern stock, $1.35@1.55 in city markets, $1.00@1.25 in producing sections; western stock, $1.75@2.00 in midwestern markets. Baldwin and greening apples, $5.75@6.00 per bbl.; northwestern extra fancy winesaps, $2.50@2.75 in Chicago per box. Alabama, Louisiana and Texas flat Dutch cabbage, $5.00@6.00 per crate. Florida strawberries, various varieties, 40@60c per quart; Louisiana Klondike, $5.25@7.00 per 24-pint crate in city markets, $4.50@4.75 at auction in producing sections.

DAIRY PRODUCTS—Butter, 92 score, 50c Chicago. Cheese prices at Wisconsin markets; Daisies, 22¼c; double daisies, 22c; young Americas, 23½c; longhorns and square prints, 22¼c.

RUM SHIPS FACE NAVY RAID

Sixty Submarine Chasers Are Asked —President Harding May O. K. Move, It Is Said.

Washington, April 6. — President Harding soon may order the United States navy to drive the fleet of rum runners from the Atlantic coast, according to statements in official circles. It is said the plan to send out fifty or sixty submarine chasers under command of petty officers to break up the small rum runners carrying liquor ashore and drive off the big carrier vessels was proposed to the President before he went on his vacation.

GERMANS RUN "WILD" TRAINS

Tactics of Irish Republicans Are Adopted to Bottle Up Wesel Station.

Paris, April 5.—In order to bottle up the Wesel station, which is an important railroad center, Germans adopted the tactics of Irish republicans by sending nine engineer-less trains, one after another, from Friedrichsfeld, in unoccupied Germany, toward Wesel, according to a dispatch to the Paris Journal from Krefeld.

DEMOCRATS WIN IN CHICAGO

Judge William E. Dever Elected Mayor Over His Republican and Socialist Opponents.

Chicago, April 4.—Judge William E. Dever, Democrat, was elected mayor of Chicago over Arthur C. Lueder, Republican, and William A. Cunnea, Socialist, by a plurality of 103,748, the largest plurality ever given a Chicago mayoralty candidate except Mayor Thompson, who won by 147,477 in 1915.

Nearly 3,000,000 in Chicago.

Washington, April 6.—Chicago will have a population of 2,886,121 by July 1, it is estimated by the United States census bureau. This will be an increase of 52,833 in a year and 184,416 over the 1920 census.

All Whisky Goes to Peoria.

Peoria, Ill., April 6.—Equipped with searchlights, electric wiring, a watch tower and other defensive devices, the Corning distillery here is to be made the concentration point for all warehouse whisky in central Illinois.

LEGISLATIVE NEWS

The gasoline tax took its place in the sun as the bill over which the most heated and protracted debate of the session was waged when the house passed the Caldwell measure, considerably amended from the form in which it had previously passed the senate by a vote of 63 to 44. Because of the amendments the bill must go back to the senate for concurrence or rejection and in case both houses could not agree on amendments on the floor it would have to go to a conference committee of four senators and four representatives. The bill as passed by the house levies a tax of 2 cents per gallon on all gasoline sold in the state and is expected to yield a revenue of about $5,000,000 annually. All of this money except 1 per cent for administration expense would be expended on the secondary road system under the direction of the county boards of supervisors. It would be apportioned to the counties on the basis of taxable valuation instead of according to area, as provided in the senate bill. The senate bill also provided for equal division of the revenue between the primary and secondary roads and made no absolute repeal of existing levies. The bill in the form it passed the house provides for the straight repeal of the 2 mill county road building levy; makes optional the levy of 2 mills for dragging by townships and reduces the maximum levy of 6 mills which township boards of trustees may levy for road building to 2 mills. Another important change made in the bill in the house by the adoption of the Clark amendment permits counties having cities of more than 9,000 to have a portion of the money used on roads leading into the cities whether they are primary or secondary. A great number of amendments were proposed in the house, and few were adopted. The Diltz amendment sought to exempt all gasoline not directly used on the highways from the payment of the tax; but it was badly defeated. Representative Criswell of Boone, offered an amendment twice to turn the revenue into the state general fund and thereby reduce the levy for support of the state; but this was also turned down.

A bill introduced in both houses of the legislature soon after it convened proposed the establishment of three state normal schools, one to be constructed in each of the next three biennial periods. The cost of this work was deemed generally to be too high at the present when other needs are great and the measure the house passed was considered as a step in the direction without so great a cost. The educational institutions under the board of education asking for appropriations, proper, have not yet been acted on in the assembly. The $450,000 annually for five years appropriation to match the Rockefeller foundation and general education board gift of $2,250,000 toward the construction of a new medical college and state hospital at the state university has passed both houses of the legislature and the bill appropriating $21,000 a year for five years to match federal funds under the Sheppard-Towner maternity and child welfare act has also passed both houses. With the $4,500,000 fund created a new medical college, including a new university hospital will be erected on the west side of the river at Iowa City around the present Perkins hospital for crippled children. The old medical school buildings and the university hospital will be converted into class rooms, laboratories and a dormitory for students.

Tax measures have been in the forefront in the legislature considerably within the last few days. The first three bills of the five drawn by the joint legislative committee on tax reform are near action in the senate. On the adoption of the first one depends the next two and also the fate of the Patterson income tax measure proposed in the house and reported favorably by the ways and means committee. The first bill of the tax reform committee would create a state board of assessment and review and a system of tax collection by county assessors in place of the present town and township assessors. The patterson income tax bill provides for the administration of that tax by the state board of assessment and review. This bill, which is patterned after the Wisconsin state income tax law is expected to yield about $12,000,000 annually and to take the place eventually of the entire state levy. It imposes a graduated tax on both personal and corporation income with exemptions to those in the federal income tax law.

The house went on record as favoring the creation of a chair of normal training in as many private colleges of the state as the board of education may select, the chair to be maintained by a state appropriation of $50,000 annually.

Senator Thurston tried vainly to save his public officials inventory law, which he fathered in the thirty-ninth general assembly and which was wiped off the statute books when the senate passed the Bradley bill.

Student surveyors working for an engineers degree at Ames will not be permitted to work at surveying jobs on primary road projects, under the terms of a bill by Senator Bused which passed the senate laying down definite rules of procedure for approval of plans and execution of the work on such projects.

.. Hawkeye .. State News

Interesting Items Gathered From all Parts of Iowa

National Play week will be observed in Iowa the week of April 21st to 28th.

The Iowa State College will hold its second annual radio short course April 20-24.

Horace Boies, governor of Iowa from 1890 to 1894, died at his home at Long Beach, Cal. He was in his 97th year.

The consolidated school at Wheatfield, was totally destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at $30,000, partially covered by insurance.

A fleet of ten barges is being built in the Keokuk dry dock for the United States engineering department to be used in river work, at a cost of $40,000.

The members of the Lions club of Vinton have assigned to each member the care of one of the memorial trees planted for the sixteen soldiers who died in the world war.

Harry X. Miller, former garbage superintendent of Des Moines, pleaded guilty recently to grand charges of padding pay rolls and obtaining money under false pretenses.

By executive proclamation all flags on the Iowa capitol flew at half mast and the general assembly paid honors to the memory of former Governor Horace Boies at the hour his funeral services were held at Long Beach.

Big preparations are being made for the reception of the Iowa State Bankers' association at Ames June 12-14. Parley Sheldon heads the committee and on it are all the prominent people of the city.

Fire losses in Ames during 1922 aggregated the heaviest in any one year in the history of the city, according to Fire Chief Morris' annual report, filed with the city council. The total loss was $364,638.69.

The executive secretary of the Iowa Bonus board has announced that the $22,000,000 bonds voted by the people of Iowa for soldiers in the World war will probably be sufficient. The average to each soldier will be a little in excess of $200.

State Treasurer W. J. Burbank announced that he had information that no action would be taken to appeal from the decision of the Iowa supreme court to the United States supreme court in the test case of the state soldiers' compensation law.

The far-sighted apple grower will spray and care for his trees the same this year as he did last, according to R. S. Herrick, secretary of the State Horticultural society, who denies reports that 1923 is necessarily going to be a "poor apple year."

A full blooded Indian, the son of Chief Eagle Heart of the Indian reservation at Rapid City, S. D., tired of the life on the reservation, has enlisted in the United States navy at the Sioux City recruiting office. He is James Jackson, 25 years old.

The Iowa delegation led by Senator Cummins will make a big drive to have Secretary E. H. Cunningham of the Iowa Farm bureau appointed as the "dirt farmer" on the federal reserve board to fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of Campbell.

The Canning club champions of the United States, Beulah Rodgers and Catherine Bolibaugh, of Oskaloosa, accompanied by Club Leader Esther Bolibaugh and State Leader Miss Arnquist, will leave for their French tour on the steamship American June 2. They will teach Europe how to can things Iowa way.

Better business conditions in Iowa were proven by the internal revenue returns this month, Ora Williams, Revenue director, said. Returns on some lines of business were surprising, he said. Business men's accountings showed that they had made more money during 1922 than the general public realized.

The Friends' church at Earlham was filled to capacity and chairs had to be placed in the yard when hundreds of friends and relatives attended the triple funeral of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Hill and Mrs. Richard Hoskins, victims of the recent elevator accident at the Randolph Hotel at Des Moines. Five others injured in the accident are on the rapid road to recovery.

Ten years ago Buxton was the largest mining camp in Iowa and the largest town in the United States that was not incorporated with its 6,000 miners, but gradually operations have moved to the southwest fifteen miles until but a few houses remain of the once triving town. This winter has witnessed the wrecking and moving of most of the substantial structures to the scene of operations in Monroe county.

John Rustin, Des Moines mail carrier for 42 years has retired on a pension. He is 65 years old, and has traveled approximately 190,000 miles equal to seven times around the world.

Senator Buser of Muscatine won a fight which he has made one of the principal works of his legislative career when he put through the senate a bill to subject the state highway commission, the board of education, the board of control and the state fair board to an annual check of accounts by the state auditor.

SALE
INSURANCE
MERICA

Flora Wiles,
Bank, Klemme,
Savings Bank,
T. R. Burgess.
REBY GIVEN,
Special Execu-
e office of the Court, in Hancock County. on a judgement rendered March 21st, 1923, March Term of said Court, A. D. 1923, for the sum of Forty Nine Hundred Seventy Three & 98-100 DOLLARS debt, and One Hundred Fourteen & 59-100 costs, in favor of The Prudential Insurance Company of America, and against Roscoe W. Wiles, and Flora Wiles, and to the Sheriff of Hancock County directed, I have levied upon the following described property, to-wit: The West Half of the Northwest Quarter (W½NW¼), except a strip of land three rods wide off the North end thereof. and excepting one acre of land in the Northwest quarter of the Southwest quarter of the said Northwest Quarter, which is used as a School site, All in Section Twenty, Township Ninety-Four, North Range Twenty-Three, (Sec. 20-Twp.-94-Rge 23), West of the 5th P. M. containing in all 77 acres more or less, according to government survey.

NOW, THEREFORE, Public Notice is hereby given that I shall, on the 27th day of April, 1923, at 10 o'clock A. M.. at the front door of the Court House, in Garner, in Hancock County, offer and sell at public outcry, to the highest bidder for cash, all the right, title and interest that the above named Roscoe W. Wiles, and Flora Wiles, had on the 21st day of March A. D. 1923, or now have in and to the above described property, or so much thereof as is necessary to satisfy said execution, together with costs and all accruing costs, unless the same shall be sooner satisfied.

Dated at the Sheriff's office in Garner. this 28th day of March, A. D. 1923.

E. P. HANSON
Sheriff of Hancock County, Iowa.

SHERIFF'S SALE
FIRST TRUST AND SAVINGS BANK, TRUSTEE
vs.
John B. Spitler, Nora Spitler, George W. Kluckhohn, Louisa Kluckhohn, W. C. Tyrrell, Jr. Trustee, John M. Bergland, Sarah Bergland, Carl Caltvedt, F. Josephs, Mrs. F. Josephs. and State Savings Bank. Klemme, Ia.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That by a virtue of a Special Execution issued out of the office of the Clerk of the District Court, in Hancock County, on a judgement rendered December 12, 1922 and March 21st, 1923 Term of said Court, A. D. for the sum of Thirteen Thousand Three Hundred fifty six & 57-100 DOLLARS debt, and Three Hundred Seventy Nine & 46-100 Dollars costs, in favor of The First Trust and Savings Bank, Trustee, and against F. Josephs, and Mrs. F. Josephs. John B. Spitler, Nora Spitler, George W. Kluckhohn, W. C. Tyrrell, Jr. Trustee, John M. Bergland, Carl Caltvedt, and to the Sheriff of Hancock County directed, I have levied upon the following described property, to-wit: The Southeast Quarter. of Section Twenty-five (25), Township Ninety-Five (95), North Range Twenty-three (23). West of the 5th P. M. Hancock County, Iowa.

NOW, THEREFORE, Public Notice is hereby given that I shall, on the 23rd day of April 1923, at 10 o'clock A. M., at the front door of the Court House, in Garner, in Hancock County, offer and sell at public outcry, to the highest bidder for cash, all the right, title and interest that the above named Defendants had on the 23rd day of March A. D. 1923. or now have in and to the above described property, or so much thereof as is necessary to satisfy said execution, together with costs and all accruing costs, unless the same shall be sooner satisfied.

Dated at the Sheriff's office in Garner, this 23 day of March, 1923, A. D.

E. P. HANSON
Sheriff of Hancock County, Iowa.

SHERIFF'S SALE
ALMON G. DANFORTH, TRUSTEE
vs.
John B. Spitler, Nora Spitler, George W. Kluckhohn, John M. Bergland. W. C. Tyrrell, Jr Trustee, Louisa Kluckhohn, F. Josephs, Sarah Bergland and Carl Caltvedt, Mrs. F. Josephs, State Savings Bank, Klemme, Iowa.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That by virtue of a Special Execution issued out of the office of the Clerk of the District Court, in Hancock County, on a judgement rendered March 21st. 1923, Term of said Court, A. D., for the sum of Thirteen Thousand Six Hundred Nine & 88-100 DOLLARS debt, and Six Hundred Seventy two & 34-100 Dollars costs, in favor of Almon G. Danforth, Trustee, and against John B. Spitler, Nora Spitler, George W. Kluckhohn, John M. Bergland, Louisa Kluckhohn, and Carl Caltvedt, F. Josephs. Mrs. F. Josephs, W. C Tyrrell, Jr. Trustee, Sarah Bergland, & State Savings Bank. Klemme, Ia., and to the Sheriff of Hancock County, directed, I have levied upon the following described property, to-wit: The Southwest Quarter, of Section Twenty-Five (25), Township Ninety-Five (95), North Range Twenty-Three (23), West of the 5th P. M.. Hancock County, Iowa.

NOW, THEREFORE, Public Notice is hereby given that I shall, on the 23rd day of April 1923, at 10 o'clock A. M., at the front door of the Court House, in Garner, in Hancock County, offer and sell at public outcry, to the highest bidder for cash, all the right, title and interest that he above named Defendans had on the 23rd day of March A. D. 1923 or now have in and to the above described property, or so much thereof as is necessary to satisfy said execution. together with costs and all accruing costs, unless the same shall be sooner satisfied.

Dated at the Sheriff's office in Garner, this 23rd day of March, 1923 A. D.

E. P. HANSON
Sheriff of Hancock County, Iowa.

NOTICE FOR BUILDING SCHOOL HOUSE

Notice is hereby given that the proposals for the erection of a school house in the township of Ell, in the county of Hancock, will be received by the undersigned at his office in Ell Township, where plans and specifications may be seen, until 1 o'clock P. M., May 2. 1923, at which time the contract will be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder. The Board reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

Dated April 3, 1923.

PETER JOSTEN,
Secretary.
(A 5-12-19-26) -Klemme, Iowa.

Power By Wire

that 64% of Iowa's Industries' power requirehed by wire.
ese industries are receiving their power over the

WA FALLS ELECTRIC COMPANY demanding this service.
this, are the Lighting Necessities of many homes. urnish this Needed Service that we are offering to icularly our own Customers the y you invest is put into Generating Capacity, trans- and the varied equipment that must be installed beervice can be provided.

COMMON SHARES

doing your part in helping develop your own com- you letting other people finance your own comfort es?
money at Work at Home in this Necessary Business Assured Income.
ll you about it.

wa Falls Electric Co.
IOWA FALLS, IOWA

We Serve

IRST CLASS MEALS and LUNCHES

Home Made Pies
Ice Cream and Soft Drinks
FRESH BREAD EVERY DAY
Candy Cigars Tobacco

The Crystal Cafe

Conrad Quandt, Prop. Klemme, Ia.

"A Good Cafe in a Good Town"

e Phone 149 J. Residence Phone 149 L.

Dr. E. H. Phillips
Osteopathic Physician
GARNER, IOWA.

gnosis and Treatment of Diseases.
Surgical and Obstetrical cases cared for.
"Consult an Osteopath"

Send Us Your Name and address on a post card or in a letter and we will mail free and postpaid, a sample copy of the most wonderful magazine published. 160 pages and 400 pictures every month, that will entertain every member of the family.

Popular Mechanics MAGAZINE

It contains interesting and instructive articles on the Home, Farm, Shop and Office —the newest developments in Radio, Aviation, Automobile and Garage. Each issue contains something to interest everybody.

We do not employ subscription solicitors so you will not be urged to subscribe and you are not obligating yourself in the least in asking for a free sample copy. We gladly send it to prospective readers. If you like it you can buy a copy every month from any newsdealer or send us your subscription—$3.00 for one year.

Popular Mechanics Company
200-214 E. Ontario Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

Popular Mechanics building is devoted exclusively to the production of this great magazine.

o o o o o o o o o o o o o
o DENTIST o
o J. L. Hesselhuus, D. D. S. o
o Office Hours 8-12 1-5:30 o
o Office Opposite State Savings o
o Bank; In Schaffer Bldg. o
o Evening Work By Appointment o
o Only o
o Klemme, Ia. Phone 81 o
o o o o o o o o o o o o o

To know how good a cigarette really can be made you must try a—

YOUR BUILDING PLANS ARE IMPORTANT TO US — BRING THEM IN.

Spring Building--

Spring Building Operations are now in order, and we have prepared ourselves in the shape of large stocks on hand to take care of the demand for Building Materials which we feel sure will be created by the signs of nice Spring Weather.

Our advise is to buy now, as lumber and building material prices will never be any cheaper—if anything they will advance as the demand increases as this is going to be a big building year.

We can help you plan any building you are planning on building this year. Come in and look over our Plan Service—you will be pleased with the many plans for Houses, Barns, Hog Houses, Poultry Houses, Garages and other Buildings.

Northern Lumber Co.

v Features of the Rock Island Disc

The new 1914 Rock Island Defiance Jr. Disc Harrow has a number of dded features. In addition to being a light-running harrow, simple and easy to ndle, and fitted with the famous Rock Island Oscillating Scrapers and rd maple bearings that have always proven best; this great disc now has ouble levers and is equipped with a steel stub pole and double-leaf seat spring—eatures that every farmer has long wanted and will appreciate.

Rock Island Defiance Jr.

Defiance Jr. Disc Harrows all have double vers; Colter steel blades, which cut better, tain sharp cutting edges and last longer. ote the new combined fore-carriage and ngue truck which fits any standard disc. ay be used either with or without tongue. xle pivoted in center, allowing either wheel o pass over an obstruction ithout strain. Adapted o 2, 3 or 4 horses, with or ithout pole.

The new steel stub pole annot split or break, but dds strength to the harrow.

making it even more durable than it was before. Neat in appearance, light in weight.

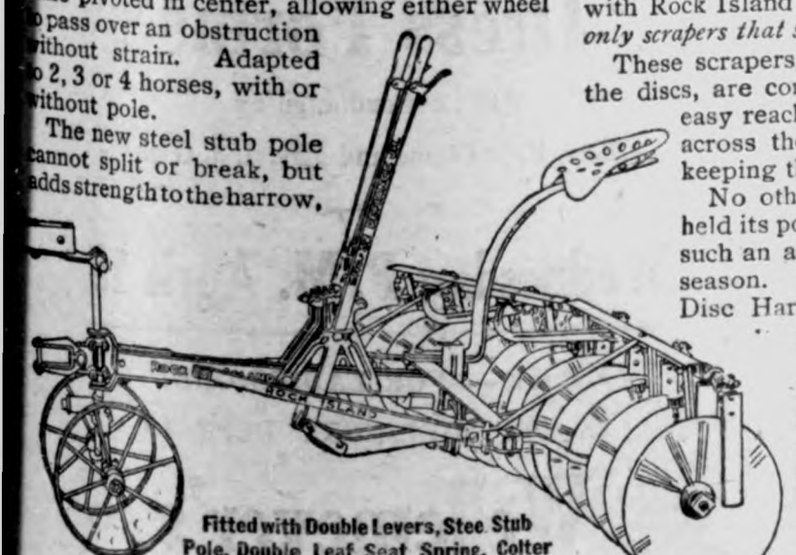
The old spring seat has been replaced by one of spring steel, double-leaf type, giving more comfort to the operator.

Defiance Jr. Disc Harrows are all fitted with Rock Island Oscillating Scrapers—"the only scrapers that scrape."

These scrapers, resting near the center of the discs, are controlled by a foot lever in easy reach of operator. They sweep across the entire face of the discs, keeping them always clear and free.

No other one implement has ever held its popularity so long and shown such an actual increase in sales every season. There are more Rock Island Disc Harrows made and sold every year than any other make.

Don't take our word for it. Come in and see the many exclusive features of the Rock Island Defiance Jr. for yourself. Let us show you where this harrow is better. Now is the time to investigate.



Fitted with Double Levers, Stee Stub Pole, Double Leaf Seat Spring, Colter Steel Blades, and Oscillating Scrapers

Henry Lau Sons

Brighten Up For Spring

Clean-Up and Paint-Up!

Chase Out Dirt and Gloom!

Winter is gone and now is the time to brighten up from the dust, dirt and gloom left by Old Man Winter.

This Store is the Official Headquarters of General Dirt Chaser. Here is a bunch of Guaranteed Dirt and Gloom Chasers which will brighten up your home—

Watch Our Windows

OLD DUTCH CLEANSER (Chases Dirt)
BON AMI (Either in powder or cake form)
SOAP, we have all kinds for all kinds of work
WASHING POWDERS, rough on gloom
LEWIS LYE, you know what it will do
SILVER CREAM, puts shine on silverware
SANIFLUSH, Cleans sinks, bathtubs, etc.
CHEESE CLOTH, makes good dust cloth
DYES, Brighten up the old colors with it.
BROOMS, our brooms are the lastink kind
DUST PANS, its handy to have a couple
DUSTLESS MOPS, we handle the best ones
FURNITURE POLISH, OIL, etc, it's great
JOHNSON'S WAX, you know this is best
MOPS, BUCKETS, any kind you need
BRUSHES, for scrubbing, cleaning, etc.
HOSE, SPRAYS, makes cleaning easier
DISINFECTANTS, Kills the germs quick.

Watch our windows!

PAINT UP——Brighten up those rooms with Sherman-Williams Flat Wall Paints, Varnish, Stains, etc. We have a full line of Paints, Brushes, etc. "Save the Surface, and you save all."—PAINT AND VARNISH.

G. W. Kluckhohn & Sons

ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned have formed, under the provisions of chap. 122 laws of the Thirty Ninth General Assembly of Iowa, a corporation named the Klemme Cooperative Live Stock Shippers, principle place of business at Klemme, Iowa. The objects of this corporation shall be to buy, sell, handle, market and ship the live stock and other farm products cooperatively for its membership, which is open to all livestock producers, by payment of $1.00 membership fee. Each member is entitled to one vote in all meetings. The corporate period began March 1923, and ends March 1948. The first annual meeting shall be held January 8th, 1924. and each year thereafter on the first Friday following the second Thursday in January. Liabilities of the members for the debts of the Association shall be limited to the membership fee paid. The association shall have power to borrow up to and not over $1,000.00 on a majority vote of all directors.

Management shall consist of five directors, three of which shall serve until the annual meeting in 1925 and two until the annual election in 1924. Succeeding directors shall be elected for two years. The directors shall at their first meeting elect from their own number a president, a vice president and a secretary-treasurer. The two year directors are E. J. Arnold, Herman Priebe, and John G. Tanner. The one year directors are Wm. J. Schlawin and John Miller. The president is Wm. J. Schlawin, the vice president is Herman Priebe and the secretary-treasurer is E. J. Arnold.

Signed this 7th day of February, 1923 by Wm. J. Schlawin, John G. Tanner, J. F. Miller, Herman Priebe and E. J. Arnold.

(Mar 22-29 Apr-5-12.)

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Notice is hereby given that proposals for the erection of an addition to the school house in the Independent District of Klemme, Hancock County, Iowa, and for the plumbing and heating therein, will be received by the undersigned in Klemme, Iowa, until One O'clock P. M., April 27th, 1923, bids will be opened at 8:00 O'clock P. M. on the same date, at which time contract will be let to the lowest responsible bidder. Plans and specifications may be seen at the First National Bank. The Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Dated at Klemme, Iowa, March 27, 1923.

LEW LEWIS,
Secretary Independent District of Klemme.

(Pub. Mrch 29, April 5-12-19.)

MICHIGAN BEET GROWERS APPROEE 50-50 CONTRACT

AT A RECENT STATE MEETING

State Association Praises Manufacturer And Contract Plan

"The time for fighting the manufacturer is past; the task now before us is to get behind the factories that have offered to share profits with us on a fifty-fifty basis and to show our appreciation by promising them a large acreage of beets."

This, in brief, was the consensus of opinion of about 50 sugar beet growers from all parts of the lower peninsula at their annual meeting at the Armory Wednesday afternoon.

Prospects for a good market for sugar next year and the enthusiam of growers for this year's contracts indicate a revival of interest in the growing of beets in Michigan this year.

Practically every sugar beet growing section of the state was represented by the speakers who endorsed the fifty-fifty plan, among them A. B. Cook. state Grange master, C. E. Ackerman, manager of the State Sugar Beets Growers' Association, T C. Price, president of the State Association, Hale Tennet. marketing specialist from the Michigan Agricultural College, P.P. Pope, of Mt. Pleasant, D. S . Harriot, of St. John's and Davenport Terry, Saginaw County.

The attidude of the Michigan sugar beet grower toward the fifty-ffity proposition and his outlook on the situation in general was expressed by A. B. Cook as follows: "I have always felt that an adjustment could be made by which satisfactory returns could be secured for both the sugar beet grower and the factory We would like to see the sugar beet industry continue in Michigan. It is nice to think of our state as self-supporting in supplying sugar for home use. Growing of beets tends to diversify crops. But in justice to ourselves and our families, we cannot grow beets without a profit. I believe the fifty-fifty proposition is the solution and that it will revive the interest of the Michigan farmer in the growing of sugar beets.

"The need for this organization still exists," said C. C. Ackerman, "There are many things yet to be done. We have arrived at the point where we have to go to work with the factories now. Some of the manufacturers have offered us all that we have ever asked. There is no chance for argument. Our beetstrike has reached the top for which we ask—the fifty fifty contract. This contract is a business proposition and we can't expect a guarantee on top of it. We expect to share profits we must expect to assume the risks. There is no reason why the farmer should hesitate to grow beets this year because of contracts. Any kind of contract I have seen this year is better than the best ones offered in this state last year.

"The fifty-fifty contract is fair and it is what we asked for, so it's up to us to support the manufacturers who offer it," said D. S. Hariott "We had been fighting for an equitable proposition. Now we have it. Let's get busy and line up a good acreage."

The 50-50 contract being offered to beet growers by the Belmond factory is a much superior contract to the one which has received the unqualified endorsement of the Michigan sugar beet growers. The Michigan 50-50 contract provides that the grower shall secure the labor and grower shall secure the labor and when the factory shall secure the lab or it is changed to 45-55.Another great advantage in the Iowa contracts is the $6.50 minimum guarantee.This gaurantee alone makes the grower certain of a better profit from his beets than any other crop. With the present high taxes and interest charges on Iowa land, the growing of beets is the only crop a farmer can raise where he is guaranteed a minimum price for his crop that will assure him of a certain return.

With a production of 10 tons per acre the grower is guaranteed $65 per acre less approximately $27 for hand labor, seed and fertilizer, leaving a net return of $38 per acre. with the possibility of a much higher return from present indication of the sugar market. 50 bushels of corn per acre at 50 cents per bushel brings $25 or $13 less than the minimum on beets. 35 bushels of oats per acre at 30 cents per bushel brings $10.50 per acre or $27.50 less than the minimum on beets. The Michigan grower rests securely on the approval by the state growers organization of the contracts offered as noted above. The Iowa grower has just as satisfactory assurance in the fact that farmers organizations here such as the Farm Bureau are working closely with the Belmond factory in safeguarding the interests of the beet grower.

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT OF ADMINISTRATOR

Notice is Hereby Given. That the undersigned has been duly appointed and qualified as Executor of the Estate of FRED R. CHASE late of Hancock County, State of Iowa, deceased. All pe... estate are req... mdiate payment... claims against t... them, duly auth... dersigned, for a...

Dated April 4, ...

ELVA ...

By Ramsay ...

(A-5-12-19)

GEORGE ZINN, M. D.

Physician and Surgeon

Office opposite from Hotel Klemme

Phone No. 19

Eyes Examined Glasses Fitted

Next Time Try

Sausage

You will like our sausage, it's made of quality meats properly prepared and seasoned. Buy it in

Link
Pork
Liver
Summer
Bologna

It's Good!

Ask For

"HEINZ 57"

We Have Them

J. P. Larsen & Sons

The Klemme Meat Market

Caps

We have a fine assortment of Men's and Young Men's Caps in attractive materials and shapes.

Prices $1.50to2.75

Shirts and Underwear

Men, the shirts for spring and summer are splendid and the showing I have to offer is very complete. You can purchase them collar attached; also with collar to match and negligee. Many of you are changing underwear for different weights--see what I have before buying.

Neckwear

All the new things and at prices to suit you.

The Men's Fashion Shop

A. W. JOHNSON
GARNER IOWA

Watch Your S... Young Man

When You are Out for ... First Long Pant Suit

If you want a suit of clothes this Sp... that has poise instead of noise——one ... has style instead of stunts——and lines ... stead of lunacy——you can't go in any ... shop to find it or you are bound for a ... By stepping into Patton Bros. you c... stumble over a freak style or a poor ... ue.

Norfolks and Sport Models. Ma... with two Pairs Trousers at $22.... Up.

Patton Bros.

Where a dollar does its duty
MASON CITY and Manly, Io...

——Somethhing New In——

Sanitary Wall Fini...

We have 500 pounds of this new "Gilt Edge" SANITARY WALL FINISH. It takes the place of Paint, and goes farther than Alabastine and is used in a similar way. It can be mixed with Hot, Warm, or Cold Water. It Comes in 16 Colors. Makes a beautiful wall at a LOW COST.

Flat Wall Paint

We have a full line of FLAT WALL PAINT in all of the popular colors. Also a big line of other Paints, Varnishes, Etc.

FULL LINE OF PAINTER'S SUPPLIES HERE—

Jacobs & Son

Standard Ford simplicity of design throughout; no unnecessary weight; all moving parts enclosed. Automobile type drive insurs easy handling. Fordson turns in a 21-foot circle. Three forward speeds.

Lowest initial cost and minimum operating cost.

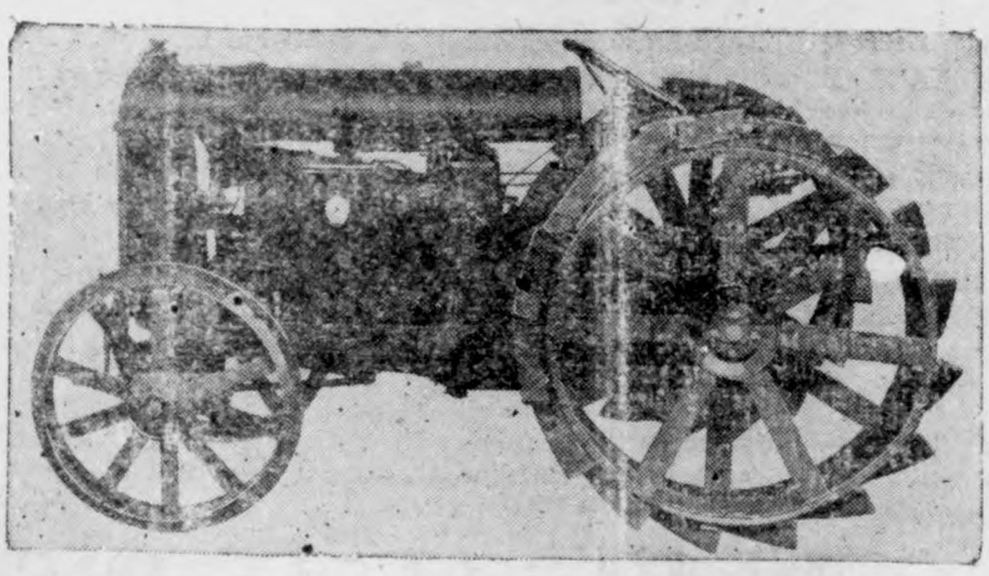
Burns kerosene. Will pull two plows.

Special Ford air washer, through which air supply is drawn, removes all dust, thus reducing wear on vital working parts.

More than 100 farm and commercial uses.

Backed by Ford Service Organization of over 18,000 dealers. which assures continuous operation of the Fordsn. No costly delays awaiting parts.

Come in and let us tell you more about the Fordson. Order now for early delivery.



Greimann Motor Company

Aaron Griemann, Manager. Ford, Fordson, Lincoln

A Demonstration

On The Making Of

Dress Forms

Will Be Conducted by

Mrs. F. R. Chase and Mrs. J. J. Cook

—On—

Wednesday P. M. April 18

FREE——FOR LADIES ONLY
IN THE MILLINERY DEPT AT

Wellemeyer's

COME—See This Work Done On Living Models and Learn How.

ESERT GOLD

by

ZANE GREY

thor of Riders of the Purple Sage, ildfire, Etc.

t by Harper & Brothers.

TER XIII.—Continued.

—14—

on the bridle and told him He held on and rolled his He seemed sure of con- thing was certain, he the least bit about horses. the way he got in front thanked my stars I wasn't co Diable. Well, Dad, I'm amed now, but I was mad. ashed him across the face with my rt. Jose jumped and knocked Mr. the sand. I didn't get the se under control till I was out of ht of those surveyors, and then I him run home."

Neil, I guess you punished the fel- enough. Maybe he's only a con- ted sort. But I don't like that sort thing. It isn't western."

I'm sorry now, Dad. Perhaps the hurt. But what could I forget all about it, and I'll where I ride in the future. Dad, what does it mean, this around Forlorn River?"

know, Nell," replied Beld- htfully. "It worries me. It for Forlorn River, but bad plan to irrigate the valley. hate to have some one fore- on that!"

"No, no, we won't let anybody have ick's rights," declared Nell.

"Where have I been keeping myself t to know about these surveyors?" Belding. "They must have ."

discovered that he was, in- last man of consequence in River to learn of the arrival Chase and son, mine owners erators in Sonora. They, with force of miners, had been besieged and finally driven off their This property was not de- but held for ransom. And the pending developments, had outfits and struck for the bor- Casita had been their objective but, for some reason which did not learn, they had ar- stead at Forlorn River. It en Ben Chase just one day to possibilities of Altar valley, d in three days he had men at work. Belding returned home without go- to see the Chases and their oper- ions. He wanted to think over the tuation. Next morning he went out the valley to see for himself. Mex- ans were hastily erecting adobe uses upon Ladd's one hundred and y acres, upon Dick Gale's, upon n Lash's and Thorne's. There were en staking the valley floor and the ver bed. That was sufficient for lding. He turned back toward wn and headed for the camp of se intruders.

He came to a big tent with a huge nvas fly stretched in front, under ich sat several men in their shirt eves. They were talking and smok- g.

"My name's Belding. I want to see is Mr. Chase," said Belding, gruffly. Slow-witted as Belding was, and ab- rbed in his own feelings, he yet saw

r. Chase, the West Would Fare Better and Last Longer If Men Like You Were Driven Out."

only that his advent was disturbing these men. One of them, a tall, ged man with sharp face and ewd eyes and white hair, got up offered his hand.

"I'm Chase, senior," he said. "My Radford Chase is here somewhere. 're Belding, the line inspector, I e it? I meant to call on you."

He seemed a rough-and-ready, loud- ken man, withal cordial enough.

"Yes, I'm the inspector," replied lding, ignoring the proffered hand, d I'd like to know what in the l you mean by taking up land ims—staked ground that belongs my rangers?"

"Land claims?" slowly echoed ase, studying his man. "We're tak- up only unclaimed land."

"That's a lie. You couldn't miss the akes."

"Well, Mr. Belding, as to that, I nk my men did run across some ked ground. But we recognize only squatters. If your rangers think they've got property just because they drove a few stakes in the ground they're much mistaken. A squatter has to build a house and live on his land so long, according to law, before he owns it."

This argument was unanswerable, and Belding knew it.

"According to law!" exclaimed Belding. "Then you own up; you've jumped our claims."

"Mr. Belding, I'm a plain business man. I come along. I see a good opening. Nobody seems to have tenable grants. I stake out claims, locate squatters, start to build. It seems to me your rangers have overlooked certain precautions. That's unfortunate for them. I'm prepared to hold my claim and to back all the squatters who work for me. If you don't like it you can carry the matter to Tucson. The law will uphold me."

"The law? Say, on this southwest border we haven't any law except a man's word and a gun."

"Then you'll find United States law has come along with Ben Chase," replied the other, snapping his fingers.

"You're not a westerner?" queried Belding.

"No, I'm from Illinois."

"I thought the West hadn't bred you. I know your kind. You'd last a long time on the Texas border; now, wouldn't you? You're one of the land and water hogs that has come to root in the West. Mr. Chase, the West would fare better and last longer if men like you were driven out."

"You can't drive me out."

"I'm not so sure of that. Wait till my rangers come back."

CHAPTER XIV

A Lost Son.

Time passed. The population of Forlorn River grew apace. Belding, who had once been the head of the community, found himself a person of little consequence. Even had he desired it he would not have [illegible] any voice in the selection of [illegible]aster, sheriff, and a few other officials. The Chases divided their labors between Forlorn River and their Mexican gold mine, which had been restored to them. The desert trips between these two places were taken in automobiles. A month's time made the motor cars almost as familiar a sight in Forlorn River as they had been in Casita before the revolution.

Belding's wrath at the usurping Chases increased as he slowly realized his powerlessness to cope with such men. They were promoters, men of big interests and wide influence in the Southwest. The more they did for Forlorn River the less reason there seemed to be for his own grievance. He had to admit that [illegible] personal; that he and Gale [illegible] rangers would never have been able to develop the resources of the valley as these men were doing it.

April arrived with no news of the rangers. From Casita came vague reports of raiders in the Sonoyta country—reports impossible to verify until his Mexican rangers returned. When these men rode in, one of them, Gonzales, an intelligent and reliable half-breed, said he had met prospectors at the oasis. They had just come in on the Camino del Diablo, reported a terrible trip of heat and drought, and not a trace of the Yaqui's party.

"That settles it," declared Belding. "Yaqui never went to Sonoyta. He's circled round to the Devil's road, and the rangers, Mercedes, Thorne, the horses—they—I'm afraid they have been lost in the desert. It's an old story on Camino del Diablo."

He had to tell Nell that, and it was an ordeal which left him weak.

Mrs. Belding listened to him, and was silent for a long time while she held the stricken Nell to her breast. Then she opposed his convictions with that quiet strength so characteristic of her arguments.

"But mother, they're gone seven weeks. Seven weeks! At the most I gave them six weeks. Seven weeks in the desert!"

"How do the Yaquis live?" she asked.

Belding could not reply to that, but hope revived in him. He had faith in his wife, though he could not in the least understand what he imagined was something mystic in her.

"Years ago when I was searching for my father I learned many things about this country," said Mrs. Belding. "You can never tell how long a man may live in the desert. The fiercest, most terrible and inaccessible places often have their hidden oasis. In his later years my father became a prospector. That was strange to me, for he never cared for gold or money. I learned that he was often gone in the desert for weeks, once for months. Then the time came when he never came back. That was years before I reached the southwest border and heard of him. Even then I did not for long give up hope of his coming back. I know now—something tells me—indeed, it seems his spirit tells me—he was lost. But I don't have that feeling for Yaqui and his party. Yaqui has given Rojas the slip or has ambushed him in some trap. Probably that took time and a long journey into Sonora. The Indian is too wise to start back now over dry trails. He'll curb the rangers; he'll wait. I seem to know this, dear Nell, so be brave, patient. Dick Gale will come back to you."

That talk with the strong mother worked a change in Nell and in Belding. Nell, who had done little but brood and watch the west and take violent rides, seemed to settle into a waiting patience that was sad, yet serene. Belding, who had been breaking under the strain of worry, recovered himself so that to outward appearance he was his old self. He alone knew, however, that his humor was forced, and that the slow burning wrath he felt for the Chases was flaming into hate.

Belding argued with himself that if Ben Chase and his son, Radford, had turned out to be big men in other ways than in the power to carry on great enterprises he might have become reconciled to them. But the father was greedy, grasping, hard, cold; the son added to those traits an overbearing disposition to rule, and he showed a fondness for drink and cards. These men were developing the valley, to be sure, and a horde of poor Mexicans and many Americans were benefiting from that development; nevertheless, these Chases were operating in a way which proved they cared only for themselves.

Belding went to Casita with a number of his white thoroughbreds and shipped them to ranchers and horse-breeders in Texas. Then, being near the railroad, and having time, he went up to Tucson. There he learned some interesting particulars about the Chases. They had an office in the city; influential friends in the capitol. They were powerful men in the rapidly growing finance of the West. They had interested the Southern Pacific railroad, and in the near future a branch line was to be constructed from San Felipe to Forlorn River. These details of the Chase development were insignificant when compared to a matter striking close home to Belding. His responsibility had been subtly attacked. A doubt had been cast upon his capability of executing the duties of immigration inspector to the best advantage of the state. Belding divined that this was only an entering wedge. The Chases were bent upon driving him out of Forlorn River; but, perhaps to serve better their own ends, they were proceeding at leisure. Belding returned home consumed by rage. But he controlled it. For the first time in his life he was afraid of himself. He had his wife and Nell to think of; and the old law of the West had gone forever.

"Never Mind, Dear. I'm an Old Bear."

"Dad, there's another Rojas round these diggings," was Nell's remark, after the greetings were over and the usual questions and answers passed.

Belding's exclamation was cut short by Nell's laugh. She was serious with a kind of amused contempt.

"Mr. Radford Chase!"

"Now Nell, what the—" roared Belding.

"Hush, Dad! Don't swear," interrupted Nell. "I only meant to tease you."

"Nell, you may as well tell him and have it over," said Mrs. Belding, quietly.

"Well, if you weren't such a good old blind dad you'd have seen long ago the way Mr. Radford Chase ran round after me. At first it was only annoying, and I did not want to add to your worries. But these two weeks you've been gone I've been more than annoyed. After that time I struck Mr. Chase with my quirt he made all possible efforts to meet me. He did meet me wherever I went. He sent me letters till I got tired of sending them back. He followed me until it was less embarrassing for me to let him walk with me and talk his head off. He made love to me. He begged me to marry him. I told him I was already in love and engaged to be married. He said that didn't make any difference. Then I called him a fool.

"Next time he saw me he said he must explain. He meant I was being true to a man who, everybody on the border knew, had been lost in the desert. That—that hurt. Maybe—maybe it's true. Sometimes it seems terribly true. Since then, of course, I have stayed in the house to avoid being hurt again. I feel like a poor little rabbit holed by a hound. And I daren't peep out."

Somehow the thing struck Belding as funny, and he laughed. He had not had a laugh for so long that it made him feel good. He stopped only at sight of Nell's surprise and pain. Then he put his arms around her.

"Never mind, dear. I'm an old bear. Nell, it's only the old story. The fellows fall in love with you. It's your good looks, Nell. What a price women like you and Mercedes have to pay for beauty; I'd a d— good deal rather be ugly as a mud fence. . . . Well, the first time I catch this locoed Romeo sneaking round here I'll—I'll—"

"Dad, you promised."

"Confound it, Nell, I promised not to pack a gun. That's all. I'll only shoo this fellow off the place, gently, mind you, gently. I'll leave the rest for Dick Gale!"

April grew apace, and soon gave way to May. One morning Belding was called from some garden work by the whirring of an automobile and a "Holloa!" He saw an elderly, sallow-faced, rather frail-appearing man who was an entire stranger to him; a handsome dark-eyed woman whose hair showed white through her veil; and a superbly built girl, whose face made Belding at once think of Dick Gale.

"Is this Mr. Tom Belding, inspector of immigration?" inquired the gentleman, courteously.

"I'm Belding, and I know who you are," replied Belding in hearty amaze, as he stretched for his big hand. "You're Dick Gale's dad—the governor, Dick used to say. I'm sure glad to meet you."

"Thank you. Yes, I'm Dick's governor, and here, Mr. Belding—Dick's mother and his sister Elsie."

Beaming his pleasure, Belding shook hands with the ladies, who showed their agitation clearly.

"Mr. Belding, I've come west to look up my lost son," said Mr. Gale. "His sister's letters were unanswered. We haven't heard from him in months. Is he still here with you?"

"Well, now, sure I'm awful sorry," began Belding, his slow mind at work. "Dick's away just now—been away for a considerable spell. I'm expecting him back any day. . . . Won't you come in? You're all dusty and hot and tired. Come in, and let mother and Nell make you comfortable. Of course you'll stay. We've a big house. You must stay till Dick comes back. Maybe that'll be— Aw, I guess it won't be long. . . . Let me handle the baggage, Mr. Gale. . . . Come in. I sure am glad to meet you all."

Eager, excited, delighted, Belding went on talking as he ushered the Gales into the sitting-room, presenting them in his hearty way to the astounded Mrs. Belding and Nell. For the space of a few moments his wife and daughter were bewildered. When the Gales had been shown to rooms, Mrs. Belding gained the poise momentarily lost; but Nell came rushing back, wilder than a deer, in a state of excitement strange even for her.

"Oh! Dick's mother, his sister!" whispered Nell. "Oh, I knew it! I always guessed it! Dick's people are proud, rich; they're somebody. I thought I'd faint when she looked at me. She was just curious—curious, but so cold and proud. She was wondering about me. Dick has never written her that he's—he's engaged to me. I'm wearing h's ring. It was his mother's, he said. I won't—I can't take it off. And I'm scared. . . . But the sister—oh, she's lovely and sweet—proud, too. I felt warm all over when she looked at me. I—I wanted to kiss her. She looks like Dick when he first came to us. But he's changed. They'll hardly recognize him. . . . To think they've come! And I had to be looking a fright, when of all times on earth I'd want to look my best."

Nell, out of breath, ran away evidently to make herself presentable, according to her idea of the exigency of the case. Belding caught a glimpse of his wife's face as she went out, and it wore a sad, strange, anxious expression.

Presently the Gales came back into the sitting-room, looking very different without the long gray cloaks and veils. Belding saw distinction and elegance. Mr. Gale seemed a grave, troubled, kindly person, ill in body and mind. Belding received the same impression of power that Ben Chase had given him, only here it was minus any hardness or hard quality. He gathered that Mr. Gale was a man of authority. Mrs. Gale rather frightened Belding, but he could not have told why. The girl was just like Dick as he used to be.

Belding imagined the sooner the Gales were told that Dick was to marry Nell the better for all concerned, and especially for Nell. In the general conversation that ensued he sought for an opening in which to tell this important news, but he was kept so busy answering questions about his position on the border, the kind of place Forlorn River was, the reason for so many tents, etc., that he was unable to find opportunity.

"It's interesting, very interesting," said Mr. Gale. "At another time I want to learn all you'll tell me about the West. It's new to me. I'm surprised, amazed, sir, I may say. . . . But, Mr. Belding, what I want to know most is about my son. I'm broken in health. I've worried myself ill over him. I don't mind telling you, sir, that we quarreled. He went away. And I've come to see I didn't know Richard. I was wrong to upbraid him. For a year we've known nothing of his doings, and now for almost six months we've not heard from him at all. Frankly, Mr. Belding, I weakened first, and I've come to hunt him up. My fear is that I didn't start soon enough."

Mr. Gale paused, and the white hand he raised expressively shook a little.

Belding was not so thick-witted where men were concerned. He saw how the matter lay between Dick Gale and his father.

"Well, Mr. Gale, sure most young bucks from the East go to the bad out here," he said bluntly. "They blow their money, then go to punching cows, take to whisky."

Mr. Gale lifted haggard eyes.

"Then it's bumming around, regular tramps, and to the bad generally." Belding spread wide his big arms, and when one of them dropped round Nell, who sat beside him, she squeezed his hand tight. "Sure, it's the regular thing," he concluded, cheerfully.

He rather felt a little glee at Mr. Gale's distress, and Mrs. Gale's crushed I-told-you-so woe in no wise bothered him; but the look in the big, dark eyes of Dick's sister was too much for Belding.

He choked off his characteristic oath when excited and blurted out, "Say, but Dick Gale never went to the bad! . . . Listen!"

Belding had scarcely started Dick Gale's story when he perceived that never in his life had he such an absorbed and breathless audience. Presently they were awed, and at the conclusion of that story they sat white-faced, still, amazed beyond speech. Belding kept back nothing but the present doubt of Dick's safety.

Mr. Gale rose unsteadily from his chair. His frailty was now painfully manifest.

"Mr. Belding, do you mean my son—Richard Gale—has done all that you told us?" he asked, incredulously.

"I sure do," replied Belding, with hearty good will.

"Martha, do you hear?" Mr. Gale turned to question his wife. She could not answer. Her face had not yet regained its natural color.

"He faced that bandit and his gang alone—he fought them?" demanded Mr. Gale, his voice stronger.

Belding nodded with a grin.

"He's a ranger now—riding, fighting, sleeping on the sand, preparing his own food? Mr. Belding, you say Richard works for you. May I ask, at what salary?"

"He gets forty dollars, board and outfit," replied Belding, proudly.

"Forty dollars?" echoed the father. "By the day or week?"

"The month, of course," said Belding, somewhat taken aback.

"Forty dollars a month for a young man who spent five hundred in the same time when he was at college, and who ran it into thousands when he got out!"

Mr. Gale laughed for the first time, and it was the laugh of a man who wanted to believe what he heard yet scarcely dared to do it.

"What does he do with so much money—money earned by peril, toil, sweat, and blood? Forty dollars a month!"

"He saves it," replied Belding.

Evidently this was too much for Dick Gale's father, and he gazed at his wife in sheer speechless astonishment. Dick's sister clapped her hands like a little child.

Belding saw that the moment was propitious.

"Sure he saves it. Dick's engaged to marry Nell here. My stepdaughter Nell Burton."

"Oh-h, Dad!" faltered Nell; and she rose, white as her dress.

How strange it was to see Dick's mother and sister rise, also, and turn to Nell with dark, proud, searching eyes. Belding vaguely realized some blunder he had made. Nell's white appealing face gave him a pang. What had he done? Surely this family of Dick's ought to know his relation to Nell. There was a silence that positively made Belding nervous.

Then Elsie Gale stepped close to Nell.

"Miss Burton, are you really Richard's betrothed?"

Nell's tremulous lips framed an affirmative, but never uttered it. She held out her hand, showing the ring Dick had given her. Miss Gale's recognition was instant, and her response was warm, sweet, gracious.

"I think I am going to be very, very glad," she said, and kissed Nell.

"Miss Burton, we are learning wonderful things about Richard," added Mr. Gale, in an earnest though shaken voice. "If you have had to do with making a man of him—and now I begin to see, to believe so—may God bless you! . . . My dear girl, I have not really looked at you. Richard's fiancee! . . . Mother, we have not found him yet, but I think we've found his secret. We believed him a lost son. But here is his sweetheart!"

It was only then that the pride and hauteur of Mrs. Gale's face broke into an expression of mingled pain and joy. She opened her arms. Nell, uttering a strange little stifled cry, flew into them.

CHAPTER XV

Bound in the Desert.

Far away from Forlorn River Dick Gale sat stunned, gazing down into the purple depths where Rojas had plunged to his death. The Yaqui stood motionless upon the steep red wall of lava from which he had cut the bandit's hold. Mercedes lay quietly where she had fallen. From across the depths there came to Gale's ear the Indian's strange, wild cry.

Action on the part of the Yaqui loosened the spell which held Gale as motionless as his surroundings. The Indian was edging back toward the ledge. He did not move with his former lithe and sure freedom. He crawled, slipped, dragged himself, rested often, and went on again. He had been wounded. When at last he reached the ledge where Mercedes lay Gale jumped to his feet, strong and thrilling, spurred to meet the responsibility that now rested upon him.

Swiftly he turned to where Thorne lay. The cavalryman was just returning to consciousness. The look in Thorne's eyes was hard to bear.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Break-Away Note.

When you kiss a girl good-by forever do it quickly. If you linger too long she may forgive you and take you back.

As It Struck Him.

A youngster recently defined a "palmist" as "a woman who uses her hand instead of her slipper."

JAPAN MAY ORGANIZE LEGION

American Body Is Influential in Creating Better Feeling Between the Two Countries.

The American Legion is playing an important part in the fostering of a better feeling between Japan and the United States, according to Walter Myers of Indianapolis, former national committeeman of the Legion, who recently returned from a business trip in the Far East, during which he took occasion to visit the Legion post in Japan and China.

Walter Myers.

"In Yokohama," said Mr. Myers, "the alarmist press was creating quite a bit of furore with the assertions that the American Legion was a scheme of the American government for gaining a military foothold in Japan. Allan Tukey, who was at that time commander of the Yokohama-Tokyo post of the Legion, was much concerned over the state of affairs. He finally decided that the most effective way of overcoming the antagonism would be by gaining more official recognition for the Legion's principles."

Mr. Meyers tells how Tukey persuaded an attache of the American embassy in Yokohama to accompany him on a formal visit to invite a Japanese general to attend one of the post meetings. The general accepted, although with reluctance.

The Legion post served dinner and conducted their regular business meeting, with the general, who understood English, present. At the conclusion the Japanese was asked to make a talk. This he did, explaining what a revelation it was to him to find a body of young men gathered together for the sole purpose of mutual helpfulness and social pleasure. Organizations of this character are foreign to anything in the Japanese life, he explained, in accepting the invitation extended through him to any of his race to attend the meetings at any time.

"From that time on," said Mr. Myers, "the talk of there being an ulterior motive back of the Legion was silenced. A few months later an admiral of the Imperial navy, visiting the Philippines, made inquiries of the post there as to the possibility of Japan organizing an association of its young men along the same lines as the American Legion."

"A HISTORY OF THE LEGION"

Book by Marquis James Has Created Much Interest Within Ranks of the Organization.

Marquis James, whose book "A History of the American Legion," has created much comment within the organization, has enjoyed exceptional opportunities as an observer of events and personalities which have gone to constitute Legion history.

Marquis James

He has been identified with the national organization since 1919 and has known every person and has witnessed most events which have contributed to the Legion's development and growth. Mr. James has noted these down and his book reveals many interesting episodes which have influenced the destinies of the Legion. The foreword to Mr. James' volume is written by Alvin Owsley, the national commander.

Mr. James joined the staff of the American Legion Weekly in August of 1919 and in 1920 became the editor. He left the magazine to organize the American Legion News Service. Subsequently he organized the National Speakers' Bureau and the American Legion Film Service, and was appointed National Director of Publicity, which position he resigned in 1922 to return to New York as a special writer for the Weekly and for magazine and newspaper interests outside the Legion organization.

Mr. James conducted an exhaustive investigation of war-time profiteering and the series of articles he wrote under the title of "Who Got the Money" created a national sensation. They resulted in renewed activity by the War department and the Department of Justice against alleged irregularities by contractors.

Evidence uncovered by Mr. James has been utilized in governmental actions against contractors and more than $10,000,000 has been recovered to the treasury.

Mr. James is a native of Oklahoma. During the war he was an infantry captain, spending nineteen months overseas. He has worked on newspapers in Kansas City, St. Louis, New Orleans, Chicago, New York and other cities.

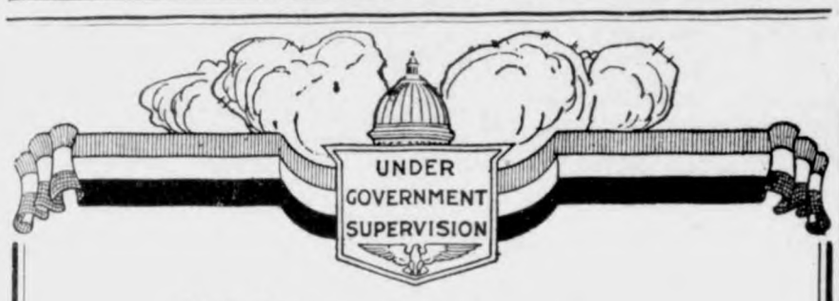
Entertained Bulgarians.

The William Peck post of the American Legion of Minneapolis recently acted as host to 12 Bulgarians, recent arrivals in this country. The affair was part of the post's Americanism campaign, which calls for deeds and not mere words. The Legionnaires found that although their guests understood little English they were not unversed in the mysteries of the fox-trot. The meetings will be held monthly hereafter.

1 cent
Brings It!
?

—Just write your name on a 1 cent Postal Card and mail it to the Klemme Times asking us to send you the Times for one year. One Cent brings it—pay us $1.50 after a month's trial for the balance of one year.

Show this ad to a friend whom you think should be a subscriber to the Times.



"Listening In"

Unless you are equipped with a Receiving Set you fail to hear the music and lectures that are all about you in the air.

Having money in the bank is like being equipped with a Radio Receiving Set. It prepares you to take advantage of the many opportunities that are about you. Being able to save money gives you a greater aid in a financial way than themere amount you save, it strengthens your credit.

Strive to keep your credit with your fellow men so you will be able to "LISTEN-IN" when the right opportunities are about you.

First National Bank

"The Bank for Everybody'."

Checking Accounts

A Checking Account is a good business reference. It shows that you believe in keeping a complete record of all financial transactions.

The possession of a Checking Account shows that you possess method, caution and thrift. The people with whom you deal, will have more respect for you if you pay by check rather than by cash.

A reasonable deposit entitles you to a Checking Account at this bank, and we welcome new accounts.

Bank With Us!

5 PER CENT
SAVINGS—

State Savings Bank

Klemme Iowa

News of Klemme and Vicinity

Street draging began yesterday.

Ed. Kahrs was at Belmond yesterday on business.

Joe Johnson went to Chicago Saturday night with a stock shipment.

FOR SALE—Gray Reed Baby Cab very reasonable. Mrs. W. F Lau

Mr. Will Nelson, of Belmond. was here on business yesterday.

John Larson was transacting business at Garner Friday morning.

Miss Fern Ulrich went to Garner Saturday for a visit between trains.

Clarence Townsend of Belmond, was a business caller here Saturday.

Buy Scissors Guides at Wellemeyer's. adv

Ben Swalve returned from his trip in Illinois yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Pavey drove to Mason City Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Elder and Mrs Gedye drove over to Mason City Monday.

Note Book Paper at the Times Print Shop. Punched for 6-inch center loose leaf covers. tfc

Clarence Larsen went to Chicago Saturday night with a stock shipment.

Laundry Basket leaves Wellemeyer's every Wednesday. and comes back every Saturday. adv

"Dad" Kelly came over from Garner Tuesday to look at our big skyscrapers.

Attorney W. H. Ramsay of Garner was in town on business Tuesday.

Mr. Harvey Sweigard, of Garner, was a Klemme visitor yesterday afternoon.

FOR SALE—A good tennis racket good as new and used but little, cheap. Inquire at Times Office.

FOR SALE—My residence property 2 blocks from Main Stt, in Klemme. Carl Suckow. (2p)

R. A. Jorgenson was a business caller at Garner last Friday afternoon.

Miss Gertrude Ely, of Belmond, came Friday for a visit with her sister, Mrs. W. F. Missman.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Cline of Belmond were shopping in this city last Friday.

Miss Eunice Brundt, of Williams. Iowa, came last week for a week's visit with Miss Viola Freje.

Hatching Eggs—T. B. S. C. W. Leghorn eggs at $3 per 100. J. H. Steeman, Britt, Ia., Route 1. (2p)

Mr. and Mrs. A Clausen of Kanawha, were callers in our town yesterday afternoon

Orville and Faye Birgess went to Dows last Saturday for a visit with their grandparents.

Mrs. Gee. of Goodell came Friday and remained until Saturday visiting with her daughter, Mrs. C. M. Gram.

Buy your Dandruff Remedy, Hair Tonic and Shampoo at McCullough's Barber Shop. tfc

Miss Esther Jante was a Sunday visitor at the Will Hoeft home near Garner.

The Misses Francis Baker and Gertrude Wilkins, of Kanawha, were Klemme callers Saturday.

Mrs. Clarence Larsen was a visitor at Garner between trains Friday a. m.

Mrs. C. V. McCullough, of Garner, was visiting with her son, G. P and wife yesterday between trains.

Mrs. C. W Wiles went to Boone, Iowa, Saturday for a visit with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Strieby and family of Mason City, were visiting at the Henry Lewis home Sunday.

Mr. Ben Swalve is at Freeport, Illinois at this writing visiting with old friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Messelheir of Meservey were visitors in our city last Thursday

Mrs. Harry Brooks went to Belmond last Wednesday evening for a few days visit with her folks.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Schlichting, of Goodell were Klemme visitors last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Jensen, accompanied by Walter Anderson and Mrs. Brinkman drove to Mason City yesterday.

Typewriter ribbons at the Times Print Shop. Black, and Red and Black for all standard machines, at 75c. There is no better ribbon than the Remington. tfc

No. 6659 Reserve District No. 7
Report of the Condition of

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK

At Klemme, in the state of Iowa
At the close of business on April 3, 1923

RESOURCES
Loans and discounts..		304,717.30
Overdrafts, unsecured..		1,470.01
U. S. Government securities owned, deposited to secure circulation.		25,000.00
Other bonds, stocks, securities. etc.		12,313.50
Banking house, furniture and fixtures		10.700.00
Lawful reserve with Federal Reserve Bank..		21,264.66
Cash in vault and amount due from national banks		117,638.66
Checks on other banks in the same city as reporting bank		1,009.39
Checks and drafts (including Federal Reserve Bank) located outside of city or town of reporting bank 373.31
Miscellaneous cash items 4.14		377.45
Redemption fund with U. S. Treasurer and due from U. S. Treasurer		1,250.00
Other assets, if any..		76.84
TOTAL		$495,817.81
LIABILITIES
Capital stock paid in..		$ 25,000.00
Surplus fund		15,000.00
Undivided profits	10,192.08
Less crurent expenses, etc	8,913.55	1.278.53
Circulating notes outstanding		24,395.00
Demand deposits subject to Reserve.
Individual deposits subject to check.....		112,969.22
Certificates of deposit due in less than 30 days		40,400.00
Time Deposits subject to Reserve.
Certificates of deposit		..276,775.06
TOTAL		$495,817.81

State of Iowa
County of Hancock, ss.

I, F. A. Arnold, Cashier of the above named bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

F. A. ARNOLD, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 10 day of Apr., 1923.

F. M. Hanson, Notary Public.

(SEAL)

Correct—Attest:
C. H. WIEGMANN
FRED GREIMANN
AUG. LAU, Director.

STATEMENT OF CONDITION OF

STATE SAVINGS BANK

organized under the laws of Iowa, located at Klemme, in the County of Hancock at the close of business on the 3rd day of April, A. D. 1923.

RESOURCES
Loans and discounts. Bonds and Securities		502,771.
Overdrafts		2,558.
Stock Agricultural Organizations...		500.
Banking House	200.00
Furniture and Fixtures.....	750.00	950.
Other real estate owned.....		13,115.
Due from banks and bankers, cash and cash items		67,571.
Other assets—Customers Tax Recpts		16,534.
Total Resources		604,004.
LIABILITIES
Capital Stock	30,000.00
Surplus fund	10,000.00	40,000.
Undivided profits (after deducting expenses	676.06	676.
Individual Deposits subject to check	135.730.18
Time certificates of deposit	314,088.83	449,819.
Bills Payable other than with Federal Reserve Bank	35,000.00
Rediscounts	78,509.04	113,509.
Total Liabilities		604,004.

STATE OF IOWA
Hancock County—ss.

We, P. M. Griesemer, President; D. D. Ross, Vice President, and F. Wenck, Cashier of the bank above named, do solemnly swear that the foregoing statement is full, true and correct, to the best of our knowledge and belief. that the assets therein set forth are bona fide property of said bank in its corporate capacity, and that no part of the same has been loaned or advanced to said bank for the purpose of being exhibited as a portion of its assets.

P. M. Griesemer, President
D. D. Ross, Vice President
F. J. Wenck, Cashier

(SEAL)

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence by P. M. Griesemer, D. D. Ross and F. J. Wenck this 10 day of April, 1923.

CATHERINE A. WENCK
Notary in and for Hancock County
(SEAL)

ATTESTED BY—
A. E. KATTER
A. KELLY
W. H. RAMSAY, Directors.

New Coal Prices

Effective Aprl 1st

Kind	Price
Blue Sky Semi-Anthracite	$13.50
High Grade New Ohio Egg	9.50
Glendora 'The Wonder Coal'	9.50

Put in your supply now, April price is lowest of the year.

Watch for new prices next week

W. F. Lau

STILLE'S IMPLEMENT NEWS

VOLUME 1. Thursday, April 12, 1923. NUMBER 1

Swiss cheese is always holesome.

If you think a boy carries crazy things in his pocket, just take a peek in a woman's handbag.

Dwight Hummel purchased a triple geared sweep mill from us, some time ago. and Hummel says if they put many more taxes on gasoline he will start in and do custom grinding. It works fine.

Lou Katter came in here and got a drag cart the other morning, and it must of given satisfaction because his brother Art sent in for one just like it that same afternoon.

Harvey Harberts also got one of those famous drag carts from us.

Henry Ludeke came in and got a John Deere harrow cart this morning.

Pete Josten purchased a John Deere truck wagon from us.

Elmer Schlei came in and got a 10 foot International disk harrow the fore part of the week.

Gottlieb Goll is going to use a new John Deere endgate seeder this year; he purchased it at our store.

Albert Schmidt got a new International Hoosier endgate seeder of us last week.

Ed Buentenbach purchased a new ten foot McCormick Deering disk at our store last Saturday; he is going to pull it back of his Fordson.

Spring tooth harrows would also be a very good investment this spring for that quack grass. We have the kind that give satisfaction. Come in and look them over while the choice is good.

Those who used our oil last year are coming in and getting their oil for this year's use from us. If you are having trouble with your tractor or car or with finding a good oil bette come in and get some oil from us and give it a trial; it's guaranteed.

365 PROFIT DAYS YEARLY

That's what you'll have if you use a Primrose Cream Separator on the farm, because the Primrose gives you ALL the cream. It skims clean, and the cream brings the highest market price—the globules of butter fat are smooth, unbroken and the cream is in the best condition for butter making. Get the greatest return from your cows by using a Primose Cream Separator. We will gladly tell you how a clean skimming Primrose will pay for itself with the increased returns it brings. Come in and ask us—and while you are here, give the crank of one of these machines a spin. You willy be surprised how easily it turns.

Not every girl who can put a patch on a punctured tire can put a patch on a punctured pair of trousers.

We are in a good position to give you service on magneto repair work now. Bring them in and save the cranking.

THE KLEMME TIMES

enty-seventh Year—Number 32. Klemme, Iowa, Thursday Afternoon, April 19, 1923. $1.50 In Advance—$2.00 Outside of County

EWS OF THE WEEK'S DOINGS AT HIGH SCHOOL

BASE BALL SEASON OPENS

mme H. S. Wins First Game of ason by Defeating Goodell, 28 - 9

The Klemme School baseball team n the first game of the season Fri- , when it defeated the Goodell m by a decisive score of 28 to 9. e Game was played in Klemme, but ing to the fact that the regular dia- nd was muddy they played on a ass diamond just north of F. Klu- hohn's. The gamewas not a fast e, but the Goodell boys proved to d proved to be a very good pitcher eat with a smile.

llowing is the line-up of the Klem- team with their batting record.

	AB	R	LB	PO	SO
llemeyer. L F	6	5	2	1	1
sch, 1 B	6	3	2	2	1
rgasen, S S	6	3	2	2	0
rsen. R F	6	3	1	2	1
erner, 3 B	6	3	1	2	0
der, C	6	3	1	2	0
mpke, 2 B	6	3	2	1	0
mer, P	6	3	1	2	0
bbs, C F	6	2	1	3	1
rz, Sub	0	0	0	0	0

Brepresents At Bat; R,Runs; LB, ft on Base; P0. Put out. SO, Struck ore by innings:

emme	4	3	2	4	8	7
odell	1	0	1	1	1	0	5

Gimer struck out eleven men in 5 nings, Lempke made a home run d a great many two and three base ts were made by the Klemme boys. erner pitched the last two innings d proved tobe a very good pitcher. was his first attempt at pitching d he is expected to do a great deal tter before the season closes.

e next game with Goodell is on May th on their school picnic day. We derstand that the game in to be yed atWest Lake. The next game going to be with Meservey on April 0. This game is going to be held on e local diamond in Morningside ad- tion. Come Out and Help Your ome Team Win! ! Don't Forget, ext FRIDAY at KLEMME!!!!

They're Over Now

Well the examinations are passed or another six weeks. All students re glad too you can bet. Mr. Neese nd Miss McKahan were very well leased with the papers handed in his six weeks and both say that they re the best papers that have been anded in this year. There is only one ix weeks period left in the school ear and after that period the semes- er tests occur. All students that ave an average of 90 per cent will e exempt from these tests and many tudents are working so that they ill have a couple days vacation hie the rest are perspiring over ex- mination papers.

The honor list for the past six weeks will be published next wek.

! ! P E P ! !

The girls have been busy trying to et a little pep for ball games. They eld a pep meeting Wednesdap even- ng and another Friday morning. The girls are all right and some of the boys surely need a little pep as dis- played in the recent game. We also have to give the girls credit for being tongue twisters. We are sure that they would take first place anywhere. Here is one of their yells.

"Ala - pa - dak - kachee - kaching. Kazook - Kazeck - A boom Bang Bing Kikapoo - Walapoo - Zip-Boom-Bah Klemme High School Rah! Rah ! Rah!

We Pity the Freshman

The Freshman are now starting to study simultaneous equations in their Algebra course The Freshman are pretty good at mathmetics and we are sure that they will be able to mas- ter thes ubject easily under thee able leadership of Proffessor Neese.

Take up Another Classic

The English I Class has taken up the study of Scott's, "Lady of the Lake." This is a very interesting clasic written in meter form. The class is sure to enjoy it as Miss Mc- Kahan is sure to make it interesting.

Tornadoes

The Physical Geography Class has been studying tornadoes for the past week. This is a very interesting class and we think the Sophomores enjoy it very much. Monday they handed in their labratory work for the past six weeks, which was on vol- canoes and earthquakes.

Grammer Room

A couple of weeks ago we publish- ed a list of the most important Ameri- are publishing a list a fifty of the cans that were dead. This week we most important living mericans.

Henry Ford
Thomas Edison
John Rockefeller
Woodrow Wilson
W. J. Byran
William Sunday
General Pershing
W. G. Harding
William Taft
Goethals
Helen Keller
G. Westinghouse
Chas. Steinmetz
Orval Wright
J. P. Morgan
J. O. Armour, Jr.
Dr| Crane
Guests
Cahot Lodge
McAdoo
Mellon
Hughes
Mary Garden
Judge Ben Lindsey
Philip Sousa
General L. Woods
Mayo Brothers
Joe Cannon
Pierce Butler
Jane Addams
John McCormick
Borah
Barnes
Burbank
Brookhart
Cummins
Mrs. Luther Julia Marlowe
Arthur Capper
Geradine Farrer
Van Dyke
Rodman
Booth
Otto Kakn
Zane Gray
Eliot
Ethel Barrymore
Mrs. Hoover

WAIT BEFORE SEEDING

Should Not Sow Seed on Sloping Lawns Til Later.

If a lawn is sloping it should not be seeded until the danger of washing rains is passed according to the horti cultural department of Iowa State College. Lawn seeding can usually be seeding can be done as late as middle or latter part of April.

However. the department states. if the lawn is level the seeding can be done earlier. The blue-grass-clover mixture is the best to use. If you want to make your own mixture use three- fourths of a pound of bluegrass. Sow it first then put on a half pound of white clover, bent grass or fescue. Sprinkle the lawn after seeding to pre vent the seeds from blowing away.

Sometimes, according to the de- partment, it is advisable to seed some Italian rye grass or oats to make quick growth. This will shade the more permanant plantings, if used a lone should be put on at the rate of 1½ pounds per 300 feet.

Much care should be taken to avoid cutting the new lawn too soon. It is best to wait until there is a good growh. Rolling the lawn once or twice before cutting will be good for it. Clipping will stimulate the growth while tutting too close will reard growth. If there is too much grass it should be raked off as it wil shade the plants underneath.

H. L. Taylor, custodian at the State park reports having observed a golden egle at Pilot Knob last Sat- urday. The golden eagle is one of the finest eagles and is not considered an enemy. They are very seldom seen in this section. He lives mostly on rabbits and other small animals. it is hoped that no one will shoot the bird and tht others may come. —Forest City Sumit.

PLANT MORE LEGUMES

Large Acreage of These Crops Should be Put In

This is going to be a legume year. All conditions favor a greater ac- reage of legumes in Iowa in 1923 than has been grown for several years according to the department of farm, crops at Iowa State College.

'A considerable part of the land which would othherwise be seeded to oats." the specialists sap "can better be planted to soy beans for seed pro- duction or for hay. There is always a market for the seed, either for plan ing or for oil extraction and as a feed it can be used to splendid advantage to replace tankage, oil meal. Where clover and grass seedings have failed het soy bean offeres an excellent sub- stitute, producing large yields of hay similiar ta alfalfa in feeding value. Another advantage of the soys is tht they will grow on acid soils on which ordinary clovers fail."

The acreage of sweet clover and ai- sike is also expected to increacse this year.

A new free circular, No. 84, deals with soybeans and may be secured by writing the extension department at Ames.

THE CALL FOR MEN

He has not served who gathers gold,
Nor has he served whose life is told
In selfish battles he has won,
Or deeds iof skill that he has done.
But he has served who now and then
Has helped along his fellow men.
The world needs many men today;
Red blooded men along life's way,
With cheerful smiles and helping hand,
And with the faith that understands
The beauty of a simply deed
Which serves anothe's hour of need.
Strong men to stand beside the weak
Kind men to hear what ohes speak,
True men to keep our country's laws,
And guard its hono and its cause;
Men who will bravely play life's game,
Nor ask rewards of gold nor fame.
Teach me todo the best I can
To help and cheer our fellow man;
Teach me to do the best I can
And glory in the larger deed,
Which smoothes the road and lights . .the day
For all who chance to come our way.

Edgar, Guest.

HENKEL COMPANY SECURE LARGE CONTRACT

The Mason City Globe-Gazette car- ried an announcement in Monday's paper that the Henkel Construction Co., who built the pavement in this county last summer had closed a con- tract for a strech of road in Dodge county, Wisconsin. The contract amounted to more than a half million dollars.

—Britt News

There are petitions being cir- culated asking the board of supervis- ors to gravel a road connecting with the pavingof the North IowaPike. Other towns of the County have sur- faced roads whereby they can travel when unsurfaced roads are impass- ible while Corwith sits in the mud. and waits for the mud to dry up. This part of the county is entitled to some of the roads funds and urges the board to heed our modest request.

—Corwith Hustler.

EXAMINATION FOR POSTMASTER IN KLEMME

We are in receipt of a letter from the Garner postoffice as follows, and is self explanatory:

"The United States Civil Service Commission will hold an Examina- tion for Postmaster at Klemme, Ia., a Third Class Office, at Garner, Iowa May 12, 1923. Information per- taining to the same may be received at the local Post Office or of Sec. of Civil Service."

The competition is open to all who are qualified under the terms of the announcement. Application forms, containing full information as to the requirements to be met and the character of the examination to be given may be obtained from the lo- cal postoffice or from the United States Civil Service Commission.

The postoffice here carries a sal- aryy of $1.600 a year. The vacan- cy occurs August 5, 1923.

WRAP MEAT IN PAPER

Practice Will Aid in Keeping it For Lond Period.

"If cured meat is to be kept any length of time it should be wrapped in paper and placed in a tight paper bag," says H. D. Helser, of the animal husbandry department of the Iowa State college. "After this is done," he says. "the bags of meat should be hung up in a dark vermin-proof build- ing until required for food. To protect the meat from skippers it is some- times dusted with borax."

RABBITS DAMAGE TREES

Apple Trees Are Badly Girdled Follow ing Recent Snow.

Rabbits and snow banks spell havoc for young apple trees always.

Extension men at the Iowa State College say that this year has been no execption in this respect and that fol lowing last month's snow storm, thou sands of Iowa fruit trees were badly girdled by bunnies whose choice dess- ert seems to be a few square inches of tender apple bark.

. .The drifts made it possible for the rabbits to attack the trees at their tender points, and, in cases in which the trees had been wrapped to pre- vent girdling, to do the gnawing a- bove the protective covering. What to do with the trees thus damaged de- pends mainly upon their size. If the young, it is reccomended that the trees be replaced entirely; but if old- er, the tree's life may be saved by bridge or cleft grafting.

. .Detailed information on how to do this grafting may be had free by ad- dressing the Extension Service at Iowa State College or by writing the U. S. Department of Agriculture and asking for farmers' bulletin No. 701.

Members Of Ell Twp. Farm Bureau

To the members of the Ell Town- ship Farm Bureau—The meeting of the Ell Township Farm Bureau will be held at the Center School Thursday evening, April 26th. We hope to make these regular month- ly meetings to be held on the last Thursday of each month.

A program has been arranged and moving pictures wil be shown ; a pie social will be held after the program. Ladies are requested to bring pies. Everyone is invited to attend.

FARM BUREAU LADIES

The local leaders of the Clothing Project of districts Nos. 1 and 2 of Liberty Township held a meeting on Wednesday afternoon, April 11 at the home of Ott Schroer.

They took up the alteration of Patterns and also he fitting of the Foundaion Pattern. Eleven were present at the meeting.

Nine of the ladies of Liberty twp. met at the Otto Schroer rome on Thursday, April 12, and made two dress forms.

The Farm Bureau Ladies of Liber- ty township met at the Will Haber- kamp home on April 17. for their fourth leson in the Clothing Project Miss Smith from Ames gave the les- son. Variations of the different decorative stitches and home made trimmings was the lesson given. There were 19 ladies present. The dinner was served by the hostess.

The next meeting will be held on May 15th at the Frank Rosendahl home.

ROBBERS MAKE RAID AT CRYSTAL LAKE

They Get Away With $1,400 Loot

Robbers escaped with loot of $1,400 after entering the postoffice, an elevator office and a general store at Crystal Lake Monday night.

A shot fired from an up stairs win dow over the postoffice by Peter Juhl at a member of the gang placed on guard frightened the robbers a- way.

Most of the loot was taken from the postoffice and will be of little value to the robbers as hey cannot easily convert it into cash.

Sugar is coming down. It is en- tirely too high now. Use it sparing- ly and the price will drop accordingly. There is no shortage of this product in the markets.

MAY PURCHASE CHEMICAL OUT- FIT FOR KLEMME

FIGHT MOLE WITH TRAP

Is Best Method of Ridding Lawn or Garden of Pest.

One of the worst enemies of the well groomed lawn or the productive garden is the mole. While this little animal devours insects in large quan- tities, it also does considerable dam- age, according to E. W. Dunnam, of the zoology department of Iowa State College.

Last fall M. Dunnam tested out a number of traps on the campus at Iowa State College where moles were destroying the lawns. Seventy-five moles were caught in 30 days. About 70 moles were caught in a loop trap which proved far more efficient than any of the others.

FORDS BAD FOR BUSINESS

A letter going the rounds of the press is said to have originated in a Wisconsin town, and reads as fol- lows:

Deer Mister Ford: Ay have bane yur ajunt fer ten yares but ay vant you shud kansel my kontrack. Sum- ting turned by hare today that set me to think. Aye vas sitting en frunt uf my blace and a faller drove oop en a Peckert car an ask how far vs it to Minneapolis an Ay tell hem 47 miles an he say geeve me 15 gal lons uf gass an qvart uf oil. A leddle later came oop a faller en a Kadolac an say how fr ess it to Minneapolis an Aye say 47 miles, an he say geeve me 10 gallons gass an a qvart uf oil. Efter a vile a faller drove oop en a Dodge an ask me how far ess it to Minneapolis an Aye say 47 miles and he say geeve me 5 gal- lons gass an a pint uf oil. Then came a faller en a Ford an he say how far ess it to Minneapolis an Aye say it ban 47 miles, an he say geeve me a qvart of water and a peckage of Kemmels. They dont goin to be no moneys in this beesiness an Aye get me yob by Ole Olson's farm.—Sven Larsen.

RETIRED MINISTER AT GARNER IS 96 YEARS

GARNER, April 19. — The Rev. Christian Schaefer of this place will round out his 96th birthday next Sep- tember. Mr. Schaefer is in fair health and is a benediction in thehome of his daughter. Mrs. John Schuler, where the two grand children, Edwin and Ruth, as well as the older folks. are entertained by the stories he loves to relate of the days of his ministery in pastorates of the German Metho- dist church in Iowa and Wisconsin. He is always cheerful andis interested the questions of the day. Mr. Schae- fer gave up a regular charge in the ministery some 25 years ago, but it is less than three years since he had preached before an audience here in Garner.

The post-office department is ask- ing that all their rural patrons have their boxes painted white and that the name of each patron be painted on the side of the mail box in letters large enough to be read from the roadway. It will soon be time for the semi-annual inspection of mail boxes and those boxes which do not comply with the requirements must be reported to the department. Box- es must be weather proof, placed a certain distance from the ground and must be on the right side of the road. These requirements must be observed or the inspecting post-master must report the matter. In case of the nec- cessary requirements are not observ- the department is liable to forbid carriers leaving mail in such boxes.

Chas. Ford suffered a severe acci- dent Saturday, a severe accident for one of his years when he fell and broke his left shoulder in the joint. He isnearly 84 years of age, and such an accident is a bad thing for one of his yers. His many friends hope that his recovery may be speedy and that he will soon be about town again.

—Garner Signal.

KLEMME WILL HAVE UP-TO-THE MINUTE FIRE FIGHTING CHEMICAL TANKS

Town Council Cooperates With The Fire Department; New Fire Apparatus Almost Sure

At the meeting of the Town Coun- cil Monday night a committee from the Klemme Fire Company met with the Council in talking over plans for the purchase of a chemical fire fight- ing apparatus of some kind of suf- ficient chemical capacity to cope with practically any fire.

It has been long felt that such an outfit was needed in Klemme. It would mean a much better protec- tion against fire both for the busi- ness and residence districts of our city. It has been proven that a good chemical apparatus is far su- perior in fighting fires than is the use of water; and chemicals cause practically no damage to goods or to household furnishings, whereas wat- er usually is quite damaging when a fire is extinguished in that way.

Nearby towns where chemical trucks have been in use for some time have proven to be very satis- factory and far superior to water in fighting fire, especially is this true in putting out a fire quickly shortly after it has started.

Further plans will be talked over at the next meeting of the Council on next Monday night. when it is hoped that more facts will be avail- able regarding a chemical truck.

Some two years ago the fire com- pany put on an entertainment to help raise funds for a chemical ap- paratus and they will put this mon- ey into the equipment.

We can probably give our readers more information next week on this important subject. It is something that every property owner in Klem- me should boost;it is not to add a lot of fancy equipment to the fire fighting outfit, but is is for the pro- tection of every building in Klemme.

In most towns a chemical appara- tus is mounted on a truck so that fires can be gotten to in he shortest possible time, and in many cases the truck makes runs to nearby farms if a fire breaks out; and at such places the nearby farm owners have donat- ed liberlly in helping the town to buy a good outfit.

Electric Rates Cut

New rates on electric lights were fixed by the Council Monday night. The rates are approved by the Iowa Falls Electric Company and are a little lower than formerly. The new rates are as follows:

1-20 KWH	.15
20-50 KWH	.12
50 KWH and over	.09
Minimum Rate	$1.25

No change on Power or Heating rates.

The above rates are now in effect in Klemme.

No Important Business

There was no other important business that came before the city dads, aside from a few minor matt- ers. The meeting was adjourned to Monday night.

One of His Favorites

"Our coal dealer must like me.'
"What makes you think so?"
"He actually consented to sell me a ton of coal this morning."

RADIO FANS TO MEET

Will Hold Short Course at Ames April 20-21.

Friday and Saturday. April20 and 21. is the time set for the second an- nual convention and short course for Iowa Radio Fans, to be held at Iowa State College at Ames.

The two-day program will be given under the auspices of the engineering extension and the Radio club, a stu- dent organization a t the college. Speakers of national reputation will be on hand and questions of interest to radio owners will be discussed.

CHICAGO PACKERS INCREASE WAGES

Ten Per Cent Boost Is Given to About 85,000 of the Workers.

ASSEMBLY PLAN IS USED

Pay Raised by Armour, Swift, Wilson and Cudahy Companies—Agreement Follows Sessions Lasting Two Days.

Chicago, April 14.—Wage increases averaging more than 10 per cent have been granted plant employees of Armour & Co., Swift & Co., Wilson & Co., and Cudahy & Co., it was announced here after the increases had been decided on by representatives of each company and of its employees.

Eighty thousand five hundred employees are affected—35,000 in the employ of Armour, 25,000 Swift employees, 13,000 on the Wilson pay roll and 7,500 in the Cudahy plants. The increases take effect at once.

In each case the increase was decided on by an organization composed of representatives of the company and of the employees. In the Swift plants, this organization is known as the plant assembly; Wilson & Co. calls it a joint representative committee, and the Armour organization as well as the Cudahy committee, is known as the general conference board.

In the case of Armour, Wilson and Cudahy, the increases were announced for all plants. Only the 6,000 employees of the Chicago plant are formally granted the increase in the case of Swift & Co., but plant assemblies at other points have requested increases and their request will be granted. It is understood that they will receive raises proportioned on the Chicago agreement.

Representatives of 16 Armour and Morris plants in 16 cities gathered at the meeting of the Armour general conference board. There were 24 employees' representatives and 24 representatives of the management. The unit system of voting was employed, a majority of one side being required to agree with a majority of the other before a decision could be reached.

For two days sessions were held during which the employees' representatives made motions for increases which were extensively discussed. At length it was realized that decisions on questions of detail could not be reached expeditiously in so large an assemblage. Accordingly a committee of 10 was appointed, consisting of five from each side.

After four hours the committee reached an agreement which was presented to the parent body and approved unanimously.

BUILDING PERMITS IN U. S.

First Three Months of Year Set New Mark, March Gaining 62 Per Cent.

New York, April 10.—One billion and a quarter dollars' worth of building permits, the greatest amount for a similar period in the nation's history, were taken out throughout the country during January, February and March, S. W. Straus & Co., announced.

All records for March alone were broken, $420,851,343 worth of work being authorized in 205 cities, a gain of $161,357,012, or 62 per cent, over March of last year.

SENATOR HITS VOLSTEAD ACT

Edwards of New Jersey Declares Dry Law Makers Are Most Consistent Violators.

New York, April 11.—Branding the prohibition law as "damnable and impracticable," Senator Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey, addressing the Society of Restaurateurs, declared he was enlisted in a war to stop "the eternal hypocrisy now apparent in connection with the law."

"How can you obey a law," he said, "when the makers of that law are the most consistent violators?"

20 DROWN IN STORM AT SEA

Bishop, Two Nuns and Seventeen Others Die When Motorboat Sinks Off Mexico.

Mexico City, April 13.—The bishop of Belize (British Honduras), two nuns and seventeen other passengers were drowned when a motorboat carrying them to Payo, Obispe, Territory of Quintana Roo, Mexico, sank on Wednesday during a sudden storm, according to delayed advices reaching here. Fifty other persons are reported to have been saved. Further details are lacking.

Daughter of Tarkington Dies.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 14.—Laurel Tarkington, seventeen years old, daughter of Booth Tarkington, prominent author, died at the home of the latter here. Miss Tarkington was contracted pneumonia some days ago.

Three Die in Alabama Tornado.

Birmingham, Ala., April 14.—Three persons were killed and twenty-three hurt when violent thunderstorms, accompanied by torrential rains, swept across northern Alabama. Wire communication is crippled.

LEON K. WEISE

Leon K. Weise is American Red Cross director for the Salonica district in Greece. The American Red Cross is caring for the health of the refugees from Smyrna and other Turkish occupied territory who fled to Greece and is feeding half a million of them a day.

TRAIN IS CAPTURED

Liquor Thieves Seize Large Amount Booze in Illinois.

Fourteen Men in Wild West Style Stop Santa Fe Freight Near Peoria.

Peoria, Ill., April 12.—Fourteen booze bandits, accoutered as picturesquely as any of the "bad men" of the old West, late last night toyed in movie picture fashion with a whisky and alcohol-loaded freight train on the Santa Fe bound toward Chicago.

The thieves, each flourishing a brace of six-shooters and masked according to the conventions of the stage coach days, unloaded from the train $30,000 worth of liquors at Crandall's crossing.

After performing the usual business of shooting in the air, they rode away with their loot in motor trucks.

The train, No. 48, was boarded by four of the robbers as the engineer slowed down while running through Pekin, Ill.

Two of the bandits confronted with their bandana-masked faces and their guns the crew on the cars.

The other two threatened the engineer and fireman and forced a stop when the train reached Crandall's crossing, near Morton.

There the other ten of the party were waiting, masked and with six-shooters.

The freight was held at Crandall's crossing on a siding for two hours and twenty minutes.

FARMS LOSE IN POPULATION

Movement to Cities of 460,000 Persons in 1922 Is Told by U. S. Figures.

Washington, April 14.—A decrease during 1922 of approximately 460,000 persons in the agricultural population was reported by the Department of Agriculture, which said its figures were based on a survey of 10,000 representative farms and groups of farms.

The estimate, which included not merely workers, but men, women and children living on farms, showed a decrease of about 1.5 per cent from the 1920 census, which placed the agricultural population in rural districts at 31,359,000 persons.

EXPORTS SHOW BIG GAIN

Sales to Foreigners During Month of March Were Valued at $350,000,000.

Washington, April 14.—Exports from the United States in March were valued at $350,000,000, compared with $329,979,817 for the same month of last year, the Commerce department announced. For the nine months' period ending April 1 exports totaled $3,003,819,728, as compared with $2,810,001,333 for the corresponding period of a year ago.

OBSERVERS FOR LAUSANNE

United States Unofficial Representatives Will Attend Next Parley in Switzerland.

Washington, April 14.—The United States will be represented as usual at the next Lausanne conference, scheduled to convene April 23, it was asserted at the White House. President Harding did not indicate who will represent the American government. It is presumed that the Americans will act solely as "observers" and will have no official status.

Mathilde Weds Max.

London, April 14.—Mathilde McCormick, daughter of Harold F. and Edith Rockefeller McCormick of Chicago, was married to Max Oser at the Lewisham registry office at 11:30 Thursday morning.

U. P. to Spend $40,000,000.

Omaha, Neb., April 14.—The Union Pacific railroad will spend $40,000,000 in improvements this year, according to an announcement made here by Judge Robert S. Lovett of New York, chairman of the board of the system.

RECTOR IS SHOT DEAD BY PRIEST

Rev. Father Henry O'Neill of Kalamazoo, Mich., Is Slain.

PASTOR OF CATHOLIC CHURCH

Father Dillon, Infuriated When Ordered to Leave, Gets Revolver From Room and Fires Four Bullets Into Rector.

Kalamazoo, Mich., April 13.—While at his dinner table the Rev. Father Charles Dillon, assistant rector of St. Augustine's Roman Catholic church, shot and killed the Rev. Father Henry O'Neill, rector of the church.

Four shots were fired, all of which took effect in the body of the priest.

After exclaiming: "He has shot me," the Rev. O'Neill fell dead.

Turning to the dumfounded Father McCullough, the only witness to the tragedy, the infuriated priest tossed onto the table a phial containing some holy oils, with the request that the other administer the sacrament of extreme unction at once. The slayer then went to the telephone and calmly summoned the police and coroner.

According to the confession Dillon made to the police authorities, he had been driven to fury by alleged ill treatment at the hands of Father O'Neill.

"He treated me with disrespect almost ever since I came here from St. Phillip's at Battle Creek thirteen months ago," the prisoner told the officers. "He assumed towards me the attitude of the czar.

"He treated me as a little boy, refusing to let me visit the families of the parish, or to take any other part in the life of the parish than that of the meanest and most humble. I protested in vain and tonight at supper, when we quarreled over the matter, he ordered me to pack my belongings and get out.

"I got up from the table and went upstairs to pack up, but it was a revolver, not a suitcase that I packed. I picked up a phial of holy oil and then went downstairs where Father O'Neill and Father McCullough were eating.

"I intended to give him a chance to confess and to repent before I killed him, but as I advanced into the room with the hand holding the pistol extended, I saw him grab for a salt cellar to throw at me and I fired. After that I do not recall very well what happened."

ALL INDUSTRIES SPEED UP

More Jobs Than Men, Says Report by Department of Labor at Washington.

Washington, April 13.—Expansion of nearly all industries in March, with increased demands for all kinds of labor, was reported by the Department of Labor.

"In certain districts," the department reports, "building trades men available are fully employed and shortages of these tradesmen already exist in some communities."

HIGH TAX RATES TO REMAIN

General Revision of Revenue Laws Not Feasible Now, Says Senator Smoot.

Washington, April 12.—General revision of revenue laws will not be feasible in the next session of congress, according to opinions expressed to President Harding by Senator Smoot (Rep., Utah), who is slated for the chairmanship of the senate finance committee.

JAP MARINES LAND IN CHINA

Fighters From the Warship Togo Go Ashore at Chungking to Protect Nationals.

Honolulu, April 14.—A dispatch to the Nippu Jiji states that Japanese marines have been landed from the warship Togo at Chungking, Szechwan province, China, to protect the lives of Japanese nationals, which have been endangered by the civil war along the Yangtze river.

GOVERNORS TO SEE HARDING

President Will Call National "Dry" Conference to Meet at White House in May.

Washington, April 12.—The national conference of the governors of the 48 states will be called by President Harding to meet at the White House early in May to consider the menace to American institutions in widespread contempt for law, engendered by lack of prohibition enforcement.

Mother of Galli-Curci Dies.

New York, April 14.—Signora Enrichetta Galli, mother of Mme. Galli-Curci, prima donna, died at her home in Milan at the age of eighty-two, a cable message received by the singer's managers stated.

Kills Woman and Himself.

Jackson, Mich., April 14.—Refusal of Mrs. Carol Butts, twenty-three, a pretty blonde, to promise to marry him, led Chris Ziegler, thirty-eight, president of a motor sales company, to murder Mrs. Butts and kill himself

DR. FUAD BEY

Dr. Fuad Bey, deputy of the Grand National assembly of Turkey and secretary general of the Children's Protective Society of Angora, has come to the United States to make a study of social welfare organizations and to promote the interests of America in the new Turkey.

U. S. MARKET REPORT

Weekly Marketgram by Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Washington.—For the week ending April 11—HAY—No. 1 timothy, $20.00 Cincinnati, $23.00 Chicago, $16.50 Minneapolis, $22.50 St. Louis; No. 1 prairie, $19.50 St. Louis, $15.50 Minneapolis.

FEED—Bran, $27.00; middlings, $27.00; flour middlings, $29.50 Minneapolis; gluten feed, $40.65 Chicago; 34 per cent linseed meal, $41.00 Minneapolis; white hominy feed, $29.00 St. Louis.

DAIRY PRODUCTS—Butter, 92 score, 48c Chicago. Cheese prices at Wisconsin primary markets: Flats and daisies, 21¼c; longhorns, 20½c; square prints, 21¼c; double daisies, 21c; young Americas, 21¼c.

GRAIN—Chicago cash market: No. 2 red winter wheat, $1.34; No. 2 hard winter wheat, $1.25; No. 2 mixed corn, 79c; No. 2 yellow corn, 79c; No. 3 white oats, 45c. Average farm prices: No. 2 mixed corn in central Iowa, 65c; No. 2 hard winter wheat in central Kansas, $1.05; No. 1 dark northern wheat in central North Dakota, $1.05.

LIVE STOCK—Chicago prices: Hogs, top, $8.55; bulk of sales, $8.15@8.50; medium and good beef steers, $8.15@9.80; butcher cows and heifers, $4.40@9.75; feeder steers, $6.25@8.40; light and medium weight veal calves, $8.00@10.25; fat lambs, $12.75@14.75; feeding lambs, $13.00@14.75; yearlings, $9.75@13.50; fat ewes, $7.00@9.25.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES—Florida Spaulding Rose potatoes, $15.00 per bbl; eastern sacked round whites, $1.95@2.10 per 100-lbs.; northern round whites, $1.05 in Chicago carlot market, $1.25@1.90 in other cities; northern sacked stock, 90c@$1.00. Baldwin apples, $5.25@6.00 per bbl; greenings, $5.00@6.50; northwestern extra fancy winesaps, $2.25@2.75 per box. Texas, Louisiana and Alabama flat dutch cabbage, $4.50@5.75. Louisiana klondike strawberries, $4.00@5.00 per 24 pint crate in city markets, $3.80@4.15 f. o. b. Florida berries, 50c@65c per qt. Texas Bermuda onions, $2.75 at shipping points.

BEDLAM RULES PARLIAMENT

Row Due to Snap Defeat of Bonar Law—"Red Flag" Sung During Uproar.

London, April 12.—A wild scene in the house of commons Wednesday afternoon as a result of the snap defeat of the government Tuesday night forced its adjournment.

Before the adjournment the Laborites had stood up in the house and sung "The Red Flag," and as the members were filing out something like a free-for-all fight between the Laborites and the government supporters occurred, in which Hon. Walter Guinness was hit on the nose, Major Wormley-Gore, colonial undersecretary, was also hit in the face by Robert Murray, a Laborite.

FRANCE PROTESTS TO TURKEY

General Pelle Claims Concessions Granted to Americans Belonged to the French.

Paris, April 13.—General Pelle, the French high commissioner at Constantinople, has sent a vigorous protest to Turkey against the granting of large concessions to American interests represented by Rear Admiral Chester, according to Constantinople dispatches. These concessions include privileges which are said to have been granted to the French in 1914 in return for a large loan.

HUGE SUM PAID TO ALLIES

Germany Claims It Has Delivered Cash, Ships and Lands Worth $25,000,000,000.

Washington, April 13.—Germany has paid the allies in cash, ships, lands and materials of various kinds one hundred billion marks, equivalent to about twenty-five billion American dollars, according to figures prepared by the German treasury department and transmitted to Washington. Included is an allowance for relinquishment of Alsace-Lorraine.

Gen. H. T. Allen Retires.

Washington, April 13.—Maj. Gen. Henry T. Allen, former commander of the American army of occupation in Germany, held his last "review." He concluded forty-five years of active service at the age of sixty-four.

Turks Kill Italian Garrison.

Athens, April 13.—According to reports from the island of Rhodes, Turkish irregulars raided the small island of Castelorizo, off the coast of Asia Minor, and assassinated the Italian garrison and a number of Greeks.

LEGISLATIVE NEWS

The final week of the regular session of the fortieth general assembly found its members in a long tussle over the $30,000,000 appropriations it was asked to make for the state departments and the state educational institutions, trying to get through with them and possibly reach the biggest issues before it. Many important measures, struggled over in committee in some instances and in others not even touched, were withdrawn in order not to endanger their chances in the extra session, if one were called, or in the forty-first assembly, if not.

Probably the biggest single thing brought before the fortieth general assembly was the report of the joint legislative tax revision committee, appointed by the thirty-ninth general assembly to make a study of tax laws and recommend its finding to the fortieth assembly. Three of the bills were reported to the senate in essentially the form made in the committee's draft. These bills were withdrawn in the senate after an educational presentation by Senators Charles M. Dutcher of Iowa City, and Ed M. Smith of Winterset, members of the tax committee.

If Governor Kendall decides to call a special session, and he had not four days before the session ended, although he gave strong hints of doing so, these bills will probably be taken up along with the completion of revising the code, the prime purpose for calling a special session. With the three tax bills withdrawn, Representative Patterson of Kossuth county, conclude to amend his state income tax bil lto give its administration to the treasurer of state, and take it up in the house where he was confident it could be passed.

The income tax bill, as presented, intend to have the administration of the tax vested in the state board of assessment and review which the tax bills propose to create. The bill, patterned after the Wisconsin law, is said to be capable of producing $12,000,000 in revenue annually, if enacted, and to take the place eventually of practically the entire state levy.

Numerous new taxes were still to be considered when but a few days of the session remained. Among them were a proposed head tax of 10 per cent of the school district millage levy for school support, and occupational tax on motor busses used as common carriers on the highways, an amusement tax of 10 per cent of theater and other entertainment ticket prices, adjustment of the differences between the house and senate over the gasoline tax proposal, and several others, most of which, with the exception of the gasoline tax and the motor bus and truck tax were expected to fall by the wayside.

The house proposal, adopted as a substitute for all four bills, was to consider the whole of the asking in lump sum and reduce the askings to within $130,000 of the amount appropriated by the last assembly. After a family row in the appropriations committee, the minority favoring the school grants without appreciable reduction took their troubles to the floor of the house and won a victory by which they brought the biggest bill out of committee because the majority could not muster the necessary two-thirds vote to hold it longer in committee.

The senate had passed the motor bus tax after two days of hard debate in which about fifty amendments were offered. It had turned down the tonnage tax of 2 cents on coal mined for the support of mining camp schools. The tonnage tax originated in the senate, so was ended with defeat there. The motor bus tax was also a senate measure, and having passed, was put up to the house wheer hopes of enacting it were held out.

Senator Cummins accepted the invitation of the assembly to address them and used the opportunity to tell the assembly he could not accede to their request to work for the repeal of section 15a of the Esch-Cummins law and explained that to do so would require him to violate his own conscience and to desert the best interests not only of the people of Iowa but of the whole country.

"I assume you are familiar with all the paragraphs of the section," Senator Cummins said, "because I know you would not have asked me to eliminate all of them from the interstate commerce act without the most careful study of the various provisions.

The chief appropriations asked of the assembly are those for the three big state schols, the state university, the tsate college and the state teachers college, and the two special training institutions, the school for the deaf and the school for the blind. Early in the last week the senate and house locked horns over the four bills presented, carrying in all askings of $15,000,000 for the biennium.

The senate passed the Reed bill which will permit city councils to appoint zoning commissions, which would have entire authority over questions such as now arise under the restricted district law.

The effect of this bill would be to make the entire residence sections of all cities which accept the plan into restricted areas. The bill calls for the appointment by the city council of a zoning commission. No oil stations or grocery stores could be built in a residence district without the commission's approval.

.. Hawkeye .. State News

Interesting Items Gathered From all Parts of Iowa

National Play week will be observed in Iowa the week of April 21st to 28th.

The Iowa State College will hold its second annual radio short course April 20-24.

The Fourth Annual convention of the National League of Women voters was held in Des Moines recently with a large attendance present from all parts of the United States.

Fire losses in Ames during 1922 aggregated the heaviest in any one year in the history of the city, according to Fire Chief Morris' annual report, filed with the city council. The total loss was $364,638.69.

The executive secretary of the Iowa Bonus board has announced that the $22,000,000 bonds voted by the people of Iowa for soldiers in the World war will probably be sufficient. The average to each soldier will be a little in excess of $200.

State Treasurer W. J. Burbank announced that he had information that no action would be taken to appeal from the decision of the Iowa supreme court to the United States supreme court in the test case of the state soldiers' compensation law.

W. O. Reed, deputy state superintendent of banking, tendered his resignation to Supt. W. J. Murray in order to accept a position with the War Finance corporation in Washington, where he will be in the department handling Iowa loans.

The Iowa delegation led by Senator Cummins will make a big drive to have Secretary E. H. Cunningham of the Iowa Farm bureau appointed as the "dirt farmer" on the federal reserve board to fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of Campbell.

Better business conditions in Iowa were proven by the internal revenue returns this month, Ora Williams, Revenue director, said. Returns on some lines of business were surprising, he said. Business men's accountings showed that they had made more money during 1922 than the general public realized.

The Friends' church at Earlham was filled to capacity and chairs had to be placed in the yard when hundreds of friends and relatives attended the triple funeral of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Hill and Mrs. Richard Hoskins, victims of the recent elevator accident at the Randolph Hotel at Des Moines. Five others injured in the accident are on the rapid road to recovery.

Too many small banks in Iowa is one of the reasons why interest rates on loans to farmers are maintained at a high figure ,according to Prof. Claude L. Benner, of Iowa State College, in an address before the annual meeting of the State Association of economists and sociologists at Iowa City.

Farmers of the state are carefully watching the tax program of the Fortieth general assembly in the hope of seeing tax legislation enacted which will draw revenue from a source other than visible property which at the present time, they declare, is bearing a too great proportion of the tax burden of the state, according to S. G. Baxter, farm bureau agent for Henry county.

Sixty years in business in one location is the record of C. C. Upton, 82, veteran agricultural implement dealer of Cedar Rapids, who came there April 2, 1863. Mr. Upson sold the first wire grain binder in that vicinity and spent several days with the factory representatives in trying it out. It did not work well and in a short time Mr. Upton was able to obtain a binder using twine.

Harry X. Miller, former superintendent of garbage disposal of Des Moines trapped in the city hall graft net, appeared in District court two days before his scheduled appearance, and smilingly accepted an indeterminate sentence of from one to seven years at hard labor. He was taken to the prison one hour later. Miller is the second person indicted for city hall graft to go to the penitentiary.

J. W. Croker, a farmer at Colo, is an advocate of sudan grass for hog and cow midsummer and fall pasture and the figures he gives certainly seem to justify his faith. He seeded a tract of litle more than two acres to this crop last spring and as soon as it was ready, turned in twenty-five pigs. About midsummer when his regular pasture was pretty well dried out he added to the temporary hog pasture two cows and two calves and the little two acre tract supported the cows, calves and pigs until late in the fall.

The northwest Iowa declamatory contest was held at Jewell recently with Algona, Boone, Denison, Emmetsburg, Ireton, Jewell, Randall, Scranton, Spirit Lake and Sutherland competing.

A. L. Ames, who lives near Ames, has been cutting out a number of trees in his noted larch grove this winter. Between 75,000 and 100,000 feet of good lumber will be sawed from tne logs in the grove this year. This is indicative of what could be accomplished by a campaign of reforestation in the state.

Firestone

will not increase prices until May 1st

Firestone Prices on Fabric and Cord Passenger Car Tires and Tubes, also Solid and Pneumatic Truck Tires Will Advance May 1st

The postponement of this price revision is possible only because of our realization of the price danger in the British Crude Rubber Restriction Act which became effective November 1, 1922. We were fortunate in our rubber purchases before the Restriction Act increased the price of crude rubber 150%.

We have always endeavored to champion the cause of better made tires delivered at lowest cost to the tire user by economic manufacturing and distribution. And we are glad of the opportunity to give the car-owner the additional saving at this time.

Firestone Cords embody certain special processes which result in their producing mileage records, heretofore unheard-of in the industry. Among the more important of these superior methods are blending, tempering, air-bag cure and double gum-dipping.

Firestone Dealers are co-operating with us in our movement to supply your needs at present prices as long as their stock lasts and we have advised our dealers that we will supply them with additional tires this month only so far as our output will permit.

See the nearest Firestone Dealer. Purchase a set of these Gum-Dipped Cords. Prove for yourself their remarkable mileage advantages and easy riding qualities.

Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., Akron, Ohio

Greimann Motor Company

Most Miles per Dollar

Ford

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

ANNOUNCEMENT

Of Interest to

MILLIONS OF FAMILIES

"I will build a car for the multitude"

Said Henry Ford in 1903——Read how the fullfillment of that prophecy is now made possible through the—

Ford Weekly Purchase Plan

For many years it has been Henry Fords's personal ambition to make the Ford the universal family car——to put it within the reach of the millions of people who have never been priviledged to enjoy the benefits of motor car ownership.

During the past fifteen years over 7,500,000 Ford Cars have been placed in the hands of retail customers——more than a million and a half of them within the past twelve months——and yet there are still millions of families who are hopefully looking forward to the day when they can own a Ford.

And now the way is open.

Under the terms of this plan you can select your Ford Car; set aside a small amount each week and you will be surprised how soon you will own it. In the meantime your money will be safely deposited to your credit in one of the local banks where it will draw interest.

Think it over. Five dollars will start an account. The whole family can participate in it——father, mother, brothers and sisters each doing a little.

Why not start today. Stop in and talk it over with your local Ford dealer. He will be glad to fully explain the details of the plan and help you get started toward the ownership of a Ford Car.

FORD MOTOR COMPANY
Deroit, Michigan

Greimann Motor Company

Aaron Griemann, Manager.

Ford, Fordson, Lincoln

Does your old Suit look sort of shabby? You will soon "shed your overcoat" and if your suit is bad folks will surely notice. Do one of two things—either have your old suit Cleaned and Pressed or buy a New Suit. We can serve you either way at Wellemeyer's. adv

R. B. Irving has sold his restaurant business to LuVerne Smith, who takes possession sometime this week. Mr. Irving has been here about six months and started the restaurant in the new Baack building. Here's wishing "Smithy" a lot of success.

NOTICE TO PASTURE CATTLE

To pasture cattle this summer season on good blue grass pasture come and give me your orders. Cattle will be well fed and taken care of. Call soon at A. G. Lau. Klemme, Ia. (Apr 12-19-26)

The Garner Signal last week said that "Garner friends have received announcements of the birth of a son on April 3rd to Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Perry, at Ironwood, Mich. Mrs. Perry was Miss Bessie Thompson before her marriage and lived in Garner for a number of years." Mrs. Perry also has a large number of friends in Klemme.

"Happy" Johnson has been perculating around the streets this week on two legs. one wood and two beef. "Happy" handles the cane like an English dude but he has a peculiar gait very unbecoming to a gentleman of leisure. He has to take two steps with the game leg to catch up with one step of the good peg. He injured his knee cap and it is giving him a vacation.

The fish hatchery last year hatched about nine million pike. The first year was just a starter. Now comes the report from S. P. Baurers state fish culturist that this year the hatchery at Clear Lake will make two runs of twenty-five million each. These eggs wil be shipped here from Michigan and Minnesota in about two weeks.—Clear Lake Mirror.

News of Goodell And Vicinty

Miss Hill spent the week end at her home in Clarion.

Mrs. Letch, who has been quite ill, is much improved.

Mesdames Chase. Dieger and O-Krueg attended a ladies' Farm Bureau meeting at Garner last Friday.

Miss McCormick spent the week-end in the country visiting at the Jay Griggs home.

J. W. Griggs spent a greater part of last week at his cottage at Elm Bend.

Several of the Farm Bureau ladies made dress forms at the Wesenberg home Saturday afternoon.

Most of the farmers have been very busy working in the field the past week.

Mrs. H. Meinderts, of Meservey, was visiting at the Andrew Nelson home last week.

Miss Myrtle Schoenwetter spent the week end at her home in Garner.

Miss Dorothy McCormick, who has been visiting the past week with her sister, returned to her home at Perry, Iowa, Thursday.

Thomas Cashman was in Garner between trains Thursday.

Lero Erickson has been under the Doctor's care for some time. A brother from Crystal Lake is here helping to care for him.

The latest fad is horse back riding. We counted a dozen girls and boys out riding Sunday afternoon.

Fernon Griggs and Dannie Johnson were Garner callers Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood were Belmond shoppers Monday.

Faye Bollar is the new lady clerk in Thada's store.

Mr. Lamer was a business caller in Belmond Monday.

Jay Griggs was a business caller at Klemme yesterday.

AVERY TOWNSHIP NEWS

Robert Roths and wife were visitors at the Geo. Buseman home Sunday.

Mrs. Ruka, of Goodell, is visiting a few days at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harry Carpenter.

Wm. Bell, who has been sick for sometime, is quite alot better at this writing, and is able to be about.

Mrs. H. H. Meinders, of Meservey spent a few days at the homes of her daughters, Mrs. Leo Wilkins and Mrs. Andrew Nelson.

W. J. Bell and D P Anderson were Garner visitors last Sunday.

The nurse who has been taking care of Mrs. August Trampel, left for her home near Goodell. Mrs. Trampel is some better.

FREE!

Coaster Wagon

To Some Boy Or Girl!

We are going to GIVE AWAY ABSOLUTELY FREE to some Boy or Girl in Klemme or vicinity, a dandy BURNHAM COASTER WAGON, like the picture you see. You can also see this wagon at our store and also many other BURNHAM COASTERS in all sizes and styles.

HOW TO GET THE WAGON FREE

Come into our store anytime between Saturday morning, April 21 to Saturday p. m. May 5 at 6:00 o'clock; then look over the Coaster and make a guess as to how many operations were necessary to manufacture the wagon, then write your name on a card with your guess, and the boy or girl who guesses the nearest will get this wagon ABSOLUTELY FREE!

(Remember—Contest closes Sat. May 5th.)

Jacobs & Son

Office Phone 149 J. Residence Phone 149 L.

Dr. E. H. Phillips

Osteopathic Physician
GARNER, IOWA.

Diagnosis and Treatment of Diseases.
Surgical and Obstetrical cases cared for.
"Consult an Osteopath"

We Serve

FIRST CLASS MEALS and LUNCHES

Home Made Pies
Ice Cream and Soft Drinks
FRESH BREAD EVERY DAY
Candy Cigars Tobacco

The Crystal Cafe

Conrad Quandt, Prop. Klemme, Ia.

"A Good Cafe in a Good Town"

Spring Building--

Spring Building Operations are now in order, and we have prepared ourselves in the shape of large stocks on hand to take care of the demand for Building Materials which we feel sure will be created by the signs of nice Spring Weather.

Our advise is to buy now, as lumber and building material prices will never be any cheaper—if anything they will advance as the demand increases as this is going to be a big building year.

We can help you plan any building you are planning on building this year. Come in and look over our Plan Service—you will be pleased with the many plans for Houses, Barns, Hog Houses, Poultry Houses, Garages and other Buildings.

Northern Lumber Co.

SHERIFF'S SALE

THE PRUDENTIAL INSURANCE COMPANY OF AMERICA
vs.
Roscoe W. Wiles, Flora Wiles, First National Bank, Klemme, Iowa, State Savings Bank, Klemme, Iowa, T. R. Burgess.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That by virtue of a Special Execution issued out of the office of the Clerk of the District Court, in Hancock County, on a judgement rendered March 21st, 1923, March Term of said Court, A. D. 1923, for the sum of Forty Nine Hundred Seventy Three & 98-100 DOLLARS debt, and One Hundred Fourteen & 59-100 costs, in favor of The Prudential Insurance Company of America, and against Roscoe W. Wiles, and Flora Wiles, and to the Sheriff of Hancock County directed, I have levied upon the following described property, to-wit: The West Half of the Northwest Quarter (W½NW¼), except a strip of land three rods wide off the North end thereof. and excepting one acre of land in the Northwest quarter of the Southwest quarter of the said Northwest Quarter, which is used as a School site, All in Section Twenty, Township Ninety-Four, North Range Twenty-Three, (Sec. 20-Twp.-94-Rge 23), West of the 5th P. M. containing in all 77 acres more or less, according to government survey.

NOW, THEREFORE, Public Notice is hereby given that I shall, on the 27th day of April, 1923, at 10 o'clock A. M., at the front door of the Court House, in Garner, in Hancock County, offer and sell at public outcry, to the highest bidder for cash, all the right, title and interest that the above named Roscoe W. Wiles, and Flora Wiles, had on the 21st day of March A. D. 1923, or now have in and to the above described property, or so much thereof as is necessary to satisfy said execution, together with costs and all accruing costs, unless the same shall be sooner satisfied.

Dated at the Sheriff's office in Garner, this 28th day of March, A. D. 1923.

E. P. HANSON
Sheriff of Hancock County, Iowa.

SHERIFF'S SALE

FIRST TRUST AND SAVINGS BANK, TRUSTEE
vs.
John B. Spitler, Nora Spitler, George W. Kluckhohn, Louisa Kluckhohn, W. C. Tyrrell, Jr. Trustee, John M. Bergland, Sarah Bergland, Carl Caltvedt, F. Josephs, Mrs. F. Josephs. and State Savings Bank. Klemme, Ia.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That by a virtue of a Special Execution issued out of the office of the Clerk of the District Court, in Hancock County, on a judgement rendered December 12, 1922 and March 21st, 1923 Term of said Court, A. D. for the sum of Thirteen Thousand Three Hundred fifty six & 57-100 DOLLARS debt, and Three Hundred Seventy Nine & 46-100 Dollars costs. in favor of The First Trust and Savings Bank, Trustee, and against F. Josephs, and Mrs. F. Josephs. John B. Spitler, Nora Spitler, George W. Kluckhohn, W. C. Tyrrell, Jr. Trustee, John M. Bergland, Carl Caltvedt, and to the Sheriff of Hancock County directed, I have levied upon the following described property, to-wit: The Southeast Quarter. of Section Twenty-five (25), Township Ninety-Five (95), North Range Twenty-three (23). West of the 5th P. M. Hancock County, Iowa.

NOW, THEREFORE, Public Notice is hereby given that I shall, on the 23rd day of April 1923, at 10 o'clock A. M., at the front door of the Court House, in Garner, in Hancock County, offer and sell at public outcry, to the highest bidder for cash, all the right, title and interest that the above named Defendants had on the 23rd day of March A. D. 1923. or now have in and to the abcve described property, or so much thereof as is necessary to satisfy said execution, together with costs and all accruing costs, unless the same shall be sooner satisfied.

Dated at the Sheriff's office in Garner, this 23 day of March, 1923, A. D.

E. P. HANSON
Sheriff of Hancock County, Iowa.

SHERIFF'S SALE

ALMON G. DANFORTH, TRUSTEE
vs.
John B. Spitler, Nora Spitler, George W. Kluckhohn, John M. Bergland. W. C. Tyrrell, Jr Trustee, Louisa Kluckhohn, F. Josephs, Sarah Bergland and Carl Caltvedt, Mrs. F. Josephs, State Savings Bank, Klemme, Iowa.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That by virtue of a Special Execution issued out of the office of the Clerk of the District Court, in Hancock County, on a judgement rendered March 21st. 1923, Term of said Court, A. D., for the sum of Thirteen Thousand Six Hundred Nine & 88-100 DOLLARS debt, and Six Hundred Seventy two & 34-100 Dollars costs, in favor of Almon G. Danforth, Trustee, and against John B. Spitler, Nora Spitler, George W. Kluckhohn, John M. Bergland, Louisa Kluckhohn, and Carl Caltvedt, F. Josephs. Mrs. F. Josephs, W. C Tyrrell, Jr. Trustee, Sarah Bergland, & State Savings Bank. Klemme, Ia., and to the Sheriff of Hancock County, directed, I have levied upon the following described property, to-wit: The Southwest Quarter, of Section Twenty-Five (25), Township Ninety-Five (95), North Range Twenty-Three (23), West of the 5th P. M.. Hancock County, Iowa.

NOW, THEREFORE, Public Notice is hereby given that I shall, on the 23rd day of April 1923, at 10 o'clock A. M., at the front door of the Court House, in Garner, in Hancock County, offer and sell at public outcry, to the highest bidder for cash, all the right, title and interest that he above named Defendans had on the 23rd day of March A. D. 1923 or now have in and to the above described property, or so much thereof as is necessary to satisfy said execution. together with costs and all accruing costs, unless the same shall be sooner satisfied.

Dated at the Sheriff's office in Garner, this 23rd day of March, 1923 A. D.

E. P. HANSON
Sheriff of Hancock County, Iowa.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Notice is hereby given that proposals for the erection of an addition to the school house in the Independent District of Klemme, Hancock County, Iowa, and for the plumbing and heating therein, will be received by the undersigned in Klemme, Iowa, until One O'clock P. M., April 27th, 1923, bids will be opened at 8:00 O'clock P. M. on the same date, at which time contract will be let to the lowest responsible bidder. Plans and specifications may be seen at the First National Bank. The Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Dated at Klemme, Iowa, March 27, 1923.

LEW LEWIS,
Secretary Independent District of Klemme.
(Pub. Mrch 29, April 5-12-19.)

NOTICE FOR BUILDING SCHOOL HOUSE

Notice is hereby given that the proposals for the erection of a school house in the township of Ell, in the county of Hancock, will be received by the undersigned at his office in Ell Township, where plans and specifications may be seen, until 1 o'clock P. M., May 2. 1923, at which time the contract will be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder. The Board reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

Dated April 3, 1923.

PETER JOSTEN,
Secretary.
(A 5-12-19-26) Klemme, Iowa.

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT OF ADMINISTRATOR

Notice is Hereby Given. That the undersigned has been duly appointed and qualified as Executor of the Estate of FRED R. CHASE late of Hancock County, State of Iowa, deceased. All persons indebted to the estate are requested to make imdiate payment; and those having claims against the same will present them, duly authenticated, to the undersigned, for allowance.

Dated April 4, A. D. 1923,

ELVA CHASE,
Administratrix.
By Ramsay & Blackstone,
(A-5-12-19) Her Attorneys.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Lau, of Mason City drove over here last Thursday for a visit with Klemme relatives and friends. August drove over a fine Stephens sedan which he demonstrated to some prospects. It is a fine car.

The Ladies Aid Society of the English M. E. Church held their regular meeting last Thursday afternoon in the First National Bank Basement. They enjoyed a social good time. A supper was also served by the ladies to all the members and their families.

The National Road Construction Company's gang of men have been busy the past week loading up the road building equipment and have a whole train load of stuff. It looks like a big circus leaving town. They are shipping to some point in Illinois where they have road work to do.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Keraus drove over to Clear Lake Monday. They had their car packed full to the roof with household supplies. They are going to stay there in their cottage until the snow flies in the fall. Charles wants to get there in plenty of time so he can get his share of the fish.

o o o o o o o o o o o o o
o DENTIST o
o J. L. Hesselhuus, D. D. S. o
o Office Hours 8-12 1-5:30 o
o Office Opposite State Savings o
o Bank; In Schaffer Bldg. o
o Evening Work By Appointment o
o Only o
o Klemme, Ia. Phone 81 o
o o o o o o o o o o o o o

GEORGE ZINN, M. D.
Physician and Surgeon
Office opposite from Hotel Klemme
Phone No. 19
Eyes Examined Glasses Fit

Next Time Try
Sausage
You will like our sausage, it's made of quality meats properly prepared and seasoned. Buy it in Link
Pork
Liver
Summer
Bologna
It's Good
Ask For
"HEINZ 57"
We Have Them
J. P. Larsen & Sons
The Klemme Meat Market

Caps
We have a fine assortment of Men's and Young Men's Caps in attractive materials and shapes.
Prices $1.50to2.75

Shirts and Underwear
Men, the shirts for spring and summer are splendid and the showing I have to offer is very complete. You can purchase them collar attached; also with collar to match and negligee. Many of you are changing underwear for different weights--see what I have before buying.

Neckwear
All the new things and at prices to suit you.

The Men's Fashion Shop
A. W. JOHNSON
GARNER IOWA

Send Us Your Name and address on a post card or in a letter and we will mail free and postpaid, a sample copy of the most wonderful magazine published 160 pages and 400 pictures every month, that will entertain every member of the family.
Popular Mechanics MAGAZINE
It contains interesting and instructive articles on the Home, Farm, Shop and Office—the newest developments in Radio, Aviation, Automobile and Garage. Each issue contains something to interest everybody.
We do not employ subscription solicitors so you will not be urged to subscribe and you are not obligating yourself in the least in asking for a free sample copy. We gladly send it to prospective readers. If you like it you can buy a copy every month from any newsdealer or send us your subscription—$3.00 for one year.
Popular Mechanics Company
200-214 E. Ontario Street, CHICAGO, ILL.
Popular Mechanics building is devoted exclusively to the production of this great magazine.

-- Selling Out Sale --
Entire Jobbers' Stocks at 50c on the Dollar

The Great Sale is now on in full swing. Hundreds of bargains are offered that space in this paper does not permit us to mention. Out of town people will find this sale to be the greatest money-saving sale and the greatest saving event for you that you can ever imagine. TREMENDOUS was the response of the thrifty buyers who took advantage of our sale. If you have not yet visited our store, and saved money, it is your duty to come here. We pay your railroad fare or gasoline if you purchase any amount over $35.00. You can make a good day's wage by coming to our store. Come! Rain or shine, and do justice to your dollar.

U.S. Army Harness
Heavy government cable trace harness—traces heavy leather covered, copper plated cable traces 6 ft long and heel chains. stronger than any leather traces. Harness heavy Concord clip Bridles, 1 in Lines, 1 1-8 in by 20 ft. Breeching 2 1-4 in. single straps, Breast straps 1 1-2 in Worth $65, now on sale for only $39.75

Warning To Farmers
We have added to our line U. S. Government Harness just the kind or harness you are using on your farm. The best harness that could be got. Nothing better than the government harness. Come in and see them.

U. S. Harness
Finest grade leather, worth $85.00 Concord flat traces, on sale at only, per set $44.75
Don't buy your harness elsewhere before seeing our harness first. We will save you $25 to $30 on a set.

DON'T FORGET
We not only have harness on sale but the entire stock is on sale now at ridiculously low prices. Bring the entire familp in and Save Money.
CURRY COMBS 32c

NOSE BAGS
U. S. Bags cost gov't $2, on sale here..... 48c
ARMY COTS
Well made and durable $5 seller $3.45
GAG BITS 35c

TEAM HAME STRAPS
1x1 1-2 inches, each 22c
$3.00 U. S. ARMY HALTERS
Best quality leather 1 1-4 inch thru-out 98c

U. S. ARMY SADDLES
Regulation McClellan saddles. The saddles cost the government $40, new $8.85
U. S. PONY BITS
Forged steel 19c

SHOES For Boys $1.49
WORK SHIRTS 38c
SOAP Palm Olive 5c
COATS THREAD 150 yd. long 4c
SUITS For Boys $2.95
SUITS For Men $8.85

SHERMAN SAMPLE STORE
18 South Federal Avenue, Between Killian's Dept. Store and Woolworth's 5 and 10 Cent Store. MASON CITY, IOWA.

DESERT GOLD by Zane Grey

Author of Riders of the Purple Sage, Wildfire, Etc.

Copyright by Harper & Brothers.

APTER XV.—Continued.
—15—

ne! Thorne! it's all right, right!" cried Gale, in piercing "Mercedes is safe! Yaqui er! Rojas is done for! Yaqui down the wall and drove the off the ledge. Cut him loose e wall, foot by foot, hand by We've won the fight, Thorne." Thorne these were marvelous -giving words. The dark hor- his eyes, and they began to to shine. He stood up, dizzily ided, and he gazed across the Yaqui had reached the side of es, was bending over her. She Yaqui lifted her to her feet. ppeared weak, unable to stand But she faced across the crater waved her hand. She was un- ed. The Yaqui waved, too, and saw in the action an urgent tly taking up canteen and Gale put a supporting arm nd Thorne.

Come, old man. Can you walk? e you can walk! Lean on me, and ll soon get out of this. Don't look s. Look where you step. We've much time before dark. Oh, rne, I'm afraid Jim has cashed in! d the last I saw of Laddy he was hurt."

e was keyed up to a high pitch xcitement and alertness. He d to be able to do many things. t once off the ragged notched lava o the trail he had not such difficulty Thorne, and could keep his gaze shifting everywhere for ht of enemies.

"Listen, Thorne! What's that?" ed Gale, halting as they came to a e where the trail led down through gh breaks in the lava. The silence s broken by a strange sound, al- st unbelievable considering the e and place. A voice was droning: rn the lady, turn! Turn the lady, ! Alamon left. All swing; turn ady, turn!"

ello, Jim," called Gale, dragging ne round the corner of lava. ere are you? Oh, you son of a ! I thought you were dead. Oh, glad to see you! Jim, are you ?"

m Lash stood in the trail leaning the butt of his rifle, which evi- ly he was utilizing as a crutch. was pale but smiling. His hands re bloody. A scarf had been bound tly round his left leg just above knee. The leg hung limp, and the dragged.

"I reckon I ain't injured much," re- d Jim. "But my leg hurts like l, if you want to know."

"Laddy! Oh, where's Laddy?"

"He's just across the crack there. was trying to get to him. We had hot an' heavy down here. Laddy s pretty bad shot up before he tried head Rojas off the trail. . . . ick, did you see the Yaqui go after ojas?"

"Did I?" exclaimed Gale, grimly.

"The finish was all that saved me om runnin' loco. I reckon our hances are against findin' Laddy live. . . . I tell you, boys, Rojas s h—l-bent. An' Mercedes was me. I saw her shoot him. But ebbe bullets couldn't stop him then. I didn't sweat blood when Mercedes s fightin' him on the cliff! Then e finish! Only a Yaqui could have ne that. . . . Thorne, how about u? Dick, is he bad hurt?"

"No, he's not. A hard knock on the ull and a scalp wound," replied ick. "Here, Jim let me help you er this place."

Step by step Gale got the two in- red men down the uneven declivity d then across the narrow lava bridge er the fissure. Here he bade them st while he went along the trail on at side to search for Laddy. Gale ound the ranger stretched out, face ownward, a reddened hand clutching gun. Gale thought he was dead. pon examination, however, it was ound that Ladd still lived, though he ad many wounds. Gale lifted him nd carried him back to the others.

"He's alive, but that's all," said ick, as he laid the ranger down. "Do hat you can. Stop the blood. Lad- y's tough as cactus, you know. I'll urry back for Mercedes and Yaqui."

Gale, like a fleet, sure-footed moun- ain sheep, ran along the trail. He ame upon Mercedes and the Yaqui. She ran right into Dick's arms, and hen her strength, if not her courage, roke, and she grew lax.

"Mercedes, you're safe! Thorne's afe. It's all right now."

"Rojas!" she whispered.

"Gone! To the bottom of the rater! A Yaqui's vengeance, Mer- edes."

He heard the girl whisper the name of the Virgin. Then he gathered her up in his arms.

"Come, Yaqui."

The Indian grunted. He had one hand pressed close over a bloody place in his shoulder. Gale looked keenly at him. Yaqui was inscrutable, as of old, yet Gale somehow knew that wound meant little to him. The In- dian followed him.

Gale carried Mercedes up to the im and along to the others. Jim Lash worked awkwardly over Ladd. Thorne was trying to assist. Ladd, himself, was conscious, but he was a pallid, apparently a death-stricken man. The greeting between Mercedes and Thorne was calm—strangely so, it seemed to Gale. But he was now calm himself. Ladd smiled at him, and evidently would have spoken had he the power. Yaqui then joined the group, and his piercing eyes roved from one to the other, lingering longest over Ladd.

"Dick, I'm figger'n' hard," said Jim, faintly. "In a minute it'll be up to you an' Mercedes. I've about shot my bolt. . . . Reckon you'll do—best by bringin' up blankets—water—salt—firewood. Laddy's got—one chance—in a hundred. Fix him up—first. Use hot salt water. If my leg's broken—set it best you can. That hole in Yaqui—only'll bother him a day. Thorne's bad hurt. . . . Now rustle—Dick, old—boy."

Lash's voice died away in a husky whisper, and he quietly lay back, stretching out all but the crippled leg. Gale examined it, assured himself the bones had not been broken, and then rose ready to go down the trail.

"Thorne! Thorne! It's All Right, It's All Right!" Cried Gale, in Piercing Tones. "Mercedes Is Safe!"

"Mercedes, hold Thorne's head up, in your lap—so. Now I'll go."

On the moment Yaqui appeared to have completed the binding of his wounded shoulder, and he started to follow Gale. The descent to the arroyo was swift and easy. Gale hastily put together the things he needed; and, packing them all in a tarpaulin, he turned to retrace his steps up the trail.

Darkness was setting in. The trail was narrow, exceedingly steep, and in some places fronted on precipices. Gale's burden was not very heavy, but its bulk made it unwieldy, and it was always overbalancing him or knocking against the wall side of the trail. At last they reached a level, and were soon on the spot with Mercedes and the injured men.

Gale then set to work. Yaqui's part was to keep the fire blazing and the water hot, Mercedes' to help Gale in what way she could. Gale found Ladd had many wounds, yet not one of them was directly in a vital place. Evidently, the ranger had almost bled to death. He remained unconscious through Gale's operations.

Jim Lash came out of his stupor. A mushrooming bullet had torn a great hole in his leg. Gale, upon examination, could not be sure the bones had been missed, but there was no bad break. The application of hot salt water made Jim groan. When he had been bandaged and laid beside Ladd, Gale went on to the cavalryman. A furrow had been plowed through his scalp down to the bone. When it had been dressed, Mercedes collapsed. Gale laid her with the three in a row and covered them with blankets and the tarpaulin.

Then Yaqui submitted to examination. A bullet had gone through the Indian's shoulder. To Gale it appeared serious. Yaqui said it was a flea bite. But he allowed Gale to bandage it, and obeyed when he was told to lie quiet in his blanket beside the fire.

Gale stood guard. The hour had come for him to face his great problem. It was natural that he hung back a little at first; natural that when he went forward to look at the quiet sleepers he did so with a grim and stern force urging him. Yaqui stirred, roused, yawned, got up; and, though he did not smile at Gale, a light shone swiftly across his dark face. His shoulder drooped and appeared stiff, otherwise he was himself. Mercedes lay in deep slumber. Thorne had a high fever, and was beginning to show signs of restlessness. Ladd seemed just barely alive. Jim Lash slept as if he was not much the worse for his wound.

Gale awoke Mercedes. Swiftly she sat up.

"Mercedes—come. Are you all right? Laddy is alive. Thorne's not—not so bad. But we've got a job on our hands. You must help me."

She bent over Thorne and laid her hands on his hot face. Then she rose—a woman such as he had imagined she might be in an hour of trial.

Gale took up Ladd as carefully and gently as possible.

"Mercedes, bring what you can carry and follow me," he said. Then, motioning for Yaqui to remain there, he turned down the slope with Ladd in his arms.

Neither pausing nor making a misstep nor conscious of great effort, Gale carried the wounded man down into the arroyo. Mercedes kept at his heels, light, supple, lithe as a panther. He left her with Ladd and went back. When he had started off with Thorne in his arms he felt the tax on his strength. Surely and swiftly, however, he bore the cavalryman down the trail to lay him beside Ladd. Again he started back, and when he began to mount the steep lava steps he was hot, wet, breathing hard. As he reached the scene of that night's camp a voice greeted him. Jim Lash was sitting up.

"Hello, Dick. I woke some late this mornin'. Where's Laddy? Where's Thorne an' Mercedes? Look here, man! I reckon you ain't packin' this crippled outfit down that awful trail?"

"Had to, Jim—an hour's sun—would kill—both Laddy and Thorne. Come on, now."

For once Jim Lash's cool good nature and careless indifference gave precedence to amaze and scorn.

"Always knew you was a husky chap. But, Dick, you're no hoss! Get me a crutch an' give me a lift on one side."

"Come on," replied Gale. "I've no time to monkey."

He lifted the ranger, called to Yaqui to follow with some of the camp outfit, and once more essayed the steep descent. Jim Lash was the heaviest man of the three, and Gale's strength was put to enormous strain to carry him on that broken trail. Nevertheless, he went down, down, walking swiftly and surely over the bad places; and at last he staggered into the arroyo with bursting heart and red-blinded eyes. When he had recovered he made a final trip up the slope for the camp effects which Yaqui had been unable to carry.

In the labor of watching and nursing it seemed to Gale that two days and two nights slipped by like a few hours. Then Gale succumbed to weariness. After his much-needed rest he relieved Mercedes of the care and watch over Thorne which, up to that time, she had absolutely refused to relinquish. The cavalryman required constant attention. His condition slowly grew worse, and there came a day which Gale thought surely was the end. But that day passed, and the night, and the next day, and Thorne lived on, ghastly, stricken, raving. Suddenly, and to Gale's amaze and thanksgiving, there came an abatement of Thorne's fever. With it some heat and redness of the inflamed wound disappeared. Next morning he was conscious, and Gale grasped some of the hope that Mercedes had never abandoned. He forced her to rest while he attended to Thorne. That day he saw that the crisis was past. Recovery for Thorne was now possible, and would perhaps depend entirely upon the care he received.

Gale Carried the Wounded Man Down Into the Arroyo.

Jim Lash's wound healed without any aggravating symptoms. It would be only a matter of time until he had the use of his leg again. All these days, however, there was little apparent change in Ladd's condition, unless it was that he seemed to fade away as he lingered. Then Yaqui asked for the care of Ladd. The Indian absented himself from camp for a while, and when he returned he carried the roots and leaves of desert plants unknown to Gale. From these the Indian brewed an ointment. Then he stripped the bandages from Ladd and applied the mixture to his wounds. That done, he let him lie with the wounds exposed to the air, at night covering him. Next day he again exposed the wounds to the warm, dry air. Slowly they closed, and Ladd ceased to bleed externally.

Days passed and grew into what Gale imagined must have been weeks. Yaqui recovered fully. Jim Lash began to move about on a crutch; he shared the Indian's watch over Ladd. Thorne lay a haggard, emaciated ghost of his former rugged self, but with life in the eyes that turned always toward Mercedes. Ladd lingered and lingered. The life seemingly would not leave his bullet-pierced body. The tireless, implacable, inscrutable savage was ever at the ranger's side. His great somber eyes burned. At length he went to Gale, and with that strange light flitting across the hard bronzed face, he said Ladd would live.

* * * * * * *

The second day after Ladd had been given such thin nourishment as he could swallow he recovered the use of his tongue.

"Shore—this's h—l," he whispered.

That was a characteristic speech for the ranger, Gale thought; and indeed it made all who had heard it smile while their eyes were wet.

From that time forward Ladd gained, but he gained so immeasurably slowly that only the eyes of hope could have seen any improvement. Jim Lash threw away his crutch, and Thorne was well, if still somewhat weak, before Ladd could lift his arm or turn his head. His whispers grew stronger. And the day arrived when Gale, who was perhaps the least optimistic, threw doubt to the winds and knew the ranger would get well.

* * * * * * *

"Boys, come round," said Ladd, in his low voice. "An' you, Mercedes. An' call the Yaqui."

Ladd lay in the shade of the brush shelter that had been erected. There seemed little of him but long, lean lines, and if it had not been for his keen, thoughtful, kindly eyes, his face would have resembled a death mask of a man starved.

"Shore I want to know what day is it an' what month?" asked Ladd.

Nobody could answer him. The question seemed a surprise to Gale, and evidently was so to the others.

"Look at that cactus," went on Ladd.

"I reckon according to that giant cactus it's somewheres along the end of March," said Jim Lash, soberly.

"Shore it's April. Look where the sun is. An' can't you feel it's gettin' hot?"

"Supposin' it is April?" queried Lash, slowly.

"Well, what I'm drivin' at is it's about time you all was hittin' the trail back to Forlorn River, before the waterholes dry out."

"Laddy, I reckon we'll start soon as you're able to be put on a hoss."

"Shore that'll be too late."

A silence ensued, in which those who heard Ladd gazed fixedly at him and then at one another. Lash uneasily shifted the position of his lame leg, and Gale saw him moisten his lips with his tongue.

"Charlie Ladd, I ain't reckonin' you mean we're to ride off an' leave you here?"

"What else is there to do? The hot weather's close. Pretty soon most of the waterholes will be dry. You can't travel then. . . . I'm on my back here, an' God only knows when I could be packed out. Not for weeks, mebbe. I'll never be any good again, even if I was to get out alive. . . . You see, shore this sort of case comes round sometimes in the desert. It's common enough. I've heard of several cases where men had to go an' leave a feller behind. It's reasonable. If you're fightin' the desert you can't afford to be sentimental. . . . Now, as I said, I'm all in. So what's the sense of you waitin' here, when it means the old desert story? By goin' now mebbe you'll get home. Shore now, boys, you'll see this the right way? Jim, old pard?"

"No, Laddy, an' I can't figger how you could ever ask me."

"Shore then leave me here with Yaqui an' a couple of the hosses. We can eat sheep meat. An' if the water holds out—"

"No!" interrupted Lash, violently.

Ladd's eyes sought Gale's face.

"Son, you ain't bull-headed like Jim. You'll see the sense of it. There's Nell a-waitin' back at Forlorn River. Think what it means to her! You'll go, son, won't you?"

Dick shook his head.

The ranger turned his gaze upon Thorne, and now the keen, glistening eyes had blurred.

"Thorne, it's different with you. Jim's a fool, an' young Gale has been punctured by choya thorns. He's got the desert poison in his blood. But you now—you've no call to stick—you can find that trail out. Take your wife an' go. . . . Shore you'll go, Thorne?"

Deliberately and without a moment's hesitation the cavalryman replied "No."

Ladd then directed his appeal to Mercedes. His face was now convulsed, and his voice, though it had sunk to a whisper, was clear, and beautiful with some rich quality that Gale had never before heard in it.

"Mercedes, you're a woman. You're the woman we fought for. An' some of us are shore goin' to die for you. Don't make it all for nothin'. Let us feel we saved the woman. Shore you can make Thorne go. He'll have to go if you say. They'll all have to go. Think of the years of love an' happiness in store for you. A week or so an' it'll be too late. Mercedes, don't make it all for nothin'. Say you'll persuade Thorne, if not the others."

"Mercedes, You're a Woman. You're the Woman We Fought For."

For all the effect his appeal had to move her, Mercedes might have possessed a heart as hard and fixed as the surrounding lava.

"Never!"

White-faced, with great black eyes flashing, the Spanish girl spoke the word that bound her and her companions in the desert.

The subject was never mentioned again. Gale thought that he read a sinister purpose in Ladd's mind. To his astonishment, Lash came to him with the same fancy. After that they made certain there never was a gun within reach of Ladd's clutching, clawlike hands.

Gradually a somber spell lifted from the ranger's mind. When he was entirely free of it he began to gather strength daily. Then it was as if he had never known patience—he who had shown so well how to wait. He was in a frenzy to get well. His appetite could not be satisfied.

The sun climbed higher, whiter, hotter. Every day the water in the lava hole sank an inch.

The Yaqui alone spent the waiting times in activity. He made trips up on the lava slope, and each time he returned with guns or boots or sombreros, or something belonging to the bandits that had fallen.

Those waiting days grew into weeks. Ladd gained very slowly. Nevertheless, at last he could walk about, and soon he averred that, strapped to a horse, he could last out the trip to Forlorn River.

There was rejoicing in camp, and plans were eagerly suggested. The Yaqui happened to be absent. When he returned the rangers told him they were now ready to undertake the journey back across lava and cactus.

Yaqui shook his head. They declared again their intention.

"No!" replied the Indian, and his deep, sonorous voice rolled out upon the quiet of the arroyo. He spoke briefly then. They had waited too long. The smaller waterholes back in the trail were dry. The hot summer was upon them. There could be only death waiting down in the burning valley. Here was water and grass and wood and shade from the sun's rays, and sheep to be killed on the peaks.

"Wait for rain," concluded Yaqui, and now as never before he spoke as one with authority. "If no rain—" Silently he lifted a speaking hand.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

"Only a Man."

Edith Wharton, the writer, told this war story: "The American wounded were being brought in from the second Marne battle," she said, "and a fussy-looking woman in a khaki uniform and Sam Browne belt knelt over the stretcher and said, 'Is this an officer, or only a man?'

"The brawny corporal who stood beside the stretcher gave her a grim laugh and said: 'Well, lady, he ain't no officer, but he's been hit twice in the innards, both legs busted, he's got two bullets in both arms and we dropped him three times without his lettin' out a squeak, so I guess ye can call him a man.'"—Argonaut.

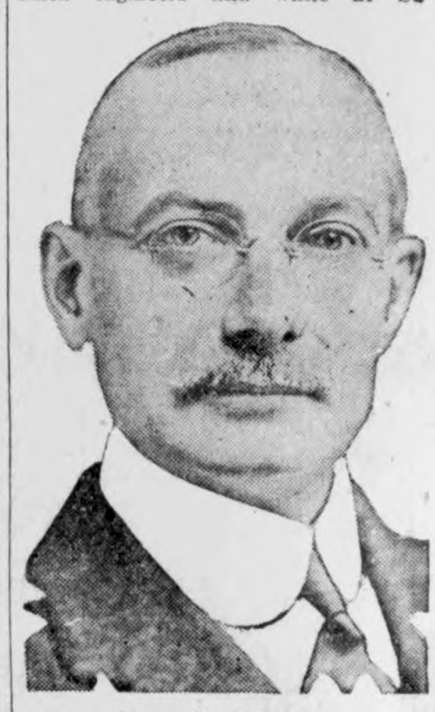
AFTER 3,000 LEGION MEMBERS

Syracuse (N. Y.) Post, Headed by H. B. Brewster, in Midst of Strenuous Campaign.

During his World war days, Henry B. Brewster of Syracuse, N. Y., served for a time as a member of the peace commission to assess damages suffered by Rumania from German invaders. He is now commander of the Syracuse post of the American Legion and is leading his comrades in a campaign to obtain 3,000 Legion members.

Although he was well past the draft age, Mr. Brewster began to study military science one month after war was declared. He was commissioned a captain of engineers in July, 1917, and was sent to Camp Belvour, Va., where he was in charge of a regiment of engineers engaged in constructing the camp.

He served overseas with the Sixty-sixth engineers and while at St.



Henry B. Brewster.

Dizier received an injury. Later he served on the peace commission and was attached to the chief engineers' office at Tours. Major Brewster received a citation from General Pershing "for extraordinary and meritorious service."

IN FAVOR OF STATE BONUS

Oklahoma Legion Men's Referendum Results in Large Majority for Compensation Action.

"They fought not only for the American flag and American institutions but for every section of land in Oklahoma," Gov. J. C. Walton of Oklahoma declared in his inaugural address, referring to ex-service men of the World war.

"There are sections of land in Oklahoma that have produced $50,000,000. I am in favor of giving these soldiers the wealth produced by one section of our land, and I recommend that the bonus bill be again submitted to the people at a special election which it is the power of the legislature to do by joint resolution."

The state bonus bill advocated by Governor Walton during the campaign provided $50 a month for ex-service men for each month of service during the World war. Although the bill had the united opposition of all interests that would be taxed, nearly 25,000 more voted for the measure than against it, but it lost by approximately 4,500 votes, lacking that number of having a majority of all votes cast in the election.

The American Legion of Oklahoma was neutral, taking no stand for or against the measure. Governor Walton recommended resubmission of the same bill with the elimination of the tax on oil refineries.

In view of the large favorable vote cast, the American Legion took a referendum vote of its membership to see whether they favored a "reasonable state adjusted compensation measure." At a meeting of the department executive committee the vote was canvassed and showed a large majority in favor of some sort of a state bonus.

MINNESOTA HOLDS RECORD

Legion Is Co-Operating With State in Planting Memorials to Men Who Fell in War.

The American Legion is co-operating with the state of Minnesota in the reforestation program of the American Tree association to make Minnesota the "State of Tree-Lined Highways."

More trees than have hitherto ever been set out by a single state of the union were planted in Minnesota during 1922, because of the work of the 500 Legion posts in the state. In nearly every instance the trees were of black walnut, a species particularly adapted to southern Minnesota, but during the present year the state forestry department has made available other varieties.

Gerald Barron, commander of the American Legion in Minnesota, has issued a bulletin to Legionnaires throughout the state in which he asks continuance of the planting. The trees are placed at intervals of 50 feet on each side of the road, making about 210 to the mile and affording a welcome relief from glare of the sun and monotony of the road. No charge is made for the trees, and instructions for planting have been issued through the offices of the state forester. The days of planting are usually made holidays observed by the Legion posts, the auxiliary units, boy scout troops, and civic organizations.

1 cent
Brings It!
?

—Just write your name on a 1 cent Postal Card and mail it to the Klemme Times asking us to send you the Times for one year. One Cent brings it—pay us $1.50 after a month's trial for the balance of one year.

Show this ad to a friend whom you think should be a subscriber to the Times.

UNDER GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION

"Listening In"

Unless you are equipped with a Receiving Set you fail to hear the music and lectures that are all about you in the air.

Having money in the bank is like being equipped with a Radio Receiving Set. It prepares you to take advantage of the many opportunities that are about you. Being able to save money gives you a greater aid in a financial way than themere amount you save, it strengthens your credit.

Strive to keep your credit with your fellow men so you will be able to "LISTEN-IN" when the right opportunities are about you.

UNDER GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION

First National Bank

"The Bank for Everybody'.'

Checking Accounts

A Checking Account is a good business reference. It shows that you believe in keeping a complete record of all financial transactions.

The possession of a Checking Account shows that you possess method, caution and thrift. The people with whom you deal, will have more respect for you if you pay by cneck rather than by cash.

A reasonable deposit entitles you to a Checking Account at this bank, and we welcome new accounts.

Bank With Us!

5 PER CENT SAVINGS

State Savings Bank

Klemme Iowa

News of Klemme and Vicinity

Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth of Goodell were shopping in Klemme Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Jacobs spent Sundap visiting Garner relatives.

R. A. Jorgenson and family spent Sunday at Garner.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S D Kahrs spent Sunday visiting with Goodell friends.

Mrs. Cook, of Goodell, was a visitor in Klemme Tuesday.

Mrs. Johnson, of Goodell, was a Klemme visitor Tuesday.

Audrey Church, of Forest City, was in town Tuesday, tuning pianos.

Miss Lola Smith was a visitor at Clear Lake Tuesday.

Buy Scissors Guides at Wellemeyer's. adv

You can buy Lady Vee Ja "The giver of beauty," Clay Pack at McCulloughs, and only 50c a jar. adv.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Buss of Goodell, were Klemme visitors on Tuesday of this week.

FOR SALE—My residence property 2 blocks from Main Stt, in Klemme. Carl Suckow. (2p)

If your hair is wild and unruly, use "Hair Groom" or "Comb Aid," Get it atMcCullough's adv.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bachman and Mrs. Hansen drove to Garner last Friday on business.

Mrs. O. A. Johnson from Goodell, was a Klemme visitor between trains Monday.

The Royal Neighbors met at the hall last Friday afternoon. The ladies report a fine meeting.

FOR SALE—A good tennis racket good as new and used but little, cheap. Inquire at Times Office.

Laundry Basket leaves Wellemeyer's every Wednesday. and comes back every Saturday. adv

Note Book Paper at the Times Print Shop. Punched for 6-inch center loose leaf covers. tfc

Mr, George Hake. of Belmond, was a visitor with relatives here yesterday.

Mr. Will Bachman and daughter, Lela, and Mrs. Clarence Bachman, were Garner visitors Tuesday.

Mrs. John Josten returned from Monona, Iowa, Tuesday, where she has been visiting her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lewis and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Platt drove to Sheffield Sunday for a visit Supervisor G. B. Lawhorn. of Garner, was in Klemme and vicinity on business Monday.

Supervisor Berhow, of Kanawha. was a business caller in this vicinity Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hake and their daughter Maurine. went to Belmond Saturday night for an over Sunday visit.

J. P. Larsen came up from Belmond Monday morning for a short visit with his son Clarence and family

Elmer Fuller and family drove over from Clear Lake the fore part of the week, being called here by the serious illness of Mrs. Albert Fuller.

Miss Mable Waterman, teacher in the Belmond school, came Friday for a week end visit with her parents here.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hake and Miss Maurine went to Belmond last week Thursday evening for a short visit, returning the following morning.

Mr. and Mrs. LuVerne Smith were passengers to Belmond Thursday evening for a short visit with relatives.

Mrs. Albert Fuller has been seriously ill the past few days and Miss Mae Ferlemann of Garner, nurse, is here caring for her.

Dr. Long, of Hampton. was here yesterday in consultation with Dr. Missman on the Mrs. Albert Fuller case. Mrs, Fuller is very ill at this writing.

"Happy" Johnson returned last Friday from a ten days vacation which he spent visiting with his mother and other relatives at Paxton, Illinois.

Charles Gibbs, of Big Lake, Minn. came Saturday evening and remained over Sunday visiting with his mother Mrs. Asa Gibbs and other relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Keraus returned Saturday evening from their visit at Aberdeen, S. Dak. Mr. C. F. Keraus drove up to Garner to get them.

Mr. and Mrs. Chris Jacobs of Garner and their daughter, Mrs. C. J. Papousek of Belmond, were visiting Klemme relatives and friends last Friday afternoon

Dr. Zinn returned yesterday from his visit of about ten days with his father and other relatives in Canada. Doc. found his father hale and also hearty.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Buss, who last week moved to Goodell. have rented the Frank Clark residence at that place. It is located in the north part of Goodell.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Shipley drove over from Belmond yetserday afternoon for a visit with Mrs. Schroeder and Mrs. Croner. They are in the hotel business at Belmond.

Typewriter ribbons at the Times Print Shop. Black, and Red and Black for all standard machines, at 75c. There is no better ribbon than the Remington. tfc

Little Laura Lanahan was four years old today, and in honor of the happy event her mother planned a birthday party for her, inviting about twenty of her little friends and their mohers.

Mart Bachman is now driving a new Buick Six touring car which he purchased last week. He said his old Buick was a little out of style now as he has had it eleven years, but she still hit on all four.

Ladies will be glad to learn, that Wellemeyer's carry in stock the hi-neck cotton vests in all sizes, also the adhesive tape which are the necessary materials for making Dress Forms. adv

Does your Piano need tuning?—Does your Player need adjusting?—Audrey Church is the Piano Tuner and Player Repair Man who has been coming to Wellemeyer's Store every now and then for many years. He will be here again about the last week in April; leave your orders at Wellemeyer's. adv

The Creamery Company is doing a lot of repairing the past week. Art Kuck is the handy boy who heaves the mud into the bricks and is that "nigger" you saw working with the bricks on top of the smoke stack. Art gained a darker complexion due to the fact that the smoke always blew in the wrong direction. He also made the chimney a few feet higher.

If You Need a New

HAYES

Four Wheel Planter

AND DON'T BUY IT,

you will pay for it in yield and dollar losses.

You Can Buy it Now at the Price You are Glad to Pay

Used for thirty-seven years by more corn belt farmers than any other planter

Henry Lau Son

New Coal Prices

Effective Aprl 1st

Kind	Price
Blue Sky Semi-Anthracite	$13.5
High Grade New Ohio Egg	9.5
Glendora 'The Wonder Coal'	9.5

Put in your supply now, April price is lowest of the year.

Watch for new prices next week

W. F. Lau

STILLE'S IMPLEMENT NEWS

VOLUME 1. Thursday. April 19, 1923. NUMBER

THEY'RE USE'N 'EM

Alfred Schlei is following a new LaCrosse steel lever harrow across the field this spring; he purchased it at our store.

Ed. Buentenbach got a new 13-ft. harrow from us to put back of his ten foot disk harrow; this sure will make a finished job in the field.

Henry Griffen, Ben Katter andEmil Beier are using new Boss Harrows, which they purchased at our store.

Ridder Bros. are riding on a new International harrow cart.

Ben Reemstma is going to ride on a brand new International harrow cart behind a brand new International Steel flexible harrow.

Fred Schmidt is using a new Hoosier Endgate Seeder this spring and Adrian Beliefeld is going to scatter the seed with a new John Deere Advance endgate seeder. They purchased them at our store.

Vic Schoenwetter came in and got one of those famous McCormick-Deering feed grinders. He took a ten inch size and is going to pull it with a twelve horse engine. With his outfit he will be able to do a lot of grinding in a little while.

A splendid way to make a husband stay home nights is to stay there with him occasionally.

BARGAINS

Linseed Oil either boiled or raw at $1.10 a gallon.

Feeding Pans for the pigs as well as the old hog, at 65 cents.

One good second hand harrow and cart, $12.50 to the first caller.

Our Motor Oil is a bargain at twice the price. Get Yours!

Planter Profits

Your soil may be rich, your seed bed in A-1 shape, the weather favorable and your seed of the very best yet you are likely to have a poor stgtand unless your planter puts every hill in its place and makes every hill a full hill. Before you can get planter profits you must have a planter you can absolutely depend on. The International No. 8 is such a planter. It is designed and built with just one end in view—to drop accurately and to check evenly—place every hill where it belongs and to make every hill a full one. Accuracy—thats it—and it spells Planter Profits for you. Buy and use an International No. 8 Corn Planter this year. We sell 'em.

THE KLEMME TIMES

ty-seventh Year—Number 33. Klemme, Iowa, Thursday Afternoon, April 26, 1923. $1.50 In Advance—$2.00 Outside of County

EWS OF THE WEEK'S DOINGS AT HIGH SCHOOL

THE HONOR LIST

omores and Freshman Averages Increase a Great Deal was announced last week the r list has been prepared for the six weeks period. Following list of students and their aver-

Freshman

in Barz	97¼ %
Johnson	96¼ %
a Bock	96 %
a Buss	96½ %
nce Behringer	95¼ %
l Schaeffer	95 %
he Hulse	94½ %
ra Stille	93½ %
k Gibbs	93½ %
el Bell	93 %
trice Busch	92 %
ne Lemke	91½ %
h Larsen	90 3-4 %
Giner	90¼ %

Sophomores

a Schroeder	98¼ %
ew Wellemeyer	97 %
ey Barz	94¼ %
ta Ridder	92 %
a Ridder ¼	92 %
ld Koerner	92 %
h Ax	91 3-4 %
rine Hake	90 3-4 %
n Busch	90 %

Juniors

ie Blank	98 %
tha Johnson	97 3-4 %
ence Elder	97 3-4 %
res Koerner	97 %
(Carying five subjects)
nice Tanner	96½ %

is very interesting to note the great increase of the Freshman Sophomores. It would stand Juniors well in hand to look out their recor.d

Sophomores have nine on the and have an enrollment of only ven. The Sophies claim that they e more members on the list than Juniors and therefore should e the honor, but the Juniors have undred percent of their members the list while the Sophmores have y eighty two percent. We will e to give the Sophomores credit increasing their number so much ough. It is hardly possible for a ss of their size to have all good dents, because there are always few who cannot keep up with the t. The Freshman and Sophomores th have excellent classes and de- ve a great deal of credit for their rk and their grades have shown great deal of effort and hard work increase their grades to such an ent.

KLEMME vs. MESERVEY

K. H. S. Wins Second Game By Score of 19-1

The High School baseball team n their second game of the season defeating Meservey last Friday a score of 19 to 1. Owing to the nditions of the weather only five nings were played. The Klemme emme boys all played a good me. Koerner pitched the entire me and held the Meservey boys thout a score until the last inning en through a low throw to third e run was made Koerner did me verp good work and is fast g to the front as a pitcher.

Following is the batting average the Klemme team.

	AB	R	LB	PO	SO
ellemeyer, LF	5	2	1	2	1
usch 1B	5	1	2	2	0
rgasen. SS	4	1	0	3	2
rsen, RF	4	4	0	0	0
oerner, P	4	3	1	0	0
lder, C	4	2	1	1	1
emke, 2B	4	0	0	4	3
mer, 3B	4	3	0	1	1
bbs, CF	4	3	0	1	1
x, Sub	0	0	0	0	0

ABrepresents At Bat; R,Runs; LB, eft on Base; PO. Put out. SO, Struck

Score by Innings:

Klemme	3	1	5	8	2
Meservey	0	0	0	0	1

Dr R. M. Thomas has umpired the past two games and has given all a square deal and we feel that all are satisfied. We wish to thank Doc for his services and we appreciate them very much. At a recent meeting Jack Wellemeyer made a motion that his salary be doubled. We are unable to say what his present wage will be because we do not know what they were before, but anyway we hope that the team will divide up the proceeds from the games with "doc".

The Next Baseball game will be with Thornton on April 27 at Klemme. This is going to be the last game in Klemme until picnic day. You w on't get to see the boys play for a whole month if you don't come out NEXT FRIDAY— !!!BOOST FOR YOUR TEAM!!!

"Prof Entertains.

Professor Neese hsa been giving the High School a real entertainment the last few mornings. It is a kind of continued story in fact: A story of a trip which he made with his parens and brohers and sisers several years ago. They had wto covered wagons and one spring buggy and traveled over four states, Iowa, Missouri, Arkansas. andOklahoma. They had many wonderful experiences and Mr. Neese tells them in such a way that the students were very much interested in it.

Varies Program

Profesor Neese varied the program for opening exercises Tuesday morning when he read a portion of scripture from the Bible. We think it is a very good idea. Last year the High school had scripture reading two mornings every week and we think that they enjoyed it very much

Study the Water

The Physical Geography class has jus taken up the study of Oceans. From some of the discusions that they have it must be a very interesting subject.

Study Negroes

The Sociology class has been studing the Negro problem. They find this to be a very serious problem and in fact may cause race riots in the future in the northern states, yet, if properly handled by the indusrial and religious classes of the north the problem will be solved in a satisfactory manner.

"Let's Go"

The Baseball team is going up to Crystal Lake next Tuesday to play a game of ball with the Crystal Lake team. Come along and help the team win. AndSay don't forget the game in KLEMME FRIDAY.

Study Russia and East

The modern history class has been studying Russia, Japan and China for the past few days. They are now prepared to take up the study of he Great War.

GRAMMER ROOM
Use Class Colors

The eighth grade have decorated their room with their class colors, which are red and white. It gives the room a very pleasing appearance.

Study Ivanhoe

The Eighth grade are studying Scott's Ivanhoe. They are taking it up as a class work and we are sure that they are finding it very interesting.

Algeba Already

Miss Smith is having her class of grade graduates starting to study Algebra. This is a very good idea, for it gives them a good start on their work for the coming year.and will make it easier for them.

To Flunk?

The eighth grade are very busy reviewing for their county examinations which take place on May 3 and 4th. The most of the students have but a few exams to take as hey passed mos of them in the previous examination. Here's hoping they pass alright.

INTERMEDIATE ROOM

The honor roll for the Intermediate room for the past six weeks has been prepareed. Following is the list with the averages made by the students.

4th GRADE
Raymond Schuldt 90.6%

5th GRADE
Clarice Wellemeyer 9 3.1%
Reva Elder 91.1%

6th GRADE
Lela Bachman 91.6%
Albert Keeper 90.2%

Names of those who were neither absent or tardy for the last six weeks are:

Irwin Swartz
Lela Bachman
Mabel Schuldt
Ester Larsen
Elmer Larsen
Willis Busch
Raymond Barz
Wayne Pavey
Erwin Buseman
Otho Keraus
Verner Priebe
Clarence Lemke
Henry Smid

This is a pretty good record and especially good in the fact that a great many of these children come from the country every morning.

Irwin Buseman was absent Thursday on account of sickness.

PRIMARY ROOM

Following is a list of primary students who were neither absent or tardy for the past six weeks.

Verl Keraus
Dorance Day
Elden Kesseler
Francile Darner
Ethel Barz
Blanche Gimer
Alvin Keeper
Earl Kelley
Ethel Schoenwetter
Dale Swartz

GAS TAX BILL KILLED

GOVERNOR VETOED GAS BILL

The gasoline tax bill which passed both Iowa Senate and House was vetoed by Governor Kendall Monday.

The bill provided for a 2 cent tax on all gasoline sold in Iowa. The funds thus derived to be used in the building of roads.

Kendall vetoed the bill because he stated it made an unjust tax on consumers of gasoline for use other than for transportation.

As the bill in its present form would be an unjust burden to dry cleaners. farmers use use tractors, users of gasoline engines for power and for heating or cooking.

ARE YOU ON LIST?

PETIT JURY DRAWN

May Term Of Court, May 14, 1923.

Geo. Hall	Garner
Dave Smith	Garner
Edna Lawhorn	Garner
C. C. Brennan,	Garner
Ed. Swanson	Garner
Lillie Terwilliger	Garner
Emma Wesson	Garner
Joe Horecka	Garner
Wm. Gilbert	Garner
R, J. Brewer	Garner
E. H. Arnett	Britt
Alfred Johnson	Britt
Ray Volding	Britt
W. A. Minor	Britt
Miner Schrader	Britt
Walter Mau	Britt
Ed. Nedved	Britt
Nellie Reynolds	Kanawha
Anna Vero	Kanawha
Jennie Berhow	Kanawha
Lula Wilkens	Goodell
L. H. Wilson	Goodell
Lawrence Smith	Goodell
A. Christensen	Woden
Jelle Tjaden	Woden
Philip Kehl	Corwith
Juanita Hussong	Corwith
Dora Kruse	Miller
Clara Olson	Ventura
H. F. Schlei	Klemme

Kota, a new hard red spring wheat of North Dakota has been found to resist to black stem rust.

Klemme Will Have Chemical Fire Fighting Apparatus

The Council met Monday evening to transact business. The Council appointed Arthur Kudje as the Town Clerk at a salary of $60 per year. to succeed J. N. Day, the former Clerk. A man was also here that evening and met with the Council and a Committee from the Fire Department and showed them plans and specifications for a chemical engine. He had a real good outfit. The Council are all for a chemical outfit but did not order any that night as they were unable to decide as which model they should purchase for the Fire Department. But it has been definitely decided to purchase an outfit soon.

The Fire Department will pay for a part of the equipment. They are desirous of equipping a Ford Truck with two tanks, and will also put on the ladders which they now have and either mount the large hose on the truck or else have it so they can hitch on to the hose truck. The idea is to consolidate the equipment so that a fire can be reached in the shortest possible time, and if it is mounted on a truck much valuable time can be gained in reaching a fire at the time when the first minutes count he most.

LOCK THEM UP NOW

There is an ordinance in effect in Klemme which states that chickens must be kept locked up the year round. but it has not been enforced during late fall, winter and early in the spring when the chickens have been running out as they could not then damage anything. But now that so many are making gardens it is best that owners of chickens see to it that the chickens do not run at large and damage the early spring gardener's choice vegetable plot.

WAS BAD FOR PIGS

LATE SNOW CUT PIG CROP

Loss May Be Partlp Met By Good Care

"The March Pig crop in Iawa has cut short about thirty percent. due to the heavy snow storms. during he later part of the month," says Dr. W. K. Stouder of the Extension Service, Iowa State College.

"But the farmer who is looking to profits in hogs can make up in part for his loss by taking extra good care of the sows that have farowed later.

According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture the number of brood sows on farms was greater this past year than the year before.

BIG MONEY IN EGGS

RECORD FLOCKS MAKE PROFIT

Eagle Grove Flock Averages 194 Eggs Per Bird

That the record flock work now being carried on by the extension service of the Iowa State College in an efficient way of finding out just how and where the poultry business need attention is shown by H. F. Druer, Eagle Grove, Iowa. Mr. Duer has 106 fowls which layed 20,567 eggs, or 194 egs per fowl last year.

According to Mr. Duer's report nis total feed cost amounted to $237.25 while his total repeipts notreached $1,117.75, giving him a profit of $880.50. This figure does not include the labor charge for the year. Mr. Duer secured a "lay" of 53 percent from his 106 bids

WICHMAN IS NORTHERN IOWA'S OLDEST MAN; WINS CONTEST

FATHER OF SENATOR WICHMAN OLDEST MAN IN NORTH IOWA

The Mason City Globe-Gazette recently put on a contest in order to find out who was the oldest person in Northern Iowa. Frederick Wichman. father of Sen. J. E. Wichman, of Garner was found to be the oldest man in Northern Iowa He was 100 years old on Januarp 8. The nearest competitor was 98 years of age.

Mr. Wichman says he has never been a faddist and gives no explanation for his longevity. He has always been temperate, but until a year or two ago still loved his pipe.

Mr. Wichman is an old Republican and has the distinction of having voted for every republican president since the party organized.

Looking back over the century of his life Mr. Wichman regards the downfall of the kaiser the greatest single event of his life. It was German imperialism which caused the Garner patriarch to leave his native land and become an American and for seventy-five years he has viewed with alarm Germany's territorial and commercial aspirations and the means used to attain them.

"When asked, "Why do pou suppose you have lived so long?" he at once replied "To see the Kaiser get licked."

In the '48ers gold rush to the west Mr. Wichman went into Idaho and Montana but did not go out into the fields in California.

Reading has been Mr. Wichman's principal delight for eighty years. "The Crisis" and "Freckles" are his favorite fiction and he has read each of these books dozens of times. For the past year his principal reading has been the Bible, but he occasionally reads through his church journals. Though his eyesight is still good. his hearing is considerably impaired. He still eats three meals a day and relishes them.

As a result of the Globe-Gazette Contest, Mr. Wichman will be presented with a gold headed cane as winner of this unique contest.

LADIES TO SERVE

LADIES' AID SUPPER

The Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church invitt everyone to attend their supper on Thursday, May 10. beginning at 5:30 o'clock until all are served, in the basement of the First National Bnak. Adults 50c, children 12 years and under 25c, and all children under 5 years served free. Bring your family and tell your friends. The proceeds go to the financial budget of the church.

IT PAYS TO SPRAY

SPRAYING MEANS CLEAN FRUIT

Type of Spray to Use in Each Case Depends Upon Disease or Insect Attacking

By selecting proper sprays, by applying them exactly as directed by the spray schedule and by spraping thoroly so that every part of the tree and fruit is covered, it is possible to produce clean fruit in everp orchard in Iowa, according to the Extension Service at Iowa State College.

The kind of spray to be applied in each individual case depends to a large degree upon whether the trouble is a disease or an insect and upon its method of attack.

For all insects having biting mouth parts. as the canker worm and codlin moth, which cause wormy appies, the college advises that lead arsenate be used at the rate of 1 or 1½ pounds to 50 gallons of spray solution of water.

For sucking insects the college recomends the use of nicotine sulfate or, as it is known commercially Black Lead 40. The aphis or plant plant louse comes under this class. One half pint of the nicotine sulfate to 50 gallons of water or spray solution, together with a half pound of soap to increase the spreading and sticking qualities, will do the job.

Lime sulfur is advised for certain fungus diseases, such as apple scab, and certain insects. such a oyster scale. If liquid lime sulfur is used it should test 32 degres Beaume. Liquid which has stood for some time should be tested with a hydrometer. When the powder form of lime sulfur is used, from 2.5 to 3 pounds are usually considered equal to a gallon of liquid. In large quantities the liquid form is the more economical.

Bordeaux mixture, a combination of copper sulfate and stone lime, will not control scale, but is an important fungicidal spray. It is usually made by using either 3 or 4 pounds of copper sulfate and 3or 4 pounds of stone lime to 50 gallons of water. The usual way is to dissolve the copper sulfate and dilute to 25 gallons, then slake the lime and add enough lime to make the other 25 gallons. The two liquids are then poured into a spray tank.

A series of five sprays is often applied. These are: the cluster bud spray, applied just as the apple blossoms are showing pink; petal drop or calyx spray, applied when the blosoms have fallen; first side worm spray, applied 10 to 14 days after the second: fourth spray applied about July 20 or 30; and the fifth spray, applied between August 15 and 25. The first sprays should be applied to all trees whether they are bearing or not, the college says.

A bulletin telling practically every thing essential in order to do spraying may be had by writing to Iowa State College for extension bulletin No. 81.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

The date named for receiving bids for the construction of an addition to the School Building in the Independent School District of Klemme has been postponed from April 27, 1923 to May 10, 1923.

LEW LEWIS, Sec.
Independent School District Klemme.

NOTICE FOR BUILDING SCHOOL HOUSE

Notice is hereby given that the proposals for the erection of a school house in the township of Ell, in the county of Hancock, will be received by the undersigned at his office in Ell Township, where plans and specifications may be seen, until 1 o'clock P. M., May 2. 1923, at which time the contract will be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder. The Board reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

Dated April 3, 1923.
PETER JOSTEN,
Secretary.
(A 5-12-19-26) Klemme, Iowa.

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT OF ADMINISTRATOR

Notice is Hereby Given. That the undersigned has been duly appointed and qualified as Executor of the Estate of FRED R. CHASE late of Hancock County, State of Iowa, deceased. All persons indebted to the estate are requested to make immdiate payment; and those having claims against the same will present them, duly authenticated, to the undersigned, for allowance.

Dated April 4, A. D. 1923.
ELVA CHASE,
Administratrix.
By Ramsay & Blackstone,
(A-5-12-19) Her Attorneys.

NOTICE

I will not allow any trespassing. hunting or trapping on my land, as the privilege has been abused by some. Albert Johnson. 26-3-10p

NOTICE TO PASTURE CATTLE

To pasture cattle this summer season on good blue grass pasture come and give me your orders. Cattle will be well fed and taken care of. Call soon at A. C. Lau. Klemme, Ia. (Apr 12-19-26)

BILLS PASSED BY IOWA ASSEMBLY

Following is a complete list of all bills passed by both houses of the Fortieth General Assembly.

A few of the bills listed here have not been signed by Governor Kendall They were passed in the last few days of the session and the governor has thirty days after adjournment in which to approve them.

SENATE BILLS

To legalize proceedings Cerro Gordo board of supervisors. Wichman. S. F. 282.

To change name of State Hospital and Colony for Epileptics. Kimberly. S. F. 355.

To reduce time for appeal to supreme court. Gilchrist. S. F. 433.

To require sewers to be laid in alleys. Tuck. S. F. 304.

To issue patent in Audubon county. Mantz. S. F. 360.

To legalize Pocahontas county warrants. Gilchrist. S. F. 383.

To permit sending married females to reformitories. Kimberly. S. F. 358.

To permit investment in land bank bonds by mutual companies. Cessna. S. F. 341.

To provide new method of accounting by state board of control. Kimberly. S. F. 365.

To legalize Council Bluffs bonds. Baird. S. F. 382.

To legalize Wapello county warrants. Shane. S. F. 405.

To increase state bank examination fees. Abben. S. F. 496.

To permit purchase of public utilities by special charter cities. Buser. S. F. 319.

To legalize Lucas county bonds. Johnston. S. F. 286.

To search and seize vehicles transporting liquor. McIntosh. S. F. 265.

To retain portion of taxes in county. Buser. S. F. 309.

To legalize Maquoketa electric light election. Browne. S. F. 466.

To defray cost of inaugural. Hartman. S. F. 530.

To fix life penalty for ravishment. Price. S. F. 435.

To make sale or gift of liquor causing death punishable as manslaughter. Mead and Caldwell, S. F. 271.

To provide trustee management of municipally owned utilities in cities of less than 50,000. Ethell. S. F. 422.

To provide guardian for drunkards, spendthrifts or lunatics on own motion. Wichman. S. F. 385.

To permit banking superintendent to act as receiver. Banking committee. S. F. 563.

To provide new appraisal board for road condemnation. Thurston. S. F. 337.

To provide for counting absent voters ballots in precincts using voting machines. Banta. S. F. 350.

To extend time of applying for absent voters ballot. Mantz. S. F. 359.

To exchange state lands. Brookhart. S. F. 568.

To permit school boards to organize in March. Ethell, S. F. 272.

To permit member of board of review to appeal. Price. S. F. 389.

To permit publication notice of incorporation after expiration of time. Brookhart. S. F. 455.

To require counties to limit expenditure from funds to actual collectible revenue for the year. Tuck. S. F. 343.

To make violation of any two liquor laws persistent. McIntosh. S. F. 290.

To prohibit possession of the instruments or materials for making intoxicating liquor. Suppression of intemperance committee. S. F. 512.

To appropriate funds to buy committee clerks chairs. Kimberly. S. F. 374.

To postpone delinquent tax penalty to November. Wichman. S. F. 471.

To permit injured party to bring suit to recover under "blue sky" bond. Reed. S. F. 504.

To prohibit sale of filled milk. Newberry. S. F. 513.

To forfeit bail on failure to appear. Tuck. S. F. 305.

To require statement of facts for change of venue. Bergman. S. F. 419.

To broaden coverage of casualty insurance companies. Mantz. S. F. 397.

To expend primary road fund un extensions in special charter cities. Buser, S. F. 308.

To permit hunting from ambush. Bergman. S. F. 414.

To require building permits in city manager cities. Horchem. S. F. 420.

To legalize Grand River ordinances. McIntosh. S. F. 421.

To continue tax levy for park purposes. Baird. S. F. 427.

To continue levy for park improvement purposes. Baird. S. F. 428.

To permit use of special assessment playground fund on any ground. Goodwin. S. F. 528.

To appropriate $2,250,000 to match Rockefeller foundations gift to state for new medical unit at Iowa City. Mead. S. F. 453.

To legalize notice of probating certain wills. Brookhart. S. F. 417.

To increase penalty for sale or gift or liquor to minors. Suppression of intemperance committee. S. F. 606.

To legalize Calhoun county court house bonds. Holdoegel. S. F. 624.

To exempt mutual benefit associations from insurance association provisions. Goodwin. S. F. 424.

To permit election of insurance company directors in blocks. Bergman. S. F. 447.

To change pharmacy commission personnel. Pharmacy committee. S. F. 511.

To permit transfer of funds to general fund. Stoddard. S. F. 611.

To create state department of agriculture. Departmental affairs committee. S. F. 594.

To excuse contractors from furnishing maintenance bond on oiling projects. Romkey. S. F. 645.

To reduce number of bank calls to three. Banking committee. S. F. 621.

To make appropriation for dairy, beef cattle, and corn and small grain growers associations. Holdoegel. S. F. 539.

To make purchase of municipal utilities in special charter cities effective at once. Cities and towns committee. S. F. 724.

To authorize school bond elections on week's notice in special instances. Judiciary committee. S. F. 735.

To require executive council approval of bond sales. Judiciary committee. S. F. 703.

To extend search and seizure to sale and possession of narcotics. Pharmacy committee. S. F. 569.

To prohibit payment of county officials' convention expense from county funds. Buser. S. F. 636.

To legalize Des Moines county paving contracts. Romkey. S. F. 644.

To fix powers of cities and towns over cemeteries. Rees. S. F. 499.

To increase indignent soldier burial allowance to $100. Ethell. S. F. 535.

To refund license on cars destroyed or stolen during year. Buser. S. F. 491.

To examine persons suspected of taking bank funds. Holdoegel. S. F. 534.

To provide private title to mussels, clams and frogs. Fish and game committee. S. F. 407.

To fix penalty for driving cars while intoxicated at $1,000 or year in the penitentiary. Snook. S. F. 303.

To permit surety companies to write credit insurance. Banta. S. F. 449.

To provide marker and fence for grave of Willson Alexander Scott. Mantz. S. F. 517.

To provide for surrender of condemnation funds by sheriff. Wichman. S. F. 406.

To repeal section of prohibition law relating to sale or gift of liquor to minors replaced by new law. Suppression of intemperance committee. S. F. 431.

To legislate drainage district in Marion county. Sifting committee. S. F. 742.

To legalize and pay state assessment in Harrison county drainage district. Buser. S. F. 314.

To legalize Mills county warrants. Darting. S. F. 547.

To give women equal representation on state and county political party central committees. Gilchrist. S. F. 570.

To permit cities to acquire water front land. Haskell. S. F. 618.

To include physical training in school curriculum. Schools committee. S. F. 700.

To pay state compensation for injury or death of peace officers in line of duty. Perkins. S. F. 372.

To regulate motor busses under railroad commission and impose occupational tax. Newberry and Wichman. S. F. 361.

To protect ruffed grouse or pheasant. Bergman. S. F. 506.

To reduce taxation of annual reinsurance premiums. Dutcher. S. F. 409.

To fix powers of boards of supervisors in road land condemnation. Thurston. S. F. 338.

To provide protection for cities from floods. Stoddard. S. F. 325.

To provide for reassessment of land after assessment has been held void. Perkins. S. F. 671.

To fix penalty for nonpayment of poll tax. Fulton. S. F. 381.

To compensate Woodbury county. Stoddard. S. F. 549.

To exempt agricultural lands in towns of 5,000 or less from city taxation. Mantz. S. F. 666.

To authorize transfer of funds by special charter cities which have given up charters. Darting. S. F. 546.

To change levy for ordinary revenue. Horchem. S. F. 443.

To authorize drainage district to issue funding bonds. Buser. S. F. 525.

To appropriate $50,000 for mining camp school support. Caldwell and Ethell. S. F. 394.

To reimburse Carl F. and Laura Schatz. Hale. S. F. 540.

To reimburse Jones county. Hale. S. F. 398.

To appropriate $50,000 to complete restoration of old capitol. Dutcher. S. F. 316.

To appropriate $65,000 for sheep barn and maintenance funds for state fair. Banta. S. F. 460.

To reimburse George W. Metcalf. Hartman. S. F. 566.

To compensate Lieut. Charles R. Messett. Fulton. S. F. 362.

To indemnify John and Retta Young. Caldwell. S. F. 395.

To compensate Ross Seward. Goodwin. S. F. 423.

To appropriate $10,000 toward great lakes—St. Lawrence waterway campaign. Appropriations committee. S. F. 693.

To provide change of venue in actions to collect hailstorm loss assessments. Mantz. S. F. 631.

To legalize Monroe county warrants. Sifting committee. S. F. 744.

To broaden powers of special charter cities of less than 2,000. Buser. S. F. 637.

To authorize transfer of Rock Rapids fund. Cities and towns committee. S. F. 725.

To permit use of vacant lots as playgrounds. Cities and towns committee. S. F. 740.

To appropriate $10,000 for administration of vocational training. Mantz. S. F. 613.

To appropriate $22,000 for vocational rehabilitation. Mantz. S. F. 614.

To give twelfth district third judge. Knutson. H. F. 294.

To purchase portrait of Senator Dolliver. Appropriations committee. S. F. 710.

To compensate George A. Gardner. Fulton. S. F. 446.

To compensate Joe Banoch. Thurston. S. F. 536.

To appropriate $10,000 to fight "Pittsburgh plus." Manufacturers committee. S. F. 669.

To provide for disposition of stolen and abandoned motor vehicles. Motor vehicles committee. S. F. 701.

To impose state tax on gasoline. Caldwell. S. F. 273.

To regulate carrying and sale of firearms. Price. S. F. 363.

To provide for the protection of skunks. Fish and game committee. S. F. 408.

To raise age limit of children in immoral and lascivious acts law. Gilchrist. S. F. 437.

To compile attendance at deaf and blind schools. Baird. S. F. 461.

To require employer's liability and workmen's compensation insurance companies to maintain certain reserves. Mantz. S. F. 486.

To limit interest rate on bonds. Brookhart. S. F. 532.

To change time of making insurance reports. Adams. S. F. 560.

To invalidate certain state warrants and provide for issuance of new ones. Cessna. S. F. 630.

To provide for publication or ordinances. Haskell & Baird. S. F. 647.

To legalize Waterloo bonds. Sifting committee. S. F. 743.

To pension survivors of frontier guards of Mitchells cavalry. Goodwin. S. F. 284.

To appropriate $10,000 for Camp Dodge national guard military reservation. Military affairs committee. S. F. 572.

To make appropriation for payment of numerous small claims. Appropriations committee. S. F. 745.

To codify law relating to supreme court reporter. Code revision. S. F. 11.

To amend drainage law. Gilchrist. S. F. 281.

To compensate Fort Dodge, Des Moines & Southern railroad. Olson. S. F. 452.

To amend and codify law relating to printing compiled code. Code revision. S. F. 753.

To fix requirement for registration of animals. Banta. S. F. 467.

To change requirements for rural school teacher certification. Gilchrist. S. F. 524.

To amend water power control law Conservation committee. S. F. 702.

To amend law on appeals from special assessments. Judiciary committee. S. F. 715.

To permit payment of taxes later in periods. Schmedika. S. F. 739.

To codify law on state printing board. Code revision. S. F. 255.

To appropriate funds for institutions under board of control. Kimberly. S. F. 354.

To refund taxes paid by certain insurance companies. Stoddard. S. F. 509.

To authorize appointment of zoning commission in cities. Reed. S. F. 665.

To amend law on legalizing acts. Brookhart. S. F. 587.

To exempt homes for disabled soldiers. Brookhart. S. F. 490.

To authorize courts to require security for alimony. Wichman. S. F. 386.

To provide that secretary of agriculture shall be a member of the state executive council. Departmental affairs committee. S. F. 734.

To amend law on board of engineering examiners. Buser. S. F. 615.

To amend dog license law. Bergman. S. F. 667.

To appropriate funds for state entomologist. Appropriations committee S. F. 722.

To amend Tuck law extending time to issue funding bonds to Jan. 1, 1924. Holdoegel. S. F. 604.

To permit filing of notices for liens on United States taxes. Campbell. S. F. 371.

To appropriate funds to carry out motor bus regulation law. Appropriations committee. S. F. 756.

To appropriate $40,000 to take state census. Appropriations committee. S. F. 751.

To compensate Dr. John W. Martin. Bergman. S. F. 668.

To make appropriation for state and other expenses. Appropriations committee. S. F. 757.

To make appropriation for the payment of state and other expenses. Appropriations committee. S. F. 749.

To make appropriation for maintenance and improvement of state capitol grounds. Appropriations committee. S. F. 752.

To fix number and compensation of state employes and certain state officers. Appropriations committee. S. F. 754.

To put publication clause on bank receiver law. Sifting committee. S. F. 758.

To amend gasoline tax law correctively. Sifting committee. S. F. 759.

To appropriate funds for five state schools. Olson, S. F. 548.

To fix basis for state tax levy. Ways and means committee. S. F. 760.

To legalize Treynor school bonds. Children. H. F. 406.

HOUSE BILLS

To retire city park bonds in five years at option. Bradley. H. F. 271.

To legalize incorporation Graettinger Tile Works. Saunders. H. F. 274.

To reduce interest on school bonds to 5 per cent. Parsons. H. F. 368.

To reduce number of jurors drawn. Vincent. H. F. 289.

To loan state bonus board $20,000. Appropriations committee. H. F. 314.

To permit cities of 70,000 to issue police and fire equipment and maintenance bonds. Forsling. H. F. 328.

To simplify dissolution of corporations. Diltz. H. F. 335.

To increase penalty for robbery. Anderson of Webster. H. F. 343.

To recommend increase in state school tuition. Appropriations committee. H. J. R. 9.

To give fourth district third judge. Oliver. H. F. 306.

To broaden powers of state boundary commission. Judiciary committee. H. F. 450.

To abolish separate ballot box for women. Elliott. H. F. 465.

To exempt embalmers and nurses from jury duty. Hauge. H. F. 311.

To legalize Nodaway school bonds. Fackler. H. F. 333.

To repeal wide sleigh runner law. O'Donnell. H. F. 263.

To make employment of county engineer optional. Rewoldt. H. F. 279.

To permanently deposit temple of justice fund in state general fund. Storey. H. F. 278.

To confer equal powers with state peace officers on those of other states. Children. H. F. 359.

To legalize incorporation B&K Coal company, Burlington. Potts. H. F. 530.

To permit payment for rights of way from primary road fund. Fackler. H. F. 269.

To compensate school districts for teaching deaf children. Hauge. H. F. 355.

To amend drainage law. Wamstad. H. F. 431.

To repeal sheriff fees in foreclosures. Saunders. H. F. 357.

To permit holding elections for erection of more than one school house. Forsling. H. F. 380.

To legalize filing of city office nomination papers. Powers. H. F. 705.

To appropriate $125,000 for Ames armory. Donhowe. H. F. 270.

To legalize Denver town hall election. Rewoldt. H. F. 369.

To legalize Moorland school bonds. Anderson of Webster. H. F. 457.

To legalize Lucas county warrants. Smith of Lucas. H. F. 646.

To permit publication of condensed school financial statement. Bradley. H. F. 300.

To permit city electors who have moved to vote in old precinct. Forsling. H. F. 477.

To permit mutual hail associations to levy limited assessment in any one year. Children. H. F. 360.

To appropriate $25,000 for state control of venereal disease. Public health committee. H. F. 479.

To authorize railroad commission to suspend rates until hearing. Mathews. H. F. 284.

To issue patent in Dallas county. Rhinehart. H. F. 489.

To fix penalty for infringement of civil rights. Diltz. H. F. 334.

To extend state aid for education of deaf children up to age of 12 years. Hauge, H. F. 354.

To apply county jail breaking penalty to all jails. Diltz. H. F. 438.

To make whole city road improvement district. Noble. H. F. 516.

To create lien for advancements by junior lien holders. Lovrien. H. F. 408.

To require candidates for office in commission form cities to specify department sought. Forsling. H. F. 379.

To provide support funds for board of control institutions. Lake. H. F. 372.

To require surplus fund by state banks. Banking committee. H. F. 687.

To make appropriation for erection, repair and improvement of board of control institutions. Lake. H. F. 375.

To extend Cosson law to appointive officers. Vincent. H. F. 460.

To continue railroad commission appropriation for completing railway property valuation. Children. H. F. 498.

To divide election registration lists. Olson. H. F. 476.

To increase city general fund levy to 10 mills and total city levy to 26 mills. Elliott. H. F. 327.

To repeal inventory by public officers law. Bradley. H. F. 297.

To make appropriation of $21,000 under Sheppard-Towner act. Doolittle. H. F. 340.

To legalize Wallingford ordinance. Himebauch. H. F. 673.

To legalize Dolliver ordinance. Himebauch. H. F. 674.

To legalize Gruver ordinance. Himebauch. H. F. 675.

To legalize Ringsted ordinance. Himebauch. H. F. 676.

To reduce valuation of tubercular cattle. Rewoldt. H. F. 281.

To surface secondary road system extensions in cities by special assessment. Parsons. H. F. 353.

To increase coverage of mutual insurance associations. Diltz. H. F. 426.

To provide uniform special assessment tax list. Himebauch. H. F. 440.

To provide school house tax levy. Healy. H. F. 677.

To fix penalty for delinquent pharmacist registration. Pharmacy committee. H. F. 711.

To legalize tSory county school district bonds. Donhowe. H. F. 292.

To search and seize intoxicating liquor making instruments and materials. Supression of intemperance committee. H. F. 537.

To permit supervisors to protest widow's pension awards. Children. H. F. 424.

To divorce waterworks from city councils. Hauge and Diltz. H. F. 671.

To permit transfer of assessment life companies to legal reserve basis. Garber of Adair. H. F. 682.

To change requirements of giving notice of appointment of executors and administrators. Criswell. H. F. 468.

To legalize publication of certain articles of incorporation. Rankin. H. F. 480.

To require permit to disinter dead bodies. Elliott. H. F. 425.

To legalize Greene school bonds. Ramsey. H. F. 399.

To legalize Polk county drainage district number 30. Diltz. H. F. 639.

To permit call of additional grand jurors. Edson. H. F. 584.

To legalize school tax in Bremer county. Rewoldt. H. F. 670.

To provide state elevator regulation. Public health committee. H. F. 803.

To legalize Lawler school bonds. Smith of Chickasaw. H. F. 739.

To give thirteenth district third judge. Blake. H. F. 356.

To require posting of mine inspectors notices. Criswell. H. F. 366.

To impose heavy penalties on crimes down while masked. Yenter. H. F. 402.

To provide for letting of contracts by board of education. Criswell. H. F. 299.

To establish county area bovine tuberculosis plan. Animal husbandry committee. H. F. 732.

To legalize Oskaloosa bond issue. Judiciary committee. H. F. 811.

To extend female minority to age of 21 years. Carter. H. F. 413.

To permit additional tuition charge by junior high schools. Graham. H. F. 421.

To give preference to certain roads in establishing additions to primary systems. Ontjes. H. F. 427.

To issue storage certificates on grain on farms. Edson. H. F. 668.

To permit game warden to sell certain fish. Knutson. H. F. 645.

To require attorney general to approve claims from state. Claims committee. H. F. 808.

To prohibit nepotism in public offices. Hauge. H. F. 391.

To permit expenditure of portion of primary road fund on secondary roads. Parsons. H. F. 400.

To provide penalty for sale of bonds at less than par. Ontjes. H. F. 576.

To provide for issuance of city hall bonds. Miller. H. F. 582.

To fix salaries and powers of municipal court judges. Children. H. F. 626.

To provide reduced appropriation for oil inspection. Appropriations committee. H. F. 789.

To permit optional increase of 2 mills in poor fund levy. Criswell. H. F. 405.

To appropriate funds to pay state drainage assessment in Emmet county. Himebauch. H. F. 510.

To legalize Polk county drainage district number 26. Diltz. H. F. 637.

To legalize Polk county drainage district number 29. Diltz. H. F. 638.

To legalize Carson school bonds. Harrison. H. F. 729.

To legalize Kent town elections. Colbert. H. F. 738.

To amend levee law. Potts. H. F. 469.

To continue appropriation to rail road commission to prosecute cases. Appropriations committee. H. F. 743.

To seize and confiscate lottery prizes. Suppression of intemperance committee. H. F. 797.

To permit claim for soldier exemption of 1922 within the year. Military affairs committee. H. F. 824.

To appropriate $50,000 for normal training in private colleges. Storey. H. F. 352.

To permit fraternal insurance companies to build and maintain homes and hospitals. Judiciary committee. H. F. 806.

To compel labeling of mattresses. Strippel. H. F. 681.

To amend law relating to payment of drainage assessments. Rassler. H. F. 408.

To provide for surfacing of primary road extensions in cities of 2,500. Fackler. H. F. 268.

To make appropriation for expenses of Rumley-Springer election contest. Contest committee. H. F. 604.

To legalize acts of council of McCallsburg. Olson. H. F. 807.

To amend the law relative to penitentiaries. Potts. H. F. 496.

To enact a substitute relating to the duties of railroad carrier. Huge. H. F. 821.

To provide for notice of maturity of mortgage. Lovrien. H. F. 409.

To regulate stocks and bonds. Diltz. H. F. 747.

To amend law relating to insurance other than life. Hauge. H. F. 640.

To amend law relating to fixing fees on motor vehicles. Lake. H. F. 298.

To authorize exchange of state lands in Hancock county. Healy, H. F. 748.

To amend law relating to listing property for taxation. Lake H. F. 557.

To authorize removal of billboards Wilson. H. F. 577.

To amend law relating to condemnation of property for school purposes. Children. H. F. 695.

To amend law relative to display of flag on holidays. Hauge. H. J. R. No. 8.

To permit school boards to transfer funds. School committee. H. F. 828.

To amend law relating to chiropractors. Elliott. H. F. 641.

To amend law relating to board of dental examiners. Diltz. H. F. 520.

To amend law relating to general fund of cities. Rankin. H. F. 501.

To amend law relating to tax levy to pay annuity to donor of property to city. Miller. H. F. 680.

To amend law relating to the construction of highways. Lovrien. H. F. 634.

To require cities to furnish medical attention for policemen and firemen. Hansen. H. F. 678.

To empower county boards to establish benefitted districts and levy tax for water. Diltz. H. F. 742.

To make an appropriation to pay for drainage assessment against Mud lake. Committee on drainage. H. F. 816.

To issue patent to S. G. M... Clark. H. F. 578.

To amend law relating to co... tion of bridges by counties. P... F. 717.

To provide for distribution ... preme court reports. Gilbert. ... 761.

To amend law relating to ... ance department. Hauge. H. F.

To authorize the purchase of ... in Ames. Appropriation com... H. F. 573.

To indemnify John S. Young. ... H. F. 388.

To amend law relating to ex... of fire marshal. Committee on ... priations. H. F. 800.

To amend law relating to ... tion of property of soldiers. R... H. F. 651.

To amend law relative to ma... ture of hog cholera serum. M... H. F. 495.

To amend law relative to ... ment against abutting property ... surfacing primary roads. Hau... F. 307.

To amend law relating to ... porting pupils to school. Colbert. ... 690.

To amend law relating to ... ment of personal property. Hau... F. 829.

To make an appropriation for ... bursement of Lee county. Por... F. 609.

To amend law relating to re... of co-operative associations. Pe... H. F. 728.

To amend law relating to spe... money for cemetery purposes. ... H. F. 765.

To permit change in state ... tution to allow women to sit in ... lature. Graham and Hauge. H. ... 5.

CODE REVISION BILLS

(All by Committee on Code Revi...

To fix form of bills for intr... tion. S. F. 1.

To fix duty of public officers ... public contracts. S. F. 37.

To provide for examination of ... nesses. S. F. 73.

To amend and codify law on ... petuities and bequests. S. F. 81.

To provide management of ... tery funds by trustees. S. F. 81.

To codify law on appeals in ... tional matters. S. F. 103.

To fix powers and duties of ju... S. F. 223.

To fix powers and procedure ... probate courts. S. F. 235.

To codify law on forcible entry ... F. 243.

To codify law on lascivious ... with children. S. F. 249.

To codify law on commission ... other states. S. F. 259.

To codify homestead law. S. F. ...

To codify school for deaf law ... F. 96.

To codify educational funds law ... F. 113.

To codify law on mayors and ... lice courts. S. F. 157.

To codify county homes law. S. ... 141.

To codify county auditor law. S. ... 131.

To codify law on relocation of ... ty seats. S. F. 147.

To codify river front commis... law. S. F. 161.

To codify certified shorthand ... porters law. S. F. 59.

To amend and codify district ... clerk law. S. F. 225.

To codify policemen's and firem... pension fund law. S. F. 181.

To codify law on publication ... acts of general assembly. S. F. ...

To codify law on state horticultu... society. S. F. 67.

To codify law on school for ... blind. S. F. 95.

To codify law on county aid ... blind. S. F. 143.

To codify soldiers preference ... H. F. 36.

To codify board of arbitration ... H. F. 48.

To codify landlord and tenant ... H. F. 80.

To codify public comfort stat... law. H. F. 162.

To codify written contracts law. ... F. 204.

To codify wild animal bounty ... H. F. 146.

To amend and codify county t... urer law. H. F. 132.

To codify costs law. H. F. 2...

To codify paternity of illegiti... children law. H. F. 244.

To codify township hall law. ... 152.

To codify standard schools law ... F. 106.

To codify lien for stallions ... jacks. H. F. 70.

To codify notaries public law. ... 38.

To codify jails law. H. F. 150.

To codify parties to action law ... F. 226.

To codify instructions to ju... law. H. F. 232.

To codify coroner's law. H. F. ...

To codify life insurance com... law. H. F. 206.

To codify claims laws. H. F. ...

To codify fences law. H. F. 56.

To codify larceny law. H. F. ...

To codify state road districts ... H. F. 120.

To fix compensation of county ... cers and deputies. H. F. 137.

Farm work in Iowa is about ... weeks later than usual this year ... is at least three weeks later than ... year the director and meterologist ... the Iowa Weather and crop ser... states in his weekly bulletin is ... recently.

With the call of the meadow ... and the songs of many other mig... birds filling the air, all Iowa ... turned nature lover once more. ... is one of the wealthiest states in ... union from the standpoint of ... population.

To know how good a cigarette really can be made you must try a—

FOR SALE BY
COOBS GARAGE
Klemme, Iowa

In these ways
We Serve
You . . .

First by offering you only good clothes.

Second by having them in great variety for you to choose from.

Third by giving competent help and suggestions in making your selections.

Here you'll find everything that's new for spring—and the price is as low as really good merchandise can be sold.

Patton Bros.
Company
Where a dollar does its duty
Mason City and Manly, Iowa.

Send Us Your Name and address on a post card or in a letter and we will mail free and postpaid, a sample copy of the most wonderful magazine published. 160 pages and 400 pictures every month, that will entertain every member of the family.
Popular Mechanics MAGAZINE
It contains interesting and instructive articles on the Home, Farm, Shop and Office—the newest developments in Radio, Aviation, Automobile and Garage. Each issue contains something to interest everybody.
We do not employ subscription solicitors so you will not be urged to subscribe and you are not obligating yourself in the least in asking for a free sample copy. We gladly send it to prospective readers. If you like it you can buy a copy every month from any newsdealer or send us your subscription—$3.00 for one year.
Popular Mechanics Company
200-214 E. Ontario Street, CHICAGO, ILL.
Popular Mechanics building is devoted exclusively to the production of this great magazine.

SLAP UNSEALS SECRET MURDER 30 YEARS OLD

Angry Father of Punished Girl Reveals Confession That Convicts Wife Slayer.

SLEW WOMAN WITH MATTOCK

Only Person Who Knew Truth Gets Religion and After 30 Years of Silence Tells the Story of Crime.

Raleigh, N. C.—If old John Shepherd's boy hadn't slapped three teeth out of old Ves Wingler's daughter's month, and if old John Shepherd hadn't got religion at the hands of a wandering mountain evangelist, old man Wingler might have rounded out his allotted three-score years and ten with his second wife and their numerous children in his cabin on the banks of Reddy's creek, high up in the Blue Ridge, and the old theory that slaying will out would have stood discredited.

Or if old Ves Wingler had been a little more discreet in his use of a grubbing hoe 30 years ago, it would not have come to pass that, now in his sixty-first year, he finds himself grasping a mattock provided by the North Carolina state prison with the certainty that as soon as he wears it out on the roads of the state another will be provided for him.

If old man Wingler had been content with the buxom, easy-going and altogether serviceable wife of his youth, it wouldn't have mattered whether his daughter lost her teeth at the hands of a somewhat primitive suitor, and old man Shepherd could have had all the pangs of newly acquired religion his soul craved, with no trouble to anybody.

Tired of His Wife.

But it didn't happen that way. Wingler got tired of his wife two years and seven days after he brought her to his one-room log cabin. He took his mattock in hand and crushed her skull with it. There was nobody there to see it save their five-months-old daughter, and the nearest neighbor lived a mile down the creek. They heard the wife screaming.

The time between the suppression of the dying wife's screams and the arrival of the first of the contingent of neighbors was employed by Wingler in deep meditation on means of explaining that his wife had suffered an accident, and that he had taken none but a husbandly part in the event. He put on the habiliments of woe, lifted up his voice in heart-broken lamentation, and stirred his imagination with his fears.

First came the people of his own blood, his mother, and a regiment of sisters, who lived nearest the little cabin. Entering the room, they beheld the young wife lying on the floor, with her head toward the fire-place.

Accused of Killing.

"Yes, you killed her," charged his mother.

"I know it, but tell 'em that she fell out of the loft and hit her head on the pot on the hearth there," pleaded Ves.

"There's no place in the loft where she could have fallen out," observed the canny mountain woman.

"Well, make one," pleaded the distracted husband.

Wingler turned toward the door to see John Shepherd standing there, hesitating between a grin at what he had overheard and blanched horror at what he saw lying on the bed. The two men stared at each other. Wingler was a powerful man. Shepherd was a man of lesser caliber, and he quailed before the terrible look that he had seen in the eyes of the master of the cabin. Wingler crossed over toward him.

"I—killed—her," he said, slowly, "but if—you—breathe a word of it, I—will—kill—you."

Framing the Defence.

That was all that was ever said between them. Shepherd watched the mother and sisters open a hole in the low ceiling over the hearth, widen it big enough for a heavy woman to fall through, and then turn to minister to the stricken wife. Other neighbors came and looked on darkly. Through the night the mother and sisters of the husband watched the ebbing tide of life drift out. Dawn and death entered the cabin hand-in-hand, and the neighbors prepared the body for burial.

But dawn brought Wingler almost to the disaster that he afterward staved off for 30 years. Sudden and bloody death is not unusual in the mountains of North Carolina, where men's passions run without restraint, but here was a woman dead. It was unusual, and the thoughts that flashed to the mind of the man's mother were reflected in the minds of everybody.

Coming by ones and twos from their fair coves in the mountains, to watch beside the woman, a dozen women gathered there. And women are naturally more observant than men. One had seen the marks of a struggle before the door of the house, blood on the ground, a trail leading to the low steps, the print of a bloody hand on either side of the mattock. These things they told their husbands.

A Jury of Men.

It was 17 miles across the hills, and no roads save trails to the county seat, but the coroner came. He assembled a jury, but only the men attended. Testifying before juries was not the part for women to play in that remote settlement three decades ago. Only the men came, and of them all only Wingler and Shepherd knew anything. Shepherd was silent, under the threatening eye of Wingler, and Wingler's story alone was heard.

The jury doubtfully took his word for it, and since there was no doctor there to look at her wounds, the verdict was that she fell out of the loft and was killed accidentally.

Back home with their wives, the men had fresh suspicion planted in their minds, and ten days later they went 17 miles and got a doctor. They exhumed the body and made a casual examination. But wonders die after nine days, even in the mountains, and they were not impressed by the doctor, anyhow. The body had mortified, and they were glad enough to put it back in the ground and forget about it.

Happiness Unmarred.

After what less simple folk would call an indecently short length of time, Ves Wingler married again. His second wife was fifteen years his junior. They lived prosperously and had many children. The cabin rotted down, and they moved into a more dignified dwelling place. Apparently the specter of his dead wife never returned to trouble the husband. Ves Wingler was happy.

Twenty-nine years he lived the life of the average mountaineer. He was at times accused of making liquor without sanction of the law. He drank and brawled and gambled, now in company of John Shepherd and now without him. So far as the evidence went at the trial, the death of his wife was never mentioned between them. Ves Wingler closed the book and dared anybody to open it.

Their families maintained amiable relations. The sons of Shepherd courted the daughters of Wingler, even down to the younger strata of the two families.

Evangelist Comes.

With the opening of spring there came into the fastnesses of the Blue Ridge a migrant evangelist. He preached a simple doctrine of hell fire and damnation. He pictured the terrors of eternal fire that burned for all who forsook not their stills, their brawlings and their gamblings and destruction for all who repented not and confessed not their sins. Shepherd harkened unto the preacher and confessed his own sins.

Then on a warm spring evening when a young Shepherd was calling on one of the daughters of the house of Wingler, the youngest daughter, made a nuisance of herself generally. The ardent swain from the house of Shepherd, irked by her continued interference, slapped her teeth, three of them, completely out of her mouth. She went bawling to Wingler and the son of Shepherd was banished with threats.

Next morning, Wingler repaired to the magistrate and issued a warrant charging Shepherd with assault and battery on the person of his daughter. The boy fled the state, and there was war between the houses of Wingler and Shepherd. Wingler made threats and Shepherd hinted darkly that Wingler had better be careful. But he was not careful.

Convicted of Crime.

Within a week, Wingler had fled the state two jumps ahead of a sheriff, who wanted him for the killing of his wife 30 years before. Some time later he returned to the state and was taken into custody, tried, convicted of murder in the second degree, and sentenced to 30 years at hard labor in the state prison. The Supreme court in one of the most remarkable opinions on record, denied him a new trial.

In vain did attorneys for the defendant hammer on the theory of vengeance, stirred by the prosecution of young Shepherd. In vain they accused witnesses of a conspiracy against him and brought impeachment against the character of every one of them. The jury stood adamant, not because they believed John Shepherd, but because they believed the women.

Times have changed. Thirty years ago not a woman felt that she could attend an inquest and maintain her self-respect. Every one of them brought through the years a vivid picture of what she had seen. They ached to tell it, and they made a story of it.

Pious oaths sworn to by Shepherd, bastioned with newly-found Biblical citations, had little weight. He had heard Wingler say he killed his wife. It was what the women had seen that the jury took as sufficient circumstantial evidence. In vain did Wingler tell his story of the wife who fell out of the loft. The women had him when they remembered so much and told it with unanimity as to detail. Perhaps 30 years' enforced silence had heightened the picture.

Eight months have passed since Wingler's daughter lost her teeth, but in that far settlement that straddles the Blue Ridge as it runs southward across the western end of North Carolina, they still marvel about it. It has become epic. Shepherd is preparing to move away before the tide of reaction to a more pious community. And the little toothless Wingler girl likely will never see her daddy any more.

Finds New Curative Element.

Philadelphia.—Public announcement of the discovery of therapeutic properties in the chemical element known as "Germanium," was made by Dr. John H. Mueller, professor of chemistry at the University of Pennsylvania. He said it promised to be of great value in the treatment of "secondary" anemia.

WORSHIPED THE GOLDEN ORB

Ancient People of Peru Made the Sun an Object of Particular Veneration.

The most complete system of sun worship was practiced by the ancient tribe of Incas of Peru, South America. Its existence was first discovered by the Spaniards who visited Peru in 1526. The Incas, chief of the Peruvian ruling house, claimed to be children of the sun and the sun's representatives on earth.

The government was a despotic Nercraer of which the Inca was both high priest and king.

In Cuzco, the capital, stood the wonderful temple of the sun, in which all the implements were of solid gold. On the west end of the interior was a representation of the sun's disk and rays in the same precious metal, so placed that the rising sun, shining in at the open east end, fell full upon the image, and was reflected with dazzling splendor. In the plaza, or square of the temple, a great annual festival was held during the summer solstice. Huge multitudes assembled from all parts of the empire, and, presided over by the Inca, awaited in breathless solemnity the first rays of their deity to strike the golden image in the temple, when they immediately prostrated themselves in adoration.

Sacrifices, similar to those of the Jews, were offered on the occasion, and bread and wine were partaken of in a manner strikingly resembling the Christian sacrament.

The moon was the spouse of the sun, the planet Venus was his page. The Pleiades, and the remarkable constellation of the Southern Cross were also worshiped as servants of the sun. Fire, air and earth were adored, but in a lesser degree. The lightning and the rainbow were also worshiped as servants of the sun, in fact all nature was embraced in the wonderful religion of the early and now extinct Incas. Their wealth and glory is departed and they live only in history and in the wonderful carved memorials they left behind for modern savants to study.

Horse Gets Up on Hearing Policeman Say He'll Shoot

Cleveland, O.—Frank is a white horse with a naturally meek expression, who hauls a rubbish wagon for the city. The other day Frank fell on the snow-covered street.

All attempts to get him to his feet failed.

A policeman said: "Well, I guess I'll have to shoot him and put him out of his misery."

Frank stirred and got to his feet.

News of Goodell And Vicinty

Mrs. Fred Wilkins, of Belmond, was visiting relatives here last week.

Jay Griggs was a Clarion caller Tuesday.

Willie Bollar is working for Clifford Chase.

Wedding Bells will soon be ringing in this vicinity.

Geo. Griggs was transacting business in Garner Tuesday.

Mrs. Dave Finn and daughter, Veronica. were Mason City shoppers Friday.

Dr. Snearly was called to Klemme Wednesday in consultation with Dr. Missman.

Miss McCormick spent the week-end in the country visiting at the Hio Harberts home.

A good time was had at the Old Tmie Dance; supper was served by the Guild Ladies.

Mrs. Anton Bollar was called to Everly, Iowa, by the illness of her son. Harvey.

The Senior Class are working on their class play entitled, "All Of A Sudden Peggy."

Lew Erickson was taken to the home of his parents at Crystal Lake but he is still under the doctor's care.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood and Mrs. Cook went to Hampton Thursday to see their aunt, Mrs. R. S. Wilson, Sr., who has been quite ill for stveral months.

The Petition circulated by Jay Griggs in behalf of the Twin Lakes Protective Association, in and around the town of Klemme, was well subscribed, and the Committee wishes to thank each and every one for their liberal support. Klemme is for better Lakes and better fishing.

AVERY TOWNSHIP NEWS

Russell and Kenneth Bell spent Sunday afternoon at the Oscar Swanson home.

Mrs. Caswell, a sister of Mrs. Fred Bachman, is here visiting relatives and friends for a week or ten days.

Myrtle M. Bell returned Monday afternoon from Belmond where she had been visiting friends.

Walter Johnson and W. J. Bell were over to Mason City Sunday and spent the day.

Mrs. Robert Roths will close her school today, April 24. for the summer. vacation.

Mrs. Albert Fuller, who has been awful sick, is improving quite a lot at this writing.

The August Trampel children have the scarlet fever. A trained nurse is caring for them. They are somewhat improved at this writing.

Low Summer fares
Rock Island
Colorado
The Nation's Playground! A scenic paradise offering greatest variety of recreation and enjoyment.
Yellowstone
Nature's Unparalleled Spectacle! Rock Island is The Colorado Way to Yellowstone.
California
Always alluring—served by Golden State Limited—through Carriso Gorge; Rocky Mountain Limited—The Colorado Way one way-return another Stop-over anywhere
For information and literature ask
M. O. BARR, Klemme, Ia.
C. C. Gardner, G. A. P. D.
600 Royal Union Life Bldg.,
Des Moines, Ia.

Next Time Try
Sausage
You will like our sausage, it's made of quality meats properly prepared and seasoned. Buy it in Link
Pork
Liver
Summer
Bologna
It's Good!
Ask For
"HEINZ 57"
We Have Them
J. P. Larsen & Sons
The Klemme Meat Market

Ten Million Customers
Is About The Number Served By The ELECTRIC LIGHT AND POWER COMPANIES
In The United States
During 1922 THOUSANDS of these Customers Invested in the Securities of these Companies to the extent of $175,000,000
WHY? Because investment in the Electric Light and Power business has been proven Uniformly Safe and the Income satisfactory.
YOU have the opportunity of Investing Safely in your Home Company, where you can WATCH your Investment and receive Back IN DIVIDENDS part of the money you pay for Service.
IOWA FALLS ELECTRIC COMPANY
COMMON SHARES
have already paid 28 DIVIDENDS and are Backed by over 100 Cents On The Dollar in Property Values and the Public Service Needs of 36 Communities.
COSTS NOTHIN to get the FACTS.
Let us tell you about the Company and the COMMON SHARES.
Just ask for a FREE COPY of the NEW EDITION of our Illustrated Booklet which has 16 Pages, and contains 16 Illustrations. ADDRESS:
Iowa Falls Electric Co.
IOWA FALLS, IOWA
OR ANY OF OUR OFFICES.

We Serve

FIRST CLASS MEALS and LUNCHES

Home Made Pies
Ice Cream and Soft Drinks
FRESH BREAD EVERY DAY
Candy Cigars Tobacco

The Crystal Cafe

Conrad Quandt, Prop. Klemme, Ia.

"A Good Cafe in a Good Town"

It Pays To Make Your Garden Early---

It generally pays to start your garden as early as possible; in that way you get the fresh, early vegetables at the time when they are best—crisp and tender.

When it comes to gardener's supplies of all kinds you will find what you need at our store in a great variety and the very best obtainable.

NORTHRUP, KING & CO.'s SEEDS

Everybody knows that this brand is the best—that's why we carry them.

You can get any kind of vegetable seed you want; they are fresh and will grow, at.. Price per package, only.....5c

ONION SETS BULK SWEET CORN
Also a full line of garden tools such as Hoes Rakes, Shovels, Spades, Forks, Plows, Etc.

BRING YOUR EGGS TO US.

Jacobs & Son

Ford
THE UNIVERSAL CAR

ANNOUNCEMENT

Of Interest to

MILLIONS OF FAMILIES

"I will build a car for the multitude"

Said Henry Ford in 1903——Read how the fullfillment of that prophecy is now made possible through the—

Ford Weekly Purchase Plan

For many years it has been Henry Fords's personal ambition to make the Ford the universal family car——to put it within the reach of the millions of people who have never been priviledged to enjoy the benefits of motor car ownership.

During the past fifteen years over 7,500,000 Ford Cars have been placed in the hands of retail customers——more than a million and a half of them within the past twelve months——and yet there are still millions of families who are hopefully looking forward to the day when they can own a Ford.

And now the way is open.

Under the terms of this plan you can select your Ford Car; set aside a small amount each week and you will be surprised how soon you will own it. In the meantime your money will be safely deposited to your credit in one of the local banks where it will draw interest.

Think it over. Five dollars will start an account. The whole family can participate in it——father, mother, brothers and sisters each doing a little.

Why not start today. Stop in and talk it over with your local Ford dealer. He will be glad to fully explain the details of the plan and help you get started toward the ownership of a Ford Car.

FORD MOTOR COMPANY
Deroit, Michigan

Greimann Motor Company

Aaron Griemann, Manager. Ford, Fordson, Lincoln

Local Items

Elko Buss visited with his son Harry, at Goodell last Thursday.

E. H. Patet was visiting relatives and friends at Hayfield Sunday.

The Misses Minnie and Marie Blank were visiting at the Tony Ahrekeil homeat Goodell Sunday.

C. M. Bredbenner and family spent Sunday visiting at the Geo Vance home at Goodell.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Coobs have moved into tht house just north of the R. W. Elder place.

The greatest Work Shoe in the World is the Wolverine. For sale by Frank Gruetzmacher. adv

Clarence Bachman and wife moved from the Gilbert Schafer residence to the Carl Suckow residence this morning.

All patrons owing the Klemme Co-Operative Grain Company an account can keep their credit good by paying up at least once or twice a year. adv 2wc.

Most of the farmers in this vicinity got their small grain in before the rain and report that mony fields are coming up fine. It has been just the kind of weather they want.

Mrs. Carrie Triplett. of Kermin, California, arrived in Klemme yesterday morning. She was called here by the illness of her sister, Mrs. Albert Fuller. Mrs. Fuller is getting better at this writing.

Yesterday, April 25th, was the first wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Jacobs. It was also a wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Jacobs of Garner, and so they came to Klemme to observe the event and had a big dinner at Ed's home.

Rev. Buriff and wife drove over from Goldfield last week Thursday and remained until Friday afternoon visiting at the J. N. Day home and with their many other friends in Klemme.

"Stub" Lewis came back from Grundy Center, Iowa. last week. He had been working in a restaurant at that place during the winter months. He says he intends to remain in this vicinity this summer.

Members of the local Fire Department should take note and remember the regular meeting night is the first Friday of each month. All members are requested to be at the Station on those nights.

We are very glad to report that Mrs. Albert Fuller who has been so ill the past week. is gradually making a noticable gain toward health. This is news her many friends will rejoice in hearing.

Carl Suckow and family have moved their household goods to Garner, where they have rented the C. C. Tessier residence. near the Mill. Carl will be more centrally located at Garner for his Rawleigh work.

G. W. Kluckhohn, accompanied by Frank Terhufen, Henry Metzgar and Harry Smith, drove to Austin, Minn. Monday afternoon where the men will do some repairing on the buildings on G. W.'s farm near Austin.

Mrs. Dewey Rice and daughter, Harriet. returned to their home at Clarion Tuesday, after a couple of week's visit with Mrs. Rice's parents here, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Musfelt. Dewey drove over Sunday for a short visit.

If you insure your property against fire, you should insure against Rats and Mice. Rats and Mice destroy more property than is destroyed by fire. Kill them with Meyer's Red Devil Poison Kernels. For sale at E. S. D. Kahrs. adv

Mrs. Tom Hake has been seriously ill the past week with severe pains in her head and has been unconcious a part of the time. At this time she is reported to be some better. Her many friends hope for her rapid recovery.

Martin Jensen is having his house treated to a new coat of paint in a gray color. Joe Miller is doing the "bainting" for Martin. Jensen has done a considerable amount of remodeling and when finished will have a very desirable property.

Ing. Lauritzen and Thor Jensen returned to Klemme last Thursday. They drove out to California last winter in Lauritzen's car and spent several months there. It took them ten days to drive back from Los Angeles to Spencer. They say they enjoyed their trip.

It costs a lot of money to send a letter to the United States from Germany. Monday Mrs. Anna Baack received a letter from Germany that was nearly plastered with stamps. It took nine hundred and eighty German Marks to pay for the postage stamps on the letter.

Bullhead fishing has been quite good the past week in the various lakes in this vicinity. A lot of big bullheads are being caught at Clear Lake when the weather is favorable. Fishing is also good at West Twin Lake, but the fish are somewhat smaller.

LuVerne Smith took possession of the Irving restaurant Sunday. He has been doing considerablt cleaning up and re-arranging and says he will have a neat, clean place of business. He reports that business has been good since he started. He has an announcement advertisement in this issue which you should read.

Senator J. E. Wichman is back at his home at Garner after spending the winter months at Des Moines, where he has been busy with legislative matters. Senator Wichman has spent four winters there; two as Representative and two as a Senator. Now lets send him on to Washington as our Representative.

The National Road Construction Company's mechanics have furnished the local loafers with some good entertainment. When they started one of the big Holt caterpillar tractors last week, after it had been overhauled, quite a number of men gathered around to hear the first pop. A Titan and a Fordson were both hitched on to get it started by pulling it up the road.

KLEMME DRAY LINE
Phone 2105
A share of your patronage is solicited. All work attended to promptly and carefully. We haul coal quick.
LLOYD LAU, PROP.

BEFORE LIFE WAS COMPLEX

Prehistoric Woman Whose Remains Have Just Been Found Had Comparatively Placid Existence.

Bones of a prehistoric woman, believed to have been a tree-climber, have been found in the bed of the River Cam, and are being submitted to expert opinion in London, England.

The bones were brought to the surface by a dredger within a quarter of a mile of the famous Fenland inn, "The Five Miles From Anywhere; No Hurry!"

The whole district is one vast forest of buried oaks, which were in existence many thousands of years ago, before the Fens were formed, and it is hoped to recover the complete skeleton.

"The find is a most interesting one," said a Fellow of the Royal society.

"The leg bones are undoubtedly those of a woman, but they are of extraordinary conformation.

"Whoever she was, she had a pretty foot.

"If alive today, she would be a short, deep-chested creature, covered with hair, and with long, ape-like arms and prehensile toes.

"Her home would be a rudely built platform of sticks, with a family likeness to a glorified crow's nest. From this, excursions would be made among the tree tops, she and her mate swinging themselves, monkey-fashion, from bough to bough.

"When on the ground, her gait would be that of a monkey, with the arms swinging to the knees."

Scienists say that animal life existed on the earth for 60,000, Soybeans is one solution to years.

TYPEWRITER RIBBONS
All Makes

Typewriter Ribbons for sale at the Times Office. all of the Standard makes. Ribbons 75 cents each.

DENTIST
J. L. Hesselhuus, D. D. S.
Office Hours 8-12 1-5:30
Office Opposite State Savings Bank; In Schaffer Bldg.
Evening Work By Appointment Only
Klemme, Ia. Phone 81

Call In To-Day

and get measured for that Suit

Many good selections for your approval

See the new Spring
Shirts
Hosiery
Underwear
Neckwear

Pressing and Cleaning
In Connection

The Men's Fashion Shop

A. W. JOHNSON
GARNER IOWA

GEORGE ZINN, M. D.
Physician and Surgeon
Office opposite from Hotel Klemme
Phone No. 19
Eyes Examined Glasses Fitted

Office Phone 149 J. Residence Phone 149 L.

Dr. E. H. Phillips

Osteopathic Physician
GARNER, IOWA.

Diagnosis and Treatment of Diseases.
Surgical and Obstetrical cases cared for.
"Consult an Osteopath"

YOUR BUILDING PLANS ARE IMPORTANT TO US — BRING THEM IN.

Spring Building--

Spring Building Operations are now in order, and we have prepared ourselves in the shape of large stocks on hand to take care of the demand for Building Materials which we feel sure will be created by the signs of nice Spring Weather.

Our advise is to buy now, as lumber and building material prices will never be any cheaper—if anything they will advance as the demand increases as this is going to be a big building year.

We can help you plan any building you are planning on building this year. Come in and look over our Plan Service—you will be pleased with the many plans for Houses, Barns, Hog Houses, Poultry Houses, Garages and other Buildings.

Northern Lumber Co.

DESERT GOLD

By ZANE GREY

Author of

The Riders of the Purple Sage, Wildfire, Etc.

Copyright by Harper & Brothers

CHAPTER XVI

—16—

Mountain Sheep.

at Gale might have thought an ding situation, if considered from e and comfortable home away the desert, became, now that he hut in by the red-ribbed lava and great dry wastes, a matter y accepted as inevitable. So he ned it was accepted by the oth- Not even Mercedes uttered a . No word was spoken of home. ere was thought of loved ones, s locked deep in their minds. tacit agreement Ladd again be- the leader of the party. The thing he asked was to have the of food that remained spread upon a tarpaulin. Assuredly, it a slender enough supply. It was ssible to read the gravity of 's face, for he still looked like d man, but the slow shake of his told Gale much. There was a of hope, however, in the signifi- with which he touched the bags lt and said, "Shore it was sense in' all that salt!"

hen he turned to face his com- s.

"That's little grub for six starvin' le corralled in the desert. But grub end ain't worryin' me. Yaqui get sheep up the slopes. Water! at's the beginnin' an' middle an' of our case."

"Laddy, I reckon the waterhole here er goes dry," replied Jim.

"Ask the Indian."

Upon being questioned, Yaqui spoke the dreaded ano seco of the Mexi- ns. In a dry year this waterhole lled.

"Dick, take a rope an' see how much ter's in the hole."

Gale could not find bottom with a rty-foot lasso. The water was as , clear, sweet as if it had been t in a shaded iron receptacle.

Ladd welcomed this information th surprise and gladness. "Let's . Last year was shore pretty dry. bbe this summer won't be. Mebbe wonderful good luck'll hold. Ask qui if he thinks it'll rain."

Mercedes questioned the Indian.

"He says no man can tell surely. but he thinks the rain will come," she plied.

"Shore it'll rain, you can gamble that now," continued Ladd. "If ere's only grass for the hosses! We n't get out of here without hosses. Dick, take the Indian an' scout down arroyo. Today I seen the hosses ere gettin' fat. Gettin' fat in this sert! But mebbe they've about zed up all the grass. Go an' see, ick. An' may you come back with ore good news!"

Gale found that the arroyo widened it opened. Near the head, where was narrow, patches of gray grass ew everywhere. Gale began to won- r where the horses were. Finally e trees and brush thinned out, and mile-wide gray plain stretched down reddish sand dunes. Over to one de were the white horses, and here as grass enough for many; the ar- yo was indeed an oasis.

Ladd and the others were awaiting le's report, and they received it th calmness, yet with a joy no less vident because it was restrained. le, in his keen observation at the oment, found that he and his com- ades turned with glad eyes to the oman of the party.

"Senor Laddy, you think—you—be- lieve—we shall—" she faltered, and er voice failed.

"Mercedes, no white man can tell hat'll come to pass out here," said add, earnestly. "Shore I have hopes ow I never dreamed of. I was pretty ear a dead man. The Indian saved e. Beldin' had it right. Yaqui's ur godsend. Now, as to the future, 'd like to know mebbe as well as ou if we're ever to get home. Only ein' what I am, I say, Quien sabe? ut somethin' tells me Yaqui knows. sk him, Mercedes. Make him tell. e's a silent Indian, but make him ell."

Mercedes called to Yaqui. At her idding there was always a suggestion f hurry, which otherwise was never manifest in his actions. She put a and on his bared muscular arm and egan to speak in Spanish. Her voice hrilled Gale, though he understood carcely a word she said. He did not eed translation to know that here spoke the longing of a woman for life, ove, home, the heritage of a woman's eart.

"Si!" rolled out the Indian's reply, full of power and depth.

Mercedes drew a long breath, and her hand sought Thorne's.

"He says yes," she whispered. "He answers he'll save us; he'll take us all back—he knows!"

The Indian turned away to his tasks, and the silence that held the little group was finally broken by Ladd.

"Shore I said so. Now all we've got to do is use sense. Friends, I'm the commissary department of this outfit, an' what I say goes. You all won't eat except when I tell you. Mebbe it'll not be so hard to keep our health. Starved beggars don't get sick. But there's the heat comin', an' we can all go loco, you know. To pass the time! Lord, that's our problem. Now, if you all only had a hankerin' for checkers. Shore I'll make a board an' make you play. Thorne, you're the luckiest. You've got your girl, an' this can be a honeymoon. Now with a few tools an' little material see what a grand house you can build for your wife. Dick, you're lucky, too. You like to hunt, an' up there you'll find the finest bighorn huntin' in the West. Take Yaqui and the .405. We need the meat, but while you're gettin' it have your sport. Rustle now, son. Get some enthusiasm. For shore you'll need it for yourself an' us."

Gale climbed the lava slope, away round to the right of the arroyo, along an old trail that Yaqui said the Papagos had made before his own people hunted there. From the crests Yaqui's searching falcon gaze roved near and far for signs of sheep. Suddenly he grasped Gale and pointed across a deep, wide gully.

With the aid of his glass Gale saw five sheep. They were looking in his direction. Remembering what he had heard about the wonderful eyesight of these mountain animals, Gale could only conclude that they had seen the hunters.

Then Yaqui's movements attracted and interested him. The Indian had brought with him a red scarf and a mesquite branch. He tied the scarf on the stick, and propped this up in a crack of the lava. The scarf waved in the wind. That done, the Indian bade Gale watch.

Once again he leveled the glass at the sheep. All five now were motionless, standing like statues, heads pointed across the gully. They were more than a mile distant. When Gale looked without his glass they merged into the roughness of the lava. He was intensely interested. Did the sheep see the red scarf? It seemed incredible, but nothing else could account for that statuesque alertness. The sheep held this rigid position for perhaps fifteen minutes. Then the leading ram started to approach. The others followed. He took a few steps, then halted. Always he held his head up, nose pointed.

"By George, they're coming!" exclaimed Gale. "They see that flag. They're hunting us. They're curious. If this doesn't beat me!"

Evidently the Indian understood, for he grunted.

Gale found difficulty in curbing his impatience. The approach of the sheep was slow. The big ram led on with regular persistence, and in half an hour's time he was in the bottom of the great gulf, and soon he was facing up the slope. Gale knew then that the alluring scarf had fascinated him. The animals disappeared behind another ridge. Gale kept watching, sure they would come out farther on. A tense period of waiting passed,

Suddenly He Grasped Gale and Pointed Across a Deep, Wide Gully.

then a sudden electrifying pressure of Yaqui's hand made Gale tremble with excitement.

Very cautiously he shifted his position. There, not fifty feet distant upon a high mound of lava, stood the leader of the sheep. As Gale watched, the second ram leaped lightly upon the mound, and presently the three others did likewise.

The splendid leader stepped closer, his round, protruding amber eyes, which Gale could now plainly see, intent upon that fatal red flag. Like automatons the other four crowded into his tracks. A few little slow steps, then the leader halted.

At this instant Gale's absorbed attention was directed by Yaqui to the rifle, and so to the purpose of the climb. He reached for the .405, and as he threw the shell into the chamber the slight metallic click made the sheep jump. Then he rose quickly to his feet.

The noble ram and his band simply stared at Gale. They had never seen a man. They showed not the slightest indication of instinctive fear. Gale imagined that they were going to step still closer. He did not choose to wait to see if this were true. Certainly it already took a grim resolution to raise the heavy .405.

His shot killed the big leader. The others bounded away with remarkable nimbleness. Gale used up the remaining four shells to drop the second ram, and by the time he had reloaded the others were out of range.

The Yaqui's method of hunting was sure and deadly and saving in energy, but Gale never would try it again. He chose to stalk the game. After being hunted a few times and shot at, the sheep became exceedingly difficult to approach. He failed often. The stalk called forth all that was in him of endurance, cunning, speed. And like a shadow the faithful Yaqui tried ever to keep at his heels.

One morning Yaqui spied a flock of sheep far under the curved, broken rim of the main crater. Then began the stalk. Hiding, slipping, creeping, crawling, Gale closed in upon his quarry until the long rifle grew like stone in his grip, and the whipping "spang" ripped the silence, and the strange echo boomed deep in the crater, and rolled around, as if in hollow mockery at the hopelessness of escape.

He waited beside his quarry, and breathed deep, and swept the long slopes with searching eyes of habit. When Yaqui came up they set about the hardest task of all, to pack the best of that heavy sheep down miles of steep, ragged, choya-covered lava.

The torrid summer heat came imperceptibly, or it could never have been borne by white men. It changed the lives of the fugitives, making them partly nocturnal in habit. The nights had the balmy coolness of spring, and would have been delightful for sleep, but that would have made the blazing days unendurable.

As Ladd had said, one of their greatest problems was the passing of time. The nights were interminably long, but they had to be passed in work or play or dream—anything except sleep. That was Ladd's most inflexible command. He gave no reason. But not improbably the ranger thought that the terrific heat of the day spent in slumber lessened a wear and strain, if not a real danger of madness.

Accordingly, at first the occupations of this little group were many and various. They worked if they had something to do, or could invent a pretext. They told and retold stories until all were wearisome. They sang songs. Mercedes taught Spanish. They played every game they knew. They invented others that were so trivial children would scarcely have been interested, and these they played seriously. In a word, with intelligence and passion, with all that was civilized and human, they fought the ever-infringing loneliness, the savage solitude of their environment.

Gale believed himself the keenest of the party, the one who thought most, and he watched the effect of the desert upon his companions. For hours, it seemed, Ladd would bend over his checkerboard and never make a move. It mattered not now whether or not he had a partner. Jim Lash, the calmest, coolest, most nonchalant, best-humored westerner Gale had ever met, had by slow degrees lost that cheerful character which would have been of such infinite good to his companions, and always he sat brooding, silently brooding. Jim had no ties, few memories, and the desert was claiming him.

Thorne and Mercedes, however, were living, wonderful proof that spirit, mind, and heart were free—free to soar in scorn of the colossal barrenness and silence and space of that terrible hedging prison of lava. They were young; they loved; they were together; and the oasis was almost a paradise. Thorne and Mercedes had forgotten the outside world. If they had been existing on the burned-out desolate moon they could hardly have been in a harsher, grimmer, lonelier spot than this red-walled arroya.

Although the Yaqui was as his shadow, Gale reached a point when he seemed to wander alone at twilight, in the night, at dawn. At night he had formed a habit of climbing up the lava slope as far as the smooth trail extended, and there on a promontory he paced to and fro, and watched the stars, and sat stone-still for hours looking down at the vast void with its moving, changing shadows. He came at length to realize that the desert was a teacher. He did not realize all that he had learned, but he was a different man. And when he decided upon that, he was not thinking of the slow, sure call to the primal instincts of man; he was thinking that the desert, as much as he had experienced and no more, would absolutely overturn the whole scale of a man's values, break old habits, form new ones, remake him. More of desert experience, Gale believed, would be too much for intellect. The desert did not breed civilized man.

Thus the nights passed, endlessly long, with Gale fighting for his old order of thought, fighting the fascination of that infinite sky, and the gloomy insulating whirl of the wide shadows, fighting for belief, hope, prayer, fighting against the terrible ever-recurring idea of being lost, lost, lost in the desert, fighting harder than any other thing the insidious, penetrating, tranquil, unfeeling self that was coming between him and his memory.

He felt he was losing the battle, losing his hold on tangible things, losing his power to stand up under this ponderous, merciless weight of desert space and silence.

At the moment he was alone on the promontory. The night was far spent. A ghastly moon haunted the black volcanic spurs. The winds blew silently. Was he alone? No, he did not seem to be alone. The Yaqui was there. Suddenly a strange, cold sensation crept over Gale. It was new. He felt a presence. Turning, he expected to see the Indian, but instead, a slight shadow, pale, almost white, stood there, not close nor yet distant. It seemed to brighten. Then he saw a woman who resembled a girl he had seemed to know long ago. She was white-faced, golden-haired, and her lips were sweet, and her eyes were turning black. Nell! He had forgotten her. Over him flooded a torrent of memory. There was tragic woe in this sweet face. Nell was holding out her arms—she was crying aloud to him across the sand and the cactus and the lava. She was in trouble, and he had been forgetting.

That night he climbed the lava to

He Came at Length to Realize That the Desert Was a Teacher.

the topmost cone, and never slipped on a ragged crust nor touched a choya thorn. A voice had called to him. He saw Nell's eyes in the stars, in the velvet blue of sky, in the blackness of the engulfing shadows. She was with him, a slender shape, a spirit, keeping step with him, and memory was strong, sweet, beating, beautiful. Far down in the west, faintly golden with light of the sinking moon, he saw a cloud that resembled her face. A cloud on the desert horizon! He gazed and gazed. Was that a spirit face like the one by his side? No—he did not dream.

In the hot, sultry morning Yaqui appeared at camp, after long hours of absence, and he pointed with a long, dark arm toward the west. A bank of clouds was rising above the mountain barrier.

"Rain!" he cried; and his sonorous voice rolled down the arroyo.

Those who heard him were as shipwrecked mariners at sight of a distant sail.

Dick Gale, silent, grateful to the depths of his soul, stood with arm over Blanco Sol and watched the transforming west, where clouds of wondrous size and hue piled over one another, rushing, darkening, spreading, sweeping upward toward that white and glowing sun.

"Oh! I felt a drop of rain on my face!" cried Mercedes; and, whispering the name of a saint, she kissed her husband.

Ladd, gaunt, old, bent, looked up at the maelstrom of clouds, and he said, softly, "Shore we'll get in the hosses, an' pack light, an' hit the trail, an' make night marches!"

Then up out of the gulf of the west swept a bellowing wind and a black pall and terrible flashes of lightning and thunder like the end of the world—fury, blackness, chaos, the desert storm.

CHAPTER XVII

The Whistle of a Horse.

At the ranch-house at Forlorn River Belding stood alone. He took up the gun belt from his table and with slow hands buckled it around his waist. He seemed to feel something familiar and comfortable and inspiring in the weight of the big gun against his hip. He faced the door as if to go out, but hesitated, and then began a slow, plodding walk up and down the length of the room. Presently he halted at the table, and with reluctant hands he unbuckled the gun belt and laid it down.

The action did not have an air of finality, and Belding knew it. He had been a sheriff when the law in the West depended on a quickness of wrist; he had seen many a man lay down his gun for good and all. His own action was not final. Of late he had done the same thing many times, and this last time it seemed a little harder to do, a little more indicative of vacillation. There were reasons why Belding's gun held for him a gloomy fascination.

The Chases, those grasping and conscienceless agents of a new force in the development of the West, were bent upon Belding's ruin, and, so far as his fortunes at Forlorn River were concerned, had almost accomplished it. One by one he lost points for which he contended with them. He carried into the Tucson courts the matter of the staked claims, and mining claims, and water claims, and he lost all. Following that, he lost his government position as inspector of immigration; and this fact, because of what he considered its injustice, had been a hard blow. He had been made to suffer a humiliation equally as great. It came about that he actually had to pay the Chases for water to irrigate his alfalfa fields. The never-failing spring upon his land answered for the needs of household and horses, but no more.

These matters were unfortunate for Belding, but not by any means wholly accountable for his worry and unhappiness and brooding hate. He believed Dick Gale and the rest of the party taken into the desert by the Yaqui had been killed or lost. Two months before a string of Mexican horses, riderless, saddled, starved for grass and wild for water, had come to Forlorn River. They were a part of the horses belonging to Rojas and his band. Their arrival complicated the mystery and strengthened convictions of the loss of both pursuers and pursued.

Belding's unhappiness could hardly be laid to material loss. He had been rich and was now poor, but change of fortune such as that could not have made him unhappy. Something more somber and mysterious and sad than the loss of Dick Gale and their friends had come into the lives of his wife and Nell. He dated the time of this change back to a certain day when Mrs. Belding recognized in the elder Chase an old schoolmate and a rejected suitor. It took time for slow-thinking Belding to discover anything wrong in his household, but gradually he had forced on him the fact of some secret cause for grief other than Gale's loss. He was sure of it when his wife signified her desire to make a visit to her old home back in Peoria.

A letter she had received contained news that may or may not have been authentic; but it was enough, Belding thought, to interest his wife. An old prospector had returned to Peoria, and he had told relatives of meeting Robert Burton at the Sonoyta oasis fifteen years before, and that Burton had gone into the desert never to return. To Belding this was no surprise, for he had heard that before his marriage. There appeared to have been no doubts as to the death of his wife's first husband. The singular thing was that both Nell's father and grandfather had been lost somewhere in the Sonora desert.

Belding did not oppose his wife's desire to visit her old home. He thought it would be a wholesome trip for her, and did all in his power to persuade Nell to accompany her. But Nell would not go.

It was after Mrs. Belding's departure that Belding discovered in Nell a condition of mind that amazed and distressed him. She had suddenly became strangely wretched. She would tell him nothing. But after a while, when he had thought it out, he dated this deplorable change in Nell back to a day on which he had met Nell with Radford Chase. This indefatigable wooer had not in the least abandoned his suit. A slow surprise gathered upon Tom Belding when he saw that Nell, apparently, was accepting young Chase's attentions. At least, she no longer hid from him. Belding could not account for this, because he was sure Nell cordially despised the fellow. And toward the end he divined, if he did not actually know, that these Chases possessed some strange power over Nell, and were using it. That stirred a hate in Belding—a hate he had felt at the first and had manfully striven against, which now gave him over to dark brooding thoughts.

Midsummer passed, and the storms came late. But when they arrived they made up for tardiness. Belding did not remember so terrible a storm of wind and rain as that which broke the summer's drought.

The Chases had extended a main irrigation ditch down to Belding's farm, skipped the width of his ground, then had gone on down through Altar valley. They had exerted every influence to obtain right to connect these ditches by digging through his land, but Belding had remained obdurate. He refused to have any dealings with them. It was therefore with some curiosity and suspicion that he saw a gang of Mexicans once more at work upon these ditches.

At daylight next morning a tremendous blast almost threw Belding out of his bed. It cracked the adobe walls of his house and broke windows and sent pans and crockery to the floor with a crash. Belding's idea was that the store of dynamite kept by the Chases for blasting had blown up. Hurriedly getting into his clothes, he went to Nell's room to reassure her; and, telling her to have a thought for their guests, he went out to see what had happened.

A great yellow cloud, like smoke, hung over the river. This appeared to be at the upper end of Belding's plot, and close to the river. When he reached his fence the smoke and dust were so thick he could scarcely breathe, and for a little while he was unable to see what had happened. Presently he made out a huge hole in the sand just about where the irrigation ditch had stopped near his line. For some reason or other, not clear to Belding, the Mexicans had set off an extraordinarily heavy blast at that point.

.. Hawkeye .. State News

Interesting Items Gathered From all Parts of Iowa

The farmers of Cedar township, Sac county, dedicated their own community hall recently.

More than 525 students are enrolled in the vocational education classes at Iowa State College this quarter.

Governor Kendall appointed James D. Cooney of West Union as additional judge for the thirteenth judicial district.

Telephone operators in 26 cities are attending courses conducted by the engineering division of Iowa State college.

Winter wheat in Iowa came through in better shape than in many parts of the United States according to agricultural statistics.

By a vote of 2 to 1, a proposition to issue bonds for $100,000 for a new high school at Arnold was defeated. More than 1,000 votes were cast.

Coe college is to receive $1,000,000 of the $2,000,000 additional endowment to be raised in Iowa for Parsons Coe and Buena Vista colleges.

The Military Order of the Loyal Legion, composed of officers of the Civil War and their eldest male descendants, will hold a special reunion meeting in Des Moines, May 8th.

Senator Smith W. Brookhart plans to sail for Europe on the steamer President Arthur, April 28th, for a tour of several weeks in England, France, Italy, Denmark and Czecho-Slovakia.

University of Iowa debators defeated a team from South Dakota University on the question, "Resolved, That the United States should enter the league of nations." The Iowa men upheld the negative side.

Lee Barrett, Pacific Junction railroad man, who with his wife and Mrs. Annie Combs was shot, it is alleged by a farmer, drove his car almost a mile with his chin and shoulders after being wounded.

Nearly 150 persons attended the poultry meetings held by the short term classes at Colo, Slater and Story City. D. M. Hall, the county director, conducted the classes, discussing incubation and brooding of chicks.

W. O. Reed, deputy state superintendent of banking, tendered his resignation to Supt. W. J. Murray in order to accept a position with the War Finance corporation in Washington, where he will be in the department handling Iowa loans.

Property damage of many thousands of dollars, the serious injury of Tom Young, veteran fireman, and the loss of thirty-five carloads of furniture and six cars of cotton resulted from a fire which destroyed a three-story brick warehouse at Burlington.

Nearly 500 acres of land in Muscatine county have been sold by Mrs. Addie G. Martin of Sweetland, for a total price of $96,500. With the exception of seventy-five acres sold to William Meerdink for about $14,000, the land is transferred by Mrs. Martin to her sons.

At the rate applications are coming in to the farm bureau. Humboldt county will soon have 20 per cent of all herds signed up under government accredited plan for tuberculosis eradication. Fully 20 per cent of Humboldt county farmers have already tested privately.

The executive secretary of the During the last month several carloads of hearty draft horses have been shipped from West Liberty and other Iowa points at frequent intervals, consigned to eastern markets, exploding the theory that old dobin has passed his usefulness.

At the first annual Ayrshire breeders' picnic, to be held at Waterloo, May 2nd, definite steps will be taken to complete arrangements to import Ayrshire cows into Iowa from surrounding states to meet the heavy Ayrshire demand, which has sprung up during the last few years.

Farmers and feeders who want to find out the place of linseed oil meal, cotton seed meal, corn silage and clover hay in the ration for fattening steers will have opportunity to have their questions answered at the Iowa cattle feeders' day which is to be held this year April 25th at Ames. Two-year-old sters have been employed in the feeding operations.

In another month the vanguard of the Iowa motorists who annually hit the "gypsy trail,' will be starting their annual motoring vacation tours. Wildwood park at Charles City is one of the places where nature has done much to make a pleasant stopping place for the road weary motorist. Plentiful shade, clear running water and picturesque natural scenery make it one of Iowa's beauty spots.

The northwest Iowa declamatory contest was held at Jewell recently, with Algona, Boone, Denison, Emmetsburg, Ireton, Jewell, Randall, Scranton, Spirit Lake and Sutherland competing.

Wide awake Iowa farmers, those who realize the danger from insects, will see to it this year that their fence rows are cleaned up and the refuse burned. This will remove the harbor for many kinds of insects that devastate farm crops later in the season says the Iowa experiment station.

1 cent
Brings It!
?

—Just write your name on a 1 cent Postal Card and mail it to the Klemme Times asking us to send you the Times for one year. One Cent brings it—pay us $1.50 after a month's trial for the balance of one year.

Show this ad to a friend whom you think should be a subscriber to the Times.

UNDER GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION

"Listening In"

Unless you are equipped with a Receiving Set you fail to hear the music and lectures that are all about you in the air.

Having money in the bank is like being equipped with a Radio Receiving Set. It prepares you to take advantage of the many opportunities that are about you. Being able to save money gives you a greater aid in a financial way than themere amount you save, it strengthens your credit.

Strive to keep your credit with your fellow men so you will be able to "LISTEN-IN" when the right opportunities are about you.

UNDER GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION

First National Bank

"The Bank for Everybody'.'

Checking Accounts

A Checking Account is a good business reference. It shows that you believe in keeping a complete record of all financial transactions.

The possession of a Checking Account shows that you possess method, caution and thrift. The people with whom you deal, will have more respect for you if you pay by check rather than by cash.

A reasonable deposit entitles you to a Checking Account at this bank, and we welcome new accounts.

Bank With Us!

5 PER CENT SAVINGS—

State Savings Bank

Klemme Iowa

News of Klemme and Vicinity

Cabbage Plants at Wellemeyer's.

Valeria and Nova Koerntr were at Garner between trains Saturday.

Mrs. Letch, of Goodell, was a Klemme shopper Tuesday.

LuVerne Smith was a business visitor at Belmond yesterday.

Henry Luick, of Belmond, was a visitor with relatives here Monday.

Linoleum four yards wide at Wellemeyer's. adv

William Bell and son. Russell, were Mason City visitors Monday.

R. A. Jorgenson and family spent Sunday at Garner.

Wellemeyer sells Sally Ann Bread. best in town. adv

Mrs. George Jenison, of Belmond, was a Klemme visitor Tuesday.

For Sale—A team of horses. Herb Marshall. Klemme Phone. 1p

Albert Luick. of Clear Lake. was a visitor here Sunday.

Note Book Paper at the Times Print Shop. Punched for 6-inch center loose leaf covers. tfc

J. Jorgenson of Garnuer was in Klemme all last week doing some remodeling for the Editor.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis and two children from Mason City were visiting at the Henry Freie home last week.

Mrs. Myron Haskins and daughter Beulah, of Garner, were visiting Klemme friends yesterday.

You can buy Lady Vee Ja "The giver of beauty," Clay Pack at McCulloughs, and only 50c a jar. adv.

Gilbert Schafer returned Saturday from Missouri, where he spent the winter with his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. D. Kahrs drove over to Clear Lake Sunday for a visit with friends

If your hair is wild and unruly, use "Hair Groom" or "Comb Aid," Get it atMcCullough's adv.

Mr. C. S. Brager from Clear Lake was a business caller in our city Tuesday.

Mr. C. N. Chambers of Mason City was a business caller in Klemme yesterday.

If you want Country Lard, sweet and clean, ask Wellemeyer's. We have it in one gallon jars. adv

Mr. and Mrs. William Voiles, of Belmond, were Klemme visitors last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Tyrell, of Belmond, were visitors in our city on Thursday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Luick, were here from Goodell Friday, visiting friends and shopping.

It is reported to us that Frank Bredlows little boy broke his leg last Friday while at school.

The morning train from the south last Friday came in about noon—a trifle late.

Bring your tire to Wellemeyer's after your next blow-out. Our "Tinkerman" is good at Vulcanizing. adv

Ralph Quintus, the pumber from Garner, was in Klemme on business Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Hod Lawhorn, of Garner, visited with Klemme relatives and friends a few days the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Spitler of Belmond were in Klemme on business Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Grettidge, of near Clear Lake, were visiting at the Chas Luick home in Klemme Sunday.

Mrs. Williams came from Dows Saturday for a visit with her sister, Mrs. Neuhring.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kessler and son were Belmond visitors Saturday.

Mrs. H. C. Beier and daughter left for Beltrami, Minnesota last week Monday for a visit at the O. G. Gast home at that place.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lewis drove to Mason City Saturday evening for a Sunday visit with friends.

R. A. Jorgenson and family were at Clear Lake Monday afternoon on business.

Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Mitchell, of Swea City, were visiting with relatives and friends here last week.

Our Big Spring Shipment of Linoleum has arrived at Wellemeyer's. Beautiful new patterns and splendid quality. adv

Mrs. Roy Rankins, wife of the Belmond Independent Editor, was a Klemme visitor Saturday between trains.

If you have any dirty rugs that need cleaning, let Wellemeyer's know; 3¢ per square foot and we make them look like new. adv

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bailey and Mrs. A. D. Gimer drove over to Clear Lake last Tuesday where they attended a missionary convention

G. P. McCullough has rented the Wm. C. Schmidt residence near the Park and will move there the first of the week.

The letting of the school house job has been postponed until May 10 as the plans and specifications were delayed in revising some parts of them.

Our "Devil" went to Garner Tuesday afternoon to get a pair of pants. We have not seen the new pants but presume they are red ones, in harmony with his occupation.

Mr. Henry Medaus was taken to the Hampton Hospital Monday for an operation which is hoped will make him well again in a short time. Mrs. Medaus is also at Hampton.

Mr. Einar Salling has been laid up the past week or more and was unable to drive his cream route. He was again able to be up town Tuesday.

Typewriter ribbons at the Times Print Shop. Black, and Red and Black for all standard machines, at 75c. There is no better ribbon than the Remington. tfc

The women in town are sure raising cane the past week with Old Man Winter Dirt. Housecleaning is on in full blast and little time is being wasted over the back fence in latest gosip.

Those who have Farm Lighting plants will be interested in knowing that Wellemeyer's can supply you with a "Bee-Vac" Vacuum Sweeper equipped to run on your 32 volt currant. Price $40.00 at Wellemeyer's. adv

Everybody has been busy the past week cleaning up the back yard that had been the dumping ground for winter ashes and trash. The town is beginning to present a spick and span appearance. Gardens are being made, lawns raked over and a general clean up is in progress here.

If You Need a New

HAYES

Four Wheel Planter

AND DON'T BUY IT,

you will pay for it in yield and dollar losses.

You Can Buy it Now at the Price You are Glad to Pay

Used for thirty-seven years by more corn belt farmers than any other planter

Henry Lau Sons

Announcing the new

Elite Cafe

I wish to announce to the people of Klemme and vicinity that I have purchased the Irving Cafe, and am now open for business at the same location—second door west of the State Savings Bank.

I solicit your patronage and my aim is to give the BEST OF SERVICE in this line, serving you with REAL MEALS and lunches. I also carry a full line of fresh CANDY, CIGARS, TOBACCO and SOFT DRINKS.

Call in and get acquainted, we will try to be of service to you.

Respectfully,

LuVerne Smith

Proprietor

Elite Cafe

STILLE'S IMPLEMENT NEWS

VOLUME 1. Thursday April 26, 1923. NUMBER 1

If you are in need of a new plow or tillage implement give us a chance to quote our prices and go over the machine with you. And don't buy any farm machine on price. The man who buys machines by price alone is taking a dangerous risk. It pays to buy reliable plows and tillage implements the same as reliable binders and mowers. Furthermore, it pays to buy from a firm at home, one that pays taxes in your county, one that helps with the donations for local enterprises, and in fact is a booster for everything that's good for your community. Be sure that the machine you buy carries a reputable manufacturer's guarantee such as is carried by McCormick-Deering and John Deere plows and tillage implements.

It is said that there is only one bath tub in France to each 600 people. Maybe this accounts for "French Dry Cleaning."

No doubt you know that the states who have the most dairy cows are the states where farmers are most prosperous, have the best homes and the finest farms. the most comforts and conveniences, and the biggest bank accounts. This fact has especially been emphasized during the past three years. The Iowa Farmer who wants to profit from his past experiences of short prices should learn a lesson from the dairy farmer and begin milking cows. A Primrose will save all the cream and provide ample skim-milk, warm, sweet and pure. in the best condition for feeding to calves and pigs, while the cream brings you a cash income every two weeks. Come in and let us show you why the Primrose skims cleanest, turns easiest, last longest, and produces cream of the highest grade.

All roads lead to jail if you drive fast enough.

We still have some linseed oil at $1.10 a gallon.

"Tutankhamen" means "Toot and come in."

A hair raising experience—you growing a mustache.

In addition to being absolutely accurate, the International No. 8 planter has a number of other important features you will like. It is the simplest planter built. No chains, no sprockets, no clutch, or other complicated parts to get out of order. No timing is necessary. The No. 8 seed plates are operated entirely by the check wire. The fact that the ordinary check wire is plenty heavy enough to do this indicates the ease with which it operates. The International No. 8 is a ratchet drive planter. It is entirely free from gears. It has a marker that is automatic in action. Seed boxes can be tilttd and plates changed when full of corn. Any type of runner desired can be supplied. The No. 8 can be shipped with combined corn and pea hopper or handy fertilizer attachment at slight extra cost. You should own a No. 8.

THE KLEMME TIMES

enty-seventh Year—Number 34. Klemme, Iowa, Thursday Afternoon, May 3, 1923. $1.50 In Advance—$2.00 Outside of County

EWS OF THE WEEK'S DOINGS AT HIGH SCHOOL

H. S. WINS TWO MORE GAMES

ornton Defeated by a Score of 9 to 3

The High School addtd another tory to their list when it defeated Thornton High School team by score of 9 to 3.

Here is the batting average.

	AB	R	LB	PO	SO
ellemeyer, LF	5	1	0	0	4
sch, 1B	4	3	1	0	3
rgasen, SS	4	0	1	0	3
rsen, RF	4	1	0	2	3
oerner, P	4	0	1	0	3
der, C	4	0	1	2	3
mpke, 2B	4	1	2	0	1
mer, 3B	4	1	0	0	3
bbs,CF	4	2	2	0	0
, Sub

B represents at bat; R runs; LB t on bast; SO struck out and PO t out.

Score by innings
Klemme,	1	0	1	3	4	0	0
Thornton	0	0	0	3	0	0	0

The Klemme boys played an excell nt game, except for one inning hen they "blew up" to use baseball anguage, and let in three scores.

Koerner again pitched the first ive innings and was followed by imer who ended the game with ome real speedy throwing.

Doc Thomas umpired the game and id his job as good as usual which ncidently was very good.

The Thornton team is a fine bunch of boys and the Klemme team en- oys playing with them very much. They are eagerly looking forward to the time they will play Thornton a- gain.

The girls were a real help to the boys with their excellent yelling and the boys appreciated it a great deal. It made them feel more peppy and also made the Thornton boys see that they had the whole High school to beat rather than merely the team alone.

Klemme vs. Crystal Lake 10 to 0

Game called on account of weather

Tuesday the K. H. S. journ yed to Crystal Lake to cross bats with their High School team. The weather was threatening in Klemme when we ltft but as we traveled north we found that it had rained very little there.

The game was a good one while it lasted and we are sure our team would have come out ahead, but at the beginning of the fourth inning it began to rain and also hail to some extent. The game was then called, but the rain stoped and we could have played again. The Crystal Lake team however conceded us the game with the score as it stood in the fourth inning of 10 to 0.

The Klemme boys played a very good game and very few, if any errors were made. Koerner pitched the entire game and proved to be a little too much for the Crystal Lake men. The team played the usual line up, Gimer playing third.

We still have two more chances to beat Crystal Lake, one at the County Tournament and one at Klemme on Picnic day, May 25th.

Go to the Tournament Friday

May 4th, at Garner

Friday, May 4th is going to be a big day for the schools of Hancock County. They ae all going to Garner to spend the day and evening and see who is the best in athletics. As the track meet is to be held Thursday afternoon, the whole day will be taken up with basegall, tennis and declamatory work. The games start at 8:30. Klemme has drawn Crystal Lake for the first game. which will be the first game of the day. The winners of this game will play Corwith. Garner plays Britt, and the winners of this game will play Kanawha. The winners of the Kanawha and Corwith games will then play in the finals for the cup.

In the afternoon and evening is the declamatory contest. The oratorical contest occurs at 4:30. Adela Schroeder is representing the Klemme school in this division. In the evening is the dramatical and Humorous contest. Maurine Hake is our dramatic contestant and Marie Blank Humorous.

There are twenty- one contestants entering in this county contest and it will be a wonderful evening for all that attend. Our contestants stand a good chance of winning something as they did so well last year in the County Meet.

Try to come and have a good time with the schools of Hancock County.

A Correction

Last week when we publishe1 the honor roll a mistake was made in the Sophomoes averages Leona Lau, we are very sorry to say was left out. Her average was 96% which entitled her to third place in her class.

To Make Up Lessons

The Freshman are not going to get behind any on account of any Basegall. Monday the class held a recitation at 12:40 in order not to miss any work on account of the Crystal Lake game. The class grades are always made up if anybody misses any classes on account of baseball games. This makes it so that school work is not retarded by a little fun.

NOTICE

I will not allow any trespassing. hunting or trapping on my land, as the privilege has been abused by some. Albert Johnson. 26-3-10p

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

The date named for receiving bids for the construction of an addition to the School Building in the Independent School District of Klemme has been postponed from April 27, 1923 to May 10, 1923.

LEW LEWIS, Sec.
Independent School District Klemme.

PASTURE FOR RENT

Have pasture to rent in W½ of NW¼ Section 20, Twp. 94, Range 23 in Avery township. Running water in pasture. Inquire of H. L. Suckow, Receiver. Klemme, Iowa. (3-10

PASTURE

Room for a few more cattle in river bottom pasture. Apply to E. J. Arnold. adv

REWARD!

The Koerner Telephone Company will pay a reward of $15.00 for evidence and conviction of the party or parties who cut and tampered with telephone lines No. 7-59 last Friday night, April 27th.

A. G. KOERNER, Mgr.

NOTICE OF PROBATE OF WILL

STATE OF IOWA
Hancock County, ss.
TO ALL TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED, That an instrument of writing purporting to be the last Will and Testament of MARIA F. KOERNER, deceased, dated Sept. 21, 1922, having been this day filed, opened and read, Monday the 28th day of May. 1923, is fixed for htaring proof of same at the Court House in Garner, Iowa, before the District Court of said County or the Clerk of said Court; and at 10 o'clock A. M. of the day above mentioned, all persons interested are hereby notified and required to appear, and show cause, if any they have, why said instrument should not be probated and allowed as and for the last Will and Testament of said deceased.

Dated at Garner, Iowa, this 30th day of April, 1923.

B. E. ERWIN,
(3-10-17) Clerk of District Court.

Folding Fan Invented 700 A. D.

The ordinary folding fan was invented in Japan in the Seventh century by a native artist, who derived the idea from the way in which the bat closes its wings.

REBEKAH LODGE BENEFIT

Klemme, Iowa

Thursday Evening, May 3, 1923

Cast of Characters

Widow Bridget McGinty ..... Mrs. J. E. Tierney
Rosie, her daughter ..... Clarissa Abel
Mary Ellen, another daughter ..... Fern Katter
Katie, the youngest daughter ..... Gladys Gashell
Barney Muldoon ..... J. E. Tierney
Patrick O'Hulligan ..... E. P. Hanson
Barnstorm Walker ..... Chet Rice
Snowball White ..... Floyd Fraser
Olof Olson ..... J. D. Madison

Act I. Widow McGinty's boarding house on Bleeker street, New York City. Concluding scene, the widow inherits a fortune.

Act II. Six months later. The widow McGinty and her daughters located in their Fifth Avenue mansion. Concluding scene, O'Hulligan and Muldoon, suitors of the widow, have a rough house.

Act III. Scene—Picnic grounds. Mrs. McGinty, the hostess. O'Hulligan's infidelity discovered through ruse of Katie, the widow's youngest daughter.

Special Orchestra Music.

Vocal Selections by Mrs. Floyd Fraser.

IS COLDEST SPOT IN UNITED STATES

Devils Lake, N. D., Has Zero Temperature or Lower One-Fifth of Days of Year.

WEATHER RECORDS ANALYZED

Long and Severe Winters in Northern States Contrast With Mild Winters in Southern States.

Washington.—Devils Lake, North Dakota, with an average of nearly one-fifth of the days of the year when temperatures are as low as zero or lower and more than one-half of the days of the year when it is freezing or lc er, holds the record as the country's coldest place.

Temperature conditions vary greatly in the United States during the winter season, an analysis of records of the weather bureau show. Long and severe winters in the northern states, with North Dakota, Minnesota, northern Michigan and northern Vermont having the most severe weather, contrast sharply with the mild winters of the southern states, but in summer the difference is not nearly so great.

Freezing temperatures have been recorded at all mainland stations of the weather bureau in winters past, but they have been of infrequent occurrence along the Pacific coast and in the immediate Gulf coast sections, where they average only two to five days during the winter compared with an average of one day along the California coast.

In general, freezing weather occurs more than 100 days of the year north of southern Pennsylvania, the Ohio river and the southern parts of Missouri and Kansas, as well as throughout the mountain and plateau districts of the West. In North Dakota, eastern Montana and Wyoming freezing temperatures may be expected on more than half the days of the year, the annual record of Yellowstone park averaging 211 days. This is in marked contrast with two days at Tampa, Fla., and four days at Galveston, Texas.

As a rule, zero weather does not occur south of the District of Columbia, the western portion of Virginia, the extreme northern parts of Tennessee and Arkansas, and central Oklahoma, although during the cold wave of 1899 the zero line was carried to the east Gulf coast.

In the average winter the temperature falls to zero on five days as far south as southern Pennsylvania, central Indiana, Illinois and Missouri and southeastern Kansas. In the central-northern districts between the western upper lake region and the Rocky mountains it occurs with much greater frequency, the average ranging from forty to sixty days or more.

The influence of Lake Michigan in modifying severe temperatures is evident from the fact that Grand Haven, on the eastern side of the lake, shows only three days with zero temperature, while Milwaukee, on the opposite side of the lake and at about the same latitude, has on an average of fourteen days.

Extremely low temperatures are comparatively less frequent than moderately cold weather in the Rocky mountain area, when compared with the central-northern states. This is shown by Denver's average with 145 days of freezing weather and only nine days with zero temperatures, while Bismarck, N. D., averages 182 days with freezing and 53 days with zero.

PUT HEADS THROUGH GLASS

Chinese Farmers Become Accustomed to Many Western Ways, But Transparent Windows Puzzle Them.

Peking.—The Chinese have become accustomed to many western ways, but glass windows in trains are still perplexing to them. In the remote districts the natives continue to make their windows of rice paper, following a custom that is centuries old.

Passengers on a railroad between Shanghai and Peking recently were surprised to find black lines painted across the window panes of the cars. The explanation given was that Chinese farmers, being unused to transparent windows, would thrust their heads through the glass.

Psalter by Luther Is Found.

Berlin.—A German psalter has been discovered by Professor Albrecht of Halle which is believed to have been written by Luther. The book was printed in Wittenburg in 1541 and bound in 1544 in rich leather.

GAS ON STOMACH WON'T LET YOU SLEEP

Gas often presses on heart and oth er organs, causing a restless, nervous feeling which prevents sleep. Simple buckthorn bark. glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adlerika. expels gas and relieves pressure almost INSTANTLY, inducing restful sleep. Adlerika often removes surprising old matter from BOTH upper and lower bowel which poisoned stomach and caused gas. EXELLENT to guard against appendicitis. E. S. D. Kahrs, druggist.

CONDENSED NEWS THAT MAY BE OF INTEREST TO YOU

NEWS NUBBINS

"The time has come," the Walrus said, "to talk of many things—of shoes and ships and sealing wax; of cabbages and kings."

The High Price Of Sugar To The American consumer is not due to the Republican protective tariff. This is the conclusion reached by the tariff commission, which submitted its report to President Harding in response to his equest made while he was in Floida. Support of this view was evidenced in the action of the Department of Justice, which applied in a New York Federal court for a temporary injunction against the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange, Inc., and the Sugar Clearing Association to prevent further trading in sugar. It appears to be the consensus that relief to the consumer can come only through the suppression of sugar gambling, profiteering and manipulation of the sugar prices.

Award of the Distinguished Service medal for service rendered during the World War by ten members of the War Industries Board has been approved by Secretary Weeks. Bernard M. Baruch more than a year ago declined the medal awarded to him as chairman of the board. but it was said this week the decoration still awaited his acceptance. Secretary Weeks said the services of the board members were so closely identified with those of unifomed officers that he had made an exception to the general rule regulation awards.

President Harding Has Directed the War and Navy departments, in a letter addressed to Secretaries Weeks and Denby, not to permit the sale of surplus war stocks, including arms, ammunition or other munitions to any foreign nation.

The United States Ranks First as a poultry producing country. as far as can be determined from the statistics available, the number of chickens in this country on Jan. 1, 1923, being placed at 428,000,000, says a bulletin issued by the weather, crops and markets division of the United States Department of Agriculture. Figures for other classes of poultry would bring the total number of fowls up to 441,000.000.

Discovery Was Made That In The Washington Patent Office is a document proving that a German invented and patented an armored tank for warfare two years before the conflict began. Why it was not used is puzzling officials in Washington.

The Ulta Microbe Is The Latest scientific discovery. It is even later than relativity. As man has his microbes—of typhoid fever or of consumption, say—which slay him with consumption or typhoid, so these microbes are in turn slain by microbes of their own—infinitesimally small things called ultra microbes. Its uses will be numberless. Suppose, for instance, a water supply is contaminated with typhoid germs. A regiment of typhoid ultra microbes will be put in the water. and in a short time the supply will be pure again. Sic 'em Mike!

Railroads Paid Out In Wages During 1922 the sum of $2.669,180,772 to maintain an average of 1,645,244 employees, according to compiliations made by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The figures include the labor payments of all the class 1 roads. which control more than 90 per cent of the country's total rail milage. It is the first full year's summary of statistics on the subject ever made by the commission. The largest group of employees whose earnings were shown separate ly were the men in train and engine service, numbering 302,083 who received $671,917,140.

American Automobile Production records were broken during March, accoding to the Depatment of Commerce, which showed that during the month 64,000 cars and trucks were turned out in excess of the previous high record of last June. The output of passenger cars in the month of March totaled 318,424 and of trucks 21,815.

A Federal Grand Jury At Fort Worth. Texas, indicted ninety-two oil promoters on charges of using the mails to defraud. The district attorney said the oil companies involved had taken in $7,000,000 in cash. and three of the companies, made up of 458 original companies had sold $136,000,000 in stock. The total number of investors was estimated at 2,064,450.

United States Attorney William Hayward filed a civil court suit for the government in New York City to enjoin the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange and its clearing associations from further trading in sugar futures unless backed up by actual ownership or control of the sugar dealt with. Subpoenas were issued for 23 members and officers of the exchange and its clearing association for a hearing April 30 on the application of the government for a preliminary injunction against trading in sugar futures pending a final hearing.

Official Distinction Has Been Lent to Mother's Day observance on May 12 this year by the promise of government officials to cooperate with Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia, president and founder of the Mother's Day Association. Secretary Weeks notified her that instructions for observance are being issued to the services.

The Chinese Government has blocked effectively the project of the Federal Wireless Company to establish five wireless stations in China by dilatory response to the efforts of the company's representatives backed by the strong support of the American legation to secure acceptance of a modified contract. Strong Japanese pressure is being used to prevent the Chinese government from taking action. A personal call by Jacob Gould Schurman, American minister, several weeks ago, has been followed by almost weekly conversations between Mr. Schurman or members of the American legation staff and Huang Fu, acting foreign minister in the Peking cabinet prior to his recent retirement. Latterly, the American diplomats have dealt with Shun Jui-Lin, vice minister, but all efforts have been met only by pleas for time to adjust the dispute.

Miss Dorothy Smith came last Sunday for a visit until Wednesday with her sister here, Miss Sara.

LABRADOR'S PRICE $50,000,00

Newfoundland Wants to Get Rid of Debt; Canada Offers $10,000,000.

Ottawa, Ont.—The bleak territory of Labrador, long a no man's land between the Dominion of Canada and the island colony of Newfoundland, will become Canadian soil if Newfoundland receives her price. Negotiations were reopened recently. Representatives of Canada and Newfoundland are busily engaged searching the archives and studying old maps, preparing to argue the ownership of Labrador before the privy council in London.

The latest proposal is that Canada assume the Newfoundland national debt of $50,000,000 and take title to Labrador. This suggestion, it was understood, was put forward by Sir Patrick Magrath, representing the island colony. Canadian representatives, while expressing willingness to pay cash for the territory, set its value at $10,000,000.

For fifteen years negotiations have been going on between the Canadian and Newfoundland governments to settle the Labrador boundary difficulty. Newfoundland, maintaining jurisdiction over the Labrador coast, has contended that its zone of influence runs well into the interior, taking up a large area that the maps allot to the province of Quebec. The Canadian authorities concede to Newfoundland only a narrow strip of the Labrador littoral, which is necessary to the fisheries industry of the island colony.

HUGHES DEFENDS LEAGUE COURT

Secretary of State Says Institution Is Good Old U. S. Doctrine.

DECLARES PLAN IS NOT NEW

Says It Has Long Been American Policy and Not Like the League Itself —Answers Senator Borah's Criticism.

Washington, April 28.—In a carefully studied effort to check the rising tide of opposition to the administration's world court plan, Secretary of State Hughes, addressing the American Society of International Law here, declared that the United States by joining the court would incur no risk of becoming involved in the League of Nations.

Replying to the criticism directed at the court plan by Senator Borah (Rep., Idaho) and other irreconcilables, Mr. Hughes insisted that the connection existing between the court and the league was so remote that the United States could not become entangled in the league.

Moreover, he contended, every possible danger suggested by the critics of becoming involved was met by the reservations he suggested to the senate when President Harding submitted the court protocol to the senate.

"Those who desire that by this method the United States shall become a member of the league are indulging in vain hopes and those who are alarmed at such a possibility are entertaining vain fears," said Mr. Hughes.

Further on he said: "The permanent court is thus an establishment separate from the league, having a distinct legal status created by an independent organic act.

"The fundamental question," he continued, "is whether the league of nations controls the court. To this there is a ready answer. The league does not control the court; that is an independent judicial body. It is not a servant of the league and its decisions are not supervised or controlled by the league.

"The establishment of a permanent court has been an American policy because we have desired this essential improvement in judicial process in international relations. Political platforms have treated this as an American policy and not as a forbidden entanglement. If you are to treat participation in a permanent court of international justice as an entanglement foreign to our institutions, you must rewrite American history."

Charity Loses, Heirs Gain; Fish Doesn't "Gratify Vanity"

Carmel, N. Y., April 26.—Stuyvesant Fish, New York financier, who died April 10, left everything to his three children and nothing to charity, according to his will, filed for probate here. A clause in the document, which was in his own handwriting, said:

"Having observed and always believed that charitable bequests afford the testator a means of gratifying his vanity at the expense of his heirs, I make none."

Italy Backs Up France and Britain Against Yanks

Lausanne, April 27.—Italy and Great Britain support France in a stand against the Chester concessions in Turkey. This was made known officially when the spokesman of the Italian delegation gave a carefully phrased statement on the American monopoly approved by the Angora government.

Reds Incite Ruhr Jobless; Two Men Fall in Clash

Essen, April 25.—A mob of unemployed clashed with the police at Katernberg. One man was killed and one body wounded. Germans lay the recent outbreaks to Communist agitators.

Soviet Crimes Arouse British; Warning Sent

London, April 26.—The British government has forwarded a warning to Moscow that offensive acts have excited profound indignation in England. The warning intimates unless apologies are promptly made there is no chance to resume normal relations.

New York Banker Urges U. S. to Save Germany

Toronto, April 27.—Intervention by the United States and the British empire in the Ruhr situation was urged in an address before the Empire Club of Canada here by Dr. Benjamin M. Anderson, Jr., economist of the Chase National bank of New York.

Liquor Ship Captured.

Highlands, N. J., April 28.—The motor lighter Napeague, carrying nearly 16,000 cases of liquor, was seized by coast guards off Sandy Hook while it was en route from the liquor fleet to the New Jersey shore.

Cecil Asks Ruhr Investigation.

New York, April 28.—A plea that some great power should ask the League of Nations to intervene in the Ruhr was voiced by Lord Robert Cecil in an address in which he ended his American tour in favor of the league.

MAJ. E. E. HUME

Maj. Edgar Erskine Hume, U. S. A., Medical corps, Washington, D. C., brought his total number of military decorations to 28 when Secretary of War Weeks recently awarded him the Distinguished Service Medal. During the war he was stationed on the Italian front.

FRENCH PEACE STAND

Official Statement Is Issued by Paris Government.

Insists That Germany Make Her Offers Direct—Bars All Super-Arbitrators or Special Commissions.

Paris, April 26.—The official French attitude concerning the possibility of an adequate offer of reparations from Germany is that it must first of all address itself directly to France and Belgium. Germany must not in her official communication present special pleading or propose the nomination of any commission of super-arbitrators, but must say formally, according to an unofficial statement here:

"'I accept the return to the stipulations of the Versailles treaty and discussions with you of the methods of their execution.'

"She must not invoke the Bergmann project of last December, for the good reason that that project was so extremely vague that even Prime Minister Bonar Law considered it inconsistent. But she may indicate the general lines of her offer. We are convinced that the hour is not yet come for Germany to reach this point of resignation, and certainly her resistance is useless."

If the German chancellor, as reported in London and Berlin, intends to repeat his offer of 30,000,000,000 marks gold as the total of reparations, even for formal effect only, he might as well save himself the trouble of writing the document.

Railroad Expressmen Seek Pay Raise of $18,000,000

Chicago, April 24. — Seventy-two thousand railway workers, members of the Order of Railroad Expressmen, filed a plea with the United States Railroad Labor board for a wage increase to approximate $18,000,000 annually.

A. Bollinger, grand president of the organization, who submitted the petition, asked that a pay increase of 10 cents an hour be allowed by the railroad labor board to all employees enrolled in his union.

President to Take Hand in Vigorous Dry Enforcement

Washington, April 27.—President Harding is preparing to go after prohibition enforcement most vigorously. For some time the President has been dissatisfied with the enforcement as it has been conducted. He has spoken many times publicly of the failures to enforce the law, but now, according to some of his closest advisers, he proposes to find out why it is that enforcement is so ineffective.

Report Bergdoll Lives on Mexico-California Border

Los Angeles, Cal., April 28.—Reports that Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, sought by federal authorities for years as a draft dodger, is in the northern part of Lower California and spends his time between Ensenada and Tia Juana were brought to Los Angeles by private individuals.

British Refuse to Loosen Grip on Turk Straits

Lausanne, April 25.—The British have flatly refused to evacuate Constantinople and the Dardanelles even after Turkey ratifies the treaty of peace which is being negotiated here.

Sat on His Wife Until She Died.

New Britain, Conn., April 28.—Having confessed that he sat on his wife in a shallow pond a month ago so that she was drowned, John A. Carlson, a plumbing contractor, was held without bonds here.

Smith Leaves for Siam Post.

Washington, April 28.—Dr. Hugh M. Smith left Washington for San Francisco, whence he will sail to Siam to assume the post of fisheries adviser of the government. Doctor Smith is former commissioner of fisheries.

BOY KILLED IN U. CLASS RUSH

Auto Smashes Into Freshmen Chasing Sophomores of Northwestern.

SEVERAL OTHERS ARE INJURED

One Dead, Another Probably Fatally Injured, and Several Others Hurt, Climax of Class Scrimmage at Big University.

Evanston, Ill., April 27.—One Northwestern university student is dead, another is believed to be dying, and two others and a woman are severely injured as a result of an automobile crash at Sheridan road and the drainage canal, Wilmette.

The accident was the sequel to a class war that has been raging between the sophomores and freshmen for several days. It brought the death list by automobiles in Cook county since January 1 to 199.

James Leahy of Chicago, the driver of the students' car, was held by the police. He is a student and a member of Delta Tau Delta fraternity. He could give no explanation of the accident except to say that he had been dazed by the lights of the car with which he collided.

The boy killed was Louis Aubere, who lived with his parents in Chicago. He was a member of Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

His companion, reported dying at the Evanston hospital, is Ralph Williams of Harlan, Ky.

The two students were knocked from the running board of a speeding flivver by an automobile bound for Wilmette and driven by Mrs. Arthur D. Winslow.

Mrs. Winslow and three women companions were returning to their Wilmette homes from Chicago where they had attended a theater party.

Mrs. Winslow and her companions were injured by flying glass.

Herrin Sheriff Refused Offer of State Troops

Marion, Ill., April 27.—State's Attorney Delos S. Duty and County Treasurer (formerly sheriff) Melvin Thaxton of Williamson county were closely examined by the special legislative committee which is inquiring into the Herrin mine massacre on June 22, 1922.

In the effort to find why troops were not sent to the county in time to avert the massacre, the committee received its most important testimony when Mr. Duty swore that on the night before the massacre he heard Col. Sam N. Hunter tell Adjutant Black that troops would not be needed because a truce had been arranged at the Lester mine, and that all was quiet.

President Seeks Legal Way to Use Army in Rum War

Washington, April 28. — President Harding has asked the Department of Justice for an opinion as to whether he may lawfully employ the armed forces of the United States in the suppression of rum smuggling, it was announced at the White House. A complete program has been worked out for the suppression of this illegal traffic, the White House spokesman stated, but the execution of the program awaits legal verification.

Rock Island Trio Gets Pen Terms for Conspiracy

Rock Island, Ill., April 28.—Mayor H. M. Schriver, former Chief of Police Thomas Cox and Lawrence Pedigo were sentenced to terms of from one to five years in the penitentiary by Judge Harry Edwards here, after motion for a new trial had been denied in the conspiracy case in which they were convicted two years ago. Cox, in addition to his sentence, was fined $2,000.

Allies Accept U. S. Terms on Rhine Army Pay

Paris, April 25.—After discussion the allies practically have accepted the American demand that payment for the accumulated American Rhine army costs be scattered among the first twelve annual German payments and that America have priority over the current allied army costs during those years.

Hail Breaks Every Window in Town in Texas Storm

Henrietta, Tex., April 25.—A hail and wind storm hit here Tuesday evening, damaging buildings to an estimated extent of $200,000. The wind raged for half an hour, throwing egg-sized hailstones at a fifty-mile speed, smashing every window in the town to bits.

Negro Knocked Into Coma by Hail.

Coweta, Okla., April 28.—A negro was beaten into unconsciousness, one horse killed, and thousands of dollars' damage done to property and crops by hail, some of which measured six inches around, which fell here.

De Valera Seeks Peace.

Dublin, April 28.—Eamon de Valera, leader of the Republicans, and E. F. Aitken, his chief of staff, issued a proclamation calling on the Republican forces to suspend hostilities pending an attempt to negotiate peace.

PERMANENT PEACE IS URGED

Resolution Is to Be Presented to President and Congress by Brig. Gen. Roy Hoffman.

Brig. Gen. Roy Hoffman of Oklahoma City, Okla., has been selected by the legislature of the state to present a resolution memorializing the President and congress for the promotion of permanent peace among nations as outlined by the Interallied Veterans' federation, representing 15,000,000 World war veterans.

The resolution primarily calls for the establishment of a world court, the reduction of armament, except for the upholding of court decrees; opposition to territorial aggrandizement, and full publicity for international agreements between governments.

The declaration of principles, which formed the basis of the resolution sent by the Oklahoma lawmakers to congress, is that adopted by the federation at its world convention held in New Orleans during the recent American Legion convention. The Legion is a member body of the federation which is also known as "Fidac."

General Hoffman was given credit for the writing of many of the principles for the Fidac convention.

A native of the Southwest, General Hoffman became a resident of Indian territory, now Oklahoma, as soon as that country was thrown open for white settlement. Early in life, he established the first daily newspaper in Guthrie, during the operation of which he was preparing for admission to the bar, which he accomplished in 1891. As United States attorney in 1897, he resigned to enlist as a private for service in the Spanish-American war, and served throughout the war, attaining the rank of captain. In 1900, on the death of the colonel of the Oklahoma Guard regiment, Mr. Hoffman succeeded to the command of the regiment, serving through domestic and Indian troubles. He was called for border service in 1916 and was mustered out in March, 1917, only to be called to the colors 30 days later for World war service.

Brig. Gen. Roy Hoffman.

Promoted to brigadier general on August 6, 1917, General Hoffman commanded a brigade at Camp Bowie and assisted in organizing the Thirty-sixth division. He later organized the Ninety-third division and commanded it in action. During the battle of Cantigny he was with the First division, also saw service in the Toul sector, at St. Mihiel, and in the defensive Picardy sector. He received the decoration of commander of the Legion of Honor, conferred in person by Marshal Foch.

A charter member of the American Legion, General Hoffman has been active in promoting the interests of the organization. He has attended all national conventions as a delegate and has served as national executive committeeman from Oklahoma. He was named a member of the committee to meet the F. I. D. A. C., and was a delegate to the allied convention.

OWSLEY HAS GOOD MEMORY

Commander Recognizes Member of His Camp When They Meet in an Illinois City.

Distance means little to the American Legion or its officers.

National Commander Alvin Owsley recently surprised Legionnaires in an Illinois town, and caused a post commander a mild embarrassment by his immediate recognition of a former "buddy" in service at an Oklahoma camp, hundreds of miles away from that town.

Commander Owsley was being entertained at a meeting of the Jefferson post 141, Mt. Vernon, Ill., and the post commander was introducing the various members of his organization to the guest of honor.

Momentarily forgetting a member's name, the local man said, "The next is er—"

"Hello, Baird," said Commander Owsley, "what in the world are you doing here?"

Baird was a soldier who had been stationed at the camp when the leader of the Legion was a captain at the post, but he recognized the man before the post commander could think of the member's name.

Ingenious.

Private Blimp was a modest and sensitive man who dreaded a rebuff. He had fallen in love with the prettiest girl within a mile of the camp, but hesitating proposing for fear that she would turn him down. At last, when he could stand the suspense no longer, he was struck by an inspiration. Hastily seizing a pen, he wrote her an anonymous letter asking her to marry him. — American Legion Weekly.

PROMINENT PEOPLE

As Mild as His Brother Is Emphatic

You would never suspect, say intimate friends of the new comptroller of the currency, Henry M. Dawes of Chicago (portrait herewith), that he was an own brother of Gen. Charles G. ("H—l and Maria") Dawes, who used to be comptroller and achieved fame as head of the budget bureau. By that these intimate friends mean that Brother Henry's speech is by comparison meek and mild and that he doesn't stage a war dance during a warm argument.

"He is retiring in nature, but a thorough financier," said one of his friends. "I have never known a more able man. It isn't difficult for him to form a judgment. He was trained that way. He is what might be called a conservative type. But he's also fearless. He plays an average game of golf, has a keen sense of humor and is a pleasant conversationalist. He has never run for office nor held one.

The new controller is connected with many financial institutions and b ing companies, notably in the gas and electric field. He and his three broth Charles G., Rufus C. and Beman G. Dawes are sons of the late General R R. Dawes, who commanded the Iron Brigade during the Civil war and later a member of congress. The brothers were graduated from Marietta co The controller went into the lumber business to manage family holdings, about fifteen years ago severed these connections and went to Chicago to come treasurer of the various companies controlled by the Dawes interests.

"He is a great balance-wheel," said one man who knows him well.

New Lord Carnarvon Is Already Famous

This is a portrait, just arri from overseas, of Henry George Alf Marius Victor Francis Herbert, s earl of Carnarvon. All his life peo will point to him and say: "Th goes Lord Carnarvon! You kn Tut's tomb—Pharaoh's curse and that!" Yes; he is the son of t Lord Carnarvon who uncovered t tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen in the Va of the Kings, near Luxor, and d soon after. Medical science says h died of pneumonia following blo poisoning from the bite of an ins The superstitions are that he died b cause of the "curse of the Pharaoh on those who should disturb their l sleep.

Americans have an additional in terest in the young earl from the fa that in July, 1922, he married Mi Catherine T. Wendell of New Yor who has relatives in Boston and Chi cago.

Not very much is known here of the new earl. He had some sort of offici duties in India, whence he hastened to his dying father's bedside in Cairo. H is immensely rich. His father owned about 36,000 acres, including Highcle Castle, in Hampshire and Bretby Park, Burton-on-Trent. His mother, the dow ager Lady Carnarvon, is a godchild of the late Alfred Rothschild and, it is sai was substantially remembered in his will. Lord Carnarvon inherits his fath er's racing stud, which was prominent on the English turf.

Catherine, New Countess of Carnarvon

An up-to-date portrait of Catherine, Countess Carnarvon, is reproduced herewith. She was Miss Catherine T. Wendell of New York. Her marriage to Lord Portchester, only son of Lord Carnarvon, fifth earl of Carnarvon, took place July 17, 1922. The tragic death of the fifth earl recently at Cairo after uncovering the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen at Luxor, Egypt, focuses world-wide attention upon the young sixth earl and his countess, and interest in the young couple increases.

Lady Carnarvon is the daughter of the late Jacob Wendell, a New York commission merchant. He was a brother of Professor Barrett Wendell of Harvard. The new countess has other relatives in Boston and in Chicago. The wedding in London was a brilliant society function, with a thousand guests, including Ambassador Harvey and the prince of Wales and titled men and women galore.

The Carnarvons are likely to remain long in the limelight, since the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen in the Valley of the Kings has been sealed up to await cooler weather in the fall. And nobody knows whether or not it contains the mummy of the Pharaoh.

W. Z. Foster Is Now Most Notorious Red

William Z. Foster, charged with violation of the Michigan law against criminal syndicalism, is just now the most notorious Red in America. The jury at St. Joseph, Mich., stood 6 to 6 for 88 ballots.

Foster was the first to face trial of the thirty-two men and women arrested as a result of the raid on the convention of the Communist party of America, held in the lonely dune country near St. Joseph last August.

The trial was the first test of the Michigan law against criminal syndicalism, passed during the war. The act makes it a felony punishable by ten years' imprisonment and up to $5,000 fine to advocate sabotage, crime, terrorism or other means of force and violence as a method of accomplishing political or industrial reform.

Foster, of course, regards the disagreement of the jury as a victory. Others say that the trial has served its purpose in that it has brought out clearly before the public the theory and practice of the Reds in this country.

For instance, Matthew Woll of Chicago, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, regards with a cold eye the "hero" whom Chicago radicals greeted at a massmeeting upon his triumphant return from St. Joseph.

"To ignore Foster now is to destroy the great monster that has been made out of mere tissues of capitalized propaganda," reads his statement. "To disregard him is to inflict the greatest punishment that can be given him. He and his kind feed on notoriety. He and his kind die for want of it."

We Serve

FIRST CLASS MEALS and LUNCHES

Home Made Pies
Ice Cream and Soft Drinks
FRESH BREAD EVERY DAY

Candy Cigars Tobacco

The Crystal Cafe

Conrad Quandt, Prop. Klemme, Ia.

"A Good Cafe in a Good Town"

Fishing Tackle

We have just received a big line of shing tackle, such as

Reels 50c to 15.00
Rods Big Assortment
June Bugs A new bait
Lines All kinds and prices
Baits Basserino and others
Tackle Boxes, Floats, Sinkers, Scalers, Hooks, etc.

500 Bamboo Poles to pick from

Jacobs & Son

The Winchestor Store

Announcing

Our Co-Operation in the New
Ford Weekly Purchase Plan

Following out our policy of extending the facilities of this bank in whatever way we can to serve the public, we have arranged to give our co-operation to the new FORD WEEKLY PURCHASE PLAN.

We realize what the automobile means to the average family in bringing them greater enjoyment of life, and believe our action in helping those who desire to become Ford owners will be appreciated by many families who can now realize that ambition through the new Ford Weekly Purchase Plan.

Under this plan, you can begin with an initial deposit as low as $5.00. Then select the type of Ford Car you want—Touring Car, Runabout, Coupe, Sedan, etc.,—and arrange to make weekly deposits on which interest will be computed at our regular savings rate.

Come in and let us explain the Ford Weekly Purchase Plan to you, or, if you wish, go to the local Ford Dealer for further details.

Start today, and before you realize it you will be driving your own car.

First National Bank

Greimann Motor Company

Ford, Fordson, Lincoln

Aaron Griemann, Manager.

Local Items

Fred Stockwell's little boy met with a painful accident while playing last Friday afternoon. He was riding on a coaster wagon and fell off going around a corner, falling on his arm and beaking the bones in the left forearm. He is patched up but none the worse now for the experience.

Klemme has bought a chemical engine which will be mounted on a Ford truck with two tanks, and this will greatly aid the firemen in extinguishing small fires. —Garner Signal. Brother Clark you are a jump ahead of the situation; we do not have the outfit but expect to in a short ime. We'll bea it north when we hear the Garner fire siren.

The Times Print Shop force is on the blink this week. The plumbers have the joint torn up and we are having some difficulty in getting the type located. Then next the burner on the linotype machine decided to take a vacation and refused to work and even high class swearing by the operator refuses to budge it and so we are practically doomed to be late with the paper this week. Pinters have troubles just the same as the rest of the animals in the world.

Dorothy, two year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Greimann, met with a serious accident the other day. She had watched her father oil the cream separator and perhaps that gave her an idea; for the following morning after the separating was finished but the machine was still in motion the little girl opened up the door into the gears and stuck her hand into the separator. The gears caught her little hand and almost severed and badly bruised the third finger on her left hand. The doctor decided amputation was not necessary and so patched the finger up again and now the little girl is feeling quite spry again. It is a miracle that her hand was not entirely taken off in the gears.

News of Goodell And Vicinty

Miss Hill spent Sunday at her home in Clarion.

Miss McComick spent the weekend with friends in Renwick.

The dance at the Brugman home enjoyed by a large crowd.

Mardel Avery spent several days at the Chase home.

Frank Dominy is quite ill with typhoid fever.

Art Lowenberg came home last week for a short vacation.

Mr. J. W. Griggs has purchased a Ford roadster from the Greimann garage at Klemme.

The high school pupils and the teachers are planning on a weiner roast Wednesday evening.

Miss Sullivan closed a successful rm of school east of town last Friday.

Mrs. Chase and family were shopng in Mason City and Clear Lake urday.

Jay Griggs and daughter, Mae, ove to Hampton Sunday to visit eir aunt who is still very ill.

Mrs. E. J. Schneider and Miss Mildred Fuller were Mason City callers Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cashman drove to Greene Sunday to visit their daughter, Leona, who is teaching music in the Convent there.

Miss Schoenwetter closed a successful term of school northeast of wn Thursday. A picnic dinner and fine program was enjoyed by all e pupils and their parents.

Miss Hill accompanied by Mae Griggs and Margaret Kearney were Belmond shoppers after school on Monday evening. She then drove to the country and spent the night at the Griggs home.

AVERY TOWNSHIP

Mrs. Jewel Cook went to Ventura last Friday morning.

A dance was held at the Lloyd Brugman home last Friday evening. All present report a good time.

The August Tampell family, who have been sick. ae all on tht mend at this writing.

Mrs. C. A. Arnold and Dorothy Ridder were Mason City callers last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Elko Buss and daughters were Sunday evening callers at the home of Wm. Bell.

Mrs. Arthur Wade, and her mother, were over to Britt. Iowa, last Thursday on business.

Chis Anderson and children went to Cedar Rapids , Iowa, Saturday morning to spend Sunday with some of his relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Pete Merkel and family, and Alfred Merkel and wife were Sunday visitors at the Ben Merkel home.

Fern Ulrich and Harry Gram went to Galt, Iowa, Sunday to visit with Harry's brother. They returned the same evening.

Mrs. Albert Fuller who has been on the sick list for some time, is reported greatly improved at this writing.

Mrs. Tommy Nelson and sons and Miss Anna Carlson were callers at the Wm. Bell home last Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Bailey and daughter, Ruth, and Wava Bachman were Sunday visitors at the Tommy Nelson home.

The Farm Bureau members held their meeting this month at the E. J. Arnold home last Friday evening. Ice cream and cake was served. Quite a good crowd was present.

APRIL CLUB MEETING

The April meeting of the North Avery Progressive Club was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Arnold, Friday evening, Apil 27th. It being an ideal evening the attendance was large. Owing to the busy season a very short program was given and the balance of the evening was spent in a social way.

Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bachman, May 25th.

JOHN L. "HOCKED" HIS BELT

Diamond-Studded Heavyweight Pugilistic Championship Trophy Was Pledged for $1,800.

We went into the pawnshop of the Forty-second street Simpsons to ask about John L. Sullivan's diamond championship belt, which he "hocked" there May 24, 1901. He put it in for $1,800. "Has this heavyweight belt ever been taken out?" was asked of Christopher Richardson, manager for the aged Thomas Simpson.

"Now that you know about it," he replied, "I may as well tell you that it was redeemed April 29, 1904. We had it here, down in our safe, for three years."

Being a city of quick opportunities as well as a city of adversity, New York pawnshops are rare spots for the study of human character. A young woman came in and planked a small diamond ring on the highly polished rosewood-topped counter and demanded $35 in a hurry. "You must hurry," she pleaded, "for I have an appointment with my hairdresser and need the money to pay for a permanent wave."

The queerest case of sentiment was the pawning some years ago of three $100 bills by an elderly woman in black. When told she could not get more than $250, she was satisfied, seeming to know that the money given her had to be borrowed, and its share of the overhead added in.

"I would not spend the bills, because they were issued by the government to a bank in which my dead husband was president," she explained, and pointing at the name on one of the bills, added: "That was his name."

She did not redeem the bills at the end of the year, and they went into circulation to meet the $54 interest due, the net loss on the pawnshop books being $4.

A twenty-dollar gold piece pawns for $15, and many are pawned, being keep-pieces with some sentimental value to their owners. The interest on $15 for a year is $4.50.

Recently a pearl necklace worth $1,000,000 was offered through the New York loan offices and finally found a home.—Raymond G. Carroll, in Philadelphia Public Ledger.

World's Fairs in 1922.

The old-style "world's fair" was an extravagant, flimsy fairyland that housed, for the most part, objects of art and education exhibits, and disappeared as if wrecked by an earthquake. More than 50 world's fairs are scheduled for Europe this year, but their main object will be the extension of commerce rather than the proud exhibition of local and national treasures. Europe now regards such expositions as valuable agents for promoting trade; in this attitude it returns in principle to the fairs of the Middle ages, says the Scientific American. The sample fair held at Prague last year, though but a minor example, brought together 2,500 exhibitors. Exhibition trains are supplementing the advertising value of the fairs; witness the completely-equipped train brought from France last fall that made an extensive tour of Canada.

Bumble Bees on Spree.

Bumble bees, remarks the London Daily Express, swarm to a bed of French marigolds in a Herne Bay garden and become shockingly inebriated.

These carousals occur so frequently that the owner of the garden, a woman, has turned the adjoining bed of hollyhocks into an inebriates' home, to which she carries the bees. They awake from an hour's glorious intoxication on a sweet-scented bed of flowers. The morning after has no terrors for the drunken bee.

Hive bees and butterflies are not affected. They sip decently and carry their liquor like gentlemen.

Other flowers, notably a variety of the sodum and the helenium, stupefy all bees, wild and hive, by the narcotic nectar they yield. The insects remain intoxicated for the whole night, and are resigned to sobriety by the sun.

KLEMME DRAY LINE
Phone 2105
A share of your patronage is solicited. All work attended to promptly and carefully. We haul coal quick.
LLOYD LAU, PROP.

Housecleaning Made Easy

To clean house, hot water is needed. A tea kettle supply is limited, wastes time and patience.

Housekeepers who enjoy complete, modern hot water service do much less hard labor at housecleaning time They have all the hot water they want, all the time.

We install all kinds of modern hot water equipment.

See me for your plumbing job.

R. E. Quintus

Garner Iowa

TYPEWRITER RIBBONS
All Makes

Typewriter Ribbons for sale at the Times Office. all of the Standard makes. Ribbons 75 cents each.

DENTIST
J. L. Hesselhuus, D. D. S.
Office Hours 8-12 1-5:30
Office Opposite State Savings Bank; In Schaffer Bldg.
Evening Work By Appointment Only
Klemme, Ia. Phone 81

Call In To-Day

and get measured for that Suit

Many good selections for your approval

See the new Spring
Shirts
Hosiery
Underwear
Neckwear

Pressing and Cleaning
In Connection

The Men's Fashion Shop

A. W. JOHNSON
GARNER IOWA

Office Phone 148 J. Residence Phone 149 L.

Dr. E. H. Phillips

Osteopathic Physician
GARNER, IOWA.

Diagnosis and Treatment of Diseases.
Surgical and Obstetrical cases cared for.
"Consult an Osteopath"

To know how good a cigarette really can be made you must try a

FOR SALE BY
COOBS GARAGE
Klemme, Iowa

FEW BAREFOOT BOYS SEEN

Writer Recalling Joys of the Past Has Only Pity for the Modern Youth.

Is the barefoot boy a vanishing institution in our cities? A traveling salesman sends this letter to the Haverhill (Mass.) Gazette:

"I make hundreds of towns and cities, selling my goods, and it strikes me that each year I see fewer and fewer barefoot boys. Of course there still are many, paddling about without shoes, particularly in the smaller towns. But I am wondering if the time is far off when the barefoot boy will be a curiosity in the big cities. You can travel miles now without seeing a lad with a stubbed toe bound up in a wad of cloth. When I was a boy a youngster wearing shoes and stockings in summer was so scarce that people when they saw one wondered what was wrong with him."

Many of the rest of us have noticed the gradual passing of the barefoot boy. City pavements are too hot for the unprotected foot. It is a big loss for the youth. How big a loss is known only to the grownup who in memory has the delightful recollection of bare feet paddling through thick August dust of a country road or wiggling deliciously in mud puddles and ruts after a rain. "Them were the days."

Another institution of which youth is being robbed in the cities is the alley.

Real estate is too valuable to waste on alleys. Blocks are being laid out smaller. The short garage drive from the curb has taken the place of the alley.

Oh, grievous loss! What would boyhood have been like years ago, without the alleys through which we explored gathering scrap iron and bones in a dirty old burlap bag for the junkman? High board fences were along those alleys, to keep youthful pirates out of orchards at the back of yards large enough to play a ball game in.

The alleys are passing. So are the tall back fences. So are the huge back yards. A garage and a strip of half-dead grass the size of a living-room rug are all that separate the typical modern city house from the neighbor on the street in the rear. Youth on the pavements, dodging the auto maniacs who curse them and "wonder why parents don't keep their brats off the streets."

We grownups talk a lot about the discomforts of metropolitan congestion. But it is youth that is footing the lion's share of the bill. Another fifty years of "progress" and there will not be any such thing as boyhood in the cities. Babies will be handed radio outfits and other pacifiers when they begin wondering what's beyond the walls of the house.

We're fortunate now, to be getting old.

Wood Tar Oil Uses.

The oils that are obtained from the distillation of wood tar can be used as substitutes in the place of various vegetable and mineral oils in much the same manner as the oils obtained from the distillation of coal tar and lignite tar. However, in order to make the wood tar oils available for use in this manner it is necessary to treat them chemically so as to deacidify them and destroy their tendency to oxidize easily. Two processes for accomplishing this are described in Seife, 1922, page 633. In both processes the oil fraction, recovered at 250 degrees C, is treated with caustic lime and air is blown through it at the same time until the oil will no longer absorb oxygen from the air. The water is then removed and the oil is distilled, yielding a product which is entirely free from acidity and which will no longer oxidize in the air. It is accordingly available for use as a lubricant.—Scientific American.

Expensive Appetite.

Following a recent raid near Jeffersonville, at which a 25-gallon still was seized and brought into court, the alleged owner faced trial in the Jeffersonville city court. Several gallons of whisky had been seized at the same time. The defendant asserted that he was making the liquor for his own consumption. Asked how much he required, he replied: "Two gallons a week." The chief of police made a hasty calculation. "That would be 19 drinks a day," he whispered to the prosecuting attorney, "and big ones at that." Apart from regarding this an expensive luxury in these days, court attaches believed that the man who attempted the feat would be in the hospital about the third day and in the grave at the end of the week.—Indianapolis News.

GEORGE ZINN, M. D.
Physician and Surgeon
Office opposite from Hotel Klemme
Phone No. 19
Eyes Examined Glasses Fitted

SAVED BY RABBIT

Miner Tells of Miraculous Escape From Death.

As Instrument of Preserving Man From Dreadful End, Animal Was Honored by Community.

This true story of the almost miraculous rescue of a man imprisoned in the shaft of a lead mine was told to the writer, Cora Cole McCullough, by a member of her family. We quote it from Our Dumb Animals (Boston), says the Literary Digest:

Many years ago I was living in Montana. A smelter had been built and it created a demand for silver rock. I owned an interest in a lead mine that had been sunk over thirty feet. Thinking the time had come to make it available, I decided to go there and get some ore and have it tested. I did so, and reached the place just in time to take shelter in the mine from a terrible hail storm. I lighted my candle, went to the bottom, and went to work. I had not been there more than five minutes when I heard a noise that sounded like a cannon. The rock over my head shook, and in a moment the shaft caved in. You can imagine my feelings better than I can describe them, when I found myself buried alive.

I tremble even at this distant day, when I think of that moment. The roof of the shaft was made of rocks, and when they came down they did not pack so tightly, but that the air came through. There was nothing I could do to release myself. I knew that if relief did not come from the outside I must perish. No one knew that I had gone there. A road ran past the mouth of the shaft, but it was not traveled much, and I was not likely to attract attention by calling. Nevertheless, I shouted at intervals all day.

The following morning I commenced calling again, and all day, whenever I thought I heard a sound, I shouted. When night came again, all hopes of being released were abandoned. I will not dwell on the agonies I endured. The morning of the fourth day of my imprisonment I heard something crawl into my grave.

I lighted my candle and saw a rabbit. There was only one aperture large enough to admit him; I closed it to prevent his escape. I saw in him food to appease my hunger, and my hand was raised to kill him, when a thought occurred to me that prevented the blow from descending.

I had two fishing lines. Their united length would reach the road. I took off my shirt, tore it into strips, tied them together, and then to the fish line. I then tied the end made out of my shirt around the rabbit's neck and let him out. He soon reached the end of the line, and I knew by the way he was pulling that he was making a desperate effort to escape. Soon the tugging ceased, and as I knew that gnawing was one of a rabbit's accomplishments, I thought he had gnawed himself loose. About three hours afterward I felt the line pull, and some one called. I tried to answer, but the feeble noise I made died away in the cavern. I then pulled the line a little to show that I was still alive. All grew still again, and I knew the person had gone for assistance. Then came the sound of voices. I pulled in the line and it brought me food. It took all the men who worked in the shaft nine hours to reach me.

A very large pine tree that stood near had been the cause of my misfortune. It had been dead a number of years, and the storm had blown it over. The terrible blow it struck the ground had caused the caving in of the shaft. The rabbit had wound the line around a bush and tied himself so short that he was imprisoned outside as securely as I had been inside. He was taken to town, put in a large cage, and supplied with all rabbit delicacies the market afforded. He, however, did not thrive, and the boys, believing he "pined in thought," voted to set him free. He was taken back to his old neighborhood, and liberated. He not only saved my life, but became the benefactor of all the rabbits near, the miners refraining from shooting any, for fear it might be my rabbit.

Lead Poisoning Among Workers.

The report of the United States Public Health service on this subject is now in press. The danger is chiefly to those handling the glaze; the lead is inhaled as dust, the lungs absorb lead from fumes, and there is some absorption through the skin. The use of leadless glazes, already established in European factories, would remedy the trouble, but this requires sweeping changes in our manufacturing and firing methods.—Scientific American.

A Freshman's Viewpoint.

At the close of the first week in an Indianapolis high school, a teacher asked members of a freshman class to write their impressions of their first day at the school.

"I came expecting to recite," wrote one youth, "but was deceived."

"My first impression reminded me of some cartoons, such as 'When a Feller Needs a Friend,' and 'Where Do We Go From Here,'" wrote another, who lacked the self-confidence that the first youth had displayed.

His Start.

Jasper—He started business on a shoestring.

Gasper—Very true. It got untied and he tripped; and he received $2,000 from an accident insurance company.—Judge.

A Hard Winter Coming.

An Indianapolis young man asked a girl to marry him, one beautiful night this last summer, when everything seemed bright for him. The first cool day this month the young man wrote the following note to his betrothed:

"Dear: Postpone wedding until next summer. Winter is coming, no coal, no new clothes, no raise in salary and lots of bills coming in."

Mother's Day
Sunday, May 13th

Orders for Flowers should be placed early to insure proper attention.

If your mother is in another city our telegraph service will deliver flowers to her within a few hours.

Wellemeyer's

Low Summer fares
Rock Island
Colorado
The Nation's Playground... scenic paradise offering... variety of recreation and... ment.
Yellowstone
Nature's Unparalleled... Rock Island is The... Way to Yellowstone.
California
Always alluring... Golden State Limited... Carriso Gorge; Rocky... tain Limited—The Colo... go one way-return a... Stop-over ...
For information and ...
M. O. BARR, Klemme
C. C. Gardner, G. A. P. A.
600 Royal Union Life Bldg.
Des Moines, Ia.

Next Time Try
Sausage
You will like our sausage, it's made of quality meats properly prepared and seasoned. Buy it in Link
Pork
Liver
Summer
Bologna
It's Good!
Ask For
"HEINZ 57"
We Have Them
J. P. Larsen & Sons
The Klemme Meat Market

Firestone

Will Not Increase Prices on Solid and Pneumatic Truck Tires Until May 1st

Never has Firestone been so well situated to give operators the greatest measure of Cushion, Traction and Mileage at the lowest cost.

Today, economical manufacturing and distribution are showing the fullest results. Our favorable purchases of rubber, in advance of the 150% increase brought about by the British Crude Rubber Restriction Act, aid further in maintaining the old price levels.

Whatever the Truck Service—the Firestone Dealer Has the Right Tire

Firestone developments of the past two years have made pace for the industry and set new records in sure, economical performance. Five tires—the Heavy Duty Cushion, the Truck Type Cord, the Maxi-Cushion, the Giant Solid and the High Type—cover the needs of motor haulage in all its forms. Each has a distinct work which it does best. Each possesses a definite and special value for the operator.

Truck owners, using pneumatic tires, will find the answer to every demand of rapid, economical transportation in the Firestone Truck Type Cords with the tread that increases carrying capacity and improves traction, and the powerful gum-dipped carcass construction.

Let the Firestone Service Dealers Keep Your Trucks Moving

There are 800 Firestone Service Dealers, located in the principal trucking centers, fitted by natural ability and a thorough knowledge of trucking, to help you choose the right tire for your roads, loads and service.

Price Protection as Long as Stocks Last

Additional tires will be supplied to Service Dealers only so far as our present output will permit. Consult the nearest Firestone Service Dealer at once regarding your truck tire needs. He is in an advantageous position to give you an unusual tire—a specialized service—and prices which may not be duplicated in months.

Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., Akron, Ohio

The Firestone Dealer will supply you with Passenger Car and Truck Type Cords. If you need solid or cushion tires he will refer you to the nearest Service Station, which is equipped with hydraulic press for quick change-overs. Make one of these Stations an active part of your trucking operations. You'll reap results in surer and more economical haulage.

Greimann Motor Company

Cushion — Traction — Mileage

Poultry Supplies

We carry a big assortment of everything for the poultry growing---

Chick Fountains
Chick Feeders
Chick Coops
Poultry Netting
Chick Feed, all kinds
Lice Powders

Phenolene Dip a dip 3 or 4 times as strong as Carbolic acid and is also a good household disinfectant.

Get your lawn mowers, garden tools Plows, Seeds, etc. here.

G. W. Kluckhohn & Sons

ESERT GOLD

y Zane Grey

Author of lders of the Purple age, Wildfire, Etc.

yright by Harper & Brothers.

APTER XVII—Continued.

—17—

ng pondered. He did not now moment consider an accidental ge of dynamite. But why had ast been set off? The loose soil had yielded readily to there were no rocks; as far struction of a ditch was con- such a blast would have done harm than good.

ly, with reluctant feet, Belding toward a green hollow, where luster of willows lay the never- spring that his horses loved so nd, indeed, which he loved no was just in time to see the last water. It seemed to sink as in and. The shape of the hole had ed. The tremendous force of last had obstructed or diverted underground stream of water. lding's never-failing spring had ruined. What had made this lit- ot of ground green and sweet fragrant was now no more. Beld- 's first feeling was for the pity of He thought how many times in the dle of hot summer nights he had down to the spring to drink. again!

pall of dust drifting over him, in of the falling water up at the diverted Belding's mind to the s. All at once he was in the grip of a cold certainty. The had been set off intentionally to his spring. What a hellish trick! westerner, no Indian or Mexican, desert man could have been guilty uch a crime. To ruin a beautiful, ar, cool, never-failing stream of r in the desert!

It was then that Belding's worry indecision and brooding were as they had never existed. He went tly to his room, and with an air was now final he buckled on his belt. He looked the gun over and the action. He squared himself walked a little more erect. Some lost individuality had returned to ing.

"Let's see," he was saying. "I can Carter to send the horses I've got back to Waco to my brother. I'll Nell take what money there is go hunt up her mother. The s are ready to go—today, if I say word. Nell can travel with them t way East. That's your game, Belding, don't mistake me."

As he went out he encountered Mr. coming up the walk. The long urn at Forlorn River, despite the that it had been laden with a sus- e which was gradually changing sad certainty, had been of great efit to Dick's father. The dry air, heat, and the quiet had made him, not entirely a well man, certainly nger than he had been in many rs.

"Belding, what was that terrible ?" asked Mr. Gale. "We were ly frightened until Miss Nell came us. We feared it was an earth- ke."

"Well, I'll tell you, Mr. Gale; we've some quakes here, but none of n could hold a candle to this jar just had."

Then Belding explained what had sed the explosion, and why it had n set off so close to his property.

Heavy steps sounded outside on the stones, then the door rattled un- a strong knock. Belding opened The Chases, father and son, stood ond the threshold.

"Good morning, Belding," said the er Chase. "We were routed out rly by that big blast and came up see what was wrong. All a blunder. e Greaser foreman was drunk yes- rday, and his ignorant men made a stake. Sorry if the blast bothered u. I was a little worried—you've ays been so touchy—we never uld get together. I hurried over, ring maybe you might think the st—you see, Belding—"

"I see this, Mr. Ben Chase," inter- pted Belding, in curt and ringing ice. "The blast was a mistake, the gest you ever made in your life."

"What do you mean?" demanded ase.

"You'll have to excuse me for a hile, unless you're dead set on hav- g it out right now. Mr. Gale and his mily are leaving, and my daughter going with them. I'd rather you'd ait a little."

"Nell going away!" exclaimed Rad- rd Chase. He reminded Belding of overgrown boy in disappointment.

"Yes. But—Miss Burton to you, oung man—"

"Mr. Belding, I certainly would pre- r a conference with you right now," terposed the elder Chase, cutting hort Belding's strange speech. "There e other matters—important matters discuss. They've got to be settled. ay we step in, sir?"

"No, you may not," replied Belding, untly. "I'm sure particular who I vite into my house. But I'll go with on."

Belding stepped out and closed the oor. "Come away from the house so the women won't hear the—the talk."

The elder Chase was purple with ge, yet seemed to be controlling it. he younger man looked black, sullen, impatient. Ben Chase found his voice about the time Belding halted under the trees out of earshot from the house.

"Sir, you've insulted me—my son. How dare you? I want you to understand that you're—"

"Chop that kind of talk to me, you ——— ——— ——— ———!" interrupted Belding. He had always been profane, and now he certainly did not choose his language. Chase turned livid, gasped, and seemed about to give way to fury. But something about Belding evidently exerted a powerful quieting influence. "If you talk sense I'll listen," went on Belding.

"I want to make a last effort to propitiate you," began Chase, in his quick, smooth voice. That was a singular change to Belding—the dropping instantly into an easy flow of speech. "You've had losses here, and naturally you're sore. I don't blame you. But you can't see this thing from my side of the fence. Business is business. In business the best man wins. The law upheld those transactions of mine the honesty of which you questioned. Now I want to run that main ditch along the river, through your farm. Can't we make a deal? I'm ready to be liberal—to meet you more than halfway. I'll give you an interest in the company. I think I've influence enough up at the capitol to have you reinstated as inspector. A little reasonableness on your part will put you right again in Forlorn River, with a chance of growing rich. There's a big future here. . . . My interest, Belding, has become personal. Radford is in love with your stepdaughter. He wants to marry her. Now let's get together not only in business, but in a family way. If my son's happiness depends upon having this girl, you may rest assured I'll do all I can to get her for him. I'll absolutely make good all your losses. Now what do you say?"

"No," replied Belding. "Your money can't buy a right of way across my ranch. And Nell doesn't want your son. That settles that."

"But you could persuade her."

"I won't, that's all."

"May I ask why?" Chase's voice was losing its suave quality, but it was even swifter than before.

"Sure. I don't mind your asking," replied Belding, in slow deliberation.

He Was Just in Time to See the Last of the Water.

"I wouldn't do such a low-down trick. Besides, if I would, I'd want it to be a man I was persuading for. I know Greasers—I know a Yaqui I'd rather give Nell to than your son."

Radford Chase began to roar in inarticulate rage. Belding paid no attention to him; indeed, he never glanced at the young man. The elder Chase checked a violent start.

"My son's offer of marriage is an honor—more an honor, sir, than you perhaps are aware of."

Belding made no reply. He waited coldly, sure of himself.

"Mrs. Belding's daughter has no right to the name of Burton," snapped Chase. "Did you know that?"

"I did not," replied Belding, quietly.

"Well, you know it now," added Chase, bitingly.

"Sure you can prove what you say?" queried Belding, in the same cool, unemotional tone. It struck him strangely at the moment what little knowledge this man had of the West and of western character.

"Prove it? Why, yes, I think so, enough to make the truth plain to any reasonable man. I come from Peoria—was born and raised there. I went to school with Nell Warren. That was your wife's maiden name. She was a beautiful, gay girl. I knew Bob Burton well. He was a splendid fellow, but wild. Nobody ever knew for sure, but we all supposed he was engaged to marry Nell. He left Peoria, however, and soon after that the truth about Nell came out. She ran away. It was at least a couple of months before Burton showed up in Peoria. He did not stay long. Then for years nothing was heard of either of them. When word did come Nell was in Oklahoma, Burton was in Denver. There's a chance, of course, that Burton followed Nell and married her. That would account for Nell Warren taking the name of Burton. But it isn't likely. None of us ever heard of such a thing and wouldn't have believed it if we had. In a moment of amazement—when I recognized your wife as an old schoolmate—I blurted the thing out to Radford. You see now how little it matters to me, when I ask your stepdaughter's hand in marriage for my son."

Belding stood listening. The genuine emotion in Chase's voice was as strong as the ring of truth. Belding knew truth when he heard it.

"So you told my wife you'd respect her secret—keep her dishonor from her husband and daughter?" demanded Belding, his dark gaze sweeping back from the lane.

"What! I—I—" stammered Chase.

"You made your son swear to be a man and die before he'd hint the thing to Nell?" went on Belding, and his voice rang louder.

Ben Chase had no answer. The red left his face. His son slunk back against the fence.

"I say you never held this secret over the heads of my wife and her daughter?" thundered Belding.

He had his answer in the gray faces, in the lips that fear made mute. Like a flash Belding saw the whole truth of Mrs. Belding's agony, the reason for her departure; he saw what had been driving Nell; and it seemed that all the dogs of hell were loosed within his heart. He struck out blindly, instinctively in his pain, and the blow sent Ben Chase staggering into the fence corner. Then he stretched forth a long arm and whirled Radford Chase back beside his father.

"And now, gentlemen," went on Belding, speaking low and with difficulty, "seeing I've turned down your proposition, I suppose you think you've no more call to keep your mouths shut?"

The elder Chase appeared fascinated by something he either saw or felt in Belding, and his gray face grew grayer. He put up a shaking hand. Then Radford Chase, livid and snarling, burst out: "I'll talk till I'm black in the face. You can't stop me!"

"You'll go black in the face, but it won't be from talking," hissed Belding.

His big arm swept down, and when he threw it up the gun glittered in his hand. Simultaneously with the latter action pealed out a shrill, penetrating whistle.

The whistle of a horse! It froze Belding's arm aloft. For an instant he could not move even his eyes. The familiarity of that whistle was terrible in its power to rob him of strength. Then he heard the rapid, heavy pound of hoofs, and again the piercing whistle.

"Blanco Diablo!" he cried, huskily.

He turned to see a huge white horse come thundering into the yard. A wild, gaunt, terrible horse; indeed, the loved Blanco Diablo. A bronzed, long-haired Indian bestrode him. More white horses galloped into the yard, pounded to a halt, whistling home. Belding saw a slim shadow of a girl who seemed all great black eyes.

Then Nell came rushing from the house, her golden hair flying, her hands outstretched, her face wonderful.

"Dick! Dick! Oh-h-h, Dick!" she cried. Her voice seemed to quiver in Belding's heart.

Belding's eyes began to blur. He was not sure he saw clearly. Whose face was this now close before him—a long thin, shrunken face, haggard, tragic in its semblance of torture, almost of death? But the eyes were keen and kind.

"I shore am glad to see you all," said a well-remembered voice in a slow, cool drawl.

CHAPTER XVIII

Reality Against Dreams.

Dick Gale was standing bowed over Nell's slight form, almost hidden in his arms. Belding hugged them both. He was like a boy. He saw Ben Chase and his son slip away under the trees, but the circumstances meant nothing to him then.

"Dick! Dick!" he roared. "Is it you? . . . Say, who do you think's here—here, in Forlorn River?"

It was then three more persons came upon the scene—Elsie Gale, running swiftly, her father assisting Mrs. Gale, who appeared about to faint.

"Belding! Who on earth's that?" cried Dick, hoarsely.

"Quien sabe, my son," replied Belding; and now his voice seemed a little shaky. "Nell, come here. Give him a chance."

Belding slipped his arm round Nell, and whispered in her ear. "This'll be great!"

Elsie Gale's face was white and agitated, a face expressing extreme joy.

"Oh, brother! Mamma saw you—papa saw you, and never knew you! But I knew you when you jumped quick—that way—off your horse. And now I don't know you. You wild man! You giant! You splendid barbarian! . . . Mamma, papa, hurry! It is Dick! Look at him. Just look at him! Oh-h, thank God!"

Belding turned away and drew Nell with him. In another second she and Mercedes were clasped in each other's arms. Then followed a time of joyful greetings all round. Diablo found his old spirit; Blanco Sol tossed his head and whistled his satisfaction; White Woman pranced to and fro; and presently they all settled down to quiet grazing. How good it was for Belding to see those white shapes against the rich background of green! His eyes glistened. It was a sight he had never expected to see again. He lingered there many moments when he wanted to hurry back to his rangers.

At last he tore himself away from watching Blanco Diablo and returned to the house. It was only to find that he might have spared himself the hurry. Jim and Ladd were lying on the beds that had not held them for so many months. Their slumber seemed as deep and quiet as death. Curiously Belding gazed down upon them. They had removed only boots and chaps. Their clothes were in tatters. Jim appeared little more than skin and bones, a long shape, dark and hard as iron. Ladd's appearance shocked Belding. The ranger looked an old man, blasted, shriveled, starved.

About the middle of the forenoon on the following day the rangers hobbled out of the kitchen to the porch.

"I'm a sick man, I tell you," Ladd was complaining, "an' I gotta be fed. Soup! Beef tea! That ain't so much as wind to me. I want about a barrel of bread an' butter, an' a whole platter of mashed potatoes with gravy an' green stuff—all kinds of green stuff—an' a whole big apple pie. Give me everythin' an' anythin' to eat but meat. Shore I never, never want to taste meat again, an' sight of a piece of sheep meat would jest about finish me. . . . Jim, you used to be a human bein' that stood up for Charlie Ladd."

"Laddy, I'm lined up beside you with both guns," replied Jim, plaintively. "Hungry? Say, the smell of breakfast in that kitchen made my mouth water so I near choked to death. I reckon we're gettin' most onhuman treatment."

"But I'm a sick man," protested Ladd, "an' I'm agoin' to fall over in a minute if somebody don't feed me. Nell, you used to be fond of me."

"Oh, Laddy, I am yet," replied Nell.

"Shore, I don't believe it. Any girl with a tender heart just couldn't let a man starve under her eyes. . . . Look at Dick, there. I'll bet he's had something to eat, mebbe potatoes an' gravy, an' pie an—"

"Laddy, Dick has had no more than I gave you—indeed, not nearly so much."

"Shore he's had a lot of kisses then, for he hasn't hollered onct about this treatment."

"Perhaps he has," said Nell, with a blush; "and if you think that—they would help you to be reasonable I might—I'll—"

"Well, powerful fond as I am of you, just now kisses'll have to run second to bread an' butter."

"Oh, Laddy, what a gallant speech!" laughed Nell. "I'm sorry, but I've dad's orders."

"Laddy," interrupted Belding, "you've got to be broke in gradually to eating. Now you know that. You'd be the severest kind of a boss if you had some starved beggars on your hands."

"But I'm sick—I'm dyin'," howled Ladd.

"You were never sick in your life, and if all the bullet holes I see in you couldn't kill you, why, you never will die."

"Can I smoke?" queried Ladd, with sudden animation. "My Gawd, I used to smoke. Shore I've forgot. Nell, if you want to be reinstated in my gallery of angels, just find me a pipe an' tobacco."

"I've hung onto my pipe," said Jim, thoughtfully. "I reckon I had it empty in my mouth for seven years or so, wasn't it, Laddy? A long time! I can see the red lava an' the red haze, an' the red twilight creepin' up. It was hot an' some lonely. Then the wind, and always that awful silence! An' always Yaqui watchin' the west, an' Laddy with his checkers, an' Mercedes burnin' up, wastin' away to nothin' but eyes! It's all there—I'll never get rid—"

"Chop that kind of talk," interrupted Belding, bluntly. "Tell us where Yaqui took you—what happened to Rojas—why you seemed lost for so long."

"I reckon Laddy can tell all that best; but when it come to Rojas' finish I'll tell what I seen, an' so'll Dick an' Thorne. Laddy missed Rojas' finish. Bar none, that was the—"

"I'm a sick man, but I can talk," put in Ladd, "an' shore I don't want the whole story exaggerated none by Jim."

Ladd filled the pipe Nell brought, puffed ecstatically at it, and settled himself upon the bench for a long talk. He talked for two hours—talked till his voice weakened to a husky whisper. At the conclusion of his story there was an impressive silence. Then Elsie Gale stood up, and with her hand on Dick's shoulder, her eyes bright and warm as sunlight, she showed the rangers what a woman thought of them and of the Yaqui. Nell clung to Dick, weeping silently. Mrs. Gale was overcome, and Mr. Gale, very white and quiet, helped her up to her room.

Early in the afternoon of the next day Belding encountered Dick at the water barrel.

"Belding, this is river water, and muddy at that," said Dick. "Lord knows I'm not kicking. But I've dreamed some of our cool running spring, and I want a drink from it."

"Never again, son. The spring's gone, faded, sunk, dry as dust."

"Dry!" Gale slowly straightened. "We've had rains. The river's full. The spring out to be overflowing. What's wrong? Why is it dry?"

"Dick, seeing you're interested, I may as well tell you that a big charge of nitroglycerin choked my spring."

"Nitroglycerin?" echoed Gale. Then he gave a quick start. "My mind's been on home, Nell, my family. But all the same I felt something was wrong here with the ranch, with you, with Nell. . . . Belding, that ditch there is dry. The roses are dead. The little green in that grass has come with the rains. What's happened? The ranch's run down. Now I look around I see a change."

"Some change, yes," replied Belding, bitterly. "Listen, son."

Briefly, but not the less forcibly for that, Belding related his story of the operations of the Chases. With deep voice that had many a break and tremor he told Gale how Nell had been hounded by Radford Chase, how her mother had been driven by Ben Chase—the whole sad story.

"So that's the trouble! Poor little girl!" murmured Gale, brokenly. "I felt something was wrong. Nell wasn't natural, like her old self."

"It was hard on Nell," said Belding, simply. "But it'll be better now you're here. Dick, I know the girl. She'll refuse to marry you and you'll have a hard job to break her down, as hard as the one you just rode in off of. I think I know you, too, or I wouldn't be saying—"

"For God's sake, you don't believe what Chase said?" queried Gale, in passionate haste. "It's a lie. I swear it's a lie. I know it's a lie. And I've got to tell Nell this minute. Come on in with me. I want you, Belding. Oh, why didn't you tell me sooner?"

Belding felt himself dragged by an iron arm into the sitting room, out into the patio, and across that to where Nell sat in her door. At sight of them she gave a little cry, drooped for an instant, then raised a pale, still face, with eyes beginning to darken.

"Dearest, I know now why you are not wearing my mother's ring," said Gale, steadily and low-voiced.

"Dick, I am not worthy," she replied, and held out a trembling hand with the ring lying in the palm.

Swift as light Gale caught her hand and slipped the ring back upon the third finger.

"Nell! Look at me. It is your engagement ring. . . . Listen. I don't believe this—this thing that's been torturing you. I know it's a lie. I am absolutely sure your mother will prove it a lie. She must have suffered once—perhaps there was a sad error—but the thing you fear is not true. But, hear me, dearest; even if it was true it wouldn't make the slightest difference to me. I want you all the more to be my wife—to let me make you forget—to—"

She rose swiftly with the passionate abandon of a woman stirred to her depths, and she kissed him.

"Oh, Dick, you're good—so good! You'll never know—just what those words mean to me. They've saved me—I think."

"Then, dearest, it's all right?" Dick questioned, eagerly. "You will keep your promise? You will marry me?"

The glow, the light faded out of her face, and now the blue eyes were almost black. She drooped and shook her head.

They had forgotten Belding, who stepped back into the shade.

"I love you with my whole heart and soul. I'd die for you," whispered Nell, with clenching hands. "But I won't disgrace you. Dick, you give not one thought to your family. Would they receive me as your wife?"

"They surely would," replied Gale, steadily.

"No! oh no!"

"You're wrong, Nell. I'm glad you said that. You give me a chance to prove something. I'll go this minute and tell them all. I'll be back here in less than—"

"Dick, you will not tell her—your mother?" cried Nell, with her eyes streaming. "You will not? Oh, I can't bear it! She's so proud! And, Dick, I love her. Don't tell her! Please, please don't! She'll be going soon. She needn't ever know—about me. Please don't go!"

"Nell, I'm sorry. I hate to hurt you. But you're wrong. You can't see things clearly. This is your happiness I'm fighting for. And it's my life. . . . Wait here, dear. I won't be long."

Gale ran across the patio and disappeared. Nell sank to the doorstep, and as she met the question in Belding's eyes she shook her head mournfully. They waited without speaking. It seemed a long while before Gale returned. Belding thrilled at sight of him. There was more boy about him than Belding had ever seen. Dick was coming swiftly, flushed, glowing, eager, erect, almost smiling.

"I told them. I swore it was a lie, but I wanted them to decide as if it were true. I didn't have to waste a minute on Elsie. She loves you, Nell. The governor is crazy about you. I didn't have to waste two minutes on him. Mother used up the time. She wanted to know all there was to tell. She is proud, yes; but, Nell, I wish you could have seen how she took the—the story about you. Why, she never thought of me at all, until she had cried over you. Nell, she loves you, too. They all love you. Oh, it's so good to tell you. I think mother realizes the part you have had in the—what shall I call it?—the regeneration of Richard Gale. Doesn't that sound fine? Darling, mother not only consents, she wants you to be my wife. Do you hear that? And listen—she had me in a corner and, of course, being my mother, she put on the screws. She made me promise that we'd live in the East half the year. That means Chicago, Cape May, New York—you see, I'm not exactly the lost son any more. Why, Nell, dear, you'll have to learn who Dick Gale really is. But I always want to be the ranger you helped me become, and ride Blanco Sol, and see a little of the desert. Don't let the idea of big cities frighten you. We'll always love the open places best. Now, Nell, say you'll forget this trouble. I know it'll come all right. Say you'll marry me soon. . . . Why, dearest, you're crying. . . . Nell!"

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Music for Starving Russians.

A traveler who recently made a tour through the principal cities of Russia says that, while they are starving, there is music in all the great centers. Opera and orchestra are to be found everywhere and the concerts are all well attended. In most cases the performances are free and are very well attended, but it often happens that both the performers and those in the audience are on the verge of starvation. There are also good audiences at the concerts where an admission is charged. The government encourages music because it is claimed that it has a decided cheering effect on the mass of unfortunates of that country.

.. Hawkeye .. State News

Interesting Items Gathered From all Parts of Iowa

Herman C. Miller of Waterloo was elected commander of the third district American Legion at the annual meeting held recently.

L. E. Adams of Ottumwa was arrested at Davenport on charges of violations of the Mann white slave act, on information furnish by Ottumwa authorities.

Mrs. Harry Starks died at her home at Monticello of flu. The next day her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Carson, died. The mother and daughter were buried in a double funeral.

Nine out of thirty-two defendants on booze charges in federal court were given jail sentences of from one to six months by Judge Martin J. Wade at Davenport recently.

Eleven orphans ranging in age from 6 months to 12 years, have arrived in Red Oak under the auspices of the Childrens' Aid Society of New York City to be placed in homes in that vicinity.

Miss Caryle Engelken of LeMars has ben awarded a medal by the Ralston Purina Hero Medal commission of St. Louis for saving the life of Waldo Claerbout while swimming last summer.

The stockholders of the Shenandoah Fair Association have amended the articles of incorporation so that they can run an amusement park and construct a swimming pool at the fair grounds.

Every one of the thirty factories in Newton is working overtime and business is booming. The five large washing machine factories announce an increase in sales and production over all preceding months.

John Hale of Hamburg, who has been suffering from infection caused by an ingrowing toemnail, was taken to a hospital and his leg was amputated in an effort to save his life.

Fred A. Canfield, Cedar Rapids, former president of the Iowa Federation of Labor, has been appointed a member of the federal board of conciliation in the department of justice at Washington, by Secretary of Labor Davis.

A good many of the peaches of the extreme southern part of the state have succeeded so far in coming through unfrozen and, according to C. V. Holsinger of the Extension Service at Ames, the chances are good for a crop.

George Toney who breeds Duroc Jersey hogs has a sow called Waukon Beauty that has farrowed three times and has fifty pigs. Her first litter numbered seventeen and recently nineteen big pigs were born and all are doing well.

No additional National Guard units will be organized in Iowa for the next two years, according to Adjutant General Louis G. Lasher. This is due to the cutting of the appropriation for the guard from $30,000 to $10,000 by the legislature.

Nearly 500 acres of land in Muscatine county have been sold by Mrs. Addie G. Martin of Sweetland, for a total price of $96,500. With the exception of seventy-five acres sold to William Meerdink for about $14,000, the land is transferred by Mrs. Martin to her sons.

At the rate applications are coming in to the farm bureau. Humboldt county will soon have 20 per cent of all herds signed up under government accredited plan for tuberculosis eradication. Fully 20 per cent of Humboldt county farmers have already tested privately.

Bad as the showing of a loss of 800,000 spring pigs in Iowa in the blizzards and 1,500,000 in four states may be, fortunately for the farmers only about 25 per cent of the normal big crop is farrowed in March, as April and May are the favorite months for the young pigs to arrive.

The Arlington-Banner township baby beef club, which claims the largest membership of any similar organization in the United States, is preparing for its invasion of fairs this coming fall. One hundred and forty-eight beef calves now are being fed in Woodbury county by members of baby beef clubs.

The report of the coal output for Iowa in 1922, which was completed by L. E. Stamm, secretary of the mine inspectors' office, shows a decided decrease compared with other years, due largely to the strike and the warm winter of 1922. The mines ran but seven of the twelve months of the year, with the result that the total coal mined was but 4,679,683 tons of which 2,350,582 tons was prepared lump, 1,599,864 was mine run and 729,237 tons slack.

Fully 1,000 bonus blanks have been returned by the state bonus board to their signers for correction in some particular, and many of them have been returned to the board by the postoffice for want of correct addresses, according to the secretary.

At the close of the world war the state historical society undertook the compilation of a series designated as the "Iowa Chronicles of the World War." The first volumes issued were "Welfare Campaigns in Iowa" and "Welfare Work in Iowa," both by Marcus Lee Hansen.

Shoes it pays to buy

OUR shoes satisfy the critical demand of men who seek quality for modest expenditure.

Our materials are dependable, our workmanship ensures good lines and perfect comfort, our styles are authentic.

WOODRUFF'S

Good Shoes

MASON CITY —— IOWA

UNDER GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION

A Perfect "Alibi"

When paying bills in cash, errors are always liable to creep in—maybe you don't wait for a receipt or maybe the receipt becomes lost, or destroyed.

But, when you pay your bills by check, each cancelled check serves as a "perfect alibi",—it is positive proof of payment.

This bank cordially invites you to Open a Checking Account Here.

UNDER GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION

First National Bank

"The Bank for Everybody'.'

Make This Bank Your Helper-

If there's one man to whom a Checking Account is particularly valuable, that man is the farmer. One advantage alone—the advantage of paying bills by mail—means a saving of many hours every month.

With the busy days of spring here at hand, wouldn't it be a good idea to drop into the State Savings Bank of Klemme now and open your Checking Account.

Make this bank your helper during the busy days ahead of you!

Bank With Us!

State Savings Bank

Klemme Iowa

News of Klemme and Vicinity

SILVER KING Seed Corn for sale. Charles Ax. (3-10c)

Mr. and Mrs. George Kessler were at Belmond Sunday.

Valentine Josten was at Ganer on business last Friday afternoon.

The Misses Minnie and Marie Blank spent Sunday at Goodell.

Hy Griffen of Goodell was a caller in this city last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bachman left for Iowa City Tuesday noon.

Have you paid your subscription? If not why not?

"The Storm" hits Klemme May 9 and 10. At the Idle Hour.

Mr. Bryson, of Iowa Falls was in Klemme on business yesterday.

Supervisor Thos. Berhow, was in this vicinity on business matters last Thursday.

Mr. Waak, from Meservey, was in town on business last Thursday afternoon.

LuVerne Smith and Albert Luick were at Belmond on business last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Jorgenson drove over to Meservey on business last Friday afternoon.

Mr. James Thomas, of Belmond, was in Klemme Saturday for a visit with his sister, Mrs. J. W. Books.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Kahrs drove to Nevada, Iowa, Sunday for a visit with her folks.

G. P. McCullough moved into the Wm. Schmidt residence near the city park. Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Whitney, came over from Mason City Sunday for a visit at the Charlie Luick home.

Mr. Harvey Lowe, of Hayfield was visiting with Klemme friends Sunday.

Supervisor G. B. Lawhern of Garner was in Klemme on business the first of the week.

Ralph Quintus, of Garner, is installing plumbing at the Times shop and residence this week.

B. E. Erwin, County Clerk. was in Klemme on business Tuesday of this week.

J. Jorgenson. of Garner is staying a few days this week with Ye Editor and family.

Some nice strings of bull heads have been caught at Clear Lake the past few days.

The greatest Work Shoe in the World is the Wolverine. For sale by Frank Gruetzmacher. adv

Gladys and Emma Kothenbutal spent the week end visiting at the home of Mrs. Ida Larson at Miller.

Note Book Paper at the Times Print Shop. Punched for 6-inch center loose leaf covers. tfc

We take in cattle to pasture. Inquire of John Osterkamp, 3 miles east, 3-4 south of Klemme. Phone 509. (3-10,17p)

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Luick from Belmond were here Sunday visiting at the home of their daughter. Mrs. LuVerne Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Farmer, of Clarion, were visitin gat the LuVene Smith home Sunday. The ladies are sisters.

We carry a full line of Electric Light Bulbs in 110 volt, also 32 volt bulbs for farm lighting plants. At Jacobs & Son. (3-1-17)

Mrs. Tom Hake, who was seriously ill last week is now recovering. At this writing she is able to be up a part of the time.

Miss Madeline Richter returned to her home at Garner yesterday after being in Klemme for a week caring for Mrs. Hake.

Miss Mae Ferleman left for her home at Garner Saturday afternoon after having cared for Mrs. Albert Fuller, who was seriously ill.

Mr. Volstadt. of Clear Lake, was in Klemme Friday to look over the plumbing plans on the school house addition.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Neioff, of Belmond, were visiting at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Fred Stockwell, last week Friday.

The kiddies were all excited on May Basket Night, and were busy hanging baskets and chasing each other.

"The Storm" is the big picture at the Idle Hour May 9 and 10. It is the same picture which made such a big hit at Des Moines a fow weeks ago.

Mr. Hake, father of Tom Hake of this city, and Mrs. Geo. Hake, both of Belmond. were visiting at the Tom Hake home here Friday of last week.

Henry Barz is driving a fine new Stephens sedan. which he purchased of A. G. Lau of Mason City. Henry believes in owning the best; it sure is a keen job.

A. D. Gimer and family drove to Abbott, Iowa, Sunday for a visit with relatives. They drove down in their Overland but came back in a Buick Six.

LuVerne Smith and wife moved into their rooms over their restaurant Monday. Ralph Irving and family moved to the Maitland house in the north part of town.

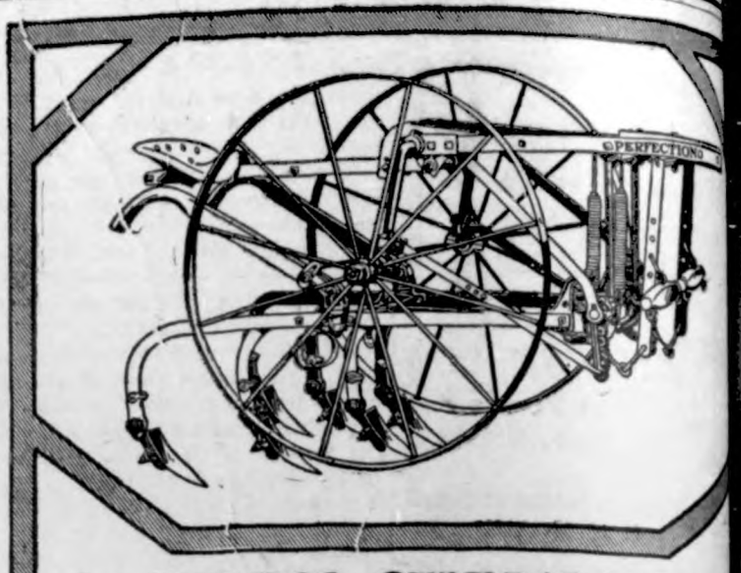
Typewriter ribbons at the Times Print Shop. Black, and Red and Black for all standard machines, at 75c. There is no better ribbon than the Remington. tfc

The Signal says that the County Treasurer has put out 3150 auto number plates to date. This is about the same number as were registered last year in the middle of October.

Kanawha is eal progressive. That town has purchased an electric fire siren alarm and mounted it on the telephone central office. In case of a fire central puts the whistle in operation, and the noise it makes will awaken the dead.

If you kept a Gopher expense account last year, you'll kill them today without being told. Kill the old ones before they breed. Meyer's Red Devil Poison Kernels will do the trick. For sale at E. S. D. Kahrs. adv

Clarence Bachman went to Iowa City the fore part of the week and got some young chap to take care of his barber business. We understand the fellow got homesick or had a date, or something so he left on the evening train last night—borrowed the money in the till and locked up the shop. Clarence's dad had to get busy on the phone and so was able to get Will Zeisemer of Garner to take charge of the business during the Wednesday evening rush. Mean trick we calls it for a fellow to beat it when he is hired to work for a man during his absence.



LEVERLESS, SELF-BALANCING RIDING OR WALKING

Here is the Rock Island No. 70 Perfection, the only leverless, self-balancing cultivator that can be used as a walking cultivator without making any change, except adjusting the handles to suit and tipping the seat forward out of the way.

No levers, ratchets, braces or chains to interfere and make it hard to handle.

It's a cultivator you will enjoy using—come in and look it over.

Henry Lau Sons

'The Storm

The Thrill of the Year

At the Idle Hour

Wed. and Thursday

May 9 and 10

"The Storm is the greatest talked picture in years. A great story of the North with its woods, love, danger and thrills.

Don't Miss It

'The Storm

STILLE'S IMPLEMENT NEWS

VOLUME 1. Thursday, May 3, 1923. Number

WANT A FINE, FIRM SEED BED?

There isn't a tillage tool on your farm so valuable in so many different ways on so many different crops as is the Dunham Culti-Packer. After plowing it crushes clods, firms loose soil, packs out air spaces, stirs top soil. makes a garden-like seed bed, and allows your seeds to start quickly. After seeding or planting, when used for early cultivation, it kills small weeds, forms a mulch, prevents crusting, and conserves the moisture. It cultivates, breaks the spring formedcrust, establishes good growing conditions, and resets the plants of alfalfa, clover, timothy and meadows. A Dunham Culti-Packer on your farm means lower costs for seed bed preparation, better seed beds, larger yields, greater pofits, and a lager balance at the bank.

Clothes may not make the man, but we have never seen one who appeared to advantage in a divorce suit.

A woman rarely puts off until tomorrow what shecan say today.

EXPERIMENTS ARE COSTLY—

Bind your grain with the original "BIG BALL" McCormick twine. Do not tryto save a cent when buying twine and looses a dollar when using it. It always pays to buy good twine. You know the McCormick brand is reliable. Youget the benefit of 40 years of twine making expeience when you buy and use this good brand. "BIG BALL" McCormick is guaranteed for uniform length, also strength and weight. It is treated against destruction by insects. The "BIG BALL" feaure saves time in the field. Order your twine early—NOW is a good time. Thank you.

It is hard to tell which is the worst—too much watered stock or moonshine.

FRUITS OF GOOD PLANTING

There are many good reasons International No. 8 Planter is a orite among the farmers of this munity. One of the most impo reasons is because of its accura with the No. 8 there is no stri of corn. Every hill is placed w it belongs. The valves in the are of the duck bill type. The always a hill of corn waiting a extreme bottom of the boot another is being deposited at th treme top. When avalve is tri the duck bill forces out any dirt may have collected in the boot the lower hill drops only an inc two to the ground, so there is possibility of stringing. That's of the many reasons why the N is remembered in the fall fo good work in the spring.

THE KLEMME TIMES

Twenty-seventh Year—Number 35. Klemme, Iowa, Thursday Afternoon, May 10, 1923. $1.50 In Advance—$2.00 Outside of County

NEWS OF THE WEEK'S DOINGS AT HIGH SCHOOL

ORWITH TAKES BALL MEET

lemme Defeats Crystal Lake, Cor- th Defeats Klemme, Britt Defeats arner, Kanawha Defeats Britt and Corwith Defeats Kanawha

Friday surely was a big day at arner Tht day was an excellent e and ideal for baseball. The lemme team was to play Crystal ake at 8:30, but the Crystal Lake am did not arrive until nearly ten o'clock. The game was not a fast e and nearly resulted in a victory r Crystal Lake. The Klemme boys the Crystal Lake team score five mes before they began to tighten p. In the third inning the K. H. S. n in eight scores making the score 9 to 6. When the game ended with e fifth inning the score was 11 to in Klemme's favor.

The Klemme team cannot say that ey played a good game during the rst game, but they only intended win the game and save themselves til th next game when they knew ey would need all their strength. Koerner pitched all except the last two innings.

The next game was between Gar- er and Britt. It was a good game from start to finish, ending in a score of 4 to 1 Klemme is especially interested in the Garner team and have a right to. because there are four Klemme boys plaping in the Garner team giving them their en- tire battery and their third baseman. Arnold and Wilees are among the best of the pitchers in the County and Lauritzen is as good a high school catcher as there is in High schools of this vicinity.

next on the schedule. The Corwith team was a very fast team and had the advantge over Klemme boys in ving twelve year students and the team was fresh while the Klemme team had already played one game. The Garner team played very well and lost only on account of a little hard luck.

Klemme has no apologies or ex- cuses to make for being defeated by the Corwith boys as they were plain- ly the best team. Gimer pitched the entire game and did some very excellent work, but a pitcher cannot play the entire game alone.

It looked very much like Klemme was going to be shut out, but in the fifth inning Koerner made a one base hit and stole second. Lempke then made a two bagger which brought Koeerner in, and saved us from being shut out.

The next game was between Britt and Kanawha. This was a fast me and ended in a victory for Kan- awha with a score of 11 to 8.

The finals were between Kanaw- ha and Corwith. This was the best game of the day. The score of the two teams never varied more than one score and ended with a score of 4 to 5 in favor of Corwith.

This gives Corwith the cup again. They held the Championship two years ago, but was defeated by Britt last year.

Declamatory

The declamatory contest was very good in all divisions. The oratorical contest was held in the afternoon and the humorous in the evening. Our representatives did not bring home any ribbons this year, but they are to be congratulated on their ex- cellent speaking.

Britt took the meet over all, hav- ing a total of 16 points.

Baseball Friday

Friday the High School team goes to Thornton to play a return game with their High school team .This is going to be a hard game as we only defeated Thornton by a scoreof 9 to 3 on our local diamond and our team did some excellent work in that game.

We need you along with us Friday when we go there, so you had bet- ter drive over and help us win.

Have Some Poetry

Last Thursday the Literature class had a real treat. Mrs. Frank Wenck let the school use some records of Riley's and Longfellow's poems which were given during this class.

The students enjoyed them a great deal and wish to thank Mrs. Wenck for the use of the records.

13 More Left

Doyou realize that there is only thirteen more school days left (from Tuesday) before school wil be over for aw hole three months? Theh school is being brought to the close of a very successful year and webet- lieve thatnearly all the curses will be completed by the close ofth year. We believe the school will ens as al- ways ino grea picnic. There will be a bal game in the afternoon between Kleeme and Crystal Lake. In the lower grades preparations are being made for the finals and everything being prepared for the close of the best school year in the histoy of the Klemmee schools.

WITH THE DIFFERENT CLASSES

Sociology

The socialogy class finished studying the chapter on 'The Problem of the City' and are now studying 'Poverty and Pauperism'. The problems of the city are much more serious than the majority of the people realize and it is the duty of the rural dis- tricts and smaller towns to furnish clean amusements, better education, and improve many other conditions to make small town life attractive and so keep the people from leaving them and the rural districts. Dur- ing the last twenty- five years the city population has increased very rapidly and the rural population has decreased.

Practical Law

The class in commercial law is studying banking and commercial papers. We are now able to distin- guish between the different Negot- iable Instruments and also the non- negotiable. Domestic bills of ex- change and foreign bills have been thoroughly studied.

Physical Geography

The physical geography class fin- ished studying the chapter on "The Meeting of the land and sea" and have taken up the chapter on "Life". One day last week was spent on lab- ratory work and some very good was done.

Physiologists

The physiologists have finished their study on the nervous system and are now beginning on the spec- ial senses. The effect of alcohol and tobacco on the body has been ex- tensively studied and its harmful re- sults have been emphasized. A great deal of drawing has been done in connectionwith this work.

Medieval and Modern History

The medieval and modern history class have finished their study of Medieval times and are now taking up the World War which they find very interesting. After they have completed their study of this chapter they will have finished their text and start reviewing for the final ex- aminations.

Eighth Grade

The eighth grade county examin- ations are all over and no one flunk- ed in the Klemme schools. Many of the students took most of their ex- ams in February and were exempt from taking them last week. Miss Smith received permission from Mr. Baggs to correct the papers witten by the students in this school and their grades were sent to Garner and recorded with the rest of the student of Hancock county. Sometime in June the eighth grades will receive their diplomas and be full fledged Freshman next fall.

Last Friday only four pupils were present in the Grammer room. A few went to the field meen at Garner and others were exempt from the eighth grade examinatnons.

(Dolores Koerner and Clarence Elder, School editors.)

To My Mother

By Clyde Edwin Tuck

Now that old age has bound you with his fetters
And left long furows in your brow of care,
Although he's bent you with the weibht of winters
And left his snowy traces in your hair,
You are to me the fairest and dear- est
That this or any other world can hold;
And while you remain on the earth to love me
My life will keep its sunshine's rarest gold.
When weary with life's burdens and its crosses,
And heart sick at the cruel ways of men,
I've turned to you for words of com- fort
You never failed to cheer my bo- som then;
So I will not forsake you while you linger
And totter on the brink of your last home;-
Where'er on earth my restless foot- setps wander
Back tao your side I ever long to roam.
How could I bear to think of you de- serted
And left to pine away your days alone
In cheerless solitude, mpy duties shirking;
With no companions of the days long flown,
With no strong arm your sinking age supporting,
With no one near to soothe your griefs and tears
I'll sacrifice the world, its wealth and pleasures,
To smooth the pillow of your fail- ,ing years.

Big Blaze In Klemme Last Night Was Koerner Barn

KOERNER'S BARN DESTROYED BY FIRE LAST NIGHT

Loss Is Estimated At $800 Or $900; Most Of Tools Were Saved

The Fire Company was called out to the Koerner residence last night at about nine oclock as their barn and garage was in flames and a dan- ger to the house near by.

The fire boys make good time in getting to the scene of the fire as luck was with them and they hooked the hose wagon to a car right handy. When the fire was reached the en- tire building was a mass of flames and the water was directed mainly toward protecting the house and a cement block work shed where valu- able telephone tools and supplies are stored.

The barn and combination garage was a frame building 22x60. It is now a mass of ashes. The cars were not in the garage at the time of the fire.

Koerner estimated the loss in the neighborhood of $900.

This fire was just another ex- ample of what real necessity is a fire chemical truck in getting to a fire quickly. It showed that a fire fighting chemical outfit could be brought up and in action many min- utes before a hose cart can be gotten to a fire and strung out and coupled to a hydrant. Had there been a wind we are in doubts as to whether enough water could be thrown to prevent the house from going also as the tank was practically empty when the fire was over last night.

Can Klemme AFFORD to be with- out a fire fighting chemical truck any longer? So far we have been lucky; how long will good luck be with us, and then what?

SHUT DOWN PLANT; SERVICE STILL CONTINUES

With the local plant of the Iowa Falls Electric Co. completely shut down, the city of Iowa Falls was sup- plied with plenty of juice for its us- ual needs Monday afternoon. Per- haps not a single person in the city. outside of the plant officials and employes and those who were in on the affair knew the difference.

The members of the Rotary club were guests at dinner at the plant of the Iowa Falls Electric Co. ata noon Monday. The plant was shut down completely, and current for the regu- lar needs of Iowa Falls was supplied solely from the new 13,000 volt high line from Cedar Rapids to Iowa Falls via Reinbeck and Abbott's.

Not only was Iowa Falls furnished with current from this new high line, but also the twenty-six towns in this section of the state served by the local plant got their juice in the same manner.

This demonstration showed the Rotarians how it is possible to sup- ply the city with current even tho something should go wrong with the plant in this city, for instance, if a transformer should burn out, or a flood come up as happened a year ago last February.

It was pointed out at this demon- stration that in the same manner Cedar Rapids and Marshalltown could be served from the plant at Iowa Falls in case anything should go wrong with the plants at those cities. It would take nothing short of a real calamity to deprive any of these three cities of current from the other two places.

NOTICE

I will not allow any trespassing. hunting or trapping on my land, as the privilege has been abused by some. Albert Johnson. 26-3-10p

PASTURE FOR RENT

Have pasture to rent in W½ of NW¼ Section 20, Twp. 94, Range 23 in Avery township. Running wat- er in pasture. Inquire of H. L. Suc- kow, Receiver. Klemme, Iowa. (3-10

REWARD!

The Koerner Telephone Company will pay a reward of $15.00 for evi- dence and conviction of the party or parties who cut and tampered with telephone lines No. 7-59 last Friday night, April 27th.

A. G. KOERNER, Mgr.

CONDENSED NEWS THAT MAY BE OF INTEREST TO YOU

NEWS NUBBINS

"The time has come," the Walrus said, "to talk of many things—of shoes and ships anl sealing wax; of cabbages and kings."

The bell in the clock tower of Maury hall, Naval academy, Anna- polis, of German construction, has been replaced by a bell formed form parts of the scrapped battleships, Michigan, Alabama, Massachuetts and Indiana. Special significance ws given to the selection of material for the bell. as the ships used for the purpose had frequently carriel he midshipman on their summer prac- tice cruises.

To permit or not to permit wom- en to work at night is the question now being considered in a number of nations and states. There is a difference of opinion among wom- en. Some organizations of women oppose night wor k for wonen on the grunds of health and morals. Other organizations of women fa- vor absolute equality of rights, including the right to work, for both sexe. They claim that employerss will make an excuse such as prohib- ition for giving women less pay. New Jersey has decreed that no woman shall work between the hours of ten at night and six in the morning in Canneries excepted.

Three more records have been broken by the postal service accord- ing to reports recived by Postmas- ter General Harry S. New. During the ten months period, July1 to March 31 last year, 120,000,000 monthly order blanks were printed. For the same period ending March 31 this year, the number of money order blanks printed had jumped to 180,000,000, an increase of 60.000- 000, the largest figure known to the postal service. The record increase for the postal receipts was reported by Tonkawa, Oklahoma, an oil boom town, whose postal business increas- ed 30 percent in the March quarter over the preceding quarter. Ton- kaya is one of the old oil towns, but a recent strike has brought an addition of 125 wells, and created a boom which is producing 50,000 bar- rels a day. Mail was so congested at one time during the quarter that even first-class mail was delayed sev eral days. Additional help has been rushed, and the department has just contracted for a lease on a new post- office building for a ten-year period. The third record was created when the department contracted for the lease of a postoffice at Daytona, Flor ida. which, when erected, will con- tain 1,960 lock boxes, which is the national record for the number of lock boxes in proportion to the size of the place.

The federal trade commission has issued a complaint against the East- man Kodak Company, of Rochester, Jules E. Braulatour and the Allied Labratoies Association, Inc., charg- conspiracy whereby the Eastman concern acquired a "virtual" mon- opoly in the manufacture and sale of motion picture films.

E. T. Meredith, Des Moines, Iowa. published and prominent Democrat, speaking at Cleveland, Ohio, before the National Advertising Commis- sion of the Associated advertising Clubs of the World, told the confer- ence "the farmer is coming back. The American farmers. collectively, were worth $2,000,000,000 more either in money or crops, January1, 1923, than they were a year before. Last year's crop was worth $2,000- 000,000 more than the year before which means that prices of agricul- tural products are geneally inceas- ing. Agicultura remains the basic industry of the country and the rea- son why the cities and towns are more prosperous today than they were a year ago is because the form- er is better off.

A general reoganization of the plan of handling parcel post packages which would revolutionize the whole service is under investigation by the Post Office department. It would provide for the sorting and distri- bution of the larger packages at warehouses adjacent to railroad sta- tions and possibly for special types of railway cars to carry them. Un- der this plan, proposed by Paul Hen- derson, Second Assistant Postmaster General, parcel post pkackages, ex- cept those smaller than a standard cigar box, and perishible goods, such as one- day- old chicks, would be se' paated from the regular mail and handled in the warehouses.

Postmaser General New announces that continous air mail service from New York to San Frisco —3,000 mi- les in tweney-eight hours— will be estabished by the Jost Office Depart- ment in July or August. To Accom- odate this service air moil pilots, for the first time will fly nearly 1,- 000 miles, one-third of this trans- continental marathon of the air, in the dead of night. These flights, with the exception of one transatlan- tic exploit, are the longest sustained journeys by air ever undertaken at night.

The Value of Aircraft for coast de- fence purposes when used with coast artillery weapons was demonstraaed in joint exercise recently held at Fort Monroe by the coast artillery and air service forces of the regular army. The special board which ob- served them has just submitted to the Secretary of War, a repart in which, among other things, it asserts that artillery fire can be satisfactor- ily conducted by the use of airplanes data alone, when visibility from shore stations is interferer with by any cause, provided two-way radio communication is assured.

A stamp exhibit. almost. priceless from the standpoint of philatelists, has ben completed by the bureau of Engraving and printing at the dir- cetion of Postmaster General New, and will be sent to London. England, for exhibition at the International Stamp expostion to be held in the Royal Horticultural hall from May 14 to 26. Assistant Postmaster Gen eral Glover will accompany Ameri- ca's entry and enter it himself at the exposition.

REBEKAH BENEFIT PLAY BY GARNER LODGE DREW BIG CROWD

Plenty Of Laughs In This Home Tal- ent Comedy

The home talent play, "McGinty's Widow," put on by the Rebekah lodge of Garner at the Idle Hour last Thursday night drew a large crowd.

The show was even better than promised and everybody was well pleased with the performance.

The comedy was centered around the Widow McGinty, proprietor of a boarding house in New York and was a big laugh from start to finish.

Mrs. J. E. Tierney played the part of the widow and was without a doubt the best player in the cast. Next we would place Ted Tierney as the star comedian in the role of Barney Muldoon, suitor of the at- tractive widow. His rival, Patrick O'Hulligan was aptly played by Peck Hanson, and for a Dane, Peck sure could pull the Irish tongue. The part of Olaf Olson, handy man and beau of the widow's daughter, was played to perfection by Countp Aud- itor J. D. Madison. Miss Gladys Gashell played the part of Katie, the youngest daughter and she brought about many funny scenes.

The other parts of the play were all well played and taken as a whole the home talent was better than a great mny rod shows we hve seen.

The proceeds of the play were di- vided between the Rebekah lodge of Garner and Klemme.

Rats are chicken thieves, Mice are petty thieves, Moles are garden thiev es, Gophes are corn thieves. You can kill all these thieves with Meyer's Red Devil Poison Kernels. For sale at E. S. D. Kahrs. adv

Few pkersons can be as determin- ed as a women who has decided to wash her hair and a man who has made up his mind to go fishing.

FORD HOLDINGS TOP U. S. STEEL

Has More Actual Cash in Treasury Than Any Other Corporation.

TOTAL FORTUNE IS ENORMOUS

Automobile Manufacturer's Wealth Is Estmated at Six Hundred to Seven Hundred Millions—Made in Twenty Years.

New York, May 5.—The Ford Motor company, Inc., has more actual cash in its treasury than any other corporation in the United States, if not in the entire world, according to figures announced in Wall street, which place the total as more than that of the United States Steel corporation, despite the fact that the total assets of the Ford company is less than one-fourth the total assets of the largest steel organization in the world.

The figures, taken from a statement filed with the Massachusetts commission at Boston, show that on Feb. 28, 1923, the Ford company had a total of $159,605,687 cash on hand. This compares with total cash holdings of $126,700,131 reported by the United States Steel corporation in its last annual report of Dec. 31, 1922.

The total assets of the company is given at $536,351,939. The excess of assets over liabilities is shown by a profit and loss surplus of $359,777,598, on Feb. 28, 1923, against a profit and loss surplus of $240,478,736 on the same date last year.

Net profits for the year, Wall street estimates said, amounted to $119,000,000, equivalent to $6.90 a share on the 172,465 shares of $100 par value capital stock outstanding which Henry Ford and his son, Edsel, own outright.

Ford, they believe, has a total fortune, including his Ford Motor company holdings, of between $600,000,000 and $700,000,000, and ranks toward the top of the list of the world's richest men. He is only exceeded, it was believed, by the holdings of John D. Rockefeller, junior and elder.

His vast wealth was obtained in twenty years. When the Ford company was started it was with $100,000 capital stock, a factory space of about one-quarter of an acre and 311 employees. Seventeen hundred cars were built the first year of business. On April 7, last, it was announced, the Ford company had built more than 6,000,000 cars, building more cars now in a single shift than it did in an entire year in its inception.

Columbus Klan Parades; Court Bars Use of Park

Columbus, O., May 5.—In full regalia approximately one thousand members of the Ku Klux Klan paraded here and then boarded street cars and were taken to the outskirts of the city, where, according to klan officials, two thousand men were inducted into the organization. Prevented by an injunction issued by Common Pleas Court Judge Tarbell from staging a "klonvocation" at the Columbus Driving park, the klansmen, after leaving the street cars, marched about a mile east of the park, where they assembled in an open field.

New York Dry Law Killed; Enforcement Up to U. S.

Albany, N. Y., May 5.—The Mullan-Gage state prohibition enforcement laws were repealed shortly before the final adjournment of the legislature when the senate, by a vote of 28 to 22, concurred in the action of the assembly in passing the Cuvillier repeal bill. The measure now goes to the governor. The bill won in the house with 76 affirmative votes, the exact two-thirds majority necessary.

Wife of Standard Oil Man to Face Greek Army Trial

London, May 5.—Mrs. Virginia Brain, said to be the wife of a Standard Oil official, is to be court-martialed at Saloniki, says an Athens dispatch to the Daily Express. The charge against her is not known, the dispatch adds, but it is the outcome of a street incident concerning which Mrs. Brain was questioned by a gendarme, whose face was slapped for alleged impertinence.

Russian Munition Plant Explodes and Kills 100

London, May 3.—One hundred persons have been killed in an ammunition explosion in a factory, according to Moscow advices reaching Helsingfors, Finland, says a Central News dispatch. Those killed include General Malinikoff and many military officers and three members of the local soviet.

Fort Dodge Banker Dies.

Fort, Dodge, Ia., May 5.—E. R. Campbell, vice president of the Commercial National Bank of Fort Dodge, is dead here after a brief illness. He was a former vice president of the Iowa Bankers' association.

Argentina May Rejoin League.

Buenos Aires, May 5.—It is understood that President de Alver, in his annual message to congress, will urge that Argentina resume membership in the League of Nations, from which it withdrew in December, 1920.

CARDINAL FAULHABER

His Eminence, Michael, Cardinal Faulhaber, archbishop of Munich-Freising, has come to America to thank the people of the United States for their relief work in Germany and Austria. Cardinal Faulhaber was formerly a professor at the University of Strassburg and is a prolific writer and well known as a student of English and Spanish literature.

LATEST BERLIN OFFER

Germany Willing to Give $7,140,000,000 Reparations.

Note Sent to Allies and United States —French Cabinet Unanimously Rejects the Proposal.

Berlin, May 3.—Germany made its reparation offer to the allies and the United States. The note offers to pay 30,000,000,000 gold marks (about $7,140,000,000) in cash and kind as the total reparations under the Versailles treaty.

The German government declares that the sum it offers is the utmost it can pay and that it may even be more than it is possible for the nation to deliver, as the result of the industrial weakness caused by the invasion of the Ruhr.

Of the total amount, 20,000,000,000 marks is to be raised before July 1, 1927, through the proceeds of a bond issue, at ordinary rates of interest, sold through the ordinary channels internationally. Of the remainder, 5,000,000,000 marks would be paid before July 1, 1929, through another bond issue, and the other 5,000,000,000 through a third bond issue before July 1, 1931.

Payments in kind, which are to be credited to Germany's account, will also be made by the republic, according to the offer.

Paris, May 4.—The French cabinet unanimously rejected the new German reparations proposal, delivered from Berlin. The reasons given for rejection were lack of guaranties and the insufficiency of the sum offered by Germany.

California World Court Exponent Goes to Congress

Los Angeles, Cal., May 3.—Capt. John D. Fredericks (Rep.) formerly district attorney of Los Angeles county, formerly president of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce and once Republican candidate for governor of California, was elected to congress from the Tenth California district at the special election.

The world court, proposed by President Harding, was the principal issue in the special election for a successor to the late Capt. H. Z. Osborne, who died in office.

Ruthenberg Is Found Guilty of Criminal Syndicalism

St. Joseph, Mich., May 3.—Three hours and fifty minutes after state prosecutors had told a Berrien county jury that it must convict Charles E. Ruthenberg to "preserve the safety of the greatest nation on God's green earth," the eight farmers, one former justice of the peace, two oil salesmen and one American Legion man returned a verdict of guilty of criminal syndicalism against the Cleveland communist.

German Government to Pay for U. S. Cash Held

Washington, May 3.—Germany is prepared, through her representatives on the mixed claims commission, to admit that cash assets confiscated from Americans in Germany by the German alien property custodian during the war shall be repaid dollar for dollar, according to Dr. Karl von Lewinski, a member of the German delegation.

Bandits Rob Two Banks.

Kansas City, Mo., May 5.—Two banks at Buckner, Mo., 18 miles from here, were raided by five bandits. The robbers escaped in a motorcar with about $6,000 in cash and $25,000 in Liberty bonds.

Four Years for Killing Umps.

St. Louis, Mo., May 5.—Charles Woolsey, seventeen, charged with killing Charles Bouzek, an umpire, was found guilty of manslaughter by a jury and sentenced to four years' imprisonment in the boys' reformatory.

PLANE CROSSES U. S. IN ONE HOP

Army Men Fly From Coast to Coast Without a Stop.

ALL RECORDS ARE SMASHED

Flight of 2,635 Miles Is Made in Approximately Twenty-Seven Hours by Lieuts. O. G. Kelly and John A. MacReady.

San Diego, Cal., May 4.—The first coast-to-coast non-stop aerial flight was completed Thursday when Lieutenants John A. MacReady and Oakley Kelly arrived in San Diego in the army transport monoplane T-2 which left Hempstead, N. Y., at 12:36:53 p. m., eastern standard time, Wednesday. The flight, which covered a distance of approximately 2,635 miles, was accomplished in 26 hours 50 minutes and 48 2-5 seconds.

When the giant monoplane was sighted over the city, watching airplanes from Rockwell field and naval planes from North island flew to meet it and to escort it to Rockwell field. And as the plane landed, warships in the harbor and factories in the city greeted it with congratulatory whistles.

Waiting correspondents put the word on the wires to every part of the country. And presently from Washington came this telegram to the record-breaking aviators from President Harding:

"Accept my most cordial congratulations on the success of your record-making non-stop coast-to-coast flight successfully completed. You have written a new chapter in the triumphs of American aviation."

General Pershing and Major General Patrick, chief of the army air service, also sent congratulatory messages. And congratulation was put in an undeniably practical form when Franklin R. Kenny of New York, who during the war was in the army air service, sent this telegram to the service:

"I win $5,000 by the successful non-stop flight. Will you wire my expense MacReady and Kelly asking them if they will accept the $5,000 as a gift to celebrate the greatest achievement in our aviation history. You explain to them and make the gallant young bull pups take it."

The T-2 is known as the army transport type monoplane. It has a wing spread of 81 feet 4 inches and a wing breadth of 15 feet, designed and built under the direction of the United States army aeronautical authorities at the army experimental station at McCook field, Dayton, Ohio. It has a carrying capacity of 725 gallons of gasoline, 35 gallons of lubricating oil and 25 of water and is equipped with a Liberty motor.

Dixie Cities Act to Hold Colored Folk Down There

Jackson, Miss., May 4.—Joint meetings of white and colored citizens will be held May 19 at every courthouse in Mississippi to discuss the exodus of negroes to the North, and the labor situation, in accordance with the recommendation of a committee of twelve, composed of members of both races, appointed at a meeting here called by the state chamber of commerce.

28,800 in England Receive Over $2,000,000 Year Each

London, May 4.—In a statement in the house of commons Stanley Baldwin, chancellor of the exchequer, said the total number of persons in Great Britain liable to a supertax in the last financial year was about 80,000, with a total income of £470,000,000 (about $2,180,800,000). The total number of incomes over £500,000 ($2,320,000) yearly was 28,880, with a total income of £367,000,000 ($1,702,880,000).

Samuel Gompers Asks U. S. to Join the League Court

Washington, May 4.—Unqualified indorsement has been given President Harding's stand in favor of the League of Nations' Permanent Court of International Justice by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, who asked for "non-partisan unity" in support of the proposal.

Landslide in Utah Causes Train Wreck; 5 Dead, 26 Hurt

Salt Lake City, May 4.—Officials of the Denver & Rio Grande Western railroad announced that five persons were killed and twenty-six injured in the wreck of passenger train No. 2, eastbound, at Woodside, Utah. A landslide caused the wreck.

Two Quakes Recorded.

Cleveland, O., May 5.—Two earth shocks, one at 11:42 a. m. and the other at 11:47, were recorded by the St. Ignatius college seismograph. The distance is estimated at between four and five thousand miles from here.

Anti-Ku Klux Bill Is Passed.

Albany, N. Y., May 5.—The Walker bill, designed to tear the mask from the Ku Klux Klan in this state, passed in the assembly here, 76 to 50. The bill now goes to Governor Smith for signature.

JOHN H. EDWARDS

John H. Edwards of Mitchell, Ind., worked so effectively in the thousands of fraud cases in the Post Office department last year as solicitor of the department that Dr. Hubert Work, secretary of the interior, has given him the position of solicitor general of the Post Office department. Edwards was a member of the Indiana general assembly and has been adviser to more than one Indiana governor. He heads the force of thirty or more lawyers and attorneys in the Department of the Interior.

U. S. MARKET REPORT

Weekly Marketgram by Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Washington.—For the week ending May 3—GRAIN—Chicago cash market: No. 2 red winter wheat, $1.28; No. 2 hard winter wheat, $1.21; No. 2 mixed corn, 83c; No. 2 yellow corn, 83c; No. 3 white oats, 46c. Average farm prices: No. 2 mixed corn in central Iowa, 70c; No. 2 hard winter wheat in central Kansas, $1.05; No. 1 dark northern wheat in central North Dakota, $1.05.

DAIRY PRODUCTS—Butter, 92 score, 41½c Chicago. Cheese prices at Wisconsin primary markets: Daisies, 21¾c; double daisies, 21½c; young Americas, 21½c; longhorns, 21¼c; square prints, 22c.

HAY—No. 1 timothy, $20.00 Cincinnati, $23.00 Chicago, $25.00 St. Louis, $16.50 Minneapolis; No. 1 prairie, $16.00 Minneapolis.

FEED—Bran, $28.75; middlings, $29.25; flour middlings, $30.75; rye middlings, $28.50 Minneapolis; gluten feed, $33.65 Chicago; 32 per cent linseed meal, $43.00 Minneapolis; white hominy feed, $32.50 St. Louis, $33.50 Chicago.

LIVE STOCK—Chicago prices: Hogs, top, $8.25; bulk of sales, $7.70@8.15; medium and good beef steers, $8.10@9.70; butcher cows and heifers, $4.50@9.60; feeder steers, $6.25@8.50; light and medium weight veal calves, $8.25@10.25; fat lambs, $13.75@15.25; yearlings, $10.00@15.75; fat ewes, $7.00@9.50.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES—South Carolina Wakefield cabbage mostly $3.00@3.75 per bbl. crate in city markets; Alabama flat Dutch, $3.00@4.50; Mississippi pointed type, $4.00 in Chicago. Florida Spaulding rose potatoes mostly $7.25@8.50 per bbl., reaching $9.00@9.50 in Chicago; sacked round whites, $1.60@2.00 per 100 lbs.; northern round whites, $1.00@1.10 in Chicago carlot markets, $1.25@1.85 most other markets, 95c@$1.05 at shipping points. Texas yellow Bermuda onions, $2.50@3.00 per standard crate in leading cities, $1.55@1.75 in producing sections. Louisiana Klondike strawberries, $2.08@2.75 per 24-pint crate at shipping points, $3.50@4.25 in most consuming centers. Baldwin apples reach season's high point at $6.00@7.50 per bbl.; northwestern extra fancy winesaps, $2.50@3.50 per box in leading markets.

Soldiers' Bonus Bill Sure to Win, Declares Smoot

Washington, May 4.—The next session of congress will pass a soldiers' bonus bill and no cut in taxes can be expected, according to a statement made by Senator Smoot. As the senator is next chairman of the senate finance committee and one of those who joined with Mr. Harding in insisting that a sales tax would be necessary to carry the bonus proposed in the last congress, his statement is considered unusually significant.

Hammond Gets Steel Plant of Jones-Laughlin Company

Indianapolis, Ind., May 5.—The East Chicago Land company of Hammond presented to Robert Bracken, state auditor, a bid of $375 an acre, or a total of $119,625, for 319 acres of state land in Lake county which are desired as a site for the plant of the Jones & Laughlin Steel company of Pittsburgh. The bid was the only one received and was accepted.

Congressman John W. Rainey of Illinois Dies at Chicago

Chicago, May 5.—John W. Rainey, Democratic congressman from the Fourth district, died in St. Bernard's hospital after a two weeks' illness of double pneumonia. Mr. Rainey was born in Chicago in 1880.

Foochow Troops Capture Hankiang.

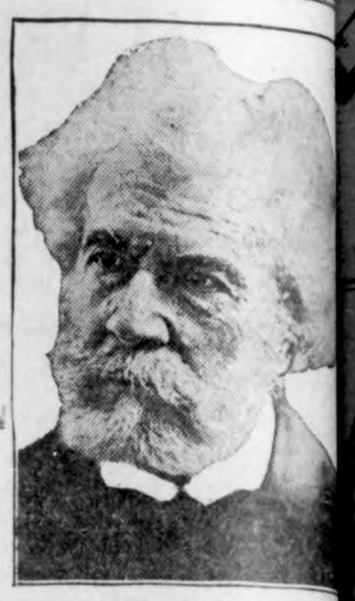
Amoy, China, May 4.—After two hours of battle Hankiang has been captured by troops from Foochow, capital of Fukien province. Hankiang is approximately fifty miles south of Foochow.

Fascisti in Latvian Dispute.

Riga, May 4.—Dissolution of the Latvian Fascisti is demanded by the Socialist party as a result of injuries to more than twenty persons during riots between Fascisti and Socialists. Five Socialists are in the cabinet.

Prominent People

Flammarion Says Souls Survive Bo



Here is a new portrait of Camille Flammarion, the noted French astronomer and scientist, who has just brought out a book, "After Death," in which he asserts that he has definite proof that the soul survives after death. According to his own statement from Paris he "proves a future life exists; that the soul survives the decomposition of the body."

Flammarion cites a hundred cases of the intervention by dead persons in human affairs, in his work, and he professes with absolute certainty that these phenomena are due exclusively to the influence of those who have passed beyond.

The great astronomer is not, however, sure of the immortality of the soul. He only knows that it survives a certain time. Also his investigations have led him to the conclusion that it is the souls of the more materially-minded which cling persistently to earthly affairs after death. This, for him, explains the commo character of most of the alleged messages from beyond the veil. The highly developed souls apparently rise immediately to a higher plane removed from human preoccupations.

Among the proofs offered by Flammarion are cases of dead persons fulfilling promises, giving notice of their own demise and giving warning events which afterward materialized, even such as the execution of geance for wrongs through mediums previously unaware of the wrongs

He says he has applied to his investigations the strict rules of tific research.

Comptroller General vs. Navy Secreta

J. R. McCarl of Nebraska (por herewith), who two years ago be comptroller general of the U States, has laid down the law to retary Denby in insisting that cabinet officers must bow before authority of his office in fiscal a At the same time Secretary D prepared to take to the attorney eral for an opinion the questi how far the authority of the troller general legally extends in administrative workings of the department.

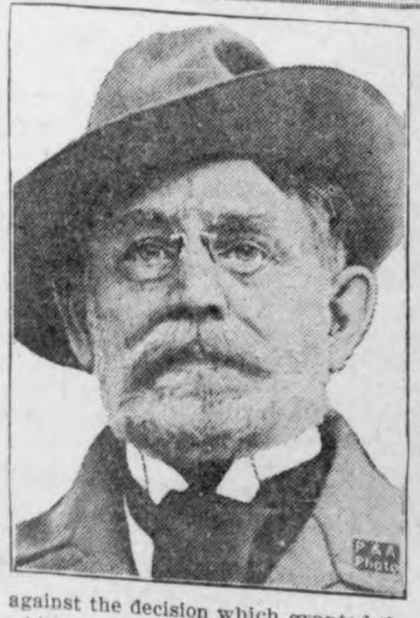
Mr. McCarl's action, consti a warning that he intends to strict compliance with the law h expenditure of public money, be known through a letter he addr to the navy secretary. In the l he asserted that so long as he on matters within his jurisdiction authority under the law could be tioned by no official of the exe branch of the government. Provisions of the budget act in which the comptroller general was created say specifically that he, as head of the accounting office, may exercise his powers "without direction from any officer."

Stinnes: "Germany Must Do More Wor

Hugo Stinnes, Germany's greatest industrial magnate, is a man of dominant personality. He has his own ideas about Germany's needs today. At a recent meeting of the German economic council, held at a time when the reparations commission was sitting in Berlin, Stinnes made a speech on the stabilization of the German mark. He approaches the problem from the standpoint of a man of business, and says what he would do if he were in charge of Germany as a business proposition. He does not hesitate to say that under-production is what is wrong with Germany, and that the eight-hour day must be abandoned by German labor if the country is ever to recover. Says Stinnes:

"The question of the work we must do is not a labor question, but a problem of productivity. I do not consider the eight-hour day a question which we should discuss; we cannot discuss it with profit. But now that all the instruments of our national e omy are not tuned to the eight-hour day, as it is interpreted today, despite desperate situation, it is a question of life or death for us so to utilize thes struments that they produce enough for us to live on. It is of the utmost portance that all of us accept the consequences of the war and work two more daily, so that we may live decently and address ourselves to wor progress. Otherwise we shall have nothing to eat and be doomed to miserably."

Lewis on the "Chester Concession



Fear that American built railro and steamship lines would be seize an enemy and used to transport diers and munitions is the secret hind official protests from France Turkey against American concess in Turkey, says J. Hamilton L former senator from Illinois. Lewis has just returned from the T ish fields of conquest, where he as counsel for American interest the concessions.

These "Chester concessions" been ratified by the Turkish con —or Angora assembly—but official tests have been filed in Washin The American-Turkish treaty now ing prepared will settle the m derstandings to the satisfaction concerned, Mr. Lewis believes.

"At the Genoa and Lausanne ferences, as well as at The Hague at the Paris meeting, the governm of Turkey and France prote against the decision which granted the concessions in favor of the interest which we American lawyers were speaking," said Mr. Lewis.

"The protest is not against Americans because they are the victors in decision, nor against Americans developing the oil wells and transporting oil. It turns on the fact that in the concessions is the privilege of bui railroads and using docks and steamship lines along borders between coun in conflict with each other; each of these lands being backed by one o European countries."

Local Items

Mrs. Levi Klotchbach is enjoying a visit from her sister, Mrs. Beistner, of Fort Atkinson, Wisconsin. She is also visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lew Sampson, and many other Klemme relatives and friends.

Big Opening Dance at White Pier Dance Pavillion, Clear Lake, Iowa, May 15th. Featuring Craven & Wells White Pier Special. This Orchestra will present the latest Songs, Dance Music and Instrumental Solos. Lets go. adv

Supervisor Thos. Berhow was in town yesterday on business. He had been down to Ames the day before to get another army truck for the county. The county now has about six of these trucks and are entitled to another one he said.

LuVerne Smith, Proprietor of the new Elite Cafe, has changed things about in the cafe and has gained a lot of extra space. He is fixing up in gretk shape and will have a real nice cafe when finished. He is also putting in a number of new tables and other fixtures.

Arthur Wellemeyer was called to the Park Hospital at Mason City Sunday afternoon to take charge of the remains of George Schaefer who died there of cancer, following an illness of three years. The body was taken to Klemme for preparation and then taken to Garner where the funeral service was held Tuesday.

Aaron Greimann is more than a-raising cain in general around his Ford Garage. He is doing a about a carload of remodeling in the shop. A new concrete floor is being laid in the shop and he is fixing things up in general. His garage will be a fine appearing place when he gets it all in shape the way he wants it. Now if he would install a couple of plush easy chair and provide us with a couple of ten center smokes we will make him a few more visits each week.

Card Of Thanks

We want to thank our friends and neighbors, and also the fire company for their prompt action at the fire last night. A. G. Koerner and family.

MR. GEORGE SCHAEFER DEAD

Was An Old Resident Of Liberty Township

Mr. and Mrs. John Gruetzmacher, Mr. and Mrs. P M Greiesmer, Mr. C. C Schaefer and Ed Schaefer were all called to Mason Citp Sunday to the bedside of George Schaefer, who passed away at the Park Hospital at 3 o'clock.

Funeral services were held at Garner at the Grace Methodist church Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. Schaefer was a man of some seventy years old, and was an old resident of Liberty township.

NOTICE OF PROBATE OF WILL

STATE OF IOWA
Hancock County, ss.
TO ALL TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED, That an instrument of writing purporting to be the last Will and Testament of MARIA F. KOERNER, deceased, dated Sept. 21, 1922, having been this day filed, opened and read, Monday the 28th day of May, 1923, is fixed for htaring proof of same at the Court House in Garner, Iowa, before the District Court of said County or the Clerk of said Court; and at 10 o'clock A. M. of the day above mentioned, all persons interested are hereby notified and required to appear, and show cause, if any they have, why said instrument should not be probated and allowed as and for the last Will and Testament of said deceased.

Dated at Garner, Iowa, this 30th day of April, 1923.

B. E. ERWIN,
(3-10-17) Clerk of District Court.

LIBERTY FARM BUREAU MET LAST WEDNESDAY

The Farm Bureau of Liberty township held their regular monthly meeting at the Center School, on Wednesday evening, May 2. A good crowd was inattendance. Everyone enjoyed the program which was gotten up by several of the young men of the township. The violin solo by "Prof. Jennings" yas especially enjoyed. Mr. Nutty was out from Britt with the "Movies" as usual.

The next meeting will be June 6. Plan to be there.

The Ladies of Liberty Township will have their last lesson in the Five Months Clothing Course, May 15th. at the Frank Rosendahl home. Miss Smith, the instructor, from Ames, will be at this meeting and she would like to have all the ladies of the township present in the afternoon. The lesson will be the "Planning of Garments."

FIRST M. E. CHURCH

Morning worship at 10 o'clock.
Sunday school at 11 o'clock.
Mother's Day program at 7:45 P. M.

The meeting of the King's Heralds Society will take place in the parsonage at 10 o'clock Sunday A. M. Mrs. Arnold wishes to see every member at this meeting.

Midweek prayer service Thursday evening in the home o Mr. George Gruetzmacher.

We invite you most heartily to all these Services.

—W. C. Bergmann.

AVERY TOWNSHIP

Glenna Gruetzmacher stayed from Saturday night until Sunday at the home of Mrs. C. A. Arnold.

Walter Johnson and W. J. Bell went to Algona, Iowa, Friday night to attend a lodge meeting.

D. P. Anderson and Russell Bell were callers at the Dr. Wesson home in Garner Sunday night.

Anna Carlson closed her school last Thursday for the summer vacation.

Miss Hegland, a trained nurse of near Goodell, is here again taking care of Mr August Trampell, who is very ill at this writing.

Mr. Bill Lassahan and sisters, Emma and Anna, and Miss May Speaker, were visitors at the Bell home last Sunday evening

Wava Bachman, who attends school at Goodell, was home over Sunday. She returned to Goodell Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Barnes, Misses Rose Fritsch, Margaurite Haleck and Mrs. D. D. Ross, all from Garner, were visitors at the Wm. Bell home Friday afternoon.

INSPECT THE BRAKES

Motorist's Safety Depends Upon Abil ity to Stop At Will

With the pleasant weather and good roads of spring comes a tenden cy for the motorist to step on the gas Before doing any fast driving. however, the var owner should make an inspection of the brakes and ee that they are working pkroperly. This step is essential for safety.

During the winter months the brakes become clogged with dirt. With the muddy roads and alternate freezing and thawing of early spring this grime gets betwen the brake band and the drum and causes wearing and dragging. Dragging means lost power and fue.l When the roads get better and the car is driven more rapidly, the dirt drops out, leaving the brakes too loose for safety.

"To compensate for this wear, the brake equalized should be tightened," says R.L. McFarland, who is in charge of automobile instruction at Iowa State College "If the bands are tightened in any other way," says Mr. McFarland, "there is likely to be dragging."

